establishment.) Although it is now known as the "peace symbol", it more accurately is a NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT symbol.

The spread of the use of this symbol, from protest marches and buttons and posters to things like jewelry and fabric design, has become commonplace.

Cheerleaders selected

New cheerleaders were recently selected after tryouts in the gym.

1970-'71 cheering squad will include Mary Lorek, head cheerleader; Debbie Wilson, Cindy Woodard, Linda Walton, Sharron Bakan, Debbie Davis, Janet Evans, and Vonnie Yeager.

"May I please have a note -my wife is going to accuse me of being deliberately tardy."

Big
in concert
Nov. 5
$3.50
Gym
8 P.M.

Passing in Review

"In French, SEXE is a four-letter word. This is the sort of thing you might expect from the French."

And this is only a footnote! Much in the same vein is Richard Armour's latest, rip-roaring, outrageous, iconoclastic and irresistible offering: A SHORT HISTORY OF SEX, "Lovingly Illustrated by Campbell Grant" and published today by McGraw-Hill ($3.95).

A past master in the subtleties of double entendres and hilarious renderings of history and literature, the author of more than two score books comes to grips this time with a subject that is as universal as it is liable to deliberately humorous misinterpretation. Basic action, in Armour's HISTORY OF SEX, is precluded by laughter.

As befits a learned Harvard Ph.D. and longtime professor of English at several colleges and universities, this writer blends genuine erudition with sheer fantasy, authentic research with dazzling jocularly, sense and nonsense.

Armour's teammate in this voyage through history as it never happened, Campbell Grant, was a Walt Disney character creator and story man for twelve years; this is the eleventh time that he lends his whimsical pen to highlight Richard Armour's zany words.

"In this book 1,000 people are telling it as it is, how it ought to be, and how it's got to be if we are to survive." In these words Donald H. Parker, an authority in educational psychology, summarizes his lively and reportage: SCHOOLING FOR WHAT published today by McGraw-Hill. ($7.95).

"The question set me on a 33,000-mile trek across the nation," the author recalls, "I ended up with personal, private tape-recorded interviews with 1,000 persons of all ages, from every walk of life, representing as accurately as possible 200 million Americans in our various ethnic groups and life styles—all zeroing in on the question, SCHOOLING FOR WHAT?" Dr. Parker started out with a set of ten basic queries, focusing on just what is wrong with our schools at all levels, but he found himself expanding his investigation into such related areas as the hippie subculture, student radicalism, racial and generation gaps, and the proliferation of new-life styles.

Willy-nilly, the book came to encompass pertinent views on the impact of the media on the young, and the abuses and potentials of technology. The author found himself delving into considerations on the traditional work ethic and its relevance to our times, and he was led to look into aspects of the sexual revolution, the knowledge explosion, the history of communes in America and the evolution of sensitivity training and encounter groups.

"It was not always easy to get the interviews that lasted from 15 minutes to an hour and a half and covered the spectrum of American life from a sidewalk academy in Oakland to a squalid Appalachian cabin, from behind the walls of a penitentiary to glass and chrome offices on Madison Avenue," Dr. Parker recalls. ".... I have often counterpointed interviews of the young with those of the older, black with white, minority with majority."

What emerges are "the thought patterns of the many age and ethnic groups now crying out to be heard." Their urgent message: time is running out fast for the Establishment, and only a massive turnaround in American priorities can avert collapse and anarchy. In the schools, a consensus of opinion among the interviewees indicates, the student himself must be allowed to determine what and how much to learn to fulfill his needs as an individual facing life on terms which are entirely his own. By the same token, the panoramic survey shows, the diverse experiments in living and learning being carried out by the young themselves—from hippie communes to "free universities"—offer the best models for reordering schooling in America.

Dr. Parker, who lives at Big Sur, Cal., has served on the staffs of six universities and is the author of a widely used series of reading laboratory materials, co-published by Science Research Associates and the Institute of Multilevel Learning International, which he founded in 1964. He has lectured on four continents and has written numerous articles and a previous book, SCHOOLING FOR INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE (1963).

Geography

(Continued from page 1)
to physical geography. Dr. Randall advised social science majors, to "take Geology" to help fulfill their natural science requirement.

As far as the general social science program itself is concerned under the new semester system the requirements are the same. At present, a social science major must concentrate his studies in three different social science areas. "Sometime in the future," Randall states, a major will be offered in each field. He believes both programs can exist together and advised students not to abandon the present program. This should come with the growth of the college and the participating departments.

Chancellor's Poetry Award

★ ★ ★

Oct. 23
Deadline

★ ★ ★

$50

First Prize

WHAT A BIRD!

Introducing our new improved warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

THIS SPACE IS INTENTIONALLY LEFT BLANK

N.C. State Personnel.....	Oct. 22
N.C. State University.....	Oct. 23
R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company	Oct. 27
Wachovia Bank and Trust Company	Oct. 29
Riegel Paper Corporation	Nov. 5
U.S. Marine Corps Officer Team	Nov. 9-10
Allstate Insurance	Nov. 14
Burlington Industries	Nov. 12
Peat, Marwick & Mitchell (accountants).....	Nov. 13
U.S. Navy	Nov. 16
Sears, Roebuck & Company	Nov. 19
Army & Air Force Exchange Service	Dec. 11
Burroughs Corporation	Dec. 14

FREE
Advice
And Anything
Else You Need

SHOP
UNC - W
Bookstore

For All Your Needs
7:30 - 4:00
Pat Gaskins, Mgr.

INTEGON
FINANCIAL SERVICES
TALK TO THE LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12
Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

Celebrate
every moment
of life in attire
by
John B. Scotton
INCORPORATED
FINE MEN'S WEAR
Second & Princess Streets, Wilmington, North Carolina

Shew begins research to graduate with honors

Harry Wayne Shew, a senior at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, has initiated an intensive independent research project which will lead to graduation with honors in his major field.

A biology major, Shew will research "Mutagenic Effectiveness of Hydroxyurea." Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, professor of biology, will advise him in the Honors Program.

Shew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Shew of Leland, is a 1967 graduate of Leland High School. To qualify for admission to the Honors Program, he has maintained at least a 3.0 (B) quality point average his first three years in college.

The Honors Program is designed to comprise two semesters, with four semester hours credit given only upon successful completion of the research project. After the research is completed and the honors paper written, the final step in the program is an oral examination by a committee of the faculty.

Since the program was begun in 1965, 14 students have completed the Honors Program.

Experience the new 'Iron Butterfly'

RECORD REVIEW
IRON BUTTERFLY with
Pinera and Rhino

"Metamorphosis" Atco M-8339
Iron Butterfly, known for "In-a-Gadda-Da-Vidda", has evolved into a somewhat different sound. Erik Brann, original lead guitarist, is out of the group and two new guitarists have replaced him.

"Metamorphosis" (a transformation by magic or sorcery) is the first album by the new group and the results have shown that this phase of the Butterfly has not weakened them.

Two cuts off the album have been released as singles, "Easy Rider (Let the wind pay the way)" and "Shady Lady".

The songs vary in sound from experimental to classical guitar, but there is still the heavy Butterfly sound.

The group seems to be more involved in the problems of today. "Slower than guns" emphasizes the problem of air pollution in the phrase: "Miles and miles of gasoline fumes, in the air like transparent tombs".

The LP is a good buy and more singles should be released from it soon.

NC Government Interview seniors

Seniors interested in employment opportunities in North Carolina State Government will be able to talk with a representative from the State Personnel Department on October 22, 1970. Arrangements for the interview are to be made with the College Placement Office. One should report there to establish a specific appointment on this date.

State Government employs over 39,000 persons in 1,400 different types of jobs. Business, accounting, rehabilitation, social work, laboratory science, education, computer programming, and the natural and physical sciences are only a few of the possible employment areas. Information which fully describes the employment opportunities is available at the Placement Office. In addition, State Government officers its employees a continued education program, excellent possibilities for advancement, paid vacation and holidays, sick leave, and other liberal employee benefits.

Beer 20¢
Per Mug

Every Thursday
9-11 P.M.

(With UNC-W
I.D. Cards)

WITH the completion of this structure UNC-W will become a residence university. The facility will house 400 students. (Photo by Sessions)

British pacifists originated present-day peace symbol

In the wake of the recent controversy about the origins of the peace symbol, we would like to set the record straight. (See New York Times for August 3, 1970, page 30.) In spite of John Birch Society charges that the symbol is really an upsidedown cross, an anti-Christ witch's foot, or a Communist inspired device based on an early symbol that represented the devil's eye, the origin was rather prosaic, and thoroughly British. (One reader even pointed out that the symbol is very close to the initial ideogram in the Japanese word for rifle, shouju.)

The symbol most of us know as the peace symbol had its origin in England in 1958. It was first seen being used by British pacifists in their Easter "ban the bomb" march to Aldermaston to protest Britain's involvement with nuclear weapons. (Aldermaston is the location of the Atomic Weapons Research establishment.) Although it is now known as the "peace symbol", it more accurately is a NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT symbol.

The spread of the use of this symbol, from protest marches and buttons and posters to things like jewelry and fabric design, has become commonplace.

Cheerleaders selected

New cheerleaders were recently selected after tryouts in the gym.

1970-71 cheering squad will include Mary Lorek, head cheerleader; Debbie Wilson, Cindy Woodard, Linda Walton, Sharron Bakan, Debbie Davis, Janet Evans, and Vonnie Yeager.

"May I please have a note -my wife is going to accuse me of being deliberately tardy."

Cap
in concert
Nov. 5
$3.50
Gym
8 P.M.

Passing in Review

"In French, SEXE is a four-letter word. This is the sort of thing you might expect from the French."

And this is only a footnote! Much in the same vein is Richard Armour's latest, rip-roaring, outrageous, iconoclastic and irresistible offering: A SHORT HISTORY OF SEX, "Lovingly Illustrated by Campbell Grant" and published today by McGraw-Hill ($3.95).

A past master in the subtleties of double entendres and hilarious renderings of history and literature, the author of more than two score books comes to grips this time with a subject that is as universal as it is liable to deliberately humorous misinterpretation. Basic action, in Armour's HISTORY OF SEX, is precluded by laughter.

As befits a learned Harvard Ph.D. and longtime professor of English at several colleges and universities, this writer blends genuine erudition with sheer fantasy, authentic research with dazzling jocularly, sense and nonsense.

Armour's teammate in this voyage through history as it never happened, Campbell Grant, was a Walt Disney character creator and story man for twelve years; this is the eleventh time that he lends his whimsical pen to highlight Richard Armour's zany words.

"In this book 1,000 people are telling it as it is, how it ought to be, and how it's got to be if we are to survive." In these words Donald H. Parker, an authority in educational psychology, summarizes his lively and reportage: SCHOOLING FOR WHAT published today by McGraw-Hill. ($7.95).

"The question set me on a 33,000-mile trek across the nation," the author recalls, "I ended up with personal, private tape-recorded interviews with 1,000 persons of all ages, from every walk of life, representing as accurately as possible 200 million Americans in our various ethnic groups and life styles—all zeroing in on the question, SCHOOLING FOR WHAT?" Dr. Parker started out with a set of ten basic queries, focusing on just what is wrong with our schools at all levels, but he found himself expanding his investigation into such related areas as the hippie subculture, student radicalism, racial and generation gaps, and the proliferation of new-life styles.

Willy-nilly, the book came to encompass pertinent views on the impact of the media on the young, and the abuses and potentials of technology. The author found himself delving into considerations on the traditional work ethic and its relevance to our times, and he was led to look into aspects of the sexual revolution, the knowledge explosion, the history of communes in America and the evolution of sensitivity training and encounter groups.

"It was not always easy to get the interviews that lasted from 15 minutes to an hour and a half and covered the spectrum of American life from a sidewalk academy in Oakland to a squalid Appalachian cabin, from behind the walls of a penitentiary to glass and chrome offices on Madison Avenue," Dr. Parker recalls. ".....I have often counterpointed interviews of the young with those of the older, black with white, minority with majority."

What emerges are "the thought patterns of the many age and ethnic groups now crying out to be heard." Their urgent message: time is running out fast for the Establishment, and only a massive turnaround in American priorities can avert collapse and anarchy. In the schools, a consensus of opinion among the interviewees indicates, the student himself must be allowed to determine what and how much to learn to fulfill his needs as an individual facing life on terms which are entirely his own. By the same token, the panoramic survey shows, the diverse experiments in living and learning being carried out by the young themselves—from hippie communes to "free universities"—offer the best models for reordering schooling in America.

Dr. Parker, who lives at Big Sur, Cal., has served on the staffs of six universities and is the author of a widely used series of reading laboratory materials, co-published by Science Research Associates and the Institute of Multilevel Learning International, which he founded in 1964. He has lectured on four continents and has written numerous articles and a previous book, SCHOOLING FOR INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE (1963).

Geography

(Continued from page 1)
to physical geography. Dr. Randall advised social science

majors, to "take Geology" to help fulfill their natural science requirement.

As far as the general social science program itself is concerned under the new semester system the requirements are the same. At present, a social science major must concentrate his studies in three different social science areas. "Sometime in the future," Randall states, a major will be offered in each field. He believes both programs can exist together and advised students not to abandon the present program. This should come with the growth of the college and the participating departments.

Chancellor's Poetry Award

★ ★ ★

Oct. 23

Deadline

★ ★ ★

$50

First Prize

Introducing our new improved warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

This space contributed as a public service.

Celebrate

every moment
of life in attire
by
John B. Scotton
INCORPORATED
FINE MEN'S WEAR
Second & Princess Streets, Wilmington, North Carolina

P's

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢

Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

N.C. State Personnel.....	Oct. 22
N.C. State University.....	Oct. 23
R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company	Oct. 27
Wachovia Bank and Trust Company	Oct. 29
Riegel Paper Corporation	Nov. 5
U.S. Marine Corps Officer Team	Nov. 9-10
Allstate Insurance	Nov. 14
Burlington Industries	Nov. 12
Peat, Marwick & Mitchell (accountants).....	Nov. 13
U.S. Navy	Nov. 16
Sears, Roebuck & Company	Nov. 19
Army & Air Force Exchange Service	Dec. 11
Burroughs Corporation	Dec. 14

FREE

Advice

And Anything Else You Need

SHOP

UNC - W

Bookstore

For All Your Needs

7:30 - 4:00

Pat Gaskins, Mgr.

INTEGON
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

Shew begins research to graduate with honors

Harry Wayne Shew, a senior at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, has initiated an intensive independent research project which will lead to graduation with honors in his major field.

A biology major, Shew will research "Mutagenic Effectiveness of Hydroxyurea." Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, professor of biology, will advise him in the Honors Program.

Shew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Shew of Leland, is a 1967 graduate of Leland High School. To qualify for admission to the Honors Program, he has maintained at least a 3.0 (B) quality point average his first three years in college.

The Honors Program is designed to comprise two semesters, with four semester hours credit given only upon successful completion of the research project. After the research is completed and the honors paper written, the final step in the program is an oral examination by a committee of the faculty.

Since the program was begun in 1965, 14 students have completed the Honors Program.

Experience the new 'Iron Butterfly'

RECORD REVIEW
IRON BUTTERFLY with
Pinera and Rhino

"Metamorphosis" Atco M-8339
Iron Butterfly, known for "In-a-Gadda-Da-Vidda", has evolved into a somewhat different sound. Erik Brann, original lead guitarist, is out of the group and two new guitarists have replaced him.

"Metamorphosis" (a transformation by magic or sorcery) is the first album by the new group and the results have shown that this phase of the Butterfly has not weakened them.

Two cuts off the album have been released as singles, "Easy Rider (Let the wind pay the way)" and "Shady Lady".

The songs vary in sound from experimental to classical guitar, but there is still the heavy Butterfly sound.

The group seems to be more involved in the problems of today. "Slower than guns" emphasizes the problem of air pollution in the phrase: "Miles and miles of gasoline fumes, in the air like transparent tombs".

The LP is a good buy and more singles should be released from it soon.

NC Government Interview seniors

Seniors interested in employment opportunities in North Carolina State Government will be able to talk with a representative from the State Personnel Department on October 22, 1970. Arrangements for the interview are to be made with the College Placement Office. One should report there to establish a specific appointment on this date.

State Government employs

over 39,000 persons in 1,400 different types of jobs. Business, accounting, rehabilitation, social work, laboratory science, education, computer programming, and the natural and physical sciences are only a few of the possible employment areas. Information which fully describes the employment opportunities is available at the Placement Office. In addition, State Government offers its employees a continued education program, excellent possibilities for advancement, paid vacation and holidays, sick leave, and other liberal employee benefits.

Beer 20¢
Per Mug
Every Thursday
9-11 P.M.
(With UNC-W
I.D. Cards)

The Bay
in concert
Nov. 5
$3.50
Gym
8 P.M.

WITH the completion of this structure UNC-W will become a residence university. The facility will house 400 students. (Photo by Sessions)

British pacifists originated present-day peace symbol

In the wake of the recent controversy about the origins of the peace symbol, we would like to set the record straight. (See New York Times for August 3, 1970, page 30.) In spite of John Birch Society charges that the symbol is really an upsidedown cross, an anti-Christ witch's foot, or a Communist inspired device based on an early symbol that represented the devil's eye, the origin was rather prosaic, and thoroughly British. (One reader even pointed out that the symbol is very close to the initial ideogram in the Japanese word for rifle, shōju.)

The symbol most of us know as the peace symbol had its origin in England in 1958. It was first seen being used by British pacifists in their Easter "ban the bomb" march to Aldermaston to protest Britain's involvement with nuclear weapons. (Aldermaston is the location of the Atomic Weapons Research establishment.) Although it is now known as the "peace symbol", it more accurately is a NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT symbol.

The spread of the use of this symbol, from protest marches and buttons and posters to things like jewelry and fabric design, has become commonplace.

Cheerleaders selected

New cheerleaders were recently selected after tryouts in the gym.

1970-'71 cheering squad will include Mary Lorek, head cheerleader; Debbie Wilson, Cindy Woodard, Linda Walton, Sharron Bakan, Debbie Davis, Janet Evans, and Vonnie Yeager.

"May I please have a note -my wife is going to accuse me of being deliberately tardy."

Passing in Review

"In French, SEXE is a four-letter word. This is the sort of thing you might expect from the French."

And this is only a footnote! Much in the same vein is Richard Armour's latest, rip-roaring, outrageous, iconoclastic and irresistible offering: A SHORT HISTORY OF SEX, "Lovingly Illustrated by Campbell Grant" and published today by McGraw-Hill ($3.95).

A past master in the subtleties of double entendres and hilarious renderings of history and literature, the author of more than two score books comes to grips this time with a subject that is as universal as it is liable to deliberately humorous misinterpretation. Basic action, in Armour's HISTORY OF SEX, is precluded by laughter.

As befits a learned Harvard Ph.D. and longtime professor of English at several colleges and universities, this writer blends genuine erudition with sheer fantasy, authentic research with dazzling jocularly, sense and nonsense.

Armour's teammate in this voyage through history as it never happened, Campbell Grant, was a Walt Disney character creator and story man for twelve years; this is the eleventh time that he lends his whimsical pen to highlight Richard Armour's zany words.

"In this book 1,000 people are telling it as it is, how it ought to be, and how it's got to be if we are to survive." In these words Donald H. Parker, an authority in educational psychology, summarizes his lively and reportage: SCHOOLING FOR WHAT published today by McGraw-Hill. ($7.95).

"The question set me on a 33,000-mile trek across the nation," the author recalls, "I ended up with personal, private tape-recorded interviews with 1,000 persons of all ages, from every walk of life, representing as accurately as possible 200 million Americans in our various ethnic groups and life styles—all zeroing in on the question, SCHOOLING FOR WHAT?" Dr. Parker started out with a set of ten basic queries, focusing on just what is wrong with our schools at all levels, but he found himself expanding his investigation into such related areas as the hippie subculture, student radicalism, racial and generation gaps, and the proliferation of new-life styles.

Willy-nilly, the book came to encompass pertinent views on the impact of the media on the young, and the abuses and potentials of technology. The author found himself delving into considerations on the traditional work ethic and its relevance to our times, and he was led to look into aspects of the sexual revolution, the knowledge explosion, the history of communes in America and the evolution of sensitivity training and encounter groups.

"It was not always easy to get the interviews that lasted from 15 minutes to an hour and a half and covered the spectrum of American life from a sidewalk academy in Oakland to a squalid Appalachian cabin, from behind the walls of a penitentiary to glass and chrome offices on Madison Avenue," Dr. Parker recalls. "...I have often counterpointed interviews of the young with those of the older, black with white, minority with majority."

What emerges are "the thought patterns of the many age and ethnic groups now crying out to be heard." Their urgent message: time is running out fast for the Establishment, and only a massive turnaround in American priorities can avert collapse and anarchy. In the schools, a consensus of opinion among the interviewees indicates, the student himself must be allowed to determine what and how much to learn to fulfill his needs as an individual facing life on terms which are entirely his own. By the same token, the panoramic survey shows, the diverse experiments in living and learning being carried out by the young themselves—from hippie communes to "free universities"—offer the best models for reordering schooling in America.

Dr. Parker, who lives at Big Sur, Cal., has served on the staffs of six universities and is the author of a widely used series of reading laboratory materials, co-published by Science Research Associates and the Institute of Multilevel Learning International, which he founded in 1964. He has lectured on four continents and has written numerous articles and a previous book, SCHOOLING FOR INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE (1963).

Geography

(Continued from page 1)
to physical geography. Dr. Randall advised social science

majors, to "take Geology" to help fulfill their natural science requirement.

As far as the general social science program itself is concerned under the new semester system the requirements are the same. At present, a social science major must concentrate his studies in three different social science areas. "Sometime in the future," Randall states, a major will be offered in each field. He believes both programs can exist together and advised students not to abandon the present program. This should come with the growth of the college and the participating departments.

Chancellor's Poetry Award

★ ★ ★

Oct. 23
Deadline

★ ★ ★

$50
First Prize

N.C. State Personnel.....	Oct. 22
N.C. State University.....	Oct. 23
R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company	Oct. 27
Wachovia Bank and Trust Company	Oct. 29
Riegel Paper Corporation	Nov. 5
U.S. Marine Corps Officer Team	Nov. 9-10
Allstate Insurance	Nov. 14
Burlington Industries	Nov. 12
Peat, Marwick & Mitchell (accountants).....	Nov. 13
U.S. Navy	Nov. 16
Sears, Roebuck & Company	Nov. 19
Army & Air Force Exchange Service	Dec. 11
Burroughs Corporation	Dec. 14

Introducing our new improved warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

This space contributed as a public service.

Celebrate every moment
of life in attire
by
John B. Scotton
FINE MEN'S WEAR
Second & Princess Streets, Wilmington, North Carolina

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

FREE
Advice
And Anything
Else You Need

SHOP
UNC - W
Bookstore

For All Your Needs
7:30 - 4:00

Pat Gaskins, Mgr.

INTEGON
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE
LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

Shew begins research to graduate with honors

Harry Wayne Shew, a senior at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, has initiated an intensive independent research project which will lead to graduation with honors in his major field.

A biology major, Shew will research "Mutagenic Effectiveness of Hydroxyurea." Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, professor of biology, will advise him in the Honors Program.

Shew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Shew of Leland, is a 1967 graduate of Leland High School. To qualify for admission to the Honors Program, he has maintained at least a 3.0 (B) quality point average his first three years in college.

The Honors Program is designed to comprise two semesters, with four semester hours credit given only upon successful completion of the research project. After the research is completed and the honors paper written, the final step in the program is an oral examination by a committee of the faculty.

Since the program was begun in 1965, 14 students have completed the Honors Program.

Experience the new 'Iron Butterfly'

RECORD REVIEW
IRON BUTTERFLY with
Pinera and Rhino

"Metamorphosis" Atco M-8339
Iron Butterfly, known for "In-a-Gadda-Da-Vida", has evolved into a somewhat different sound. Erik Brann, original lead guitarist, is out of the group and two new guitarists have replaced him.

"Metamorphosis" (a transformation by magic or sorcery) is the first album by the new group and the results have shown that this phase of the Butterfly has not weakened them.

Two cuts off the album have been released as singles, "Easy Rider (Let the wind pay the way)" and "Shady Lady".

The songs vary in sound from experimental to classical guitar, but there is still the heavy Butterfly sound.

The group seems to be more involved in the problems of today. "Slower than guns" emphasizes the problem of air pollution in the phrase: "Miles and miles of gasoline fumes, in the air like transparent tombs".

The LP is a good buy and more singles should be released from it soon.

NC Government Interview seniors

Seniors interested in employment opportunities in North Carolina State Government will be able to talk with a representative from the State Personnel Department on October 22, 1970. Arrangements for the interview are to be made with the College Placement Office. One should report there to establish a specific appointment on this date.

State Government employs

over 39,000 persons in 1,400 different types of jobs. Business, accounting, rehabilitation, social work, laboratory science, education, computer programming, and the natural and physical sciences are only a few of the possible employment areas. Information which fully describes the employment opportunities is available at the Placement Office. In addition, State Government offers its employees a continued education program, excellent possibilities for advancement, paid vacation and holidays, sick leave, and other liberal employee benefits.

Beer 20¢
Per Mug

Every Thursday
9-11 P.M.

(With UNC-W
I.D. Cards)

WITH the completion of this structure UNC-W will become a residence university. The facility will house 400 students. (Photo by Sessions)

British pacifists originated present-day peace symbol

In the wake of the recent controversy about the origins of the peace symbol, we would like to set the record straight. (See New York Times for August 3, 1970, page 30.) In spite of John Birch Society charges that the symbol is really an upsidedown cross, an anti-Christ witch's foot, or a Communist inspired device based on an early symbol that represented the devil's eye, the origin was rather prosaic, and thoroughly British. (One reader even pointed out that the symbol is very close to the initial ideogram in the Japanese word for rifle, shōju.)

The symbol most of us know as the peace symbol had its origin in England in 1958. It was first seen being used by British pacifists in their Easter "ban the bomb" march to Aldermaston to protest Britain's involvement with nuclear weapons. (Aldermaston is the location of the Atomic Weapons Research establishment.) Although it is now known as the "peace symbol", it more accurately is a NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT symbol.

The spread of the use of this symbol, from protest marches and buttons and posters to things like jewelry and fabric design, has become commonplace.

Cheerleaders selected

New cheerleaders were recently selected after tryouts in the gym.

1970-'71 cheering squad will include Mary Lorek, head cheerleader; Debbie Wilson, Cindy Woodard, Linda Walton, Sharron Bakan, Debbie Davis, Janet Evans, and Vonnie Yeager.

"May I please have a note -my wife is going to accuse me of being deliberately tardy."

in concert

Nov. 5

$3.50

Gym

8 P.M.

Passing in Review

"In French, SEXE is a four-letter word. This is the sort of thing you might expect from the French."

And this is only a footnote! Much in the same vein is Richard Armour's latest, rip-roaring, outrageous, iconoclastic and irresistible offering: A SHORT HISTORY OF SEX, "Lovingly Illustrated by Campbell Grant" and published today by McGraw-Hill ($3.95).

A past master in the subtleties of double entendres and hilarious renderings of history and literature, the author of more than two score books comes to grips this time with a subject that is as universal as it is liable to deliberately humorous misinterpretation. Basic action, in Armour's HISTORY OF SEX, is precluded by laughter.

As befits a learned Harvard Ph.D. and longtime professor of English at several colleges and universities, this writer blends genuine erudition with sheer fantasy, authentic research with dazzling jocularly, sense and nonsense.

Armour's teammate in this voyage through history as it never happened, Campbell Grant, was a Walt Disney character creator and story man for twelve years; this is the eleventh time that he lends his whimsical pen to highlight Richard Armour's zany words.

"In this book 1,000 people are telling it as it is, how it ought to be, and how it's got to be if we are to survive." In these words Donald H. Parker, an authority in educational psychology, summarizes his lively and reportage: SCHOOLING FOR WHAT published today by McGraw-Hill, ($7.95).

"The question set me on a 33,000-mile trek across the nation," the author recalls, "I ended up with personal, private tape-recorded interviews with 1,000 persons of all ages, from every walk of life, representing as accurately as possible 200 million Americans in our various ethnic groups and life styles—all zeroing in on the question, SCHOOLING FOR WHAT?" Dr. Parker started out with a set of ten basic queries, focusing on just what is wrong with our schools at all levels, but he found himself expanding his investigation into such related areas as the hippie subculture, student radicalism, racial and generation gaps, and the proliferation of new-life styles.

Willy-nilly, the book came to encompass pertinent views on the impact of the media on the young, and the abuses and potentials of technology. The author found himself delving into considerations on the traditional work ethic and its relevance to our times, and he was led to look into aspects of the sexual revolution, the knowledge explosion, the history of communes in America and the evolution of sensitivity training and encounter groups.

"It was not always easy to get the interviews that lasted from 15 minutes to an hour and a half and covered the spectrum of American life from a sidewalk academy in Oakland to a squalid Appalachian cabin, from behind the walls of a penitentiary to glass and chrome offices on Madison Avenue," Dr. Parker recalls. ".....I have often counterpointed interviews of the young with those of the older, black with white, minority with majority."

What emerges are "the thought patterns of the many age and ethnic groups now crying out to be heard." Their urgent message: time is running out fast for the Establishment, and only a massive turnaround in American priorities can avert collapse and anarchy. In the schools, a consensus of opinion among the interviewees indicates, the student himself must be allowed to determine what and how much to learn to fulfill his needs as an individual facing life on terms which are entirely his own. By the same token, the panoramic survey shows, the diverse experiments in living and learning being carried out by the young themselves—from hippie communes to "free universities"—offer the best models for reordering schooling in America.

Dr. Parker, who lives at Big Sur, Cal., has served on the staffs of six universities and is the author of a widely used series of reading laboratory materials, co-published by Science Research Associates and the Institute of Multilevel Learning International, which he founded in 1964. He has lectured on four continents and has written numerous articles and a previous book, SCHOOLING FOR INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE (1963).

Geography

(Continued from page 1)
to physical geography. Dr. Randall advised social science

majors, to "take Geology" to help fulfill their natural science requirement.

As far as the general social science program itself is concerned under the new semester system the requirements are the same. At present, a social science major must concentrate his studies in three different social science areas. "Sometime in the future," Randall states, a major will be offered in each field. He believes both programs can exist together and advised students not to abandon the present program. This should come with the growth of the college and the participating departments.

Chancellor's Poetry Award

★ ★ ★

Oct. 23
Deadline

★ ★ ★

$50
First Prize

N.C. State Personnel.....	Oct. 22
N.C. State University.....	Oct. 23
R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company	Oct. 27
Wachovia Bank and Trust Company	Oct. 29
Riegel Paper Corporation	Nov. 5
U.S. Marine Corps Officer Team	Nov. 9-10
Allstate Insurance	Nov. 14
Burlington Industries	Nov. 12
Peat, Marwick & Mitchell (accountants).....	Nov. 13
U.S. Navy	Nov. 16
Sears, Roebuck & Company	Nov. 19
Army & Air Force Exchange Service	Dec. 11
Burroughs Corporation	Dec. 14

FREE
Advice
And Anything
Else You Need

SHOP
UNC - W
Bookstore

For All Your Needs
7:30 - 4:00
Pat Gaskins, Mgr.

INTEGON
FINANCIAL SERVICES
TALK TO THE LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

Introducing
our new improved
warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

This space contributed as a public service.

Celebrate
every moment
of life in attire
by
John B. Scotton
INCORPORATED
FINE MEN'S WEAR
Second & Princess Streets, Wilmington, North Carolina

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

Students confront Byrnes on food services

In an effort to secure better quality of food and food service at the Byrnes Lunch Counter in the Pub, approximately 21 students recently met with Frank P. Byrnes, operator, for an open discussion.

The meeting was primarily instigated by a photo editorial in the last issue of THE SEAHAWK, in which food services were criticized.

Bob Wiard, student body president, presided over the one-half hour meeting.

Before Wiard called the meeting to order, Byrnes passed around a sheet of paper, requesting that students sign their names, so that he "would know who (he) was talking to." A number of students declined to sign.

Among those present were Jack DiSarno, and Terry Hammond, co-editors of THE SEAHAWK; Al Simeone, sophomore class senator; Mrs. Helena Cheek, dean of women; and a number of interested students. Both Byrnes and his wife also attended, accompanied by one of his employees.

Hammond was first to speak, explaining THE SEAHAWK'S interest in the issue. "We have heard numerous complaints about the quality of food served in the Pub.

"One of the chief complaints concerned quality. A number of students have purchased half-raw hamburgers, watery soft drinks, and bad egg salad sandwiches.

"In addition, service is a big gripe. Several black students charge that there is definitely discrimination—that they had been waited on, but not before everyone else at the counter had been served"

Hammond also complained that employees frequently ate behind the counter while waiting on customers, and displayed a general lack of courtesy toward students.

"Food costs are also a controversial issue," she continued. A comparison of food prices between lunch counters in Chapel Hill and UNC-W will show that our food generally costs about 5 cents more per item.

Byrnes, however, countered her charges. "The prices of these things was approved by a college board. Last year I made up a list of prices compared with other places around this county and presented it to Mr. Price (James Price, Business Manager), and they discussed it with the board or the faculty members so far as I know, and they approved the prices."

In defending the 15 cents charge for a cup of coffee, Byrnes said that the prices of coffee has risen in the past year. "We also increased the size of the cup from six to eight ounces," he said.

"As to the quality of my food . . . I have this plaque with me that I won for Restaurant of the Year in 1963. I am presently operating the Sirloin Diner, and we do not have the reputation of serving poor quality food."

Conceding that the diner does serve quality food, Hammond, nevertheless pointed out, "You have to serve quality food to the public, because they don't have to eat at your dinner, but you don't have to serve us quality food, because we don't have any other choice, we have to eat in the Pub."

"We use the same chicken salad and egg salad that we use at the Sirloin Diner," Byrnes countered.

Hammond charged that she personally knew two people who became ill after eating egg salad sandwiches purchased in the Pub, and Byrnes replied that "we fix our egg salad three or four times a week; we never keep it over two days."

"Well, I don't like to think that the food I'm paying for is two days old," Hammond said.

Byrnes next explained that he pays the university 15% of his gross profits in return for the privilege of operating the concession. His contract will expire in eight months.

"Our payroll is a little higher this year than what it was last year," Byrnes stated. "It's up about 20%. But we would like to get some more student help, anyway."

"What is your policy about hiring boys with long hair?" Hammond queried?

Byrnes replied that he thought health regulations forbade the employing of boys with long hair, but students disagreed.

Wiard, therefore, questioned, "Say someone did apply for the job—a student with long hair—and he was willing to go through the same requirements that you require your female waitresses to go through, would you hire a person with long hair?"

"I would prefer one with short hair. One thing that was brought up a minute ago was the service to colored people. I would like to have something a little more substantial than that. Certainly its not our policy to discriminate against people of any color, age, shape, or size. As far as we're concerned, when they come down that line with money in their hand, they're customers. I would like for them to come to me about this and point out some specific instances Sometimes I think they are a little bit sensitive . . . that they are looking for some discrimination."

At this point, Wiard interrupted Byrnes. "If I may, I'd like to reiterate my question about student employees with long hair . . . This concession is in an environment which condones long hair. It condones a little more freedom than is usually seen at the Sirloin Diner. You say faculty members and students might mind it. I'd like to get a statement from you that any student who is willing to give you service, whether he has long hair, is black, male, or female, if this person is willing to work and fulfill the requirements you require other employees to fulfill, that he would be allowed employment at this concession."

"If the students and faculty could put up with it," Byrnes conceded. "I am not against long hair."

Having gained this concession from Byrnes, the students were unable to persuade him to lower his prices. After further debate, therefore, the group agreed to appoint a committee to investigate two main points: 1) competitive prices in the surrounding area; and 2) the possibility of lowering food prices.

Committee members include Bob Jenkins, chairman; Steve Edwards, Goldie Adams, Al Simeone, and Sue Sandlin.

Got
A Gripe
About Food Services?

We Want
To Know

Come By

THE SEAHAWK
Office

Senate inducts newly-elected Freshmen officers

Student Senate recently met to induct Freshman class officers.

New officers include Helen Skelton, president; Beverly Kinlaw, vice-president; and Diane Lace, secretary. Senators inducted were Elizabeth Fickling, Vicki J. Martin, Terry Rodgers, Bobbi Sellers, and Linda Walton.

Bill Brooks presented and discussed several amendments to the Student Government constitution. These amendments will be presented to students for approval.

Students elected to serve the student body on committees were Don Sroufe, athletic committee, Raleigh Todd, library committee, and Ellen Gore and Al Payne, curriculum.

Chick Coleman proposed that the ping-pong room upstairs in the Pub be changed to an office for SGA use.

SENATE President Brian Black and secretary Dana Lee listen as floor debate continues. (Photo by Sessions)

Dry Cleaning Laundry

10% DISCOUNT

To All
UNCW
Students and Faculty
At

HANOVER CLEANERS & LAUNDRY
3544 Oleander Dr.
(Across from J.M. Fields)

INTEGON[®]
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE
LISTENER

James A. Wolfe
Bus. 763-8285

Domestic &
Imported Beers

• Live
Entertainment
• Sound Movies
Cartoons

'Hawk Soccer Team to host PSU tomorrow

SEAHAWK goalie, Bill Watkins makes save in recent scrimmage. (Photo by Sessions)

Seahawk Soccer team will host Pembroke State tomorrow at 1 p.m. This marks the sixth district outing in a season highlighted by a trip to DeLand, Fla. to participate in the Stetson Classic.

Last week the Seahawks clashed with Campbell College, Methodist College, St. Augustine, and Shaw University. The 'Hawks close out the season with three home matches. They face East Carolina Oct. 28; N.C. Wesleyan Oct. 31; and St. Andrews Nov. 4.

The offense is led by Steve Boles who has contributed much to scoring along with Barnet Lewis, Jackie Blackmore, and Jim Braswell. Also playing a key role have been Mark Fear and Gaylin Orteen.

Halfbacks Gary Winters, and John Howarth, and Moe Whisnont have added much to the offensive punch with assists and good power.

John Leach has been cited on the prime defense the 'Hawks support. Steve Clemmons and Bob Elliot have also been key defensive players at the fullback position.

Also seeing action in previous games have been Paul Bonti, Lee Gathur, Walter Grover, Howard Solomon, Steve Raeford, Todd Merritt, and David Hunt.

Bill Watkins has played the starting role at the goalie position with a number of moves against each opponent. Watkins shut out Methodist last week, while his offensive added four goals in their best performance of the season.

Individual honors have been given to Steve Boles and Captain John Leach for excellent performance in the Stetson Classic. They were named to the all-tournament team by the coaches.

The Baptist Student Union will hold a weekend convention in the mountains of North Carolina for statewide college students November 6,7,8.

Discussion groups on sex, drugs, ecology, war, racism, poverty, and a student-parent dialogue will be the basic framework of the gathering.

The relevance of God and religion in daily life will also be discussed.

The cost of $15 per person and transportation can be arranged.

here it is

By GREGG WALTERS

Sports Editor

ACCOMPLISHMENT . . .

Against Lynchburg, Steve Boles left the ground, headed the ball, and didn't get up!!! Time was called, Steve was taken care of. The game continued. Two minutes later an official blew the whistle and asked Coach Honeycutt to remove Steve from the game. He stumbled, fell to his knees and was helped off the field. Lynch won 5-2 and Steve went to the hospital.

One week later, in Delano, Florida, Steve was voted to the all-tournament team along with John Leach. He also finished the tournament tied for the scoring lead. An initial and impressive victory over citadel gave the Seahawks a third place finish.

NEW SEASONS

The wrestling team begins official procedure next week. However, several veterans have been on the mat for three weeks. Captain Pat Sikes has been encouraging an working and some hopeful rookies. Coach Morrissey believes the year's team should better the record of the 69-70 team. We wait the results.

Basketball practice started last week. The only news is a list of pre-season injuries. But it's a long way till December 2.

REPETITION

We hate to harp and bother the student body with the same subject. But you force us to. Fifty people at the Lynchburg game does not constitute a capacity crowd or an interested student body. It does indicate that few people read our last issue and those that did ignored it!!! We do commend the wives, girl-friends, and parents of the players. Without them, the only people there would have been Lynchburg's cheerleaders. Where were ours???

IN THE FUTURE

We welcome all letters, comments, or disagreements that pertain to this column. They will be printed and answered. It is necessary for us to know your feelings on what we write. If you disagree—say so—if you agree—say so—if you don't care—well, continue the role you have been playing since September. Letters directed at any staff writer, any issue on campus, or anything at all can be left in the Seahawk office in the Pub. Again, we welcome and encourage your views and opinions.

Researchers are looking for a solution to the mid-summer grazing problem in an attempt to open the way for beef cattle expansion.

North Carolina's college student population is approximately 132,000. The Consolidated University of North Carolina has a total enrollment of more than 43,000.

I'm the Joe the whole country's talking about!

"A TRIUMPH! A RIP-SHORTER! A 'THIS MINUTE' FILM!" —Judith Crist

"JOE MUST SURELY RANK IN IMPACT WITH 'BONNIE AND CLYDE'!" —Time Magazine

"★★★★ I LOVE IT!" —Chicago-Sun Times

"TAUT AND COMPELLING!" —Washington Post

"WILL BE A BOXOFFICE SENSATION!" —Chicago Tribune

"AN OCCASION FOR CHEERING!" —Philadelphia Daily News

"A MASTERPIECE!" —Chicago Today

"CLEARLY THE MOVIE OF THE MOMENT AND MAYBE THE MOVIE OF THE YEAR!" —Washington Star

"★★★★★ BRILLIANTLY DONE, DEVASTATINGLY FUNNY!" —New York Daily News

"JOE" Stands Up For America!

He's Enough To Make You Mad.....

He Ought To Make You Sick

PRAY FOR "JOE"

A FUNNY AND TERRIFYING MOVIE IF THERE EVER WAS ONE!

"Joe"

COLOR A CANNON RELEASE

Starts TOMORROW!
COLONY
THEATRE
Shows 1-3-5-7-9

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25% PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.50
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's

37 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

Students confront Byrnes on food services

In an effort to secure better quality of food and food service at the Byrnes Lunch Counter in the Pub, approximately 21 students recently met with Frank P. Byrnes, operator, for an open discussion.

The meeting was primarily instigated by a photo editorial in the last issue of THE SEAHAWK, in which food services were criticized.

Bob Wiard, student body president, presided over the one-half hour meeting.

Before Wiard called the meeting to order, Byrnes passed around a sheet of paper, requesting that students sign their names, so that he "would know who (he) was talking to." A number of students declined to sign.

Among those present were Jack DiSarno, and Terry Hammond, co-editors of THE SEAHAWK; Al Simeone, sophomore class senator; Mrs. Helena Cheek, dean of women; and a number of interested students. Both Byrnes and his wife also attended, accompanied by one of his employees.

Hammond was first to speak, explaining THE SEAHAWK'S interest in the issue. "We have heard numerous complaints about the quality of food served in the Pub.

"One of the chief complaint concerned quality. A number of students have purchased half-raw hamburgers, watery soft drinks, and bad egg salad sandwiches.

"In addition, service is a big gripe. Several black students charge that there is definitely discrimination—that they had been waited on, but not before everyone else at the counter had been served...."

Hammond also complained that employees frequently ate behind the counter while waiting on customers, and displayed a general lack of courtesy toward students.

"Food costs are also a controversial issue," she continued. A comparison of food prices between lunch counters in Chapel Hill and UNC-W will show that our food generally costs about 5 cents more per item.

Byrnes, however, countered her charges. "The prices of these things was approved by a college board. Last year I made up a list of prices compared with other places around this county and presented it to Mr. Price (James Price, Business Manager), and they discussed it with the board or the faculty members so far as I know, and they approved the prices."

In defending the 15 cents charge for a cup of coffee, Byrnes said that the prices of coffee has risen in the past year. "We also increased the size of the cup from six to eight ounces," he said.

"As to the quality of my food... I have this plaque with me that I won for Restaurant of the Year in 1963. I am presently operating the Sirloin Diner, and we do not have the reputation of serving poor quality food."

Conceding that the diner does serve quality food, Hammond, nevertheless pointed out, "You have to serve quality food to the public, because they don't have to eat at your dinner, but you don't have to serve us quality food, because we don't have any other choice, we have to eat in the Pub."

"We use the same chicken salad and egg salad that we use at the Sirloin Diner," Byrnes countered.

Hammond charged that she personally knew two people who became ill after eating egg salad sandwiches purchased in the Pub, and Byrnes replied that "we fix our egg salad three or four times a week; we never keep it over two days."

"Well, I don't like to think that the food I'm paying for is two days old," Hammond said.

Byrnes next explained that he pays the university 15% of his gross profits in return for the privilege of operating the concession. His contract will expire in eight months.

"Our payroll is a little higher this year than what it was last year," Byrnes stated. "It's up about 20%. But we would like to get some more student help, anyway."

"What is your policy about hiring boys with long hair?" Hammond queried.

Byrnes replied that he thought health regulations forbade the employing of boys with long hair, but students disagreed.

Wiard, therefore, questioned, "Say someone did apply for the job—a student with long hair—and he was willing to go through the same requirements that you require your female waitresses to go through, would you hire a person with long hair?"

"I would prefer one with short hair. One thing that was brought up a minute ago was the service to colored people. I would like to have something a little more substantial than that. Certainly its not our policy to discriminate against people of any color, age, shape, or size. As far as we're concerned, when they come down that line with money in their hand, they're customers. I would like for them to come to me about this and point out some specific instances.... Sometimes I think they are a little bit sensitive... that they are looking for some discrimination."

At this point, Wiard interrupted Byrnes. "If I may, I'd like to reiterate my question about student employees with long hair... This concession is in an environment which condones long hair. It condones a little more freedom than is usually seen at the Sirloin Diner. You say faculty members and students might mind it. I'd like to get a statement from you that any student who is willing to give you service, whether he has long hair, is black, male, or female, if this person is willing to work and fulfill the requirements you require other employees to fulfill, that he would be allowed employment at this concession."

"If the students and faculty could put up with it," Byrnes conceded. "I am not against long hair."

Having gained this concession from Byrnes, the students were unable to persuade him to lower his prices. After further debate, therefore, the group agreed to appoint a committee to investigate two main points: 1) competitive prices in the surrounding area; and 2) the possibility of lowering food prices.

Committee members include Bob Jenkins, chairman; Steve Edwards, Goldie Adams, Al Simeone, and Sue Sandlin.

Got
A Gripe
About Food Services?

We Want
To Know

Come By

THE SEAHAWK
Office

Senate inducts newly-elected Freshmen officers

Student Senate recently met to induct Freshman class officers.

New officers include Helen Skelton, president; Beverly Kinlaw, vice-president; and Diane Lace, secretary. Senators inducted were Elizabeth Fickling, Vicki J. Martin, Terry Rodgers, Bobbi Sellers, and Linda Walton.

Bill Brooks presented and discussed several amendments to the Student Government constitution. These amendments will be presented to students for approval.

Students elected to serve the student body on committees were Don Sroufe, athletic committee, Raleigh Todd, library committee, and Ellen Gore and Al Payne, curriculum.

Chick Coleman proposed that the ping-pong room upstairs in the Pub be changed to an office for SGA use.

SENATE President Brian Black and secretary Dana Lee listen as floor debate continues. (Photo by Sessions)

Dry Cleaning Laundry

10% DISCOUNT

To All
UNCW
Students and Faculty
At

HANOVER CLEANERS & LAUNDRY

3544 Oleander Dr.

(Across from J.M. Fields)

INTEGON[®]
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE LISTENER

James A. Wolfe

Bus. 763-8285

Domestic & Imported Beers

• Live
Entertainment
• Sound Movies
Cartoons

'Hawk Soccer Team to host PSU tomorrow

Seahawk Soccer team will host Pembroke State tomorrow at 1 p.m. This marks the sixth district outing in a season highlighted by a trip to DeLand, Fla. to participate in the Stetson Classic.

Last week the Seahawks clashed with Campbell College, Methodist College, St. Augustine, and Shaw University. The 'Hawks close out the season with three home matches. They face East Carolina Oct. 28; N.C. Wesleyan Oct. 31; and St. Andrews Nov. 4.

The offense is led by Steve Boles who has contributed much to scoring along with Barnett Lewis, Jackie Blackmore, and Jim Braswell. Also playing a key role have been Mark Fear and Gaylin Orteen.

Halfbacks Gary Winters, and John Howarth, and Moe Whisnont have added much to the offensive punch with assists and good power.

John Leach has been cited on the prime defense the 'Hawks support. Steve Clemmons and Bob Elliot have also been key defensive players at the fullback position.

Also seeing action in previous games have been Paul Bonti, Lee Gathur, Walter Grover, Howard Solomon, Steve Raeford, Todd Merritt, and David Hunt.

Bill Watkins has played the starting role at the goalie position with a number of moves against each opponent. Watkins shut out Methodist last week, while his offensive added four goals in their best performance of the season.

Individual honors have been given to Steve Boles and Co-captain John Leach for excellent performance in the Stetson Classic. They were named to the all-tournament team by the coaches.

The Baptist Student Union will hold a weekend convention in the mountains of North Carolina for statewide college students November 6,7,8.

Discussion groups on sex, drugs, ecology, war, racism, poverty, and a student-parent dialogue will be the basic framework of the gathering.

The relevance of God and religion in daily life will also be discussed.

The cost of $15 per person and transportation can be arranged.

here it is

By GREGG WALTERS

Sports Editor

ACCOMPLISHMENT . . .

Against Lynchburg, Steve Boles left the ground, headed the ball, and didn't get up!!! Time was called, Steve was taken care of. The game continued. Two minutes later an official blew the whistle and asked Coach Honeycutt to remove Steve from the game. He stumbled, fell to his knees and was helped off the field. Lynch won 5-2 and Steve went to the hospital.

One week later, in Delano, Florida, Steve was voted to the all-tournament team along with John Leach. He also finished the tournament tied for the scoring lead. An initial and impressive victory over citadel gave the Seahawks a third place finish.

NEW SEASONS

The wrestling team begins official procedure next week. However, several veterans have been on the mat for three weeks. Captain Pat Sikes has been encouraging an working and some hopeful rookies. Coach Morrissey believes the year's team should better the record of the 69-70 team. We wait the results.

Basketball practice started last week. The only news is a list of pre-season injuries. But it's a long way till December 2.

REPETITION

We hate to harp and bother the student body with the same subject. But you force us to. Fifty people at the Lynchburg game does not constitute a capacity crowd or an interested student body. It does indicate that few people read our last issue and those that did ignored it!!! We do commend the wives, girl-friends, and parents of the players. Without them, the only people there would have been Lynchburg's cheerleaders. Where were ours???

IN THE FUTURE

We welcome all letters, comments, or disagreements that pertain to this column. They will be printed and answered. It is necessary for us to know your feelings on what we write. If you disagree—say so—if you agree—say so—if you don't care—well, continue the role you have been playing since September. Letters directed at any staff writer, any issue on campus, or anything at all can be left in the Seahawk office in the Pub. Again, we welcome and encourage your views and opinions.

Researchers are looking for a solution to the mid-summer grazing problem in an attempt to open the way for beef cattle expansion.

North Carolina's college student population is approximately 132,000. The Consolidated University of North Carolina has a total enrollment of more than 43,000.

SEAHAWK goalie, Bill Watkins makes save in recent scrimmage. (Photo by Sessions)

I'm the Joe the whole country's talking about!

"A TRIUMPH! A RIP-SNORTER! A 'THIS MINUTE' FILM!" —Judith Crist

"JOE' MUST SURELY RANK IN IMPACT WITH 'BONNIE AND CLYDE'!" —Time Magazine

"★★★★ I LOVE IT!" —Chicago-Sun Times

"TAUT AND COMPELLING!" —Washington Post

"WILL BE A BOXOFFICE SENSATION!" —Chicago Tribune

"AN OCCASION FOR CHEERING!" —Philadelphia Daily News

"A MASTERPIECE!" —Chicago Today

"CLEARLY THE MOVIE OF THE MOMENT AND MAYBE THE MOVIE OF THE YEAR!" —Washington Star

"★★★★½ BRILLIANTLY DONE, DEVASTATINGLY FUNNY!" —New York Daily News

"JOE" Stands Up
For America!

He's Enough To Make
You Mad.....

He Ought To Make
You Sick

PRAY FOR "JOE"

A FUNNY AND TERRIFYING MOVIE
IF THERE EVER WAS ONE!

"Joe"

COLOR A CANNON RELEASE

Starts
TOMORROW!
COLONY
THEATRE
Shows 1-3-5-7-9

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25¢ PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.25
Razor $3.50
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importer

Reed's
JEWELLERS
27 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry
- *Student Charge Accounts
- *New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

READY for use, the newly-constructed cafeteria will remain idle until dorms are opened. (Photo by Sessions)

Price predicts autumn opening for cafeteria

By PAMELA SIMPSON
Staff Writer

Completed late last spring, the UNC-W Cafeteria will not open before Fall 1971, according to Bob Walton, assistant to the Business Manager.

"Approximate cost of the cafeteria is $325,000. This amount was borrowed on a low interest rate loan and must be repaid by the cafeteria," Walton explained. "At present it would be economically unfeasible to open because the dormitories are incomplete."

"Plans are to serve at least one full meal a day, and because we have no on-campus students, there would not be enough profit to remain open."

The cafeteria, which lacks a number of kitchen items, will seat approximately 150 students in the snack bar and 300 students upstairs in the main dining room.

Officials have not decided whether the cafeteria will be operated by the university, or be franchised to Frank Byrnes, who operates the snack bar in the Pub. Another alternative cited was the leasing of the cafeteria by a national food service, like Slater, which holds the franchise at North Carolina State University.

Designers of the building were Ballard, McKim, and Sawyer, in conjunction with Leslie M. Boney and Associates.

Film Festival tours colleges, universities

The Fifth National Student Film Festival, largest of its kind in history, will tour colleges and universities across the country and will be available to student organizations for sponsorship, it was recently announced.

The festival, sponsored by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company, Milwaukee, The American Film Institute, the Motion Picture Association of America, and the National Student Association, earned the distinction of being the largest as the result of attracting a record 347 entries in this year's film competition.

Schlitz has awarded $22,500 in cash prizes, five of $2,500 and twenty $500, in addition to providing for two $30,000 fellowships for filmmakers to study film for two years at the Center for Advanced Film Studies, Beverly Hills, California.

Following a World Premiere at Lincoln Center in New York on October 13, a package of award winning films can be sponsored by a student organization, for showing on the campus.

For information concerning sponsorship and bringing the Fifth National Film Festival to the campus, write to International Student Films, 254 W. 71st Street No. 2B, New York, New York 10023, or telephone (212) 595-8080.

William Saroyan play to be presented Oct. 22-25

Original music and a cast of 14 will highlight the SRO Theatre's first production of the season, MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS, by William Saroyan. Tonight at 8:30 p.m.,

The play will be produced nightly through Sat. To be sure of a seat, it is best to call Mrs. Burruss in the Modern Languages Department and make reservations for the night of your choice," stated Dr. Terry Rogers, play director.

Although the play is free to all UNC-W students, general admission tickets will cost $1. A light and whimsical mood play, MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS deals with human struggle. On the surface, the production proclaims brotherhood of Man solidified by mutual respect and love; however, the constant struggle of Man to survive in a materialistic world undercurrents the play.

Original music composed and performed by Bill McAdams, instrumental band instructor at New Hanover High School, will highlight the weekend's performance.

Cast includes Peter Danilowicz as Peter; Mark Barefoot as his father; Gwen Glancy as Peter's grandmother; Tom Wilson as Jasper MacGregor; and Eddie Thompson as Mr. Kosak.

Other SRO Players for this production are Brian Benson, Dawn Gardner, Rosalie Hilburn, Johnny McGee, Joel Perry, Ken Rene, Susan Robbins, and Laura Welch.

S.R.O. performers Peter Danilowicz and Marc Barefoot rehearse in preparation for MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS Oct. 22. (Photo by Sessions)

THE SUIT HOUSE

1902 Oleander Dr.

Wilmington, N. C.

Men's Quality Clothing

COLLEGE STUDENT'S POETRY ANTHOLOGY

The NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

announces

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

November 5

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred by the Board of Judges, because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

3210 Selby Avenue

Los Angeles, Calif.
90034

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

issue 3

nov. 4, 1970

CHICAGO, a seven-piece rock band, will appear in concert in Hanover Hall tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

Chicago here tomorrow p. m.

In the first major concert of the semester, 'Chicago' will perform in Hanover Hall tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

Sponsored by the Entertainment Committee, Chicago will present two 45-minute shows, divided by a 15-minute break.

The seven-piece rock band, famous for such songs as "Wake Up Sunshine", "Make Me Smile", and "25 to 6 to 4", performs jazz, brass, the classics, and rock and roll with equal dexterity.

Student tickets are on sale in the Student Government Office for $3.50. Students wishing to buy an additional ticket for their date, husband, or wife, not attending UNC-W, may purchase a student ticket with their I.D. card. Each student is limited to two student tickets.

A Masquerade Dance will be held Sunday night in Cape Fear Hotel Ballroom from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

High-rise dormitory to be furnished sometime next summer -- maybe

UNC-W's ill-fated dormitory is out of the ground and will be ready for occupancy sometime next summer, barring further complications.

The 400-student dormitory, first planned as two separate buildings housing 200 students each, will be the first high-rise structure on campus.

The 1967 General Assembly appropriated $680,000 for the twin structures with the stipulation that funds for construction not begun by December 31, 1968, would revert to the State.

When bids were received on November 19, 1968, there were only two submitted for the general contract; and state law requires at least three bids for the first bid opening on a state project. Contractors dropped out of the bidding after hearing of a general five percent Federal wage scale increase for basic craftsmen on Federally-financed projects.

A second bid-opening for the dormitories was held in early December, but all bids were much higher than budgeted funds for construction of the two dormitories.

Leslie N. Boney, architect for the project, told the Board of Trustees that his firm had negotiated with contractors but were unable to cut the $700,000 overbid to less than $369,000 overage. He said, "Drastic cuts have already been made to the dormitory designs and further design cuts cannot be made without serious compromise in the quality and size of the dormitories."

Boney told the Board of Trustees that size of the dormitory units was a factor in the high cost since the state's budget for dormitory construction is geared to large mass units. The state allows $3,400 per student to be housed.

While the building and grounds committee was studying new designs for student housing, an application for extension of the December 31, 1968, deadline for the start of construction was applied for and approved by the State Department of Administration.

In mid-December, the building and grounds committee chairman announced that his committee would recommend to the full Board of Trustees both a design change and a change in location for the dormitories.

A high-rise structure to house 400 students was approved by the board, and the site was moved to be adjacent to the southern property line of the campus so that the dormitory would not conflict with the Georgian architecture of the existing buildings on campus.

Ten bids were opened on December 18, 1969, and contracts were awarded in January, 1970. In early February, university officials were notified that an additional loan of $115,000 to air condition the dormitory had been approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, making the total Federal loan for the facility $795,000.

The six-stories structure will have 20 bedrooms, two lounges, a lobby, counselor's suite, mail room, laundry pickup, storage area and bath facilities on the first floor.

The other five floors will each have 36 bedrooms, a lounge, snack bar, bath facilities and laundry and storage areas. Total cost of the building is $1,475,000.

THE FIRST HIGH-RISE building to be constructed on the campus, the 400-student dormitory is slated to open next summer. (Photo by Sessions)

UNC-W alumnus wins NCCU law scholarship

An alumnus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Ernest Berlin Fullwood, has been awarded North Carolina Central University's first annual North Carolina Bar Association and the N.C. Bar Foundation Scholarship.

The scholarship, awarded each year to a student at each of the state's law schools, is sponsored jointly by the N.C. Bar Association and the N.C. Bar Foundation.

Fullwood, a second-year law student at NCCU, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fullwood of Wilmington. He attended Howard University's School of Law before serving a tour of duty in Germany with the United States Army.

At NCCU he is a member of the school's Moot Court Team and is on the staff of the NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL LAW JOURNAL.

Agnew waging 'campaign of slander'

Yale University historian and authority on Southern history C. Vann Woodward, in a recent speech at Duke University asserted that a "campaign of slander" is being pressed against universities and college youth by the Nixon Administration.

Woodward stated that Vice President Agnew and Attorney Gen. Mitchell "are using the publicity over the crimes of a few (student) terrorists...to whip up a spurious political issue, to turn people against their universities, and to divert public attention from the real issue."

Woodward didn't identify Mitchell and Agnew by name, but by numerous publicized statements they have made. He characterized them as being "far more effective enemies of our values, our freedom, and our universities, than student terrorists."

"The scurilous abuse used daily against university students, faculties, and presidents has set a new low of vulgarity in public rhetoric," Woodward said. "Some of the foulest abuse comes from men in high national office."

He used statements by Agnew and Mitchell to prove his point such as one where Mitchell stated that college students are, "stupid kids...and the professors are just as bad if not worse. They don't know anything. Nor do these bastards who are ruining our educational institution."

Woodward said: "With such statements as these coming almost daily from the highest law-enforcing officers of the country, the outbursts of the hardhats and the tragedies of Kent State and Jackson, Mississippi, are less difficult to explain."

Universities must identify their campus terrorists and "dissociate ourselves from them and repudiate them firmly, finally and without compromise," Woodward said.

Campus terrorists are those "who destroy card catalogs, and set fire to library stacks, who bomb laboratories and classrooms and burn professor's notes, who plot the assassinations of judges and disrupt courts, who turn the vicious tactic of violence and terror and intimidation against administration, faculty, and fellow students, even against rival factions or fellow radicals," Woodward explained.

He further warned that for protect these terrorists "in the name of academic freedom is to doom the whole cause of academic freedom. To associate them with legitimate protests is to doom all protests to repression."

"The future of education depends upon closing the widening breach of distrust and suspicion between the university and the public," Woodward stated.

Forum

Wiard gets praise

A "Well-Done" should be expressed to Bob Wiard, Student Body President, who, in a recent interview with Chapel Hill's newspaper, THE DAILY TARHEEL, criticized the bland attitudes of most students at UNC-W. Wiard appeared mindful of the problem and told the DTH not only that "our student government doesn't take enough responsibility" but also that UNC-W students show no interest in taking steps that will have long-range, beneficial results to the school. He related the problem well to the widely-distributed and highly-influential student paper. However, his keen awareness of the problem appeared not so keen as his own spiritlessness could be seen as he summed up UNC-W's campus activism by stating, "This is a quiet school. It's away from the hustle and bustle. Students will find that here they can pick up some credit hours during the summer and also have a good time." I'm sure Bob has stirred much interest among the many Carolina students concerning our campus with his rousing statements.

It's bad enough to be haunted by a dispassionate campus but it's even worse to have it's Student Body President, who supposedly condemns apathy, sound disinterested himself and express his hypocritical ideas to many potential ACTIVE students. Well-done Bob.

Ben Selvittel

The Seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editors.....Jack DiSarno, Terry Hammond
Sports Editor.....Greg Walters
Business Manager.....Terry Smith
Photographer.....Zack Sessions
Circulation Manager.....Kenny Hudson
Greek Editors.....Phyllis Crews, Debbie Davis
Advisor.....Thomas Lupton
Staff writers: Bob Jenkins, Pamela Simpson, John Tew, Downes Eddy, Danny Morrison, Pat Packard, Tommy Torhan
Sue Sandlin
Cartoonist.....John Richardson
Exchange Editor.....Betsey Coleman

THE SEAHAWK is published bi-monthly by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during holidays, summer sessions, and exam weeks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body.

Office located in Hinton James Student Services Building.

1984 ARRIVES EARLY!

'Conservation News'

Are environmentalists defeating 'big business'

In its first Annual Report, the new Council of Environmental Quality said that "historians may one day call 1970 the year of the environment."

Few persons would quarrel with that evaluation because, with the "Earth Day" observance and the enactment of significant new legislation, 1970 has been memorable. The Congress has adopted landmark legislation such as the National Environmental Policy Act and the Water Quality Improvement Act, improved environmental considerations in the Airport and Airway Development Act, and soon may approve of strengthening changes to existing laws on air pollution control and solid waste disposal. A historic court decision, in the so-called Boca Ciega case, said the Army Corps of Engineers has the authority to deny permits to dredge and fill on grounds of environmental damage. And, the President this year himself exerted significant leadership in a special message on the environment to the Congress, recommending a 37-point program. He also ordered Federal agencies to clean up their pollution, took important steps to prevent oil pollution and clean up any which occurs, and proposed taxes on leaded gasoline to reduce air pollution. Truly, 1970 has been the "Year of the Environment."

Despite all of these developments, however, there is a growing suspicion among conservationist and environmentalists that industries may be gaining a dominance where they can play a leading role in the formulation and implementation of policies. Here are the reasons why 1970 may also become known the "Year of the Industrialists':

ITEM: On April 9, 1970, the President announced the establishment, by Executive Order, of a National Industrial Pollution Control Council composed of 63 officials of major industries, including several polluters. Bert S. Cross, of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, was named as chairman. The 3-M Company manufactures a product widely used by its subsidiary, National Advertising Company, which is generally credited with being the biggest opponent to the removal of billboards in the highway beautification plan supported by the Department of Transportation.

Others included in the star-studded lineup are executives of many of the Nation's largest lumbering, mining, oil, and manufacturing companies, some of which have been under close Federal scrutiny for polluting water and air resources. Then, the Administration sought $475,000 for operations of this well-heeled group, or nearly one-third of the amount it requested for activities of the Council on Environmental Quality which is responsible for riding herd on all Federal activities, including those which supervise industries. How well will the Administrator of the new Environmental Protection Agency be able to crack down on polluting industries when they are represented in the Cabinet by the Secretary of Commerce and his is not?

ITEM: In July, 1970, full impact of the insidious poisoning of lakes and streams by mercury wastes was sweeping across America, with evidence of the dangerous element found in waterfowl and fish and other creatures. The Secretary of the Interior (Hickel), said he was moving against ten industrial plants and "we are developing hard evidence against a number of other companies." He said these discharges "represent an intolerable threat to the health and safety of Americans."

Then, in August, Alabama officials reportedly were ready to move to shut down industries discharging mercury into public waters. Yet, the Federal Government baffled Alabamians by pulling the rug out from under the State officials by establishing something of a temporary accommodation tolerance up to a half-pound per day for mercury dischargers, giving them time to install clean-up equipment.

ITEM: On September 9, a writer for the NEW YORK TIMES authored an article attribute to White House sources which alleged that Carl L. Klein, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Water Quality and Research, was a principal obstacle to the enforcement of anti-pollution laws. The article hinted that Klein was too soft. In truth, Klein, probably was too brash and tough. The condition of Puget Sound in Washington is an example. A conference, first step in complicated Federal law enforcement procedures, was held in 1962 to initiate a badly-needed clean-up process. The second session of this conference was held in 1967, when the polluting municipalities and industries agreed to a cleanup compliance schedule. However, some of the polluters are not progressing as rapidly as many people think they can and should. The largest plant involved, the Scott Paper Company, has been given until 1978 by the State as a deadline to clean up part of its wastes—16 years after the initial conference had decided what should be done. Klein wanted to call a public hearing, second stage in the law enforcement process, for the purpose of bringing facts out on the table and to try for an earlier compliance deadline. However, orders "from upstairs" came to cancel the hearing and any pulloff had to originate either with the Secretary or at 1800 Pennsylvania Ave. Klein resigned Sept. 17.

VOTE TODAY
IN THE PUB

Bids will be let next month for a Business-Economics Building to be located at the northeast corner of the campus. Construction is slated to begin in about two months. The building, which will cost approximately $480,000 will be financed through state and federal loans. Designed by Julian Altobellis and associates, the building will reflect the style of other structures on campus.

The Fire

Beautiful flames leaping about
Twisting their lovely abstractions of light
Repeated in shadowy patterns behind Showing the art of the dancers — Or the cruel covetous of a
Broken heart in agony throbbing.

Pulsating embers glowing slowly
Emitting their soft pleasant warm sleepy-glow

Luring the eyelids to close down, down,
down

Showing you sleep in soft rhythm — Or the burning pain of a
Broken heart in agony throbbing.

The soft grey of ashes sifting about Asking in whispers for you to decide
Chuckling lowly at your indecision
Showing you the quiet end of a pleasure — Or the cold deadness of a Human life forever forgotten.

Timothy Sims

Biology Department teaches ecology -- to biology majors

By PAT PACKARD
Staff Writer

Ecology is a widely discussed subject, due to the tremendous publicity given to the problems of pollution. Many concerned Americans have organized groups in an attempt to initiate preventive action. Young people demonstrated in Washington, and a national Earth Day was established to encourage everyone to protect the environment.

Ecology is often mentioned in the discussion of current problems, such as air and water pollution, but is strictly defined by Dr. Ames Parnell as the study of the relationship between organisms and their environment.

"Of course, I feel strongly about these problems so my lectures are probably colored by this," said Dr. Parnell, when asked if pollution were discussed in class.

This multifaceted subject is discussed in lecture and laboratory sessions in the Ecology course which Parnell teaches. The course was originally labeled Field Biology, but was changed in 1965, when ecology became so popular with the public. The catalog stipulates Biology 205 and 206 and senior standing as prerequisites for Ecology.

Because the class content draws largely upon knowledge gained in previous biology classes, Dr. Parnell recommends the class primarily to students majoring in biology. The class presents the philosophy of how organisms interact, gathering specific principles together and giving students a new perspective, he explained.

Lab sessions demonstrate principles discussed in lecture. Students often go on field trips to conduct experiments and thereby experience the concepts presented in class.

One of the current projects involves animal population. It is important for ecologists to be able to estimate the number of animals in a particular area at a given time. The students set mouse traps uniformly throughout a field bordering the campus. Each day the traps are inspected and by utilizing the correct formula, the number of mice in the field will be accurately determined.

However, it was reported that only one mouse had been found—circumstances hindering the effectiveness of the experiment, but evidently not the enthusiasm of the students. Traps were also set to establish the number of catfish in a particular area. The students visit the site each day to tag the fish and release them.

A field trip to demonstrate the regularity of plant succession was also scheduled this semester. This information is pertinent to long-range planning because ecologists know that plants follow a regular cycle of growth.

Dr. Parnell pointed out that environment of an organism is not subject to the Weather Bureau. For instance, the temperature may be 75 degrees on the top of a plant stem, but 90 degrees on the surface of the ground. The environment of an organism deals with the particular spot it inhabits. The class proved this by systematically recording the temperatures at different levels in a group of pine trees and an adjacent field.

Fall semester enrollment up 23% from 1969-'70, according to registrar

Fall semester enrollment is up 23 percent from fall quarter enrollment for 1969-'70. Official statistics released by Mrs. Dorothy Marshall, Registrar, show that 1802 students enrolled this semester.

The freshman class of 606 students is the largest in the school's history. In addition, 429 sophomores, 303 juniors, and 264 seniors are enrolled this term.

Twenty-eight students are enrolled in the two-year associated degree program in "Microscopy," by freshman Kathi Beall, won first place in the first annual "Chancellor's Poetry Award" contest. Sponsored by Atlantis, UNC-W's new literary magazine, the contest received 75 entries by 38 poets.

"Six prizes—two honorable mentions and four place awards—were awarded because of the high quality of the works submitted," stated Dr. J.G. Collier, Jr., assistant professor of English. Each winner received an anthology of poetry.

In addition to her autographed copy of "Southern Poetry Review—A Decade of Poems," Kathi received a $50 check from Chancellor William H. Wagoner.

Second place winner was Peter Venable for "Trilogy". Third award went to Timonhly Sims for "The Fire," and fourth award was presented to Lynn Walker for "Us." Jane Divine and Vivian Phillips received Honorable Mention for "While the Sun Is Shining" and "I Am a Bubble," respectively.

Microscopy

Emotion has no place in formality;
it becomes soggy rhetoric.

Poetry is blinking eyes, tears,
soft or angry gestures,
whispers and screams.

It stains the transparency of the soul to make it visible.

Kathi Beall

News from the university

UNC-Charlotte—Student parking is a big problem at UNC Charlotte this year. An attempt is being made by the student government to change the multiple-parking-ticket policy. Under the present system a student can be fined several times for the same offense. A student can also lose his parking permit upon receiving his third parking ticket. Sophomore representative Stan Patterson is leading opposition debate.

The UNC Charlotte Student Activities Board, is presently planning "Cinema '70" a film program, emphasizing artistic films. Some of the films to be shown are: THE BICYCLE THIEF, MOTHER (Russian film), and THE GOLD RUSH, starring Charlie Chaplin.

The Films Committee, also is planning a series of underground movies. These films will be shown this spring if funds are available.

Anti-war speeches were delivered on the UNCC campus on Oct. 15 in observance of the anniversary of the Vietnam Moratorium. ACLU attorney George Daly and Dr. Josephson (UNCC history professor) were two of the featured speakers.

The Biology Department is contemplating the idea of offering a simplified course available to the non-biology major. Biology major Dan Herring commented, "Everyone should have the chance to take a similar course—although it would have to be simplified."

Graig Braak agreed, saying "It is a course that should be offered to everyone because of our relationship to our environment."

Perhaps a course relating man to his environment would be a progressive step toward reducing the destruction of his environment.

nursing, and 122 people are taking courses in UNC-W's new non-degree program. Fifty persons are listed as special and unclassified students.

Students from 56 counties in N.C. are attending this semester.

There are 1156 New Hanover County residents registered, followed by 83 from Pender, 81 from Onslow, and 74 each from Brunswick and Duplin. N.C. residents account for 1731 of the total enrollment.

The 71 out-of-state students enrolled came from 17 states and the District of Columbia.

Virginia, with 30 students, led in out-of-state enrollment, followed by Pennsylvania with nine, Florida with six, New Jersey and New York with four each;

Maryland and Massachusetts with three each, and Delaware with two. Other students come from Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Ohio, South Carolina, and Texas.

Before Dawn

The sickle moon

Reaps the fields

Of mellowed clouds

As locust swarms

Of geese flock by.

Trilogy

Daybreak

Dawn's eye
Peaks over the Briny waters.

A towering crest
Of black water
Pummels the shore

And a gust carries
A soaring leaf above
The salt-encrusted grass.

Rain

As the new day
Thunders
Its opening,
Curtains of rain fall
And lightning
Chisels a path
Through the inky clouds.

Through a fluid window
Umbrellas bob about
And cars chart
Their course through
The brownish sea.

Peter Venable

Jill Flink featured in Kenan Hall art display

Etchings, lithographs and collographs by Raleigh artist Jill

UNC-W students may purchase tickets for the UNC-Chapel Hill concert series at student rates. Upcoming concerts are posted in the SGA room in the Pub. Students may sign up for tickets here, and must give their money to Bob Wiard seven days prior to the concert.

Every person in our country has a stake in the environment and agriculture has a very important role to play in the fight to combat environmental decay.

My Neighbors

"Say Daddy, are pennies still good for anything?"

Flink are the fare for the November art show which opened November 1.

Flora and fauna are the subjects of many of the 60 works in the show—wood ducks, a grasshopper, a blue tail fly, a snail, violets, daisies, tulips, daffodils and forsythia.

Born in New Orleans, Mrs. Flink studied art with Walt Martin at Atlanta's Studio 4; with Joe Cox through North Carolina State University's Division for Continuing Education; and with Donald Sexauer at the Penland School of Crafts.

A versatile artist, she has won awards for her works in acrylic, graphics, and mixed media. Three of her works have been selected for Purchase Awards this year in the 13th annual juried show sponsored by Durham Allied Arts, in the 2nd National Matt Watercolor, Print and Drawing Exhibition in Erie, Pennsylvania, and in the

I believe that the use of noise to make music will continue and increase until we reach a music produced through the aid of electrical instruments...Whereas in the past, the point of disagreement has been between dissonance and consonance, it will, be, in the immediate future, be in noise and so-called musical sounds.

The Future of Music Credo, 1937.

Beer 20'
Per Mug

Every Thursday
9-11 P.M.

(With UNC-W
I.D. Cards)

Associated Artists of North Carolina Print and Drawing Show held in Wilmington.

Her one-man shows have been exhibited by the Alamance County Art Association in Manchester, New Hampshire, the Southeastern Multiples of Today exhibit at the Gallery of Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem, the Lexington Artists League Show, and the North Carolina Wildlife Artists Show at the N.C. Museum of National History.

Her works have been shown in ten states and the District of Columbia. She is an exhibiting member and a member of the executive board of the Associated Artists of North Carolina and a Merit Member of the Atlanta, Georgia Artists Club.

Besides being one of the state's most active artists, she is the mother of three children and operates a picture framing business in Raleigh. Her show will be open to the public on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. throughout the month of November.

Claude Howell shows pieces in Hines Gallery

An exhibit of paintings and drawings and watercolors by Wilmington artist Claude Howell is currently hanging in the Hines Gallery of the Rocky Mount Arts and Crafts Center.

Described by Center Director Julia Jordan as "one of the most distinguished shows of this or any other Hines Gallery season," the show is comprised of 25 works ranging from huge, bold linear abstracts to small, delicate ink and watercolor sea-scapes produced on a recent trip to Ocracoke.

Howell, chairman of the Department of Art at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, has exhibited at many of the finest museums and galleries in the country, including New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, Washington's Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Mint Museum in Charlotte, The Art Institute of Pasadena, Atlanta's High Museum, The Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, and the The Baltimore Museum of Art.

Howell's list of awards is impressive and lengthy. First prizes have included awards in oil for the Middle Atlantic States Exhibit at the Mint Museum in 1942; watercolor awards in the 5th annual North Carolina and Virginia Exhibition in 1947; watercolor, 5th annual Piedmont Festival, 1947; First Purchase Prize, 11th annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition, 1947; and Purchase Prize in the 11 annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition the same year.

In addition to having been awarded the Rosenwald Fellowship in 1948, Howell has garnered purchase awards in subsequent North Carolina Artists' Annual Exhibitions, as well as at the Mint Museum and the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts. In 1964, one of his paintings was selected Painting of the Month at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

A versatile artist, Howell has done painted and mosaic murals for institutions at Wrightsville Beach, Old Brunswick, and Wilmington. He has also illustrated a number of books, including THE HATTERSMAN by Ben Dixon McNeill, THE BLACK POET by Richard Walser, EXPLORING THE SEA COAST OF NORTH CAROLINA by Jane Corey, and THE BEACHCOMBER'S HANDBOOK OF SEAFOOD COOKERY by Hugh Zachary.

Howell's works are in a number of private collections and 14 public collections, including the North Carolina Museum of Art, Atlanta's High Museum of Art, and several state and regional libraries, colleges, art centers, and industrial collections.

INTEGON®
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE
LISTENER

James A. Wolfe
Bus. 763-8285

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
JEWELRY

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"
Reed's
JEWELRY
37 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

*University Rings
*University Jewelry
*Engagement Rings
*Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

PJ's

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

R. H. Pittman has North America's oldest canoe

R.H. Pittman is the UNC-W Anthropology department. But when he isn't busy being the UNC-W Anthropology department he's doing things like researching the eastern woodlands dugout canoe culture. Pittman did graduate work on this topic.

Being actively involved in fieldwork of this type does not distinguish Pittman from many other anthropologists. However, the results of Pittman's work are very interesting.

Other anthropologists have collected native North American dugouts of various types, but Pittman has the oldest canoe on record.

The canoe is dated at 1005 A.D. In the field of anthropology this is a very important development. The next oldest canoe of this type is of 17th-century vintage.

"The find was made in the spring of 1969, actually by my father (Dr. D.W. Pittman). I had heard about these canoes while I was away, so I gave my father instructions on how and where to look." The canoe was a surface find.

The date 1025, is the result of a C14 (radiocarbon) test administered by Geochron Laboratory. Geochron set the age of the sample at 945 - 95 years.

Dr. Harold W. Krueger, Director of the lab had this to say about the find, "I believe this...will make the Black Lake dug(out) canoe the oldest example of its type which has been dated."

This date of 1005 A.D. is confirmed by the fact that the burning-method of construction is a characteristic of the artifact. The burn-out method was used during the time context suggested by the radiocarbon test.

The canoe or the remains of it were found in Black Lake, N.C. Black Lake is located 14 miles from Elizabethtown on highway 40.

"Eight or nine have been found there by souvenir hunters, unfortunately," Pittman revealed.

The section of the canoe Pittman has, is eight feet long, and is the bow section. There is no way

"The New York Electric String Ensemble" concert, slated for Wednesday, Nov. 4, in the new Kenan Auditorium, has been postponed and rescheduled for Thursday, Dec. 3. This will be the first concert in the new auditorium.

Student - Services offices topic of Senate debate

Junior Don Sroufe was appointed at a recent Senate meeting to the senate post vacated by Elsie Cruse.

In other business a motion made by Chick Coleman was voted on and passed with discussion and two amendments:

1.) The room used by the ping-pong players in the up-stairs of pub was given for usage to the SEAHAWK Staff.

2.) The room presently being used by the members of the SEAHAWK is to be converted to a record filing center for all campus chartered clubs, social fraternities, and sororities, and the service groups. The senate and not any of the various members will have supervision over the room and records.

3.) The senate meeting room will remain as it is, with the exception of moving the ping-pong table into the room. Another ping-pong table will be added to serve more students.

Students wishing to play the game must purchase their own ping-pong balls either in the S.G.A. room for ten cents, or at a commercial store as no funds were allotted for ping-pong balls.

Brian Black, vice-president of Student Body proposed that the S.G.A. become involved with community and social aid organizations such as the Youth Council and the New Hanover Drug Abuse Committee-Crisis line. A special discussion in this issue was held earlier this week.

Frats list pledges

Greek fraternities are pledging 31 men this semester.

Alpha Delta Upsilon pledges include Thomas Brown, Robert High, Winslow Merrick, Joe Shoub, Zack Sessions, Al Simeone, Pete Shindo, Mike Tyer, Raleigh Todd, Dennis Woodcock, Jim Hobbs, Keith Farmer, and Vicky Murray.

Nine men are pledging Pi Kappa Phi: Richard Holmes, Carl Larson, Bill Clark, Don Jenkins, Bill Saunders, Bob Day, Jerel Whitman, Duane Millard, and Jack Kelly.

Tau Kappa Epsilon's pledges are Tony Blanton, Vernon Powell, Bill Watkins, Peter Venable, Bill Flowers, Sunny Sunquist, John Hamalainen, Joe Stevens, and Ennis Cauldwell.

Faculty, staff, and students may now make requests for new books to be added to the Recreational Reading Collection at the Randall Library. Current best sellers and many other popular books are included in the present collection.

A suggestion box is located on the "New Books" shelf to the right upon entering the library. Librarians will review requests periodically and select those to be added. The library budget will also serve as a factor in determining selections.

Books on careers are located in the Recreational Reading area of the library. A printed bibliography of these books is available, in accordance with National Vocational Guidance Week. The career books are still on the shelves.

Four typewriters for faculty and student use have been added to the Library. They are located in the Typing Room where the Xerox machine is located. Students are advised not to abuse the typewriters.

Also, a glass enclosed bulletin board for announcements of meetings and scheduled events is located at the library entrance. Announcements should be typed or written on 3" x 5" unlined card and given to Mrs. McCleod in the Library Office to be posted.

Phone 791-5686
COLLEGE VIEW 66
"Your Car Is Our Business"
A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

INTEGON
FINANCIAL SERVICES
TALK TO THE LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

Sir Charles Barber Shop
1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25% PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.00
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

of telling how long the craft was in its original form.

There is substantial historical data to prove canoes of this type were built that were large enough to hold thirty indians. This data also tells us that 17th-century Florida indians used this type canoe to travel in open sea to points as far away as the Bahamas.

Pittman had this to say about Black Lake, "They drained the lake in 1965, so they could develop the area. This lake was the last clean, natural lake, of any size, in this area."

A lab test was also run on a sample of the wood to determine exactly what type it was. The results showed that it was pine of the long-leaf variety (similar to lightwood, kindling).

The canoe is presently at the Binghamton campus of the State University of New York where Pittman did his graduate work. S.U.N.Y. at Binghamton will build a museum in the near future and the canoe will be on display there.

Population Explosion And Anti-Population Explosion

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

Dry Cleaning Laundry

10% DISCOUNT

To All
UNCW
Students and Faculty
At

HANOVER CLEANERS & LAUNDRY

3544 Oleander Dr.
(Across from J.M. Fields)

JOHN HOWARTH turns the ball in the right direction. Howarth is a 'Hawk Halfback'.

SETTING UP A GOAL against Pembroke State University is sophomore Jackie Blackmore.

MARK FEAR, sidelined with an injury, plays spectator at the PSU game, which the 'Hawks lost 3-2. (Photo by Sessions)

COACH LARRY HONEYCUTT instills spirit during the Seahawk - Pembroke State University game.

IN AN OFFENSIVE PLAY, Jim Braswell dribbles, attempting to turn the ball.

Soccer Game Today
UNC-W vs St. Andrews

here it is

By GREGG WALTERS

Sports Editor

The Soccer Team has now received the credit that it is due. It is a possibility that we have made a mistake. Now they don't seem to play as hard, or care as much. With the exception of six individuals the soccer team does not perform as it has in the past.

In previous years they received little coverage. As a result, they won games. Possibly they needed and wanted recognition so badly that their only answer was victory. In that way some people at least knew that we had a soccer team. However, now anybody that has read our column knows of our soccer team, its training, and its success. But this year we have won fewer games, at this time, than in the previous two years. Perhaps, in an effort to attain victory, we should discontinue any extensive coverage. We doubt this is the solution but is it possible?

POSSIBLE?

THE WILL TO WIN...

Save Esso, Steve, Barney, Jackie, John and another, nobody else appears to possess the will to win. That is a poor percentage. A team effort is needed and is lacking! Against Pembroke, they didn't hustle, (which is essential) and ultimately, they didn't win. Is that essential? The other is Mark Fear. Injured, out of the hospital too early, and lying on a blanket, Mark seemed to want to win more than anybody else on the field.

IGNORE IT ALL...

Now to the present. If you look at the soccer team today everything above has to be ignored. They turned around after the Pembroke game and won their next two. After a haphazard victory over Shaw University in Raleigh, the Seahawks convincingly beat East Carolina University on October 28. As you read this article Soccer season may be over. The last two games, plus the performance of Pembroke in their last two games will decide if the Seahawks reach the District 29 playoffs.

NEW PRECEDENT...

Beginning in the next issue an athlete of the week will be chosen. As the paper comes out bi-monthly, in actuality, it will be an athlete of the "two weeks". The individual will be voted on by the coaches and the sports editor. Nominations may only come from the student body. This will eliminate bias and prejudice. All nominations should be made in the Seahawk office.

BARNEY LEWIS LEAPS ball into goal, but Jim Braswell was off-sides. (Photo by Sessions)

Vote
for Athelete
of
the Week

BRASWELL (37) battles unidentified PSU soccer player for control of the ball. Braswell is a junior transfer student. (Photo by Sessions)

THE GREAT CUT UP

FLARE BOTTOM
Jeans

for guys and gals

by

CONTUR
Slacks

4⁹⁵

WITH THIS COUPON

CUT IT OUT!

SAVE $1.00 on the regular
KETTERIDGE price of 5.95

(Offer Expires Nov. 15, 1970)

Ketteridge
SUIT MARKET

5711 Oleander Dr.
Wilmington, N.C.

Domestic &
Imported Beers

• Live
Entertainment

• Sound Movies
Cartoons

Tutoring program aids students in gaining in-service training

"Since most of my students will be teachers, I wanted to expose them to learning situations where they wouldn't work with children," stated Dr. Michael Bradley, assistant professor of psychology.

To meet a class requirement, many students in Dr. Bradley's Educational Psychology and Child Growth and Development classes are devoting at least one hour weekly to working with young people in the area. They chose this activity rather than to write a paper or to plan a project.

Students are working at various places, including Girl's Club, YMCA, YWCA, Boys' Brigade Club, Northside Center on Fourth Street, and various elementary schools in the area. All students are under supervision.

Dr. Bradley, who originated this program last year, has found it beneficial. "I want my students to know how other people live and think. Many children have problems, and just having other people around can be a comfort to them", he said.

TUTORING CONTINUED

Though only one hour of outside activity per week is required, many students spend more time than that.

Senior Jackie Simpson helps five children in a second grade class with reading and spelling and finds her work enjoyable. "Actually, it's sort of like babysitting. I give extra help to these children who need it and I do things that the teacher just does not have time to do, like seeing that the children hold their pencils correctly when writing," Jackie stated.

Robert Rehder, sophomore, assists a guidance counselor at Leland High School with students, mainly boys, who attend school half a day and work the other half. "Once a week we

Mind-bending show slated in Kenan Auditorium, November 10

If you think you're good at hiding things, you should go see Dr. Franz Polgar, who will present his two-hour "Fun With the Mind" show at the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday, November 10 at 8:30.

For years he has defied anyone to hide any object so that he can't find it. This is the second in the live presentations being brought to this campus by the Fine Arts-Lecture Committee.

Noted commentator Lowell Thomas once bet $100 the genial wizard of the mind couldn't find a pin he would hide. Polgar located the pin under Thomas' collar in about 30 seconds.

Hard-boiled skeptics on the staff of LOOK MAGAZINE thought they'd made a monkey of the mental marvel when they hid a silver money clip in the Empire State Building and then told Polgar to go find it. Exactly 15 minutes later, Polgar had located the money clip—in a drawer within a safe in the locksmith's office in the sub-basement of the world's largest building!

So confident is Polgar of his unerring ability to locate hidden objects that frequently, as a part of his program, he challenges the audience to hide his check for the night's show. If he fails to find it, the show is on him.

He has never failed, despite the fact that many audiences have resorted to diabolically contrived hiding places. In Hollywood they hid the check under the upper plate of a man's denture! In Texas the check was rolled up and shoved into an empty chamber of the police chief's .38 revolver; a Detroit audience tucked the check under the hat of an elderly lady sitting in the center of the theatre. Polgar has had to find his evening's pay in brassieres, hearing aids, under toupees, in the heel of a lady's shoe, sealed in a tennis ball, and in the plaster cast on a girl's fractured ankle.

The $64 question, of course, is: How does he do it?

The answer, in a word, is "telepathy," or as Polgar prefers to call it, "thought-transference." He claims no magic powers, nor does he resort to any of the faker's mumbo-jumbo. Polgar does admit,

however, to the possession of highly-developed extra-sensory perception. In less technical language, this might be described as a sixth sense.

The procedure used by Polgar to locate hidden objects is simple in appearance, although baffling in the results achieved. He requires only the assistance of one person who knows the whereabouts of the concealed object. This person is instructed to give Polgar mental directions—without uttering a sound!

The system is sure-fire—for Polgar.

In addition to his telepathic stunts, Polgar's program will also feature uncanny memory stunts, a truly remarkable and hilarious demonstration of split-second hypnosis and other mystifying phenomena of the mind that prompted the SATURDAY EVENING POST to report, "Audiences gasp at this mental wizard!"

The University's staff, students and faculty will admitted free of charge. A minimum fee of $1 will be charged to those outside the academic community.

have a general bull session. That is, we get together and talk about problems that these high school students face today," Rehder explained.

Junior Connie Yow works with five second-graders. "I'm a substitute parent for these children who are believed to be slow starters, not slow learners. They very often have no one at home to listen to them read, so I do. The children are progressing remarkably. It's just so rewarding," Connie stated.

At the end of the semester each student will turn in a brief summary of his semester's activity.

Cinderella
BOOTERIE
127 N. Front St.

SOUTHEASTERN RADIO ELECTRONICS

CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER

WITH ALL THE EXTRAS!

- *Remote Control Mike
- *Leatherette Carrying Case
- *Private Earphone
- *AC Adaptor *Batteries
- *Blank 60-Minute Cassette

BATTERY & ELECTRIC

Student Special

$39⁸⁸

NORDECENTE FM/AM RADIO PLUS

Cassette Tape Recorder

Battery & Electric!

Record directly from radio... Playback at the touch of a pushbutton. Recording level/battery condition meter. Remote mike, stand, earphone and 60 min. cassette.

$79⁰⁰

Cassette Car Stereo Tape Player

Slim thumbwheel controls make music selection a snap with fast forward and rewind. Padded dash, walnut grained cabinet.

$89⁰⁰

Make Your Own Kind Of Music . . .

NORDECENTE FM/AM/FM-STEREO SYSTEM
WITH BSR McDONALD STEREO RECORD CHANGER

Highly sensitive receiver with tuning meter for zeroing in on your favorite station. BSR "Total Turntable" includes stereo cartridge, base, and tinted dust cover. Matched full fidelity speakers crafted in same walnut as receiver.

Complete... Ready to Plug & Play

$119.

PLAY FM THRU YOUR CAR'S AM RADIO WITH FM Car Converter

Listen to static-free FM thru AM radio power & antenna without altering AM. Local & long distance switch.

$29⁰⁰

Top Artists
All Major Labels!
Pre-Recorded
Cassettes
At Low, Low
Prices!

SAVINGS COUPON
$1⁰⁰
PURCHASE OF YOUR CHOICE
Pre Recorded Stereo
CASSETTE
Present This Coupon Before Nov. 15, 1970

1002 SO. COLLEGE ROAD

Committee recommends self-determined visitation

The Advisory Consultative Committee to University President William C. Friday recently voted unanimously to recommend a self-determined visitation agreement based on a differential housing policy.

The vote came after two meetings, one in Chapel Hill, the other in Charlotte.

The committee recommended that the recommendations be implemented "with all reasonable dispatch," possibly for the 1971-'72 school year.

The differential housing policy, similar to a policy in effect at the University of Tennessee, would establish three basic housing units for individual visitation concepts.

Tom Bello, student body president of UNC-CH, outlined the plan to the committee composed of the six student body presidents of the Consolidated University, two graduate presidents, faculty members of the six schools, and seven members of the Board of Trustees. UNC-W representatives included Bob Wiard, president of the student body; Dr. Joanna Corbett, chairman of the English Department; and Dr.

Calvin Doss, associate professor of education.

The recommendations of the committee, if accepted, will establish one residential housing group for no visitation, a second group for a policy no more liberal than the present administration policy of limited hours and a third group for a totally self-determining policy.

The committee will recommend three basic requirements for the housing unit with self-determination:

—Any student under 21 years old desiring to live in a self-determination unit shall do so only with parental permission in writing;

—Students shall not have the power to make rules and regulations or to conduct themselves in a manner contrary to the laws of the State of North Carolina;

—In those living units having self-determination, any rules and regulations shall not be determined individually, but by a two-thirds vote of all the residents of that particular unit.

A final decision on policy will be made by the Chancellor's Committee.

The final vote on the recommendation came after talks on a strictly self-determining visitation policy failed to make any progress.

Bello, defending the principle of student rights to self-determination, said, "To my knowledge, a student does not forego his individual rights as a citizen as provided under the Constitution of the United States. According, the University may not make vague rules governing conduct."

"Our recommendation to the council will be a very flexible thing, as it involves all of the campus," Wiard explained.

Present restrictions at UNC-CH permit visitation only on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays from 12 noon-2 a.m., if adopted by a two-thirds vote of the residents in a particular house.

THE DAILY TARHEEL, Chapel Hill's Student Newspaper, hailed the committee's recommendation as "1 Step Forward But 2 Backward".

In an editorial, DTH stated, "The action taken by the advisory Consultative Committee on visitation takes control over

Continued on page 5

24 students named to '70 Who's Who

Twenty-four UNC-W students have been selected for the 1970 edition of "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges".

The students were selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders. Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the student's names based on academic achievement, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential.

Students selected include Roberta Benton, Brian Black, Ed Boylan, Dianne Braak, Kirk Brown, Chick Coleman, Pat Corcoran, David Covil, Jack DiSarno, Susan Edgerton, and Roger Fippa.

Also listed are Bill Harrell, George Holston, David James, Sherry Kinlaw, Dana Lee, Bill Marlowe, Al Payne, Phyllis Ruhlman, Veronica Sellers, Ed Talton, Brenda Taylor, Gary Wayne Whitehead, and Bob Wiard.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Swink to explore communications

Doug W. Swink, associate professor of drama and speech at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, will participate in the exploration of communication problems in the multi-dialect classroom during a two-day meeting of the North Carolina Speech and Drama Association November 13-14 in Raleigh.

Dr. Carlton Molette, associate professor of drama at Spellman College in Atlanta, and Dr. Kenneth Goodman, professor of elementary education at Wayne State University in Detroit, will be featured speakers.

Dr. Molette, whose visit is sponsored by the N.C. Arts Council, will discuss the parts reader's theatre, children's theatre and creative drama can play in bringing cohesion to the elementary school classroom. Dr. Goodman will give his theories of why children "misuse" when they are asked to read aloud.

Following that presentation, a panel of North Carolina educators will examine teacher-pupil communication problems which result when the teacher attempts to evaluate reading comprehension by having children using various dialects read aloud from a printed page.

Special demonstrations will be staged showing diversified instruction in the early childhood classroom with special emphasis on dialect orientation, and Dr. Donald W. Warren of the UNC School of Dentistry will present a demonstration of cleft palate speech and its rehabilitation.

A committee appointed by the State Department of Public Instruction will hear suggestions for revising guidelines for speech in an open meeting during the session.

Bio Club to clean roads

A statewide "clean-up day," sponsored by the collegiate division of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences, will be held Saturday November 21. On the local scene the UNC-W Biology Club will spearhead a roadside clean-up project.

The Biology Club and any other interested groups or individuals will pick up trash along College Road (highway 132), starting at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Wayne Shew, Bio Club President, stated that the main purpose of "clean-up day" is to get people concerned and involved in environmental improvement.

Shew stated that, "The idea is to get some action started on cleaning up the environment in general. This is something we can do now. The Biology Club is trying to get it organized but we want everyone on campus to participate."

High schools as well as colleges and universities throughout the state have been urged to participate.

Wallace Ambrose Biology Club V.P. is currently working with the UNC-W interfraternity council to enlist their support.

The idea of "clean-up day" originated in the Executive Committee of the Collegiate Academy of the N.C. Academy of Sciences.

"We are using the theme The Eleventh Hour. This is the title of a book about ecological crisis, and also our kickoff time for the roadside cleanup project," stated Fred Burroughs, Biology Club member.

Music, Drama Dept. to stage Wilson's 'The Music Man'

By PAMELA SIMPSON
Staff Writer

Celebrating a marriage between the Music Department and Drama Department, "The Music Man" by Meredith Wilson will be presented December 11-12 in Kenan Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The musical, for which casting was recently completed, could be described as a musical comedy Americana, due to its setting of the barber shop quartet, high-button shoes era, circa 1912.

Plot centers around Harold Hill, a traveling salesman, who comes to River City, Iowa, where he completely captivates the community.

Harold informs the townspeople that the corruptor in River City is the local pool hall, which the mayor secretly owns. A citizens' band is necessary to improve the community, according to Harold. Marian the town librarian, knows Hill's scheme, which is to sell all of his musical instruments and band uniforms.

She, however, falls in love with him and cannot expose Harold's fraud.

Backstage crew for the ambitious production will include Bob Alexander, musical director; Bill Adcock, orchestra director; Doug Swink, stage director; Dale Wright and Kay Swink, choreography; and Anne Fitzgibbon, sets and costumes.

STAGE DIRECTOR Doug Swink watches intently as prospective actor auditions during tryouts for "The Music Man", which will be presented Dec. 11-12. (Photo by Sessions)

Tutoring program aids students in gaining in-service training

"Since most of my students will be teachers, I wanted to expose them to learning situations where they wouldn't work with children," stated Dr. Michael Bradley, assistant professor of psychology.

To meet a class requirement, many students in Dr. Bradley's Educational Psychology and Child Growth and Development classes are devoting at least one hour weekly to working with young people in the area. They chose this activity rather than to write a paper or to plan a project.

Students are working at various places, including Girl's Club, YMCA, YWCA, Boys' Brigade Club, Northside Center on Fourth Street, and various elementary schools in the area. All students are under supervision.

Dr. Bradley, who originated this program last year, has found it beneficial. "I want my students to know how other people live and think. Many children have problems, and just having other people around can be a comfort to them", he said.

TUTORING CONTINUED

Though only one hour of outside activity per week is required, many students spend more time than that.

Senior Jackie Simpson helps five children in a second grade class with reading and spelling and finds her work enjoyable. "Actually, it's sort of like babysitting. I give extra help to these children who need it and I do things that the teacher just does not have time to do, like seeing that the children hold their pencils correctly when writing," Jackie stated.

Robert Rehder, sophomore, assists a guidance counselor at Leland High School with students, mainly boys, who attend school half a day and work the other half. "Once a week we

Mind - bending show slated in Kenan Auditorium, November 10

If you think you're good at hiding things, you should go see Dr. Franz Polgar, who will present his two-hour "Fun With the Mind" show at the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday, November 10 at 8:30.

For years he has defied anyone to hide any object so that he can't find it. This is the second in the live presentations being brought to this campus by the Fine Arts-Lecture Committee.

Noted commentator Lowell Thomas once bet $100 the genial wizard of the mind couldn't find a pin he would hide. Polgar located the pin under Thomas' collar in about 30 seconds.

Hard-boiled skeptics on the staff of LOOK MAGAZINE thought they'd made a monkey of the mental marvel when they hid a silver money clip in the Empire State Building and then told Polgar to go find it. Exactly 15 minutes later, Polgar had located the money clip—in a drawer within a safe in the locksmith's office in the sub-basement of the world's largest building!

So confident is Polgar of his unerring ability to locate hidden

objects that frequently, as a part of his program, he challenges the audience to hide his check for the night's show. If he fails to find it, the show is on him.

He has never failed, despite the fact that many audiences have resorted to diabolically contrived hiding places. In Hollywood they hid the check under the upper plate of a man's denture! In Texas the check was rolled up and shoved into an empty chamber of the police chief's 38 revolver; a Detroit audience tucked the check under the hat of an elderly lady sitting in the center of the theatre. Polgar has had to find his evening's pay in brassieres, hearing aids, under toupees, in the heel of a lady's shoe, sealed in a tennis ball, and in the plaster cast on a girl's fractured ankle.

The $64 question, of course, is: How does he do it?

The answer, in a word, is "telepathy," or as Polgar prefers to call it, "thought-transference." He claims no magic powers, nor does he resort to any of the faker's mumbo-jumbo. Polgar does admit,

however, to the possession of highly-developed extra-sensory perception. In less technical language, this might be described as a sixth sense.

The procedure used by Polgar to locate hidden objects is simple in appearance, although baffling in the results achieved. He requires only the assistance of one person who knows the whereabouts of the concealed object. This person is instructed to give Polgar mental directions—without uttering a sound!

The system is sure-fire—for Polgar.

In addition to his telepathic stunts, Polgar's program will also feature uncanny memory stunts, a truly remarkable and hilarious demonstration of split-second hypnosis and other mystifying phenomena of the mind that prompted the SATURDAY EVENING POST to report, "Audiences gasp at this mental wizard!"

The University's staff, students and faculty will admitted free of charge. A minimum fee of $1 will be charged to those outside the academic community.

have a general bull session. That is, we get together and talk about problems that these high school students face today," Rehder explained.

Junior Connie Yow works with five second-graders. "I'm a substitute parent for these children who are believed to be slow starters, not slow learners. They very often have no one at home to listen to them read, so I do. The children are progressing remarkably. It's just so rewarding," Connie stated.

At the end of the semester each student will turn in a brief summary of his semester's activity.

Cinderella
BOOTERIE
127 N. Front St.

SOUTHEASTERN RADIO ELECTRONICS

BATTERY & ELECTRIC
CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER

WITH ALL THE EXTRAS!
* Remote Control Mike
* Leatherette Carrying Case
* Private Earphone
* AC Adaptor * Batteries
* Blank 60-Minute Cassette

Student Special

$39⁸⁸

Battery & Electric

NORDEUNDE
FM/AM RADIO PLUS
Cassette Tape Recorder

$79⁰⁰

Record directly from radio ... Playback at the touch of a pushbutton. Recording level/battery condition meter. Remote mike, stand, earphone and 60 min. cassette.

Cassette Car Stereo Tape Player

$89⁰⁰

Slim thumbwheel controls make music selection a snap with fast forward and rewind. Padded dash, walnut grained cabinet.

Make Your Own Kind Of Music . . .

NORDEUNDE FM/AM/FM-STEREO SYSTEM
WITH BSR McDONALD STEREO RECORD CHANGER

Highly sensitive receiver with tuning meter for zeroing in on your favorite station. BSR "Total Turntable" includes stereo cartridge, base, and tinted dust cover. Matched full fidelity speakers crafted in same walnut as receiver.

Complete ... Ready to Plug & Play

$119.

PLAY FM THRU YOUR CAR'S AM RADIO WITH
FM Car Converter

Listen to static-free FM thru AM radio power & antenna without altering AM. Local & long distance switch.

$29⁰⁰

Top Artists
All Major Labels!
Pre-Recorded
Cassettes
At Low, Low
Prices!

SAVINGS COUPON
$1⁰⁰
PURCHASE OF YOUR CHOICE
Pre Recorded Stereo
CASSETTE
Present This Coupon Before Nov. 15, 1970

1002 SO. COLLEGE ROAD

Committee recommends self-determined visitation

The Advisory Consultative Committee to University President William C. Friday recently voted unanimously to recommend a self-determined visitation agreement based on a differential housing policy.

The vote came after two meetings, one in Chapel Hill, the other in Charlotte.

The committee recommended that the recommendations be implemented "with all reasonable dispatch," possibly for the 1971-'72 school year.

The differential housing policy, similar to a policy in effect at the University of Tennessee, would establish three basic housing units for individual visitation concepts.

Tom Bello, student body president of UNC-CH, outlined the plan to the committee composed of the six student body presidents of the Consolidated University, two graduate presidents, faculty members of the six schools, and seven members of the Board of Trustees. UNC-W representatives included Bob Wiard, president of the student body; Dr. Joanna Corbett, chairman of the English Department; and Dr.

Calvin Doss, associate professor of education.

The recommendations of the committee, if accepted, will establish one residential housing group for no visitation, a second group for a policy no more liberal than the present administration policy of limited hours and a third group for a totally self-determining policy.

The committee will recommend three basic requirements for the housing unit with self-determination:

—Any student under 21 years old desiring to live in a self-determination unit shall do so only with parental permission in writing;

—Students shall not have the power to make rules and regulations or to conduct themselves in a manner contrary to the laws of the State of North Carolina;

—In those living units having self-determination, any rules and regulations shall not be determined individually, but by a two-thirds vote of all the residents of that particular unit.

A final decision on policy will be made by the Chancellor's Committee.

The final vote on the recommendation came after talks on a strictly self-determining visitation policy failed to make any progress.

Bello, defending the principle of student rights to self-determination, said, "To my knowledge, a student does not forego his individual rights as a citizen as provided under the Constitution of the United States. According, the University may not make vague rules governing conduct."

"Our recommendation to the council will be a very flexible thing, as it involves all of the campus," Wiard explained.

Present restrictions at UNC-CH permit visitation only on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays from 12 noon-2 a.m., if adopted by a two-thirds vote of the residents in a particular house.

THE DAILY TARHEEL, Chapel Hill's Student Newspaper, hailed the committee's recommendation as "1 Step Forward But 2 Backward".

In an editorial, DTH stated, "The action taken by the advisory Consultative Committee on visitation takes control over

Continued on page 5

24 students named to '70 Who's Who

Twenty-four UNC-W students have been selected for the 1970 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

The students were selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders. Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the student's names based on academic achievement, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential.

Students selected include Roberta Benton, Brian Black, Ed Boylan, Dianne Braak, Kirk Brown, Chick Coleman, Pat Corcoran, David Covil, Jack DiSarno, Susan Edgerton, and Roger Fipps.

Also listed are Bill Harrell, George Holston, David James, Sherry Kinlaw, Dana Lee, Bill Marlowe, Al Payne, Phyllis Ruhland, Veronica Sellers, Ed Talton, Brenda Taylor, Gary Wayne Whitehead, and Bob Wiard.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Swink to explore communications

Doug W. Swink, associate professor of drama and speech at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, will participate in the exploration of communication problems in the multi-dialect classroom during a two-day meeting of the North Carolina Speech and Drama Association November 13-14 in Raleigh.

Dr. Carlton Molette, associate professor of drama at Spellman College in Atlanta, and Dr. Kenneth Goodman, professor of elementary education at Wayne State University in Detroit, will be featured speakers.

Dr. Molette, whose visit is sponsored by the N.C. Arts Council, will discuss the parts reader's theatre, children's theatre and creative drama can play in bringing cohesion to the elementary school classroom. Dr. Goodman will give his theories of why children "miscue" when they are asked to read aloud.

Following that presentation, a panel of North Carolina educators will examine teacher-pupil communication problems which result when the teacher attempts to evaluate reading comprehension by having children using various dialects read aloud from a printed page.

Special demonstrations will be staged showing diversified instruction in the early childhood classroom with special emphasis on dialect orientation, and Dr. Donald W. Warren of the UNC School of Dentistry will present a demonstration of cleft palate speech and its rehabilitation.

A committee appointed by the State Department of Public Instruction will hear suggestions for revising guidelines for speech in an open meeting during the session.

Bio Club to clean roads

A statewide "clean-up day," sponsored by the collegiate division of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences, will be held Saturday November 21. On the local scene the UNC-W Biology Club will spearhead a roadside clean-up project.

The Biology Club and any other interested groups or individuals will pick up trash along College Road (highway 132), starting at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Wayne Shew, Bio Club President, stated that the main purpose of "clean-up day" is to get people concerned and involved in environmental improvement.

Shew stated that, "The idea is to get some action started on cleaning up the environment in general. This is something we can do now. The Biology Club is trying to get it organized but we want everyone on campus to participate."

High schools as well as colleges and universities throughout the state have been urged to participate.

Wallace Ambrose Biology Club V.P. is currently working with the UNC-W interfraternity council to enlist their support.

The idea of "clean-up day" originated in the Executive Committee of the Collegiate Academy of the N.C. Academy of Sciences.

"We are using the theme The Eleventh Hour. This is the title of a book about ecological crisis, and also our kickoff time for the roadside cleanup project," stated Fred Burroughs, Biology Club member.

Music, Drama Dept. to stage Wilson's 'The Music Man'

By PAMELA SIMPSON
Staff Writer

Celebrating a marriage between the Music Department and Drama Department, "The Music Man" by Meredith Wilson will be presented December 11-12 in Kenan Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The musical, for which casting was recently completed, could be described as a musical comedy Americana, due to its setting of the barber shop quartet, high-button shoes era, circa 1912.

Plot centers around Harold Hill, a traveling salesman, who comes to River City, Iowa, where he completely captivates the community.

Harold informs the townspeople that the corruptor in River City is the local pool hall, which the mayor secretly owns. A citizens' band is necessary to improve the community, according to Harold. Marian the town librarian, knows Hill's scheme, which is to sell all of his musical instruments and band uniforms.

She, however, falls in love with him and cannot expose Harold's fraud.

Backstage crew for the ambitious production will include Bob Alexander, musical director; Bill Adcock, orchestra director; Doug Swink, stage director; Dale Wright and Kay Swink, choreography; and Anne Fitzgibbon, sets and costumes.

STAGE DIRECTOR Doug Swink watches intently as prospective actor auditions during tryouts for "The Music Man", which will be presented Dec. 11-12. (Photo by Sessions)

'Conservation News'

Internal combustion engine under fire

By ED CHANEY

Lovers of fresh air can take a cautious deep breath of hope in the wake of a House-Senate agreement to require virtually pollution-free cars by 1975.

The conferees, meeting October 8 in Washington, agreed to retain provisions from Senate-passed legislation requiring all autos produced after January 1, 1975 to emit 90 percent less pollution than they currently do. The conferees also retained the Senate provision that the auto industry may seek a one-year extension from the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare if it cannot meet the 1975 deadline.

A House proposal that the National Academy of Sciences monitor development of the new engine and report on it periodically to the Congress also was accepted by the conferees for the new legislation.

Many other differing provisions of the House and Senate versions of the Clean Air Act Amendments remain to be resolved by the conference committee which will resume its work November 18. But since automobiles are responsible for 60 percent of all air pollution and as much as 90 percent in some urban areas, the House-Senate agreement October 8 to curb auto exhausts is a major victory for all breathing Americans. It could even be called a cause for rejoicing.

American industries withdraw over 17 trillion gallons of water per year from ground and surface sources but treat less than 5 trillion gallons to remove pollutants before discharging it into the public's waters. The 17 trillion gallons is about 50 percent of the Nation's total water use.

Sixteen projects to find ways of creating closed recycling systems for industrial wastes and water reuse are currently underway via grants from the Interior Department's Federal Water Quality Administration.

The projects are jointly financed by FWQA ($4.23 million) and industry ($11 million). Interior spokesmen feel the closed system holds promise of an "ultimate solution" to abolish industrial waste discharges which are the biggest source of the Nation's continually increasing water pollution problems.

FWQA estimates that by the end of 1972 techniques will be available to remove 85 percent of industrial contaminants and meet municipal pretreatment requirements for municipalities that treat industrial wastes. By 1980, it should be possible for industry to remove 95 percent of the goodies from their effluents and by 1985, closed loop treatment systems or their equivalents could effectively eliminate water pollution from many industries.

Then comes the hard part: getting industry to use the techniques. As a general rule, industries are refusing to use existing techniques to minimize their pollution. The American public has learned the hard way that merely having the technological capability is an "ultimate solution" to nothing when the polluters refuse to use it.

Wiard condemns concert loudmouths

I would like to extend my sincerest thanks to the students who would not allow havoc to control their concert. A special vote of appreciation goes to the guy who stood up in the middle of the second set and expressed the sentiments of the majority of the audience so beautifully. His words were not so understandable amid the sounds of the music; however, his message came through loud and clear.

As for those whom the message was intended, I sincerely hope that they realize their inefficiencies as mature students and that such antagonistic actions will not be tolerated.

In conclusion, any student with a concrete and valid accusation against the disruptive students is encouraged to file that accusation with the Student Appeals Board as soon as possible.

(Bob Wiard—Student Body President)

The Seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editors.....Jack DiSarno, Terry Hammond
Sports Editor.....Greg Walters
Business Manager.....Terry Smith
Photographer.....Zack Sessions
Circulation Manager.....Kenny Hudson
Greek Editors.....Phyllis Crews, Debbie Davis
Advisor.....Thomas Lupton
Staff writers: Bob Jenkins, Pamela Simpson, John Tew, Downes Eddy, Danny Morrison, Pat Packard, Tommy Torhan, Sue Sandlin
Cartoonist.....John Richardson
Exchange Editor.....Betsey Coleman
News Editor.....Jane Divine
Feature Editor.....Susan Gabrowsky

THE SEAHAWK is published bi-monthly by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during holidays, summer sessions, and exam weeks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body.

Office located in Hinton James Student Services Building.

Kent State illustrates faults in judicial system

The recent decision passed down by the special Ohio grand jury investigating the Kent State killings of May 4 which not only cleared the Ohio National Guard, but resulted in the indictment of 25 students and agitators on 43 counts of deliberate, criminal action certainly produced questions and comments from the America mass media.

Unfortunately, completely disgusting attitudes are widespread. Particularly among that mass of super patriots referred to as the silent majority is this true.

Referring to the incident in which four students were killed and nine others wounded by Guard bullets noted author Erich Segal commented that the "real tragedy is that some people think they deserve to die. And when I say some people I mean many people...Americans all over the land...considered the deaths at Kent State not only justified but desirable."

A morbid statement indeed. Such an attitude may, however, be prevalent in America today. Soon after the incident a President's Commission on campus unrest was appointed. It placed the blame on those students who actively participated in violence and the Guardsmen who were overarmed and overacted. It's findings, "The indiscriminate firing of rifles into a crowd of students and the deaths that followed were unnecessary, unwarranted, and inexcusable."

Chosen from a random register of local voters, the Grand Jury decision is subject to judicial scrutiny or examination. Presumably for the reason that they are amateurs and emotional amateurs at that. Most assuredly, the Justice Department is evaluating the jury's findings to determine if federal action will be taken.

The Grand Jury report stated that the university administration had "fostered an attitude of laxity, over-indulgence, and permissiveness with it's students and faculty to the extent it can no longer regulate the activities of either."

It is apparent, however, that a university does not support violent protest under any circumstances. Neither does it suppress ideas which may offend others. Basic individual's rights are applicable here.

Besides the fact that serious repercussions may be felt throughout the nation's college and university system insofar as administrations, faculties, and students are concerned, the public's faith in these institutions will most definitely be jeopardized.

Arrests which have taken place thus far may make one skeptical of the Grand Jury's ability to reason. Granted, the indictment of some is justified by solid evidence presented to the jury. These agitators, most of whom are non-students will be brought to justice.

It seems that the "ringleader" of the alleged violent activity is anything but, and is being made a subject of blind justice himself. Craig Morgan, student body President, Air Force ROTC cadet, and organizer of non-violent campus activities was among the first indicted and charged with inciting to riot.

It is quite ironic that Morgan, before his arrest, was involved in "healing the scars" of the tragedy under the slogan "Power to the Peaceful." Upon his arrest students asked what he was charged with. "I don't know. I guess they just wanted him because he's a symbol," was the reply.

Even though guardsmen were being harassed were they justified in firing? What did they all of the sudden did open fire for a mere 13 seconds as was the case?

Amazingly enough, according to the Grand Jury the Guardsmen "fired their weapons in the honest and sincere belief and under circumstances which led them to believe their lives were in danger." This statement is completely contrary to the President's Commission and FBI findings.

Individual Guardsmen were singled out for prosecution by both the Commission and FBI. No member is subject to criminal prosecution as a result of the Grand Jury's report. Why?

The controversy is far from over. These and other questions will be answered. Four Students will not be able to ask any questions.

(W.R.)

Lester Maddox loses cuff link

Governor Lester Maddox is faced with a dilemma. Good ole Lester recently lost a cuff link. The cuff link had, "This is Maddox Country," inscribed on it.

Lester lost his cuff link at a testimonial dinner held at the Columbus, Ga. municipal auditorium. Maddox had offered a reward for his little gem. The reward offered was, an autographed ax handle and a big hug.

Well it seems someone found Lester's cuff link. Arthur Shipp found it. Arthur is a black man.

Mr. Shipp said he would be glad to receive the ax handle. "A hug from the Governor would be fine too," he said.

The Governor's cuff link is a sapphire-bordered gold affair and was given to him by Mrs. Maddox, so he must be glad to get it back.

It seems Shipp is the janitor in the auditorium and found the cuff link while cleaning up.

As of this printing there has been no response from the Governor's office. At least Lester found the missing link.

Students protest food services

editorial comment

By TERRY HAMMOND
Editor

Even if Junior Class President Ed Talton, who was recently named to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, is himself indicative of Who's Who at UNC-W, his behavior is not.

Talton, who is also president of Tau Kappa Epsilon, has voiced violent disapproval of the Food Services Committee of the SGA. And he has every right to do so.

His mode of expression, however, could be improved. In answering the food services survey recently conducted by the committee, Talton expressed himself vehemently and also signed his statements, which was not required.

Talton's first comments (which we will not print in entirety, because of the obscenity employed), which he later reworded when he realized they would be printed were, "I wish the...the whole...bunch of the 'food isn't worth a...' crowd would go runt heir own...food services counter."

Conceding Talton's right to protest the committee, I question his obscene comments and disproportionate anger towards the committee. I also question his closed-mindedness in refusing to accept facts about bad food and high prices.

In answer to the complaints voiced in the survey about poor quality food, Talton stated he was once served a bad steak elsewhere.

Contending that food at North Carolina State University is 5 cent-10 cent higher per item than that served here, Talton dismissed other statistics proving Carolina's food to be as much as 5 cents less per item, stating, "They don't show anything."

Referring to THE SEAHAWK's charges of poor quality food, inefficient service, and steep prices, Talton said, "It's all a bunch of lies." In earlier statements, he called "the attack on Mr. Byrnes and his staff...completely unwarranted."

Talton also stated that the students polled in the survey did not give their answers serious thought, claiming that previous articles in THE SEAHAWK had so influenced them that students couldn't make individual decisions.

It is alarming that a representative of the students (junior class president), a fraternity (TKE), and the University (Who's Who) would so discount the opinions and beliefs of the people he represents as to state that newspaper articles could render them incapable of making wise decisions.

It is also alarming that a representative such as Talton would so forget decorum as to answer an SGA survey with obscenity.

Article VIII, Section 5 of the SGA Constitution states: "It shall be the duty and responsibility of every student at UNC-W to conduct herself or himself as a lady or gentleman at all times and insofar as possible to see that his fellow students to likewise."

Talton's hysterical tirades against the Food Services Committee (or maybe against their long hair) and obscene answers to the survey are anything but gentlemanly. And his views on food services are anything but representative.

Wiard pledges action on students' complaints

BOB WIARD

By BOB WIARD

Student Body
President

We must all be sincere and objective about our food services situation. We can be assured that the present management of the Pub will not simply walk into the new cafeteria, no questions asked.

Basically, there will be a request for bids. Then students and administration personnel will decide to whom the cafeteria contract will be awarded.

For the present, we have the Byrnes Food Service until his contract expires.

The Byrnes Food Service does not hesitate to show students what brand of food they buy. Nor do they fail to mention how prices are going up and how their prices compare with other local food companies' prices.

And as for service, Byrnes comments that good help is hard to find. He does listen to students' complaints, but then he offers his side. He feels that his food services are as good as you will find anywhere; and that students cannot be objective about the situation if they have not been in the business.

I will try to be as objective as possible.

According to Byrnes, anyone lacking knowledge of the food business cannot make valid recommendations for improvement. However, students eat the food, pay the prices, receive the service, and continue to complain.

And, despite their ignorance concerning the food business, as long as the students continue to voice their opinions, it is doubtful that Byrnes Food Services will continue to serve us in the new cafeteria.

Poll shows dissatisfaction with Byrnes Services

Students voiced overwhelming dissatisfaction with campus food services in a recent poll conducted by the Food Services Committee of the Student Government Association.

207 of 300 survey sheets distributed were returned to the committee. Most of the polling was conducted randomly in the Pub. Students, who were not required to sign the surveys, were given three questions, which required yes or no answers. Space was available for comments below each question.

"The survey was conducted to ascertain the students' feelings about the food situation and to help us decide on a course of action," stated Bob Jenkins, committee chairman.

The questions and survey results were as follows:

1) Are you satisfied with the service? Yes—73; No—132

2) Are you satisfied with the quality of the food? Yes—39; No—166

3) Are you satisfied with the prices? Yes—21; No—184

In addition to comments and gripes about food services, a number of students offered suggestions for improving and facilitating service.

Most of the surveyees complained that service is too slow. Citing the lack of help during lunch rushes, a number of people suggested that student help be hired. Others mentioned that inadequate serving facilities slow business and services. Stating that "the service is as quick as possible under these crowded conditions", students suggested that "food services should be on a larger scale to meet the needs of the entire student body."

One student complained that the janitor encourages students to hurry up and get out before the Pub closes" and another complained that the Pub closes thirty minutes early.

24 of the 132 students dissatisfied with service cited slowness as the cause. One stated, "The service is random; there should be one entrance and exit instead of the hodge-podge service existing now."

30 students voiced complaints about the employees, stating that "counter help is very slow and belligerent." Another student wrote: "There seems to be a general lack of courtesy. The employees act as if you are bothering them when you order." Others called the employees "sulky and slow, curt, uncourteous, snotty most of the time, disgruntled, inefficient, unpleasant, rude, and close to deafness."

One student suggested, "Get rid of Byrnes and things could be better." Two people charged discrimination in service, and two others complained that employees handle both food and money. "They should have someone to fix orders and someone to distribute orders," another stated.

Two students cited instances in which waitresses attended to customers while they themselves were eating: "The waitress will be eating and I will ask for a hot dog; she will lick the grease from her fingers and then pick up the bun which I am to eat." Another student queried, "Who wants to be served when the food service people drop food from their mouth onto your purchase?"

Seventeen students said the employees do a good job, considering the handicaps under which they operate. "The workers behind the counter are pleasant and as quick as possible. However facilities are too small for this campus." Another student commented, "Service is good, considering the inadequate number on the staff." Others said, "They try;" and "The ladies are very nice and do their best."

In complaining about food quality, the majority cited quantity of food served and quality of food as chief gripes. One student wrote that "He stopped eating it because it almost made me sick." Others said that food appears to be of inferior quality, and a student wrote of finding a chicken bone in his barbecue.

Another stated, "The food served to the students on this campus is of such quality that only someone dying of starvation should dare waste his money and risk his life by eating it."

A few of the more picturesque comments described the food as "not fit for a pig," "unfit for human consumption", and "horrible". One student commented that he had eaten better leftovers.

The items which students listed as poor in quality and preparation include "sour hot dogs, gristly ham, half-cooked and burned food, cold and greasy food, raw hamburgers, stale bread, watered-down drinks, rancid hot dogs, cold french fries, rotten candy, thinly-sliced ham, soggy rolls, unfresh vegetables (lettuce, tomatoes), greasy hot dogs, hamburgers which look like dog meat, and mushy chicken salad."

Two students cited french fries as "great", and another called the food fair. "The quality of food is OK—anything tastes good when one is hungry," another stated.

The greatest number of students expressed discontent with food prices, the majority of whom stated that prices are too steep for the quality and quantity of the food served. One student volunteered that Hardee's is cheaper and serves better quality food. Most felt that food prices should be lower for students on campus.

SOS offers opportunities

"Up...up...and away," or so goes the song. Why not try harmonizing the lyrics with the SOS (Student Overseas Services)?

Want to travel, but your bank statement is always written in red? Maybe SOS job placement is the answer. Temporary paying jobs are available in Europe to all students. These openings—many requiring only a will to work with no previous experience or knowledge of a foreign language needed—offer ideal, ready-made opportunities for students to earn a few weeks or months in a country of their choice such as England, France, Germany, Switzerland or Spain.

Most jobs are in resorts, hotels, shops, stores, restaurants, offices, factories and hospitals and on farms and construction sites. Camp counseling, governess, teaching and sales positions are also available. Room and board either comes with the job or is arranged in advance, and is often in addition to wages ranging up to $500 a month for the highest paying jobs.

By earning their way, students are able to see Europe without the usual expenses while getting an individual, human insight into European life. With easing draft calls and the high rate of rejection by the Peace Corps, increasing numbers of students with a yen to travel and broaden their personal horizons may be well advised to consider such an independent adventure.

The SOS (Student Overseas Services) Placement Offices in Luxembourg, Europe, screens and places every applicant and obtains the required work permits and other documents needed by each student. SOS also provides a brief orientation in Luxembourg before students go out to their individual jobs.

Jobs and work permits are given on a first come, first served basis so students interested in seeing Europe from the inside, and earning money instead of spending it while they are there, should apply early to allow SOS plenty of time to obtain for them a job of their choice and to complete processing of the necessary permits and papers.

Students in this area may obtain job application forms, job listings and descriptions, the SOS Handbook on earning a summer abroad, and a free copy of Euronews by sending their name, address, school, and $1 (for airmail return of some of the material from Europe) to SOS—Student Overseas Services, P.O. Box 5173, Santa Barbara, Calif. Students with special questions may telephone Santa Barbara (805) 969-1176.

IEFS organizes festival to aid novice filmmakers

LINDEN, N.J., OCT. 15, '70: A film festival aimed at aiding the novice filmmaker has been organized by the International Experimental Film Society. The newly formed group will present its first annual film festival and competition at Canisius College in Buffalo, New York, February 11th through the 13th.

In outlining the Society's aims, Bruce Powers, President, stated, "The Festival's award system is deliberately angled toward the beginner filmmaker in order to encourage him, with genuinely worthwhile prize money and equipment, to make films regularly."

Backing up these aims, the Society is offering a special award for the best of the films entered by filmmakers who are submitting their work to a competitive festival for the first time. For this special award, the Society chose a Bolex H-16M 16mm motion picture camera with a Pan Cinor 85-2 lens, highly esteemed by experimental films and professionals alike.

The Society also hopes to benefit the filmmaker with a written evaluation of each film entered. A panel of commercial, institutional and independent filmmakers will judge the films.

Open to all filmmakers, the festival's three categories of competition are: Dramatic, Documentary and Free Form. First prize in each category is $100.00. The best-of-festival film award is $250.00. In addition, there is a special merit award of $75.00 for technical and/or

Dr. Cobb to lecture

Dr. Grover C. Cobb of N.C. State will speak on campus Tuesday, December 8, at 3:30 p.m. The Society of Physics Students is sponsoring the talk. Dr. Cobb is an associate professor of physics at NCSU and has recently researched lasers. Cobb has also had several books published, his latest being, PHYSICS: CONCEPT AND CONSEQUENCES.

The lecture will be presented in C-218, the upstairs auditorium in the Chemistry-Physics Building.

Physics Society members Al Payne (Pres.), Steve Howard (V.P.), and faculty advisors, Dr. Hidelisa Hernandez and Dr. I.G. Claytor are the organizers of the event.

Dr. Cobb was recently involved in federal-government-financed laser research at N.C. State. More specifically the work was concerned with the effect of radioactive material on laser ray emitting ruby rods.

Physics Society President Al Payne invites all interested parties to attend.

"Dr. Cobb is an outstanding young, physicist with new ideas and concepts. In our position of isolation from scientific research, this is an excellent opportunity for students and faculty to be brought up to date on some of the more recent scientific developments," Payne stated.

Steve Howard stated that light refreshments will be served after the lecture.

aesthetic achievement.

The festival will be open to the public with tickets available at the box office or from the Festival Office prior to showing dates.

A LITTLE BIT OF HOME in the Seahawk Office, which has been relocated to the top floor of Student Services Building. The new quarters are about three times as big as the former cubbyhole, and provide (believe it or not) fresh air and sunlight. (Photo by Sessions)

Polgar

No hocus-pocus or strange incantation, just plain fun and fascination! Dr. Polgar, the hypnotist, was great in his November 10 performance in Kenan Auditorium.

He entertained the audience by such things as a "nicotine fit demonstration," in which he ridged four cigarette smokers of the desire for a smoke. Polgar, in another experiment, told his hypnotized subjects that he had "magic glasses" that would enable the wearer to see through material.—After putting them on, their faces lit up with priceless expressions. Also using hypnotic suggestion, Polgar convinced all the hypnotized boys that their first names were "Joe" and all the girls were "Irene"; to add to the humor he also told them that 5 + 5 equals 12, despite what some senior said.

These were only a few things Polgar did to display his talents. Much more took place that kept the audience busy stitching up their sides and also pondering in amazement, even after the performance was over.

UNC-W faculty and staff members recently attended the semi-annual meeting of the New Hanover County Mental Health Association Tuesday, November 10, at 8 p.m. at St. Andrews Covenant Church.

After a short business meeting, Dr. Jerome L. Schulte, medical director, was introduced.

Pacific Gas & Electric, Columbia Records

Look who reads the Bible.

It can make things work for you. It's that kind of book. Read your Bible. You'll see. If you don't have a Bible of your own, we'll send you one for a dollar. Hard cover and everything. Just one should do it. The Bible lasts a long time.

National Bible Week Committee
P.O. Box 1170, Ansonia Station
New York, New York 10023
Good! I'm sending you one dollar.
Please send me one Bible.

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

30th Annual National Bible Week, November 22-29, 1970. An Interfaith effort.

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12
Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's
JEWELERS INC.
27 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

THE BOX

By Kendrew Lascelles

Once upon a time in the land of hush-a-bye,
Around about the wonderous days of yore,
They came across a sort of box
Bound up with chains and locked with locks
And labeled 'Kindly do not touch, its war.'

A decree was issued round about -
All with a flourish and a shout
And a gaily coloured mascot
Tripping lightly on before -
'Don't fiddle with this deadly box
Or break the chains or pick the locks
And please don't ever mess about with war.

Well the children understood,
Children happen to be good
And were just as good around the time of yore,
They didn't try to pick the locks
Or break into that deadly box
And never tried to play about with war.

Mommies didn't either,
Sisters, Aunts nor Grammies neither
'Cos they were quiet and sweet and pretty
In those wonderous days of yore,
Well very much the same as now
And not the ones to blame somehow
For opening up that deadly box of war,

But someone did,

Someone battered in the lid
And spilled the insides out across the floor,
A sort of bouncy bumpy ball
Made up of flags and guns and all
The tears and horror and the death
That goes with war.

It bounced right out
And went bashing all about
And bumping into everything in store
And what was sad and most unfair
Was that it didn't really seem to care
Much who it bumped, or why,
Or what, or for.

It bumped the children mainly,
And I'll tell you this quite plainly,
It bumps them everyday and more and more
And leaves them dead and burned and dying,
Thousands of them sick and crying,
'Cos when it bumps its very very sore.

There is a way to stop the ball,
It isn't very hard at all,
All it takes is wisdom
And I'm absolutely sure
We could get it back into the box
And bind the chains and lock the locks
But no one seems to want to save the children anymore.

Well that's the way it all appears
'Cos its been bouncing round for years and years
In spite of all the wisdom wizzed
Since those wonderous days of yore,
And the time they came across that box
Bound up with chains and locked with locks
And labeled, 'Kindly do not touch, its war'

DUET, a sculpture by James E. Smith of Western Carolina University, has been awarded to the university by the North Carolina State Art Society for permanent display on campus. (Photo by Sessions)

The sculpture "Duet" by James E. Smith, selected for the $500 Purchase Award by the North Carolina State Art Society has been donated to the University and is on display in Kenan.

"Duet" is a painted plastic and wood composition and is 57"x45"x72" in dimension. The work is boldly designed and colored, comprised of similar green plumbing pipes bolted to bright orange slats and delicately balanced on a large black base.

Sculptor James E. Smith entered "Duet" in the 32nd annual North Carolina State Artists Exhibition held from December 4, 1969 through January 15, 1970 in the Museum of Art in Raleigh. The North Carolina State Art Society periodically offers awards for outstanding artwork. The work is consequently placed with a worthy institution or University. The Society's donation of "Duet" to UNC-W marks the first gift and also the first sculpture added to approximately 20 paintings in our collection.

Students and faculty members have expressed an interest in the sculpture and are curious about the artist. The Art Department revealed James E. Smith is a faculty member at Western Carolina University, but other information is unavailable at this time.

Art student John Jordan stated the question frequently asked by viewers, "Is it pipes and boards, or is it art?" The general opinion seems to be positively inclined, as the vivid color and unusual subject matter creates an interesting structure.

Committee

Continued from page 1

students' lives from the University and gives that control to the parents... we feel that this control is an unnecessary infringement on the personal rights of individuals solely because of their status as students."

DTH and Alan Hickok, student body president of UNC-C, both urge rejection of any policy which limits the rights and privileges of the students.

Down With Prof. CHEAT, Big Man on Campus

Joseph F. Dunn, assistant professor of business and economics, addressed the local chapter of the Propeller Club of America on October 29.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

NEW LOW PRICES! !

SHIRTS 25¢ each
With Dry Cleaning

PLUS YOU STILL GET A STUDENTS DISCOUNT
OF 10% ON DRY CLEANING

HANOVER CLEANERS
3544 Oleander Drive
(Across From J.M. Fields)

Sir Charles Barber Shop
1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25¢ PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.00
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

Passing in review

An investigation begun ten years ago resulted today in the publication of a book whose title boldly proclaims Amelia Earhart Lives (McGraw-Hill $7.95).

According to the author, Joe Klaas, the famous aviatrix did not drown at sea after her plane took off from New Guinea on July 2, 1937, in the course of a glamorous around-the-world flight, and failed to reach its destination.

In fact, he contends, she lives today in the United States, and, when deciphered, a code name spells out in degrees and minutes of latitude and longitude the precise spot in the Pacific where the Japanese Navy shot her down and took her prisoner.

Amelia Earhart's plane, Lockheed Elctra N-16020, did not crash with her when the Japanese secretly placed her under Imperial arrest for espionage, Klaas writes.

In fact, he states, Miss Earhart switched planes during her trip, and the original aircraft met its end 24 years later, when two American U-2 pilots plummeted in it to their deaths against a California mountainside where Major Joseph Gervais, an experienced crash investigator for the Air Force, positively identified the debris.

In its 350 thoroughly researched, abundantly illustrated pages, Amelia Earhart Lives leads up to the point where the investigators photographed and interviewed a lady whose background and qualifications, associates, and accomplishments closely paralleled those of Amelia Earhart. In her own words, "Amelia Earhart has not passed away completely, so long as there is one person who still remembers her."

The book further chronicles the original, painstaking investigation begun as Operation Earhart in 1960, when a small group of Air Force officers decided to look for the graves of Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, on Saipan. They were motivated by eyewitness accounts of a twin-engined airplane having crashed there with a man and a woman aboard in 1937. Others—including Fred Goerner, who wrote The Search for Amelia Earhart—also rushed to the scene in frantic, unsuccessful efforts to solve the mystery. Operation Earhart, however, continued to pick its way carefully along a myriad of evidence and, long after similar ventures had run into dead ends, it led to the evidence that America's First Lady of Mystery lives.

Amelia Earhart Lives tells of Emperor Hirohito's need for the design of a fighter plane in his failing invasion of China—a plane without which the later attack on Pearl Harbor would have been impossible. The Zero, Klaas contends, closely followed the lines of a fighter plane designed by a friend of Miss Earhart, rejected by the United States, and somehow obtained by Japan after the missing aviatrix crashed.

Amelia Earhart was used in 1945, Klaas further declares, in a political barter which made it possible for the Japanese Emperor to escape being tried and hanged as a war criminal.

The book takes a deep, dark look at an exotic game of espionage in which the players are an Emperor, U.S. Presidents, millionaires, celebrities and giant corporations. As the author points out, it is a game begun in what was believed to be America's days of innocence, prior to World War II, and continued until now. A fascinating trip through mystery and intrigue, it provides chilling documentation about facts so secret that they have never been classified—they have simply not been acknowledged to exist.

Many of the 52 photographs in the book were high priority evidence that led to the unravelling of one of the greatest true spy stories of this century.

ART SUPPLIES
UNC-W
BOOKSTORE

Phone 791-5686
COLLEGE VIEW 66
"Your Car Is Our Business"
A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

COMBINING the merits of both jazz and rock drummers, Chicago's Dan Seaphine roused the crowd with an improvisation of "Make Me Smile."

By PHIL KELLY

Sprinkled into every large period, during which certain gathering of people, you are bound to find a number of people who have not passed adolescence, and who let you know it in a loud and boisterous manner.

Such, sadly, was the case at the Nov. 5 CHICAGO Concert. Rather than waste a whole column berating these people, it should be noted that CHICAGO did a good job of pointing them out and giving them a name.

After the overlong waiting price.

technical difficulties were ironed out, the band came on hard and strong. Rocking on and off for one and 1/2 hours, they kept the majority of the audience enthralled with improvisations on "25 to 6 to 4", "Make Me Smile", and others from the top pop super rock charts.

Finishing with a foot-stomping rendition of "I'm a Man", they made the concert well-worth the

Domestic &
Imported Beers
•
Live
Entertainment
•
Sound Movies
Cartoons

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.
Wilmington, N.C.

INTEGON*
FINANCIAL SERVICES

TALK TO THE LISTENER
James A. Wolfe
Bus. 763-8285

Photo contest to be held

The Third Annual Photography Competition, sponsored by the Erdahl-Cloyd Union Gallery Committee-North Carolina State University. There is no charge for entries.

Any regularly enrolled college or university student in North Carolina may enter. Up to three works per contestant may be entered. Prize money for the competition totals $280. Top money is $75.00 for Best in Show.

The contest will be judged by Mr. Ralph Tankley of the Photography Dept., Massey College in Atlanta. All entries must be submitted by December 6.

Photographs should either be matted, mounted, framed, or otherwise prepared for hanging. Pieces can be submitted by mail or delivered by hand. Anyone interested in entering the contest can pick up the necessary entry blanks and report slips in the SEAHAWK office.

Courtesy of Robert Hodge, Gig Harbor, Washington

Those people who cease to climb, usually cease to rise.

Appeals Bd. Meets

On November 12 two UNC-W students were charged with disrupting the Chicago Concert on November 5. Due to lack of evidence the case was dismissed.

News from the university

NCSU-Raleigh — THE TECHNICIAN, N.C. State student press, recently celebrated their 50th anniversary. The first issue of the TECHNICIAN was published February 1, 1920. Since that time the publication has grown immensely. The 1970 TECHNICIAN has a budget of over $60,000 a year and this was reflected in the 24 page golden anniversary issue

Aegina Arts Centre plans summer program

A slight salty breeze blows the almond and olive groved plains in the west. Mountains look down on the predominantly rocky thirty-two square miles span of Grecian Aegina...

The Aegina Arts Centre, located on the Greek island, Aegina, has announced that it will hold its special summer program for American students interested in art, archeology, music, Greek language, poetry, and literature for a second consecutive year.

In this past session the list of renowned guest lecturers included the specialist in Minoan and Mycenaean Archeology, Dr. A. Zois; Dr. J.H. Kroll, Agora fellow in charge of numismatics; Dr. Willis Barnstone, Professor of Comparative Literature at the University of Indiana; Mr. A.R. Burns, Professor of Ancient History at the University of Glasgow; the poets, Alan Ansen of the United States, Sinclair Beilles of South Africa, and noted authors, Kimon Friar and N. Germanakos.

According to John Zervos, director of the Centre, the school will offer a special progressive curriculum in two "open" 1971 summer sessions for American students. Special rates for tuition, travel and accommodations have been arranged by the Centre.

Summer 1971 classes are scheduled: June 21 through July 16, and July 19 through August 15. Tuition and facilities for either session total $250.00. Both sessions are available for $375.00. Special travel rates of $350.00 round trip air fare have also been arranged by the Centre.

The Centre is located on the Grecian isle of Aegina, less than an hour from Athens and the mainland by ferry. Classes in basic design, color studies, landscape, life classes, drawing, open studies, Greek language and literature, music, poetry, and archeology will be conducted on a "free flow" basis. Students are responsible for selecting the class, instructor and sequence of instruction as they wish to pursue it.

Mr. Zervos, who will be presenting a series of lectures on "The Current State of the Greek Language," says the life and study styles of the summer session will be "unstructured". "We are building the courses around the student's voluntary interest and involvement. Aegina Isle is itself an art environment within which the student will select his involvement in the information and instructions available."

Students interested in this program should address their inquiries to Mr. John Zervos, c/o DePaul University, 25 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Illinois, 60604.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT OFFICERS

Executive Committee:

President	Bob Wiard
Vice President	Brian Black
Secretary	Dana Lee
Treasurer	Keith Farmer

Standing Committee Chairmen:

Bd. of Elections	Jack Di Sarno
Dance Committee	"Concerts - Jack Kelly Dances - Lois Milligan
Fine Arts	Al Simeone

Judicial Branch:

Student Board of Appeals	Dianne Braak John Kallman Veronica Sellers Greg Walters Marion Versall
--------------------------------	--

Senate meets in extra session

The Student Senate met 11:30, Nov. 3 in a special session to work on the ping-pong, sound system, drug abuse, and appointment problems.

Student Body President Bob Wiard spoke to the Senate concerning: disruptions policy revisions, dorm visitation policy, and requested funds for SGA stationary.

Several committee appointments were approved by the Senate; Jack Kelly, Entertainment Committee, Marion Versaal-Student Appeals Board, Bob Jenkins-Food Services Committee.

Brian Black, Vice President asked the senators to be considering the need for, a campus infirmary, and teacher evaluation.

The Senate also approved a motion by Raleigh Todd to accept a bid for the purchase of an additional ping pong table. The ping pong table will be placed in the recreation room upstairs in the Pub. The bid was from Boseman's Sporting Goods ($153.56).

THE SUIT HOUSE

1902 Oleander Dr.

Wilmington, N. C.

Men's Quality Clothing

LECTURE

Hear
Dr. G. C. Cobb
Dec. 8
3:30 PM
In
C - 218

INTEGON
NAVY & MARINE CORPS

TALK TO THE
LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

which had numerous color ads and photos.

A Citizens for Clark, group has recently been organized on the NCSU campus. The goal of this grassroots organization is to see Ramsey Clark, former U.S. Attorney General, win the 1972 Democratic nomination.

Dr. Charles Murphy, agronomy professor, was the innovator of the organization. Cyrus King is chairman of the Raleigh Citizens for Clark. Similiar organizations have sprung up in Boston and New York. The formal membership of the group is around 80, but fund raising functions sponsored by the group have been turning out crowds of several hundred. 'Ramsey Clark for President '72' bumperstickers have been diffusing throughout the Raleigh area.

SHOULDN'T
YOU BE UP THERE?

FLY
NAVY

Your Navy Recruiter will be on campus

Date: 16 NOV 70

Place: ADMINISTRATION BLDG.

Sociology lacks field instructor

By WAYNE ROGERS
Staff Writer

It is a fact that sufficient demand exists for an expanded Sociology program. Proof of this fact may be found among the forty-four students presently taking Principles of Sociology 105 which is being taught by Miss Iela M. Hall, Director of Social Services for New Hanover County. Many of these students would like to continue in this field of study, but one obstacle has prevented this.

At the present time, the Sociology Department exists only in the curriculum catalog. That is, five courses carrying fifteen hours of credit are listed therein. During the 1969-70 academic year, two courses in Sociology 105 were offered, in addition to a course in The Family 345.

The possibility of any Sociology course being offered Spring semester depends on whether or not an instructor can be hired. "I can't be very sure of that right now," Dean Reynolds related.

As it appears on the recently printed spring semester class schedule, no class will be offered.

The reason UNC-W has no Sociology Dept. this year as Reynolds stated is that "we couldn't get the kind (instructor) we wanted this year." He promises a "sociologist full-time next year." His best prospect at the moment is a PhD. from the University of Tennessee.

Dr. Duncan Randall, former chairman of the Social Science Dept. recently commented that there is a "screaming need" for qualified and experienced sociologists and other professions in sociology in that field, and there has been for the past few years in the New Hanover County area alone.

In the Social Science Dept. not enough hours are listed for a student having a major emphasis in Sociology even if the described five courses were to be offered during the year. Twenty-one hours is the requirement.

It may be interesting to note that UNC-Asheville a smaller university than UNC-W offers a major in Sociology. Also, UNC-Chapel Hill boasts the seventh-largest Sociology dept. in the nation. Of course, enrollment here does not compare with that of Chapel Hill, but we are a part of the consolidated university.

Thus, UNC-W lacks a Sociology dept., and has for several years to the extent where a full curriculum is offered. If demand for these courses was not great, the problem would not be a serious one.

Many students, however, are attracted to the Sociology field, and Dean Reynolds believes that if Sociology was offered as a major, there would be "just as many students enrolled as in most other majors." Let's not start talking about a major right now. The hiring of a full-time instructor would be sufficient for the time being.

So Prospective Sociology students, do not despair, help will be on the way soon, we hope.

Our most valuable treasure, next to life, is time.

Greeks

Delta Upsilon to sponsor W.C. Fields film festival

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity recently elected officers for the year. Elected were Bill Johnson, archon; Charlie Dail, treasurer; Larry Brammer, secretary; Scott Daughtry, warden; Tommy Torhan, historian; and Chick Coleman, chaplain.

Iota Pledge Class selected freshman Helen Skelton as sweetheart. Brothers are preparing for the annual Founder's Day Banquet, slated to be held in the Pub in December.

Delta Upsilon has initiated a sisterhood program with 18 members. Sally Tomlinson was elected DU Sweetheart. The fraternity will sponsor a W.C. Fields Film Festival, Dec. 2-3 at the Bailey Theatre. Advance tickets will be $1; tickets will cost

"HAVE MERCY!"

November 18, 1970

$1.50 at the door. Proceeds will go to the building fund.

Tau Kappa Epsilon defeated Pi Kappa Phi 27 to 6 in the first football game of Interfraternity Council competition.

Nine Tekes recently attended a Beta Beta leadership conference at North Carolina State University.

Phi Mu Women's Fraternity has five pledges this quarter, including Dru Farrar.

Zeta Tau Alpha is pledging four women: Diane Lace, Amy Sikes, Sharon Roethlinger, and Frances Robinson.

ART
SHOPPE
UNC-W BOOKSTORE

oils acrylics watercolors brushes

7:30-4:00

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

ALL MAJOR LABELS!
TOP ARTISTS!
on PreRecorded
8-TRACKS
Stereo Cartridges at Savings!

STUDENT
BONUS!

VALUABLE COUPON
WORTH $1.00 TOWARD PURCHASE OF
YOUR CHOICE
PreRecorded 8-Track
Stereo Cartridge
Present This Coupon Before
Nov. 27, 1970

Select from Over 20 Models of 8-TRACK CAR STEREO

DELUXE CAR STEREO MINI 8-TR. TAPE PLAYER

Contemporary compact fits in any glove compartment to discourage theft. Automatic 8 push button channel changer. Dazzling highway hi-fi stereo performance!

STUDENT
SPECIAL
$39⁹⁵
SAVE $10!

MARQUIS CUSTOM EIGHT CAR STEREO TAPE

Designed for the smallest areas. Great for compacts and sports cars. Easy touch controls... Powerful amplifier for fantastic stereo.

$64.95

MARQUIS 8-TRACK CAR STEREO PLUS FM-STEREO RADIO

20 big watts music power for world of stereo from either tape or radio. Walnut grained cabinet, recessed controls, padded dash for a great look.

$119.95

Complete AM/FM STEREO
SYSTEM With 8-TRACK TAPE PLAYER

$139.95

Complete with matched speakers. All the most wanted features... tuning meter, headphone jack, phono jack. Walnut cabinets.

1002 south college road

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

edition 5

dec. 9, 1970

THE NEW ED-PSYCH BUILDING almost went up in smoke. Smoke damage to the walls and ceiling of the upper hall is clearly visible (photo by Al Payne).

Dec. 3 Was 'bad news day'

Thursday Dec. 3, was a bad day for UNC-W. Shortly after midnight the Student Services Building was burglarized and around 8 a.m. a fire started in the new Education-Psychology Building (see photos pg 1).

Campus police told the SEAHAWK that approximately $220 in small bills and coins was stolen from the food-service facility and the bookstore.

"Approximately $220 was stolen from the snack bar and $10 in pennies from the bookstore," officer Dillon stated. Dillon stated.

It has also been rumored that a car was stolen late Wednesday night, but campus police have checked into the matter and found that no auto thefts have been reported.

A fire in the Ed-Psych Building Thursday morning apparently starting in the janitor's closet, was also reported. The exact cost of damage in the recently completed structure has not been disclosed but considerable smoke damage is evident.

The $550,000 facility was completed last summer.

When SEAHAWK staffers requested permission to photograph the tarnished walls, Dr. Harold Hulon Education-Psychology Dept. Chairman, responded, "Would you like to take a picture of me crying?"

The fire was extinguished by janitors who discovered the blaze and used the building's fire extinguishers. The University presently has an agreement with Wilmington Fire Department, that the department will come to the campus when called. The agreement is necessary since UNC-W is located outside of the Wilmington city limits.

'Ides of March' perform Dec. 17

"Ides of March," an eight-man jazz rock group, will perform Thursday, December 17, at 8:00 p.m. in Hanover Hall. Student tickets are $1.50 and advance general admission tickets are $3.00. Tickets purchased at the door will cost $4.00.

Both student and general admission tickets may be purchased in the Student Government office, Harvey Cannon Ltd., Payne's Men Stores and McGraths.

Sponsored by the Student Government Association, "Ides of March," will perform two 45-minute shows. The West Coast group is noted for such songs as "Vehicle" and "I'm Your Superman."

Concert Chairman Jack Kelly said that musically, the group belongs in a class between Blood, Sweat and Tears and Chicago.

Jack further stated that this will be strictly a chair concert—no blankets, please.

Old books found

"Old Chemistry Books in the Raleigh-Durham Area Libraries" by Will S. DeLoach was published in the current issue of NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES.

In preparing the bibliography of old chemistry books, those published in 1860 and before, Dr. DeLoach found a total of 159 in college, university, and public libraries in Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area. Two books from the 17th century and about ten from the 18th century were found.

Dr. DeLoach is currently chairman of the Chemistry Department.

Student questionnaire findings released

The results of a student questionnaire, which was part of an Institutional Self-Study conducted last year have recently been released. The self-Study was part of an accreditation renewal in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Fourty-three multiple-choice questions ranging from questions about course load to instruction evaluations, appeared on the questionnaire. Space for additional comment in addition to choice answers, was available.

The questionnaire was given to all students in class at a specified hour, spring quarter last year. The student responses were a random assortment. Approximately 675 students answered the questionnaire (about half of the student body).

Students were asked to evaluate these organizations professional and service organizations, academic departments, fraternities and sororities (social), administrative personnel, SGA, Placement, Service, Counseling and Testing Office, faculty, Financial Aid Office, William Madison Randall Library, intramural program, and the student judiciary.

Several questions concerning on-campus communication were included in the questionnaire but there was no specific question asking students to evaluate the student publications (eg. SEAHAWK, ATLANTIS).

The single question in which there was the most unanimity, was No. 38. Number 38 asked students to evaluate Randall Library's reference facilities. Out of 668 responses 88 percent felt the reference material was "Generally adequate." Six percent answered "Generally inadequate," and the remaining 6 percent had "No basis for evaluation."

Question No. 7 asked students whether or not they were satisfied with the University's "Basic Studies Requirements." Approximately 57 percent responded that they were either "Fairly satisfied," or "Very satisfied," while 43 percent were either "Very dissatisfied or Somewhat dissatisfied."

There was also a divergence of opinion in response to question 27 which read, "How many of the faculty who have taught you this year would you say are superior in teaching abilities?" Out of 667 responses 158 answered "Very few," and 156 also responded "Less than half." "Over half" was the answer given by 213, and 138 said "Almost all."

"Would you agree or disagree that the University should provide on-campus medical service?" This question was included in the questionnaire. Students responded thusly: 90.8 percent agreed that the University needs "on-campus medical service." Approximately 63.3 percent agreed "Strongly," and 27.5 per cent answered, "Agree, but not strongly." Only 3.4 percent of those answering disagreed with vigor, while an additional 5.6 percent disagreed mildly.

OFFICER DILLON EXPLAINS how burglar entered food-service area located on the first floor of the Student Services Building (Photo by Al Payne).

Scratch one soccer fan

Another victory for the soccer team! Their goal of recognition has finally been achieved. Prior to the "Chicago" concert, many people did not know our soccer team—but that night they made their debut, decked out in all their drunken finery and heard by all their fans. As "Chicago" put it—"The biggest assholes in the crowd!" To quote a player, "Let's hear it for the UNC-W soccer team! Woo, Woo!" (It might be interesting to know, what do you say to a pig?)

(A Former Fan)

WOMENS LIB

right? or wrong?

ATTEND THE
BSU MEETING

DEC. 7, 7 p.m.

Apathy wrecks clean-up day

To The Editor,

The students and faculty of UNC-W are procrastinators rather than participants! They sit on their bottoms and discuss the problems facing them concerning the environment, but very seldom can they be seen taking part in a campaign directed toward the evil they so ardently complain about.

"The 11th Hour," sponsored by the UNC-W Biology Club, was an opportunity to show by doing, that the students and faculty of this university care about the pollution problem. The results—almost nil!

The SEAHAWK publicized the event, posters were placed in every building, circulars were distributed to be read by faculty members to their classes, and fraternities (BMOC) were asked for their support. The results—almost nil!

Eleven students out of 1,561, one faculty member out of 111, and no fraternity members, graced the event with their presence. The time to care enough to act was then; "UNC-W, you blew it."

Those who read this article may stop and wonder, but the results will be almost nil.

(Fred Burroughs—Bio Club)

Has he brought us together???

Now, from the party that brought you; U.S. Grant, Warren G. Harding, and Herbert Hoover (and tried to bring you Barry Goldwater), comes the brightest gem in the crown of political achievement—Richard Millhouse Nixon!

But who is this man called Nixon? Now that some of the post-election bitterness has subsided we can attempt to answer this question. Richard Nixon is the man who achieved the impossible, when he won the Presidency in 1968. This was quite an accomplishment for "Dick Nixon the Three Time Loser!"

What other goals, has this worker of miracles, realized? HE PLEDGED TO "BRING US TOGETHER," HAS HE? Has he even attempted to do so?

He asked the "vocal minority" to stop shouting, so constructive criticism could be heard. Could this possibly be the same man that expressed this gross oversimplification?

We are also aware of Mr. Nixon's pride in being a Quaker. Are the Quakers proud of President Nixon? What kind of Quaker comes up with a troop withdrawal like VIETNAMIZATION... a plan that states that military success in an offensive war is a pre-requisite for troop withdrawal.

Mr. Nixon has continually spoken out in-favor of the right of dissent. Check this little statement made by U.S. Deputy Attorney General, Richard Kleindienst (formerly in the Goldwater camp).

"If people demonstrated (sic.) in a manner to interfere with others, they could be rounded up and put in a detention camp."

I would like to remind Mr. Kleindienst that American Legion parades often interfere with motorists. I would also like to remind him that all Americans, even students, have the right to "due process." Perhaps Kleindienst should have co-starred in the movie, "Joe."

"I'll tell you who's not informed, though. It's these stupid kids... They pick the rhetoric that they want to hear right off the top of and issue and never finish reading to the bottom... And the professors are just as bad if not worse. They don't know anything. Nor do these stupid bastards (SIC, SIC, SIC) who are running our educational institutions."

The Seahawk's 10 points

1. tougher legislation and strict enforcement of existing anti-pollution legislation
2. increased governmental intervention in population control
3. immediate unilateral withdrawal from Southeast Asia
4. free food stamps for all hungry Americans
5. establishment of a billion-dollar federal job-corps for low-income Americans
6. income-tax reform providing for a real graduated system
7. drastic reduction in defense spending
8. federal legislation outlawing possession of lethal weapons
9. complete reform of the American judicial and penal systems, with crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation as their goal
10. defeat of the Agnew-Nixon Administration in '72

Pi Kapps accused of racism

To the Editor,

On Saturday night, October 31, 1970, another injustice was committed to our campus. This act was racial in tone and involved the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

The event took place when a founding brother (now an alumnus) of the local chapter, invited a Black student, from UNC-Chapel Hill, to the Pi Kappa Phi house. The Black student and the alumnus had been to a party earlier in the evening. UPON ARRIVAL AT THE FRATERNITY HOUSE (PI KAPPA PHI), THE BLACK WAS ASKED TO LEAVE, BY SOME OF THE LOCAL RACISTS.

Please note, the Chapel Hill student had gone only on the invitation and insistence of the alumnus.

This event clearly shows that the present members have no respect for alumni, but even worse it brings on the implication that fraternities and perhaps

UNC-W, is segregationist. We ask the present fraternity members if this is the respect that they want when they become alumni? We ask the students if this is the impression they want to leave with Chapel Hill? This should also serve as an example to any of our Black students who might take seriously any of the posted invitations to rush Pi Kappa Phi. Do not be embarrassed if you are refused entrance.

Of course we realize that their house is their castle, but if persons who are invited are refused, then maybe they should erect "POSTED" signs and write "MEMBERS ONLY" above the door for all to see, like children do when they form neighborhood clubs.

We feel that this letter was necessary to represent the few liberal minds on campus and to show that SOME STUDENTS DO CARE.

(Concerned Students)

Northern Illinois has high radiation level

By ED CHANEY

Evidence that 2500 children have died in Northern Illinois over the past decade as the result of normal operation of a nuclear power plant has been announced by Pittsburgh University Professor Dr. Ernest J. Sternglass.

Sternglass presented his analysis of public health data at a hearing October 21 before eight Pennsylvania state senators on whether they should institute a moratorium on nuclear power plant construction in the state. He reported that the rise in infant mortality in the vicinity of the Dresden reactor near Morris, Illinois, corresponded exactly to the rise in gaseous radioactive discharges from the plant. Reports from the U.S. Public Health Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were used in Sternglass' calculations.

Sternglass' sobering conclusions extend into other injury categories. In his testimony he reported a "similar direct correlation" for death-rates due to respiratory diseases other than pneumonia and influenza for all age groups in Illinois relative to 1959 and the amount of radioactive gas discharged. While during the decade from 1949 to 1959 these diseases, which include emphysema and bronchitis, increased less than 10 percent in Illinois, they rose 75 percent between 1959 and 1966 in direct proportion to the amount of radioactive gas discharged.

Seahawk changes once again

The semester could not be complete without some changes in SEAHAWK staff and policy, so, here goes. Several organizational changes have been made.

The SEAHAWK will operate under a single-editor system next semester. Terry Hammon, formerly Co-Editor, has left the staff in order to compete for a scholarship. Three former staffers have been appointed "assistant editors." These three people; Susan Bagrowski, Jane Divine, and Wayne Rogers, do a sizeable portion of the work load. Wayne Rogers, will work primarily in ad sales. Al Panyne-photographer has been added to the staff in an effort to increase the number of photographs per edition. Kenny Hudson who worked in circulation this semester is presently recovering from hepatitis.

An eight-page edition will be published every two weeks as long as the handful of staffers can keep up the pace. "Conservation News" 'News From The University', and McGraw-Hill book reviews will be continued. One new regular feature will be initiated. The new feature (which has not been named yet) will, seek to acquaint students with the entire University. Things like the curriculum committee and the Office of College Relations, will be the topics of discussion.

There will also be a change as far as letters to the editor are concerned. Letters must be signed or initialed before they will be published. In an attempt to distinguish editorial news from "straight" news all articles that are purely editorial will be signed or initialed, with the signature coming at the end of the article. We hope that the journalism class being taught next semester will interact with this press, to the benefit of both parties. Student interest and support will determine our level of quality.

(J. Disarno)

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief	Jack Di Sarno
Sports Editor	Greg Walters
Assistant Editors	Susan Bagrowski, Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographers	Zack Sessions
Cartoonist	John Richardson
Advisor	Thomas Lupton
Staffers	Kay Gregory, Pamela Simpson, Tommy Torhan, Downes Eddy, Danny Morrison, John Tew, Al Payne, Phil Kelly, Debbie Davis, Phyllis Crews, Betsy Coleman, Paula Stanley, Sue Sandlin.

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed.

Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

Beyond the Crystal Face

"You can't beat speed!"

The idiots cried . . .

I laughed at them;

I knew they lied.

I saw my watch

And my face in time;

Time had run out

And so had mine.

Time stood still

Though speed sped past.

I saw myself,

And I stood fast.

I wound my watch

And spied in fear . .

I saw speed's face

In crystal clear.

"You can't beat speed!"

The idiots snied

I laughed at them . .

Inside I cried.

-- P. Venable

feel creative
?
want to see it in print
?
bring it up to
The Seahawk

News From the Castle

Once upon a time (which is a very good beginning for such a heavy story) there lived a big bad multicolored multishaped thing named Sir Apathique of Funkiness; his friends called him Funky for short. Funky lived in Petite Colledge, a small castle on the sea.

Funky never did nothin', 'cept try to impress his javelin instructor, play with the bridge, or chase the maidens of the castle. Funky believed in hanging loose. Every day he got up and said sort of reassuring-like, "Man I got to hang loose," and he always did.

Funky did his own thing. He counted No. 1 first. He did very little to improve life at the castle. His mother, whom everyone mysteriously called Aunt Minnie Strason, half-heartedly reprimanded her son for his attitude during one of their brief infrequent encounters—Funky just mumbled about not having time, and his mother went back to number mosaic she was working on. Then one day . . .

TO BE CONTINUED. TO BE CONTINUED. TO BE CONTINUED?

A new ping-pong table purchased recently with student funds has been placed in the recreation room in the Pub.

Flight

Maybe you understand

maybe you don't

But the freedom of love has taken wing and lights upon the flowers of Man.

Carried by the breeze, Love gets caught in the crosscurrents of everyday life. Please don't press its wings . . they're too fragile and will break with the pressure of greed.

--Jane Divine

The Seahawk Needs YOU!
typists, reporters
(part or full time)

YOUR OWN PRIVATE ENVIRONMENT FROM $322,500

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A perfect environment home with a minimum price tag of $322,500 is being offered for Christmas giving by a Houston department store. The individually planned home would have an ecology protected by an air-seal, lot-minimum of one acre. The Seabowitz Christmas Catalogue said the pollution-free environment designed by Borg-Warner would carry a final price de-lot and such factors as the height of trees.

RCOBB
©1970 SEABOARD PRESS, L.A. CAL.
ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

Learning about inclined planes

Senate approves club charters

The Student Senate met 11:30 November 24 to approve club charters and appoint a new parliamentarian. A new standing committee, one to deal with Senate approved clubs, was also discussed.

Two new club-charters were approved. The Math club and the Wantu Waziri (Swahili for Beautiful People) charters were approved. Timothy C. Pigford is president of Wantu Waziri.

Freshman class president, Helen Skelton was appointed Senate Parliamentarian. Skelton was appointed to fill the vacancy left when, Senior Class President Chic Coleman resigned as Parliamentarian.

A motion was made and passed to form a standing committee to work with campus clubs. This committee will consult with clubs wishing to have their charters approved. Speaker Brian Black will appoint committee members at the next Senate meeting.

Registration set for Jan. 26-27

"You better watch out. You better not shout. You better not cry. I'm telling you why."—Pre-registration has come to town.

Pre-registration for spring semester was from November 18 to December 4, with the upperclassmen getting first dibs. (Final registration will be January 26-27.) "Better luck next time" to all the redone schedules.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's
JEWELERS

27 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

Dance slated for Dec. 12

Between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m., Dec. 12, the sounds of "Flair" will be heard in the Pub. The annual Christmas Dance will be "casual" and admittance is by ID's.

"The members of the Dance Committee are very hard workers," states chairman Laris W. Milligan. "They have given of their time unselfishly to the students of UNC-W."

Barbara Morse and Al Simeone won the "most original dress" award at the Halloween Masquerade held Nov. 7.

Members of the Dance Committee are: Ed Boylan, Susan Edgerton, Carolyn Edwards, Mike Godwin, Terry Hammond, Phyllis Milliner and Skip Holston. George Holston, Rebecca Johnson, Gloria Kuznesoff, Phyllis Ruhland, Carolyn Thompson, Raleigh Todd, and Raymond Fowler, are also on the committee. Laris Milligan is Chairman of the Dance Committee.

SNCEA aids student-teachers

By Kay Gregory
Staff Writer

Considering the vast number of teacher education majors on campus, it is surprising that only 40 students belong to the local Student North Carolina Education Association, better known as SNCEA.

Brenda Tylor, president of the local SNCEA, believes that many students are not aware of the organization and its benefits.

Meeting one Monday each month at 7:30 p.m. in Kenan Hall, room 121, SNCEA is a student division of the National Education Association.

Monthly meetings deal with the present day school system. Two local principals, one representing the elementary level and one representing the secondary level, will speak on teacher, principal relationships at the January 11 meeting.

"Not only does SNCEA have interesting and informative meetings, but the organization is beneficial to anyone who plans to teach anything," said Brenda.

Upon joining, for instance, the student pays a $5.00 fee and automatically becomes a member of the state and national divisions and will receive both the North Carolina Education and the Today's Education magazines monthly at his home address. In addition, SNCEA members hope to do some tutorial work with children in public schools very soon.

Another SNCEA annual event includes the selecting of a Mr. and Miss Student Teacher to represent the local organization at the state convention in Charlotte with all expenses paid.

Since principals and superintendents consider SNCEA to be important, we education majors should think likewise. If you would like to join, take your $5.00 to Mrs. Neal Eakins, secretary in the education department, who will give you a membership card.

Five-year-olds instruct course?

A five-year old instructor? Fifteen of them?? Easily may be if you're taking Early Childhood Education next semester.

In Feb. 1971, a Child Study Center will be opening in the Education-Psychology Building. Any five-year-old and any six-year-old who has not begun first grade is eligible for the program which runs three days per week, 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Cost for the program is $15 per month.

Children, while playing in a large classroom, will be observed by the student teachers through one-way glass. Their ground-floor plant includes private entrance and private, scaled-down toilet facilities. Playground equipment, suitable for kindergartners, will be installed outside on the north side of the Education-Psychology Building.

Students who want to participate in this program must be eligible for student teaching. Chosen on the basis of interest, the students must be adaptable to working with younger children, as well as first graders. Dr. Paz Bartolome, associate professor of Early Childhood Education, will be in charge of the Child Study Center.

Dr. Bartolome has instigated other child study centers. One, in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, proved to students that "classroom theories do, in fact, work in practice," according to a Canadian Newspaper.

"While the children are playing they learn—" states Dr. Bartolome, "if their supervisors know how they learn, and how to teach them. Basic concepts can be learned at any early age, for example, buoyancy." "What makes the pan float?" may bring on "What made it sink?" if the play facilities are stimulating. The answers to their questions may make them, even more curious—and then while playing and having fun, the child learns.

A new research facility for faculty and students, and a lot of fun for 15 little people (the enrollment is limited), the Child Study Center welcomes children of faculty and students, as well as those in the surrounding communities.

Journalism class scheduled for Spring

With rulers, and pencils, and heavy black crayons...15 students will be introduced to journalism next semester. ENG 245, as it is known by the computer, will be a different sort of English class.

Introduction to Journalism will meet twice weekly under the direction of Dr. James G. Collier, Jr. Working directly with The Seahawk, journalism students will be bringing in copy, writing headlines, and will be getting a general knowledge of how a newspaper operates.

While learning how to write news, features, and sports stories, as well as reviews and editorials, students will be expected to cover their beats and meet The Seahawk's deadline.

Editors and staff from the campus newspaper will work with the journalism class.

Introduction to Journalism offers opportunity to students who like to write and to put their curiosity to a good cause. ENG 245 is demanding of skills, time, and a true interest in journalism. But them, wouldn't you really like to see your byline??

Folk and Rock Concert

FREE!

every Tuesday

and Thursday

by UNC-W students

11:30 a.m. Pub

UNC-W
presents

Ides Of March

8 pm

Thurs., Dec. 17, 1970

student tickets

$1.50

with i. d. in SGA office

Wantu Wazuri plans for the future

By WAYNE ROGERS

A new club on the UNC-W campus formed by black students has been chartered. Members of "Wantu Wazuri" recently submitted a constitution to the Student Senate which was overwhelmingly approved.

A spokesman for the club related that he was "surprised they got it". The Senate's acceptance and the already high interest among numerous white students to participate, however, indicates no diverse repercussions should be felt.

With Dr. Frank Hall as advisor the club consisting of approximately 20 members, is in the organizational stages. "Wantu Wazuri" is strictly local having no national affiliation, although communication with other campus organizations will be one objective of the club.

Members feel that they have something valuable to contribute to the University. Wanting to be an active part of the college community and the idea of fostering better relationships among students are other objectives of the club.

In the immediate future members will work for Black representation in the student government, as well as for the addition of black faculty members.

After the club becomes organized specific activities and discussion at the bi-monthly meetings will be planned. Reorganization will occur with expansion.

Amendments defeated in election

A series of SGA constitutional revisions were recently defeated by the student-body. The vote was 72 or 63.7 percent FOR, 41 or 36.3 percent AGAINST. A two-thirds affirmative vote was needed to pass the amendments which originated in the Student Senate.

A total of 114 students voted in the election. This is approximately 6.8 percent of the student body.

The vote by classes was as follows: Seniors—17 FOR, 12 AGAINST, Juniors—17 FOR, 13 AGAINST, Sophomore—15 FOR, 6 AGAINST, Freshman—23 FOR, 10 AGAINST.

Voter-turnout percentages by classes was: Senior—11.4 percent, Junior—9.9 percent, Sophomore—4.9 percent, Freshman—5.3 percent.

Look for posters for information about the next
CLEAN-UP DAY

THE HOLIDAY SEASON SPELLS

HARVEY CANNON, LTD.

Whatever the occasion, you'll come out better dressed every time with an ensemble from Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

Sport coats or suits as shown, with peak lapels, roped shoulders, button-through pockets and bi-swing belted back$85.00.

Largest Selection Of Ties In Area,
Silk Repps, Solids, FoulardsFrom $5.00.

Irresistible collection of long collar dress shirts in solids and unusual stripings - Pierre Cardin, Eagle, Sero, Schiaparelli, Medici.....From $9.00

HARVEY CANNON, LTD.

"We're UNC-W Oriented."

Next to Carolina Furn. in the North 17
Shopping Center.

FREE CONCERT!!!

UNC-W Students admitted Free to the Jan. 12 performance of

THE N. C. SYMPHONY IN KENAN AUDITORIUM

Do Your Own Thing Now!

We're seeking graduates with majors in: Business Administration / Economics / Psychology / Mathematics / Liberal Arts / Marketing / Architectural Design / Mechanical Engineering / Personnel Administration / Accounting / Computer Sciences / Food and Hotel Management / Traffic and Transportation Management / Management Engineering / and Industrial Engineering.
We want idea-people to turn us on in the following fields:

- RETAILING
- BUYING
- ACCOUNTING
- AUDITING
- ARCHITECTURE
- MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
- MERCHANDISING
- PERSONNEL
- FOOD MANAGEMENT
- VENDING
- SYSTEMS ANALYSIS
- COMPUTER PROGRAMMING
- PERSONAL SERVICES
- MANAGEMENT ENGINEERING
- WAREHOUSING & TRANSPORTATION

Ideas and people make our business. We're in the retailing, food and personal services business. And YOUR IDEAS can help us do a better job.

Here's where YOU come in. We're changing. And growing. And we're looking for bright young people who can help us make our changes work. YOU are one of the new-idea people we're looking for.

HERE'S OUR OFFER: You can start out in management right now. You make good money. You put your own ideas to work and evaluate the results. You move up fast. You work almost anywhere in the world, with opportunity to travel. You're a big part of our operation. And you accomplish whatever your talents lead you to work toward. That's it.

YOU have the opportunity. We have openings. Let's get together and see if our ideas are in the same bag.

Our representatives will be on campus soon. See your placement director and sign up for an interview NOW!

WE'LL BE INTERVIEWING:

DECEMBER 11

If you can't make our scheduled interview date, don't sweat it. Write us direct and find out if our ideas are in the same bag. Write to:

COLLEGE RELATIONS MANAGER
DEPT. NP

ARMY & AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE

THE PX-BX SYSTEM

3911 WALTON WALKER BLVD. DALLAS, TEXAS 75222

Equal Opportunity Employer

STEVE SHEPARD takes a shot in the Methodist game as host of players watch (photo by Sessions).

Lander beats UNC-W 102-91

The Lander College Senators beat the UNC-W Seahawks 102-91, despite Freshman guard Tom Hardwood's 30 points. The game was in the first round of the Lander College Invitational Tournament in Greenwood South Carolina.

Lander had five men in double-figures with Jeff May leading the way with 25. At the half Lander led 46-39.

This was the second time in the new season that the Seahawks had scored 90 points. As in the first game defense was a problem.

Also in the first round Presbyterian beat Newberry 80-60.

The 'Hawks cut the margin to five points late in the second half but Lander once again widened the gap, to the final 11 point margin. Center Howard Dunn was the games second highest scorer with 27.

The game was played in Lander's new gymnasium. Last year the Seahawks played Lander in a public school gymnasium.

GET YOUR 'IDES
OF MARCH'
TICKETS
IN THE SGA OFFICE

Recital series opened Nov. 22

The Music Department of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington opened its series of seven Sunday Recitals, November 22 at 3 p.m. in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium.

The recital, was free and open to the public, and featured both vocalists and instrumentalists. Steve Tabor, baritone, will open the program with Scarlatti's "Spesso Vibra per suo Gioco."

Alto saxophonist Frank Lane played Maganini's arrangement of "Suite in Bb Major" by Corelli, followed by baritone Erich Parker's rendition of Handel's "Un Ombra di Pace" and Dougherty's "A Minor Bird."

The First Movement of Haydn's "Concerto in Eb" was played on the trumpet by Jack Kelly, and Eddie Lockamy, baritone sang "Nacht and Traume" by Schubert. Ken Roberts, clarinetist, played the First Movement of Brahms' "Sonata No. 2 Op. 120 in Eb."

Pianist Joanne Lewis played "The Harmonica Player" by Gulon and "Rondalla Argonesa" by Granados.

Introducing
our new improved
warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

This space contributed as a public service

Dickens' works on display in library

A first edition copy of Charles Dicken's A CHRISTMAS CAROL, published in 1843 highlights an exhibit of Dickens Memorabilia's on display in the foyer of the William Madison Randall Library.

The exhibit, arranged through the efforts of UNC-W English Professor Thomas C. McCall and Dr. Laurence London, curator of the Louis Round Wilson Library at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, commemorates the centennial of Dickens' death.

The exhibit contains illustrations from the life and times of Charles Dickens; a facsimile of Dickens' original manuscript of A CHRISTMAS CAROL; figurines of Dickens' characters from a collection of figurines of literary characters owned by Miss Helen Hagan, librarian at UNC-W; the first editions of several other Dickens works, including THE CHIMES, THE BATTLE OF LIFE, THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH, THE HAUNTED MAN, and THE LIFE OF OUR LORD.

Simons featured in recital

The Department of Music at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will present Mrs. Josephine Simons in recital Sunday, December 5, at 3 p.m. in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Simons, an instructor in music at UNC-W, will play Beethoven's "Sonata Opus 110," "Sonata No. 3" by Prokofiev, and "Symphonic Variations" by Schumann. A special feature of the program will be a rendition of Mrs. Simons' original composition, "Suite One."

She holds the B.S. degree in music from Northwestern State College of Louisiana and has done graduate work at Louisiana State University, the University of Michigan, and St. Margaret's House in Berkeley, California. She is currently working toward the master's degree in piano performance at East Carolina University.

CHRISTMAS DANCE
DEC. 12, 1970
IN THE PUB
MUSIC BY
'FLAIR'

SADLER GOES IN for the score. The Seahawks had a good night shooting hitting 50% of their shots (photo by Sessions).

SEAHAWK CENTER Howard Dunn shows aggressive play in the season opener against Methodist College of Fayetteville (photo by Sessions).

'Hawks beat Methodist 90-87 in season opener

The Seahawks fought off a second half surge by an out-manned Methodist team to win their first game of the season 90-87. A good crowd greeted the Hawks in their season opener.

Seven men scored in double figures for the Hawks. Ronnie Vance led with 17, followed by, Tom Hardwood 14, Howard Dunn and Jessie Smith had 12 each, Steve Shepard, Bill Nemargut, and Don Corry chipped in 10.

Freshmen Bill Nemargut and Tom Hardwood were impressive in the winning effort. Nemargut at 6'7" showed good board play. Hardwood's passing caught the defense sleeping time after time.

In the first half the Hawks jumped out in front and built up a sizable lead. Methodist came back with some hot shooting in the second half and narrowed the gap. Repeated turnovers and poor defensive play on the part of the Hawks in the second half, along with Methodists' hot shooting had the fans wondering.

FRESHMAN GUARD Tom Harwood sinks foul shot in Methodist game. Harwood had 14 points in the game (photo by Sessions).

INTEGON

TALK TO THE
LISTENER
Randolph T. Gore
Bus. 763-8285

'Hawk wrestlers have potential

The Seahawk wrestling team boasts a lot of experience and potential. "The reason looks pretty optimistic so far. With no injuries and everybody remaining academically eligible we should finish strong," commented Coach Morrissey.

The Seahawk grapplers travel to the State Collegiate Wrestling Tournament this weekend at Chapel Hill. Every collegiate wrestler in North Carolina is eligible to participate in the tournament, with trophies being presented for the first six places in each class.

This tournament is the largest and toughest in the state but Coach Morrissey expects a good showing from his team.

This years squad is led by Senior co-captain Pat Sykes from Burlington, N.C., and co-captain Bob Elliot from Virginia Beach, Virginia. This marks the fourth year of wrestling for both of them, and they have finished strong all four years.

In the 118 pound weight class, Sykes has the starting position. Sykes compiled a 7-1 record last year and emerged impressively as the District 29 champ.

Seeking a spot at 126 are freshmen Chris Wilson and Bruce Hickman. Hickman, from Wilmington, was captain at Hoggard High School last year while Wilson comes from Jacksonville High School with a 3rd place finish in the state last year to his credit. Senior Mark Fears will also see action in the light weight classes. Fear is recovering from a kidney rupture suffered during the soccer season.

The 134 pound class finds sophomores Carl Larsen and David Hughes. Larsen saw limited action last year and had a winning season while Hughes shows enough potential to find a starting role.

A definite starter for the 'Hawks is Freddie Kee who compiled a 5-3 record last year and promises to be one of the top grapplers in the state.

Also securing a starting position is Ed Weddington from Salisbury, North Carolina. Weddington compiled a 7-0-1 record last year. Weddington is believed to be a strong finisher and make a good showing this year for the 'Hawks.

Transfer John Howarth and freshman Steve Whitacre are battling for the 150 pound class leader. Howarth has the experience but Whitacre proves tough enough to threaten the position.

Co-captain Bob Elliot has been an outstanding wrestler since he started at the university. Coach Morrissey points out Elliot as a point getter and will make his usual good showing and be a great asset to the team.

The 190 pound class finds loner Jim Lowery from Jacksonville. Lowery has the experience and even more potential and will improve as the season goes on.

Sophomore Pat Canady fills the unlimited class at 235 pounds. Canady has been working hard and shows great promise.

Coach Morrissey and manager Dave Hankins will be busy packing and traveling until they host their first match, Saturday, January 11, against Pfeiffer. Before then they will travel to Methodist (Dec. 14), Duke (Dec. 17), Campbell (Jan. 11), Elizabeth City State (Jan. 21), East Carolina (Jan. 22), and Elon (Jan. 28) for dual matches in addition to the tournament at Chapel Hill this weekend.

P's

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - 1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

SALE

For textbooks,
paperbacks,
or art supplies

VISIT

THE UNC-W BOOK STORE

The local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity recently received recognition in the fraternities national magazine "Torch and Trefoil" for Fall 70.

APO was cited as a result of brother Bob Andries 56 hour Rock-a-thon of last spring which raised more than $950 for Easter Seals. In the same issue APO brothers were recognized for their own donation which helped send underprivileged Boy Scouts to summer camp.

Phone 791-5686

COLLEGE VIEW 66

"Your Car Is Our Business"

A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

CLEAN-UP DAY workers stand over their "kill." Notice the campaign posters that were going to be collected after the election. Thanks Mr. Hall, Mr. Metts (photo by Frank Allen).

New York Electric Chamber Ensemble plays beautiful blend

By WAYNE ROGERS
Students who didn't take advantage of last week's first University Music Series concert featuring the "New York Electric Chamber Ensemble" missed an opportunity to see musicianship of a rare quality.

A large receptive crowd was on hand to hear music from Bach to Rock. Such a comparison may best categorize the versatility of the group.

The varying forms of music played by this group of talented musicians consisted of two guitars, bass, and drums. Several musical forms and styles were often incorporated in one composition.

Among the first pieces performed were "White Prelude" and "Russian Sailor's Dance". The latter number progressed from a moderately fast Russian style tempo most people are familiar with, to a follow-up improvisation which no respectable Russian dancer would dare attempt.

A rearranged instrumental version of the popular "Scarborough Fair" was a crowd pleaser.

The final number "Germaine" featured a rousing drum solo.

The second concert scheduled in the University Music Series features Oscar Ghiglia, classical guitarist.

All concerts will be held in the new Kenan Auditorium beginning at 8:30. UNC-W students and faculty will be admitted free, upon presentation of their I.D. cards.

Alpha Phi Omega fills the tub

Wayne Rogers

In an effort to help the New Hanover County Humane Society obtain a new animal shelter, the pledge class of Alpha Phi Omega is raising funds in a unique manner. As a class project the 13 members have for the past two Saturdays been raising money with the use of a "Psychedelic Bathtub" at New Hanover Shopping Center. The bathtub does, indeed, cause curiosity and as a result generosity in the form of donations by shoppers.

Anyone at Hanover Center between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. cannot help but notice the "Psychedelic Bathtub" being filled with donations.

November 28, $218 was collected by the APO pledges. APO is confident that the $1000 goal will be reached.

December 12 will be the final Saturday to see the bathtub and also to make a contribution.

The present shelter located on Castle Hayne Road is overcrowded and in very poor condition. The money raised will be donated to the Humane Society to help finance the new animal shelter being built on 23rd Street.

Officers of the APO pledge class are Pres.—Phil McCumbee, V-Pres.—Alan Murphy, and Sec.—Treas.—Mike Arnette.

APO MEMBERS Phil McCumbee and Charles Hodge put the "Psychedelic Bathtub" through some practice runs (photo by Sessions).

Domestic & Imported Beers

•

Live Entertainment

•

Sound Movies

Cartoons

Listening-center will be expanded

By Wayne Rogers

As a result of a new policy passed by the Library Committee, students will be able to enjoy continuous playing music, at the Listening Center in the Randall Library. No popular music is included in the library's present collection.

The tape recording systems which have been left idle this year as well as in the past will be used to record the music. Listening will be done with stereo headphones.

The success of the new system depends largely on student interest. Student's personal albums will be the sole source from which music for the recordings will be obtained.

Students that have albums in good condition and wish to have them recorded are asked to bring them to the circulation desk, and make sure the owner's name and phone number are placed on the album jacket. Albums will be returned as soon as they have been taped.

A well rounded collection is the objective. Rock, blues, soul, folk, and easy listening, are just some of the categories included in the new collection.

In order to use the listening center students are asked to sign a register. Listeners will then be issued a set of headphones. When a shortage of headphones occurs, students needing access to the facilities for assignment or study purposes will have priority over those listening strictly for pleasure.

Listeners may choose from two separate channels each will contrasting styles of music. One channel will emphasize hard rock, fast blues, and a variety of faster music. The remaining channel will offer folk, semi-classical and, slower oriented rock, easy listening, instrumental, jazz, and other types of music.

Taping began last week, and by January the system will be in full swing. Taping is being done by a committee of library assistants, but anyone wishing to contribute to the taping job is asked to come by the library and see either Raleigh Todd or Wayne Rogers.

Success and continuance of the popular music listening center depends upon student cooperation.

Dr. Walter C. Biggs and Philip C. Smith of the Faculty Professional Relations Committee, recently attended a meeting of the University Committee on Faculty Welfare in Chapel Hill November 11.

A PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

If you know a girl considering an

ABORTION

this message might even save her life!

It is no longer necessary for unfortunate girls to be ruthlessly exploited for profit by quacks and inept butchers. Now they can have perfectly legal abortions under strict hospital care. The new California Therapeutic Abortion Act provides that all services be performed by physicians in accredited hospitals.

Last year it is estimated some 700,000 illegal abortions were performed in the United States. Almost without exception exorbitant prices were charged, hospital facilities were not available and a complete medical staff was not present to cope with emergencies.

Some of those girls died unnecessarily. Others suffered severe infections. Still others will never again be able to bear a child due to incompetent treatment.

The National Abortion Council for Therapeutic Abortions and Family Planning wants to make sure that all girls receive humane and sanitary treatment. YOU CAN HELP.

If you know of a pregnant girl who is considering sneaking off to have her abortion in a germ-infected apartment or office tell her to call us. Our counseling service is free.

We recommend only: the most reputable physicians; doctors offering fair and reasonable prices; services which will be completely within the law; services performed at accredited hospitals.

PHYSICIANS WITH A GENUINE AND HUMANE INTEREST

Phone: (213)

464-4177

NATIONAL ABORTION COUNCIL for Therapeutic Abortions and Family Planning
1717 North Highland Avenue
Hollywood, California 90028

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25% PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.25
Razor $3.50
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

THIS WAS HOMECOMING UNC-W '70-'71

DEFENSE WAS THE name of the game. Tough defense as seen here enabled the Seahawks to beat the scrappy Lander team 79-72.

KATHY LOWRIMORE SHOWS surprise at being named Homecoming Queen for 1970-71. Escort Ed Boyland is all smiles as his date receives the honor (photo by Sessions).

Congratulations

KATHY

LOWRIMORE

UNC-W's 1970 — 71 HOMECOMING Queen Kathy Lowrimore gets a hug from Pat Corcoran the reigning Queen, while Ed Boyland watches (photo by Session).

THE FINALISTS ARE pictured here at center court during half-time of the game. The finalists shown here are, l to r; Dottie Kelly, Janet Evans, and Sally Tomlinsin (photo by Sessions).

Homecoming activities lasted the week

UNC-W — A parade, concerts, dances, films and basketball were all on the schedule for the first week in February as the University of North Carolina welcomed back its alumni for annual Homecoming festivities.

Highlights of the celebration were: the annual Homecoming basketball game against Lander College, that was played at 8 p.m. Saturday, and the "Association" concert.

Many former Seahawk greats took part in the annual Old-Timers' Gate Saturday night.

The weeks activities began with the Oscar Ghiglia concert Monday night. The concert was sponsored by the University Music Series.

On Wednesday Duane and John gave a guitar and harmonica concert in the Pub.

The annual Homecoming Parade got things moving at a brisk pace 11:30 Friday. Also on Friday; the Fine Arts Film Series sponsored the showing of three films starring the legendary W.C. Fields in Room 121 Kenan Building, and a dance started at 9 pm in the Pub with music supplied by "Jaime" and "The Imperials."

Saturday's events began at noon with a "powder-puff" football game. The William Madison Randall Library held open house for the alumni and visitors Saturday.

The Old Timer's Game began at 6 pm in Hanover Hall and was followed by a gigantic bonfire (constructed by the Engineers Club) and pep rally.

Kathy Lowrimore, was crowned Homecoming Queen during half-time of the UNC-W-Lander basketball game. UNC-W beat Lander 79-72. A dance was held after the game.

Photos

by

ZACK SESSIONS

PARADES, CONCERTS, ETC.,

A BONFIRE AND pep rally preceded the Saturday night basketball game. Apparently it worked because the Seahawks were victorious (photo by Sessions).

Business Club entry Caroline Smith is all smiles while waiting for the parade to get under way. Gusty winds made things even more zesty.

perhaps the etc., is the most fun?

DOTTIE KELLY is just one of several charming contestants, who helped make the parade a success. Note the astute observers in the background.

TERRY KIRKMAN (l) AND BRIAN COLE share a microphone at "The Association" concert (photo by Sessions)

"THE ASSOCIATION" PERFORMS in Hanover Hall. The performance was a good one considering the fact that most of the instruments and equipment was borrowed (photo by Sessions).

EVERYONE LOVES A PARADE, but...only a mother could love this crew. Here you see the "Grossmobile" polluting the landscape. Judges Anne Fitzgibbon and Doug Swink in the background are not trying to decide if this entry is of high quality, they're trying to decide what it is. This is positive and conclusive proof that some UNC-W students are creative and artistic.

HOPE YOU ENJOYED IT!

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

6th edition

feb. 10, 1971

Zullo hired Jan. 1

The initial step in developing a strong marine sciences program has been taken with the appointment of Dr. Victor A. Zullo as professor of biology and director of the program in environmental sciences with emphasis on marine studies.

Dr. Zullo, who holds the B.A., M.A., and Ph. D. degrees from the University of California at Berkeley, joined the UNC-W faculty in January, 1971.

During the early years of his career, he was interested primarily in research, serving as graduate research paleontologist at UC-Berkeley in 1961 and was a laboratory instructor for the National Science Foundation Earth Sciences Institute in 1962.

More recently, Dr. Zullo has concerned himself with teaching and the organization of graduate research-training programs. From 1962 to 1967 he served as a fellow in systematics, resident systematist, assistant director, and special lecturer in the marine ecology program at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Massachusetts.

Dr. Zullo is also a lecturer in the Department of Marine Biology at San Francisco State College and in the NSF Earth Sciences Institute at UC-Berkeley.

He is currently associated with the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco, where he has held the titles associate curator, chairman of the Department of Geology, and acting chairman of the Department of Invertebrate Zoology.

He has been working to establish at the California Academy of Sciences a research-training program similar to the one at Woods Hole, with the idea of promoting whole organism biology in cooperation with the numerous educational institutions in the San Francisco Bay area.

Author of some forty published works, Dr. Zullo is a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and serves as secretary of that organization's Pacific Division.

Film series in progress

Students and the general public are invited to attend any or all of the films in the "Civilization" series being shown on Mondays at 8 p.m. and Wednesdays at 11:30 a.m. in the Ed-Psych Bldg.

NBC NEWS ANCHORMAN and Wilmington native David Brinkley, has plenty to say about big Government at the Timme Plaza press conference. (photo by Al Payne).

Cahill will succeed J. Paul Reynolds

Dr. Charles L. Cahill, presently associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and director of research at Oklahoma City University, will become dean of the faculty here on Sept. 1.

Dr. Cahill's appointment was announced Monday by UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner. He will succeed Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, whose retirement after serving as dean since 1964 is effective Aug. 31.

"The appointment of Charles Cahill to the position of dean of the faculty pleases me very much," Chancellor Wagoner said. "I believe that Dr. Cahill will provide dynamic leadership to this campus in the days ahead and I am confident that this campus will continue to progress in its quest for excellence."

cellence."

More than 60 persons were considered for the position by the chancellor and a faculty committee before Dr. Cahill was selected. "The faculty has been tremendously helpful to me in this search for a new dean and I wish to thank all those who have made suggestions or helped in any way," Dr. Wagoner said.

Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, chairman of the faculty committee, noted that its members were unanimous in their endorsement of Dr. Cahill. "The committee is very pleased to hear of his appointment," he said.

A native of El Reno, Okla., the 37-year-old Cahill holds the A.B. degree in chemistry from Oklahoma Baptist University and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in biochemistry from

BYU's administration prohibits slacks

PROVO, Utah (CPS) — Brigham Young University's academic vice president, Robert Thomas, has demanded that teachers "tighten up" on women wearing slacks in the classroom.

"May we reiterate," said Thomas in a statement to campus faculty last month, "that slacks are not to be worn in regular classes, and we expect each teacher to make this clear to his students."

Thomas said students had indicated to him "that many girls are now wearing slacks in regular classes."

He said if a woman "feels totally rebellious about following standards which she has signed to uphold."

"We've made clear before anyone came here this fall, we would counsel with the student about why she is at BYU and if she felt strongly about it, suggest she transfer."

Social work soon to be offered

Southeastern North Carolina definitely lacks an adequate number of post-graduate trained social workers, but beginning in September, something will be done to alleviate this deficiency.

Due to the efforts of Dr. Paul Reynolds, dean of faculty, and Miss Lela Moore Hall, New Hanover County Social Services director, UNC-Wilmington in affiliation with UNC-Chapel Hill, will join East Carolina University, UNC-Asheville and UNC-Charlotte in donating classroom, office and library space to participants in next year's work-study post-graduate social workers program. This program is opened to employed college graduates who are not able to live in residence during their first year of graduate work.

Normally, it takes two school years for a student to earn his master's degree in social work, although, under this program, a student will take two years to complete his first year requirements and must then spend his third year in residence at a university to complete his second year requirements. This year in residence must be completed within three years after finishing first year courses.

To meet these requirements, a student will spend every Thursday in class and will then either work with an agency or in some special project under direction of a faculty member.

P. R. office undergoes changes

The UNC-W public relations office formerly known as the Office of College Relations has undergone some slight changes recently.

The name has been changed to: University News Bureau. James Carr has recently been appointed Bureau Director. Gwen Croom is Assistant Director. The Bureau is located in the Admin. Bldg., first floor.

Jaycees to hold pageant

Wilmington-The Wilmington Jaycees have begun preparations for the 1971 Miss Wilmington Pageant. The Pageant is dated for April 3, in Sara Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium on the UNC-W campus.

Pageant committee chairman Arthur Davis noted on that date "the present Miss Wilmington, Samantha Ann Townsend will relinquish her title to some charming young lady who will compete in Charlotte this summer for the Miss North Carolina title."

This years pageant, centers around the theme "Somewhere over the Rainbow," will again be directed by Mrs. Hannah Block and Elmer Williamson.

Davis said any girls between the ages of 18 and 28 who are interested in becoming a Miss Wilmington contestant may obtain information by calling 762-8629 or 791-4707, by writing P.O. Box 3171 or by contacting any Wilmington Jaycee. The Chamber of Commerce is located at 514 Market Street.

the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine.

In addition to his administrative duties at Oklahoma City, Dr. Cahill has been a member of the chemistry faculty since 1961 and currently holds the rank of professor. From 1963 to 1969, he served as chairman of the Department of Chemistry.

He has done research under grants from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation, and had numerous articles published in scientific journals.

Dr. Cahill is a member of the American Chemical Society, Sigma Xi fraternity, the American Association for Advancement of Science, the New York Academy of Science, the Endocrine Society and the Oklahoma Governor's Committee on Science and Industry.

In addition, he has served as a visiting lecturer of the Oklahoma Academy of Science and as a member of the Committee on Water Quality Control of Oklahoma Science and Arts Foundation. He is married and is the father of three children.

Dr. Reynolds whose academic career has spanned five decades, joined UNC-W (then Wilmington College) as dean of the faculty and professor of biology on July 1, 1964, after serving as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Florida State

Continued on page 7

Editorials

Violence prevails

As this edition goes to the printer, the sleepy town of Wilmington is under siege. At this very moment hundreds of National Guardsmen are patrolling the city with the aid of local, county, and state police.

What is the cause of the racial violence Wilmington is presently experiencing. From the historical viewpoint the system, society, or establishment; whichever you prefer, is the fault. This system is racist, is violent, and can be oriented to brute power.

Perhaps the situation ie. system, is that way because America has developed militarily, materially, and politically, faster than it has evolved culturally.

There are countries where racial and ethnic harmony exist...but not here. PERHAPS SOMEDAY AMERICANS, ALL AMERICANS WILL TURN FROM VIOLENCE, AND HATE AS A MEANS OF GOAL REALIZATION. IF THAT DAY OCCURS THEN AMERICA WILL BE BEAUTIFUL.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The first issue of the UNC-W literary magazine will be shortly forthcoming. According to editor Pam Raye it can be expected in two weeks. She also pointed out that work is already in progress on the second issue.

Students are urged to submit material for publication, as poetry, short stories, and essays are all needed for the second issue. All material will be welcomed and can be turned in to the Atlantic office, Dr. Hulon's suite, in the Psychology and Education Building anytime during school hours.

R.A. Buchanan, Atlantic

To the Editor,

I am getting sick and tired of the weight-training room being left cluttered with equipment on days after home basketball games. This equipment does not belong in the weight-room. Those responsible for moving the equipment from the balcony area should finish the job by putting everything back in its proper place.

David Hughes.

To the Editor,

I would like to express my appreciation to the many people who have worked hard and who have unselfishly given of their time to making our Homecoming a successful project this year.

The following individuals and groups were especially helpful: Bob Wiard, Ed Boyland, Jim Fugate, Laris Milligan, Bob Dobo, Alpha Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega, Pi Kappa Phi, Engineers Club, and a special thanks to our cheerleaders.

Donn J. Sraufe
Homecoming Chmn.

THE SEAHAWK'S TEN POINTS

1. tougher legislation and strict enforcement of existing anti-pollution legislation
2. increased governmental intervention in population control
3. immediate unilateral withdrawal from Southeast Asia
4. free food stamps for all hungry Americans
5. establishment of a billion-dollar federal job-corps for low-income Americans
6. income-tax reform providing for a real graduated system
7. drastic reduction in defense spending
8. federal legislation outlawing possession of lethal weapons
9. complete reform of the American judicial and penal systems, with crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation as their goal
10. defeat of the Agnew-Nixon Administration in '72

News From The Castle

Much has happened since we last hear from the castle. Most important, Funky had a great spiritual experience. Or perhaps we should say it had him, although he was completely unaware of it. It all happened on the day of the big tests...

Funky, true to his name, is wandering about aimlessly lamenting his misfortune. If only he had known that a curassow was "any of several large, arboreal, gallinaceous birds of the family Cracidae, of South and Central America," he could have flown true high colors on that old examination!—Alas, perhaps he is no true scholar.

As he walks bemoaning his fate, he runs into Od Otho, the "different" courier of the castle. Everyone is constantly jeering at poor Otho. Otho, however, does not seem to be too bothered by it and only mutters something about "double rhyme." Anyway, on this day, Otho is reading aloud a lovely sonnet as he strolls. Funky, who is still disturbed about the curassow, pounces verbally on Otho. "Od Otho," he jeers, "you certainly are odd. What are you reading?" "A sonnet," quietly replies Otho. "What is this sonnet you speak of?" demands Funky. Otho tries to convey the thought, but poor Funky is just too dense. Funky is only satisfied when Otho finally says, "It's composed of fourteen lines, usually in iambic pentameter, with rhymes arranged according to one of certain definite schemes." Funky still doesn't understand, and feels it's queerish, but it sounds more positive.

Funky turns to leave, then suddenly four young knights grab Otho. They're rounding up all the odd people they say, and Otho is odd number one in their book. Otho struggles but it's no use. He's too much of a man to kick and bite on their level; so he says in an amazingly calm voice, "Funky, you must remember a sonnet is more than a number of lines." Funky is now certain that Otho is indeed the number 1 odd and leaves him to the four clubbers, who perform their deed unhindered—very few care or are aware of it, and the ones who should are the glass bead game players engrossed in their game.

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in Chief..... Jack Di Sarno
Sports Editor..... Greg Walters
Assistant Editors..... Susan Bagrowski, Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographers..... Zack Sessions
Cartoonist..... John Richardson
Advisor..... Thomas Lupton
Staffers..... Kay Gregory, Pamela Simpson, Tommy Torhan, Downes Eddy, Danny Morrison, John Tew, Al Payne, Phil Kelly, Debbie Davis, Phyllis Crews, Betsy Coleman, Paula Stanley, Sue Sandlin.

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed.

Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

The Doctor's Bag

By DR. ARNOLD WERNER

QUESTION: I have just begun smoking cigarettes. Whenever I light up, I get intestinal gas after a few puffs. Is this normal or abnormal? Also, can you give me a medical explanation for this phenomenon?

ANSWER: There are two physical factors at work. Nicotine is a powerful stimulant to intestinal action, leading to the observation that a fat cigar is often followed by a bowel movement. It is also likely that you are swallowing air while puffing, aggravating the aforementioned pharmacologic wonder.

While treading the fine line between accurate medical comment and orializing, I must say that you've got to be out of your mind to start smoking cigarettes. It is sad enough that there are so many millions of people who have been suckered into this self-destructive addiction through what at times seems like the selfish interests of an industry that panders death. I do hope that you will reconsider your decision to start smoking.

'Tradition is under fire

By T.C. SIMS

GUEST COLUMNIST

There is a certain feeling among many students which dictates that everything identified with that which is traditional, or a part of the so-called Establishment is to be scoffed at. For example: the flag, the pledge of allegiance, the respect for duly elected officials whose lives are dedicated to public service, the democratic process, and those legal channels which are always open for responsible protest.

This unreasonable, mass denunciation goes hand in hand with an equally unreasonable, all-inclusive deification of those elements that seek to be continually derisive and destructive.

If we say that those who hold everything in our system to be good and above criticism are illogical, then let us be consistent in our thinking and agree that the other extreme is also illogical.

True, it takes time to register meaningful protest, and in our system, there is much red tape one must go through to accomplish desired goals. But there is a very good reason for this: To weed out those who are not really serious about their business, but are only involved because of their immaturity, or for some superficial reason; so that we will not have childish rantings in high places.

Man lost

The recent network television special about the forest-fire that burned 118,000 acres of prime timber was very illustrative of the complexity of the environmental problem.

Here was the unusual case of man totally united to protect the environment. Even with a concerted effort such as this one, the problem of environmental protection is a depressing one. For those of you who are not familiar with the fire, it was one of the largest forest-fires ever. To give you some idea of the size of the area destroyed, our entire campus is only 600 acres.

This story demonstrates several frightening facts. The most important fact is that man cannot control the environment on a day-to-day basis. The damage done by that fire will probably never be completely remedied.

PASSING IN REVIEW

Clayton-Thomas exhibits natural talent

David Clayton-Thomas of Blood, Sweat and Tears thinks of himself as an entertainer first and a composer second despite the fact that by his own estimate there are about 70 recordings to date of his composition "Spinning Wheel."

"I'm primarily a guitarist, pianist, singer, performer who happens to write songs, usually about two a year," Clayton-Thomas said recently—leaving out the mention that he is also a record producer. "I putter around. I haven't really written that much"—going on to detail a writing schedule that would stagger a man committed only to composing, let alone "performing." Thomas wrote "Lucretia MacEvil," which was pulled from a BS&T Columbia album and released as a single. He was hoping to repeat his "Spinning Wheel" hit with "Lucretia," allowing that the newer effort is a more complex song, a little raunchier. "Spinning Wheel," which is built on a little melody, is a more adaptable song and can be sung loud or soft.

"I also had a hand in writing 'Blues Part II' from one of our albums," Clayton-Thomas continued. "I originally wrote the lyrics, but BS&T turned it into a jam session, so the soloists who were on it were listed as co-writers."

The twentyish, British-born, Toronto-raised Clayton-Thomas is becoming increasingly involved in motion pictures. "I helped in the writing of the score of the new Barbra Streisand film, 'The Owl and the Pussycat'—Blood, Sweat and Tears wrote, arranged and performed the entire score. This was my first film score—and difficult to do from our standpoint, because it was mostly dialogue. Somebody should have told me what can happen when you do a film score. When the picture is completed, the power that be can do what they want with the score. The song I liked best, and which I wrote alone, was cut from the picture. About two-thirds of the score—85 percent of which is instrumental—has been left in. The producers told us this happens all the time, and that they did it for the overall good of the movie."

Undaunted, Clayton-Thomas' next project on the big screen will be a full length cartoon feature for children's title, "The Trumpet of the Swan." "I was originally asked to do the voice of the swan, which is the lead," he revealed. "Then I talked to the producer and asked if they had a musical producer. He said no. I told him we'd just done 'Pussycat.' Now Dick Halligan of our group and I are co-writing the music. He'll do the scoring and much of the musical composition and I'll be doing a lot of the lyrics and some composing. 'I'm still playing the lead, too,' he

'Conservation News'

Biotechnika makes breakthrough

Biotechnika International, Inc., a year-old research and development company in Alexandria, Virginia may have taken science one step forward in its constant grappling with oil spills.

According to "Chemical & Engineering News" the American Chemical Society's weekly technical journal, Biotechnika has produced a microbial "cocktail" composed of twenty different oil-hungry microscopic bugs. The oil-eating bug mob—one trillion of them to an ounce—tackled a 100-square-foot-layer of oil on a Potomac River estuary. The oil was cleaned up within four days.

Recital held

A faculty recital was held recently at St. Andrews Covenant Presbyterian Church featuring Frank K. Honey, organist. He was assisted by William F. Adcock, saxophonist.

Compositions by Bach and Du Bois were performed.

noted happily.

As far as BS&T recordings are concerned: "We're attempting not to introduce more of our own original material on our LP's," he noted. "We're heading towards an all-original album. And this isn't so easy. I've always been able to write pretty much when I felt like it, but now I've had to sit down and apply myself, to make a concerted effort," he added.

The nine-group (comprising, besides Clayton-Thomas and Halligan, Bobby Colomby, Jim Fielder, Jerry Hyman, Steve Katz, Fred Lipsius, Lew Soloff and Chuck Winfield), with its multiple musical influences, has bridged the generation gap in popular music to a remarkable degree.

The rest, it can be said, is pop music history. The young man central to the thrust and appeal of BS&T, while diversifying and growing as a performer and composer, continues to leave his mark on the music business.

"Our bugs eat up Kuwait and Venezuelan crude," said Dr. Edward N. Azarowicz, a microbiologist in charge of research at Biotechnika. The mixture of nineteen earth microbes and one sea microbe breaks oil down to carbon dioxide, water, sugars and proteins. Azarowicz pointed out all these materials restore nutrients to fish that otherwise might not survive an oil spill. Fish fed the microbe-digested oil in the company laboratory seemed in better condition than other fish fed on regular food.

The microbes didn't fare so well. "They die off," according to Azarowicz. "They like the land. When they have eaten the oil they've had it. There is nothing else they can eat in the ocean."

Azarowicz feels the biggest challenge was determining the proper mixture which can be adjusted for various geographical areas, climates, and times of year.

Because sea-living microbes naturally break down oil, Biotechnika's concept is not new. What is unique is the increased speed with which the selected land-sea microbe mixture breaks down oil concentrations.

What it will do on the real thing remains to be seen. Biotechnika's next step is to sic its microbe crew on an actual oil spill.

Concert Slated For Feb. 18

By WAYNE ROGERS
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops and Boston Symphony fame will appear here Thursday, February 18, as guest conductor of the Piedmont Orchestra.

The orchestra itself is comprised of musicians from North Carolina university and college faculties and various symphonies as well as the North Carolina Symphony. This blend of superb but independent musicians enhances the Piedmont Orchestra's performance.

Fiedler, who originated the Boston Pops Orchestra forty-five years ago with the idea of giving the layman an opportunity to hear good music, is recognized as being the chief promoter of the popular orchestra.

In his mid-seventies, Mr. Fiedler is certainly "one of our most colorful conductors," stated Mr. Frank Honey, faculty advisor to the Fine Arts Committee.

This concert is the third in the University Music Series. All are free to students and are held in the Kenan Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. "The North Carolina Symphony, "The New York Electric Chamber Ensemble," and Oscar Ghiglia have performed on campus already this year.

Lewine 'says good-bye'

Misty-eyed nostalgia and wry humor, Hollywood tinsel, cosmopolitan glamour, authentic Americana and high camp, form an aromatic, heady blend under a book cover which imitates the old Lucky Strike flat fifties tin. The title, which reformed smokers and would-be-nonsmokers should particularly appreciate: Goodbye to All That (McGraw-Hill, $6.95).

"My generation was the last one to be directly influenced by the American," muses author Harris Lewine, fortyish. "Cigarettes were an integral part of our social life. It was a naive time when a cigarette was an indispensable, social adornment—although some people were coughing in the '20s. I dressed up Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo. It was also part of Bogey's toughness and no movie gangster would be caught dead without a dangling drag."

An inveterate, heavy smoker, Lewine does not touch the stuff any more—most of the time, that is. He has broken the habit. Not, however, without a measure of heartbreak. Giving it all up—saying Goodbye to All That—was no mean undertaking. He records his feelings and afterthoughts in an outrageous parody of an intimate diary which appears in stripform at the top of the more conventionally set pages.

Some of the chapter headings provide a clue to the progress of the appealing, lighthearted but thoroughly documented text: "Smoking on the Continent," "Smoking Behind the Gazebo," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Smoking Permitted in the Balcony," "Smoke, Smoke, Smoke that Cigarette!"

The illustrations—many in color—run the gamut from cigarette packs from all over the world, circa 1868-1950, to cigarette trade cards (1878-1940), to celebrities, suffragettes, flappers, movieand "tofs and swells," public enemies, popular heroes and glamorous movie queens.

"The Fifties brought the kings, the filter kings, the mentholated: a battery of brands, millimeters, tables, tars and resins that read like a Manual of Small Arms Ammunition!" Lewine writes. "...The Last Cigarette Generation's smoking taste 'boggled' at the choices—the tobacco manufacturers' 'health-scare' sales effort to combat a final, serious judgement on the harms of smoking. When Mayo Clinic head Dr. Charles W. Mayo feebly insisted: 'I just don't believe smoking causes lung cancer,' the game, the jig, the 'smoke' was up!"

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25% PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.00
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

Harrell funds new scholarship

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington's endowment fund received a tremendous boost recently when Mrs. Henry Harrell conveyed stocks and cash aggregating $10,000 to the University to establish "The Henry Harrell Scholarship Fund."

Chancellor William H. Wagoner, accepting the gift for the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, said, "Mrs. Harrell, this is a marvelous gesture on your part which will do so much good for so many people."

Mr. Harrell was born in Onslow County, but moved to Wilmington at an early age and died a resident of Wilmington in March, 1969.

The funds given by Mrs. Harrell will be held, invested, and reinvested as a part of the University's perpetual endowment fund with the income being used to provide annually one or more scholarships for worthy students. Recipients will be selected by the UNC-W Scholarship Committee, which has been asked to consider the financial need and moral and mental worthiness of the applicants.

Mrs. Harrell has asked that residents of New Hanover be given preference in the awarding of the scholarships unless the Scholarship Committee deems students residing outside New Hanover County to have a more urgent or worthy need for assistance.

She has authorized the governing board of the University after twenty years to use the net income from the fund to benefit the interests of the students in some other manner if the board determines there are other student needs more urgent or worthy than educational scholarships.

Second, Third Graders Invade Campus to see 'The Clockshop'

What is big and little, wiggly, and imported in large orange containers? For the past week, New Hanover County school buses have transported more than 4,000 second and third graders to Kenan Auditorium for the

Pied Piper Production "The Clockshop."

"I went out on the stage to introduce the program," said Mr. Doug Swink, drama professor and technical adviser to the play, "and was totally amazed!! There were wall-to-wall children; every seat downstairs had a little kid in it, and every one of them was wiggling!!" They had come to see a play produced especially for them.

"The Clockshop" is a fantasy involving a clockmaker, all of his clocks, and Father Time. It's 11 p.m. New Year's Eve in the clockshop, and the clockmaker closes for the night. Gretchen, a Little Dutch Girl Clock is loved by Hans, a Little Dutch Boy Clock, and the Alarm Clock. Hans is bashful, Alarm Clock is bold. Gretchen secretly loves Hans. With the help of Cuckoo Clock, Alarm Clock tries to break up the affair by appealing to Grandfather Clock, who, in turn, calls on Father Time. By beginning a new year at night, he solves all the problems.

Several UNC-W students had parts in the play. Senior Eddie Thompson played the clockmaker.

On leave from Bard College, Lynn Tepper helped with the production. A drama major, she constructed sets and costumes with one of the League members.

McKennis shows 'Stratum' print

Miss Gail McKennis, art instructor at UNC-W will have a work entered in the First Hawaiian National Print Exhibition which will run from Feb. 4 through March 14 at the Honolulu Academy of Art.

Miss McKennis' entry is an intaglio print entitled "Stratum."

The juried exhibition will be an invitational showing of work by printmakers from throughout the United States.

CLOCKS DANCE AND SING — in the clockshop, produced by the Pied Pipers. (photo by Al Payne)

Oscar Ghiglia awes audience

By WAYNE ROGERS
Assistant Editor

Oscar Ghiglia, soft-spoken, Italian, guitarist presented an awesome musical performance in Kenan Auditorium Feb. 1.

Being a successful guitarist, however, was not always a goal of Mr. Ghiglia. He gave up the piano because "it took too much time to learn well."

UNC-W stop Bus schedules

City bus service by Safeway Transit Company is available hourly. Fare is 30 cents; bus-stop is the south end of the traffic circle, where benches and light are provided.

Buses leave downtown Wilmington, go down Princess St. to 16th St., down 16th St. to Dock St., and then down Wrightsville Ave. to College Road and UNC-W.

It arrives hourly from 7:35-10:35 a.m., at 12:35 p.m., and hourly from 2:05-4:05 p.m. Saturday services are hourly from 7:35-9:35 a.m. and hourly 2:05-4:05 p.m. Neither Sunday nor holiday service is provided.

Ghiglia began studying guitar at the age of 14.

Ghiglia revealed that he did have to be prompted or coaxed somewhat in the early stages of his guitar training, but later realized that serious study, "demands everything of you."

Now at age 26, Ghiglia has achieved what most guitarists dream about. Mr. Ghiglia says that he has learned to be at ease when in the company of musicians of the caliber of Andres Segovia. "I learned quickly to realize or should I say accept (the Maestro)." "When asked what his greatest musical experience is Mr. Ghiglia responded, "Whenever I go on the stage, it is a great moment for me."

Ghiglia had some interesting things to say about rock musicians. He feels that many pop musicians are just as serious about their music as classical musicians are about theirs.

Ghiglia believes that the serious individual can master an instrument, although some have a gift of talent which may be developed more quickly and fully.

This statement applies perfectly to Oscar Ghiglia.

Sculpture, painting add to University art collection

A gift of sculpture and two purchased pieces have been added to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington's permanent art collection. The collection now contains 26 items.

"Duet," a massive work sculpted in painted wood and plastic, was given to the UNC-W collection by the North Carolina State Art Society.

An acrylic work on rice paper entitled "Purple and White" was purchased for the UNC-W collection from a recent show of works from the Garden Gallery held at UNC-W. Joe Cox, a teacher in the School of Designs at North Carolina State University, is the artist. He is a frequent prizewinner and one of the better known artists in the state.

"Barns on a Hill," an etching by Raleigh artist, Jill Flink, is now a part of the UNC-W collection. Mrs. Flink's etching was selected from her one-man show held at UNC-W during November. One of the younger artists in the state, Mrs. Flink has been a consistent prizewinner for the past three years.

Carr assumes new position

James O. Carr, Jr., has been appointed director of the news bureau at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. He assumed his new position on January 4, 1971.

A native of Wallace, North Carolina, he studied journalism at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill from 1960 to 1965.

He was a reporter for the WILSON DAILY TIMES for a year, leaving that newspaper to become city editor of the DURHAM MORNING HEARLD. For the past two years he has been state editor and political writer for the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER.

He has also worked part-time as a radio announcer and sportscaster since 1968.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's

JEWELERS INC.

27 NORTH FRONT STREET

WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

- *Student Charge Accounts
- *New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

VILLAGE INN

PIZZA, PASTA, DRINKS

Domestic & Imported Beers

Live Entertainment

Sound Movies

Cartoons

Smart Shoppers Shop The UNC-W Bookstore

Student Services Building

Cahill Will

Continued from page 3
University.

Wilmington College was at that time making the transition from junior college to four-year institution, and Dr. Reynolds had the primary duty of building the new curriculum and the faculty to implement it.

He received a B.S. degree from Guilford College in 1928, earned an M.S. degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1929 and was awarded the Ph.D. degree by The Johns Hopkins University in 1934. In addition to his appointments at UNC-W and Florida State, he has served on the faculties of Guilford College, Birmingham-Southern College and UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dr. Reynolds is currently serving as president of the Conference of Academic Deans of the Southern States, an office to which he was elected last month.

He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Guilford College, is a former chairman of the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee of the North Carolina Board of Education and has served as chairman of some dozen visiting committees for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. He was the first liberal arts chairman of the Florida Council on Teacher Education and has served as consultant to various colleges and foundations.

Dr. Reynolds is a Rotarian, a deacon of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilmington and a former president of the Wilmington Community Council. He is married to Mrs. Rebecca Ward Reynolds and they are the parents of two sons, J. Paul Reynolds Jr. and William Lee Reynolds.

Concert slated for Feb. 18

By WAYNE ROGERS

A near full house was on hand to hear the North Carolina Symphony perform here last month.

Director Benjamin Swalin and Guest Conductor Valter Poole, formerly of the Cleveland Symphony, shared the conducting duties through J. Strauss's Overture to the opera "Die Fledermaus," Beethoven's famous "Symphony No. VIII in F major" sometimes referred to as the "Symphony with a smile," as well as a very enjoyable suite which comprised selections from Bernstein's "West Side Story."

Featured on the program was twenty-year old pianist Marsha Pobanz, finalist in the Symphony's annual "Young Artist's Auditions." Her dazzling performance of Tchaikovsky's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in B flat minor" was certainly the highlight of the evening.

The concert was a great success, as well as a fine educational experience, for those who have never seen, or for that matter, heard a symphony.

Unfortunately, last minute publicity and upcoming final exams may have contributed to the very low student turnout.

PEACE, WAR AND THE CHRISTIAN CONSCIENCE

By Joseph Fabry

A 24-page booklet that traces Christianity's efforts, through 2,000 years, to limit the savagery of war. A balanced, factual picture of positions ranging from almost approval (the Crusades), through limited war (the just-war theory), to Christian pacifism.

"Peace, War and the Christian Conscience" concludes with concrete steps the average individual can take to promote "peace on earth."

In one year, over 500,000 copies in circulation. Single copies are available free from—

Peace Booklet

The Christophers

Department SC

12 East 48th Street

New York, N.Y. 10017

Phone 791-5688

COLLEGE VIEW 66

"Your Car Is Our Business"

A. A. Grady, Jr.

Manager

UNC-W enters debate team ranks

By KAY GREGORY
Staffer

For the first time in its history, UNC-W has a debate team composed of 11 debaters and advised by Mrs. Allan Welch, assistant professor of speech.

"The debaters are really working hard and our record gets better at each tournament," Mrs. Welch stated.

Thus far, the UNC-W Debate Team has traveled to Wake Forest, Stamford University in Alabama, and Wingate Junior College where they won five rounds, defeating Anderson College, Catawba, Lenoir Rhyne and two teams from Georgia Southern. The team will travel to Old Dominion in Virginia Feb. 12-13, and will later travel to the Citadel and several other schools.

This year's topic as issued by the National Forensic Association to all college debate teams in the United States is "Resolved, that the federal government should adopt a program of compulsory wage and price control." The debaters work with this topic all year. In July, the N.F.A. will announce next year's topic.

"We feel that when we participate in different invitational debate tournaments

we are doing more than just debating. We are also helping to publicize UNC-W. While at Wingate, we talked to several students who expressed an interest in transferring here next year, said Mrs. Welch.

Every Wednesday night the debate team meets in the library at 7:00. If anyone is interested in joining the team, he must have at least a C average and may contact either Mrs. Welch or any of the debate team members who include Janice Asbell, Bill Brooks, David Cole, Robert Cox, Keith Farmer, Lee Garris, Mike Glancy, Phyllis Griffin, Patricia McCombie, Glenn Wilson and Debra Yorke.

Laney named Foundation head

Emsley A. Laney of Wilmington has accepted appointment as the first executive director of the Foundation of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Inc.

A member of the Foundation's board of directors for several years, Laney was unanimously selected for the position by his fellow directors. He will serve without pay as administrator of the Foundation's affairs.

"The University is delighted that the Foundation has selected a man of Emsley Laney's qualifications and knowledge to serve in this capacity," UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner said. "I feel that the Foundation will be of immeasurable value to the institution in the days ahead in assisting us in providing the ever-increasing services for which we are responsible."

Crisis Line will try to help

Got something that's bothering you? Want to talk to someone who will listen, help, and be interested? Call CRISIS LINE, 763-3695, any time, and a caring and concerned volunteer, trained to help and to listen, will answer.

Both caller and volunteer remain anonymous, unless the individual wishes to identify himself. All calls remain confidential. Trained to evaluate the nature of the problem, as well as to assist the caller, the volunteer, in some cases, refers the call to a "back up team" of doctors, lawyers, and ministers.

To enable the caller to arrive at the best decisions most helpful to him, individually, is the goal of CRISIS LINE; no instant solutions are offered. CRISIS LINE is a 24 hours-per-day, 7-day-a-week, telephone service available—free—to anyone in difficulty.

"We've had a variety of problems, from loneliness and depression to drug users—but every thing is important to CRISIS LINE," states Mrs. Susan Gustafson, project coordinator. "Support, assistance, and interest are offered while arriving at a solution right for the individual."

At the End of the Line? Call 763-3695, CRISIS LINE. A concerned and willing listener will answer.

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12
Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

NORTH 17
SHOPPING CENTER

Entranced with the Pi Kapp's version of "The Night Before Christmas," these underprivileged youngsters from the greater Wilmington area were entertained prior to Christmas break. Pi Kappa Phi fraternity provided refreshments and Santa brought gifts for all the little ones. (Photo by Al Payne)

Fitzgibbon announces play cast

Cast for Harold Pinter's The Birthday Party has been announced by the University Drama Dept. The play takes place in an English seaside boarding house. Meg and Petey, owners of the boarding house, will be played by Rosalie Hilburn and Paul Teitelbaum. Their boarder, Stanley, will be Doc Clay, and the "charming" neighbor, Lula, is to be played by Catherine Morris. Two strange guests (or intruders) round out the cast; they are McCann and Goldberg, played by Tom Wilson and Bob Peterson, respectively.

The birthday party is a peculiar one, not at all a run-of-the-mill celebration, especially since Meg decides it is Stanley's birthday, although "in actuality it certainly is not," states Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon, play director. "Fascinating, funny, and thought-provoking things happen as the play evolves," she continues.

Harold Pinter, according to Mrs. Fitzgibbon, is one of the most important "modern playwrights. Although he is just turning forty, his plays have already received many honors, including the valued Critic's Circle Award and the award for the best foreign play of the year.

Production dates for The Birthday Party are Mar. 18-21 in the SRO Theatre.

A new magazine designed especially for the social-action oriented individual will begin publication in Jan. '71.

SOL III, as its name implies, will be a world affairs publication with a heavy emphasis on social problems and their solutions.

To encourage reader participation, SOL III is holding a $1000 magazine contest with prizes in writing, poetry, art, photography & humor (write SOL III, 1909 Green St., Phila., Penn.)

$$$$$$$$$

Earn money painlessly on campus by market & travel programs.

For details write with resume to:

Travel Co-ordinator
5 Boyston St.
Caimbridge, Mass.
02138

VISTA dissatisfied with N.A. program

By STEVE COHN
College Press Service
WASHINGTON, C.C. (CPS)

For some time VISTA Volunteers around the country have been dissatisfied with the Nixon Administration's poverty program, or lack of one. Based on their experience in the field, characterized by the frequent absence of the Office of Economic Opportunity's support when organizing efforts challenge local power structures, they claim that the needs of the poor are being sacrificed to political expediency.

In response, the volunteers have formed the National VISTA Alliance (NVA) and are seeking to unionize in order to give the organization more clout when dealing with OEO. Their efforts received a significant boost when the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees committed themselves to aid the Alliance and promised financial assistance in the area of $10,000 for the next 12 months. $2,500 has already been given by the Steelworkers of America. The NVA also has presently received over 1700 union authorizations which, being more than 30 per cent of the 4,200 volunteers, enables them to call for a union election in the near future.

The Alliance was established last July at a Washington meeting attended by 400 Volunteers bearing proxies from another 800. Donald Rumsfeld, who recently resigned as OEO chief, was invited to appear at the meeting but declined. Rumsfeld's office has refused to recognize officially and work with the Alliance; instead, admitting a possible "lack of communications" in VISTA, Rumsfeld established a National Advisory Council of VISTA's. The Alliance termed the effort an attempt to co-opt the volunteers and to create a company union. They noted the group would have only advisory powers and would in fact be appointed by the regional staff and not elected by the volunteers. Indications are that Frank Carlucci, Rumsfeld's successor at OEO, will continue the anti-NVA stance.

Unintentionally, past statements of VISTA's recently-departed acting director, Robert Lane, lend support to the volunteer's in community organizing will be reduced to five per cent, with official discouragement given to confrontation tactics. A catalytic role involving such activities as rent strikes, economic boycotts and peaceful demonstrations, would apparently be considered outside the new VISTA's assignment. Lane commented: "We hope, predict and are striving for a new type of Volunteer..." Perhaps to this end, General Electric, a recent target of the student left with its image of war contractors and attempted strike-breaking, has been awarded the $1.2 million contract to recruit future VISTAs.

The NVA argued that recruitment and training should be handled more directly by the communities involved. The concern for community participation and self determination was incorporated into the Alliance's own structure which seeks to have a majority of its steering committee composed of volunteers who originally were recruited from poor communities.

Tuition and fees for in-state students in North Carolina's colleges and universities continued to increase for the 1970-71 academic year with the exception of the public community colleges.

Tuition and fees for out-of-state students underwent a similar increase. The charges increased 14.9 percent at the public senior institutions, and 10.8 percent at private senior institutions.

SOUTHEASTERN'S STUDENT SPECIAL

Show Your Student ID Card
To Buy At This Price

Complete
Nordmende
Custom
FM/AM/FM
STEREO SYSTEM

Highly sensitive receiver with 35 solid state devices
... housed in smart walnut cabinet with matching full range speakers. Tuning meter & stereo light and tape or phono!

STUDENT
PRICE

$75

REG. $6.95 STEREO
HEADPHONES

Shut out noises for truest stereo enjoyment

FREE

With Purchase
Of Stereo System

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

1002 So. College Rd.
791-7365

Join The Fun Crowd Pizza Inn

4016 Oleander Dr.
Ph. 762-0379 to
Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.
Ph. 762-8456 To
Take Out

Sunday - Thursday
11:00 a.m. to
12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday
11:00 a.m. to
2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday
11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

7th edition

feb. 24, 1971

'Day of the Presidents' slated for Mar. 4 in Kenan Aud.

Tom Bello of Chapel Hill (photo courtesy of C.H. News Bureau).

Draft teach-in planned

Plans are now being completed to set up a draft counseling service in Wilmington. The course will include four teaching sessions and one question-answer session.

Total cost for the course will be approximately five dollars. The five dollars will purchase texts for the course. More detailed information will be available in the near future. Anyone interested should phone Mike Glancy at 799-1238 or see him on campus.

Ky calls for invasion

Washington, D.C. (CPS) — In Saigon last week, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky was speaking publicly of the likelihood of an ARVN invasion of North Vietnam, and 1,500 U.S. Marines landed in the northern section of South Vietnam bolstering a substantial troop buildup south of De-Militarized Zone, in addition to the buildup along the Laotian border 'ready to help against a possible North Vietnamese drive across the DMZ.'

American Broadcasting Co., reported that a dead American wearing a South Vietnamese uniform had been evacuated from inside Laos, and other ABC and CBS newsmen have begun to report seeing scurrying GIs in Vietnamese uniforms in Southern Laos.

Meanwhile U.S. Chief Negotiator David K. Bruce was maintaining that "no American ground combat force or advisers will cross into Laos."

States controversial Cathy Sterling is pictured here in front of Harrelson Hall during the bomb scare last October (photo courtesy of the NCSU student press - TECHNICIAN).

Visitation policy completed

The Administration Council of the Consolidated University of North Carolina adopted a visitation policy Jan. 5. It became effective Feb. 1, and states in part:

"Visitation has to do with having members of the opposite sex in a dormitory room.

"The Following minimum limitations must be incorporated in any undergraduate dormitory visitation program operative at a campus of the University. The hours of visitation shall not exceed: 12 noon to 1 a.m., Sunday through Thursday; 12 noon to 2 a.m., Friday and Saturday. The doors of dormitory rooms being used for visitation shall remain unlocked during such visitation. A "quite hours" rule shall be in effect during such evening housing as the campus administration shall prescribe.

"Subject to the limitations specified in paragraph one, above, it is anticipated that each campus administration will adopt a visitation policy of its own choice. As a part of any such policy, the campus administration may delegate to a specified majority of the occupants of each residential facility or unit the responsibility of establishing visitation policies for the particular facility or unit, provided that no provision of such a policy shall be in conflict with the provisions as may be prescribed by the

Continued on page 3

Short story contest to be held

Again this spring the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest will be held at UNC-W. All UNC-W students are eligible to participate.

First prize will be $100 which is provided by the Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund. The contest is sponsored by the Department of English here at UNC-Wilmington.

Short stories should be turned in to the English Department secretary in Kenan Building, Room 203 (limit two per student). The

"The Day of the Presidents," an informal forum featuring the six student body presidents of the Consolidated University will be held in Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium, at 11:30 March 4.

Bob Wiard has urgently invited all students to attend. "I would like to invite all students to come and participate in the discussion."

The featured speakers will be Cathy Sterling-NC State Student Body President, Tommy Bello-Chapel Hill Student Body President, Lindsay Lamson of UNC-Greensboro, Alan Hickok of UNC-Charlotte, and Bill Coonan of the Asheville, branch.

Cathy Sterling, is NCSU's first female student body president. "Cathy is a very active student leader encouraging students to stand up for their rights. She's very interested in students participating in the administration of the University at all levels," Wiard stated.

Tom Bello of Chapel Hill has captured the attention of his constituents, the administration, and the press and can be described as, an activist student leader.

Bello sees himself as a

Discussions held every Wednesday

"Been to the Forum lately?" "No, not the one in Rome, stupid—the one in Kenan."

Every Wednesday at 11:30 a student forum is held in K-121. Speakers are students from the Persuasive Speech Class. The forum is open for discussion afterwards. Why not go see what it's all about?

proponent of non-violence and identifies with Cesar Chevez and Gandhi.

Lindsay Lamson of UNC-G (first male student body president), "has been trying to fight the old Women's College image," Wiard stated.

Alan Hickok of Charlotte and Bill Coonan of UNC-A have been very active in consolidated university efforts. According to Wiard, "They face problems very similar to ours."

Several other student leaders from the five campuses will attend the forum.

The presidents have worked together this year concentrating their efforts on; visitation policy, general fee policy and the disruptions policy problem.

According to Student Body President Bob Wiard, organizer of the program, "The purpose is to show the students of UNC-W that student government can be an effective instrument if it is taken seriously. We are a consolidated university, why not have a consolidated student government."

In December Bello was selected to receive one of the coveted Rhodes Scholarships for study at Oxford University.

Early system adopted

The Feb. 19 Faculty Meeting proposed that an early exam calendar be adopted next year. Details will be worked out by the calendar committee.

The calendar committee is made of students, faculty, and administration officials. Student members are Bill Brooks-Soph., Helen Skelton-Fr., and Edward Talton-Jr.

Bill Brooks spoke to the faculty Friday, on the subject in an attempt to relay student views on the subject.

lab crowded

What has thirty-two seats and is called K-109? Why the language lab of course!

Reportedly traffic has picked up there this semester—now that several professors are requiring their students to put in a certain number of lab hours a week. 'Course there are those of us who just sign in and sign out again, but in the words of one UNC-W professors', "Helas". (Or that's the way it goes Jean-Pierre.)

Editorials

It seems the '10 points' has generated a recognizable amount of enthusiasm—both pro and con. The stimulation for the 'points' came from a similar series of proposed programs. This similar program is native to the Wilmington area, is a journalistic creation, and enjoys a much wider circulation...dig?

The other program is concerned with such weighty topics as: harbor depth, and increased tourist attraction (for SENCLand).

So much for the stimulation. The 'points' are merely; ten, oversimplified (because of space limitations), long-range, goals—something for the people to look forward to something that smacks of social justice. Perhaps the realization of these goals might very well produce the social stability we all seek. Without some sort of massive reformation of this type violent confrontations like the one Wilmington has just experienced will become commonplace. The 'points' (for the most part) suggest treatment of causes rather than effect.

Several individuals have indulged in absurdities, pointing out, "An ice-pick is a lethal weapon," or "I'm hungry right now!" These statements may be true but they are far from relevant to any meaningful discussion.

We try...

The Seahawk tries to present a just and accurate account of university news. Often, students criticize the staff without realizing that we try to view campus activity objectively, and that we don't slant the news from a one-sided opinion or from one idea. (Editorial contributions and reviews carry either the name or the initials of the author.)

Bd. of trustees holds meeting

The Consolidated University held a board of trustees meeting Monday at 10:30 in Raleigh. The meeting will be held in the North Carolina State Faculty Club.

Governor Bob Scott will be the presiding officer. Lennox Cooper, and William Barfield, of Wilmington are on the board. At the last meeting in November disruptions policy was the primary topic for discussion. Student Body President Bob Wiard will attend the meeting.

And all too often, we receive no news from the groups that complain the most about the lack of coverage of their activities.

Again we stress: If an individual or group has news to be printed, please help us to help you. Print the basic facts (who, what, when, where, why, how) and give them to a staffer or bring them to Room 201 in the Student Services Building.

Also, we will print any letters if the author signs his name. A 200-word maximum length is required because of our space limitations. We reserve the right to proofread any material submitted. (Jcd-71)

William Butler, a young contemporary poet now living and writing in England, read his poetry Monday morning in the Education-Psychology Building auditorium.

Butler has read his poetry throughout England and is now on a tour of campuses in the United States. He was here as a guest of Atlantis, the UNC-W student literary magazine.

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief Jack DiSarno
Sports Editor Greg Walters
Assistant Editors Susan Gabrowski,
Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographer Al Payne
Advisor Thomas Lupton
Staffers Kay Gregory, Pamela
Simpson, Danny Morrison,
Debbie Holden, Timothy Sims,
Ray Buchanan, Zack Sessions,
Fred Ourt, Harold Sterling

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed. Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

"Trouble again, sir. The American-Flag Decal Makers have attacked the Peace-Symbol Sticker Department."

'The War' is absurd

American military involvement in Southeast Asia has been attacked as being immoral. It is immoral, (as are all wars). American involvement in Southeast Asia has been described as being militarily inefficient. Perhaps it is.

The protest most often heard in connection with the conflict, is that the objectives or stated objectives are not worth what the U.S. is paying.

One point of objection that is heard less frequently is the cultural one. U.S. participation in the Indochina War is completely absurd from a cultural standpoint.

The U.S. Army is trying to use military means to solve, what we lie. The U.S. government, feel is a grave problem. Basically our objectives are: 1. defeat of the communists aggressors from the north, 2. defeat of the local communist forces (VC), 3. establishment of a stable, quasi-democratic, pro-American regime in South Vietnam. Of course we have often heard that "we are fighting for the freedom of the people of South Vietnam."

The type of war being fought against the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong is dependent on popular support. This type of support must come from people who are intensely nationalistic. Do the people of South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos exhibit this nationalism. No. The people of these countries like most of the rest of Asia are village people. They are not concerned about national security or SEATO or the front. They are concerned about the rice harvests their village chief and their ancestors.

The Asian concept of time is also much different. Asians do not feel a sense of urgency that Europeans do. The war can drag along for months and years without stimulating any frustration or desire to end it.

These factors should be carefully considered when discussion on the War is resumed.

Along the Neuse

EDITOR'S NOTE: We would like to apologize for not placing this highly pertinent column on page 1.

THOUGHTS WHILE TYPING...wish I could afford one of those new fangled ICBM electric typewriters. Wonder what my sister's girlfriend's nephew, ole cuss is doing??? Somebody told me that just the other day he had discovered the difference between his right hand and his left hand!!!

You know it often makes you wonder what this world's comin to...why when I was a kid pot was something you planted flowers in.

They say Mack the sea gull has seen sprucing up his spring nest already...and its only February!

Should we be freed?

Freedom is a word which is often voiced by our generation usually we are wanting more of it—but it is a concept which I do not think many of us understand. The radical left, and even some of the moderate left, would have us believe that to have freedom is to do what we please, when we please, for as long as we please, in spite of the law or what anyone else's viewpoint may be.

Anyone with the smallest glimmer of intelligence will immediately recognize the fallacy of this concept; it just won't work. History has proven that man must have systems of government, for anarchy destroys him. No man can be totally free-ever to do just as he pleases, because there is his fellowman to consider.

I think that the real problem with those who demand this sort of irresponsible freedom (which is not freedom at all, but slavery to self-interest), is that they want freedom from, but not freedom for. If what we have been freed from does not free us for some other, nobler purpose, then we may as well not have been freed.

For instance, it is rapidly being accepted that pornography and verbal filth must be constantly used in order to assert "free speech". Does freedom from the moral requirements to have proper respect for the human being as a person and not just a body, and to cultivate good speech habits free us for anything but the childish exertion of our sin, lust, and foul mouths.

Freedom is not free. It involves definite responsibilities on the part of the freed; one of which is the demonstration of higher and nobler achievements as the direct result of this freedom. In the future, when we wish to have freedom from something, let us ask ourselves what we are being freed for.

Eastern Airlines has rehired the pilot they fired when he refused to continue dumping excess jet fuel in the air after takeoff. The pilot, William L. Guthrie, said the fuel contributed to air pollution and made runways unnecessarily slick.

Fired October 16, two years before mandatory retirement, Guthrie has been rehired with back pay and given an assignment as environmental and ecology consultant in addition to his Sr. Pilot job.

"Repression never brings the desired results, it only results in a reduction of Freedom." — Sen. W. Brock-Tenn.

STAR CHILD

Beneath Grandfather Sky,
An orphan of space lies—
Bleached ivory teeth
Fill an idiot grin;
And empty sockets
Are all-seeing
The universe
Within and throughout—

Through the yawning jaws
Silent screams echo
The inevitable truth
To an unhearing redwood tree...

And into the mouth of death
Snowflakes flutter
Inside the blackest night...
Constellations
Of a different fahrenheit
Heat an earthly atmosphere
To rival the island galaxies
Of another temperature.
P. Venable

'Piedmont' plays to sparse crowd

By WAYNE ROGERS

"The Piedmont Chamber Orchestra" conducted by Igor Buketoff played to a sparse, but enthusiastic audience in Kenan Auditorium, Thursday, February 18.

Vivaldi's famous "Concerto in D Minor," featuring two solo violins and a chello opened the program.

Orchestral color enhanced the "Sinfonietta," Opus 48 by British composer Malcolm Arnold.

The concert was highlighted by the "first performance in the western hemisphere", as Buketoff explained, of Jon Klusak's "Concerto Grosso" for Woodwind Quintet and Strings. The highly refined piece proved to be a crowd pleaser.

Haydn's 18th century "Symphony No. 7 in C Major" rounded out the program. Woodwind Quintet and a beautiful violin solo were employed here.

UNC-W was quite fortunate in acquiring such a professional group of musicians and the crowd was very appreciative of the fact.

"Piedmont Orchestra" operates under a grant to North Carolina School of the Arts from the Rockefeller Foundation. Its primary purpose is to encourage performers to continue their study, perhaps with the professionals at the School of the Arts of which the bulk of the performers are associated.

Buketoff is currently the Director of the World Music Bank, an international exchange project of contemporary music.

VISITATION

Continued from page 1 campus administration.

"Visitation rules and regulations shall be enforced by student judicial processes; provided, however that should it appear to the Chancellor that the limitations prescribed in paragraph one, above, can not be or are not being enforced effectively through student judicial processes, it shall be the responsibility of the campus administration to enforce such limitations administratively, with provision for appropriate penalties, including, but not limited to, eviction from University housing."

VIBRATIONS, a newsletter including "constructive essays on our views of the problems of the world, how we think, and what we think of" outside society, is now in its fifth issue. It is written, edited, and published by the inmates of the State Correctional Institution in Pittsburgh.

'Sideroads' lead to first prize

Sideroad No. 2, an acrylic and plastic work by Frank Tolar of Wrightsville Beach, was the first prize winner in the ninth lower Cape Fear Art Exhibition which opened recently in Kenan Hall.

Mrs. Mackey Jeffries, artist and art instructor at the North Carolina School of the Arts, was juror for the competition. She selected 61 works by 37 different artists for the exhibition, out of a total of 188 entries by 77 artists representing 22 towns and cities.

The first prize carried a cash award of $100. Second prize, $75, was awarded to Tom Hammond, a former Wilmington resident who now teaches at the University of Georgia, for his intaglio print, "Inlay." The $25 third prize went to Freddie Gaylor of Burgaw, a former UNC-W student, for an acrylic entitled "Green Osmosis."

Given honorable mention were "Grade A Medium," a bronze by Marvin Tadlock of Wilmington, a student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro who formerly studied at UNC-W; "Wrightsville Marsh," a pencil drawing by UNC-W student David Walker of Raleigh; and "Sketch for Sideroad No. 4," a pencil drawing by first prize winner Tolar.

According to Mrs. Jeffries, the entries "show an awareness of present-day movements. It is not a provincial show." She noted that the works demonstrate "an amazing awareness of variety, both in technique and in approach."

The winners were announced at a Sunday afternoon reception which formally opened the exhibition. The show will be open to the public without charge on weekdays through Feb. 26 in the Kenan Hall galleries on campus. Hours are 8:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m.

The competition was open to all residents and natives of the Lower Cape Fear area, including New Hanover, Brunswick, Pender, Onslow, Columbus, Bladen, Sampson, Robeson, Duplin, Cumberland and Carteret counties.

Got any mail lately? Student mail has stacked up in the Alderman Bldg. mail baskets since September. Who knows—you might have another Christmas card.

News From the Castle

The only news from the castle (which is in a terribly boring state) is a poem Funky thought of as he sat freezing one morning on the school commode. "It's a long time 'til Easter, Even longer 'til May. God, how can I stand one more boring day? It's term papers and research papers And other scholarly hullabaloo. Blesses be the day when this semester is through—"

'Conservation News'

Invest in Earth

By ED CHANEY

Reports filtering in through the smog in recent months indicate the powerful banking industry is getting environmental religion. There could scarcely be a more welcome convert to the cause of environmental quality.

First evidence came when the Chemical Bank of New York ran a full-page newspaper ad announcing its plan to make low-cost loans to apartment house owners who need money to install pollution control equipment required by new New York City laws. The ad was a real attention grabber, with a headline reading, "The road to emphysema is paved with good intentions" over a picture of a flower-laden hearse. Apparently the bank really meant business, and a spokesman recently said its loan program was going satisfactorily.

Then a new environmental investment—the earth bond—began to appear. The idea apparently originated with First Pennsylvania Bank of Philadelphia and was adapted to local conditions in Northern Virginia, and perhaps at other banks as well. Earth bonds are sold in several denominations for varying lengths of time. The bank then doubles the amount brought in from bond sales to create a fund available for anti-pollution loans.

The Arlington Trust in Virginia says it is particularly pleased with its two-year, $300 bond. The bank wanted to have a bond small enough that most people could buy and the $3000 bond has been a success in meeting that goal.

On the national level, the American Bankers Association is making plans for environmental programs that it will present to its member state associations.

Most interesting development on the high finance scene is the Bankers Pollution Code created by Maine banker Halsey Smith and promoted by the Maine Natural Resources Council. The code has been signed by about half of the banks of Maine and has been adopted by the bankers associations of Vermont and New Jersey. The Maine NRC also reports that members of the Federal Reserve have commended the program.

The code is very simple. It acknowledges the virtues of economic well being and the necessity of "balancing economic development with the maintenance of the highest quality physical environment and the highest order of human livability."

It pledges that no significant air, land or water pollution will result from activities financed with bank money. The bank also agrees to seek alternative solutions if a project is found to result in pollution and to urge customers who are presently polluters to abate their polluting activities.

It is an important document. Financiers of conscience who enforce its provisions could become a potent force for achieving environmental quality. Maine, Vermont and New Jersey bankers have taken significant steps by adopting the code and can serve as models of professional responsibility to bankers in the 47 remaining states.

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25% PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.00
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

PSYCHEDELIC
SHACK

"Headshop"

1502 Market St.

Phone 762-3917

IF WE DON'T HAVE
it, we may know where to get it...
bookstore

Zullo heads new graduate program

DR. VINCENT ZULLO

Peace Corps offers credit

Brookport, N.Y.—The State University of New York, College at Brookport is looking for students who want to earn college credit while preparing to teach mathematics and science as Peace Corps volunteers in Latin America.

Peace Corps and college officials have announced that the unique Peace Corps-College Degree program at Brookport will be extended with the admission of a fifth group of candidates in June, 1971.

"We want to learn to develop resources as well as to use them," stated Dr. Victor A. Zullo, professor of biology, about the environmental sciences graduate program, tentatively to begin next year at UNC-W.

The program, first of its kind in the UNC-W campus, will stress training in research at the graduate level. A student completing the graduating study will receive a Master of Sciences Degree.

Dr. Zullo is presently working the curricula for the program. He was asked to head the graduate study by the Environmental Sciences Steering Committee, formed two years ago to develop such a program. The Committee was formed by chairman of biology, chemistry, geography, geology, and physics departments along with the administration.

Requirements for acceptance into the graduate school are the standard requirements set by the Southern Association, and include having a Bachelor's Degree in biology, chemistry, physics, or the earth sciences, having a grade B average or better in major subjects and having a satisfactory Graduate Examination Score.

Plans for the future include construction of a Marine Sciences and Oceanology Building on campus where facilities will be available to the under-graduate student and to the community, as well as to the graduate student.

Violations pose ticket troubles

In response to the increasing frequency of traffic violations at UNC-W, campus police have been forced to crack down on violating students. More than thirty-five traffic tickets were issued Monday morning, February 8, the first day of the enforcement efforts. Since then, tickets have been issued on a steady basis in an effort by campus police to insure an orderly flow of traffic and parking.

Officer Smith of the campus police stated, "We've bent over backwards in trying to avoid giving tickets, but we had to crack down!"

Most of the first offense violators were excused with a patient explanation and a fair warning.

The majority of the tickets were issued for parking in the traffic lanes in Lot E, located behind the cafeteria building. As chief of Campus Police Dillon explained, "The problem is that everyone wants to get as close as he can to his class." Chief Dillon went on to say that just so many students could park in Lot E and that some would have to park a little farther away.

There are an estimated 1800 students attending UNC-W at present. A very high percentage of these students drive. Even so, there are more than enough spaces on campus to easily accommodate them all.

Chief Dillon said that the only time UNC-W has been in a near overflow situation was during the spring quarter last year. However, this past summer emergency appropriations were made, and the large area off Riegel Road by the tennis courts was temporarily paved during this past semester.

This makeshift parking area costing $7,000 added approximately 350 spaces. Most recently, about thirty spaces in the small visitors parking lot directly in front of the cafeteria has been restored to student use. Twenty-two spaces were added to the rear of Lot E.

All of these new spaces brings the total to approximately 2,000. Each of UNC-W's 1800 students can easily find a space and reach class within minutes.

Academy awards grants to UNC-W science research

By DEBBIE HOLDEN
Staffer

The North Carolina Academy of Science has awarded grants to three students for research in their respective fields. Students receiving awards were: in chemistry, under Dr. Jack Levy, Gary Wayne Whitehead and Courland Symmes, Jr. and in biology, under Dr. Daniel Plyer, Wayne Shew.

These grants are decided by submission of proposals from the students. There are no particular grade or class requirements, although a letter must be submitted along with the proposals by the sponsor or a member of the faculty.

With these grants, students are able to work with a relatively new class of chemical compounds never prepared before. These compounds are of particular interest as precursors to potential drugs.

Dr. Levy and the students feel that research is very valuable to the student's education. While these grants are now limited to the students, Dr. Levy hopes that they will increase greatly in the future for further research use.

Span. poetry

Dr. Antolin Gonzalez-del-Valle, professor of Spanish, has done a critical study of the poems of Damasco Alonso, president of the Royal Spanish Academy, which has been published by the magazine of modern languages "Circulo" of New York.

Dr. Gonzalez-del-Valle did the study in collaboration with his son, Luis, who is studying for his Ph. D. at the University of Massachusetts.

fireside favorite

Sansui AM/FM Stereo

Receiver for 120 Watts of Stereophonic
Perfection

So advanced, flexible, and versatile it will be the nucleus of the most complete music system for years to come. Controls two separate stereo speaker systems. . . Provisions not only for phono, tape, auxiliaries, but has extra connections for recording & playback using two tape recorders Every sophistication possible.

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

1002 So. College Rd.
791-7365

Join The Fun Crowd

Pizza Inn

4016 Oleander Dr.
Ph. 762-0379 to
Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.
Ph. 762-8456 To
Take Out

Sunday - Thursday
11:00 a.m. to
12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday
11:00 a.m. to
2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday
11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON CLASS RINGS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Paid Advertisement
FREE INFORMATION.
LOW COST, SAFE, LEGAL
ABORTION
IN NEW YORK
SCHEDULED IMMEDIATELY
(212) TR 7-8562
Certified Abortion Referral
All Inquiries Confidential

Cars stolen during concert

The U.N.C.W. campus police have reported two cars stolen on February 4, the night of the Association Concert, while they were parked on the campus parking lots. The cars, both 1964 Chevrolets, have since been recovered by the Sheriff's Department of New Hanover County.

Mr. James Early Chestnut of Rt. 1 Warsaw, the owner of one of the cars, said that a tape player and approximately thirty tapes were taken when his car was stolen. The owner of the second car, Mr. Dureme Gurganious Richardsorbt 3934 Princess Place Drive in Wilmington, also reported a tape player and twenty tapes taken.

Chief Dillon of the campus police said one of the major reasons for stolen cars was the failure of owners to lock them. Therefore, for safer protection of your automobiles and valuables he advises to lock your car at all times because a thief will think twice before taking the time and trouble to steal a locked car. Both Mr. Chestnut and Mr. Richardson informed the security police that their cars were locked.

Batts, Tiedeman join physics dept.

By KAY GREGORY

Johnny Batts, Jr., and Dr. John Tiedeman joined the UNC-W faculty this semester as physics instructors.

Mr. Batts attended North Carolina Central University and later did graduate study at Washington University in St. Louis, where his studies were interrupted by the draft. He recently completed his military duty before coming to Wilmington.

While attending Washington University, Mr. Batts and several colleagues gained recognition for their extensive research with pulsed ultrasound, a technique used in finding lesions in the head. This research has proved to be a sound clinical technique.

Along with sports and meeting new people, Mr. Batts lists traveling as one of his favorite hobbies. He has visited many countries in Europe, including Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Greece, and Turkey; he cites Athens, Greece, as his favorite city because he got to know the people and their culture so well.

When asked his opinion of UNC-W thus far, Mr. Batts stated, "I have found this school to have a pleasant atmosphere. The people I have met have been both warm and friendly."

Dr. Tiedeman received a B.S. and a M.S. in Physics from Union College and his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia, where he also taught. He later taught at UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Greensboro, the U.S. Naval Academy and the U.S. Naval Post Graduate School at Monterey, California.

A member of the American Physical Society, the Philosophical Society of Washington, Sigma XI and Phi Gamma Delta, Dr. Tiedeman has of late been concerned with the operations

Dorm on schedule, accepting applicants

By JANE DIVINE
Assistant Editor

Accepting students on a first-come, first-serve basis, the dorm will be completed, furnished, and will open next fall. $50 deposit is required and should be paid to Dean Brown or Dean Cheek. Six floors will house 400 students; 200 men will reside the bottom three floors, and the top three floors will house women.

Programmed elevators to eliminate floor confusion will carry riders to either the first three floors or the top floors. Resident counselor(s) will live on the first floor. The facilities are suitable for a couple to live in as counselors, as well as a single counselor. "On each floor," states Dean Brown, "there will be a student counselor who will help with program planning. There's a lot of things 400 people can do, and this planning is a major part of what these student counselors will help do."

Everything but the desk chairs will be built into the building. Centering the color scheme around the theme "the beach", colors are predominately bright green and blue. However, red, orange, maize, and black will be utilized frequently through analysis of naval missions and in particular, with anti-submarine warfare. This interest has lead to the development of large scale digital computer models used to assess the adequacy of existing and proposed naval forces.

Dr. Tiedeman served the Navy in World War II and was active in the Naval Reserve until his retirement, holding the rank of Captain.

Also interested in sports, Dr. Tiedeman held the college record for the 100 and 200 yard dash for over 30 years, and was Middle Collegiate Athletic Association Champion in both events.

the building. Modern furniture from Hughes-Rankin has already been purchased and is ready to be placed in the residence hall. "Good lighting and security will be placed between the dorm and the main compass," stated Dean Brown, who said that no regulations have been decided yet. He hinted toward a tendency of no visitation curfew, but again stated "This is by no means official. If this plan effects, the building will be locked at night, and entrance will be gained only by the security guard."

Bob Walton, assistant business manager, said the building is on schedule. When asked about the outcome of the Student Services Building, since the snack bar will be closed, he said no plans have been made.

Dean Brown said vending machines will probably be placed where the snack bar now is. Student Bookstore will remain the Student Services Building, but "hopefully will be enlarged," states Mrs. Pat Gaskins, manager. "Student Government, organizations such as the newspaper and yearbook, and Panhellenic groups will probably have offices in the building," concluded the dean.

Greek Lines

By PHIL KELLER

TAU KAPPA EPSILON — Flash from the greatest show on earth. Thank God it's not Prohibition as bathtub gin and blazing guns ushered in the Roaring 20's and the TEKE's got massacred prior to St. Valentine's Day. Much hair and sleep were lost as several of the brothers were called up to play army to the tune of standing on street corners with M-1 rifles.

If anyone owns stock in a napkin company they can expect large dividends this quarter because the brothers used 31,000 in their homecoming float and "floated" along to first place in the funeral.

The four TEKE's of the wrestling team are looking forward to some competition in the district tournament after the four have compiled a 17 win, 3 loss record in district matches. It's been a great year but the best is yet to come.

ALPHA DELTA UPSILON — Closed out the fall semester with a successful basketball record—a three way tie for fourth place.

It has been a prosperous year for the Greeks as they have taken all the awards offered. Alpha Delta Upsilon is among the leaders in this category and has received three awards in all; they were: the most original float in the homecoming parade, a tie for the cheerleaders school spirit award with TKE, and the IFC scholarship trophy for having the highest QP average for the fall semester.

Alpha Delta Upsilon has more to offer than just parties. They offer a common goal toward scholarship achievement, a total and lasting friendship, and rounded our social life. They not only offer these values to the male student, but also the female student through the sisterhood program.

PI KAPPA PHI — A very successful rush was enjoyed with a lot of hard work going to the effort by the brothers. A total of 12 new brothers were initiated, 6 undergraduate and 6 alumni. The new undergraduate brothers are: Gerel Whitman, Bill Saunders, Jack Kelly, Duane Millard, Bruce Fallen, and Carl Larson. Mark Downing was recently elected "Warden."

Pictured here is Johnny Batts, the first Black faculty member at UNC-W. Dr. Tiedeman, who recently joined the Physics Dept. could not be located to be photographed. (photo by Al Payne).

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

COLLEGE STUDENT'S POETRY ANTHOLOGY

THE NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

Announces Its

SPRING COMPETITION

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

April 10

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred by the Board of Judges, because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PR

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS
3210 Selby Avenue, Wilmington, N.C. 28403
The new building was only faulty wiring.

Five-year-olds sing, play, and teach, bringing education majors classroom practice and experience. Observational classroom in the Ed-Psych Building opened Feb. 15, and offers kindergarten-size facilities. (Photo by Al Payne)

Al Kooper reminisces 'Short Shorts' days

Al Kooper got his start in rock 'n' roll at 13 (1957), as a member of the Royal Teens. He played guitar and sang. The group's big hit was "Short Shorts." Both Kooper and rock have come a long way since then.

Almost a decade later, Kooper switched to organ and played on record sessions with Bob Dylan—something he still does, on occasion. He also was a member of Dylan's "electric" group at the Newport

Folk Festival in 1965. Kooper, however, is probably best known as the key organizer of Blood, Sweat and Tears, during what he terms his "Jazz Period."

The primary inspirational source for the initial edition of BS&T was the band led by Canadian jazz trumpet virtuoso Maynard Ferguson from 1960 through 1965. "The Ferguson band was the only band I could tolerate—the others seemed quite corny," Kooper recalls.

The first appearance of Blood, Sweat and Tears—or, more specifically, the nucleus of the group, the rhythm section: bassist Jim Flieder, guitarist Steve Katz, drummer Bobby Colomby and Kooper—was at the Greenwich Village club, Cafe a Go Go. The gig was a success and the search was on for the horn players that would bring the band its identity.

"We went through an awful lot of them because there were just no horn players in rock," Kooper explains. "Nobody had ever done this before, adding horns to the basic rock band. But we finally did get the right people, some with conservatory training, who could do what was necessary."

After rehearsing for about two months, the band opened at the A Go Go opposite the Moby Grape. Soon thereafter, Columbia signed BS&T. The first album, part successful in Kooper's opinion, was released, motivating further interest in this new concept unit.

A man always involved in multiple projects, Kooper has broken out into several new areas. He formed his own 15 piece outfit which wasn't commercially successful. "I lost my shirt," he said. Kooper also became identified with the Columbia "super sessions," in a production capacity, performing with Mike Bloomfield and Steve Stills, among others.

He continues to play on Bob Dylan's record sessions. Recently he did a studio date in London with the Rolling Stones: "I went to England because I had been in the studio for two months. I just wanted to get away from all that. But when they called me, I figured it was the kind of thing you can't turn down. While there, I played on a Joe Cocker session—so I had to run back to America, to get some rest."

Kooper added: "I used to really enjoy playing with different people, which came from being a studio musician. It's a big challenge to your musicianship to try to play somebody else's music the way they want you to play it. I enjoy doing that more than anything else."

Kooper is deeply involved in producing at Columbia, anything from himself, the jazz of Don Ellis' big band to singer Tim Rose. He is proud of the fact that Columbia took a chance with him, a rock artist.

"I didn't know if they were going to buy it because in their eyes, I was a kind of freak. Not very business oriented," he reports. "But I was real happy when they bought it because it's a set-up for people like me. More than just for me—when Jerry Garcia gets tired of being in the Grateful Dead, it will be a lot easier for him to walk into Reprise and get a gig because Columbia gave me my gig."

His producing job recently led to a Hollywood visit to compose the score for the film The Landlord. What's Kooper into now? He works with his own piano-bass-drums trio and recently cut an album with Denny Cordell and a 10-piece girl vocal group behind him.

He's come a long way from "Short Shorts."

By Ian Dove, BMI

FRESNO, Calif. (CPS) — Culminating what has been termed a "political purge" by Asst. Prof. Everett Frost, 14 professors including Dr. Eugene V. Zumalt, chairman of the English Department, and Frost were either fired or given one-year terminal contracts at Fresno State College.

P's

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

Introducing
our new improved
warning:

By Act of Congress, the above warning must be placed on all cigarettes manufactured for sale in the United States on or after November 1, 1970

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
EDUCATION AND WELFARE
Public Health Service

This space contributed as a public service

Domestic & Imported Beers
•
Live Entertainment
•
Sound Movies
Cartoons

George McGovern favors an immediate unilateral withdrawal

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — An interview with Senator George McGovern by Steve Cohn of College Press Service.

INTRODUCTION: Sen. George McGovern, as his secretary is quick to inform a visitor, occupies the Senate office formerly assigned to John F. Kennedy, and its walls and shelves are filled with photographs and other memorabilia that give the room a JFK-RFK presence. Also well-represented is Abraham Lincoln, with a portrait, three small statues and desk condensation of his writings.

This is the context of the McGovern presidential candidacy, finding its political perspective in the liberal tradition of the Democratic Party, and its ultimate grounding in simple principles of human decency.

What emerges from the interview is the fact that the Senator feels very deeply concerned about the war and about poor people in this country. He approaches these issues from almost a common-sense perspective, and seems to reject ideological explications and solutions for them, denying the argument that foreign intervention and domestic inequality are deeply rooted in the U.S. "free enterprise" system. He speaks for a foreign policy that would seek to actively coexist with communist nations, and sees no economic contradictions in this.

Analysis . . .

At home, he talks in terms of radically reordered priorities. The cultural politics of the student movement—with its quest for community and alternate life-styles—is a far less urgent question than the immediate needs of the poor. He claims that liberal politics can speak to these needs.

The aura of power and politics that you would expect to surround a presidential candidate does not accompany McGovern. His presence is that of a good man, and it is an impression that grows after leaving his office.

CPS: I'd like to ask you how you feel about a specific proposal built along the following lines: An American commitment to immediate withdrawal and an end of support for the Thieu-Ky regime, coupled with an NLF and North Vietnamese agreement to a cease fire. Discussions to secure the release of POWs and to guarantee the safe withdrawal of U.S. troops...leading towards a provisional coalition government which would hold democratic elections open to all the South Vietnamese, and an agreement that would guarantee the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia.

McGOVERN: Perfect...

CPS: I ask because this is basically the Peoples Peace Treaty as negotiated by representatives of the U.S. National Student Association with students from both Vietnam. The point of this gesture was in part to demonstrate to the American people, as you have said, that the terms for an honorable peace exist. Given the fact that these proposals are said by reliable sources to be close to the official position of the North Vietnamese and the NLF, would you consider going to Paris yourself to meet with them, and to bring back to America a similar document indicating what type of peace is available if we could but choose it...

McGOVERN: I went to Paris two years ago and I talked to the head of the North Vietnamese delegation...They told me at that time that there were two conditions that we had to meet in order to get negotiations started that would end the war. The first is to agree to the withdrawal of all of our forces and the second is to withdraw support from the Thieu-Ky regime...I personally think those are reasonable requests...Your question of whether I would go back to Paris seems to imply that they would tell me something different now than two years ago. I don't see any change...I fully accept the proposal as you described it. I think it is a feasible and workable solution which could be negotiated by the President of the United States within 30 days time...

CPS: Senator, would you be in support of the planned April 24th demonstration in Washington?

McGOVERN: ...From the practical standpoint I question what the impact of those demonstrations is on public opinion anymore. I participated in both the mobilization and the moratorium a year or so ago, and I was disappointed in the impact they had on public opinion. Its hard to keep somebody from standing up and waving a Viet Cong flag and unfortunately that's what the television networks focus on. It leaves the implication that nobody is against the war except for a few extreme radicals and Viet Cong sympathizers, whereas when the polls are taken it shows that the American people overwhelmingly oppose the war...

CPS: South Vietnamese troops have invaded Laos with American tactical support. There is a massive U.S. presence literally hovering over the combat in Cambodia. Do you foresee a Senate attempt to expand the Cooper-Church Amendment to preclude unequivocally any American participation in the fighting in these two countries?

McGOVERN: What I would hope is that we could not only do that with the Cooper-Church Amendment...but that we would go beyond that to the McGovern-Hatfield Amendment which terminates all military operations in Indochina...The heart of the problem is that the United States is fundamentally mistaken in intervening in a revolutionary struggle in Southeast Asia.

CPS: Senator, given your strong and documented support of legislation to end the war, have you ever considered using the filibuster to accomplish that in terms of the military appropriations bill?

McGOVERN: Yes, I have, and before this current discussion about the change of Rule 22 is over I am going to serve notice on the Senate floor that if the filibuster continues in its present form, that is the two-thirds rule, that people who favor it are going to see it used against them, and against the war. In other words, if we can't pass the McGovern-Hatfield Amendment in the Senate this year, at a time when 73 percent of the American people have said in a most recent Gallup poll that they want it passed, then I'm prepared to use the filibuster against appropriations to continue the war.

CPS: Do you believe that the volunteer army concept threatens to put too much power in the hands of the military...and wouldn't a volunteer army produce enlisted ranks composed even more disproportionately of the poor and the blacks...

McGOVERN: I don't buy either one of those assumptions. I think that we ought to go back to a voluntary system...that's been the traditional American way of recruiting military manpower. The danger of a military takeover comes when the civilians quit doing their job as the responsible managers of the military. If the President, the Secretary of Defense, and the Congress of the United States will abide by the Constitution...we can head off the danger of a military takeover whether we have a voluntary army or we have a draft. With regard to the all black (all Puerto Rican, all Mexican-American or whatever term you want to use to describe the composition of the volunteer force) army, I think that right now under the draft system you have a disproportionate percentage of black and poor people in the armed forces. By going to a volunteer system at least you would pay those people a living wage and you would have to compete in the open market for support and enlistments.

CPS: The President has proposed a military budget of 77½ billion dollars, aside from Indochina expenses. Where do you believe this huge sum can be reduced?

McGOVERN: Well, it can be reduced by cutting out a new generation of weapons that we don't really need. Included in that 77 billion dollars is the ABM that we don't need, the MIRV system which we don't need...included is a new Cadillac air-conditioned tank which we don't need, included is several billion dollars in new expenditures for the Navy that go beyond any real security needs, included is the new B-1 bomber (which before it is fully constructed will probably cost 12-15 billion dollars). Those are all things that go beyond any reasonable defense needs. Also included is the assumption that we are going to maintain indefinitely 300,000 soldiers in Western Europe (with 211,000 dependents) at a cost of some 14 billion dollars a year.

CPS: Do you think the (Democratic party reform) provisions have a chance of getting through...and will they be enough to head off the formation of a third party on the left?

McGOVERN: I think with all of its faults the Democratic party is far and away the most hopeful instrument of change in this country...and I'm going to invest my energies and resources on that assumption.

Dean Brown is the new financial aid director; replacing Mr. Lane, who is now teaching in the P.E. dept. In billboard talk, "You're now the VIP at A-113."

Some thought it was a bomb scare but others knew it was only faulty wiring causing the fire alarms to ring in the Administration building.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importer"

Reed's

27 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts

*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

Phone 791-5886

COLLEGE VIEW 66

"Your Car Is Our Business"

A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

Debate team places second

The debate team participated in the annual tournament at Old Dominion University February 12-13. Twenty-three teams competed in the event in two divisions, varsity and novice. The topic of debate, determined for the entire year by the American Forensic Society, was "Compulsory Wage-Price Controls."

The UNC-W team of Keith Farmer and Patti McCombie finished 5-1 in the regular rounds of debate, won their semi-final round against Randolph-Macon, then lost a 2-1 decision to Richmond to finish second in the novice division.

The other Wilmington team, consisting of Bill Brooks and Fred Ourt, finished with a 3-3 record.

McCombie and Farmer tied for second for speaker honors with 118 points. In the individual events Janice Asbell was a finalist in oral interpretation, reading some of the death poetry by Christina Rossetti. Keith Farmer reached the finals in extemporaneous speaking.

According to Mrs. Welch, the team's advisor, the next tournament will be at The Citadel, beginning Feb. 26.

15 due for paddlin'

Paintsville, Ken. (CPS) — Fifteen girls in Paintsville, Kentucky, will have to submit to paddlings before they can re-enter school. This punishment was proclaimed after they wore pantsuits to school last January 27 during near-zero weather.

The school has already refused to allow girls to wear pants on cold days, after being requested earlier to change the policy. So, the principal said, the girls were guilty of a "deliberate rules violation". He then told them to go home and not to return until they were willing to be paddled.

(CPS) — A wave of student strikes and demonstrations began across the country recently in reaction to revelations that U.S., Thai and South Vietnamese forces have invaded Laos.

Washington spokesmen have broken the news blackout to specify the "limited" nature of the Laos invasion, and repeatedly emphasized that only Saigon troops are involved—with air and artillery support from U.S. troops massed along the Laotian border. The Laotian action—in the southern section of the Ho Chi Minh trail, and huge massings of U.S. troops along the Laotian border and the De-Militarized Zone—is being billed by U.S. officials as a "protective measure" designed to "speed up the withdrawal of U.S. troops." The Laotian government has lodged a complaint with the United Nations. Hanoi sees the action as a direct invasion threat.

In a press conference in Washington, D.C. Monday morning, spokesmen for several national anti-war groups urged that the demonstrations be seen as the starting point for a series of prolonged anti-imperialist campaigns throughout the spring. The New University Conference, the Peoples' Coalition for Peace and

FREE PRESS declares war

Detroit, Mich. (CPS) — THE DETROIT FREE PRESS, a part of the Knight newspaper chain, called for the legalization of marijuana in a February 5 editorial, and "an all-out war on heroin."

"Admit that the campaign to suppress marijuana by outlawing it is a failure, and has diverted society's spotlight from more serious drug problems. Then act accordingly," the newspaper said.

The full page devoted to examination of drug problems also cited the legalization of heroin as a possibility if other forms of treatment do not work. Junkies would not be forced to become criminals under this plan, and "it would drop the bottom out of the illegal heroin market, thereby discouraging production."

'Bang,' an oil by Wanda Wooten, reflects the stars and stripes theme being expressed by many contemporary painters. The painting is just one of many impressive pieces now hanging in Kenan Hall. The pieces make up the Lower Cape Fear Art show. The show is open to the public.

Laos invasion brings wave of strikes, demonstrations

Justice (successor to New Mobe), the National Student Association, Women's Strike for Peace, and Clergy and Layman Concerned About the War, all supported the call to begin demonstrations.

In Washington the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam and the National Association of Student Governments joined in supporting the national mobilization.

HANOVER CLEANERS

ANNOUNCING WILMINGTON'S FIRST DISCOUNT DRY CLEANERS!

COMPARE THESE PRICES! ! !

SUITS (2 pc.)
DRESSES (plain)
PANT SUITS

$1⁰⁹ PLUS TAX INS.

PANTS • COATS (Sport)
SKIRTS (Plain) • SWEATERS • BLOUSES

55¢ PLUS TAX INS.

SHIRTS ON HANGERS

25¢ PLUS TAX

5544 OLEANDER DRIVE

ACROSS FROM THE SHOPPING CENTER

HANOVER CLEANERS

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

8th edition

march 10, 1971

'Day of the President' held March 4

Mar. 4, UNC-W had The Day of the Presidents, student body leaders were on campus for a special program held in Kenan Auditorium. Speakers were SGA presidents from the consolidated University System. They were Cathy Sterling, NCSU; Lindsay Lamson, UNC-G; and Alan Hickok of UNC-Ch. Tommy Bello of UNC-CH was detained and unable to be present, as was Bill Coonan, president of UNC-A's student government.

The Day of the Presidents was a program open to a 11 students to ask questions about policies, problems, and to exchange ideas with other campuses. Despite Pres. Bob Wiard's plea, for attendance, very few people attended the program. Those that did come, however, showed good response and asked numerous questions which kept the discussion going longer than anticipated.

A lengthy discussion evolved about residence. Halls, Cathy Sterling is not in favor of dorms due to their upkeep and their potential to become a "burden on the back of the university." Cathy stated that she was all for "getting out of the housing business."

Lindsay Lamson, on the other hand, was in favor of residence halls, so long as they are a "live and learn situation."

Much discussion on dorm rules was heard: all the speakers agreed that the students should be the rule-makers, as they are the ones directly involved.

The evaluation of courses and faculty was also discussed. According to Alan Hickok these had a good response from students on the UNC-C campus. The results are to be published in the future in booklet form, called "The Exterminator." This will allow the students to see the results of these evaluation sheets. Teacher evaluation has also been initiated on the UNC-G campus but the results are not published and are kept from the students.

As to government, Cathy Sterling wants to see more faculty-student administration; co-operation however, she states, "there is a slowness in State accepting this new way... Changing attitudes is what we're all about this year."

Lindsay Lamson believes in students "increasing their power" and having more to do with the government.

The talk then turned specifically to the Senate. Cathy Sterling said the Senate is really not pertinent to University government. They are more or less an advisory board rather than a governing one. She made specific reference to her own Senate at State, saying that everything the Senate had done this year could have been decided without them.

Bob Wiard hopes to see the Senate working closer together and more responsibilities being "shed" to the students. He hopes to see students taking a larger and more active part in the government of this campus.

Wiard brought the issue of fees into the discussion. Wiard pointed out that Cathy Sterling has composed a lengthy report concerning the costs on her own campus. All three speakers want prices that are within reach of the students. They want the students to pay for what they receive, but they also want the students to receive what they have paid for.

With many questions being asked, Wiard finally had to call for an adjournment. The guest speakers were readily answering questions from interested students.

The presidents of the various campuses all have a common goal... to see all the branches of the UNC under a consolidated government and working closer together than ever before. "It will take hard work," they agreed. "It will take a long time. It will take people—people who are concerned and will work."

(L-R) Alan Hickok (UNC-C), Lindsay Lamson (UNC-G), and Cathy Sterling (NCSU). — (Photo by Al Payne)

Student - teacher evaluation planned

By SUSAN BAGROWSKI

A student-teacher evaluation program is in the planning at UNC-W. Brian Black, chief organizer for the program said, "The number one goal of the program is to help the university."

Students will fill in evaluation forms on their teachers. This will let a teacher know where he stands, and if he is "coming across." The program hopes to help both students and teachers.

"Everything is now basically in the ground state," stated Black. But he hopes students will be given ten minutes at the beginning of a class period to fill out the forms. The forms will not have to be signed.

The next step is for the forms to be viewed by a committee of five students (Kirk Brown, Keith Farmer, Helen Skeleton, Bill Marlowe, Brian Black) and five faculty members (Dr. Thomas V. Moseley, Dr. Gerald Shinn, Col. Joseph Dunn, Dr. Daniel Pleyer, Dr. Barbara Greim) This committee was chosen as a cross section of students and faculty. After being reviewed by the committee, copies of the results will be sent to the faculty who have been evaluated, the chancellor, and the dean of faculty.

Anyone interested in helping with the surveys are asked to contact Brian Black.

Taylor, Holston receive student teacher honors

By KAY GREGORY

Junior Brenda Taylor and Senior George Holston were recently selected Mr. and Miss Student Teachers by the UNC-W Student North Carolina Association of Educators.

Though not actually having student taught already, Brenda and George were chosen on qualities including leadership, scholarship, personality and contributions to SNCAE. They will attend the annual North Carolina Association of Educators Convention in Charlotte, April 24.

"Brenda and George, along with the other Mr. and Miss Student Teachers of North Carolina, will be honored at a luncheon on Friday and will attend other functions throughout the weekend," stated Mrs. Betty Stike, Assistant Professor of Education and Advisor of the UNC-W SNCAE.

An elementary education major in the K-3 program, Brenda is the current President of SNCAE and is listed in WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES. As to the benefits of SNCAE, Brenda commented, "This organization has definitely helped me understand the role of an educator." Brenda cites sewing, singing and cooking as her hobbies and hopes to student teach in the spring of 1972.

Also listed in WHO'S WHO, George has a double major in history and Spanish. First semester he taught Spanish at Chestnut Junior High School. "I enjoyed it, as the kids were no trouble at all," said George. Listing tennis, chess, bridge and bowling among his hobbies, George hopes to teach in the North Carolina school system next year.

Between 5000 and 6000 NCAE members attend the annual convention. During the all expense paid trip, Brenda and George will have the opportunity to meet principals, superintendents and classroom teachers active in NCAE.

County science fair to be here

Entries are now being accepted from schools throughout Southeastern North Carolina for the 1971 Southeastern District Science Fair, to be held Saturday, March 27, on campus.

Dr. Louis H. Adcock, associate professor chemistry, is serving as director of the fair, which last year drew more than 60 entries.

Competition will be conducted in two divisions, Junior for seventh, eighth and ninth graders and Senior for senior high students

Editorials

Gun-control is needed

Americans are a violent people. Violence was part of the "Spirit of '76," and it is now one of our most serious social problems. Hostility is everywhere today. It dominates television, and movie screenplays, it serves as the driving force in athletics, and now it is even influencing fashion—take note of the urban-guerilla craze.

The main theme of the 1970 elections was the law-and-order issue, but few meaningful solutions materialized during the campaign. Of course the crime we are speaking of is violent crime—homicide, assault, armed robbery. This type of crime has virtually terrified every metropolitan area in the country.

What has been done to try to prevent and control the situation? Police departments have been enlarged, increased patrols in the high-crime neighborhoods have been initiated, and police have been issued more efficient weapons. In the DC area "preventive detention," and the "no-knock policy," have been implemented with little success.

Perhaps former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark had the right idea when he stated that violent crime is a result of the extreme in our society. He held that poverty, ignorance, political alienation, and racial strife are the most basic causes. These are problems that can and will be remedied but it will take time.

Is there anything that can be done now to speed up the process? There is a large school of sociologists, criminologists, and political leaders that feel weapon availability is a most important factor. They agree gun-control is a partial answer. The factual evidence supporting their position is very impressive.

In June 1968 a presidential fact-finding commission was created to study the problem of domestic violence. President Nixon asked the commission to continue their work. The Final Report of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence was published in December 1969. Chapter 7 "Firearms and Violence," demonstrates a close relationship between increasing firearm possession and rising violent crime rates (murder, armed robbery, and assault). According to the commission's findings handguns are used in a vast majority of the crimes in which people are injured or killed with lethal weapons.

As of 1968 twenty-four million handguns were in the hands of civilians. Sales of handguns has quadrupled since 1963. During the period from 1960 to 1967 411 police officers were killed, 96 per cent with handguns.

These statistics are alarming but more than statistics is needed to understand the problem.

Long guns can not be neglected when considering measures to prevent crime but they are used much less often. Long guns were used in the 14 per cent of the reported aggravated assaults (1967—large U.S. cities). Handguns were used in 92 per cent of the murders reported and 96 per cent of the armed robberies.

One should note that violent crime is virtually unheard of in some countries. Sweden and England are two good examples. In both countries the populace is unarmed and violent crime is a rarity. Recently American organized crime has made a small number of firearms available in England and a slight rise in violence has resulted.

Handguns should be outlawed in the U.S. (except for police). This would be a difficult and time consuming project but would be worth the effort.

Letters to the Editor

UNC-W lacking

To the Editor,
UNC-W as a "university," seems to be sadly lacking in a university-type, intellectual atmosphere. There are no significant discussion groups gathering to discuss and debate ideas, knowledge, and questions of current concern.

The Pub, small as it is, should be used for a more enlightening purpose than eating crackers and planning an exciting bowling party for Saturday night. With all the controversial issues on campuses around the nation, it is shameful that our campus can appear so apathetic and still deserve the title "University."

True, there are stands taken by some concerned fraternities and a very few interested individual groups but the attitude of the majority of the student body appears to be mostly one of disinterest.

On analysis, the problem seems to be, not adverse climatic conditions giving rise to a "rainy-day effect" but disunity caused by individuals concerned only with a passing grade. Should we worry about making a decent grade first, then about learning how to deal with our world and people? It seems that our first interest should be in the obtaining of knowledge—the seeking of Truth, not in the artificial and

TEN POINTS

1. tougher legislation and strict enforcement of existing anti-pollution legislation
2. increased governmental intervention in population control
3. immediate unilateral withdrawal from Southeast Asia
4. free food stamps for all hungry Americans
5. establishment of a billion-dollar federal job-corps for low-income Americans
6. income-tax reform providing for a real graduated system
7. drastic reduction in defense-spending
8. federal legislation outlawing possession of lethal weapons
9. complete reform of the American judicial and penal systems, with crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation as their goal
10. defeat of the Agnew-Nixon Administration in '72

hypocritical scrambling for a grade.

The problem is ultimately left up to the individual to decide for himself and then to approach others to form a group. Perhaps, in time, groups, in the quest of knowledge through the intellectual exchange of ideas, can attract teachers to participate and invite speakers to further the enlightenment. In this way it may be possible for UNC-W to become a responsible, enlightened and concerned campus deserving of the title University.

Carlos Poole

New system or new people?

Karl Marx left us a great legacy. He wrote several very scholarly works which pointed out that the capitalist system was what was wrong with society, and that if men would employ the system he proposed, this would be a better world.

But this is not the legacy, at least not for Americans who live under a system which they are satisfied with.

The legacy is the proof that men are incorrigible, and that they will do almost anything to satisfy their greed. I have often wondered how Marx thought this element of greed would be eliminated in a Communist society. Apparently, he believed it just would not exist, and so ignored the problem.

As a result, Marx would probably turn over in his grave to know how men had misused his system; how in no Communist society has the plan gone past the Dictatorship of the Proletariat; how many people are indeed dissatisfied with his system which, when put in practice, does not really work.

People are just too greedy,

Karl. In fact, no system, including democracy, ever works as it should because of the desire, which we all nurture to some degree or other, to have.

Try to find a system of government in the history of the world which has withstood the greed of men. There isn't one. I think that when we all realize that it not the system which needs changing so much as the men in the system, we will have taken one step in the direction of achieving a just society.

How does one change a man so he will want what is best for everyone and not just for himself? Jesus said that if a man lost his life, he would find it, and that his reward would be great. Now whether one likes Jesus or not, this is pretty good practical psychology.

Losing our own lives, by forgetting our selfish interests, we will find in helping others. This is the therapy we need—not a new system—for if we could all do this, we would have a new system; based on the merits of a new people, not the same old greedy Adam.

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief Jack DiSarno
Assistant Editors Susan Bagrowski,
Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographer Al Payne
Advisor Thomas Lupton
Staffers Kay Gregory, Pamela
Simpson, Danny Morrison,
Debbie Holden, Charles Williams,
Ray Buchanan, Zack Sessions,
Fred Ourt, Harold Sterling

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed. Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

Alma Mater

Untrained minds and bodies lie
Neath the stern and sterile eye of Cold professors who in their by
Watch the students strive and die.
Michael D. Bonner

'Senator' is oasis amidst wasteland

By FRED OURT

Metaphorically speaking, TV might be described as a vast wasteland. Occasionally, however, an oasis appears amid the multitudinous commercials and Doris Day type programs.

The "Senator" segment of The Bold Ones is refreshingly different in its content and approach. Hal Holbrook stars in the show and does as good a job as he did in his outstanding portrayal of Mark Twain.

More than the quality of the acting, it is the scripts which make the show. Three shows seen by this reviewer have dealt with the problem of aging and senile congressmen in control of the Senate, the investigation following a Kent State-type incident, and the problems encountered in the self-help economic programs.

The approach of the show to these "now" problems, similar to that of Advise and Consent, differentiates it from others dealing with such problems. The viewer is taken into the inner sanctum of the Senate to witness the political power plays, compromises, and backstabbing that goes on. Holbrook plays a low-key character, a senator who fully realizes that one's idealism must be tempered with practicality to succeed in the dealings which go on; the end justifies the means.

The show does not try to resolve the problems and come out with a happy ending. It presents the issues and leaves the intelligent viewer thinking.

Technically, the program is well done. Montages and actual interviews are put to excellent use. No music is used to attempt to create moods for the viewer. This complements the straightforward approach of the show.

Aired every third Sunday at 10'clock, it is an honest and well-done attempt at useful communication of the problems facing our government and country. The next show should be aired March 21.

where is he?

TO THE EDITOR,

I've heard that Greg Walters is on a scholarship for being sports editor of the Seahawk. In my opinion, sports coverage is terrible; and if Greg Walters is at fault, then he should be relieved of the scholarship.

David Hughes.

News From the Castle

Spring is in the air (despite the deluge) and everyone around the castle seems to be feeling their oats, and other things.

Warm days bring young knights and their ladies out upon the grass for a tete-a-tete...Frisbees attest to their masters' skill...Birds sing...And dingalings romp about. One in particular catches our attention...

Magistre Ding-a-Ling really pulled a good one, which has been bounced about the college. It seems he performed another of his fantastic experiments! Here's the story—

About 50 eyes focus on the wretched figure holding the small black instrument in his hand. (Note: In Medieval times they didn't call them phones.) He was calling the king's valet. What would he say? The eyes watch as he fidgets. When he speaks with this high personage, the valet, he is all stutters. Soft laughter floats in the air. Finally this deed is committed and he is asked to place a long distance call to his mother. Ah, what a different tune he sings then. Magistre Ding-a-Ling has been proved right in his theory of better communication by being able to mentally picture a person! (But all lament that they hadn't been the one to get a free call home.)

After this episode the scribe returns to the memoria library in the school. Here he adds another page to the book entitled, Noteworthy Antics of the Ding-a-Ling. Noted in small unsteady script at the bottom of this page we find: "Si les autres etaient comme lui..."

Invite yourself to see 'The Birthday Party'

Harold Pinter's The Birthday Party will open Mar. 18 in the SRO Theatre, Kenan Hall. The play will run through Mar. 21.

The Birthday Party was Pinter's first full-length play, and was written in 1958. Critics' reviews praised Pinter's work. According to Harold Hobson, of the London Sunday Times, "Mr. Pinter has got hold of a primary fact of existence. We live on the verge of disaster...There is terror everywhere. Meanwhile it is best to make jokes—and Mr. Pinter's jokes are very good."

Anne Fitzgibbon, drama instructor and director for The Birthday Party, reports his plays are fascinating. "Audiences enjoy them tremendously," she lauds, "they laugh, and they wonder, and they are puzzled." Often individuals seek clarification from Pinter.

One such letter to him read: "Dear Sir, I would be obliged if you would kindly explain to me the meaning of your play The Birthday Party. These are the points which I do not understand: 1) Who are the two men? 2) Where did Stanley come from? 3) Were they all supposed to be normal? You will appreciate that without the answers to my questions I cannot fully understand your play." Pinter is said to have replied by asking the woman the same questions about herself.

The Birthday Party—cast includes Paul Teitlebaum (L.), and Bob Peterson.—(Photo by Al Payne)

To Pinter the questions are genuine problems: the problems of identity, of motivation, of verification. These questions he feels, are basic problems of contemporary literature and philosophy.

Certain persistent ideas can be found in Pinter's writings, one very important one is "sanctuary under attack". There is usually sanctuary in the form of a room—a place of safety. That room will, at some point, be entered, invaded, by someone else. This opens that a known situation—even though a thoroughly unpleasant one—is preferable to the horrors of the unknown.

The unknown, the puzzling, and the funny will be presented next week. Curtain time is 8 p.m., SRO Theatre, and students will be admitted free upon presentation of their ID card.

Jeans. Slacks. Shirts. Vests. Jackets. Socks. Western Wear. Boots.

Wrangler

This is the way it is. We're into it.

 Wrangler® Jeans
Remember the "W" is silent.

BELKS DEPARTMENT STORES

Mrs. Hattie Brunson has worked for UNCW for 20 years. — (Photo by Al Payne)

College will battle GM in 'Round II'

The project on Corporate Responsibility has sent letters to over 600 universities asking them to support Campaign GM—Round II, an effort to make American corporations more responsive to society's needs.

Specifically, the Project is asking the universities to vote their GM stock in favor of three new shareholder resolutions that the Project will introduce at GM's annual meeting on May 21 in Detroit. If adopted, the proposals would have a fundamental impact on GM's decision-making process.

The Project, through Campaign GM and its other activities, seeks to subject corporate decisions to public scrutiny and to make corporate decision-makers directly accountable to the people affected by corporate action.

The first proposal would transform the now closed selection of directors into a real selection simply by requiring GM to list on its proxy candidates nominated by shareholder petitions; only candidates nominated by management are listed there now. All share holders thus would have the opportunity to make meaningful nominations and to choose among opposing nominees.

The second proposal would give—consumers, dealers, and employees—a voice in GM's decision-making process by permitting them to participate in the selection of three GM directors.

Hattie keeps things goin'

A clear umbrella shelters the little figure. Dismal day though it is she hums enthusiastically. Everyone feels a little better when they encounter that hum.

Who does the hum and a particular little blue cap belong to? Why Hattie of Course! Everyone knows Hattie. Mrs. Hattie Brunson has been working for UNC-W for "some 20 odd years." She and her husband, who retired four years ago, were here when it was Wilmington College.

It has been said that the administration building would fall without her (as it very well may do when she retires in six years). Maybe Hattie doesn't attend any school meetings as she says, but she's nevertheless the recipient of much office news.

She describes her work as taking care of the classrooms, offices, and restrooms in Alderman. But Hattie does a lot more.—She takes care of people through a bit of philosophy, a joke, or a song that helps a glum moment.

Sculpture by Bob McDonald of Charlotte is in March art show. — (Photo by Al Payne)

August brings school: no exams in January

A new academic calendar under which fall semester examinations will be completed prior to the Christmas holiday break will be followed next year.

UNC-W joins a growing list of colleges and universities in North Carolina in adopting the new schedule, which will see the academic year begin in August and end in mid-May. Similar calendars will be followed next year by Duke University, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Charlotte, and North Carolina State University among others.

"The main benefits of the new calendar will be for our students," said Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, dean of faculty, "Next year they will complete their fall semester examinations before Christmas and will finish spring semester classes in early May, which should give those seeking summer jobs a head start on students from other institutions."

UNC-W converted to the semester system this year, and one of the chief complaints of students was that examinations began only a week after they returned to classes from the long holiday recess. Under the old quarter system, the end of the fall quarter coincided with the beginning of the Christmas break.

The new calendar has fall semester registration scheduled for Aug. 24 and 25, with classes beginning on Aug. 28. Final examinations will be given Dec. 13-17.

The combined Christmas vacation-semester break will be 3½ weeks long, beginning on Dec. 17. Registration for the spring semester will be held on Jan. 11 and 12, 1972, with classes starting Jan. 13.

Spring classes will end on May 2, and examinations will begin on May 4, 5, 8, 9 and 10. Commencement exercises are scheduled for Monday, May 15.

In addition to the long Christmas recess, students will have a holiday on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6, a Thanksgiving vacation beginning at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, and ending on Monday, morning, Nov. 29, and Wednesday, April 5.

"I believe the newly adopted calendar for the academic year 1971-72 promises to be a major improvement for our university community," said Chancellor Wagoner. "We have worked with all segments of the university community, including our students and faculty, in making this decision and I wish to commend all those individuals who have studied these matters so diligently."

Art vibrates in metal and ink

By RAY BUCHANAN
Staffer

Last week brought a new month and along with it a new art show. The current show is a two man show composed of 36 silk screen prints by Winston-Salem artist Anne Kesler Shields and 13 sculptures by Bob McDonald of Charlotte. The show will run through the month of March. Bob McDonald is an extremely talented sculptor from Charlotte with an interest in mythology. A large portion of his works on display reflect this interest.

One of the most interesting pieces in the display is McDonald's "Viper," a threatening curve of metal vertebrae with horizontal projections that bend and vibrate when touched. "Viper," has all sorts of connotations," said McDonald.

His works have been in numerous exhibitions and can be found in many collections including those of Wachovia Bank and Westinghouse of New Boston, Virginia.

The work of Winston-Salem printmaker Anne Kesler Shields can be described as intellectual yet cool. Her work is well known throughout the state. The Shields' silk-screens in the show fall in the op art category.

Anne Shield's work has been shown at UNC-W before. Mrs. Shields had works in the October art show along with four other Winston-Salem printmakers.

Anne Shield's prints have been exhibited throughout the Eastern United States and can be found in many collections.

COLLEGE STUDENT'S POETRY ANTHOLOGY

THE NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

Announces Its

SPRING COMPETITION

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

April 10

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred by the Board of Judges, because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

3210 Selby Avenue

Los Angeles, Calif. 90034

Domestic &
Imported Beers

Live
Entertainment

Sound Movies
Cartoons

Senate debates budget question

The Student Senate met Feb. 23 and Joseph Morgan was sworn in as Junior Senator. Further business concerned the adjustment of the budget for this semester. The Dance and Fine Arts Committees as well as the debate team and the Fledgling, asked for funds above those requested at the fall semester.

Final vote was delayed until Mar. 2, when approval for the following groups was announced: Dance Committee, $128.34; Fine Arts Committee, $2,000; debate team, $500; the Fledgling, student yearbook, $978.08.

Several vacancies now exist due to several senators who are no longer carrying a full load. Also, several senators were dismissed because they had missed more than four meetings, but they have the right to appeal within one week to the judicial appeals board.

In further business, the Senate approved a $20 reimbursement of Pres. Bob Wiard's discretionary fund, which was spent by the cheerleader's for the two school spirit plaques.

Pres. Wiard further requested the Senate approve $135 to be used for food and transportation for the guests from the Consolidated University on The Day of the Presidents. Approval was granted.

Bill Brooks, senator, motioned that the Senate request the stop sign near the baseball field be changed to a yield sign. Motion was approved.

Vice-Pres. Brian Black mentioned that the proposed student-teacher evaluation was progressing well. Further information would be presented at the next meeting, he stated.

The Senate voted to meet again Mar. 16.

'Sweet Baby James' Taylor is subject of many reviews

By JANE DIVINE
Assistant Editor

James Taylor, native of Chapel Hill, N.C., is subject of much review. Time magazine and The Rolling Stone newspaper have written pages on his life and his music. His portrait, in tempera and inks, appeared on Time, March 1.

His music is capable of "of making an arena into a living room," and James challenged that statement last weekend at Dorton Arena, in Raleigh, part of a sell-out national tour.

James' music reflects his attitudes and life—"bittersweet and low," as one reviewer expressed it. "I don't want some kid out in Nebraska to read about me and say, 'Well, I'm gonna pick up some smack just like James did,'" states the song painter.

Born of wealthy parents, James feels somewhat guilty. "Nothing is wrong in making as much bread as you need, but there are things wrong in making more bread than you need," he states. Some of his concert proceeds have been given to Hopi Indians.

Mud Slide Slime, a free and easy type album, will be released in April. It is expected to equal or exceed the popularity of Sweet Baby James, his second album, or Fire and Rain, which have been nominated for five Grammy Awards. Two-Lane Blacktop, a movie which he recently finished, anticipates late-spring release.

Telephones switch

An enlarged telephone system is being installed in the Administration Building and will be operating by late March. The plug-type switchboard will be combined with a new information desk.

"The new system is a real advantage because it provides greater capacity for expansion," stated Bob Walton, assistant business manager.

Housed in a small structure across from the Chancellor's office and directly opposite the building's main entrance, The switchboard-information desk replaces a small "push-button-unit," its extensions filled to capacity, in the old mail room.

The switchboard will remain operated by students on work scholarships until July, when a full time paid operator will join UNC-W's staff.

Paid Advertisement
FREE INFORMATION .
LOW COST, SAFE, LEGAL
ABORTION
IN NEW YORK
SCHEDULED IMMEDIATELY
(212) TR 7-8562

Certified Abortion Referral
All Inquiries Confidential

Phone 791-5686
COLLEGE VIEW 66
"Your Car Is Our Business"
A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

'Conservation News' Consider Canada...

Consider the large American city. Consider the dirt traffic, the spaghetti loops of highways. There must be a better way. There is.

In a city north of the border, snow lies clean a month after falling, trains run frequently and on schedule, commuters scurry to work in spotless subway stations leaving behind only an occasional cigarette butt, there are parks in the heart of the city and the flag that flies over it all has a leaf on it.

Whatever that leaf may say for Canadians' respect for their earth, their city of Montreal is a civilized pleasure on a continent where cities seem to be growing increasingly dirty, littered, unhealthy and dangerous.

Whatever else Canadians think of their autos, Montreal has a beautiful silent subway that whirls along on giant rubber tires. Keep America Beautiful would drool with envy at the absence of litter from subway cars and stations, underground shopping malls, sidewalks and streets. There may be armies of invisible janitors who make off with the junk before it can be perceived by the passing traveller. Unlikely.

Whatever the invisible poison content of Montreal's air (the threat of which should be in no way minimized), snow in the heart of town is spotless. No soot is washed from face after an afternoon stroll and shirts bear no tell-tale ring at neck and cuffs after days of sightseeing.

Whatever highways Canada may be building for the super polluter, trains run on schedule over rails so smooth you can write home about it. There are trains to most parts of inhabited Canada. The glass and steel shelters that stand by bus stops seem to be saying, "We cannot stop the cold and damp but we will try to make it less unpleasant while you wait." The waits are not long.

Perhaps these shelters touch the principal difference between that old city on the bank of the St. Lawrence and those nearer by on the Rivers Potomac, Hudson, Charles, Chicago, Detroit, etc., Our cities sometimes seem to say, "We dare you to live here. We're going to make it hard for you." No wonder the less brave flee to the suburbs.

Montreal, however, seems to be saying, "Life is hard enough. We'll try to make some things easier."

A visit of a week is not time enough to judge a city's success in caring for its citizens in all the ways they need. But it is long enough to sense the spirit of an official attitude that the city shall be for the people, not in spite of them.

—Martha Wright

Wantu Wazuri plans seminars

By HAROLD STERLING

Wantu Wazuri has announced plans to provide a series of Weekly Black Studies Seminars off campus for the Wilmington Community. The seminars will be held in the recreation building of Robert Strange Park.

The seminars according to seminar committee chairman Veronica Sellers, will fill the existing void in this area until a comprehensive black studies program can be instituted by the New Hanover County School Board and

UNC-W.

Some of the details such as dates and times are still in the planning stage and will be announced later, according to Sellers.

To achieve maximum results the club will utilize films, instruction, and "rap sessions" in presenting the studies program to the community.

The seminars will be presented on a weekly basis throughout the remainder of the semester, culminating in a Black Arts Festival in May.

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE
WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Drama major awaiting 'go'

By KAREN STEVENS

UNC-W may be offering a major in drama next fall. The drama department is now awaiting official word from UNC-Ch concerning this.

The idea of having a drama major was proposed to the University at Chapel Hill last year. As a result, the drama department was investigated by a team from Chapel Hill. This team found the drama department satisfactory for a major program. All of the courses have been revised to meet qualifications.

Many students have shown a great deal of interest in this field. Several students on campus are interested in a career in drama. Some of these students are already working toward a drama major.

One of the advantages of a drama major would be the improvement of our student theatre and its productions.

Any interested students should contact Dr. Terry Rogers. His office is upstairs in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium.

APO News

Upsilon Nu Chapter recently participated in the anti-litter clean-up which netted several bags full of roadside rubbish.

A check for $383.75 was recently presented to the New Hanover County Humane Society to help with the construction of an animal shelter. The pledges and brothers would like to thank the students and the general public for supporting this pledge project by throwing their pennies, nickles, dimes, and quarters into the "Psychedelic Bathub."

In addition, we plan to assemble the play ground equipment for the newly opened nursery school. If you can help, come and bring your tools!

The newly elected officers for spring are: Laris Milligan, president; Harry Rivenbark, first vice-president; Ed Boylan, second vice-president; Mike Lewis, third vice-president; Raymond Fowler, recording secretary; Wallace Ambrose, publicity secretary; Bob Andrise, historian; Raleigh Todd, treasurer.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's JEWELERS INC.
37 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

Baseball team to play rugged 34-game roster

UNCW 150 pounder Ed Weddington puts a half-nelson on his opponent from Campbell during the district tournament. — (Photo by Al Payne)

Actors workshop held every Saturday

By KAREN STEVENS

An actors workshop is now being held on campus. The workshop is held every Saturday morning from 9:30 until noon; in the SRO Theatre—Kenan Hall.

The workshop was suggested by drama major Sam Sweat. Most of the students who attend are beginners although more experienced persons may also attend.

All UNC-W and high school students are invited to the workshop.

Terry Rogers of the drama department says, "The workshop works with the actor as a physical and mental being."

Emphasis is placed on muscle control and individual participation. The students start with an idea and work on projecting it. Some of the ideas are projected through pantomimes.

A demanding 34-game baseball schedule, featuring 21 contests at home, will be tackled this spring by the Seahawks.

The schedule, announced by UNC-W head coach and athletic director Bill Brooks, includes a home-and-home series with Atlantic Coast Conference power North Carolina State and three meetings with Davidson of the Southern Conference.

The Seahawks open the season at home on Monday, March 8, against NC State, and end regular season play with a game at Campbell on May 8. The District 29 playoffs are scheduled for May 13-15, and area playoffs are set for May 27-29.

Hagan attends workshop

Miss Helen Hagan, librarian, recently attended a workshop on library education for North Carolina which was held in Pinehurst.

The workshop was sponsored by the North Carolina Library Association, the State Board of Higher Education, the Department of Community Colleges, the Department of Public Instruction, the North Carolina Association of Educators, the State Library and the North Carolina Chapter, Special Libraries Association. Miss Hagan is chairman of the Library Education Committee.

Hobart College acquitted

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (CPS)—Hobart College has been acquitted of criminal charges of "coercion in the first degree" that grew out of a grand jury investigation of events surrounding a disorder at the college last June.

Following three days of testimony, Judge F.M. Marshall of the N.Y. Supreme Court directed the jury to find at the college not guilty. Evidence presented by the prosecution was insufficient to warrant a conviction, the judge said.

Sir Charles Barber Shop

1315 So. College Rd.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT
FOR STUDENTS
AND FACULTY
25¢ PER CUT

(Sir Charles Will Give You
The Haircut You Desire)

Reg. Cut $2.00
Razor $3.00
Style $6.00

Charles Ezzell
Owner

Four wrestlers go to nationals

Four of UNC-W's top wrestlers will travel to Appalachian State University, in Boone, where the National Wrestling Tournament will be held.

First time in the southeastern part of the country, the national will be held Mar. 11-13. Making the trip with Coach Morrissey will be:

Pat Sikes, wrestling 118 lbs., Ed Weddington, 150 lbs., Freddy Kee, 158 lbs., Bob Elliott, 167 lbs.

Coach Morrissey stated, "We have a better than average chance in all four weight classes."

Seahawk Bob Elliott does away with another opponent on his way to the NAIA-dis. 29-167 lbs. championship. (Photo by Al Payne)

Interclub council holds first meeting

Interclub council members met Monday, March 1, in the Pub to discuss possible campus improvements.

The council, listed in the SGA Constitution, provides for a delegate and an alternate from each club chartered through the student government. Of the approximately 15 clubs on campus, 9 were represented.

Attending the council meeting were Carolyn Thompson, Alpha Chi Sigma; Ed Boylan, Alpha Phi Omega; David Haskett, Business Club; Mike Lewis, Baptist Student Union; Kathy Best and Betsy Rulman, Chemistry Club; Billy Blake and Jeff Mayberry, Engineers Club; Mike Zipser and Kirk Brown, Math Club; Bill Winstead, P.E. Majors and Tim Pigford, Wanta Wazuri.

Among other items discussed was Senior Mike Zipser's suggestion that; at graduation names be called by departments rather than by alphabetical order. This change is procedure, as used in larger universities, might prove more meaningful to the graduates who has spent at least two of his four years in a particular department.

Although this was the first interclub council meeting held this year, others may be held in the future.

Gautschi resigns in protest

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (CPS)—University of California Student Body President Peter Gautschi has resigned, blasting UC Academic Senate's failure to recommend total severance of ties with Livermore and Los Alamos nuclear laboratories.

Saying he would consider "a degree from this University a curse," Gautschi said the two University-supported laboratories "bear the total national responsibility for developing the nation's thermonuclear weapons."

SUPPORT

THE MARCH OF DIMES

THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION

"TELERAMA"

for the prevention of Birth Defects

WWAY - Channel 3

Saturday, March 20, 11:00 p.m. - Sunday, 4:00 p.m.

PLENTY OF LACAL AND NATIONAL TALENT

Sponsored by Jaycees

Join The
Fun Crowd

Pizza
Inn

4016 Oleander Dr.

Ph. 762-0379 to

Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.

Ph. 762-8456 To

Take Out

Sunday - Thursday

11:00 a.m. to

12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday

11:00 a.m. to

2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday

11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

1970-71 Seahawk Wrestling team: bottom row (L-R) John Howarth, Bob Elliot, Pat Sykes, Freddy Kee. Top Row (L-R) Coach Pop Morrissey, Chris Stone, Buce Hickman, Ed Weddington, Chris Wilson, Pat Canaday, Mark Fear, Keith Kellum, Randy Sullivan, David Hughes, and Manager Dave Haskett — (Photo by Joe Nesbitt)

Citadel's Bulldogs down Seahawks 21-16

Citadel Bulldogs "pulled one out" as they wrestled the Seahawks here Feb. 20. UNC-W's total team score was 16 to the Citadel's 21 points. Final results were:

P. Sykes (118) over Forfeity; pin
Jackie Moore (126) over UNC-W's Mark Fear; decision
Chip Brooks (134) over UNC-W's Chris Stone; pin
Stuart Stephens (142) over UNC-W's Freddy Kee; decision
Ed Weddington (UNC-W-150) over Charlie Horton John Shawvaw (156) over UNC-W's John Howarth; decision

Bob Elliot (UNC-W)-167 over Jack Moore; decision
David Hughes (UNC-W-177) over David Ascaw; decision
"Skinny" Kellum (UNC-W-190) over Allen Foad; decision
Tommy Williams (H.Wt.) over UNC-W's Pat Canaday; pin

The Seahawks mat-men and Coach Jim Morrissey finished their regular season with a record of seven wins and four losses. The wrestlers are the only winning team UNC-W has had thus far this year.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Baseball team schedule through March, all home games to be played at Brooks Field, behind the gym.

March 8	N.C. State	Home	2:30 p.m.
13	Shaw	Away
15	N.C. State	Away
18	Virginia State	Home	3:30 p.m.
19	Pfeiffer	Home	1:00 p.m.
19	Davidson	Home	3:30 p.m.
20	Davidson	Home	2:00 p.m.
22	Elon	Home	3:30 p.m.
23	Lynchburg	Home	3:30 p.m.
26	Williams	Home	3:30 p.m.
27	Williams	Home	3:30 p.m.
29	Paterson State	Home	3:30 p.m.
30	State U. of N.Y.	Home	3:30 p.m.
31	State U. of N.Y.	Home	3:30 p.m.

Keith Kellum gets finger in eye during 190 lbs. match with ECSU. — (Photo by Al Payne)

Next Home Baseball Game March 18

Ed Weddington, 150 lbs., puts a standing switch on Campbell opponent. — (Photo by Al Payne)

Seahawks grapple Braves; defeat Pembroke 31-8

UNC-W wrestlers defeated the Pembroke Braves and continued their winning season with a record of six wins and three losses.

Pembroke, previously undefeated, was no match for "Pop" Morrissey's boys. Fresh from a 35 to 5 victory over Pfeiffer, the Seahawk grapplers downed the P.U. Braves with a score of 31 to 8.

Pat Sykes, wrestling 126, pinned Smith in the third period for UNC-W's first points.

Mark Feas (134) was defeated by Lenny Allen of Pembroke by decision.

Freddy Key (142) pinned his opponent, as did Ed Weddington, (150) in the third period.

John Howarth (158) pinned Pembroke's Lamberts in the second period.

Bob Elliot (167) and David Hughes (177) won by decision.

"Skinny" Kellum (190) downed his opponent by pinning him in the second period.

Pat Canady, Wilmington's Heavy Weight, was pinned in the second period.

South Carolina
FOLK MUSIC FESTIVAL
Myrtle Beach, S. C.
March 24, 1971

Workshops: 10 a.m. — 12 noon
Convention Center - $5.00 Adm.

Afternoon Hoot: 2 p.m.
Pavilion Aud. - Adm. Free

Talent Contest: 6 p.m.
Evening Concert: 8 p.m.
Convention Center
$2.00 Covers Both

Featuring

DOC WATSON
JEAN SCHILLING
ERV LEWIS
THE WALTONS
THE MESSENGERS
BUTCH ROBINS
MANY OTHERS

Tickets on Sale At Convention Center

WILLIAMS CLEANERS
SUEDE CLEANING
1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.
Wilmington, N.C.

*Like a meatball rolling down
a hill, it's growin'*
BOOKSTORE

Bus. & Econ get building

By PAMELA SIMPSON
According to business manager, James Price, construction will begin on a Business and Economics Building, northeast of the William Randall Library, in about 45 days. It will take approximately nine to ten months to complete.

This building will be air conditioned and cover 20,000 square feet which includes: classrooms, faculty offices, seminar rooms and a small auditorium. Cost of construction has been tentatively set at $500,000. Bids that have been received exceed the budgeted amount. The University has asked the Advisory Budget Commission for additional funds.

The style of the new building will be Georgian as the other structures on campus. Architects are Dillon, Altobellis and Associates of Wilmington.

The General Assembly has also approved plans to construct another 200-student dormitory. Future additions now in the planning stage include: a marine science and oceanography building. Estimated cost is $2,097,000.

A classroom building for the Modern Languages Department is being sought. Estimated cost is $1 million. Construction plans depend on decisions of the General Assembly.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—As the war in Southeast Asia moves into its eleventh year, the Pentagon reports that 871,689 military personnel have lost their lives in the conflict.

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer

Mug - - 30¢

Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

21 make all A's

A total of 21 students, made all As fall semester (QP average of 4.0) These students were a few of the 256 students who made Dean's List fall semester. Their names were recently released by Dean of Student Affairs J. Marshall Crews.

They are: Elizabeth T. Baggett of Jacksonville, Edwin C. Blackburn of Ingold, Robert Hugh Corgett of Burgaw, Perry D. Dixon of Wilmington, Mamie M. Farley of Whiteville, and Carol C. Garner of Wilmington.

Others included: Robert A. Grace of Wilmington, Edgar W. Horton of Wilmington, Eunice H. King of Leland, Gregory O. Nelson of Wilmington, Carole A. Nunalee of Wilmington, Elizabeth S. Schoonmaker of Wilmington, Fred C. Smith of Wilmington, Wayne Shew of Leland, Janice T. Tindal of Wilmington, Lynn B. Walker, of Wilmington, Christi G. Weide of Wilmington, Gary Wayne Whitehead of Wilmington, David Kent Woodbury of Wilmington, and Catherine A. Young of Greensboro, and Susan Stevens Crutchfield of Fayetteville.

Spring springs at the end of March and with it brings Daylight Savings Time.

N. C. to hire seniors help

Seniors interested in employment opportunities in North Carolina State Government will be able to talk with a representative from the State Personnel Department on March 16, 1971. Arrangements for the interview are to be made with the College Placement Office. One should report there to establish a specific appointment on this date.

State Government employs over 39,000 persons in 1,400 different types of jobs. Business, accounting, rehabilitation, social work, laboratory science, education, computer programming, and the natural and physical sciences are only a few of the possible employment areas. Information which fully describes the employment opportunities is available at the Placement Office.

fire from wire

Investigation of the fire before Christmas in the Education - Psychology Building revealed that the cause could be attributed to faulty wiring.

The building has been completely renovated since that time. New ceiling panels and insulation have been installed to portions of the building on the second floor.

Introducing the Silent Partner to Your Great Sound!

Wide range dynamic transducers reproduce sound with all the fidelity and range of a live performance 20-20,000 Hz. Your sound. And not a peep out of the rest of the World.

$8.95

"Wide Range"

Highly sensitive, full range lightweight phones, finished in walnut grain with black. Volume control on both. 15-23,000 Hz

"Dynamic"

$34.95

"Foam Cushion"

$16.95

Individual volume controls on each phone provides perfect balance. Padded, lightweight for luxurious privacy. 25-18,000 Hz.

YOUR SOUND OUR SILENCE

$24.95

"Professional"

Featherweight phones for hours of listening without fatigue. A new adventure in stereo listening.

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

Over 30 Years In Electronics

1002 So. College Road
791-7365

- Master Charge
- Bank Americard

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

9th edition

march 24, 1971

Brian Black presides over the Mar. 16 Senate meeting. Also shown are: Dana Lee - Sec., and Wayne Whitehead - Sr. Senator.

Senate hears reports

By ED BOYLAN

The Senate met March 16 and Janice Asbell was sworn in by Veronica Sellers to fill a Sophomore vacancy.

Bob Wiard recommended and the Senate gave unanimous approval of Dale Wright and Eddie Thompson to be co-chairmen of the Fine Arts Committee, to fill the existing vacancy. The Fine Arts Committee reported to the Senate that several films and plays are planned for the future.

Jack Di Sarno of the Board of Elections commented on the Constitution Test which has been administered to elected or appointed officials. He also noted problems such as a lack of students interested in working on the Board of Elections, "the general ignorance of the student body."

Explaining the latter point Di Sarno said, "approximately one out of three students when receiving their ballot ask why they must vote in secret; this takes up valuable time. Students voting this year have exhibited a rather helter skelter attitude towards elections."

Di Sarno stated that as he saw it there were two alternatives open to the board to increase voter turnout in the April election: 1) setting up two polling places rather than one, or 2) voting machines may be borrowed from the New Hanover County Board of Elections, to attract the curious students that have never voted by this method.

The Concert Committee reported that we may have the "The Iron Butterfly," in concert April 13 but this matter will have to be considered further before a decision could be made.

Vice-President Bryan Black received Senate approval to continue work on Teacher Evaluation.

In further action the Senate approved the charter of the Chess Club and appropriated funds to purchase a United States flag. The next meeting will be March 30.

Keffer featured

Kenn Keffer, a former UNC-W student and winner of last year's Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest, recently had a short story published in the Carolina Quarterly. This magazine is published by UNC-Chapel Hill.

"We Went In Cars" is the title of Keffer's story appearing in the Carolina Quarterly and is quite different from many others on the magazine. From the beginning, the reader realizes that it is unlike other short stories because of Keffer's unusual style of writing. He uses very short descriptive sentences to convey both the thoughts and dialog of the characters. Emotional feelings are very strong and can be felt by the reader—emotions such as

The operation of the new cafeteria now rests between Inter-State United and Broughton Food Service. Both concerned offered about the same services.

The Food Services Committee and the Student Affairs Office are expecting a contract to be signed in a few days with one of the companies.

The prices listed by Inter-

State United for a student commuting to school and purchasing single meals are as follows: Breakfast, 67 cents; lunch, 92 cents; dinner, $1.11; and dinner on Steak-Night, $1.69.

The prices listed by Broughton are: breakfast, 75 cents; lunch, $1.00; dinner, $1.25; and dinner on Steak Night, $1.50.

The cost, however, will be included in the dormitory fees for those students living on campus.

Both companies offer the students unlimited seconds, and the portions will be the same each time.

The food will be brought locally when possible.

Students will be hired by the company that gets the contract. Both concerns encourage students to apply for jobs.

The Snack Bar, located on the bottom floor of the cafeteria, and possibly the vending machines around campus will be operated by the company selected also.

The Food Services Committee will accept and handle complaints, and any suggestions that the students can offer.

Deas recital slated for 28th

Dr. Richard Deas, a graduate of Julliard School of Music and newest addition to the UNC-W Music Department, will present a piano recital Sunday, March 28, at 3:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

"Twelve Variations on Folies d'Espagne" by C.P.E. Bach will open the program. Composed during the early classical period, the melody is based upon a well-known early Spanish folk tune.

Schubert's unfinished three movement "Sonata in C Major" will be of particular interest in that Dr. Deas brings the piece to an original conclusion.

Various sonatas by Spanish composers Mateo Albeniz and Antonio Soler as well as a "Sonatine" by Impressionist Composer Ravel will be featured.

Deas will conclude with "Spanish Rhapsody" which employs variations apparent in the earlier Bach composition.

The next faculty recital on April 25 will feature Mr. William Adcock, saxophonist, and Dr. Deas.

Students and public will be admitted free of charge to both recitals.

Free flick planned

The Fine Arts Committee will present its second of three films in their new popular film series on Friday, March 26.

Beginning at 7:00 p.m. will be The Private War of Major Benson, starring Charlton Heston as a loud-mouthed major who is assigned to a school for boys.

Following at 9:00 p.m. will be A Man Called Horse. Richard Harris stars in this extraordinary story of an English aristocrat captured by Sioux Indians and made to prove his manhood in their savage culture.

No admission will be charged. Both movies will be shown in the Student Services Building (Pub).

UNC-W participates in study

UNC-W students are participating in a State-wide field study project to pinpoint natural areas in North Carolina that should be preserved and protected.

The natural areas survey project is being sponsored by the N.C. Department of Conservation and Development's parks division.

Earl West and Glenn Shivar, students involved in the program, are working on their independent research under the direction of Dr. J.F. Parnell in the Biology Department.

Earl and Wayne are visiting sites near UNC-W to list and describe those areas which possess qualities of significant scientific and educational values worthy of being preserved.

The students will file a written report at the end of the current semester with the parks division. A complete summary of the areas judged most suitable for preservation will be published by the C&D Agency, according to Sowers.

Roy G. Sowers Jr., C and D Director, who initiated the project, said the students involved will receive academic credit for their work.

"This is a great program and it's the kind of thing State Government agencies should do more of," he said.

The extent of student involvement varies with each institution, according to Robert Teulings, project coordinator. In some instances, two or three students are engaged in the natural areas survey, and at other schools, entire classes are conducted the study.

Students are working on the project at: Appalachian State University, East Carolina University, Guilford College, Methodist College, Wake Forest University, Western Carolina University, and the University of North Carolina campuses at Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Greensboro, Wilmington, and N.C. State University.

Editorials

'Gothic politics'

The recent super-grit, red neck, 19th century, Southern, white-supremacist, remarks by the Honorable John Walker, Judge—N.C. District Court—Wilmington; deserve comment.

For a while there it almost looked as if the Southern politicians had entered the 20th-century, what with the election of Carter as Governor of Georgia (and the survival of the political machinery through the "Maddox Era.") and John West as Governor of South Carolina.

Exactly what prompted "his honorableness" to make those remarks is not exactly clear. Perhaps he was doing a little off-year campaigning or perhaps the statements represented Mr. Walkers deepest insights into the racial situation. Personally I think he was speaking from the heart.

Oh—in case you didn't hear about the statement; I'm referring to the one in which Judge Walker stated that Wilmington needed another Lieutenant William Calley to solve the local racial problems. He also advised Wilmingtonians to provide for their own protection. This from a man who is supposedly trained in the law and dedicated to the dispensing of justice.

'Common Cause'

Do we complain about the Vietnam-Cambodia-Laos War? Do we want new solutions for housing, environment, employment, education, health, consumer protection, etc. etc. etc. Then why the hell don't we do something??

Anywhere we go we can get up a good rap on any of those subjects. We're great rappers. Why don't we ever do anything except sit on our bottoms mouthing— "I believe?"

Know what "Common Cause" is? It's this nation's first true attempt at a citizens' lobby, which is trying to put the pressure on where it's needed. "Common Cause" is the place where the talking stops and action begins. Send a postcard to:

Common Cause
2100 M. Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

(Susan Bagrowski)

Do we need a refinery?

In the past few days we've been hearing news about tentative plans for construction of an oil refinery in the Wilmington area. This proposal should be studied very carefully.

Governor Scott has assured us that the refinery will be a modern facility and virtually pollution-free. Tentative plans call for locating the plant in Brunswick County. No one will debate the point that the economy of Brunswick County needs a shot in the arm, but this factor should not overshadow an in-depth investigation of the proposal.

Several questions have come to mind concerning the ecological risks involved. The number one risk is the transportation factor. Construction of an oil refinery on the coast would require the use of sea-going oil tankers. These oil tankers have been known to break up at sea causing huge oil slicks that are virtually impossible to clean up (see related story, "Conservation News" pg. 3). An oil slick would kill already threatened wildlife. Marine animals would be killed hurting the areas commercial and sport fishing. Visualize the strand at Wrightsville, Carolina, and Long Beach being covered with a blanket of black slime. This would cripple SENCland's tourist industry.

It would also be helpful if

Sandy Hook is dead

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.
(CPS) — The beaches of Sandy Hook (Atlantic Ocean), and of the south shore of Long Island are polluted and unfit for recreation, according to Dr. Jack Pearce, resident biologist of the Sandy Hook Marine Laboratories.

Dr. Pearce told a marine science seminar at Rutgers that studies show that waste dumped five to eight miles off Sandy Hook has affected the environment of the N.Y. Bay area to such an extent that there is no marine life in the area.

one were to know which oil company is planning to build the refinery so that the company's ecological performance could be researched. Funny thing...as of this deadline that information has not been released.

In fact the general "go ahead and try to stop me from polluting," attitude oil company's have expressed, especially Standard Oil, is very discouraging. Do we need an oil refinery???

Film series continues

"The Fallacies of Hope,"
Part 12 of the "Civilization" series, was shown at 8 p.m.
Monday March 22, and again at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, March 23, in the Sarah Graham
Kenan Memorial Auditorium.
Films are shown every week at these times. The showings are open to students without charge.

Atrocity revisited

By TIMOTHY SIMS

The furor over the atrocity at My Lai has upset a so-far "silent minority" of individuals who wish it had not happened because there was not just one My Lai. This silent minority is composed of Vietnam veterans, mostly two to four-year-men under 25, now active in civilian life.

Most of them have accepted the facts that Vietnam is not a glorious war, that their sacrifices and achievements are not recognized, that no one, including their Commander-in-Chief is going to laud them for service to their country, and that it is, in fact, better not to let people know.

The typical member of this silent minority is a fairly decent person, unobtrusive, interested now in living a normal life in the civilian world; trying, in one way, to forget his own My Lai, or Dong-Ha, Khe-Sahn, Phu-Loc, Hue, etc. Yet in another way he is somewhat proud of

TEN POINTS

1. tougher legislation and strict enforcement of existing anti-pollution legislation
2. increased governmental intervention in population control
3. immediate unilateral withdrawal from Southeast Asia
4. free food stamps for all hungry Americans
5. establishment of a billion-dollar federal job-corps for low-income Americans
6. income-tax reform providing for a real graduated system
7. drastic reduction in defense spending
8. federal legislation outlawing possession of lethal weapons
9. complete reform of the American judicial and penal systems, with crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation as their goal
10. defeat of the Agnew-Nixon Administration in '72

'SEAHAWK trends'

A recent editorial in THE HANOVER SUN entitled, 'Seahawk Trends' displayed beautifully the ignorance that is running wild in one-horse Wilmington.

In this column the editor stated that THE SEAHAWK is beginning to look like a "New York underground newspaper." We sincerely appreciate the concern of the editorial staff of THE SUN. We don't claim to be perfect but we know an underground newspaper when we see one.

The reasoning behind the statement was the fact that a draft counseling story and an abortion ad appeared in the Feb. 24 edition. One begins to wonder if the writer of that column has ever been out of the state or has ever read anything to the left of THE PENDER COUNTY CHRONICLE.

his tour of duty, and, among his friends, he will talk about it on occasion.

He wonders if there will ever be a time when he can hold his head up for his contribution, not only among his friends, but anywhere. He may also now wonder if there will be a time when all of his silent minority will be rounded up and charged with various "war crimes".

The silent minority will not be able to insist on "political persecution" or use other tools that present minority groups use, for they are violent, blood-thirsty murderers of innocent women and children, supposedly.

The atrocity at My Lai is not what is commonly labeled as such. The atrocity has not happened yet.

My fears for the silent minority may be without basis in fact. The political persecution of Vietnam veterans may be only a bad dream I had. But it keeps reoccurring. TCS

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief	Jack DiSarno
Assistant Editors	Susan Bagrowski, Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographer	Al Payne
Advisor	Thomas Lupton
Staffers	Kay Gregory, Pamela Simpson, Danny Morrison, Debbie Holden, Charles Williams Ray Buchanan, Zack Sessions, Fred Ourt, Harold Sterling

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed. Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building. S-201.

Ocean-dumping debated in Congress

By ED CHANEY

Last year's dumping of surplus Army nerve gas into the Atlantic Ocean prompted an enormous public outcry and brought into the public spotlight the nation's unofficial policy of dumping its garbage into the oceans. Investigations revealed hundreds of dumping sites off the U.S. coasts where everything from sewage sludge to radioactive wastes were being tossed and forgotten.

Apparently some Congressmen have not forgotten, however and the opening days of the 92nd Congress have seen the introduction of two bills which would alter the ocean-garbage-can syndrome.

One bill, H.R. 336, introduced by Representative Jerry L. Pettis of California, instructs the Council on Environmental Quality to make a complete investigation into all aspects of "existing national policy" on dumping anything into the Atlantic or Pacific Oceans or the Gulf of Mexico. After making the study the Council is instructed to make "recommendations for a national policy" respecting all ocean dumping.

Representative John M. Murphy of New York has introduced H.R. 285, that would allow the Secretary of the Interior, through the Fish and Wildlife Service, to designate areas in offshore waters as well as navigable waters of the U.S. that are suitable for dumping of sewage, sludge, spoil and other wastes. In making the designation, the Secretary would be required to consider "all ecological and environmental factors" including the effect on marine organisms and wildlife.

Both bills have been referred to the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Pinter play is success

By KAREN STEVENS

Harold Pinter's THE BIRTHDAY PARTY opened March 18 in the S.R.O. Theatre. The three act play directed by Anne Fitzgibbon (Drama Dept.) was a tremendous success. The sad but funny production was presented to a full house on opening night.

The only characters in this play who can be completely understood are Petey (Paul Teitelbaum) and Meg (Rosalee Hilburn). They are a somewhat unusual couple who run the boarding house where the play takes place.

The main boarder of the house is Stanley (Doc Clay) who is very different from the average boarder. Throughout the play the audience is wondering exactly who Stanley is and where he came from. It is possible that he might have betrayed the Communist party, and is now hiding from them. Stanley never leaves the house, and he is afraid of all strangers who come there.

Stanley feels safe in the house until two new boarders come for a "short holiday." The two men were Goldberg (Bob Peterson) and McCann (Tom Wilson). When these two boarders meet Stanley it is obvious that they are out to get him and he knows it. It is possible that Goldberg and McCann are representatives of the Communist party. If this is true, they have probably come to take Stanley to a concentration camp.

Rosalee Hilburn portrays the somewhat senile landlady very well. She just babbles on to herself, or anyone who will listen, while all the action is going on around her.

Doc Clay did a superb job of capturing the attention of the audience throughout the play. He did not actually speak as much as some of the other characters. When he did speak, it was something worth hearing.

Anyone who missed THE BIRTHDAY PARTY missed something really outstanding. The play was not an average play, and it was not presented in an average way.

Mishap turns FEAST into forum

By HAROLD STERLING

In a remarkable departure from the "old show must go on" maxim; the cast of Feast, after the regrettable illness of one of the principles invited the audience on stage to discuss the play's outcome. The audience, by crossing the proscenium, was at once transported into "actors country," where they received new and different insights into the play's meaning along with the mechanics of staging a production. This once-in-a-life-time opportunity for non-Theatians also included enlightening comments from the play's author Lewis Black of Chapel Hill.

The opening act which utilized an interesting multimedia mix (film, music) was carefully orchestrated to provide the play's central theme: namely the lack of communication that exists today in the average American home. This crossview of American family life showed how each member of this typical family lived in their "little worlds" never intermeshing but occasionally touching on the peripheries through the skilled use of over-dramatization, reminiscent of the Theatre of The Absurd during the opening breakfast scene, the problem of non-communication was skillfully stated.

The use of music and an identifiable leit motif for each character emphasized the gulf that existed between the family members. Although it is unfair to judge a play not seen in its entirety, one scene seemed to be superfluous and redundant, this scene through labored dialogue between the brother and sister concerning sex education seemed to show the progression of ideas and altered its structure.

After a thought provoking first act and brief intermission the audience eagerly returned to their seats for the play's resolution, only to be told that Mitchell A'bright (Delaney) was ill and unable to continue. The audience though regretting Mr. Albright's illness and not being able to see the rest of Feast, welcomed the opportunity to cross the theatre's "no man's land" to hear the actor's detailed explanations and inpromptu demonstrations of some of the scenes.

The program notes describing the Feast Family Inc. as "a whole lot of people who make a whole lot of magic" achieved a meaning that could not have been possible had we remained in our respective roles of audience and actors. The program notes themselves become a key to understanding Feast with its emphasis on people versus the dehumanizing technical world we've built. "The insane dreams that the world is made up of can if interpreted wisely bring us back to sanity"—this was the message Feast Family, Inc. was attempting to tell us.

TORA, TORA demonstrates our destructive ability

By HAROLD STERLING
Staffer

If Japan had defeated America in World War II, the question arises whether or not our national magnanimity would have extended to the filming of a war as seen through Japanese eyes. Magnanimity being a one-way street this is impracticable if not impossible. Anyway, the question is essentially a moot one. As we all know America emerged victorious from the war and after countless movies glorifying our role in the war, 20th Century Fox finally got around to filming one supposedly seen through Japanese eyes, namely TORA, TORA, TORA.

The story as recorded in history books is familiar, but according to the movie's advance publicity, 20th Century Fox was to provide us with a new perspective, the Japanese "overview" of the war, the film falls disastrously short of its mark; but if viewed as another example of war genre movies, it is unexcelled in its portrayal of firepower and destruction.

Aside from the spectacular views of the U.S. Pacific Fleet used extensively throughout, the actors along with the director have conspired to present the Japanese unsympathetically as flat, one-dimensional misguided souls. Hoping for once not to see the enemy portrayed as "heavies" and the Americans as "goddies," one expected to see a mature and penetrating study of Japan's side of the war. Instead the movie after much posturing in the beginning, proceeds to reduce the war simplistically to good guys versus bad guys. If indeed, these were Japanese eyes viewing the war, they must have belonged to a segment of pro-American Japanese.

To present the Japanese viewpoint of the war, the directors should have at least delved beneath the surface of the Japanese character and their underlying problems. Apparently no one at 20th Century Fox had ever head the old adage about the inscrutability of the Oriental face, because they allowed the camera to record only the superficial.

TORA, besides being a superscreen, technicolor showcase for U.S. military hardware and World War II cliches, will definitely warm the cockles of Middle Americans of WWII vintage with nostalgic memories. But for the pacifists of this age protesting the Indo China war, it has only one message: war is senseless.

For a definitive movie on how the vanquished viewed a war, we may have to wait. Perhaps not too long—for at the rate things are going in Indo China, 20th Century's next title dealing with the subject may well be: Viet Nam, the War America Lost as Viewed Through American Eyes. Semper Fi dolls.

Minn. law

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CPS) — The Minnesota Senate has passed a bill designed to force a court test of the constitutionality of sending draftees to fight in Indo China.

The bill was introduced by minority leader N. Coleman (Dem.).

SUPPORT THE SEAHAWKS

News From the Castle

Fog comes on big tiger feet to the professeurs. They're to be evaluated. Time to polish up their old techniques; no more slips about Pres. Truman.

A recent Louie-Jarris Survey indicates that Mr. Smith, librarian, has the sexiest eyes on campus.

In response to recent castle rumors: No, Mrs. Foushed does not have a childhood complex! (Lots of people read "Wind in the Willows" 43 times and know all the verses to all of the Pooh songs.)

In requiem for "Mother": "May she rust in pieces."

Note For Those Who Wonder About Funky—He is slowly recovering from a severe case of overwork. His spirit, however, is still with us.

Taylor vies for state office

Junior Brenda Taylor, president of the UNC-W Student North Carolina Association of Educators, will vie for State President April 1-3, at the annual North

Brenda Taylor—President of the UNC-W SNCAE and currently campaigning for the statewide presidency.

Draft board besieged

SAN MATEO, Calif. (CPS) — A resistance group composed primarily of Stanford University professors recently blocked entrance to the draft board here.

Linking arms, they have turned back an estimated 100 people on two induction days. The non-violent protest is attempting to close down the draft board.

The only legal intervention occurred when a motorcycle policeman chalked the tires of several cars parked in front of the board.

Join The
Fun Crowd

Pizza Inn

4016 Oleander Dr.

Ph. 762-0379 to

Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.

Ph. 762-8456 To

Take Out

Sunday - Thursday

11:00 a.m. to

12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday

11:00 a.m. to

2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday

11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

Carolina Association of Educators Convention in Charlotte.

Endorsed by the local SNCAE, Brenda will compete against Ruby Denning of Winston-Salem State University.

"I have already sent campaign letters to all North Carolina SNCAE chapters, though the real campaigning begins in Charlotte," stated Brenda, who is allowed five posters at the convention. Sophomore Terry King is now designing them.

All SNCAE delegates attending the convention will vote by secret ballot following campaign speeches and possible floor nominations Saturday morning. The meeting will adjourn after Andy Phillips of UNC-Chapel Hill, present State SNCAE President, gives his farewell speech and the newly elected officers present acceptance speeches.

Among other duties, the State SNCAE President meets several times in Raleigh for discussions with Mrs. Phebe Emmons, director of student programs.

Physics Dept. open-house

The Physics Department will have an open house in conjunction with the Southeastern Science Fair to be held Saturday, March 27, from 10:00 A.M. until 3:00 P.M. in the Chemistry-Physics Building.

The laboratory facilities will be open to the public in which there will be numerous experiments dealing with a wide range of interests such as nuclear counting devices, cloud chambers, planetarium, microwave apparatus, etc.

During this time refreshments will be served by the Society of Physics Students.

Official Agent for

U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
JEWELRY

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient

Terms

10 N. Front St.

'Earth Day' set for April 22

Earth Day is tentatively set for April 22, and is tentatively planned much like last year's program—a series of speakers from local corporations will explain their antipollution programs. Faculty and students will also speak, and a discussion period will follow the speeches.

In conjunction with Thursday's activities, a city clean-up is planned for Tues., Apr. 20, and a sing is being planned for Wed., Apr.

21. A "Filthy Photo Contest" with first prize of at least $50, is also planned. Rules and further information is posted in the Biology Dept., Hoggard Hall. The purpose is to capture the filthiest spots in New Hanover County and exhibit them to the public.

"We want to get Wilmington involved in this—not just out students—but everybody," concluded Wayne, "because pollution affects everyone."

FROM A DISTANCE it appears the dorm is almost completed, but an examination of the interior proved there is plenty of work to be done.

Nominations now being accepted

The Board of Elections is presently working on plans for this year's general election slated for Thursday, April 20.

A student assembly for candidate's speeches has been scheduled for Wednesday, April 28, 10:30-12:30.

Tentative plans also call for the use of the New Hanover Board of Election's voting machines on election-day.

As of today, March 24 nominations are being accepted by the board. Anyone wanting to run for office should pick up a nomination blank from J. Di Sarno, board chairman or Bob Wiard SGA President.

All candidates must take the Constitution Test (SGA Constitution-Article VII, Section 6-A) and score at least 70 percent before being eligible for office. The Constitution Test dates will be posted on the bulletin board (Student Services Bldg) near the SGA office. The dates will be posted Friday morning.

All other election information will be posted here. Anyone interested in working with the Board of Election should contact Bob Wiard or J. Di Sarno. Political advertising can be purchased from the SEAHAWK at special discount prices.

Posters Patches
and Candles
new at the Bookstore
where there's always a Sale!

A.P.O. News

By ED BOYLAN

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity sponsored the "Shamrocks for Muscular Dystrophy" campaign on St. Patrick's Day. The money you contributed will be of great help to those who are handicapped in this way.

Upsilon Nu Chapter's new pledges are: Gene Davis, Tony Lombardo, Richard Long, Dickie Miller, and Irving Shaw.

They have been assisting the Admissions Office by showing new students around the campus.

They are also helping the Brothers paint the Anderson House at Front and Orange Streets. This is to be the new headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America.

In addition, they will be actively participating along with the Brotherhood in the formal opening of the Kenan Auditorium Friday, March 26, as campus guides.

Is publication board a good idea?

Such a board would select campus editors instead of leaving the responsibility to the Student Affairs Committee, as is presently done. "We are just talking about it now and laying the foundations as to what we think a publications board should do," stated Student Body President Bob Wiard. "The idea was initiated by people as something to be done in the future, perhaps next year," he further commented.

Forming such a publications board, present on many college campuses, would raise questions. For example, should it handle publication finances now handled by the student senate? What should be its power and limitations? Would it meet often? Would it keep student interest? These and other such questions require much thought and study.

Interested In Chess?

JOIN

The Recently

Chartered

CHESS CLUB

Phone 791-5686

COLLEGE VIEW 66

"Your Car Is Our Business"

A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

New reporters added

Thanks to Dr. Collier of the English Department twelve new reporters have been added to the staff of the SEAHAWK.

The paper had been having a difficult time in the past in finding enough people to gather the news around the campus. This problem was partially solved at the beginning of this semester when an introductory class in journalism was opened with Dr. Collier as instructor.

At the beginning, Dr. Collier assigned the students of his class the task of writing news, both on and off campus. He said that it was optional whether or not they had their stories printed. Most of the students, however, have submitted their reports to the grateful members of the SEAHAWK. Some have even officially joined the undermanned staff.

Jack DiSarno, editor of the SEAHAWK, welcomes any student on campus who wishes to write a story for the paper. He would also like to see more students here express their opinions by writing letters to the editor. If they would like to join the staff they are invited to attend the SEAHAWK's meetings held at 11:30 every Tuesday upstairs in the Pub.

Now that the SEAHAWK has found more writers to report the news, it would like to see more news for the writers to write.

A FOOTBALL GAME machine is the latest addition to the Student Services Building. Looks like it already has some fans. (photo by J. Di Sarno).

New sorority approved

Monday, March 8, ladies from the Wilmington Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority met with the Student Affairs Committee to propose that a chapter be started on campus.

Delta Sigma Theta, a predominantly black national sorority, has an active alumni chapter in Wilmington and its members would like to start a campus chapter for female students.

The proposal was brought before the Panhellenic Council, composed of delegates of Phi Mu and Zeta Tau Alpha Sororities, and approved.

No other topic was discussed at the Student Affairs Committee meeting.

SEEN HERE IS the site for the New Business-Economics Building. The building will be located near the library and Chemistry-Physics Building.

ATLANTIS is rising

ATLANTIS, the literary magazine of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington is devoted to the expression of artistic excellence. This publication functions as both an outlet for creative endeavor by students of this campus and as a symbol of their artistic achievements.

Last year, the accumulative efforts of Mrs. Nila Chamberlain and Dr. James Collier, the faculty advisors, and Pamela Ray, the Editor-in-Chief, resulted in the initiation and organization of the magazine and its guiding principles. It is sponsored by the Department of English and financed by student funds. It publishes works by UNC-W students and is student edited. Mr. Claude Howell serves as art consultant.

The staff of ATLANTIS consists of the following students: Lynn Walker, Assistant Editor in Chief; Pamela Brown, Editor of the Editorial Board; Diane Braak, Poetry Editor; Tommy Doehrer, Short Story Editor; Rick Stiles, Review Editor; Brian Benson, Art Editor; Bob Andrise, Photography Editor; David Smith, Copy Editor; and Erich Parker, Publicity Editor. The Editorial Board encourages all student submissions. In addition to poetry, short stories, essays, and reviews, the magazine solicits art and photography. To submit material, one need only contact the appropriate editor or visit the ATLANTIS office in Dr. Hulon's suite in the Education and Psychology Building.

It is no digression to mention the role of ATLANTIS in fostering enthusiasm for creative activities and aesthetic appreciation. The magazine assists with the poetry contest and the short story contest each year. The winners are duly recognized and the prizewinning works are assured of eventual publication. Also the ATLANTIS staff is privileged to host contemporary literary figures in their appearances on campus. Last semester, for example, the magazine presented the author Marjory Sanger and the poet Dianne Ricks, each in open discussions on creativity.

Debate meet to be held tomorrow

The District Round Robin Debate Tournament will be held March 25 on the UNC-W campus. The participants will consist of district high school students. The main topic to be debated will be pollution.

Registration is scheduled for 9 a.m. at tournament headquarters in the Kenan Hall lobby. There will be five rounds in this tournament. The two morning rounds will begin at 9:30 a.m. followed by the afternoon rounds which begin at 1 p.m.

The final results of the tournament will be announced at 5:15 p.m.

The schools invited to participate are Richlands High, Jacksonville Senior High, South Johnston High, West Carteret Hobbton High, and John T. Hoggard High School.

The regional tournament has never been held at UNC-W before. The winners of this tournament will go to the state high school debate tournament.

Anyone desiring information concerning the tournament should contact Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, debate director.

THANKS!

To The Physics Dept.

For The

Use Of

Your Darkroom

Discuss it!

Students, if you think the proposed student-teacher evaluation program would be a good thing, speak up. Inform your professors, fellow students, and even the deans. It takes enthusiasm and support for an idea to become a reality.

The Blue Cockatoo

5523 OLEANDER DR.

Tuesday

Is College Night

(Must Show I-D)

DRAFT .25

Live Bands On Weekends

FREE MOVIE

RICHARD HARRIS as

A MAN CALLED HORSE

Place: PUB

Date: Friday, March 26.

Time: 9:00 P.M.

The most electrifying ritual ever seen!

Paid Advertisement
FREE INFORMATION.
LOW COST, SAFE, LEGAL
ABORTION
IN NEW YORK
SCHEDULED IMMEDIATELY
(212) TR 7-8562
Certified Abortion Referral
All Inquiries Confidential

UNC-W Baseball Schedule

March 26	Williams	Home	3:30 p.m.
27	Williams	Home	3:30 p.m.
29	Paterson State	Home	3:30 p.m.
30	State U. of N.Y.	Home	3:30 p.m.
31	State U. of N.Y.	Home	3:30 p.m.
April 1	Methodist	Home	3:30 p.m.
2	Western Connecticut	Home	3:30 p.m.
3	Western Connecticut	Home	3:30 p.m.
5	Baptist	Away
8	Shaw	Home	3:30 p.m.
12	Va. Commonwealth	Away
13	Va. Commonwealth	Away
14	Elon	Away
15	Davidson	Away
22	Pembroke State	Away
23	Campbell	Home	8:00 p.m.
24	Atlantic Christian	Home	8:00 p.m.
26	Methodist	Away
28	Pembroke State	Home	8:00 p.m.
30	High Point	Away
May 1	Lynchburg	Away
3	St. Andrews	Home	8:00 p.m.
4	Atlantic Christian	Away
7	Baptist	Home	8:00 p.m.
8	Campbell	Away
13	District Playoffs
14	District Playoffs
15	District Playoffs
27	Area Playoffs
28	Area Playoffs
29	Area Playoffs

Two half-hour films, "Rivers of Time" and "Taiwan—Free of China," will be shown by the History

Club Film Series today. The films will be shown at 8:30 p.m. All Students are invited. There is no admission charge.

'Hawks play Kent St. today

Following a victory over Shaw last Saturday which evened UNC-W's season record at 1-1, the Seahawks won their next game against Virginia State, 13-0.

Coach Bill Brooks has announced the addition of Kent State University to the home schedule. The Golden Flashes will meet the Seahawks at 3:30 p.m. today.

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer

Mug - - 30¢

Pitcher - - 1.00

3818 Wrightsville Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

PSYCHEDELIC SHACK

"Headshop"

1502 Market St.

Phone 762-3917

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Read's
JEWELRY
37 NORTH FRONT STREET

WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

*University Rings
*University Jewelry
*Engagement Rings
*Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts

*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Read's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

THE 1971 SEAHAWK TENNIS TEAM—Bottom row, l-r, Mark Thompson, Charles Williamson, Randy Coners, Ray Barshick. Top Row, l-r, Bob Cartes, Randy Atsey, Pete Epperly, Bill Clark. Absent when picture was made were Bill Brooks and Davie Pitts (Photo by Al Payne).

University Of North Carolina At Wilmington

GOLF SCHEDULE — SPRING 1971

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE	TIME
Friday, March 12	Wesleyan College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Monday, March 15	Campbell College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Thursday, March 18	East Carolina University	Greenville, N.C.	2:00 p.m.
Tuesday, March 23	Lynchburg College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Tuesday, March 23	William & Mary College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Monday, March 29	Baptist College at Charleston	Charleston, S.C.	1:00 p.m.
Wednesday, March 31	Atlantic Christian College	Wilson, N.C.	12:30 p.m.
Friday, April 2	St. Andrews College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Friday, April 2	West Connecticut College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Saturday, April 3	West Connecticut College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Monday, April 5	Methodist College	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Tuesday, April 20	Pembroke State University	Lumberton, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Friday, April 23	East Carolina University	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Tuesday, April 27	St. Andrews College	Laurinburg, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Wednesday, April 28	Francis Marion College	Florence, S.C.	1:00 p.m.
Thursday, April 29	Pembroke State University	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Monday, May 3	Baptist College at Charleston	Wilmington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Friday, May 7	Campbell College	Lillington, N.C.	1:00 p.m.
Monday, May 10
Tuesday, May 11	District 29 Tournament	Conway, S.C.	1:00 p.m.

GOLF COACH: EARL ALLEN

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR: BILL BROOKS

COLLEGE STUDENT'S POETRY ANTHOLOGY

THE NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

Announces Its

SPRING COMPETITION

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

April 10

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred by the Board of Judges, because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS
3210 Selby Avenue Los Angeles, Calif. 90034

'Hawks drop 1st to N. C. State

By FRED OURT

The Seahawks lost their first game of the season to N.C. State 3-1. The game was played at Brooks Field, March 8, under extremely cold and windy conditions.

The game began well enough for UNC-W with two routine outs. Then N.C. State third baseman Chris Camach, one of the best hitters in the ACC, hit a 3-1 pitch over the left field fence for the only earned run of the day.

State scored twice in the sixth inning on two UNC-W errors, a sacrifice, and a single by Camach, who went 3 for 4 with 3 RBI's, accounting for all of State's scoring.

The Seahawk's first serious scoring threat came in their half of the sixth. With two outs and a man of first, David Sandlin doubled down the left field line. The runner, Dave McLain, was thrown out at the plate by a good relay throw from, once again, Chris Camach.

UNC-W scored its lone run in the ninth inning. Sandlin reached second on a two-base error, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on Greg Dalton's infield out.

The Hawks finished with one run, three hits, three errors, and left five men on base. N.C. State had three runs, six hits, two errors, and six men left on base. Neither team looked very impressive, but it's early in the season and the cold weather and wind were definitely detrimental to the game.

'Hawks are strong in pitching dept.

By FRED OURT

The outlook for this season is relatively bright. The team should be good defensively and the pitching, as it has been for the past few years, is good—the team earned run average is 1.5 after two games. Hitting, however, will be the determining factor for the Seahawks this year. Right now, they are hitting .143 as a team with only nine basehits.

What the 'Hawks need to develop is three or four good hitters to form the core of the lineup. David Sandlin, Greg Dalton, Bruce Cavanaugh, and Ave McLain are likely candidates to fill the need.

Sandlin has always been a consistent hitter as well as a home run threat. He hit well last year and should do so again this year. Greg Dalton, the freshman third baseman, was a member of the American Legion All-Tournament team at the National Finals. He is a good, strong hitter as well as a good defensive player.

Bruce Cavanaugh had a terrific summer with Post 10, hitting over .400 with a number of home runs. Dave McLain looked good at the bat in the first two games as well as at shortstop.

Along with these four, Mike

Wheeler, Eric Higgins, Charlie Maultsby, Richard Suggs, Mike Farris, and Eddie Booth should all provide some help in the offensive department.

If the Seahawk's hitting potential does develop they are going to be very, very, tough to handle and they should go father in the NAIA than last year.

See The
HISTORY CLUB

Flicks:

"TAIWAN . . ."

and

"RIVERS OF TIME"

Tonight - 8:30

Seahawks top Shaw for first win

In its second game of the year, UNC-W defeated Shaw University 4-3 for its first NAIA win. The victory evened the 'Hawks' record at 1-1.

The Seahawks scored twice in the first inning and twice more in the second. Shaw scored single runs in the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings.

The Seahawks rematch game with N.C. State was rained out in the second inning with UNC-W ahead 2-0.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON TENNIS SCHEDULE - 1971

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE	TIME
March 19	St. Andrews College	Laurinburg, N.C.
April 1	Francis Marion College	Wilmington, N.C.	2:30 p.m.
April 6	Methodist College	Fayetteville, N.C.
April 19	Pembroke State University	Wilmington, N.C.	2:30 p.m.
April 21	Campbell College	Buie's Creek, N.C.
April 24	N.C. Wesleyan College	Wilmington, N.C.	2:30 p.m.
April 28	Francis Marion College	Florence, S.C.

COACH: Calvin Lane

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

Domestic &
Imported Beers

Live
Entertainment

Sound Movies
Cartoons

BY:

*SERO

*CREIGHTON

*ARROW

*MANHATTAN

*VAN HEUSEN

*PIERRE CARDIN

*CHRISTIAN DIOR

*MEDICI

DOWNTOWN

HANOVER CENTER

Curriculum Committee suggests changes

The curriculum committee is a relatively new committee, only having been formed this past year for the purpose of studying changes in the courses proposed by the different departments of the University.

There are two objectives of the committee: 1) to determine whether or not there will be conflicts among courses if change does occur, 2) to determine if it is feasible to offer a particular course.

Members of this committee include Dr. James Beeler, chairman, Mr. L. Adcock, Miss B.A. Greim, Mr. Duncan Randall, Mr. G.S. Rosselot, Al Payne (student), and Mrs. Ellen Gore (student). The two student members were appointed by the Student-Senate. Mr. Thomas P. Brown and Mr. J. Marshall Crews ex-officio members.

The committee meets in the afternoon on the first Monday of each month in the library conference room. Often members of the various departments (faculty) are invited when there is a course change proposed from their department. Otherwise the meetings are closed.

In the future consideration will be given in the "basic required studies" for graduation. It is hoped that these meetings will be open to all faculty and students to express their ideas on the "basic studies."

The Curriculum Committee proposes changes to the N.C. Board of Higher Education who makes the final decision.

Several new courses have been approved for the chemistry, math, and biology departments which will strengthen these departments considerably.

Kenan Auditorium dedication set for Friday

The 1,000-seat Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium will be dedicated in formal ceremonies on Friday, March 28.

Designed as a memorial to the late Mrs. Sarah Graham Kenan of Wilmington, construction of the auditorium was made possible by gifts from the Sarah Graham Kenan Foundation, Inc., totaling more than $721,000.

The ceremonies, to begin at 11 a.m., will be held in the auditorium. The building will be formally presented to the university by James G. Kenan of Atlanta, Ga., nephew of the late Mrs. Kenan, and will be accepted by William C. Friday, president of The University of North Carolina.

A portrait of Mrs. Kenan which will hang in the lobby of the auditorium will be unveiled by her grandniece, Miss Sarah Graham Kenan of Atlanta. It will be accepted by UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright of Wilmington, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, will deliver the invocation, and Dr. Wagoner will extend the welcome. Guests will be introduced by Peter Browne Ruffin, chairman of the board of directors of the Foundation of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Music will be provided by students Steve Tabor, baritone, and Brenda Taylor, soprano. Frank K. Honey, assistant professor of music, will be organist.

The colonial design of the building, intended to keep it in harmony with other buildings on the campus, was a particular challenge to the architects, Ballard, McKim and Sawyer and Leslies N. Boney of Wilmington, because the style has rarely been adapted to such a project. Miller Building Corp. of Wilmington was the general contractor.

Mrs. Kenan, who died in 1968 at the age of 92, was a native and lifelong resident of Wilmington. A member of a wealthy and philanthropic family, gifts from her estate to charitable foundations and educational institutions during her lifetime exceeded $12 million.

The auditorium is one of five gifts to The University of North Carolina at Wilmington from the Kenan family. Three grants from the Sarah Graham Kenan Fund, which is administered by the Foundation of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and in 1968 Mrs. Kenan's stately home on Market Street was deeded to the state and is now the official residence of the UNC-W chancellor.

Other gifts of the Kenan family to the people of the Wilmington area include the Memorial Fountain at Fifth and Market streets, the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, the chapel of St. Andrews Covenant Presbyterian Church, and substantial monetary gifts to a number of nonprofit organizations in New Hanover County.

Stop sign replaces yield sign

A stop sign has replaced the yield sign at the rear of parking lot A. This entrance-exit from lot A onto the heavily travelled Riegel Road near the gym has been termed "potentially dangerous" by Chief Dillon of the UNC-W Campus Police Department. The intersection was studied over a period of time, and the decision was made to replace the yield sign as necessary to insure safe movement.

The intersection of Riegel Road and F Street has been observed also to be potentially dangerous. In this area the main flow of traffic is to and from the large parking lot E at the rear of the cafeteria. There is a stop sign on Riegel Road at the approach to this intersection from the Field House-new dormitory area. The problem seems to be the failure of drivers from the Field House area to stop at the sign.

Chief Dillon said that most drivers coming from the Field House area just continue straight down Riegel Road from habit, not realizing that the side road to lot E has the right of way. He said that it appears incongruous to the layout, but the right-of-way has been awarded to the direction of the heaviest flow of traffic.

Some near-accidents have OCCURRED at the intersection from failures to stop at the sign. Chief Dillon said that with the upcoming ball season there will be increased traffic to and from the Field House area and an even higher risk of accident at the intersection. With this in mind, the chief has asked for student cooperation in being especially careful at the intersection of Riegel Road and F Street as well as careful in campus driving.

STARTS
MARCH 31, 1971

Love means never having to say you're sorry

SHOW TIMES
1-3-5-7-9

PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRESENTS
Ali MacGraw - Ryan O'Neal

ADULTS $2.00
HI. STU. $1.50
CHILDREN $.75

LOVE STORY The Year's
#1 Best Seller

A HOWARD G. MINSKY-ARTHUR HILLER Production
John Marley & Ray Milland Directed by ERICH SEGAL ARTHUR HILLER

Produced by HOWARD G. MINSKY DAVID GOLDEN Executive Producer FRANCIS LAI A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

BAILEY THEATRE

SOUVENIR BOOKS
ON SALE FOR $1.00

abc
THE ATTY

PANASONIC
NEW LOVE SPRING
8-TRACK PLAYERS

8-Track Stereo Cartridge player and AM/FM Stereo Radio. Completely portable; battery or electric with two dynamic speakers. Now you can take your favorite music with you and your favorite girl to your favorite spot... indoors or out. Panasonic... for those who love spring.

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

Over 30 Years In Electronics

1002 So.
College Road
791-7365

MASTER CHARGE
BANK AMERICARD

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

volume 13

10th edition

april 7, 1971

By WAYNE ROGERS

Atco recording stars "Iron Butterfly" will appear in concert during Azelea Festival Week Tuesday, April 13, at 8 p.m. in Hanover Hall.

The west coast based rock group is initiating their spring tour under the slogan "Music Belongs to the People." Thus, "Iron Butterfly" will perform on a "nog guarantee" financial basis for the university.

"Iron Butterfly" has undergone radical change since the departure of lead guitarist Eric Brann. The group's new sound is entirely unlike the style evident in "In A Gadda De Vida", the seventeen-minute track that catapulted the band to fame in 1968.

Mike Pinera, formerly of the "Blues Image", and Larry "Rhino" Kanehart who now share the guitar duties are primarily responsible for the new "Iron Butterfly" sound. Both styles are different from the guitar work of Brann who capitalized on fuzz and putting major chords on the album "Heavy", "In A Gadda De Vida", and "Ball". Pinera's very rhythmic style is clearly Blues and Latin influenced. Rhino's Rhythm and Blues, however, moves toward a country flavor. Long flowing runs characterize his style.

Pinera recognized their compatibility readily: "But all it took was 45 minutes of jam to convince me that some really tremendous things could happen."

The new "Iron Butterfly" sound emerged late in 1970 on the LP "Metamorphosis."

"Iron Butterfly" founder, organist and main song writer Doug Ingle sums up the group on stage: "We try to get in contact with the audience, sort of a person-to-person thing."

Student tickets for the concert may be purchased for $3.00 in the Student Services Building (PUB).

(for explanation, see p. 2)

NEXT YEAR'S YEARLY TUITION AND FEES

Tuition	$260 in-state 800 out-of-state
Academic Fee	43.
Athletic Fee	20.
	Fees are additional to tuition
Activity Fee	40.
Parking Fee	13.50
Computer Lab	40.
Music Lessons	75. per ½ hr. weekly 135. per 1 hr. weekly
Room and Board seven day meal plan	$860.
five day meal plan	810.

(NOTE: These fees are subject to change by the Board of Trustees or Legislature.)

Presidential candidates Boylan, Sroufe and Vice-Pres. candidate Todd speak out

My name is Don J. Sroufe and at this time I wish to announce my filing for the Student Body Presidency. My reasons are better communication between students, administration, and faculty, more activities, and certainly a more improved academic program. If elected I would like to concentrate the efforts of this office into three main areas. One, with our dorms opening up activities for after-hours would be most important especially for the dorm students and also the students who are classified as day students. At this time I have an idea in my head, a rathskellar to be established on campus, possibly run entirely by the students. The second area would be to establish programs through research and development that would add to the student's capabilities and productivity. I would like to see the UNC-W campus setting the precedents and other universities following them. In the third area and certainly one of the most im-

Continued on page 8

Ed Boylan

"One of the main statements I'd like to make concerning my candidacy for Student Body President is that we must create an atmosphere in which a majority of the students of the University are aware and alert to the opportunities and advantages offered here at the University.

I feel that in the past our leaders have done an exceptional job but that the students have not been made completely aware or have not been informed on the opportunities and other advantages to be obtained while at the University, and it will be my attempt if elected to the student body presidency to make students more aware of the opportunities and benefits to be derived during their brief stay here at the University."

Ed stated that visitation policy will be one of his primary concerns if elected. "Since we will be in a new capacity here we will be free to determine policy to a certain extent, depending on the responsibility shown by our students.

I believe that our students
Continued on page 8

Raleigh Todd

Raleigh Todd—"The reason I filed for the vice presidency of the Student Body of UNC-W is that I feel we need a more powerful organized Senate. I would like to state that I do not believe the failure of the Senate this year can be laid entirely upon our Vice but due to a complete feeling of apathy with all the senators involved. Even though the position of Vice President is a position of leading the Senate; he can not lead an army which does not wish to follow. It is up to the senators and I feel I can make the senators see the responsibility they hold as an officer of the student body and the accomplishments that they can accomplish if they put their hearts to it, and if they follow the leadership

Continued on page 8

Don J. Sroufe

Editorials

Thanks to the deans of this university the 1971 Azalea Festival events will not include the traditional mid-week pop music concert.

The concert was to be scheduled by the student Concert Committee. It must be noted incidentally that the committee is solely managed and financed for concerts come from student activity fees.

This year's concert, was tentatively slated for April 13 on campus in Hanover Hall, was to feature "Iron Butterfly." The date met with disapproval from the Chancellor for the understandable reason that UNC-W Easter recess would be in progress.

Necessary measures were then taken to shift the concert to the next evening. In this instance, however, "those in higher places," namely the deans, met in a brief meeting in which no student committee members were present.

Cancellation of the concert resulted, although the Chancellor raised no objections to the rescheduled dates.

What justifies this decision by the deans in which they took the matters into their own hands, thereby disallowing student opinion? The fact of the matter is the deans were fearful of possible racial trouble developing.

It is very, very unlikely that any sort of trouble would have erupted, especially in view of the fact that the concert was to be staged on campus. Numerous concerts, sports events, and other activities have taken place on campus and downtown in the past month or more without incident, all in the wake of the cities tense situation.

The general feeling among interested students is that the deans were very unjust in their decision, and were even more out of place when they excluded students from voicing opinion.

Student Government President Bob Wiard summed up the situation with "What can you expect from an Administration that still maintains segregated bathrooms?"—(W.R.)

Infirmar... when?

There has been much talk recently of expanding the services of the University to accommodate the dorm students that will be living on campus next year.

A popular film series is being planned with this in mind. The bookstore will expand to better serve the resident students; a campus ministry is also being discussed.

One thing that has been overlooked is medical facilities. Why hasn't the administration called for the construction of an infirmary? Does the blame lie with the administration? Does the blame lie with the state legislature for not appropriating the money?

A few student leaders, notably Mike Glancy and Brian Black, have expressed concern over the situation. An infirmary should be the very next building to go up. If the University can find money to cut the grass as often as they do they should be able to finance an infirmary. Perhaps if APO will fill their "psychedelic bathtub" with money to start a fund raising drive this would get the ball rolling. This would certainly be as worthy a cause as, an animal shelter — well wouldn't it?

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief Jack DiSarno
Assistant Editors Susan Bagrowski,
Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographer Al Payne
Advisor Thomas Lupton
Staffers Kay Gregory, Pamela
Simpson, Danny Morrison,
Debbie Holden, Charles Williams
Ray Buchanan, Zack Sessions,
Fred Ourt, Harold Sterling

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed. Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

MILITARY ND-SAIGON

deans act arbitrarily

The recent action by the administration concerning the "Iron Butterfly," concert should be given consideration by all of the candidates running in the April 29 election.

The fact that the "Butterfly" will not appear is not as important as how this decision was arrived at. I mean we will all get along somehow without the concert. On some campuses administration officials would fear violent reaction to such an autocratic act. But that is the other extreme. Why can't students be treated like mature people in their late teens and early twenties?

If this concert matter had been an isolated incident it would be different. The sooner the UNC-W administration realizes that the days when students were concerned with nothing but panty raids and quizzes are long past — the better.

Costs per person for police and fire protection for communities of less than 50,000 generally go up as the size of the community increases.

TEN POINTS

1. increased legislation and strict enforcement of existing anti-pollution legislation
2. increased governmental intervention in population control
3. immediate unilateral withdrawal from Southeast Asia
4. free food stamps for all hungry Americans
5. establishment of a billion-dollar federal job-corps for low-income Americans
6. income-tax reform providing for a real graduated system
7. drastic reduction in defense-spending
8. federal legislation outlawing possession of lethal weapons
9. complete reform of the American judicial and penal systems, with crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation as their goal
10. defeat of the Agnew-Nixon Administration in '72

Board of Elections Notice

TODAY IS THE LAST DAY TO FILE FOR OFFICE

FOR THE APRIL 29 ELECTION

Police failed to act

By T.C. SIMS

Now that everyone has roasted Judge Walker, most of them not even knowing exactly what he said or why, I would like to say a little sanity to the situation. Since His Honor does live right here, available for comment, and since there are some facts available to anyone who seeks them out, there is no excuse for the deluge of bad reporting about him.

What the Judge actually said was in reference to Chief Williamson's comment that he felt it unsafe to send his men into the area near Gregory Church, on the same morning that Judge Walker not only drove his little yellow MG right up to the Church, but got out and talked to the blacks there.

It seemed incredulous to the Judge, and to me also, why armed police officers, paid by the public to protect them and enforce the law, should not be sent to an area when they are needed — regardless of safety.

Therefore, the Judge's remark that there were 10,000 citizens the Chief could have sent to serve papers, and his suggestion that if the Chief could find no one else, he could deputize Calley to serve his papers.

Now there was no mention or insinuation that Calley was the answer to Wilmington's racial problems. The only insinuation was that the Chief needed some men who were not afraid to face danger in following orders.

The man everyone should be roasting is not the Judge, but someone down at Police Headquarters who failed to clear roadblocks which blacks had set up in the area and to inquire of "Rev." Templeton if the sniping was coming from the vicinity of the Church; on the same day that the Judge drove his car down there.

One day later, it was too late.

But whether we roast the Judge or the Chief or no one or everyone involved, it does not erase one thing which certain individuals in our town would like to see erased:

We had a very bad riot here. It could have been nipped in the bud. It was not.

Yesterday (March 24) I drove down Nun Street and circled Gregory Congregational Church twice. All was peaceful. I wonder how long it will last, and how "safety conscious" our Police will be next time.

One of the bouncing rock numbers of "YOUR OWN THING" is sung by the rock troupe Apocalypse. L to R, Kris Johnson, Jon Stevens, Marc Allen III, Elaine Petricoff and Ronnie Hall.

'Your Own Thing' is coming!

Shakespeare is probably resting in happiness back under Avon because of "Your Own Thing", a joyful, modern musical comedy version of his "Twelfth Night." Having run over two years of Broadway, it has attained the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award—one of the most highly coveted prizes that any American stage attraction can hope to gain.

"Your Own Thing" is coming to The Sarah Graham Kanan Memorial Auditorium for one performance, Apr. 27. Because of an early run on tickets by the public, students are urged by Mr. Doug Swink to pick up their tickets now. Admission will be free to UNC-W students with their I.D. Cards, and general Admission will be $1. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

"Your Own Thing" is a joyful, modern musical comedy version of Shakespeare's romantic comedy, "Twelfth Night." Almost every Shakespearean play has been turned into an opera, but only four of his works have been adapted into musical comedy form. "Kiss Me, Kate, based on 'The Taming of the Shrew' was first, with Romeo and Juliet's 'West Side Story' following. 'The Boys from Syracuse, based on 'The Comedy of Errors,' was third.

The fourth such triumph is "Your Own Thing", which opened in New York early in Jan. 1986 and drew capacity crowds for two years and three months.

The tongue-in-cheek modern re-telling was made into "Your Own Thing" by Donald Driver, and its songs were written by Hal Hester and Danny Apollinar. When it first opened in New York, Clive Barnes, critic for the New York Times, said in his review that "The humor of the show is light-fingered and light-hearted, its vitality and charm are terrific, and the music is always engaging."

Fourteen months later this critic returned to see the show again and reported:

"When I saw it on its opening, it was love at first sight. I was startled by its freshness. Now, knowing what to expect, I found it no longer startling, but this shrewd, witty, pointed, rock and rollickous version of 'Twelfth Night' is still great fun."

The original Shakespearean tale of mixed-up lovers has been given a hilarious contemporary switch in this musical which has delighted audiences not only in New York but also in long runs in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, London, Paris, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Berlin, Melbourne, Sidney, Mexico City and Rome.

Tickets are available at the auditorium between 2 and 6 p.m. Monday-Friday, or may be purchased at the door. But they're going fast!

19th century woman is liberated

By EVELYN KLIMEK

Thursday night, Mar. 25, NBC presented Charlotte Brontë's creation, Jane Eyre. Surprisingly enough, the producers did an excellent job of presenting this nineteenth century creation to the twentieth century viewer.

George C Scott, whom we all remember for his role as Patton, played the rigid, unattractive Edward Rochester, Suzannah York portrayed Jane Eyre, the first liberated woman of the Nineteenth century.

The success of this show can be attributed to a variety of things. First of all, the producers did not try to create happenings which would appeal to the twentieth century viewer. The movie followed the book very closely.

Different scenes of the movie were filmed at actual sites appearing in the novel. The beautiful English room, the wind blowing through the heather, and the estate of Thornfield itself will long remain in the minds of those who witnessed this spectacular show.

Music presented throughout the show was used to create certain moods. This music was very effective and almost an integral part of the movie itself.

The female audience reacted, I believe, more strongly to the character of Jane because, living in the midst of an age when women's liberation is a key issue, they could more readily identify with her.

Considering the two hour time period, which did not include commercials, I think the producers succeeded in including the most important and essential events of the novel. Perhaps they could have included more of her early life so viewers could understand a few small eccentricities in her character.

North Carolina State University in Raleigh is having their "All Campus Weekend" on April 16 and 17 and 18. The event is roughly equivalent to "Jubilee" at UNC-Chapel Hill. Tentatively scheduled to appear are Judy Collins, Chakro, Shanti, Badfinger, Manhattan Transfer and perhaps others.

News From the Castle

Funky is finally home from the hospital and tremendously busy catching up on all the castle news!

His favorite professor Mile Daly was disposed of by the administration for owning a "wicked manejo." Funky just couldn't understand it—she never brought the silly thing to school, so why did it bother anyone?

Mr. Pucker has announced that he will give extra credit to girls who makes up tests on Friday night when his wife is out of town. (Unfortunately the poor things know he was just kidding.)

One of Funky's best friends, Crusader the Clean, has been thrown out of the round table. The table thought it was a bit hypocritical to carry a "Clean Up the Environment" sign and puff on a cigarette at the same time.

Funky's compliments to Prof. Stides—not many people have enough finesse to handle a situation like he had to handle. What do you say when a dog is washing himself amid guffaws from your class? Why you say, "Il se lave," of course. (Making use of the pronominal verbe.)

Love Story is....

By JANE DIVINE

"How do I begin to tell the story..." Oliver Barrett IV remembers his life with Jennifer Cavalleri, and Erich Segal records the memories in Love Story.

An unusual turn about, the book was taken directly from the movie in which Jennifer (Ali McGraw) and Oliver (Ryan O'Neil) were unusually read and most of the action was filmed on-location.

If you're looking for deep-plotted adventures, Love Story will probably turn you off—unless you also like to share memories with a close friend or like to feel loved in a poignant sort of way.

As Jennifer, Ali McGraw is saasy, loveable, believable. Prior to this movie, we've come away from "tear-jerkers" knowing the plot was fantasy, because so many movies of this genre end happily ever after—the princess and her prince gallop away on his steed. Not so in Love Story.

Ryan O'Neil doesn't play Oliver; he is Oliver. He, as well as the entire cast, are alive; one can't detect "acting" in any of them. Over-acting "the preppy's" part could be too easily performed, yet Ryan O'Neil is believable; he's human. So are the fathers—without them, the quality of reality would be low. While not "lead" roles, Phil Cavalleri (Jennifer's father) and Oliver Barrett III are essential—and their parts were well handled.

Was the movie like the book? Yes—nothing except the ending was changed. Had the movie ended like the book, the viewer would probably be not satisfied; but if the book ended like the movie, the reader would feel too full, and it might leave a taste rather than a nice feeling—which one can get either way—from Love Story.

The winners of this year's National Wildlife Federation Awards for Distinguished Service in Conservation are: James Morrison of Atlanta—Conservationist of the Year, Senator Philip Hart of Michigan—The Distinguished Service Award in Legislation. Jacques Cousteau received the Conservation Communication Award.

Join The Fun Crowd

Pizza inn

4016 Oleander Dr.
Ph. 762-0379 to
Take Out
Or 3406 Market St.
Ph. 762-8456 To
Take Out

Sunday - Thursday
11:00 a.m. to
12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday
11:00 a.m. to
2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday
11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's

37 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts
*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

More orders
patches, posters, & candles

ARE COMING TO
the bookstore

Phone 791-5696
COLLEGE VIEW 66
"Your Car Is Our Business"
A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium was officially dedicated March 26 in formal ceremonies. Miss Sarah Graham Kenan of Atlanta unveiled this portrait of her grandmother. It hangs in the auditorium's Lobby.

Summer school schedules available after break

First session summer school pre-registration for enrolled students will be April 20-23. Students who enroll will be billed April 27 and must pay by May 14. $10 per semester hour plus $14 required fees will be charged; cost for six semester hours (the usual maximum) of work plus the required fee totals $14.

"Students who enroll at this time will not have to come on June 2", regular registration day," stated Dr. Marshall Crews, director of admission.

"The printed schedule will be available after Easter vacation. Directions for enrolling will be given at a later date by the Registrar and will be announced to all classes," stated Dr. Crews, who added "Anyone needing financial assistance should see Dean Brown."

Domestic & Imported Beers

• Live Entertainment

• Sound Movies
• Cartoons

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND TRUST CO. N.A.

Senate approves expenditures

In Senate action Tuesday, March 30, the committee which reviews club charters reported on two new clubs which would like to be chartered; these were the Young Republicans and the Trampoline Club. The Young Republican organization was reported as favorable from the committees and received senate approval. The committee said it would report on the other club at a later date. Student Body President, Bob Wiard, reported briefly on concert committee actions saying it was planning to have the Iron Butterfly but problems had been encountered and therefore this group's appearance would not become a reality.

The dance committee requested an additional $500 to be used for the May Dance and the S.R.O. Theater asked for $381.84 to cover a mix up in the record books. Dr. Rogers commented that this problem had occurred because of a foggy and unclear method of submitting requisitions. Questions were raised as to where the money would come from: it will come from the reserve fund, leaving about $150 in this fund. The payment of these expenditures was approved.

Brian Black, Vice-President, then read a letter which stated that the judicial appeals board would meet Tuesday, April 8, at 11:30 to review a charge that the senate has not used proper constitutional procedures in impeachment and expulsion of several senators. The hearing is to be in the student government office.

Debate followed the proposals over the Fine Arts request to be assured of a minimum of $3,000. for next year's budget.

Gov't documents available in library

By PAMELA SIMPSON

The William Madison Randall Library here on campus has a government document section that few students know about. Recently we talked to librarian Louise Jackson and assistant, Mrs. Mildred Murdock, concerning the little known facility. According to Miss Jackson this section of the library was created through the efforts of Congress man Alton Lennon back in 1965. In order to make government documents available to the population the federal government designed depository libraries under Title 44 of the U.S. Code. These depository libraries may be provided for in every Congressional district. Miss Jackson also mentioned that they try to get all material which relates to the curriculum.

"When the transportation and marine science departments were created here we tried to order all publications relevant to them. I also take into consideration the residents of Wilmington. Sometimes there are businessmen and teachers, for example, who need certain information and turn to us for it. A man just called to find out something about a certain kind of light bulb being manufactured," she said.

A number of government documents are periodicals and are displayed with the other magazines. Also one can find publication of all open Congressional hearings. The government saves UNC-W quite a bit of money, too, for instance National Atlas by Geological Survey would cost $100.00 and weighs around 15 or 20 pounds.

There is a display shelf in the document area, which is changed regularly by Mrs. Murdock and a student assistant. There is no catalog for government documents. The material is indexed in a Monthly Catalog located on the index table.

PACE is here to help

PACE is where it's at this summer! What's PACE? It's a plan that was developed by the N.C. State Dept. of Public Welfare. It's purpose is to help financially limited students take advantage of the federal Higher Education Act of 1965; this is accomplished by finding them summer work in a non-profit agency of their hometown. The agency matches federal aid by not more than 25 percent of the student's total earnings.

UNC-W participates in this program with a quota of fifteen students. These students have 480 maximum work hour allowance at a wage of $1.75 per hour. Applications for the fifteen students positions have already been chosen by the college review board and sent to Raleigh (applications should be in by the first of March), but other applications will be accepted for vacancy consideration. Applications are turned in to Dean Brown.

'Tax inequity against young people isn't fair'

RALEIGH, N.C. March 18 — A bill Sen. Marshall Rauch says would remove a tax inequity against young people "earning a living with one hand and pursuing an education with the other" has been introduced in the N.C. Senate.

Rep. Marcus Short of Greensboro introduced a companion measure in the House of Representatives.

Both seek to broaden an action of the 1967 General Assembly, which granted an extra exemption of $600 for each dependent in college.

Rauch and Short want the same exemption extended to young married couples engaged in both earning a living and rounding out the education of one or both of the spouses.

A couple in their forties with one child in college is eligible for the extra $600.

"However," Rauch says, "a pair of 20-year-olds with the husband in college is not eligible for the same extra $600."

Filthy Photo's dead line is
APR. 20

Memo

ATTENTION

FACULTY:

Read The Seahawk

To See What Exciting

New Committee We've

Put You On —

Sorry,

The Guys In S201

Paid Advertisement

FREE INFORMATION.
LOW COST, SAFE, LEGAL

ABORTION

IN NEW YORK
SCHEDULED IMMEDIATELY

(212) TR 7-8562

Certified Abortion Referral

All Inquiries Confidential

psychedelic
shack
"headshop"
1502 market
762-3917

Bookstore cramped

Due to the recent growth of UNC-W the bookstore has become cramped for space. Several ways of expanding the facility are being considered by Manager Pat Gaskins and the business office.

Next year, with the new dorms opening, the bookstore is planning to carry supplies to meet the needs of our resident students. These new supplies will include such things as bedspreads, toilet articles, and other miscellaneous items.

Also planned is a newsrack carrying daily newspapers and current magazines.

It seems that, with all this new merchandise will be coming into the already crowded bookstore.

When asked the major problems that the store has at present, Mrs. Gaskins answered by saying that there were no outstanding problems except an occasional bad check and the need for more room.

Another minor problem which the bookstore encounters is out-of-town students who receive large checks from home. Since the store does not carry the ready money to cash checks for more than $20 and most banks will not cash an out-of-town check unless the person has an account with them, Mrs. Gaskins suggests that these students open a checking account at a bank near our campus.

As for the remedy of the problem of space, all she said she can do is hope.

Walk for Mankind May 8

Project Concern — Walk for Mankind will be held state-wide Sat., May 8. Locally, students are needed to man rest station along the 20 mile route in Wilmington.

Students who want to walk should preregister at a time and place to be announced later. Information, instructions, and sponsor sheets will be given to the walker, who then tries to get as many sponsors as possible. Between sponsor and walker an amount per mile is agreed on. Walk marshals at each checkpoint verify the distance travelled. Each walker is then responsible for collecting the amount due from his sponsors and taking it to the designated location.

Walk marshals are needed to man walk stations which will have water and rest rooms available to the walkers. Anyone can walk; if interested, contact Raleigh Todd.

Sponsored in North Carolina by the N.C. Junior Sorosis, the Walk for Mankind was begun by Dr. Jim Turpin, who has taken his organization, Project Concern, into neglected areas to help where the need is greatest. Six clinics and two rural hospitals in Hong Kong, South Vietnam, Mexico, and Appalachia, USA, need funds to operate. A national plan to involve organizations, schools, and communities, the walk is a fund raising effort to "help the helpless."

APO pledges Long, Shaw to rock for Easter Seals

What! Spend over 56 hours of Easter vacation continually rocking in a rocking chair??

This feat is planned by the A.P.O. to help raise money for Easter Seals. Pledges Richard Long and Irving Shaw, have agreed to be the lucky rockers — one will be at Rose's and the other will be at Gibson's, announced Dickie Miller, pledge class president. With the assistance of the Brothers and Alpha Chi Sigma they intend to start at 10:00 a.m. tomorrow. They must keep rocking continually and should finish up at about 5:00 a.m. Saturday. All contributions will be greatly needed; if you don't have money, they will be glad to accept gold rings, watches, gold fillings from your teeth or mortgages on your house or car.

The following week the Fraternity Sweetheart, Brothers, and pledges plan to decorate the Pub for a dance during the Azalea Festival. This is given by the Azalea Festival Committee in honor of the Queen's Court.

In another important action Bruce Williams was elected recording secretary.

Student productions compose 'Studio 71'

Studio '71, a composite of works by and for students, will open May 6 and 8:30 P.M. in the SRO Theater, and will run through Sunday, May 9.

"The Masks, an original play by John Richardson, draws upon the talents of local actors, writers and student directors to produce the show.

"The Masks" directed by students Pamela Ray and Brent Scott, takes place in an insane asylum and is concerned with man's inability to understand objectivity because of his own subjectivity. The play attempts to make the distinction between sanity and insanity as a failure to rationalize personal actions and reactions.

Cast for "The Masks" includes: Doctors, John Beane, David Mercer; An Evangelist, Tim Wesner; A Jewish Mother, Betsy Cobb; A Poet, Leslie Jordan; A

Philosopher, John Kallman. Judas will be Mark Barefoot, A Revolutionary, Claudia Madley; A mystery guest, Mike Groves, and An Orderly is David Day.

"Indeed, the play leaves the audience wondering and contemplating their own sanity!" stated John Richardson author of the play.

Ed's Play" written by Ed Norris, a former student of UNC-W will be directed by Sam Sweat and Liz LaRosa.

The bulk of the action takes place in a junk yard where we find Ralph (Rhic Marshall), a bum associated with the sea, brooding over his troubles and not being aware of the life aware him. Ralph shares the junk yard with Herman (Steve Vallender), a pedantic elderly bum who has made an agreement with Ralph to live together in the junk yard. The life they expected has not been found and they wonder why. A solution is presented in the end which has eluded them because of its simplicity.

Free movies attract crowd

Standing room only was the only way to describe the success of "The Private War of Major Benson" and "A Man Called Horse" according to Raleigh Todd, member of the fine arts committee. "A very big success," he stated that 287 people crowded into the Pub. We had every chair, stool, and sofa in the building pushed into the Pub, and people were lining the walls, sitting on the floor, in the aisles, and underneath the screen. We couldn't have gotten five more people in there!" he said.

"Cool Hand Luke" and The Reivers" will be flicked May 21 in the Pub at 7 and 9 p.m.

"Next years film series depends upon Senate's approval of next year's Fine Arts budget, stated Raleigh.

"If you want more movies like these, tell your senators. The final decision is in their hands," he concluded.

KNITS:
IN STEP
FOR SPRING

Solids, stripes, geometrics. Whatever your liking, you'll find one of the largest selections of knit trousers in this area at Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

North 17 Shopping Center

Draft counseling soon available

Plans for local draft counseling services to be made available to young men in New Hanover County are presently in process. Soph. Mike Quacy has announced that Quakers in High Point, N.C., have offered their services to train anyone interested in becoming a draft counselor in this area.

The draft counselor's job would consist of making information available to all those who seek legal alternatives to active military duty. The counseling service will not be officially affiliated with UNC-W. However, students of the campus will be encouraged to avail themselves of the service.

The Quakers (Society of Friends) hold pacifism as one of their fundamental beliefs and have been active in opposition to the draft and the Viet Nam War.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

GREG DALTON TAKES a swing at a pitch during the recent SUNNY at Geneseo game. Dalton has been one of the Hawks strongest hitters this season.

THE JESSIE REHDER SHORT STORY CONTEST FOR UNC-W STUDENTS

Sponsored by The Department of English
University of North Carolina at Wilmington

First Prize $100.
Second Prize 50.
Third Prize 25.

DEADLINE 16 APRIL 1971

SUBMIT MANUSCRIPTS

To: Secretary
Dept. of English
Room 203
Kenan Building
UNC-W Campus

(Limit 2 per student)

COLLEGE STUDENT'S POETRY ANTHOLOGY

THE NATIONAL POETRY PRESS
Announces Its
SPRING COMPETITION

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

April 10

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred by the Board of Judges, because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS
3210 Selby Avenue Los Angeles, Calif. 90034

'Hawks stall for tie

By FREDOURT

Since last issue, the Seahawk baseball team has raised its record to 8-1-1. A tie in baseball? Right on. The tie game was with Lynchburg, a home game, the score 3-3. Sandlin, the starting pitcher, was hit fairly hard but the Lynchburg scores were set up by the errors.

UNC-W scored on back to back doubles by Sandlin and Dalton in the fourth inning, and a walk, hit batsman, and singles by Sandlin and Dalton in the seventh inning. In the ninth, with the score still tied, Cavanaugh walked and McLain singled. Sandlin then hit a shot to left field which was caught on a good play; and Cavanaugh was doubled off second to choke off the rally.

In the top of the tenth the led off batter singled off Booth. This was followed by a run-scoring double. The next batter sacrificed the runner to third, then a perfect squeeze play brought home the second run.

Next, Coach Brooks went in the "Four Corners"—a stall. It was after 6:30 then with the light fading quickly. The electricity was not hooked up to the field's lights. Soon it would be too dark to play safely—and by the rules the hometeam must have its time at bat in extra innings if it is behind. If the home team doesn't bat, then by NAIA rules, it is declared no game—a tie.

Brooks walked slowly to the mound and conferred at length with Booth. Booth's next pitch was two feet high and outside. Divining the purpose, the Lynchburg coach ordered his batter to swing at anything, which he did on the next two pitches. Brooks then brought in Eddie Atkins to pitch. Atkins took his time, threw a couple of wild pitches in warmups, Cavanaugh threw one into centerfield—and the umpires stopped the game.

Needless to say, Lynchburg had a few unpleasant things to say about the whole business. They protested the fans yelled at them, and the Seahawks left the field. The 'Hawks should get a warm reception at Lynchburg when they play them on May 1.

Except for this game, the 'Hawks clearly outclassed their opponents. They defeated Virginia State 13-0, Elon 4-2, Davidson 1-0, and 5-2, and Kent State, 4-0 and Williams 4-0 and 5-0.

The pitching has been excellent, and the fielding good on most occasions. Hitting has improved greatly, with Sandlin and Dalton over the .300 mark and Richard Suggs and Cavanaugh just under .300. The team batting average is over .220, which is quite good.

'Hawks need more support

By FREDOURT

With warm weather on the way and night games just in the near future, it is time for some more people to attend the games. So far in the season, "crowds" have been averaging about fifty a game—scouts, parents, coaches, and the Faithful. Few students who come out to almost all the games. Granted, it is sometimes cold and windy, but the Seahawks have a good team and one can see some good baseball at Brooks Field. With twenty-two home games scheduled for this season, it's not possible to be busy during all of them.

Bring a date, a blanket—anything to keep you warm—and see one of the games. The Hawks need some fans and the peanut man needs more customers.

SUPPORT THE SEAHAWKS

The Blue Cockatoo

5523 OLEANDER DR.

Tuesday

Is College Night

(Must Show I-D)

DRAFT .25

Live Bands On Weekends

SECOND ANNUAL FILTHY PHOTO CONTEST
Sponsored by University Of North Carolina at Wilmington Biology Club

The purpose of this contest is to bring to the attention of the public any activities causing pollution in New Hanover and surrounding counties. Anyone interested in participating should submit a photograph of what they think is the most harmful incident causing pollution in our area.

Rules of the Contest

1. Any interested person of any age is eligible except judges and their immediate families.
2. Any size photograph, black and white or color, is admissible. No slides. Pictures will not be returned after the contest.
3. Print your name and address and the site of the picture taken on the back of the photograph.
4. All entries must be submitted by 12:00 A.M., April 20, 1971. Winners will be announced on April 22, 1971, at UNC-W. Winners will be notified by mail.

Minimum first prize will be $50. Additional prizes and sponsors will be announced at a later date.

Send photographs to:

BIOLOGY CLUB
c/o MR. FRANK ALLEN
BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT, UNC-W
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

It is our hope that everyone will participate in this contest as these pictures will be used to help free our area of pollution.

the seahawk is looking for dependable photographers for next year scholarships will be available.

"Sesame Street" to be copied

College Press Service
New York City
Educators here are making plans to adapt the techniques of the "Sesame Street" television programs to special programs for high school and college students. Representatives of the City University of New York, the Educational Broadcasting Corporation, Amherst College, Hofstra University, University of California-

Berkely and the Educational Testing Service are planning a venture aimed at "increasing significantly skills in mathematics reading and English composition," and "increasing motivation to pursue higher education and to improve study habits." The programs, which WNET of New York says would require 18 months to produce, would be aimed at "deficient" high schools

UNC-W Baseball Schedule

April	8 Shaw	Home	3:30 p.m.
	12 Va. Commonwealth	Away
	13 Va. Commonwealth	Away
	14 Elon	Away
	15 Davidson	Away
	22 Pembroke State	Away
	23 Campbell	Home	8:00 p.m.
	24 Atlantic Christian	Home	8:00 p.m.
	26 Methodist	Away
	28 Pembroke State	Home	8:00 p.m.
	30 High Point	Away
May	1 Lynchburg	Away
	3 St. Andrews	Home	8:00 p.m.
	4 Atlantic Christian	Away
	7 Baptist	Home	8:00 p.m.
	8 Campbell	Away
	13 District Playoffs
	14 District Playoffs
	15 District Playoffs
	27 Area Playoffs
	28 Area Playoffs
	29 Area Playoffs

students, first-year college students and high school "dropouts."

City University is especially interested in the plan because of its 12,000 SEEK (Search for Education, Evaluation and Knowledge) students and more than 10,000 students admitted this year under a new Open Admissions plan, mostly Blacks and Puerto Ricans.

The U.S. Office of Education, National Institute for Mental Health, Carnegie Foundation, Ford Foundation and Public Broadcasting support it.

Ministers meet with students

Student leaders have been meeting with ministers from the Wilmington area with the purpose of establishing a non-demoninational campus ministry here.

Several area ministers have met with members of the Student Government with the purpose of finding out what type of ministry if any students want.

FOR SPRING TRIPPING

With The PANASONIC
8 - Track Recorder Player

Now you can record your own 8-Tracks from records or stereo radio on blank 8-Track tapes for a fraction of the price of pre-recorded tapes.
32 Min. - $2.49
80 Min. - $299

ONLY
$99⁹⁵

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

1002 So. College Rd.
791-7365
Largest Selection
Of Stereo Equipment
In Eastern N. C.
*Master Charge
*Bank Americard

JOAN MILLARD

Models a Georgette gown of 100% Cupro Rayon in white with lace bodice and flowing skirt by Marla Fabrics, Inc. Retailing for $50.00.

from Payne's
WILMINGTON, N. C.

DOWNTOWN
131 NORTH FRONT

HONOVER CENTER

Don Sroufe

Continued from page 1

portant areas to consider, is the intramural sports program. This could be the key program in establishing better communications between clubs, organizations, and students.

My experience is somewhat limited; I do have the time and effort to work at this office. I am a Junior Senator, a member of APO Fraternity, a member of the Business Club; I'm a student representative to the Student Athletic Committee, also a student representative to the Food Services Committee, and at this time I'm in the process of establishing areas which would be the most critical ones in which this office would help the most.

Raleigh Todd

Continued from page 1

to the Vice President.

As for my qualifications for this office, I have held many extra-curricular positions on campus. First as of this year I've served as Sophomore Senator. I was also selected Roy the By the Senate to serve as the student representative, on the Faculty Advisory Committee to the library, and also established and at the present chairman of the Student Library Committee. I have served as an officer of Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity. I also served as a member of the Fine Arts Committee and I feel that the Fine Arts Committee Can add a great should have the freedom to determine what they would like to have there, and I think the administration should respect these requests made by the students. Student opinion should be placed on a trial basis until any problems may arise, at which time students and administration should confer on possible changes in a free visitation policy."

Ed Boylan

Continued from page 1

"I pledged and joined A.P. O. service fraternity and have worked in that fraternity for approximately 2 years now." Ed was elected Vice-President of the Junior Class in a write-in campaign last year. I've also tried in a very limited capacity to further the somewhat null religious atmosphere on campus through the Baptist Student Union which is a non-denominational group. Also I've enjoyed participating in the newly revived intramural program which has recently sort of come to life on cam-deal to this campus as far as entertainment is concerned, and if elected Vice President I will see that more funds are used for student entertainment than has previously been used and that students will not be required to pay $3 and $4 per concert. This will come about by distributing the student fees more equally upon the different committees who will be in charge of entertainment next year.

pus. In some capacities I have helped with the ATLANTIS staff and the SEAHAWK staff by trying to inform students of this action that has been taken in Senate meetings. This I feel is very important. All students should be aware of the actions being taken by the Senate which affects the life of students here on campus."

Alaska army supports troopers

JUNEAU, Alaska (CPS) — The commander of all U.S. Army forces in Alaska says his men are ready to help state troopers fight those who "Would destroy this country from within."

Lt. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth told a troopers banquet here last weekend that the great majority of America's youth were "great," but said two per cent were "Confused, some with malarranged minds. They represent crime and anarchy. They would like to set up the kind of government wherein you leave your personal liberty, personal choice and self-determination."

"You can have all of us," Hollingsworth told the troopers, "armed and ready if necessary— and all the helicopters and trucks and anything else you might need.

UNC-W wins 2 awards in Norfolk lit. contest

Two UNC-W students, Mrs. Christi Weide and Marin Sondey, won first and second places respectively in the essay category of the Fifty-Third Annual Norfolk Literary Contest. Their prizes were awarded on March 26 during the Norfolk Literary Spring Arts Festival. The event was held at the Norfolk Museum of Arts.

The contest consisted of six categories ranging from short stories to free verse. Competition was open to all residents to North Carolina and Virginia.

Mrs. Weide's winning essay, entitled "The Horses of St. Peter's Church," tells the story of a medieval German legend centering around St. Peter's Cathedral in Munich. The legend dates back to the year 1200. Mrs. Weide was presented a check for $200 at the Norfolk Festival.

Majoring in English, Mrs. Weide will graduate this spring. She is a native of Germany, and came to Wilmington in 1949. She also holds a degree in German literature from the University of Munich.

Mrs. Weide has also been awarded second prize in the Images Literary Contest for her short story "A Night in 1944." This contest is sponsored by Images, the literary magazine of UNC-Asheville. The prize was $25 and her story will be published in Images next fall.

Martin Sondey, sophomore, won second place in the same contest for "Return to the Womb." An essay about surfing, Martin describes it as expressing "The realistic qualities, the enjoyment, and the freedom of surfing, especially while in 'tube'."

A student of Dr. James Collier, Martin's essay was originally an Eng. 101 theme. He plans to enter the creative writing class in the fall, and "doesn't write outside of class."

Majoring in English, Martin hopes to teach on the college level. He chose to withhold his essay and to submit it to another national magazine.

Big Brother is watching you

(CPS)— Thailand security forces recently were shipped 10,000 bars of a special American soap. Each bar contains a written message. After washing his hands once, the user learns "Communists are dangerous." Then as the soap wears down, another message appears: "Communists are evil." Further down the lather, the soap reveals: "Communists are never to be trusted."

ZIP MART NOW OPEN

★ PARTY AND PICNIC SUPPLIES

★ SLUSH DRINK

★ BOOK CENTER

★ TOYS

★ FROZEN FOODS

★ ALL GROCERY NEEDS

★ QUALITY

FRESHNESS ALWAYS

SAVE ON

ZIP

SELF SERVICE GAS

COKE 10 OZ CARTON

39¢

DEP TAX

REG. 33⁹
PREM 36⁹

WHEN YOU RUN OUT, RUN IN

ZIP

MART

ACROSS FROM UNC-W

Vote April 29

SGA candidates discuss the issues

Clyde Keith Farmer — SGA Presidency

Presidential Candidate Clyde Keith Farmer

SGA Presidency ...

I would like to take this opportunity to let the students know what I stand for and what I plan to do with the help of the students if elected to the Presidency of the Student Body.

First of all I would like to see a working constitutional student government. In the past our government has lacked the co-ordination and co-operation among the three branches to operate properly. Our court has met seldom, four times all year, and cases have been pending for months. Our Senate, due to apathy of many of its members, has been largely ineffective. To cure this we must appoint members to the court who will take the initiative to carry out their duties, and thereby assure a smooth legal operation of our two remaining branches. This coupled with better communication between the student body and the student government representatives will result in a well-working responsive student government able to react to the wants and needs of the student body.

Secondly, I will urge and work toward the adoption of a pass-fail grading in basic requirement courses. This would allow the students to receive the so-called well-rounded education without the heavy emphasis on grade achievement in areas outside of their major and minor. Therefore, the student's quality point average would reflect his work in his major-minor program and not be overly influenced by average performance in his basic requirements, while at the same time more emphasis could be placed on learning and less on grades in these lower level courses.

This can only be accomplished if it is shown at the polls that student consensus supports this stand. The administration should not ignore the wants of a majority of the students, if elected student officials will stand up for these desires.

Thirdly, I want a co-ordinated entertainment system next year at the lowest possible cost to the student. This year the various committees that provide, with S.G.A. support, have worked each as a separate unit. As a result we have many nights with several events followed by long periods of inactivity.

If elected, I will appoint an entertainment co-ordinator to my cabinet to mold these units into one entertainment system which will work out a schedule allowing all students to take advantage of all entertainment aspects of our campus. Also I will work toward gate percentage contracts at low risk to the students resulting in more entertainment at less cost to the student.

In the past a power vacuum has been created because students would not use their power and take control of their governmental system. The administration has

Continued on page 4

Lee Patkus

SGA Vice - Presidency...

As I view the past year, I feel that the Senate led by Brian Black did a fantastic job in the area of student - teacher evaluations. The Senate made remarkable progress in this area, in an effort to establish a fairness in College education which has long been needed. This action by the Senate has proved that we can influence our own educational institutions. I am seeking the opportunity to serve you in this field by being elected to the office of Vice - President of the Student Body.

Lee Patkus — SGA Vice- Presidency

David L. Cole — SGA Vice-presidency

Cole speaks out

SGA Vice - Presidency...

"One of my main objectives in running for student body vice president is to bring about an organization that will follow the rules it is suppose to govern itself by. For those who are not familiar with what I am referring to, I speak of the Constitution of the Student Government. When a senator of the student government tells me that he doesn't care what the constitution says, that he is going to do exactly as he pleases — I say there is time for a change.

"Another of my main concerns is the complete lack of student involvement on this campus. Granted we aren't an extremely large campus, but someday we will be and it should be our aim as students to lay a foundation for the future students, in which the students will have a large voice concerning this campus through a STRONG student government.

"Also I intend to work towards a more co-ordinated entertainment program, on campus, in agreement with student preferences and at lower prices.

"In the academic field I will work towards a pass-fail system on all lower level required courses. By pass-fail system I mean that you would be given a grade of "pass" or "fail". This would help the student because there would be no quality points given for these courses. — Your quality point average would begin with your major subjects in your major field.

"I could list several qualifications as to my eligibility for the office of vice president, but the most important fact is that I care, do you?"

David L. Cole

Bill Brooks

SGA Vice Presidency...

When I entered UNC-W in the fall of 1969 I expected to find an effective well-run student government in the hands of capable students who were sincerely interested in the growth and betterment of, then Wilmington College. What I expected and what I found; however, were two different things.

While I admired Hugh Newkirk and the good job he was doing as SGA President it was obvious that the power of the students and their voice was not being effectively used in the Senate. The Senate exists for the students and as a representative body, should be a sounding board for new ideas and should pave the way for new opportunities in all areas for the students. This has not been done with much success in the past few years, but the students voice in their school can be revived before it dies.

Continued On Page 3

Bill Brooks — SGA Vice President

Editorials

'Priorities'

Almost every day we hear talk of "...changing our priorities." Most of this talk is concerned with governmental expenditures, especially on the federal level. The recent abortion of federal financing for the SST can be viewed as part of this change.

"A change in priorities," is also needed in the educational institutions across this land. It seems that extra-curricular activities have been over-emphasized to a ridiculous degree.

Intercollegiate athletics, student government and political activism, student press, intramural athletics, and social functions (eg. elaborate homecoming activities, concerts, Greek organizations, etc) have gotten completely out of hand at some schools. A similar situation exists in the public school systems.

Just last year in Pender County junior varsity athletes (7th, 8th, & 9th grades) were scouting opponents on week nights.

Our campus does not seem to be plagued by these distractions as much as some universities. Perhaps this is because UNC-W students don't show much enthusiasm about anything—curricular or extra-curricular.

UNC-W does seem to be somewhat caught in the "professionalization syndrome" of intercollegiate athletics (although on a minor scale compared to most universities). Close to $10,000, a year is spent by your friendly, neighborhood, athletic department, on athletic scholarships and grants-in-aid. Student government officers receive no financial assistance. Almost $10,000 more is spent for athletic travel expenses, equipment, etc. When the athletic fee totals nearly half the amount of the academic fee, something is wrong (next year's athletic fee will be $20 per year per student—academic $43).

At some schools the amount of money spent on popular music concerts (primarily rock, folk, soul) is astronomical. That has not been the case here; gate receipts have in large part paid the performers.

Although the way in which student fees are spent can be a good indicator the problem goes much deeper than that. How do students spend their time? How much of your energy have you actually spent on the learning process? How many hours have you worked in the library or a lab — independent of formal assignments? When you think of UNC-Chapel Hill do you think of the NIT victory or the fact that they have one of the top 10 sociology departments in the country?

These are the questions we must ask ourselves. Let UNC-W and all universities follow the pattern of most of the European universities and many of the excellent American universities. Let's strive to be more like Yale, Harvard, Princeton, the University of Chicago, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Davidson (just to name a few).

the seahawk

UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor-in-Chief	Jack DiSarno
Assistant Editors	Susan Bagrowaitz, Jane Divine, Wayne Rogers
Photographer	Al Payne
Advisor	Lupton
Staffers	Kay Gregory, Pamela Simpson, Danny Morrison, Debbie Holden, Charles Williams Ray Buchanan, Zack Seasons, Fred Ourt, Harold Sterling

THE SEAHAWK is published twice monthly, by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, except during breaks. The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the university or the student body. THE SEAHAWK is a free press and is student run and student financed. Office located upstairs in the Student Services Building, S-201.

Student government needs reform

With student government elections in the near future perhaps an examination of the institution is in order. It is a tradition at UNC-W to associate apathy, absenteeism, stagnation, and acute disorientation with the SGA.

Do these characteristics distinguish UNC-W from other colleges and universities? No. Those that attended 'The Day of the Presidents' remember that the classic complaints about the SGA here, were echoed by student leaders from N.C. State, UNC-C, and UNC-A.

Why all the difficulties? Much of the trouble comes from the very nature of the political systems being utilized on most campuses. The legislative branch seems to be the source of most of the difficulty. The same holds true for N.C. State government and the federal government. The executive department of the state government operates smoothly (despite all the limitations placed on it by the N.C. Constitution) compared to the legislature, which is rated in the bottom 5 in the country. The legislature's and the Student Senate's problems are due in large part to the fact that both are staffed by novice, part-time, representatives who know little or nothing about governmental procedure. This is not a reflection of the intelligence or dedication of individuals but merely a result of the fact that they have had little or no training in this field.

Several reforms could be enacted to increase the efficiency of student government: 1. decreasing the enumerated powers of the Student Senate, 2. increase the powers of the student body president and executive council (student body officers), 3. establishment of a non-student, bureaucracy whose job would be to carry out the policy of elected student representatives. This bureaucracy would consist of several individuals that would be hired and completely supervised by the SGA.

The establishment of a student government workshop, that ideally would be conducted during the same days freshman orientation would also upgrade the quality of the SGA. Although the UNC-W SGA is still experiencing network difficulty the SGA has been more active and effective this year than ever before.

Relativism may cause destruction

By T.C. SIMS
WEST COLUMBIST

At a recent conference on Renaissance studies, held on the Clemson University campus, a paper was read criticizing the new mood in Theater which says (among other things) that Shakespeare's plays are not the realm of literature at all, but of theatre; and that directors must concentrate on what happens between the lines.

As the author of the paper put it, that "ambiguous area between the lines" moves us away from everything definite that we have from the playwright himself, and the subsequent reinterpretations of Shakespeare's plays based on this emphasis have been worse than horrifying to anyone who loves the familiar lines themselves.

"Between -the-lines" theatre is only a symptom however, of a bigger and more horrifying disease which, in the 20th century, is infecting every area of human thought and endeavor.

It is reflected in the painting of Picasso, the poetry of Dylan Thomas, the "musique concrete" of Pierre Schaeffer, the existentialists in philosophy.

and in the loss of a personal God by theologians, whose degrees seem to have done nothing more for them than cause them to speak not-so-great swelling words about some theological Diety whose nature is not quite certain.

The disease is in our generation in the form of the chemical cop-out.

The disease says, "There are no absolutes, no rules; everything is relative. There are no starting points and no finishing lines. One can know nothing for sure." Those who glibly teach such tripe are, by their own definition, teaching nothing to no one, and the end result of accepting it is nowhere. Worse, the total number of people one can communicate with when he has accepted it is none.

There is an inherent chaos in relativism that will be more destructive than any war ever fought if, even on an individual level, one tries to live by its non-precepts. But relativism is the mood of our times, and almost everyone is conforming to it, even (ironically enough) the so-called revolutionaries.

The only true revolutionaries of our time are those who are saying a definite, absolute No to this engulfing malignancy, and striving to combat the chaos it causes.

News From the Castle

Funky is in love; this time it's not just with himself. He loves Miss Azalea Wilming, a beautiful thing who recently visited campus. Azalea is the fairest of the fair, with a creamy white complexion setting off her dark vibrant eyes.

Poetic justice has decreed that Azalea does not love Funky, however. She is a sweet gentlewoman, but quite adamant about her station in life — and she will not lower herself to even consider Funky seriously.

It's just as well. Funky would probably tire of her aristocratic family, beautiful old mansion, and family servant, Uncle Tom. They're nice things to gaze at from a distance, but they get pretentious after awhile.

Earth celebrates her miseries

Tomorrow is Earth Day! Here's the schedule of campus events: 8:00 — Display set-ups, films 11:30 — Discussion Groups with Following Speakers: Dupont, Hercules, Riegel, CP&L, City of Wilmington Also students speakers and special guest speaker, Dr. Eugene Hester from N.C. State.

(A short discussion will be held afterwards in the Biology Dept. with Dr. Hester and interested students.)

2:00 — Filthy Photo Contest Winner $50.00 (first prize)

Note: Ecological Action will be on sale in the bookstore.

PARTICIPATE ... PARTICIPATE ... PARTICIPATE ...

Brooks

Continued from page 1

As it stands now decisions are not made in the Senate and its whole structure is a farce. Committees exist in name only and no one really knows what is going on. As Sophomore Class President I represented the students in the Academic and Student Affairs Councils and have found that is where decisions are made. With the advent of resident students on campus we are faced with the problem and opportunity of representing them in the Student Government, providing services and entertainment for them. Next year the Student Government will have a budget of over $50,000 and as in this past year how that money is spent will be the responsibility of the members of the Senate who approve the budget. How will your money be spent?

As part of the University, UNC-W is excelling in all areas except for the two of campus life and Student Government and I feel that the pre-requisite for good campus activities is a good student government. Next year will be a building year and one of growth and I hope that the Student Government will not be left out. I only make promises that I intend to keep so if I am elected Vice-President I will: 1. Represent the school in the best possible manner, 2. run the Senate as it should be run, and 3. Continue my efforts to provide the best over-all atmosphere of relaxation for students and efficiency in student Government.

The Blue Cockatoo

5523 OLEANDER DR.

Tuesday

Is College Night

(Must Show I-D)

DRAFT .25

Live Bands On Weekends

Iowa String Quartet to play May 3

By WAYNE ROGERS

Firmly established as being elite among present day chamber music ensembles, the Iowa String Quartet will appear in concert in Kenan Auditorium, Monday, May 3, at 8:30 p.m.

The quartet has been consistently praised here and abroad since its formation in 1958 at the University of Iowa where its members are Professors in the School of Music.

Remarkable praise follows their always superb performances. "They achieve a delicate blending, sensitive phrasing and an aristocratic sense of style and finesse" ... "exquisite tone one and intensity" ... "a performance that will be remembered for a long, long time. It was magnificent!"

The quartet is comprised of Allen Ohmes, violinist and concert master, John Ferrell, violinist, William Preucil, viola, and Charles Wendt, violincellist. All are established solo performers in their own right with a wide list of impressive credentials.

In 1967, the Iowa String Quartet was awarded the loan of the fabulous Paganini Stradivarius instruments by the Corcoran Gallery of Washington, D.C.

The true virtuosity of the Iowa String Quartet and the magnificent tonal quality of the Stradivarius instruments will undoubtedly be enhanced by the fine acoustics in Kenan Auditorium.

Student admission is by I.D. card.

Freshmen APO pledges Irving Shaw, left, and Richard Long rocked 56 hours and 21 minutes for Easter Seals. They rocked Easter weekend at Hanover Shopping Center, breaking the old rock record, and collected almost $900. (SECO Photo)

Important games coming up

By FRED OURT

At this point in the season the Hawks have failed only one team — outside of N.C. State — that gave them any trouble. That was Lynchburg, an NAIA District opponent. UNC-W has played only four District 29 games, most of their opponents being Northern teams taking their spring tour of the South. After spring break, the Hawks will face some stiffer competition from District teams, and will soon find out if they can maintain the excellent winning record — 14-1-1—that they now possess.

So far in the season the Hawks look a little sloppy on defense, but that are hitting and pitching quite well. Team E.R.A. is 0.64, the leaders in this department being Atkins at 0.25 and Booth at 0.60.

As a team, the Seahawks are hitting a very respectable .260. Greg Dalton leads all the hitters with a .361 average. Dave McLain is hitting .352, Sandlin .328, Farris .360, Cavanaugh .294, Sugg .250, and Wheeler .267.

ARBY'S

4700 Oleander Drive

ARBY'S NOW UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Jr. Arby's Light Easter 49c

Regular Arby's 79c

Super Arby's 99c

Ham & Cheese/Let. & Tom. 69c

Apple & Cherry Turnovers

Potatoe Cake

Bev & Shakes

P's

Beer & Pizza Parlor

Draught Beer

Mug - - 30¢

Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

More orders
patches, posters, & candles
ARE COMING TO
the bookstore

Farmer

Continued from page 1
stepped in to fill this vacuum. It is now time for the students to take charge of their own affairs. As a Senator the last two years, as treasurer this year, and as a member of several student and faculty committees I have tried with some success to get this power turned back over the students.

In the Treasury I have been getting all student government funds put back under student control and at the same time corrected numerous errors made while the funds were in administration hands. I have instituted over programs, for instance the student's used book sale, which is operated at no profit and has sold over 1,000 books at the student's own price, and I will continue to do so in the future.

I urgently solicit your vote for me and for all Students for a Responsible Government. With your help both in the election and most importantly after the election in all aspects of Student Government, we shall have a strong, responsive, working government with students in complete charge of student affairs.

If you really care ... vote Clyde Keith Farmer for President of the Student Body.

'Your Own Thing' plays Apr. 27

"Your Own Thing," the thoroughly with-it musical that for two and a quarter years was one of the biggest New York hits of its time, is being brought to the UNC-W campus on April 27 in the Sarah Graham Kenan Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. by the Fine Arts Committee.

It's a with-it "now" musical even though it's a comically skewed version of an ancient comedy—Shakespeare's romantic "Twelfth Night"—both because its songs by Hal Hester and Danny Apolinar are solid, hard rock, with here and there touches of lyrical ballads, driving jazz and soothing barber-shop

FBI cracks down

Washington, D.C. (CPS) — Two women, both clerical employees of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said April 6 that they had been forced to resign from their jobs because the FBI objected to their volunteer work for the National Peace Action Coalition during the evening hours.

A third FBI employee, insisting that what she does during her off-duty time is not legitimately the concern of the agency, initially rejected a request that she submit her resignation. However, her employment status was unclear.

Disclosure of the forced resignations came at a time when the FBI is beleaguered by the most severe criticism it has faced in four decades, including demands from several Democrats in Congress for the resignation of J. Edgar Hoover, its 76 year old director.

Since mid-February, the three have volunteered two or three evenings each week at the downtown offices of NPAC, which is coordinating the April 24 marches on Washington and San Francisco to protest the Indochina war.

harmony, and also because the basic idea is emphatically contemporary.

The author-director, Donald Driver, has noticed that nowadays boys and girls often have similar hair-dos and wear similar bell-bottom slacks and other unisex garb so that often it's hard to tell the lads from the lassies.

He has applied this observation to Shakespeare's story of the shipwrecked Viola, who in the strange never-never land of Illyria where she is washed up, finds it advisable to disguise herself as a boy—and thus puts a barrier to winning the love of Count Orsino.

TKE plans public service weekend

Tau Kappa Epsilon will participate in a Public Service Weekend at Lake accamaw Boy's Home Sat., or. 24.

During the morning, ke's, their wives, and dates ll help clean-up the unger boys' cabins, and will ve a picnic for them—mplete with games and izes, according to Artie reene, chapter chairman.

"Three-legged races, and eggrolls have been tentatively scheduled," said Artie. "Later in the day we'll challenge the high school juniors and seniors in a softball game."

New clothes and toys, contributed to the fraternity by local merchants, will be carried to the Boy's Home.

The Public Service Weekend is sponsored by the national fraternity of which TKE is a branch.

Highway Commission says traffic light needed

To alleviate traffic congestion on the UNC-W campus and NC 132, a three-way traffic signal has been proposed by the local division of the North Carolina State Highway Department. Mr. Wayne Howard of the local division talked Apr. 7 with a small group of students about the problem.

"A little over a year ago, traffic surveys were made at all three intersections—the gym entrance, the main entrance, and Randall Road entrance. We have certain requirements and volumes of traffic that must be met before we can put up a traffic signal, so our minimum requirements for signal installation last year were not met by any of these three intersections.

"We did an additional count last spring to see if we could alleviate the situation by providing these left turn lands. You notice that within the last year we've done widening through here and resurfacing and pavement marking to put in these left turn lanes. This takes the left turn traffic out of the through movement, allows the through movement to proceed, thereby providing more acceptable gaps for the left turn movement.

This doesn't do much for the traffic trying to get into 132 from the campus or from University Drive, but it does make traffic move a lot better on 132.

"You're talking about 12,000 vehicles per day on 132 with approximately 1500 vehicles per day at each of these intersections coming into it.

"Last January, Mr. Bass, division engineer, and myself, and Dr. Wagoner met and discussed the problem and have come up with an approach that we hope is being drawn up in some plans.

What I have recommended is a traffic signal at the intersection of Randall Road and 132; in conjunction with this, Dr. Wagner is in correspondence with Henry Von Olsen, campus design architect, to see if whether or not he would approve a cross campus connector. This would be a new road going all the way from the gym road, behind the main buildings, and tie in with Randall Road. Therefore you have all three of these with a cross campus connector to get back and forth to the signalized intersection. In order to put that signal in, to move the maximum amount of traffic in the shortest period of time from the sidestreet, we have to widen (Randall Rd.) for a right turn lane, a left turn lane, and straight through lane, so three cars can come out at once rather than just one.

"These plans I have recommended; this does not mean that they have been approved. The state traffic engineer has the final approval."

At the same time, approval is being sought for widening of 132 from a two-three lane highway into a five lane thoroughfare. This would not be done unless the signal is installed.

"I anticipate that if the plans are approved for the signal, it will probably be done in July and August," he concluded.

'Keep on truckin ...'

Well this is the 11th edition of the SEAHAWK. Sorry it's only a four-page edition. Due to the Easter break, the staff had three days to regroup, gather news and prepare copy. Plans call for two more editions—May 5 and May 19 and we hope they will both be eight-page editions. At any rate this represents the most productive year in SEAHAWK HISTORY—volume wise anyhow.

The credit should go to the present staff (see staff box, bottom left corner pg. 2) especially the Bagowski-Divine-Rogers triumvirate. Also students in the journalism class and notably Dr. James Collier (Journalism instructor) have been most helpful. Pat Gaskins, Terry Smith, Margaret Smith, and Dean Dempsey have also helped us considerably. Terry Hammond, as much as anyone person, is responsible for the goals we have realized.

Don't forget to set your sundials back one hour prior to Sunday, Apr. 25. Daylight Savings Time begins—and means getting up an hour earlier, but think about that extra hour on the beach!

Join The
Fun Crowd

Pizza
inn

4016 Oleander Dr.
Ph. 762-0379 to
Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.
Ph. 762-8456 To
Take Out

Sunday - Thursday
11:00 a.m. to
12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday
11:00 a.m. to
2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday
11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

Steve Boles models an After Six Black Edwardian tuxedo with wide satin lapels. This outfit comes complete with flare or straight-leg pants, shoes in buckle or laceups, shirts in various colors with co-ordinating ties. Rentals ranging from $20 to $28.

Payne's
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON LEADING JEWELER

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Boylan, Todd capture elections

Ed Boylan collected 292 votes in the Student Government runoff elections, outdistancing Clyde Keith Farmer, who received 155 votes. Raleigh Todd defeated Bill Brooks for SGA Vice-President, and Elizabeth Harvin was voted in for secretary.

RALEIGH TODD

In senior class results, Kirk Brown was declared president, Billy Price, vice president, and Pat Watts was "written in" as class secretary. Senior senators according to seniority are Bill Marlowe, David Moore, Gary Huggins, Robert Grace, and Artie Green.

Junior class elected Janice Asbell for their president, Lee Garrix, vice president, and Melanie Karnes for secretary. Senators according to seniority are Connie Schwarz, Ken Brock, Wes Knappe, Jon Green, and Karen Costello.

In Sophomore balloting, Patti McCombie was declared president, Barry Asbury, vice president, and Dianne Lacey, secretary.

Sophomore senators according to seniority are Jane Divine, Micki Martin, Mike Glancy, Lynette Thompson, and Zack Sessions.

ED BOYLAN

UNCW acquires relic

A priceless Egyptian neckless, a relic of the 13th or 14th century B.C., has been acquired by the study museum of UNC-W.

The necklace was taken in the early part of the century from the tomb of an Egyptian king who reigned during the 18th dynasty, sometime between 1200 and 1400 B.C. This dynasty was marked by the reigns of Nefertiti and Akhnaton.

According to Dr. Gerald H. Shinn, associate professor of philosophy and religion at UNC-W and curator of the museum, no definite value can be placed on the necklace because of its rarity.

notice

Students owing library fines or possessing overdue library books are urged to clear their records with the library as soon as possible. Records must be cleared by May 18.

All patrons are mailed two notices concerning overdue materials. If a book is not returned, the borrower is held responsible for the cost of the book and a $2.00 processing fee. Students may inquire about their accounts at the Circulation desk.

Students leaving town at the end of spring semester are especially urged to return all library books before departure.

the seahawk university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 13, No. 12

May 12, 1971

Private Shakespeare Collection currently on display in library

By DEBBIE HOLDEN
Assistant Editor

Mr. Thomas McCall, Assistant Professor of English, has arranged a Shakespeare exhibit which will run through May 23 in the William Madison Randall Library.

The figurines and other articles are the private collection of Mr. McCall and his wife. Included in the collection are several busts of Shakespeare, such as one done by Enoch Wood in 1780, a canvas painting of Shakespeare-1780, and many Dresden China figurines. One figurine that is of particular interest is one by John Bell. It is a white clay figure of Shakespeare that has never been painted. The clay for this was naturally white used... when it came out of the ground.

Very rare are the Minton

Blue Tiles. These tiles are a perfect copy of a memorial to Shakespeare in the Poet's Corner in Westminster Abbey.

One of the most interesting displays is a replica of the Globe Theater. It was made by a student of Mr. McCall's in 1958. It is a perfect scale and a very detailed piece of work which is quite beautiful.

The Folger Library in Washington, which holds the world's largest collection of Shakespeare materials is lending several items to the exhibit. Included are a copy of the original First Folio of Shakespeare's plays-1623, a second edition of the quarto printing of The Merry Wives of Windsor-1619, and numerous other items.

To Mr. McCall and his wife the Shakespeare collection is more than just a hobby. Both teachers, it helps them to become more involved in their teaching, but it also provides an escape from routine work. "No matter where we go there is always that excitement of not knowing what you're going to find." This collection of Shakespeareana, which is impossible to price, is very much a part of Mr. and Mrs. McCall's lives. They have spent 12 years searching for little things and have traded with antique dealers all over the world. Mr. McCall stressed the point that at home he has his collection all through his house rather than in a case. He dislikes cases and had rather have them out where he can enjoy them.

It is truly worthwhile to go see the Shakespeare Exhibit. All the items are priceless and just looking takes you back to Shakespeare's day. As Ben Jonson said, "He was not of an age, but for all time."

Shakespearean - (SECO)

Theta Iota installs new officers, sisters

April 24, 1971, eight young ladies were formally initiated as members of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Incorporated. They since have become charter members of the Theta Iota Chapter on the University campus.

Officers of the Theta Iota Chapter are: President, Marion Jervay; Vice-President, Gloria Ramos; Recording Secretary, Elizabeth Harvin. Other officers are Dale Wright, corresponding secretary; Cora Jones, treasurer, and Isabelle Denkins, Dean of Pledges. Marsha Bryant and Caroleen Jones are chapter historians. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pearsall is the campus advisor.

A tea for the two sororities presently on campus is planned by Theta Iota. The tea will be May 11 in the library conference room, and will serve as a get-acquainted session for all members of the sororities.

May 21 another tea will be held to introduce all interested high school juniors and seniors in Wilmington to the Theta Iota and campus life. The tea will be given at the Delta House at 401 South Seventh St.

Melvin Batson and Curtis Smith were announced first place winners, April 22, in the second annual Filthy Photo Contest sponsored by the Biology Club here on campus.

Their picture, a color photo showing debris lining Smith Creek at a local fertilizer plant, received an award of $50. A second prize of $25 went to Allen Hardbarger and third place winner, Dick Stin, won $15.

The Judges were Dr. James Parnell, chairman of the Biology Department; Dr. Gerald Shinn of the Philosophy Department; and D. J. Marshall Crews, Dean of Student Affairs. They judged the pictures on the basis of man's destruction to natural scenic areas.

The contest was one of the highlights of Earth Day here on campus. The photographs presented examples of pollution in the UNC-W area, ranging from pollution dumped into our local rivers and into the air by industry to garbage and trash dumped along highways and old backroads.

The Biology Club hoped that these pictures would awaken people to the terrible fact of man's destruction to his own environment and help to clear up the mess we seem to have gotten ourselves into.

'Filthy Photo,' award goes to Batson, Smith interview with Guy Owen, page 5

review and preview with Wiard and Boylan page 7

Films being shot at UNCW, page 5

The Seahawk's opinions are recorded on its editorial page. Unsigned editorials are those of the editor; other columns and letters represent only the views of the individual contributors.

Jane Divine, Acting Editor

We've only begun...

Seahawk number twelve, an important edition to us, is the final paper for this school year. Rather than two smaller editions, we have condensed and compiled the largest Seahawk ever. Representing the work and play of UNC-W. The Seahawk made an immense step this year.

For the first time in several years, our publication came out regularly as a tabloid newspaper. While our staff changed positions, lost and gained help frequently, a dedicated core formed and maintained viable proof of their work—more important, the university's growth.

Communication has occurred this year between students, Seahawk staff, and faculty. Discussions originating from our editorial pages have often warmed tempers—yet, ideas have been exchanged, thought has occurred—communication has resulted—and this means a growth in understanding; with this in mind, The Seahawk will continue to present issues and ideas. Next year we will offer a feed back column where anyone can present their view, opinions, and/or ideas.

We hope The Seahawk will appear weekly, for accurate and responsible information will be even more vital to a growing campus. But without your help, support, and ideas, The Seahawk cannot reflect the true personality of the campus.

Promises, promises

An old saying once went, "A promise made is a debt unpaid." So what? So what's going to happen in curriculum committee meetings this year and next? Will we get pass-fail grading, which could mean a lot of help for a lot of quality point averages on campus? Will we get a better, wider, more open curricula to choose from? Not unless we all help to construct a better, more effective system of Student Government—one that will involve and/or represent all views on campus. That's impossible? Not if we all care a little more about our future, and let our feelings be known to the representatives we have elected to represent us when the vote is made.

C. Keith Farmer

Law or Mandate??

In the recent Presidential campaign, one of the candidates mentioned the possibility of establishing a Rathskeller on campus. The immediate question which entered many minds was whether or not beer could be served if indeed a Rathskeller was started.

A quick check to the Student Handbook reveals, "It is illegal to bring alcoholic beverages onto the University property or to consume them there. The University does not permit the serving of alcoholic beverages at any officially sponsored University dance, party, club meeting, or other function. These regulations will be strictly enforced."

At first glance the matter seems clear-cut, however, close scrutiny reveals another viewpoint entirely. A thorough check of the General Statutes of the State of North Carolina, plus some legal advice, shows us that nowhere is there a law preventing a student from bringing a can of his favorite brew into the Pub, opening it up, and drinking it. As long as the student is 18 years of age and the alcoholic content is under 14 per cent, it is perfectly legal. He can not buy or sell it on campus, but it is completely legal to bring it on campus and consume it here.

Clarification is needed concerning the Administration's use of "illegal." What State law would a student be contravening? A binding state, federal, or local law? Or perhaps a law that was invented in the conference room of a carpeted office on campus.

We as students must take a close look at our "Rules." Who makes them: How can they be enforced? If there is indeed a law backing up this statement (in our Handbook), we would like to see it. If not, we might be led to demand that this statement be stricken from the Handbook—with any others which might have been conceived by administrative mandate.

Tim Sims

Summer Thoughts

Summer is at the door. Freedom from the academic grind of schedules and studies awaits us, and the easy life of whatever it is we'll be doing is ready to smile upon us. There is nothing wrong with enjoying a good summer, but think for a moment on several things:

First, the causes you support as students still need your support now. If you must wait until the fall to again become conscious of social injustice, war, women's lib, your church, or whatever cause you say you believe in and work for, allow me to suggest that you are a hypocrite.

Second, if you find that your good-time summer is an excuse to forget the lessons you've learned this year, be sure to examine why you are attending this university.

Third, while you are basking in the sun or hitchhiking around the country, working construction, or whatever you plan to do, please remember who you are and what you are trying to become—if you know. Don't trade what you are for what you can't be.

Fourth, be careful to remember that the "endless summer" is a dream that won't ever happen, and that eventually you must return to the very real—if grimy—world we all live in and get back to the nitty-gritty.

Whatever you escape from or just drop out of for a while will still be awaiting for your renewed attention; it will still be where it's at.

Finally, in the words of Janis Joplin, who obviously did not practice what she preached, but whose words are quite useful nonetheless: "Don't compromise yourself. It's all you got."

FEEDBACK!

anyone desiring to comment complain praise suggest . . .

about anything can now

do so in print.

The seahawk

UNCW, P.O. Box 3725, Wilmington
North Carolina 28401

Acting Editor Jane Divine

Editor Jack DiSarno

Assistant Editors Susan Bagrowski
Debbie Holden
Wayne Rogers

Columnists Keith Farmer
Tim Sims

Photographer Bob Andrise

Sports Editor Fred Ourt

Faculty Adviser Thomas Lupton

The opinions expressed do not necessarily represent the views of the University.

Feedback!

Moled Clay ?

By CRAIG MARTIN

Why is it that we can always count on the inevitable presence of Doc Clay and other non-students in any of Anne Fitzgibbon's productions for UNC-W? Many students complain that Mrs. Fitzgibbon's auditions are virtually meaningless - that she seems to have the cast pre-chosen from a handful of actors otherwise not affiliated with the University.

The only real purpose of the auditions, many students contend, is to find actors for the small roles that could not be filled by one of the members of the Fitzgibbon clique. The truth concerning the auditions can only be open to conjecture, but the prevalence of non-students in her campus productions is obvious.

The quality of Mrs. Fitzgibbon's productions is not questioned. Doc Clay, for instance, is a superior actor who adds life to any production. It is conceded that Mr. Clay's performances excel that of most novice actors at the University, but how will these potential performers gain acting experience if preference is given to people outside of the University?

There are students here who are paying tuition to get an education. In the drama department, the actual experience of participation in a production is an essential part of a drama student's education. Apparently, students are being denied roles in the name of quality. Granted, we should strive for the finest quality productions possible - from within the student body.

Mrs. Fitzgibbon should change her priorities concerning the drama teacher's function in a university. Let the students be given preference in auditions.

The important thing to do is to let the productions be representative of what the students at UNC-W are capable of doing. Though she may lose some quality in her productions by adopting this policy, Mrs. Fitzgibbon will be fulfilling her obligations to the students she is hired to instruct.

Commercial Effects

by FREDOURT

By now, everyone has seen the effects on TV that the removal of cigarette commercials has had. Because of the loss of approximately one quarter of a billion dollars in annual revenue, the various networks have begun to cut back on their programming. As of now, thirty-four shows have been removed from the air for next season, among them The Ed Sullivan Show, The Senator, and Lassie. Agreed, we're better off without a lot of these shows, but what is going to replace them?

Well, next season the TV viewer is going to be treated to numerous movies, some low-budget specials, and a parade of low-budget, low-class shows. Loss in money seems to equal a loss in quality.

Who do we have to thank for this? Those wonderful lobbyists who convinced Congress to, once more, legislate morality for "good of the people." It is true that cigarettes can provide a hazard to one's health; but so can alcohol, overeating, jaywalking, and other everyday activities.

The job of government is to uphold law and order-to protect citizens from the actions of others. It's role is not to protect people from themselves by saying "Don't do that. You might hurt yourself." If the citizens of this country are so immature that they can't make a rational decision concerning smoking, we are in one hell of a mess.

I smoke, and will continue to smoke until I myself decide to stop. No paltry piece of legislation nor gawdy commercial is going to influence me one way or the other. Meanwhile, the quality of viewing on television is lower than ever.

What do they fear?

By C. Keith Farmer

A Teacher Evaluation Program committee was formed in April by the Student Senate to study the possibility of forming such a program on our campus.

The sole intent as stated in a written, signed statement to the chancellor was to "improve the level of instruction on our Campus."

The faculty was then asked to form a committee to discuss this possibility with the students. When this came up at the faculty meeting, there was lengthy debate followed by a 52-25 vote in favor of the motion.

We are appalled by the fact that one third of the faculty does not want to even discuss this with the students. They were not asked to approve a program, merely to discuss it with the students.

The students are making a sincere effort to help the teacher communicate with the student, to "improve the level of instruction on our campus!" Yet one third of our faculty doesn't even want to talk about it.

This might imply that these instructors are afraid to find out what kind of a job they are doing. Or, perhaps that they don't really care whether or not the student learns anything. It may be that those against it are those who need it most.

This could answer my original question, "What do they fear???"

Slurp!

Bob Andrise, after completing controlled experimental testing, has solved one of the trying mysteries of our time. He wishes it to be known that the number 576 denotes the approximate number of licks it takes to get to the delicious chocolate center of a tootsie roll pop.

"You see, boys,
it's still right there."

News From the Castle

The good old flag is just a blowin' in the breeze. Everyone is gone to the beach or some equally pleasant place. Funky bets even God is at the beach. He pouts awhile about not being there too, but that's what you get for trying to "get involved." You involve yourself right out of a Friday afternoon.

School is almost over. Summer vacation is about to tranquilize the state of things. —"Ah, what a relief," Funky thinks. Funky starts Thinking, he had just started doing that recently, and it's still a new feeling. He thinks about his first year at the Castle School. It is sort of sad to think of it ending...He had made three particular castle friends: the Philosopher, the Realist, and the Nice Man who spoke French. The philosopher helped him build Dreams; the Realist made him Practical to some extent; and the man who spoke French also spoke Kindness. These people made the year worthwhile. Funky wonders if he will come back next year. It seems like there is more to be learned outside the castle. Strange, he used to think just the opposite.

Funky sighs—Simon says, "Take one giant step forward." Funky says, "Mother, may I?"

old friends

Once upon my life i wondered

Why everyone laughed and smiled

At the things i said

And i thought perhaps,

The laughter and bright faces

Were apologies for friendship

But the memories linger on,

And i have forgotten their names.

— Roger Hill

Graffiti

Wherever one goes, there generally are signs of human existence. If one pauses to read local bulletin boards, doors, and windows in the Pub, this idea holds true.

An obvious plea for help: "FREE PUPPIES—Black & White short hair 6 weeks old, already wormed. Potential, but only 12 left. Sired by Spot of New Hanover Purebred mutts."

How about "Sexy female with M.A. in psychology desires pupils to tutor in...(a wide variety of topics followed).

"Need ride West of San Diego, California, or any where California."

"Does anyone need a ride up north as far as Mass? (Going May 6).

Even the prophetic can be found: "Baha'u'llah has come to bring peace and love."

But the sign that is obvious to anyone upstairs is: "Summer is a Cow!"

Odom wins first place in Rehder Contest

Winners, above, left to right, are Doris Burkie, Dorothy Odom, first prize winner, Charles Crawford, and James Clark. Below, Dr. J. Paul Reynolds chats with Mr. Henry Rehder, brother of Miss Jessie Rehder. (Photos by Andrise)

Nat'l magazines print UNC - W student's work

By Ray Buchanan
UNC-W student James Clark claims he is not a professional writer. The facts, though, seem to indicate that Clark is indeed a professional.

Clark's interest in writing started during his high school days in Elizabethtown, N.C. His work was first published while he was attending Southeastern Community College. Two poems and a short story were accepted by Aires I, the college's literary magazine. From that start he has advanced to bigger and better things.

To date, Clark has had articles in Wildlife of North Carolina, Southern Sportsman, and the nationally read Field and Stream. All of these were nature articles, which is Clark's main writing interest.

A short story by Clark will be published in an upcoming edition of Field and Stream. Also Clark was awarded an honorable mention for his short story, "Broken Treaty," in the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest, held for UNC-W students.

When questioned on his deep interest in writing, Clark stated that his writing was not career-motivated. "The desire to express myself comes from reading North Carolina authors such as Robert Ruark, Heather Ross Miller, Guy Owen, and Max Steele."

Most of the ideas for his articles, Clark continued, come from seeing something, and becoming interested enough to ask questions. Research plays an all - important part in Clark's writing. One example, he explained, is verifying measurements on trophy animal heads.

James Clark's future in writing appears as promising as his writing itself.

The reception Thursday, April 29 for the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest was given by the Atlantis staff.

Christl Weide won first place and a prize of $200 in the essay division of the Norfolk Society of Arts literary contest. In her essay, entitled "The Horses of St. Peter's," a wife tells her husband a legend related to St. Peter's Cathedral in Munich.

Christl Weide also won second place in the Short Story Contest sponsored by Images, the literary magazine of UNC-Asheville. Her entry, "A Night in 1914," concerns the horrors of bombing.

Martin Sondey also entered the essay division of the Norfolk contest and won second place for his essay "Back to the Womb," which describes the experience of surfing.

James Clark was recognized for a short story that will be published in a forthcoming issue of Field and Stream.

Dr. James Collier of the English department introduced members of the Rehder family and then spoke about Jessie Rehder in the days when he knew her as a teacher at UNC-Chapel Hill. She preferred being called "Jessie" by her students and her door was always open to students.

She had a special rapport with her students and was deeply concerned about their literary ambitions.

Jessie Rehder was herself a novelist and a short story writer. Her best known novel was Remembrance Way. She edited several texts for writers, such as The Story at Work.

The third place winner, Mrs. Chamberlain announced, with a prize of $25.00, was Doris Burkie. Her entry, "Don't Throw Away the Basket," was about a man learning to communicate with another and finding the true meaning of human values.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsall, also an English professor, announced the second place winner, Charles Crawford. His entry, "An Okinawan Nightbird Cries," won a prize of $50.00. This was the story of a straight-laced military officer's discovery of life.

First place, with a prize of $100.00, was announced by Dr. Corbett, Head of the English Department. The winning story was "Seventh Summer" by Dorothy Odom. In this story a seven year old experiences disappointment. The impact of the story was in its style and its carefully wrought characters.

Judging this contest was Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Pearsall, and Dr. Corbett.

Pam Ray then closed the meeting by thanking the Atlantis staff for all the work put into the reception and magazine. For all the people present there was a copy of the first issue of Atlantis. The second issue will arrive the second week of May.

Miss Jessie Rehder

Film jumbles 'Copperfield'

By Evelyn Klimmek
A film version of Charles Dickens's David Copperfield, made especially for television, appeared April 21 on NBC.

An all-British cast headed by Robin Phillips as David attempted to present the adventures of a young man living in Victorian England. He was cast out into the world at an early age, by his stepfather to support himself.

Delbert Mann directed this movie. Oddly enough, he was the same person who directed Jane Eyre, which was presented on television a short while ago. There is really no comparison to the presentation of the two movies. Jane Eyre ran very smoothly and was quite simple to understand. David Copperfield began with showing the last event which occurred at the end of the book.

For two hours the television viewer witnessed flash backs and scenes which jumped from place to place and sometimes skipped as much as five years of action. By the time the movie was completed the viewer was still trying to figure out what was happening in the first scene. If one has not read Mr. Dickens's novel, it is almost impossible to tie the occurrences together and come out with the unified, smooth work which, in reality, David Copperfield is.

The movie definitely had its positive qualities. The acting equal that of Jane Eyre. It was surprising how the child character of David resembled the grown-up character. Ralph Richardson, who portrayed Mr. Micawber, played the best supporting role.

Humor was no asset to this movie. It was not over - emphasized, and the producers successfully created the type of humor prevalent in Victorian England.

As in Jane Eyre, the scenery was breathtaking and the costumes were authentic.

As a whole, the film was tolerable. It needed, however, a great many unifying elements to make it the spectacular presentation Jane Eyre turned out to be.

The Blue Cockatoo

5523 OLEANDER DR.

Tuesday

Is College Night

(Must Show I-D)

DRAFT .25

Live Bands On Weekends

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Phone 791-5686

COLLEGE VIEW 66

"Your Car Is Our Business"

A. A. Grady, Jr.
Manager

Guy Owen

Elementary schools changing

By Kay Gregory

Elementary schools just are not what they used to be. Today's students have more freedom and independence in the classroom than we ever thought about having, due to a new concept sponsored by the Comprehensive School Improvement Program.

This federal project emphasizing the child as an individual is in full swing at Clayton Primary School in Clayton, North Carolina. At this non-graded school each child works according to his ability. For example, if a second grader reads on a third grade level, he meets with children on his level to read. If a third grader does second grade math, he meets with others of his level to study. Each child soon learns where he is to go and is left on his own to a large extent.

Seniors Alice Proctor and Louise Turbeville, Alderman Elementary School Principal Mrs. Smith and Assistant Professor of Education Mrs. Betty Stike visited the school for observation.

"Teachers were very enthusiastic about the new system and students appeared content, though we did notice a lack of discipline during lunch periods," stated Alice.

Alice is student teaching at Alderman where the concept is used within the self-contained classroom.

"We try to make everything possible individualized by stressing freedom of choice, as long as we keep within the curriculum requirements," Alice said.

Some classrooms have as many as four or five reading groups. While one group is reading, other students know what they have to do that day and they work on their classroom assignments.

In the past, desks were lined up row by row. Today, many teachers group desks in pairs or use tables. Children are freer to move around.

A Phi O awards brothers

Alpha Phi Omega has been very busy working with Project Concern and the Walk for Mankind Campaign. The Fraternity has also engaged in the national project of the organization The Peace Corps by setting up an information display on campus. Two Boy Scouts will be sent to camp this year by APO, also.

A Phi O has just recently held its Honors Banquet. Dr. Gerald Shinn was the guest speaker and the Top Twelve provided entertainment. The new officers for the year were announced at the dinner. Bob Andrise, president; Bruce Williams, first vice president; Steve Grady, second vice president; Dickie Miller, third vice president.

Gene Davis will be recording and corresponding secretary, Harry Rivenbark, alumni and publicity chairman; Irving Shaw, historian, and Mike Godwin, treasurer. Mr. Davie Warner will be chairman of the advisory committee.

Those members of the fraternity receiving awards were Raleigh Todd, YPPEM; Outstanding Member of the Fraternity presented by the

By Debbie Holden
Guy Owen, author and poet, entertained a number of people when he appeared on campus recently. He spoke in the Education - Psychology Building. The staff of Atlantis, the campus literary magazine, acted as host and gave a reception for Mr. Owen after his talk.

Owen, a native of Clarkton, is an English professor at NCSU. He teaches creative writing.

Owen is a well-known novelist and takes much of the background for his novels from the South. Some of his works include the novels Season of Fear, The Ballad of the Flim-Flam Man, A Journey for Joedel, and The White Stallion, a recent book of poetry.

At the lecture Mr. Owen was very humorous and relaxed. He used no notes but was never at a loss for words. From the very beginning the audience was captivated. He read many of his humorous poems, including "Aunt Ella." This is a satirical poem about a relative who is forever cleaning, but as Owen said, did not recognize herself in this poem.

Mr. Owen also talked quite a bit about the Flim-Flam Man which was made into a movie. He has just finished the sequel to this novel and he told a little about how he got the background. In both novels Owen has gone out to live as his character would in order to really "get the feeling" of this person. He has slept in tobacco barns, camped out, and done numerous other things to achieve reality in his novels.

Along with being witty and humorous, Owen managed to slip some invaluable tips to future writers. The writer, he says, should appeal to more than just the intellect of the reader. One has to weave into his descriptions all the senses and here Owen put a special emphasis on sight and color.

Guy Owen was indeed a very entertaining person. He was quite willing to sit around and talk to anyone who had a problem in writing or to anyone who just wanted to talk.

Film being shot on UNC-W campus

Movies are easy to watch and enjoy, but they are not that easy to make. Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon is proving to her Survey of World Cinema class that it takes skill and know-how to make a movie.

The fourteen members of the cinema class have divided into three groups for the purpose of making their own movies. Most of the members of the class had never made a movie of any kind. The purpose of the project was to get the feel of a camera, gain some experience, and have a little fun.

Each group has made two reels which last six minutes each. Not only are the groups responsible for shooting the film, they are also responsible for doing their own editing.

Each group picked their own topics and decided on where they would shoot the 8-millimeter movies. The students merely followed their imaginations to create their own unusual masterpieces.

The actual shootings took place Tuesday, April 6, and Thursday, April 15. Instead of meeting for class each group went out to shoot their own films. By this time the students had already decided on where they would shoot the movies and what the topic would be.

The class is now in the process of watching their own movies. Two of the six reels have already been seen, the other reels are still being processed. Mrs. Fitzgibbon says that the two they have seen were really "great." Right now the class is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the remaining movies.

During the month of May the cinema class will be assisting Frank Henry in making a movie of a paratrooper. According to Mrs. Fitzgibbon, "The movie will be shot from the ground as well as from the air." The results of this filming should prove very interesting. It will not be easy for the cameramen to capture all of the action of the jumpers.

Along with making and viewing their own films, the cinema class has also been seeing some good short experimental films. This has been the first year that there has been a budget for renting good experimental films.

In the past the area of film making has been neglected in our school. "But with a little help maybe this will change soon!" concluded Mrs. Fitzgibbon.

Dance class demonstrates

The Contemporary Dance Class of the Physical Education Department will give a demonstration program May 13, at Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. Faculty and student are invited. There will also be a showing of the film, "Four Pioneers" about four innovators of the current modern dance.

Domestic & Imported Beers

• Live Entertainment •

• Sound Movies •

• Cartoons

WILLIAMS CLEANERS

SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.

Wilmington, N.C.

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Reed's

27 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- University Rings
- University Jewelry
- Engagement Rings
- Diamond Jewelry

• Student Charge Accounts

• New Accounts Welcome

"It's Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

Iowa String Quartet completes UMS

By WAYNE ROGERS

The Iowa String Quartet presented a flawless repertoire to a regrettably small but impressed crowd last Monday night in Kenan Auditorium. The concert climaxed this season's University Music Series.

Glittering musicians and a smooth blending in the opening Mozart "Quartet in D Major" readily demonstrated why this all-American ensemble is recognized as being among the world's finest.

"Quartet No. 2" by the Russian, Borodin, was recognizable since much of the scherzo and nocturne movements were adapted for use in the Broadway play "Kismet".

"String quartet", a lively but elegant piece by the Twentieth century Impressionist composer Ravel, was the most impressive and unusual quartet in that much of the piece was done pizzicato (plucked instead of bowed).

The two violins, viola and cello used were famous Stradivarius instruments loaned to the quartet by the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

The Iowa String Quartet is one of the few all-American music ensembles concertizing on an international scale. When not touring its members are professors of Music at the University of Iowa.

It should be added that the University Music Series was a great success due to the efforts of Dr. Robert Melton and Mr. Frank Honey who were largely responsible for the well-rounded series.

Featured during the academic year were the New York Electric Chamber Ensemble, classical guitarist Oscar Ghiglia, The Piedmont Chamber Orchestra and bass singer Thomas Paul, as well as the Iowa String Quartet.

The series will undoubtedly enjoy success next year. Student turnout was quite low although admission was by I.D. It is hoped next year's series will attract many more students. Exposure to these various musical forms and styles will certainly add to one's enrichment of musical appreciation.

'Conservation News'

Sometimes you can't See the forest....

By MARTHA WRIGHT

Ever since "environment" exploded into the American consciousness, the most frequently asked question has been, "What can I do?"

To answer those questions many organizations have published pamphlets, handbooks and guides that deal with what could be called "lifestyles." They urge the citizen to use white toilet paper, compost his garbage, launder with non-phosphate soaps, tune up his car, and in general see that his purchases are not the result of environmentally destructive practices.

Too often these booklets become the easy way out both for the organizations that publish them and the citizens who use them. They enable the organizations to cope in a simple and efficient manner with the growing numbers of people who contact them for advice. And they enable the individual to check off his list of lifestyle practices and feel he is doing all he can to save the environment.

In doing, the booklets can divert the citizen from looking more deeply into the issues of pollution and responsibility. They also make it easier for organizations to avoid coming to grips with complicated problems and reorienting their programs to cope with them.

That is to say the lifestyle booklets are bad. Far from it. They are often essential in helping people realize that everything they do has environment implications—whether it is in misuse of natural resources or poisoning of air and water. They also help people see the interconnectedness of all things which is the essence of ecology. However, they can mislead people into thinking that if they follow those guides, environmental problems will be solved. And they imply that the consumer can always make significant environmentally sound choices.

Unfortunately, that just isn't so.

For even if everyone carried out the lifestyle recommendations there would be no noticeable improvements in the poisonous condition of air and water. Solid waste problems would still be overwhelming and natural resources would continue to be misused. The probable result would be disillusionment on a massive scale.

The real problem is that there are few environmentally sound alternatives. In most realms of choice one can only pick the lesser of two evils. And that is not good enough.

Since it's hard enough to get people to give up their phosphates and to buy returnable bottles, it isn't surprising that organizations often emphasize the easier things, postponing for a while a serious discussion of what saving the environment really requires.

It requires reading dull, complicated laws and financing lawsuits against polluters and recalcitrant government agencies. It takes finding out how city or county government works, what interest groups get their way, and how the citizen can make his voice heard over that of the lobbyist. It takes writing Senators and Congressmen over and over again. It takes bringing abuses at home into the public spotlight. It takes questioning and challenging the sacred cows of government and industry. It takes being immune to and able to refute insinuations that environmentalists want to precipitate unemployment, take away conveniences and essentials and may be communist-inspired.

It is hard hard work. And it will take a long long time.

But the cause of environmental quality will founder on a compost heap of handbooks and pamphlets unless concerned citizens move into the public arena where the real battles must be fought. The lifestyle issues are valid educational tools and a measure of personal commitment. But they will never clean up the air and

Pollution

see it feel it smell it taste it

hear it

water or redirect a wasteful natural resource policy that ignores the needs of the future. To imply or believe that they will is misleading, and may prevent or postpone important action until it is too late.

ARBY'S

4700 Oleander Drive

ARBY'S NOW UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Jr. Arby's Light Ester 49c

Regular Arby's 79c

Super Arby's 99c

Ham & Cheese/Let. & Tom. 69c

Apple & Cherry Turnovers

Potatoe Cake

Bev & Shakes

Interested in starting your own business this summer with a new, nationally-known product? Write R.A.H. Distributing Company, Suite 14, 4821 Sahler St., Omaha, Nebraska 68104 or call Area Code 402-455-3395 (no collect calls).

rah

'Studio '71' brought two student written, cast, and directed play to the SRO Theatre last weekend. Left, the cast of 'Ed's Play, and right, the cast of 'The Masks'.

Ring out the old

By BOB WIARD
1970-71 SGA President

I believe one of the major accomplishments of this year's student government has been the idea of taking over our own student government—becoming an entity in itself rather than having the administration be the guiding force. We have taken over such things as our money, handling our own elections. We've had very little help from the administration although we've had some. I think it has been less this year than it has been in the past. And this is good because the student government should act in the best interest of the student and should be by the student. The administration shouldn't be burdened with the extra tax of having to organize and work or ruin the student government. So I believe this is one accomplishment we've made this year.

Another is our entertainment program. I believe it has increased to say the least. We've had some of the biggest names in the country on our campus.

I think the addition of the student government office has helped out a great deal this year. And I think it will help in the future. We have our own files. We keep records of things we do. We have our own library. We have constitutions and catalogues and handbooks from other universities across the country. We keep in contact with other student body presidents. We receive correspondence and we send correspondence. We've put the UNC-W Student Government Association as a vocal role into the University, into the administration of the University. I have attended close to a dozen meetings this year dealing with the greater consolidated university. I think this is good. It shows that UNC-W students are coming of age and standing up and voicing their own opinions rather than the administration or somebody else.

Looking to the future, I'm a little skeptical about how the dorm situation is going to turn out next year. As you know, with the recent situation up at East Carolina, the Board of Trustees and state general assemblies take a dim view of student activism. I guess I should say "Students standing up for their rights." This is one of the main reasons that they voted down visitation.

I think it would be a grave mistake if anyone was allowed to put harsh restrictions on these living halls. I think this student government should be willing and ready to work with other students governments to insure that will not happen and take the best course of action. Not necessarily an activist, but rather going to the board of trustees, actually talking person to person with them—insuring that our voice is heard rather than just our actions seen and disliked.

Atlantis slowly rises

Atlantis is here! After much work on the part of the staff and some difficulty, the students have received copies of the magazine.

Atlantis will appeal to a variety of readers. There are short stories, poems, and pictures. There is also an essay on Tennessee Williams.

Pam Brown interviewed Tennessee Williams and wrote an essay. This is quite unusual since Williams has been out of the public eye for quite sometime.

One outstanding poem by Lynn Walker, "A Shasta Daisy," has a theme of pollution in which something beautiful and alive strives to be seen amidst all the rubbish.

A touching poem with appeal to young lovers is "I Shall Love You," by Dianne Braak.

Other poets include Linda Carter, Rich Parker, Peter Venable, and many others. The short story, "Dusty Photo," by Ken Kefler was the winner of the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest last year.

That is Atlantis.

Ring in the new

By ED BOYLAN

1971-72 Student Body Pres.

As president of our Student Government Association, I will endeavor to improve it! But I will not take on this task alone. The degree of success or the effectiveness we attain will depend upon the effort each of us contributes to the needs at hand.

I believe we can provide the channels which are necessary if we are to have a new awareness and a better life this summer and next year. I believe we can set up a publicity committee which would have members from all areas of the campus. This committee would co-ordinate publicity for events, make up a calendar and give information to The Seahawk so it could publish for general student knowledge those things which would be taking place up to the distribution date of the next paper. The committee would be chaired by Elizabeth Harvin (SGA Sec.). Also, we will strive to use the office of Information Services so that student news will be sent to the media.

I will ask all those who have never participated in the Student Government Association to contact myself or any of the newly elected officers and make known a desire to help.

The Student Government supports through your activity fees the yearbook, The Seahawk, the Atlantis, the Phone Directory, and the Handbook. Each of these publications depend upon student talent and they need your support. The Concerts Committee, the Dance Committee, the Fine Arts Committee, the Board of Elections, and the Student Appeal Board need people to serve on them.

I hope to appoint a Homecoming chairman before school is out so that he or she might be concentrating on a well-planned and organized Homecoming week.

I would like to invite everyone to join me in working for a Student Government Association which will be more precise, more open and more accessible to ever student.

BSU holds sensitivity session

By MIKE LEWIS

The Baptist Student Union completed an outstanding school year with its Spring Retreat at Wrightsville Beach May 1-May 2. About twenty-five students came down throughout the weekend to share in a spirit of complete openness. A Sensitivity Session led by Jim Mott, personnel manager at Corning, was one of the main features for the retreat. This session helped each one of us to open up to each other, expressing ourselves and thus actually learning more about others as well as ourselves. Mike Lewis, this year's president and coordinator for the retreat, said everyone seemed to take down masks that kept members from knowing each other, and for the first time for many of those there they were simply themselves.

Baptist Student Union will be meeting during the summer session making plans for an even greater 1971-72 school year. New officers will be Johnny McGee, president; Elfrida (Pete) Godwin, vice-president; Alice Staton, secretary-treasurer; and Linda Robinson, member-at-large. B.S.U. Chaplain remains Rev. Stancil Baucon and he is available to talk to or see anyone for any reason at any time. Just call 675-2127. It's not long distance, so call.

Join The Fun Crowd

Pizza
inn

4016 Oleander Dr.

Ph. 762-0379 to

Take Out

Or

3406 Market St.

Ph. 762-8456 To

Take Out

Sunday - Thursday

11:00 a.m. to

12:00 p.m.

Friday-Saturday

11:00 a.m. to

2:00 p.m.

BUFFET

Monday - Friday

11:30 to 1:30

$1.29

All You Can Eat

Paid Advertisement

FREE INFORMATION:
LOW COST, SAFE, LEGAL
ABORTION
IN NEW YORK
SCHEDULED IMMEDIATELY
(212) TR 7-8562

Certified Abortion Referral
All Inquiries Confidential

Professional pianist teaches

By DEBBIE HOLDEN

UNC-W is fortunate indeed in having as its associate Professor of Music Dr. Richard R. Deas.

Deas, a native of Birmingham, Alabama, began his musical career at the age of nine, although he did confess that he was "not such a good student" until starting college. He studied at the Conservatory of Music in Birmingham. The Merchant Marines followed, where Deas was a purser for two years in the Caribbean. Upon leaving the Merchant Marines, Deas resumed his studies at the University of New Mexico where he received his B.F.A. degree.

Intervention came once again when the country decided that it wanted Dr. Deas in the army for two years at Fort Bragg. Deas, upon his discharge acquired his Masters degree from Julliard, one of the finest music schools in the country. Deas then taught at a small, girls college while working on his doctorate from Columbia University in New York City.

The concert and literary world is not unknown to Deas. While still in school he toured the state of New Mexico and appeared as soloist with the Albuquerque Civic Symphony. Carnegie Recital Hall in New York City has been the setting for two concerts - one in 1964 and again in 1967. Only a short while ago Dr. Deas' first record was released by Vox - an album devoted to Eril Sotie's music for one piano-four hands. From the literary standpoint, Deas has written and published a book entitled Study and Analysis of the Incomplete Piano Sonatas of Franz Schubert with Implications for Teaching and Performance. This was part of the qualification for earning his doctor's degree.

Because Deas is a professional pianist, I was curious as to why he was teaching on a college campus. His answer was that, "College provides a teaching and performing situation. Not wanting to do either one solely, I find that college provides the answer."

You can indeed see we are fortunate in having a man with so great a talent at our fingertips.

BY:

*SERO

*CREIGHTON

*ARROW

*MANHATTAN

*VAN HEUSEN

*PIERRE CARDIN

*CHRISTIAN DIOR

*MEDICI

DOWNTOWN

HANOVER CENTER

TEKEs spread happiness

By EVELYN KLIMAK

Early Saturday morning, April 24, the TEKEs along with their dates, wives, baseball bats, containers filled with food, bags of candy, and other necessities too numerous to mention, set out to entertain some of the boys at the Boy's Home located at Lake Waccamaw.

The day began with the males cleaning up two houses donated to the Boy's Home by the Civitan and the Lion's Clubs. After this task was completed, the homes were spotless, with the exception of a few smudges left on the windows by certain fraternity members who were anxious to eat.

Boys living at the home seemed to come from all directions when the dinner bell sounded. Smiling faces, along with mouths filled with hot dogs, the dead give away which revealed that the goal the fraternity was seeking had been accomplished.

After dinner the boys were divided up into teams and coached by members of the fraternity. Competitive events such as relay races, sack races, egg tosses, and three-legged races were held. The winners received grand prizes such as suckers and candy bars. The losers received consolation prizes and everyone was happy.

The last event of the day was the softball game between the fraternity and the older boys and counselors of the Boy's Home. The TEKEs had a bad day and managed to squeeze by with a 36-16 victory.

As the afternoon came to a close, the people from Wilmington loaded up their cars and prepared to make the journey home. There were a few of the female members conspiring to kidnap a couple of the little boys, but at the last moment they changed their minds.

As one of the females was walking back to the parking lot, a small boy about eight years old ran up, opened the car door for her, and kissed her good-bye. This in itself proved the tremendous success of the day and made everyone's effort well worthwhile.

Summer
is a cow!

CONGRATULATIONS!

★ ★ ★

You've made it through another year!

Whether you're launching into a new career, a summer vacation or more brain-taxing studies, don't forget that all-important trip to Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

You'll find the best looking clothing around to fit the most festive (or not so festive) occasion.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

Open nights 'til 9:00, Sat. 'til 7:00

Seahawks slug Pembroke; earn division's first

With a 3-1 victory over Pembroke here on May 5, the Seahawks took sole possession of first place in NAIA District 29. Eddie Booth threw a strong game, allowing only four hits while striking out 10. Pembroke's only run was unearned, coming in the sixth inning on a three-base error and a single. Dave McLain, the team's leading hitter at .357 before the game, got two of UNC-W's four hits, scored once, and drove in a run.

The Hawks scored one run in the first on a walk to Richard Sugg, his stolen, base and McLain's single.

UNC-W broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth with two unearned runs. Sugg reached base on an error, McLain singled, and Pembroke's second error of the inning allowed Sugg to score. Greg Dalton singled McLain home to make the final score 3-1.

Earlier in the season the Hawks defeated Pembroke 4-1 at Pembroke. Eddie Atkins allowed only four hits in that win while striking out 18. UNC-W broke the game open in the eighth with three runs on four consecutive hits. Cavanaugh's ninth inning triple and a Pembroke error accounted for the final tally.

Pembroke's only run came on a misplayed infield fly after a two-out single in the ninth.

With only two games yet to be played, the Hawks will go into the district playoffs this weekend in first place. The double elimination tournament will be played in Pembroke on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday between the top four teams in District 29. The winner will advance to the Area 7 playoffs here at Brooks Field later this month. The Area champion will go to the National finals in Kansas.

The season was highlighted by a 15-game winning streak following the opening game loss to N.C. State. The only blemish on the Hawks record is the fact that they lost two games to a weak Atlantic Christian College team.

The Hawks have been improving all through the season and will go to the playoffs not only with strong pitching, but also with good hitting. The only problem could be defense. The team has looked sloppy in the field at times this year, making too many mental and physical errors. The Hawks cannot afford to do this in the playoffs.

With some good "D" and steady pitching and hitting, our boisterous fans can change their battle cry from "Pembroke—!" to "On to Kansas!"

Ourt's sports

As any UNC-W student knows, Wilmington lacks a few things—like something to do when the beach is closed. Wilmington may not have much in the way of night life, but it does fairly well in athletics.

Anyone who has been in town more than five minutes knows that Sonny and Gabe and Meadowlark are from here. Over the years, numerous athletes have gone from here to play professional athletics. Some of the more recent ones include Sam Bowens, Jim Braxton, Bill Harris, John Nixon, and Cecil Reynolds—all baseball players.

Mike Merritt, a senior at New Hanover High School, and Greg Dalton, a freshman at UNC-W, are rated as top baseball prospects in the area. Undoubtedly, Wilmington is known throughout the state as a baseball town.

Baseball begins here in little league, then Junior and Senior League (now Babe Ruth League), junior high baseball, high school, American Legion, college ball, and semi-pro. Youngsters can play organized baseball from age 7 to age 21, or more.

The city little league and Junior and Senior League champs win the state title quite regularly. New Hanover High School has long been known as a baseball power, coached by Charles Corbin, is fast becoming an equally respectable team.

Last summer the American Legion Post No. 10 team won the state and regional playoffs and finished fourth in the national finals at Klamath Falls, Oregon.

The UNC-W team, now 15-2-1, is a top contender in District 29 of the NAIA. Many of the players are from Wilmington. The list includes David Sandlin, Bruce Cavanaugh, Charles Maultsby, Mike Wheeler, Eric Higgins, Greg Dalton, Mike Farris, and Bruce Failings.

So, Wilmingtonians—both native and transplanted, go elsewhere for a social life but stay here and watch the hometown team jock out.

GDI's challenge TKE

The GDIs — a motley collection of athletes managed by Lee Patkus — recently defeated Pi Kappa Phi 5-4 in Sunday afternoon softball competition at Emplie Park. "Our strategy," says Patkus, "is to run our patterns, hit the openman, and play dog - eat - dog on defense." Having only one game on tap at present — this weekend with the TKES — the team wishes to challenge the spirited competition on the ball diamond.

Frisbees fly in Intermurals

The Intramurals Class of the P.E. department has done a good job this year in giving students a number of different sports to compete in. Each class member, as a project, worked up a program of his own.

Some of those offered have been basketball, bowling, volleyball, tennis, golf, and badminton. Recently, Mike Sabrinsky proffered his project for the class — a frisbee throwing contest. Close to thirty students turned out for the competition, which was divided into three categories: (1) distance; (2) time in the air; (3) accuracy.

Fred Ourt won the distance contest with a throw of 135 feet, beating out Eddie Thaltion by only one foot. Steve Boles won the air-time category by keeping the ol' frisbee up for 5.5 seconds. John Watson took the accuracy competition by hitting the target—a trash can lid.

The members of the class most certainly deserve recognition for their job in providing these programs. The winners have only one question: Where are our trophies?

Beer & Pizza
Parlor

Draught Beer
Mug - - 30¢
Pitcher - - $1.00

3818 Wrightsville
Ave.

Monday - Friday
4 - 12

Saturday - Sunday
1 - 12

HAPPY HOUR
Every Sunday
8:30 - 9:30 P.M.

David Pontius, Mgr

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

SUMMER - OPPORTUNITY (STUDENTS OVER 18)

Students can earn $600.00 per month while working towards scholarships, Trips, Prizes and Awards.

This year Scholastic Systems, Inc. Summer of Opportunity Earnings Program offers College Students more prizes and awards than ever before in the history of the company:

TRIPS TO RESORT AREAS

CASH SCHOLARSHIPS

VALUABLE MERCHANDISE AWARDS

Students accepted for summer must live in or near: CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Qualified previous Employees would have opportunity for Management.

All who would be interested fill in the next few lines and mail promptly in order to receive first consideration.

Mr. James R. Kirkman, Jr.
Divisional Manager
416 East Blvd.
MONY Building
Charlotte, N. C.

Name
School Address Phone
Home Address Phone
Date Available for Interview
Date you could begin
Area you prefer to work

Welch proclaims 'perpetual studenthood'

By CRAIG MARTIN
Staff Writer

Mrs. Betty Jo Welch of Nashville, Tennessee, came to UNC-W with impressive credentials and an awe-inspiring background of public service in Tennessee. Mrs. Welch attended Middle Tennessee State College where she acquired B.S. and M.A. degrees in English and Linguistics. She continued her education at George Peabody College for Teachers where she obtained an E.D.S. (specialist in education). Mrs. Welch has served on the Governor's Commission on Compensation in Tennessee, the Governor's Commission for Status of Women in Tennessee, and was vice-chairman of the Metropolitan Bureau of Beautification for Nashville. Commenting on her experience Mrs. Welch states, "I've learned a lot more about these things than

I could ever contribute. Anything I do I try to learn something if I can. I'm a perpetual student."

Mrs. Welch's comment on various subjects include:

1) New Student Forum: "Every school needs one. A wonderful place for students to discuss problems of social or intellectual nature."

2) Apathy on UNC-W campus: "Student activities is a training ground for life activities. It is important that students start out with involved ideas. This is a great time in life to get involved in things. They (students) feel important. Now is the time to contribute."

3) Wilmington and UNC-W: "I've met some very nice people whom I enjoy being with very much on campus and in the college community. The town of Wilmington is small compared to what I was used to. Shopping is very difficult."

Reward offered for information that leads to return of

BRANDY
an Irish Setter
★ call 763-5723

Top selling books on college campuses

1. Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex, by David Reuben
2. The Sensuous Woman, by "J"
3. The Greening of America, by Charles A. Reich
4. Future Shock, by Alvin Toffler
5. The French Lieutenant's Woman, by John Fowles
6. Love Story, by Erich Segal
7. The Abortion, by Richard Brautigan
8. I'm Ok. You're Ok: A Practical Guide to Transactional Analysis, by Thomas A. Harris
9. Knots, by R.D. Laing
10. The Sensuous Man, by "M"

Jordan speaks to class

By DEBBIE HOLDEN
Staff Writer

Milton Jordan, reporter for the Wilmington Star-News, lectured to Dr. Collier's Journalism class May 5.

Jordan was very interesting and spoke on many aspects of reporting. The first requirement, Jordan said, was to have a love for people and strong determination.

Mr. Jordan also said that a reporter has to write in simple language so the general public would be able to understand the story. This, he said, was because the average reader completes only the ninth grade.

A newspaper reporter to Jordan involves being both a professional busybody and a lawyer. A reporter can also be compared to a doctor since he is on call 24 hours a day. To Jordan the purpose of a paper is to inform the public of all news.

According to Jordan, working with a deadline on a newspaper teaches discipline. He said a deadline never changes. If you have only ten minutes to write a story—that's it.

The Journalism class thoroughly enjoyed the lecture and are looking forward to more guest speakers in the future and on May 5, a tour of the Wilmington Star-News offices.

ZIP MART

GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION

MAY 14-15-16

4951 University drive 3002 Princess Place Drive 815 Greenfield St.

Merita and Holsum Bread
2 for the price of 1

Maola Ice Cream
79¢ ½ gallon

Maola Ice Cream
39¢ ½ gallon

Jesse Jones Hot Dogs
buy 1 get a package of Chili FREE.

COMPARE THESE PRICES !!!

6 Pac. Coke 45¢
plus deposit & tax

Frito Lay Corn Chips
buy 1 get 1 Free

Gas - 3 Days Only
29.¢ Reg.
31.¢ Reg.

Coldest Drinks In Town

Watch Our Sign For Ribbon Cutting Announcement

WHEN YOU RUN OUT, RUN IN

ZIP MART

VEGETABLES

A hand-constructed and minutely detailed model of the Globe Theatre and a bronze plaque of Shakespeare are featured at the library exhibit. Mr. Thomas McCall, English professor, worked 11 years to bring the exhibit to UNCW. (Photo by Bob Andrise)

HANOVER CLEANERS

Wilmington's Only

DISCOUNT DRY CLEANERS!

COMPARE THESE PRICES! ! !

SUITS (2 pc.)

DRESSES (plain)

PANT SUITS

$1.09

PLUS TAX INS.

PANTS • COATS (Sport)

SKIRTS (Plain) • SWEATERS • BLOUSES

55¢

PLUS TAX INS.

SHIRTS

ON HANGERS

25°

PLUS TAX

5544 OLEANDER DRIVE

ACROSS FROM THE SHOPPING CENTER

HANOVER CLEANERS

WMFD - FM

100.9 MHZ

is YOUR solid POP-ROCK station
18 hours a day !!!!

WMFD-FM will bring to you:

sounds of the really great groups of our time and...

from time to time

sounds of struggling NEW groups on the rise such as the one pictured below (whose name has momentarily slipped my mind.)

Inside

political forum, page 3

Goose Creek symphony, page 5
—a review in pictures campus club comprehensive, page 7

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 1

Tues. Sept. 14, 1971

Library, students lose books

By RAY BUCHANAN

A growing concern to libraries throughout the nation is books being stolen instead of being properly checked out. Our library at UNC-W is no exception.

Due to the growing awareness of the disappearance of books, in February, 1971 the library staff made a spot check of our library's volumes. The staff checked 12,662 titles in areas where heavy losses seemed to occur, or where heavy demand might indicate areas of greatest losses.

This total represents about one sixth of the total collection of our library, with the areas checked including reference works, juvenile literature, North Carolina history, books dealing with marriage, family relationships and sex. Also, play collections, Chaucer, Shakespeare, and twentieth century American authors. As well as the entire medicine section was checked.

Of the 12,662 titles inventoried 590 volumes were found to be missing. This is 4.7 percent, which seems to be in line with studies made by other libraries of the same approximate size and usage. But this does not clearly represent the whole picture.

The major concern is usually the books most used and most needed that are stolen or become missing. There is then the inconvenience to the students who are unable to complete assignments because of the missing volumes. Also, much time is involved by the library staff in trying to locate the missing material. Finally, there is the cost of replacement for the missing volumes, which has risen steeply during the past several years.

Mr. Smith, Readers Services Librarian, said, "The old traditional approach of librarians guarding books is out. Our concern is to get people to use the library to read." Mr. Smith is enthusiastic about the relationship our library has with the students. This feeling is shared by the entire library staff who believe our library has the potential to become the best undergraduate library in the state and our students the most efficient library users. "To achieve this potential the librarians and students will have to work together," he concluded.

Freshman primary necessary Sept. 29

By LIZ BUFFINGTON

Freshman elections is one of the first major projects that the Student Government Association undertakes every September. This fall, due to the great number of nominees, there will be a primary election on September 29th and then if need be, and this is almost certain, the general election will be held the following week.

Henry B. Rehder, chairman of the Board of Elections, brought out some important information for all freshmen and in particular the freshmen nominees, in his statement: "Freshmen nominees are advised that they must file a statement with me, the chairman of the Board of Elections, declaring their intention of running for the office they were nominated for. This statement must bear the signature of the registrar. Candidates are also reminded that they must score seventy per cent or better on the constitution test which will be given the 18th, 19th, and 17th of September. The time for the test will be posted.

"Polling places will be set up at all major sections of the campus and outside if the weather permits. My hard-working co-chairman Dick Miller and I are very pleased with the number of nominations thus far. They seem to be coming in good order. We are forecasting a close race for president of the freshman class," stated Rehder.

Ed Boylan, SGA President, felt that the response to the elections was indicative of the enthusiasm and concern of these new students for the today and tomorrow aspects of university life.

Parking lots & cars = smash!

By CARLOS POOLE

The UNC-W campus traffic situation got off to a smashing start the first week of this semester with a total of five accidents. All occurred in parking areas and were minor according to Bradley Dillon, Chief of the UNC-W Police Department. Most of these accidents were caused by careless backing out of parking spaces.

These and other careless drivers and parking violators are again this year presenting a problem on campus. Early arriving students fill all the more centrally located parking areas, while later arrivals seem to be trying to park in the same areas. These students are parking in unauthorized areas such as traffic lanes, faculty and visitor spaces, and on the shoulders of roads. This situation interrupts safe traffic movement and causes general chaos during class changes.

Chief Dillon points out that there is adequate parking space on campus. The parking problem occurs when too many students attempt to park as close as possible to their classes. Chief Dillon says there is almost always space available in Lot "C" next to the Kenan Auditorium. Vacancies are usually available in Lot "D" beside Randall Library and in the "South Forty" by the tennis courts. These spaces may entail a longer walk to class, but the over-all situation shows that the UNC-W campus compares very favorably over other campuses in parking convenience.

BEFORE (above) and AFTER - although the cafeteria was completed before spring semester was over, it waited until the residence hall opened before beginning service. (Staff photos)

Cafeteria posts hours

Interstate United Corporation opens the cafeteria for breakfast, Monday through Friday, from 7-8:30 a.m. On Saturday and Sunday, service is from 8-9 a.m. Price without meal ticket is 75 cents.

Lunch is served, Monday - Friday, between 11 a.m. - 1:15 p.m. Saturday and Sunday service begins at noon. Price without meal ticket is one dollar.

Dinner is served between 4 and 6 p.m., Monday - Friday, and 4:30 - 5:30 on Saturday and Sunday. Price without meal ticket is $1.20, except for steak night, which costs $1.75.

Interstate's policy states, "the cafeteria is always open to all students, it is our goal to satisfy all students; consequently, please feel free to consult with the management on any problems or suggestions you have concerning the student cafeteria."

Snack Bar hours are 7 a.m. - 11 p.m., Monday - Friday.

National Atlas adds to Randall collection

W.M. Randall Library announces a new acquisition for its reference section. The National Atlas of the United States of America, published by the U.S. Geological Survey, was 18 years in the making and is one of the most complete atlases available on the United States.

Historical, agricultural, political, economic, and climatological interests are amply represented in the 765 maps in the atlas.

Eighty federal agencies and primary sources supplied data for the maps. There are also source documents to lead to more information.

Divided into two major sections the atlas has general and special reference maps and an extensive index serves both sections.

Philip Smith, Readers Services Librarian, stated the new atlas would be on special display through Sept. 24.

The Seahawk's opinions are recorded on its editorial page. Unsigned editorials are those of the editor; other columns and letters represent only the views of the individual contributors.
Jane Divine, Editor

Tim Sims

The Human Lemming

At the close of last year, I don't think there is anyone presently living who felt more elation than myself. So glad for school to be OUT, so glad to be finished with exams, research papers, "pencils, books, and teacher's dirty looks." I told myself that it was good to be finished. Yet, here I am again, up to my eyes in what I swore I couldn't stand another minute of last year.

And, as I have walked around the campus the last few days, I've seen familiar faces—others who were so glad it was over, yet are back for more. Why do we come back? Are we gluttons for punishment, or do we really love being told how to be educated (as if anyone really knew)?

No one is fooled anymore by the somewhat short-lived and never really true belief that "you can't get a job without a college degree." The way things have been for new graduates the last 2 or 3 years, you can't get a job with one, either. There are a lot of happy productive, lucrative things to do without a college degree.

There is much more knowledge to be gained outside the campus than on it, and there are certainly as many nice, bad, normal, eccentric, creepy, groovy, pretty, ugly people off the campus as on it.

There is absolutely no reason that I can see for coming back here other than that it is the great American Way that the young behave as human lemmings every fall, and make their journey to the sea of books and classes once more. Considering that most of us have been going to school most of our lives, returning to school is an easy and almost comforting thing to do. We reaffirm old habits and feel good inside.

I, too, find myself looking with eagerness (and apprehension) through new textbooks; planning how I'm going to make the Dean's list, telling myself that there are great treasurehouses of knowledge to discover, realizing all the while that my delight will be short-lived, but feeling very comfortable inside—like being home again.

Feedback!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

Computerized Nightmares

By KATHI BEALL

Since pre-registration for Spring '71 ended in a computerized nightmare for me— I was assigned three different classes during the same time period—I felt somewhat relieved to learn that the human element was being restored to registration procedures this fall. But once again I was duped into believing that the University was on my side.

The form letter concerning registration stated that seniors, juniors, and transfer students would register the morning of August 24 with sophomores and returning freshman the following morning. This seemed quite fair, and I was completely satisfied.

Upon arriving for counseling Monday morning, however, we learned that a great number of freshmen had already been registered, thus beating upperclassmen to the draw. As if this was not enough, many sophomores were allowed to register, again out of turn, Tuesday morning. This caused chaos and probably cheated some junior and seniors out of places that should rightfully have been theirs. By the time those of us who followed instruction registered, course selections we needed or wanted were already completely closed. These closed courses included such basic things as English 211 and the "principles of" courses.

It is very unfortunate that students are penalized for doing as they are asked. And after having been at the bottom of the registration totem pole last year, the members of the Class of '74 should not have to endure this madness. It is not very encouraging to be forced to pick over a skeleton curriculum when all of the juicy morsels, as well as the "vitamin-mineral" courses, have been snatched up and gobbled down.

Registration is a strain on everyone; it is certainly not an easy thing to plans or supervise. But I, and I am sure other sophomores who found themselves in the same situation, would be glad to help with the next registration if the planners will make an effort to see that all students register according to seniority, and not according to who grabs most quickly.

Follow the
'Hawks

Cars, yes Spaces, no

by

WILLIAM P. WALLACE

Every day on coming to campus I am obliged to go through the ritual of finding a parking space in the underclassmen section. It wouldn't bother me so much except that while I see nothing but unbroken rows of cars in my area, there appear to be quite a few unused spaces in the senior and staff sections. In my opinion, the administration could help alleviate some of the parking problem by turning over a few spaces in these relatively uncrowded sections to those who need them most.

★★★★★★

editor's note:

Due to an unexpected deadline, this edition went to the printer four days earlier than we had planned. Several regular features, such as guest columns, had to be omitted because of the time factor. They will appear, as scheduled, in next week's edition, which will deal with "UNCW education: Fact or Fantasy?"

★★★★★★

the seahawk opens editorial pages

In order to present a variety of student expression, The Seahawk delayed publication for one week. Ideas ranging from school policies to national government have been submitted by students representing several aspects of UNC-W.

These thoughts are presented as a challenge; if your opinions do not concur, why not express them? Each week's edition is open to student, and faculty for transference of ideas. A special eight page edition will be published monthly in which the editorial pages will be open, in particular, for political discussions.

The only restrictions imposed for any work submitted for publication in The Seahawk are: 1) Write legibly, or type, one's article 2) sign and print one's name (if one wishes to withhold their name, state so, but the signature is necessary for one's own protection—nothing will be published without it) 3) in the event that editorial censor must be imposed, the author will be notified before correction.

SNCAE—The Student North Carolina Association of Educators at UNCW, a professional organization for students interested in education and related fields will hold its first meeting of the semester, Sept. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in room 106, Kenan Building. Members and participants are invited to have supper together in the cafeteria at 6 p.m. Memberships are being taken in room 203 and room 102 of the Education-

Psychology Building, and are open to majors in all fields.

the blindfold

one day i stopped to ask myself
"why are you doing this"
but i never answered and travelled on.

jcd-71

The seahawk

UNC-W, P. O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

EditorJane Divine
Business ManagerWayne Rogers

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all work is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Political Forum

Where do you stand?

By WILLIAM P. WALLACE

On the night of August 15th, President Nixon instituted a program that would see repercussions throughout not only this country but the world as well. In a long overdue decision, the chief executive finally initiated a wage price freeze. He also called for sweeping, far reaching changes in his present economic policy.

The first question that comes to mind is, "Why did the President act so suddenly?" The answer to this is very simple: If Nixon had let the people know what was coming off, everybody would have raised wages and prices to allow themselves to just get in under the wire before the executive order went into effect, thus fueling the fires of inflation.

With this question resolved, another pops up: "Why did Nixon inaugurate this turnaround in strategy to begin with?" For a reply to this query, a look at the economic situation over the last few months might help. First, we must consider the pullout in Vietnam. As always in years past, the conversion from a wartime to peacetime economy engendered difficulties. Suddenly, private industry finds itself with less demand for war materials, which means that many workers get laid off, thus boosting the percentage unemployed. Besides employment, the rate of inflation was much more than it should have been, and certainly a good deal more than in recent years.

On the international scene, the United States had a deficit in the balance of trade with several countries, and especially Japan. There are many more reasons for Nixon's actions that could supplement these, but the examples shown here are enough to justify the president for his major overhaul of the economy.

Specifically, Mr. Nixon hoped to improve his country's fiscal health by recommending that the 7 percent excise tax on automobiles be removed. In addition, he called for a $50 increase in the personal tax exemption. The President's reasoning is clear: With prices lower and more money in the pockets of the people, the public will spend more money and this will ultimately create more jobs. He also called for a general freeze on wages and prices, and this should be an effective means of cooling off inflation. In other action, the chief executive imposed a 10 percent tax on imports. This was the most feasible plan he could administer for repairing our lop-sided balance of trade. These aforementioned proposals, plus a few similar measures, are the heart of the Nixon plan.

The President's Sunday night speech touched off a number of actions and reactions. On Wall Street the next day, stock prices made the greatest gains in history, while in Japan, the opposite was true. Over in Europe, money markets shut down a week. The Nixon plan was not perfect, but at least it was aimed in the perfection direction. Most of the country realized this, and decided to support the administration, no matter how tough the going.

However, the going seemed too tough for many of the labor unions, and opposition arose, led by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. This labor leader made the erroneous statement that the President's program favored business instead of labor, since there was no freeze on profits. It stands to reason that it is difficult to get increased profits without increased prices. At the same time, Nixon's proposals will create more jobs for union members and give them more buying power. Mr. Meany would be wise to throw his weight where it would do most good: in favor of the administration.

Moving to the international level, it is plain to see that Japan was hurt most by the President's new policies. Naturally, it's bad to damage the economy of any country, but in this case the import tax was a necessary evil. Ever since World War II, Japan's economy has been allowed to grow faster than it should. Certainly it was good to help Japan get back on her feet after the surrender, but when a country is given so much aid that it causes its benefactor to have a deficit in the balance of trade, a line must be drawn somewhere. This is exactly what Mr. Nixon did.

It is easy enough to issue an executive order that freezes wages and prices; the problem comes in enforcing it. How will the federal government make sure that nobody cheats? According to George P. Shultz, Director, Office of Management and Budget, a surveillance of sorts will be carried out by 2000 IRS personnel as well as 400 more from the Office of Emergency Preparedness. Rounding out this number will be 3000 county agents to be responsible for agricultural matters. This adds up to 5400 people to police the affairs of over 200 million. Is enforcement possible? For the most part, no. The only way that Nixon's plan will be effective is for it to get voluntary support throughout the nation. The President has launched his program; co-operation will make it work.

By H.B. REHDER, JR.
DICK MILLER

It was with interest that we read in the September 7 issue of the Star News, the announcement that Mr. Leroy Gibson of ROWP (Rights of White People) is intending to run for Governor of North Carolina on the Republican ticket. ROWP is a local organization, hailing from what the media rather distastefully calls SENCland, or Southeastern North Carolina. It advocates boycotting schools in protest over the federally ordered busing plan "B" handed down recently by Federal District Judge Algernon Butler. Mr. Gibson, their self-styled leader, is from Jacksonville, North Carolina.

Leroy Gibson is, needless to say, a conservative. And the Grand Old Party needs conservatives. But we wonder if Mr. Gibson will aid the G.O.P. by aligning himself to it. The state Republican Party may not support the plan that Algernon Butler has approved, but perhaps they realize that this is indeed the law, and should be complied with as much as possible. It may be interesting to note that BICYCLES — They're everywhere! With the advent of on-campus residency, the easiest, cheapest, most convenient, and popular way of transportation is the manual two wheel bike. (Staff photo)

Judge Butler is a Republican, appointed by President Eisenhower in the late 1950's. The North Carolina G.O.P. certainly does not need a white supremacist. Rather it needs the kind of leadership that has made it the outstanding party in the past. It needs level-headed leaders who can spot the good and the bad in legislation, and deal with it accordingly. There is a second point, Mr. Gibson advocates boycotting the public schools. This is of course against the law. The G.O.P. doesn't need blatant law breakers. In light of all this, it is doubtful that Leroy Gibson will aid the N.C. G.O.P. by running with it.

Does he pose a threat to the other candidates? Chances are, Mr. Gibson doesn't, in the sense that a more able leader will lose to him. But he does certainly pose a threat in this sense: when he appears as a Republican, many will see the inconsistency here, and will vote for the Democratic candidate.

Could Leroy Gibson win the election? We are inclined to think not. He may be able to run somewhat effectively against an equally unknown politician, but he could never defeat Robert Morgan, Skipper Bowles or Pat Taylor.

It is with a certain amount of humor that we view Leroy Gibson's announcement. In a general election he would cause no real harm to the State Republican Party. But the danger lies in the campaign. In this, he could very easily degrade the State G.O.P. This is especially true in a time when the Negro vote is essential. Perhaps Black voters feel that the G.O.P. has betrayed them. And in a sense it has. We are not the party of Mr. Lincoln. By the same token, the Democratic Party has left the Negro out of its plans, while all along taking his vote for granted. As a result, the Republican Party doesn't need anti-Negro forces. It needs up-to-date politicians.

We suggest strongly that the North Carolina G.O.P. does not endorse Mr. Gibson. Perhaps he can find a haven with American Independents.

Leroy Gibson may need the Grand Old Party to carry him through, but G.O.P. certainly doesn't need him.

Book Sale Final Days

Thursday, Sept. 16 8:30-12:00

Friday, Sept. 17 1:30-3:30

All books not picked up then will be kept.

Tonight!

THE PROFESSIONALS

Starring Lee Marvin

Claudia Cardinale

Jack Palance

Kenan Auditorium

8:00

25' Single

*1.00 Season Membership
(Good for 19 Movies)

A.P.O. News

On August 26, 1971 APO Fraternity elected the following officers for this coming year: President - Jim Wentz; First Vice-President - Steve Grady; Second Vice-President - Harry Rivenbark; Third Vice-President - Dickie Miller; Corresponding Secretary - Richard Long; Alumni and Publicity Secretary - Donn Sroufe; Historian - Don Hyde; Treasurer - Raleigh Todd; Parliamentarian - Mike Godwin.

The men in APO proudly invite all men students who are eager to unite in a pledge to serve all humanity. This is your chance to stand above all others and take a positive direction toward your future. Become an APO man.

Friends of UNCW support projects

By RAY BUCHANAN

The Friends of UNCW founded in 1964 by Mrs. Edith Kallman is just that: friends of UNCW-W. The purpose of the "Friends", as set out in their bylaws reflect their worthy aim. Their entire purpose for being is "to promote and support educational, scientific and charitable projects on behalf of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington."

With this aim in mind, Mrs. Kallman started the Friends of Wilmington college, and became its first president. There was a total of 376 members that first year. Since then the Friends have grown with the University.

Mrs. William Broadfoot, Jr., president of the Friends for the past three years, was one of the original board members. She clearly remembers the early days of the Friends: "Mrs. B. Frank Hall was membership chairman. We would all meet at her house and work on envelopes for hours." She stated that although there is a specific membership committee, all the Friends work toward increasing their membership. "The big job that first year was the membership files," reminisces Mrs. Broadfoot. Every year since their conception the Friends have presented a sizable gift, in the form of a check, to the UNCW library.

To date these gifts would total near $40,000. But the Friends do, and have done, much more than contribute money. In 1966 - 67 they sponsored a lecture series which included noted television commentator Howard K. Smith. More recently in April of 1969 five of the Friends appeared before the Joint Higher Education Committee of the State Legislature in Raleigh. The occasion was the final hearing on university status for the then Wilmington College.

Also in 1969 they sponsored a lecture on local archaeological projects by UNCW faculty member, Doctor Gerald Shinn. The Friends have also helped staff the music library in Kenan Hall, encouraged memorial and honorarium gifts to the UNCW library, and encouraged contributions from other groups to the landscaping plan for UNCW.

NTE announces dates

PRINCETON, N.J.—College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations (NTE) on any of the four test dates announced by Educational Testing Service, a non profit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: Nov. 13, 1971 and Jan. 29, April 8, and July 15, 1972. The tests will be given at nearly 500 locations throughout the U.S., ETS said.

Results of the NTE are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the exam. The school systems and state departments of education which use the exam results are listed in an NTE leaflet, "Score Users", which may be obtained by writing to ETS.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and a Teaching Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Deferments pending action

College students who were enrolled full-time in the 1970-71 academic year will be eligible for student deferments in the 1971-72 school year if they continue to make satisfactory progress in their programs of study, stated Selective Service officials in a recent press release. However, young men who entered school for the first time this summer and those who enroll as freshmen this fall will not qualify for student deferments if the pending changes to the Selective Service Act are passed by Congress. The House has completed action on the bill and Senate action is expected in September.

WHEN IT'S FASHION
THE NAME OF THE GAME IS KNITS!

And the best looking knits and finest in all fashions are at Harvey Cannon, Ltd., Your UNC-W oriented shop for men.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

Open nights 'til 9:00, Sat. 'til 7:00

ATTENTION STUDENTS

This Card When Presented With Your I.D. Card
Is Valid For All Purchases Made At Our Store.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT

member _____

is an MBS member

THE Music
SHOP

MUSICAL BUYING
SERVICE

eligible for special discounts on merchandise and equipment purchased at either store. Not valid on selected merchandise.

No. _____

Goose Creek Symphony — a unique blend of rock and good ole foot-stompin' music — provided their audience with two memorable hours of pleasure Sept. 5. (Staff photo)

HANOVER CLEANERS

Wilmington's Only

DISCOUNT DRY CLEANERS!

COMPARE THESE PRICES! ! !

SUITS (2 pc.)
DRESSES (plain)
PANT SUITS

$1⁰⁹ PLUS TAX INS.

PANTS • COATS (Sport)
SKIRTS (Plain) • SWEATERS • BLOUSES

55^c PLUS TAX INS.

SHIRTS ON HANGERS

25^c PLUS TAX

5544 OLEANDER DRIVE

ACROSS FROM THE SHOPPING CENTER
HANOVER CLEANERS

Seahawks gain new look

Seahawk soccer has a new look for this year in several ways. For one thing, there are many new faces. Of the twenty-five players now on the team, only eight were on last year's team. The 'Hawks also have a new coach, Calvin Lane, who has brought new ideas and a different formation to the team.

Coach Lane hopes to make up for the team's lack of experience by diligent practice and hard work. Practice began on August 23, with the emphasis on conditioning. The team went through calisthenics, drills concentrating on ball control and movement, wind sprints, and a three-mile run.

After two weeks the 'Hawks took a break for a scrimmage with UNC-Chapel Hill. They then returned to intensive practice, concentrating on conditioning, ball control, and teamwork. Practice will taper off after two more weeks in anticipation of the September 25 game with Pembroke, the Seahawks' first district game.

The team displayed a spirit and willingness to work which should help it to make the district playoffs, a goal which no Seahawk soccer team has yet achieved. Coach Lane feels that the extra conditioning drills will keep the 'Hawks from tiring late in the game, something which has hurt them in the past.

Mr. Land has a great deal of soccer experience. He played four years of high school soccer, four years of college ball, and some semi-pro soccer. He has the team running in a new formation—a 4-2-4-1 (forwards, 2 halfbacks, 4 fullbacks, and a goalie) instead of last year's 5-2-3-1. This strategy is designed to give more goal coverage and therefore cutdown on opponents' scoring opportunities.

The play of the halfbacks is important to this formation. They must help out on defense as well as being an extension of the offensive. The halfbacks have to pick up the opponent's halfbacks when they move to the offensive and also control the ball around midfield so they can pass off to the offense.

The 'Hawks also have a problem at the fullback position. None of last year's fullbacks returned for this year, so the team has four players new to that position who must also learn the new defensive strategy. John Howarth and James Whisnant, who played halfback last year, will provide game experience on defense and be able to help out the newer players.

The whole team hopes to improve throughout the year on team play and smoothness. They are working hard right now for the Pembroke game and, the following week, the High Point match, the first home game.

The 'Hawks only have three home games scheduled as of now, so they hope to draw good crowds at these games. They have a new coach, new players, new uniforms, and a great desire to win. So, come out to the soccer field and support a good, new team.

Ourt's Sports

By FRED OURT

The score was 6-2 but that wasn't the real story of the game. The September 4 contest at Chapel Hill was really a controlled scrimmage of five twenty-minute periods.

At the end of four periods the score was 3-2. Then, in the fifth and final period, Chapel Hill scored three quick goals. This was due to the tiredness of the Seahawk defense rather than the ability of the Tarheel offense. The defensive breakdown was understandable when one considers that the team had not scrimmaged as a unit before the game and was not in the best shape possible after only two weeks practice. Coach Lane said he was satisfied with the team's play outside of the last period.

The 'Hawks scored first on a goal by Steve Boles in the first period. Then, in the fourth period, Mike Strauss scored on a corner kick to make the score 3-2 at that point. UNC-W had several other chances to score but they weren't able to convert.

Goalie Bill Watkins had an outstanding game. He displayed quick reactions in getting to the ball and was not reluctant to go out after it. Barring injury, Watkins should have a great season.

Steve Boles, Jackie Blackmore, and John Howarth also had good games. All in all, the game was good experience for the 'Hawks and helped them in preparation for the regular season.

Soccer Schedule

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE
Sept. 25	Pembroke State University	Pembroke
Oct. 2	High Point College	Wilmington
Oct. 9	Lynchburg College	Lynchburg
Oct. 13	East Carolina University	Greenville
Oct. 21	St. Augustine College	Wilmington
Oct. 23	Campbell College	Wilmington
Oct. 26	Methodist College	Fayetteville
Oct. 30	St. Andrews College	Laurinburg
Nov. 2	N.C. Wesleyan College	Rocky Mount
Nov. 6 -	The Citadel	Charleston

They keep on kickin'

Returning to the UNC-W soccer team are: Jackie Blackmore, Steve Boles, Bill Buckley, Mike Helms, John Howarth, and David Hunt. Also returning are Barney Lewis, Tom Torhan, Bill Watkins, and James Whisnant.

New team members include Drew Adams, William Blanchard, Patrick Canady, David Hughes, and Ken Jones. Ron Kopacz, Ron Midgett, Joseph Morgan, Robert Osteen, Fred Ourt, Mike Strauss, Eddie Talton, Wolfgang Weide, and Rick Wells will also be playing this season.

'Hawks finish second

UNC-W participated in a five-team baseball league this past summer, finishing second to UNC-Chapel Hill. The other three teams in the league were East Carolina, Campbell, and Louisburg.

The Seahawks suffered from their chronic ailment—a lack of hitting. Only third baseman Greg Dalton and outfielder Howie Edgerton hit with any consistency. Dalton, with an average in excess of .330, finished second in the league while Edgerton batted just under .300.

UNC-W's pitching, as usual, was deep, solid, and brilliant. Eddie Booth, Dave Sandlin, and Eddie Atkins all finished in the top five earned-run-average leaders. Carroll Bickers and Barnes Yelverton finished in the top ten. Of these five, only Atkins is ineligible to play this season.

Chapel Hill had some great pitching of its own. Lefty Jim Chamberlain had a microscopic 0.42 ERA, finishing first in the league. At one point he pitched over 37 consecutive scoreless innings. Freshman Mike Merritt, a Wilmington native, also pitched well for UNC-CH.

At season's end, the Seahawks and Chapel Hill met in a two-out-of-three game playoff for the league championship. The difference in the two teams was hitting. Chapel Hill produced sufficient runs; the 'Hawks did not, in losing two straight.

Hopefully, this coming season will be different for the Seahawks. Batters such as Dave Sandlin and Bruce Cavanaugh do not stay in slumps indefinitely. They will hit better. With the addition of Edgerton and Billy Smith—good hitters in their own right—the 'Hawks have the potential to go to the national playoff.

FEATURING FM
ENTERTAINMENT
FUN FOR ALL

FM—STEREO CAR CONVERTER FOR
AM RADIO

Now you can turn your radio into an FM—Stereo Road Show in a matter of seconds. Just push a button for automatic stereo enjoyment. Features FM Beacon Light. Tone and volume control. Local/Distance switching. Under dash mounting.

Now Just $49⁹⁵

FM CAR
CONVERTER FOR
AM RADIO

Beautiful microminiaturized FM converter. Plays through AM Radio power. Vernier slide rule tuning. Full time light dial. Built-in noise filter. Instant AM restoration.

Only $29⁹⁵

1002 So. College Rd.
791-7365

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

WILLIAMS CLEANERS
SUEDE CLEANING

1402 S. College Rd. 8085 S. Seventeenth St.
Wilmington, N.C.

SPORTWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

Inter-Club Council centralizes organizations

UNC-HISTORY CLUB will meet Wednesday evening, September 15, at 7:30 in A-201 for the election of club officers. The club has made several tours of historical sites, sponsored a film series which drew over 800 viewers, and plans an active 1971-72 season. Only by participating can one hope to reap the benefits of fellowship with others who are interested in the same exciting area—history.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB — The beginning of this school year also marks the beginning of a long awaited major in Psychology. It is hoped that the major will spark a revival in the Psychology Club. Most of the old members have graduated and the time is right for new people with enthusiasm and new ideas. It is hoped that all interested students, especially those who plan to major in Psychology, will notify Mr. Richard Paulsen, Counseling and Testing Center, Room 217 in the Alderman Administration Building. Mr. Paulsen would greatly appreciate all comments and suggestions concerning the rebirth of the Psychology Club.

BIOLOGY CLUB — An initial organizational meeting of the Biology Club will be held Thursday, Sept. 2 at 7:30 in the Hogard Building to discuss the kind of projects and programs to be considered over the year. The biology Club is open to all, especially biology majors interested in environmental conservation. There are two meetings monthly at 50 cents per meeting.

CHEMISTRY CLUB invites all interested students to please attend one of the club meetings. The club has planned several projects including community, campus and departmental activities. The meeting time and place will be posted well in advance in the Chemistry-Physics Building.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS CLUB is a fairly new organization on the campus of UNC-W. Its main purpose is to foster interest and involvement concerning political issues today. Club membership is open to all UNC-W students. Past projects have been guest speakers and political discussion forums involving students and legislators. The YR Club hopes to promote voter registration on campus. Club meetings are held regularly and notices are posted at various locations on campus.

UNC-BUSINESS CLUB got off to an early start with a get acquainted breakfast meeting Tuesday, August 31. The Business Club meets at 7:10 a.m. on the last Tuesday of each month in the upstairs section of the cafeteria for breakfast. The club intends to have a guest speaker at each meeting to talk on subjects of interest to business club members. Any student of UNC-W, male or female, majoring in Accounting, Economics, General Business, or Transportation is eligible to become a member of the Business Club. The dues are two dollars per semester. Any student interested in joining the club may contact Don Diamond, Ray Blackburn or Donn Sroufe.

P.E. MAJORS CLUB will have its first meeting in the third week of Sept. Check the bulletin board in the gymnasium for the time and place. Any physical education major, who has completed 30 semester hours and meets school requirements is eligible for membership. Our admission periods are at the beginning of each semester.

By JIM WENTZ,
ICC Chairman

A fairly new organizational body has been created here on campus, the Inter-Club Council. Its objectives are: to help give each club a real purpose, to help present individual organizational needs to the Student Government Association, and to help unify each group with the Campus.

Our campus is now witnessing a transition from a day campus to a residence campus which should give an additional incentive for many to get themselves involved. Joining such groups will not only be a means of obtaining new friends, but will be an outlet for expressing each one's individualism.

I would like to encourage students desiring to create new clubs or students seeking further information on our existing club to contact me, Jim Wentz, or inquire at the Student Government Office in the Pub. As chairman of the Inter-Club, I am looking forward to working with you, the students, in order to make our organizations more effective on campus. America now witnesses probably the most intelligent and imaginative youth it has ever known, while on campus such qualities can best be used in our organizations.

The economic facts of college life.

Fact No. 1 — A year's tuition at U.N.C. Wilmington is about $376.50.

Fact No. 2 — It'd be nice if that was all you had to fork over.

Fact No. 3 — Unfortunately, there's this thing about books, shelter, chow and etc.

Fact No. 4 — Even if you go light on the etc., you're still talking about a lot of money.

Fact No. 5 — You need a checking account to put it in. For the safety. For the record.

Fact No. 6 — Wachovia offers a good deal on their checking accounts.

Fact No. 7 — Wachovia has an office conveniently located at 590 South College Road. Phone - 763-6501, Ext. 281.

Fact No. 8 — When you need us, we're there.

Wachovia Bank & Trust, N.A.

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Read's

37 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- University Rings
- University Jewelry
- Engagement Rings
- Diamond Jewelry

•Student Charge Accounts
•New Accounts Welcome

"It's Read's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

New voters register downtown

Eighteen — twenty year olds wishing to register to vote in the May 1972 presidential primary should contact Mrs. Louise Rehder at the New Hanover County Board of Elections office.

Located in the yellow structure between the county courthouse, on the corner of Third and Princess Sts. and Market St., the Board of Elections office is next to a large, unpaved, parking lot.

Registration takes between five and ten minutes. Identification, such as a North Carolina Driver's License, is necessary. After taking the oath, the applicant states his or her name, age, place of birth, place of residence, and political party, if any. One year's residency in N.C. and 30 days residency within the precinct are prerequisite to voting in a general election. The registration oath is then administered. After the applicant signs the yellow registration card, he or she is considered a registered voter in the United States.

Political party affiliation does not have to be declared at time of registration. Although one may declare affiliation with the Democratic, Republican, American Independent, or Independent political parties, one may also declare NO Party Affiliation. In the latter case one can vote only in general elections, unless his or her affiliation is changed not less than 21 days prior to the election at the County Bd. of Elec. or at the poll on the day of balloting.

At press time, no provisions had been made by N.C. government to allow absentee balloting in the May presidential primary. This means students from other N.C. counties must file registration and vote in their hometowns, not in Wilmington, unless they are parentally independent.

Tape decks stolen

Five separate auto tape player thefts involving breaking and entering were reported by the resident student owners Monday morning, August 30. Totalling nearly $700, the tape player thefts were reported by the owners on discovery between 6:00 a.m. and noon Monday.

Subsequent investigation by the UNC-W Police Department and local authorities determined a case of forceful breaking and entering with removal of a tape player in each incidence. Four cars were parked in the dormitory parking lot at the time of theft which was estimated as occurring between Sunday evening, August 29 and early Monday morning, August 30.

The resident students reporting the thefts of their property were Cecil P. Riggs, Junius Morrison, Edward W. Tratt, Jr., Benny Williams, and Joseph A. Simpson, Jr.

Also reported to the campus police were the thefts of two ladies bicycles. The bicycles were taken from the dormitory area sometime after the Labor Day weekend. Neither bicycle was reportedly locked.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON LEADING JEWELERS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

S e
a h
a w k

needs your Help!!

typist writers reporters

Meeting
Tuesday's 11:30

Upstairs
Stud. Serv. Bldg.

Only $45⁰⁰* per month

FOR YOUR OWN MODERN FURNISHED APARTMENT

at

Country Club
APARTMENTS

Lullwater Drive Just Off Market Street

★ 2-bedroom apartment, with
1½ baths . . . shared by four

SPECIAL 9 MONTHS LEASE FOR STUDENTS, FACULTY AND UNIVERSITY PERSONNEL

Also available: 1-bedroom apartment, furnished or unfurnished, and 2-bedroom unfurnished apartment.

Rent for all units include carpeting, water, sewer, trash collection and full-time maintenance.

Spacious model apartment open daily
Mon. thru Sat. 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Sun. 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.
...or by appointment. Phone 791-8632.

Wouldn't you really rather live in a bright new apartment, tastefully furnished for modern living. Figure it out and you'll find that it is an economically sound proposition. Country Club offers you many special attractions and features at a moderate rental. Like wall-to-wall carpeting in living rooms, bedrooms, baths and halls; attractive bar separating living-kitchen area; modern kitchen with Hotpoint range, refrigerator and disposal; individually-controlled air conditioning; large swimming pool; central laundry facilities. Visit the furnished model apartment today and envision it as your home for the rest of the university year.

Only 2 Minutes From UNC-Wilmington

FROM THE UNIVERSITY, TAKE RANDALL DRIVE AND TURN RIGHT
ON LULLWATER. APPROXIMATELY ½ MILE TO APARTMENTS.

EXCELLENT AND CONVENIENT LOCATION: 2 blocks from Market Plaza and North 17 Shopping Center of Market St.; 10 minutes to Wrightsville Beach; minutes to New Hanover County Airport; convenient to all employment centers.

PHONE 791-8632

Freshmen file for Sept. 29 primary

All freshmen approved to file as candidates for the Sept. 29 primary must score 70% or above on the Constitution Test, to be given Sept. 21, 22, 23 in the SGA room at 11:30 a.m.

Candidates for the Senate are as follows: Jim Arnold, Elizabeth Buffington, Lindsay Clark, Billy Hammond, and Mike Hassey. Also included are Preston Maulsby, Ricky Ritter, Linda Tysinger, Brad Walls, and Becky Weathers.

Secretary candidates are Paul Fulton and Debbie Grieman. Mike Decowski, E. B. Evans, Jeff Pennington, and Robert Thomas are the candidates for Vice President.

For President are Jim Arnold, Meg Brinson, Harvey Fisher, Charlie Hodge, and Janet Hockoway. Also, John A. Johnson, Jr. Robert Pittman, Dana Rivenbark, and Jim Wishon.

Kershaw art exhibit 'highlighted by humor'

The colorful acrylic paintings currently on exhibit in Kenan Hall are the works of Rock Kershaw of Pembroke State University. The one man show of 30 paintings includes mainly acrylics, but also two foam rubber paintings, several drawings, and masonite art, such as "Mallard."

Claude Howell, head of the UNC-W art department, describes the show as "highlighted by humor." He says that Kershaw's work has been heavily influenced by the recent German Expressionist movement, as well as by Art Nouveau.

Some of Kershaw's paintings lend themselves to immediate interpretation of mood and expression, while others may require deeper contemplation. His moods vary widely throughout the exhibit.

The devil-faced comedian on stage in "Smiling Faces Sometimes" stands in a ridiculous, pant-less posture before an audience of staring faces. This work seems to present a mood of evil, almost frightening, humor. Other works, including the girl in the "Black Slip," reflect a more contemplative mood. Simple, colorful, and lighthearted, "Angels" depicts bright pink, chubby angels cavorting across azure heavens.

Perhaps Kershaw's type of art is best and simplest exemplified by his acrylic painting entitled "Portrait of Edmund Shay, Organist". The major emphasis is on the artist's impression of the man and his music, not on his actual physical portrait. Kershaw thusly represents Shay in a very minute portrait, while most of the canvas is occupied by a gigantic, misty-white pipe organ.

Rock Kershaw, a relatively

An unidentified student pauses to observe "Smiling Faces Sometimes."

new artist, is an instructor in art history and sculpture at Pembroke State University. He received his bachelor of arts degree at Pennsylvania State University and took his Master of Fine Arts from East Carolina in 1970.

Kershaw has exhibited his work at Allen Art Gallery in Manteo, The Loft at Pennsylvania State University, and The Walnuts in Philadelphia.

He has had one man showings at Richmond Technical Institute in Hamlet and at Whiteville's Peoples Savings and Loan this past year.

Kershaw has also participated in numerous group shows throughout the east and has taken several awards including honorable mentions at the Ninth Annual Lower Cape Fear Exhibit here at Kenan Hall. His works will be on exhibit at Kenan Hall throughout September.

Overseas study deadline nears

Only a few more weeks are left before the application deadline for Fulbright-Hays and other overseas study awards for the 1972-73 academic year.

Graduating seniors and graduate students may apply to do research or to teach in one of 37 countries next year.

Anyone interested in applying for one of these awards should contact Dr. Jackson Sparks, the Fulbright-Hays program adviser at UNC-W. Dr. Sparks has office hours from 9-11:30 a.m., Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Thursdays.

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 2

Tues. Sept. 21, 1971

Faculty Document presents lack of student perspective

By LIZ BUFFINGTON

The faculty met September 7 to vote on the Faculty Governance Document, which outlines the structure of committees and establishes various rules for the governing of the faculty.

The most pressing question this document presents to students is recognition of student perspective by the faculty of UNC-W. Ed Boylan, SGA President, and Bill Marlowe, student representative on the curriculum committee, attended the faculty meeting in an attempt to establish this recognition. Basically, two suggestions were accepted by the faculty: the first is that a copy of the agenda for each faculty meeting would be sent to the SGA office; the second is that the minutes of each faculty meeting would also be sent to the SGA office.

However, recognition of student perspective sought by Boylan and Marlowe was not achieved because the manner in which the new document is set up, it would void the present curriculum committee consisting of two students and seven faculty members. Under the new document, students would lose representation because the new committee would be composed of only three voting students to one faculty representative from each of the 18 to 20 departments plus two administration representatives and one from the library staff.

Boylan commented, "I'd like to commend the faculty for increasing the representation to each department instead of a collective group. This wider representation should benefit students as opposed to the former plan; however, I feel it is unfortunate that the faculty has not seen the need and value of student opinion and has even decreased student representation on the curriculum committee from 22 percent to 12.5 percent. This reduction shows apathy on the part of the faculty in their awareness of students' integral involvement in the educating-learning process."

He concluded, "From my observations our faculty is not past the point of no return is the effort for a successful learning process. I believe quite to the contrary, that the administration and faculty are still capable of the learning process and hope that the students will be able to teach them something this year."

'Student Action '71 - '72' Stretches statewide

By ED BOYLAN

August 13 - 15 several students from UNC-W and surrounding areas gathered in Chapel Hill for "Student Action '71-'72" a conference with a broad base that included people from high schools, technical institutes, universities, and colleges. Educational invocations and student legal rights were hashed out, as well as the financial independence and the power and authority of Student Government Associations. Mechanics behind an effective voter registration drive were covered in workshops led by workers in national groups supporting and working for a strong student vote in 1972.

The effort for voter registration formed a statewide organization, composed of students from all areas of North Carolina. It has been in operation since the Conference and announced its formation at a state-wide meeting held at UNC-Greensboro Sept. 19.

In Wilmington contact has been made between UNC-W, The Wilmington Youth Council, and Cape Fear Technical Institute, as well as the high school student government associations. We have talked several times with the chairman of the New Hanover County Board of Elections, William H. McEachern, III, and with Mrs. Louise Rehder, the executive secretary of the Board. Both of them have been very helpful, open-minded, and of great assistance in our efforts to inform students of the "how" to register.

In a recent meeting with the County Commissioners, we were happy to hear that they passed a resolution supporting a special registration drive. In another important step, the Commissioners passed a resolution which urges the State Senators and Representatives to reconsider absentee balloting in the primary election to be held May 2. Absentee balloting is a necessity for students, who must return to their places of residence to vote. On this date, most students will be preparing for final exams and thus would have to face this additional problem.

The whole problem could be solved rather easily if a student were allowed to register where he or she spends the majority of their time. Craig Brock, chairman of the State Board of Elections has substituted hesitation and negative wait-and-see answers (in the absence of positive or progressive policies) to election boards which are slow to react to students' requests to register where they spend nine out of twelve months in a year.

The SGA will try to keep the students informed of further action taken as a result of the Students Action Conference.

editor's note:

"UNC-W Education: Fact or Fantasy?" has been postponed until next week's special 8 page edition.

Unique display in Hoggard 'recycled'

By JEANNIE HOWE

In the central lobby of Hoggard Hall, one can see an example of recycled waste paper. The material used in creating the display is used computer print-out sheets.

The paper can be obtained free by asking permission of Donald Trivette, Computer Communications, to search the paper containers. (It is also very good for long letters, wrapping large gifts, and making inexpensive posters. Ask any Biology Club member.)

Thurs., Sept. 28, 7:30 p.m. in Hoggard Hall, Biology Club meets to discuss "Recycling Projects."

The Seahawk's opinions are recorded on its editorial page. Unsigned editorials are those of the editor; other columns and letters represent only the views of the individual contributors.

Jane Divine, Editor

Tim Sims

The tail of our remembering

"Time lays scars on a man like the chipmunk's stripes—paths that lead from where he is now back to where he came from, from the eyes of his knowing to the tail of his remembering. They are the ties that bind a man to his own being. When you are a man you will have a tail, though you will never see it. You will have something always behind you." — Cherokee Indians.

Most of us are probably not old enough, or rather, have not had enough experiences, to have deep regrets in our memories. I suppose that is the reason why so many young people live their lives carelessly, loosely, or for this moment, etc. Or perhaps we believe that our present lives will have effect on our future lives, but don't really have the guts to order them accordingly. Whatever the cause, the problem of live for now and to hell with the future exists.

I have heard Christian ministers espousing this doctrine of personal chaos from pulpits, using the words of Jesus ("Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat and drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on...") to justify their misguided philosophy of "live for today." What they leave out is the rest of that verse, "is not life more than food and clothing?"

The emphasis that Jesus was stressing was not that we should not think about the future, but that we should not be so concerned with the superficialities of food and clothing that one day's evil compounds itself by our misunderstanding of what comes first in life.

Interestingly enough, most of us at UNCW are here to "prepare for the future", yet some of us are thinking of the future only in terms of education. There is also one's peace of mind, and more important, one's ability to reach out in sincere and meaningful ways to other people.

What are we doing to prepare for the future in those areas? Is not life more than living for the next big weekend, the next check from home, or making the next big date? Is life not more than going to class and passing exams? Is it not more than partying with the Frats or tripping out with the Freaks?

The scars that we are putting on ourselves will always be with us. Life isn't a party or a grade or a girl or a boy or even a religion. Now that we are young, may the eyes of our knowing not be blinded to the tail of our remembering; and, when we are older, may the tail of our remembering not beat at our eyes with the stripes of its sorrow.

C. Keith Farmer

Getting your money's worth

During ticket sales for the recent Goose Creek Symphony Concert many students complained because they were being charged admission. It was reasoned that since they had paid a student activity fee that they should be allowed into the concert free. When asked if they knew how much this fee had been, the estimates ranged up to $53 per semester.

However, a check with the Administration Business Department shows the fee to be only nine dollars per semester. Nevertheless, some students might say this is still enough that "it should be allowed into the concert free." Let us see then if the student is actually getting his money's worth.

From the small sum of nine dollars per semester, what does the student receive? First of all he is allowed a reduced rate into all concerts for himself and his date; he is also allowed into all university sponsored dances free of charge. He is admitted into all SRO productions without admission charge, and he also receives this newspaper free. The student fee pays for his Fledgling as well as his Student Handbook and Student Telephone Directory. The Fine Arts program allows free admission to lectures, classical music, and culture films, as well as a popular films series at a greatly reduced rate. Lastly, in a more intellectual vein, the fees sponsor the debating team and the literary magazine, Atlantis. All of this is either paid for or, as in the case of concerts, subsidized by this nine dollars per semester.

It would seem that for a small sum of nine dollars per semester the student is certainly getting his money's worth.

Are you ready, faculty??

Whether or not one believes basic studies are necessary for a good education, one probably would admit a need for a much, much broader curriculum.

For example, business courses don't include a basic typing class - something that many non-business students need, want, but can't get. Classical languages are often needed for graduate school entrance, but Arabic is the only course of this nature listed in the catalog. Numerous examples are possible!

Certainly recognized is the budget involved. Until more students register, we're "stuck" with a small faculty, as well as the limited curriculum. But here's something to ponder, faculty: if UNCW offered a wider, more open field of studies, more people might be more interested in coming here. Stagnant water gathers algae - which can grow until it smothers and kills whatever life, including itself, is in the water.

Education is not stagnant; learning is an everyday occurrence, yet when the spark of energy, creativity, imagination, is smothered in routine . . .

Feedback!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

By R.A. BUCHANAN

What should be the ideal goal of education? Being more specific, what is the goal of education at UNCW? Are the two in any way closely related?

Ideally an educated person should be one able to think. He should be the one that refuses to accept everything he sees or hears at face value. Instead, the educated person should be able to think things through for himself.

Admitted that an educated man will have a vast accumulation of knowledge, is this what makes him educated? Is it all the facts, figures, and history dates he is able to recite that constitutes him as an educated man? If this is truly the case, why even bother? A computer can do it better, and quicker too.

Bringing the issue closer to home, in what classes have you, as a student, really been allowed to think? I don't mean allowed to regurgitate memorized material back to the instructor, or give back the previous night's reading. In how many classes have you been forced to think and issue thought, and come out with a definite opinion?

If a person's goal is simple good grades and a diploma, any institution is fine to obtain that desire. But the challenge is before us to become a truly educated person. Why should we be content with merely becoming a voluminous storehouse of information? Instead of becoming a passive container—think. No doubt it could possibly cause some instructors to also think, maybe for the first time.

The old proverb, "Variety is the spice of life," might hold in this case - UNCW offers a bland diet; just think of the variations on a theme UNCW could offer. Most students are ready, faculty. Are you?

The seahawk

UNCW, P. O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

EditorJane Divine
Business ManagerWayne Rogers

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all work is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Right-of-way reverses

By CARLOS POOLE

A center of campus driving confusion has been hopefully cleared up with a complete reversal of the right-of-way at Riegel Road and Street "F". This intersection is situated at the rear of the gym on Riegel Road, which leads to the new dormitory area, and Street "F" which connects with the large parking lot "E" behind the cafeteria.

The intersection was termed "potentially dangerous" by Chief Dillon of the UNC-W Police Department. Although no accidents actually occurred, there were many near misses experienced.

To promote on-campus driving safety, the following list of rules has been briefly outlined for the benefit of the students.

- 1—Drive carefully, watch out for the other fellow but don't forget to watch out for the fool driving your car also.
- 2—If you haven't yet, read the UNC-W traffic regulations pamphlet. They are available at the campus police office.
- 3—If you've got a problem, talk to amiable Chief Dillon. He is always willing to talk, and talk, and talk...
- 4—Try not to park more than one car in a space at time (Any person not understanding this should consult with the physics department.)
- 5—Give up driving: ride with a friend or get a bike.

"An opportunist is a man who goes ahead and does what you always intended to do."

Follow the
'Hawks

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
JEWELRY & GEMS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

This is physically healthy as well as ecologically beneficial.

6—Stop signs are big bright red and white octagonally shaped signs (meaning "to beat in a prizefight by a knockout." ref.: Webster.

7—Most importantly—do not park in a faculty space, especially if it belongs to one of your own professors.

UNC-W Community Orchestra develops

The university is sponsoring a new community orchestra under the direction of Prof. William F. Adcock. Hoping to give several concerts during the coming season, the orchestra hopes some of the graduating music majors may perform concerti with them in the years to come.

The UNC-W Community Orchestra rehearses every Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., Kenan 114. Many new members are needed in all sections of the orchestra. Any student who can play an orchestral instrument and would like to join the orchestra may do so by contacting Mr. Adcock in the Music Dept.

News from the Castle

by Susan Bagrowski, from the turret

Run! Everybody Run! Hurry - Fast! They're storming the drawbridge! Oh Sweet Jesus the donjen! They're headed for the donjen --

Right now in the university the battle is raging. No casualties have been reported yet from the verbal conflict, but there may be some soon. The Liberal Educators' League and the Conservative Educators' League are trying to bop each other politely over the head.

The liberals institute a new curriculum. The conservatives counteract the new curriculum. An interdependent course, such as linguistics, tries to take the bias away from native language; an English grammar course (teaching Greek grammar rules instead of English ones) tries to further cement the bias.

Basic studies is a bagged down paraphenalia. Aunt Minnie appoints a faculty group to decide about students' studies. Everyone knows students are too stupid to make any decisions, don't they? -All those who disagree write, "I must not misbehave in school" 50 times in your Silver Bear Nutshell Notebook....

The economic facts of college life.

Fact No. 1 - A year's tuition at U.N.C. Wilmington is about $376.50.

Fact No. 2 - It'd be nice if that was all you had to fork over.

Fact No. 3 - Unfortunately, there's this thing about books, shelter, chow and etc.

Fact No. 4 - Even if you go light on the etc., you're still talking about a lot of money.

Fact No. 5 - You need a checking account to put it in. For the safety. For the record.

Fact No. 6 - Wachovia offers a good deal on their checking accounts.

Fact No. 7 - Wachovia has an office conveniently located at 590 South College Road. Phone - 763-6501, Ext. 281.

Fact No. 8 - When you need us, we're there.

Wachovia Bank & Trust, N.A.

Death of a Salesman announces cast

By LESLIE ZACHERY

The Wilmington University Theatre, which started this academic year off with the presentation of the musical "West Side Story", is now working on the play by Arthur Miller, "Death of a Salesman".

The play will be presented October 15, 16, and 17 in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. Seat reservations will not be necessary, but for those wishing to make them the box office in Kenan Auditorium will be open in the afternoons the week of the play. Tickets will be free to all UNC-W students; non-student tickets will be $1.00.

"Death of a Salesman", which first appeared on Broadway in 1948, has been called by many critics "the modern classic of the American Theatre". It tells the story of a successful traveling salesman who suddenly comes face to face with the reality of how ungratifying his own life really is.

Tryouts for "Death of a Salesman" were held August 30-31. Dr. Terry Rogers, chairman of the Drama and Speech Department and director of the play, was very pleased with the turn out. According to Dr. Rogers this was one of the largest turn outs the University Theatre has had. He accredits this partly to the new residence hall on the Wilmington campus.

The cast consists of nine UNC-W students and three people from the Wilmington community. Tryouts are open to all interested persons.

Inter - Club Schedules meeting

Due to the unexpected deadline of the initial Seahawk, some club articles were not ready at printing time. These clubs will submit material in the next few issues. The Inter-Club Council met on Sept. 14 with the club representatives. Another meeting has been scheduled for Sept. 28 at 11:30 in the down-stairs of the Student Services Building (Pub). All organizations are requested to have a representative present.

A few clubs on campus have not filed their constitutions for the '71-'72 school year. Such organizations are strongly urged to do so by October 4 in order to show active status.

The UNC-W students should "eye the boards and walls" for information on your club's latest activities. Also, future organization events will be acknowledged in this paper.

Members of the cast include Tom Wilson as Willy Loman, Vicki Daum as Linda Loman, Tim Wesner as Biff Loman, and Michael Decowski as Happy Loman. Bernard will be portrayed by Gary Allen, The Woman by Cathy Medlin, Charlie by Steve Vallender, Uncle Ben by Randy Wimberg, and Howard by Jere Bradford. Patti Kandle is Jenny, Ed Danilowicz is Stanley, Sadie Bridger is Miss Forsythe and Debbie Loris is Letta.

Ed Danilowicz is working with Dr. Rogers as the assistant producer on this production. Lights will be designed by Brent Scott, costumes by Cathy Medlin. Properties will be handled by Randy Murcer and Liz Larosa will be the house manager.

Dr. Rogers stated, "The creative task that confronts the students in this production is to fuse the internal realistic structure of the play with the expressionistic frame with which Arthur Miller surrounds the tragedy of Willy Loman. Willy is an insignificant man in the sense of grandeur, but has universal qualities that all men can identify with."

As Dr. Rogers pointed out it is hard for the audience, who sees only the finished product, to really appreciate all the work that the people taking part in the activities of the University Theatre put into any of their productions. The Drama and Speech Department is never idle, for once they finish with one production they begin immediate work on the next.

This year the Drama and Speech Department will be presenting six productions, counting "West Side Story". About a week after "Death of a Salesman" has made its run, tryouts will be held for Bertolt Brecht's play, "The Good Woman of Setzuan", to be presented December 8, 9, 10, and 11. February 24, 25, 26, and 27 the department will put on "Ghosts" by Henrik Ibsen. Following "Ghosts" the Drama and Speech Department will work with the Music Department to present a popular Broadway musical in March. The last production will be a student production or a senior thesis project.

TYPISTS NEEDED

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE

Contact
The Seahawk
upstairs Pub.

Only $45⁰⁰ * per month

FOR YOUR OWN MODERN FURNISHED APARTMENT

at

Country Club

APARTMENTS

Lullwater Drive Just Off Market Street

★ 2-bedroom apartment, with
1½ baths . . . shared by four

SPECIAL 9 MONTHS LEASE FOR STUDENTS, FACULTY AND UNIVERSITY PERSONNEL

Also available: 1-bedroom apartment, furnished or unfurnished, and 2-bedroom unfurnished apartment.

Rent for all units include carpeting, water, sewer, trash collection and full-time maintenance.

Spacious model apartment open daily
Mon. thru Sat. 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Sun. 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.
...or by appointment. Phone 791-8632.

Wouldn't you really rather live in a bright new apartment, tastefully furnished for modern living. Figure it out and you'll find that it is an economically sound proposition. Country Club offers you many special attractions and features at a moderate rental. Like wall-to-wall carpeting in living rooms, bedrooms, baths and halls; attractive bar separating living-kitchen area; modern kitchen with Hotpoint range, refrigerator and disposal; individually-controlled air conditioning; large swimming pool; central laundry facilities. Visit the furnished model apartment today and envision it as your home for the rest of the university year.

Only 2 Minutes From UNC-Wilmington

FROM THE UNIVERSITY, TAKE RANDALL DRIVE AND TURN RIGHT
ON LULLWATER. APPROXIMATELY ¼ MILE TO APARTMENTS.

EXCELLENT AND CONVENIENT LOCATION: 2 blocks from Market Plaza and North 17 Shopping Center of Market St.; 10 minutes to Wrightsville Beach; minutes to New Hanover County Airport; convenient to all employment centers.

PHONE 791-8632

Education at UNCW: Fact or Fantasy?

(SEE PAGES 4 AND 5)

Six students enter Senior Honors Program

Six students have entered the Seniors Honors Program of UNC-W. These students are: Clyde Keith Farmer, Daniel Gary Grady, Harry S. Howard, Jeannie Howe, Michael D. Purvis, and Laviece C. Ward.

The Senior Honors Program includes independent study, a paper reporting the results of the study, and an oral examination. Keith Farmer, under the direction of Dr. James F. Parnell, is making an ecosystem analysis of a swamp community. Gary Grady, under the direction of Dr. Irvin G. Clater, is studying the Newtonian gravitational field theory. Harry Howard, also under Dr. Irvin G. Clater, is conducting a theoretical and experimental investigation of gaseous lasers. Jeannie Howe, under Dr. Daniel B. Plyer, is studying the effects of maleic hydrazide on nucleic acid metabolism. Michael Purvis, under Dr. James C. Halsey, is applying groups to a number theoretic problem. Laviece C. Ward, under Mrs. Marie Powles, is studying the influence of John Donne's poetic style on the poetic techniques of Dylan Thomas.

The Senior Honors Program is open to any senior with a 3.0 average, 30 hours of work completed at UNC-W, and the recommendation of the chairman of the area in which he is concentrating. Since it was started with the first four year graduating class in 1965, 16 students have completed the honors program.

Common fender brings no charge

Larry and Jenny ran into each other last Tuesday morning. Unfortunately, each was headed in the opposite direction at the time and the encounter proved damaging and expensive.

The accident occurred at 8:20 a.m., September 21 on the curve in Riegel Road directly behind parking lot "A". Jennifer Sturken, a resident student from Goldsboro, was driving west on Riegel Road from the dormitory area. An auto driven by Larry John Smith was enroute to class from the opposite direction. All of a sudden—BANG!—and each shared a common fender.

The campus police were immediately notified and damage was estimated at $125 to the Sturken vehicle and $100 to the Smith car. No charges were made.

Editor's note: Having heard rumors concerning a special program to be developed for students who have special talents and abilities, we went after the facts: here they are (reprinted from a faculty memorandum written by Dr. Charles Cahill, Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs). "There appears to be a great deal of confusion among faculty and students regarding the existence of a program specifically designed for a unique group of students. According to rumor, this program is built around the idea of an open curriculum, is completely unstructured, and was brought into being without due consideration by the faculty. I certainly appreciate your concern in this matter and would like this opportunity to attempt some clarification of the issue.

"By way of background information, we have been given a grant of money by a donor who wishes to remain anonymous. The donor has specified that we use this money to study, develop, and maintain an experimental program designed to meet the needs of students who may be identified as having "multiple abilities and talents."

"For the record, I want to assure you that such a program does not exist at this time and, therefore, cannot be operative. Further, all students currently enrolled in a degree program of this university are bound by the requirements set forth in our catalogue.

"A steering committee has been established to formulate a program which will be appropriate for students who are endowed with "multiple abilities and talents," to establish a budget pertinent to the goals of this program, and to design techniques which will allow the identification of such students. These problem areas are currently being investigated but are still very much in the formative stage.

"Again, for the record, this committee will eventually forward its recommendations to the Curriculum Committee for due consideration by that body. The Curriculum Committee will then develop its recommendations for consideration by the faculty.

the seahawk university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 3

Tues. Sept. 28, 1971

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band

will appear on campus Sat. night, Oct. 9

Plans for special program incomplete

Law candidates' exam offered

Princeton, N.J., The Law School Admission Test, required of candidates for admission to most American law schools, will be given December 18, February 12, 1972, April 8, 1972, and July 29, 1972. Registration must be made by November 2 for the December test. Since many law schools select their freshman classes in the spring preceding entrance, candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised to register for the December or February administration. Registration for this test does not constitute application for admission to law school. Such application must be made by filing appropriate papers with the institutions involved.

The Law School Admission Test is a half-day test. Designed to predict scholastic achievement in law school and to provide information about the undergraduate preparation of law school applicants, the test yields two scores: the LSAT, which is a measure of academic ability, and writing ability, which is a measure of competence in writing skills.

Candidates for the test should secure a copy of the Bulletin of Information, which includes the LSAT-LSIDAS Registration Form and sample questions. These may be obtained from Dr. J.C. Dixon, A-206. The Registration Form and fees must reach Educational Testing Service at least three weeks before the desired test date. The Bulletin includes information about LSDAS, the new admissions services and the names of law schools participating in the services.

Over 150 law schools require or recommend that applicants submit LSAT scores. Over 100 law schools participate in the LSDAS. Still other schools welcome reports. Find out from each law school in which you are interested whether you are to take the test and when to take it. Scholarship applicants are advised to register for the October or December administration.

Georgetown has its freaks, Berkely its revolutionaries and Wilmington's got perverts and grits.

Just think of it. Wilmington is the only place on Earth one can see a guy caressing his double barrel shot gun and talking to it gently while watching "Two-hundred Positions" at a local drive-in. All this, mind you, is done in the front seat of a Ford pick-up with anti-everything stickers across the back.

Not that I mind perverts (some of my best friends are perverts), but I wouldn't want my sister to marry one.

Grits are a different matter. Having them for breakfast is one thing, but...

Thoughts: Why can't the Pub become one of thos swank (pronounced "swank") and chick (pronounced "chic") night spots for all the UNC students... Whatever happened to Harvery Swarts? (Who's Harvery Swarts?). ...Are puns the highest or lowest form of humor?... Did you hear the one about the guy transporting gulls across a staid lion for immortal porposies...?

Nominations: Me thinks Ed Boylan (you know, the kid who claims to be Student Body President) should be placed in the (are you ready for this) "Most Dear-ful" Club. Even though I personally feel he's not worthy of such a nomination (heh...heh...heh), we have received numerous (two to be exact) cards in support of this move.

Until next time, remember, a bird in the hand can be messy! by Anton.

Along 132

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Tim Sims

Atlantis sinks again

The way human beings arrange their priorities can make a very fascinating study for anyone whose interest happens to be in absurdity; particularly if the humans of specific study happen to be college students. The immense contradictions among us which arise from our poorly understood principles is only one area of interest, but it perhaps most clearly illustrates the absurdity.

The young are constantly deriding their elders for lack of perspective in everything from Vietnam to Ecology, yet somehow are able to overlook their own shortsightedness.

For instance: The literary magazine at UNC-W, Atlantis, is the only lasting, concrete thing we have in which we see a reflection of some of the culture and creativity of our campus. True, our music, art, and drama departments are constantly reflecting this, but not in the sense of something we can look at years from now and remember.

One would think that the reflection of our creativity in a lasting way should be extremely important, and a manner of concern to all who are interested in our campus. However, this, sadly, is not the case. It seems that Rock Concerts, which give momentary pleasure and excitement (and will not be remembered as a cultural contribution to anything by anyone years from now), are much more important.

To whom? Evidently to all of us, since our duly elected student government has set aside 6200 dollars for rock concerts and cut back the Atlantis allotment for 2900 to 1900 dollars this year.

With the money Atlantis now has, they can do one good issue, yet somehow they are being expected to produce two. Oh don't blame the "Administration bureaucracy", because the blame rest squarely on our own absurd non-principle which dictates our momentary good time more important than a lasting tribute to all that our education is supposed to be doing for us.

If anything, Atlantis' funds should have been increased this year so it could include more of what should be important to us. But until we stop being kids who are more interested in red candy than vegetables and meat, Atlantis will keep sinking.

Feedback!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

this is your chance to publicly express your opinion—use it!

By DAVID SHYMANSKI

The Administration has the responsibility of offering to the student as much as possible for the money he pays. Many students are here just to get a diploma, which hopefully will help them get a good job. Others supplement this purpose with a desire to learn, book wise and life wise, as much as they can.

Curriculum changes would profit both types of students. Yesterday's education, though it may be good background, is not thoroughly preparing us for tomorrow's jobs. By updating this college's curriculum we see a surge in the value of a UNC-W diploma.

For the people who are here to learn as much as possible, many of the classes seem dull and maybe not relevant in many cases. Professors have been teaching the same courses the same way year after year. It has become routine; it has gotten old for professors and students alike. New courses and new methods could present more of a challenge.

The university can offer the student just something or it can offer him a lot.

We urge the faculty and administration to "stick their necks about a bit" on this issue of curriculum change. UNC-W is here for the glory of its students; no one else.

By R.A. BUCHANAN

When a person is attending UNC-W to receive an education it is unfair when he is denied this opportunity. Unfortunately, this does happen in some classes and then a whole semester is needlessly wasted. In many cases an active desire for learning is smothered and sometimes completely extinguished.

The responsibility of getting an education is the student's. But it is the responsibility of every UNC-W faculty member to make sure that the student gets the best possible opportunity for learning. If this is not accomplished they are failing in their vocation and denying every single student they face.

Most classes at UNC-W are set up as lecture series. In classes with large numbers of students this is desirable and offers the best opportunities for learning and education. But it is also one of the biggest sources of student complaints.

Many of the complaints doubtlessly are as old as the idea of education itself, but that fact doesn't make a hour and thirty minutes of boring monotone any easier to take (and that also goes for areas of anatomy other than the cranium). Some complaints however are much more valid. If a university student is assigned textual reading outside of class why do some professors lecture by constantly reading the text? Repetition is fine in Jr. High but it somehow loses its challenge to most university students.

The idea is that professors have as much preparation to do for a class as do the students. It should be a 50-50 proposition, with both sides benefitting.

Whatever happened to course evaluation? — C. Keith Farmer

This August during registration we had our largest class ever of totally confused freshmen and transfer students. Everywhere one looked one saw mass confusion in what to take and under whom to take it.

It brought to mind last spring's controversy concerning teacher evaluation. A committee of students was formed and a committee of teachers elected to discuss "improving the level of instruction on the campus." However, a meeting of the two has never occurred. The chairman of the student committee has graduated and now all is in a limbo state.

Both teacher and curriculum evaluation is needed now! Not evaluation by faculty and administration but instead evaluation by students, for students and from a student's viewpoint. Evaluation is often misunderstood by faculty and student. It is not wholesale character assassination. It is instead a method by which students can better tell which courses to take and with which instructors the particular student will benefit most. Also, if properly used by open minded instructors, it would be a great aid in helping the professor communicate better with the student.

It should be started and started now. I as one of the remaining student members urge the SGA to appoint a new student chairman and empower us to move, with advice from the faculty, toward an evaluation program that will be ready for the benefit of students and before next semester's confusion begins. We must take the initiative now so we may benefit from the groundwork that has been laid. The next move is for the Student Senate; they should act now and not fall into the lackadaisical attitudes of their predecessors.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Assistants.....Barry Asbury
Carson Benson
Liz Buffington
Ray Buchanan
Grace Parker
Carlos Poole
David Shymanski
Kathy Tyner

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Within this year, we at the seahawk feel some major policy changes will occur. Since these changes will be made by the faculty and administration, and since these changes will affect all of us, we feel the students should have a part in the decision making process. Student opinion can have a constructive, lobbying force - but this poll will play little significance unless we answer in a serious way and RETURN IT TO MARKED BOXS STRATEGICALLY LOCATED ON CAMPUS.

- | | | |
|--|---|--|
| 1) Are you getting as much out of your courses as you hoped?
☐ yes ☐ no | 4) Are you satisfied with your class schedule?
a yes ☐
b no (course selection) ☐
c no (poor scheduling) ☐
d b and c ☐ | 6) Would you agree with an optional pass-fail grading system?
☐ yes ☐ no |
| 2) If no, do you blame this on A) teacher disconcern for students ☐
B) course format ☐
C) class aptitude ☐
(mark any or all of above) | 5) Would you recommend UNCW to a high school senior?
☐ yes ☐ no | 7) Should a better variety of courses (in all dept's.) be offered?
☐ yes ☐ no |
| 3) Does your curriculum need major changes?
☐ yes ☐ no | | 8) Do you plan to a) graduate from UNCW ☐
b) transfer to another school ☐
c) not graduate but attend classes ☐ |

Political Forum

Where do you stand?

ECOLOGY, ETC.

By DIANN C. ANEST

If we care about our survival, we must learn to live in harmony with the resources of the earth. We must realize first of all that we are an integral organism in the ecological system. We must stop thinking of ourselves as "consumers" and become "users" of the resources.

Everytime you purchase a product you are making an impact on the environmental system. Each dollar you spend for the product that is harmful, the process that pollutes, the food that doesn't nourish, serves to prolong the destruction of the environment.

Your first question is, "But what can I do?" To begin with, you must make yourself aware of the connections within the system. The paper packaging that you buy and discard was once a tree. Phosphates in detergents have been a major factor in the eutrophication of lakes and rivers; Lake Erie is virtually dead. Have you learned of the connection between the use of DDT and the near extinction of the peregrine falcon and other predators? These organisms are at the end of a long food chain, just as Man is himself.

When one realizes the magnitude of such problems as eutrophication of lakes, the extinction of entire species of animals, and the eminent consequences of air pollution, one begins to feel very small indeed in comparison with government and industries. At this point, one must also realize that governments are elected, and industries are paid for by your the consumer. In order to maintain a niche for man in the ecological system, he must first transform himself, then through him his institutions. Your political vote, and especially your economic vote ($$$), are your weapons to start to reclaim some of our garbage dump the Earth.

WREATH OF HORRORS By EDDIE WHITE

The recent tragedy at Attica State Prison in New York has added another bough to the wreath of horrors of the American society, the genocide of the American prisoner. It is shocking that such brutal and indiscriminate murder could happen in a supposedly civilized society such as ours. What is more shocking is that this brutal act was ordered, a massacre so indiscriminate that rioters and their hostages were shot without compunction or even plan.

Why did this tragedy happen? It happened so that Gov. Rockefeller could not be called "soft on crime." It happened so that people would not hear about the conditions in the prisons from the prisoners, about the homosexuality, the dehumanization, and most of all, about the corrupt officials. It happened because we still think of prisoners as animals and treat them that way. It happened because we allow our public officials to take the easy way out, to consider their own ambitions before the lives of others.

In conclusion, I would like to ask that on Oct. 5, we join in with the prisoners around the nation and mourn these men who died so senselessly and to say "This must not happen again!"

When bicycles take over, something (handmade racks?) has to be done!

PROBLEM PREGNANCY?

... If you'd like skilled, immediate help in thinking through all possible plans, call The Children's Home Society of North Carolina. The Society, a United Fund program, offers this experienced counseling service to you without charge.

740 Chestnut Street
Greensboro, N.C. 27405 telephone 274-1538

---or---

P. O. Box 1597
Wilmington, N.C. 28401 telephone
763-9727

NEED A FRIEND OR A SMILE?

COME BY AND GIVE US A TRY!

BOOKSTORE

Education: Is it really

Traditional educational approach 'stifling'

DANIEL PLYLER

By LIZ BUFFINGTON

"Stifling" is the word Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, Biology Department Chairman, uses to describe the traditional approach to education.

"It's an obstacle course. All of the disciplines are broken up — there's not unity in the basic studies program. Each student takes all of the requirements and is graded on a general basis, not individually," stated Dr. Plyler.

"Basic studies should provide freedom to learn," he adds, "more responsibility should be placed on students and they should have more opportunities for class participation.

He sees possibilities for improvement in the basic studies requirements, which he objects to because of "complete lack of innovation and complete inflexibility."

Comprehensive basic courses in a general areas — not specific subjects — would constitute a better basic studies program.

For example: Why not have a symposium entitled "Inquiry into Science" to replace traditional national science requirement. Such a symposium could incorporate various aspects of science such as matter, energy, life, etc.

In the individual classroom, Dr. Plyler believes students should be given leeway to choose an area in which to concentrate his study, if he so wished. The present methods used for testing are bad. Students are expected to memorize bits and pieces of information and regurgitate them at test time — which may please the instructor, but there's no place for the student's original thoughts," he continues. "He shouldn't be required to learn every little bit of information.

The lecture method could still be used, but there should be considerable class discussion involving as many students as possible. Course evaluation could be based on individual reflections in which the student has an opportunity to relate to the instructor just what he has learned.

"There's no reason why students can't become experts on their own," he concluded. "There's a difference between regimentation and experience."

DOUG SWINK

'Concentrations are for the birds'

"UNC-W should remain strictly a liberal arts institution on the undergraduate level," states Doug Swink of the Drama and Speech Dept. "In this day and time, we think only about specialists — which is fine on the graduate school level, but we have a tendency to turn out equations or test tubes, not well-rounded persons."

About basic studies Swink commented, "The faculty and administration should outline the course of study. Certainly, students should pose questions — and it's ours to listen, but for the students should pose questions — and it's ours to listen, but for the students to have a direct hand in the decision. No! If they're that smart, why are they in college?"

"I feel periodically students should be heard, and also periodically, the basic studies program has to be changed — not for change's sake — but re-evaluated," he said.

Re-evaluation of the "concentration - collateral" program is needed. Prof. Swink feels "majors" and "minors" are much more preferable. "Concentrations are for the birds. A student can get up into his junior and senior years, and if he's been working under the Concentration - Collateral program, it's almost impossible for him to change fields of study," he concluded.

'what we ought to be concerned about is how to live as well as how to make a living'

"For any graduate in any field, I think it's important that he or she have some knowledge and understanding of some basic things. "For example," Chancellor William Wagoner explains, "Every person needs to know some things about Man — his heritage, culture, and inter-human relationships."

"But what we ought to be concerned about," he continued, "is how to live as well as how to make a living." I would like to see broad areas of knowledge and understanding offered in the future, from which students may choose courses and programs which will accomplish this purpose.

A curriculum should help an individual become more aware and appreciative of himself and his own capabilities, his fellow mankind, and the world and universe in which he lives. It should also help him to be more aware of the creations, contributions, and ideas of his fellow mankind gone before him, so that he will know how to prepare his contributions for society, mankind and the world of work.

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM WAGONER

Friday, Oct. 1

Me, Natalie

Starring Patty Duke
James Farentino
Kenan Auditorium
8:00

25¢ Single

$1.00 Season
(Good for 18 Movies)

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25

GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL

POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,

PLUS $100 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING

CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

what we're getting here??

Campus life and reality are two different things....

By David Shymanski

A recent interview with new Vice Chancellor Charles Cahill revealed, among other things, some faculty and administration opinions about curriculum change.

The pro-change opinion is the "student of today is a totally different type of student from predecessors. He has different reasons for attending college; he has different attitudes toward his courses, teachers, and the world he lives in." Dr. Cahill would like to see an "internship" type curriculum experiment. Dr. Cahill states that, "such a program would give the student, while still an undergraduate, a chance to work in his field of endeavor." Exposure to industry will give the student an idea of "what he is getting into." Campus life and reality can be two different things. The Vice Chancellor is an advocate of more loosely structured curricula, putting emphasis on a wider range and freer choice of colaterals and electives.

While favoring change, Dr. Cahill points out some of the more conservative arguments. Some faculty contend that "as is, UNC-W's curriculums offer a well balanced education. Well defined requirements for graduation insure the value of a UNC-W diploma." Dr. Cahill concedes that "no change is better than change for the sake of change alone."

Vice Chancellor Cahill concludes "that no decisions about curricula will be made without careful consideration to the purposes behind and the projected outcome of these changes."

CHARLES CAHILL

'Students should be educated, not merely trained'

"If any subjects would be put on a Pass - Fail basis, Physical Education would be my first choice!" admitted Dr. James Beeler, professor of French and Curriculum Committee chairman.

Favoring a "general education," Dr. Beeler defines general education as serving two purposes; 1) to give a broad, general education and 2) to serve as a stepping stone or introduction to a problem leading to a degree.

"I think the university student should be educated, not merely trained," he maintains. "Whether we like it or not, the university students must be largely theoretical; otherwise, we can't keep up with the technology that's being developed so rapidly today."

The first characteristic of an educated man, stated Dr. Beeler, "is that he can express himself intelligibly in speaking and writing. In explaining his beliefs, he names all of the present basic studies, implying their necessity to all students at any school of higher education."

In conclusion, Dr. Beeler feels student opinion is "very important in working the details of a Bachelor's Degree Program of studies — but students cannot have a full voice."

Committee has no power to make 'sweeping decisions'

Until last year no formal curriculum committee existed. It developed from interests of several department chairmen, through former Dean of Academic Affairs J. Paul Reynolds, who "had a strong voice on curriculum," according to Prof. James R. Beeler, chairman of the first official Curriculum Committee.

Five members of that group were professors appointed to the position by their departments chairman. Four ex officio positions were filled by two students (chosen by Student Senate), and the deans of faculty and student affairs; given full voting power, ex officio members could speak and debate in all Curriculum meetings.

"It doesn't have the power to make sweeping decisions," stated Dr. Beeler, "its findings have to be sent to Academic Council, and then the whole faculty, which takes the final vote."

With the advent of the Faculty Governance Document, new procedure has been outlined. If and when the bylaws are approved by Chancellor William H. Wagoner and Consolidated University President William C. Friday, the following will happen:

Each of the 20 departments and the library staff of UNCW will elect one member to sit on the Curriculum, Committee for one year. Vice Chancellors of Academic and Student Affairs and three students elected by Student Government shall be ex officio members, with full voting and speaking powers. "Therefore," stated Dr. Beeler, "It will act with greater power because of the absence of the Academic council in the new plan. Reports go directly to the faculty."

Warren Report

General Assembly decides Oct. 26

All the hassle and problems involved in the seemingly endless and complex fight in the North Carolina General Assembly concerning the restructuring of the North Carolina higher educational system is, according to observers, entering its final stages and should soon be settled.

The study was officially started last winter when Governor Bob Scott appointed a group to study the organization of higher education in North Carolina.

The group, composed of trustees of each regional university, the School of the Arts and the Consolidated University Trustees, became known as the Warren Commission and upon studying the situation for many months, reported their findings to the General Assembly.

A majority report recommended the university system be decentralized with each campus having its own board of trustees. A board of regents would be appointed for all 16 regional and consolidated university campuses, which would have complete budget control.

In contrast, the minority report issued by the group, suggested the six campuses of the Consolidated University remain intact and the Board of Trustees be kept.

Bills were introduced to bring both the majority and minority reports into law, but neither bill received enough support in the N.C. Senate for passage.

Sen. John Burney (D-New Hanover) introduced a bill which would have postponed any action until the 1973 General Assembly and would set out further legislative study commissions to review and report to the '73 Assembly.

WITH 5 WAYS to register,
how can you go wrong?
Register and Vote in the May 2
Presidential Primary

ATTENTION STUDENTS

This Card When Presented With Your I.D. Card
Is Valid For All Purchases Made At Our Store.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT

member

is an MBS member

THE Music
SHOP

MUSICAL BUYING
SERVICE

STEREO
LTD.

eligible for special discounts on merchandise and equipment purchased at either store. Not valid on selected merchandise.

No _____

4208 Oleander Drive

French first in Fine Arts Series; offers special program for students

Leslie French, actor, director, producer of Shakespearian productions will present a dramatic offering of Shakespearian readings and scenes at 8:00 p.m., Friday, Oct. 8 in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. Mr. French is appearing on the UNC-W campus under the auspices of the UNC-W Fine Arts Committee.

Leslie French will present a program for the students, particularly those interested in the Shakespearian theatre, at a time to be announced on Thursday, Oct. 7. His public performance will be presented on Oct. 8. Students will be admitted free upon presentation of their I.D. cards. Others will be charged admission of one dollar.

In 1918, Mr. French joined the Ben Greet Shakespeare company and for the next five years, he appeared under Sir Ben Greet's management in classical plays touring England and playing a season every year in London. He migrated into the world of Musical Comedy and Revue and appeared with the great C.B. Cochran in "Coronation Revue" at the Adelphi Theatre, London.

In 1934, Mr. French began a new career as a director and entered his own management with "The Traitors Gate" at the Duke of Yorks Theatre; subsequently, he produced Shakespearian plays in England and in South Africa. He produced sixteen of Shakespeare's plays in the Open Air Theatre, Maynardville, Cape Town.

In 1959, Leslie French turned his attention to films and had immediate success in Anthony Asquith's production of "Orders to Kill" in which he appeared as "Monsieur Lafitte." Mr. French's latest performance is in the highly acclaimed motion picture entitled "Death in Venice" directed by Luchino Visconti starring Dirk Begarde.

This year, Mr. French has directed "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at Stockwells Open Air Theatre, Oxford; "A Winter's Tale" at Maynardville and "The Merchant of Venice" in Port Elizabeth.

NYC ain't the only place that's polluted...

Sixty - five dollars a year for smog! That's what pollution costs each American per year.

Mr. Ken Johnson, of the Air Quality Commission in Greenville, spoke recently at "Project Environment." He reminded the audience that 215 tons of air pollution each year is really a problem.

Air Pollution is not just some big city problem. Wilmington is high on the sulfur dioxide emission list because as a port city it uses a large amount of residual fuel. Mr. Johnson assured the audience that although North Carolina is not another New York, it is a borderline case.

Follow the
'Hawks

Bryan Fann (second from left) discusses registration of new voters as part of Campaign for Young Voters held in Greensboro. Representatives from Wilmington were (left to right) SGA President Ed Boylan, Fann, Liz Buffington and New Hanover High School SGA President, David Massey. Not pictured is The Seahawk editor, Jane Divine. (Staff photo)

Campaign seeks 18-20 year olds

Began in August as a part of Student Action '71-72, Campaign for Young Voters was officially chartered Sunday, Sept. 19, at UNC-Greensboro.

Student government leaders, campus newspaper editors, youth council representatives and other delegates from high schools and colleges all over North Carolina met to receive endorsements from several state organizations and to report local action since August 17, the end of a special student action conference at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Ed Boylan, SGA President, and The Seahawk's editor, Jane Divine, with Liz Buffington and Bryan Fann represented UNC-W. "We have contacted the New Hanover Board of Elections, A. Philip Randolph Institute, and a local group which is working through the NAACP," stated Boylan. "Wilmington Youth Council, New Hanover and John T. Hoggard high schools are also participating in the local drive for voter registration."

Having attended and spoken at a New Hanover County Commissioners meeting, and having publicly requested campus voter registration over local television, for not only UNC-W, but also for NHHS and JTHHS, Boylan feels Wilmington participants have actively supported the campaign for Young Voters since its beginning.

Atlantis rises again!

By DAVE SMITH
Atlantis Editor

The staff of Atlantis, the literary magazine written and published by the students of UNC-W, extends a warm welcome to all. Atlantis is designed to publish the creative literary pursuits of the students, and any aspiring writer, artist, or photographer is invited to submit his work to the magazine for consideration. Students may bring their work to the Atlantis office on the second floor of the Student Services Building, or give it to one of the magazine's staff members. The material should be typed and checked for errors, and the student should also retain a copy for his personal use. The Atlantis staff does not assume the responsibility for returning manuscripts.

Atlantis will publish two issues this school year; one in the fall of this year and the second in the spring of 1972. We would like to publish a wider variety of literary types this year including interviews with authors, book reviews, and other works in the field of prose.

Remember, Atlantis is your magazine and a reflection of your creativity and interest in writing. You as a student can enhance this image by supporting Atlantis and submitting your work.

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

When you run out • • • Run in • • •

ZIP MART

OPEN 7-11

ACROSS FROM UNC-W

(Above) Part of campaign for young voters, Gus Gusler, (center) NCSU student government president, informs Hilton Smith (right) of the events relating to the campaign at North Carolina State University. Smith, associate editor of State's Technician and Gusler were among one hundred young North Carolinians at the meeting held Sun., Sept. 19, at UNC-Greensboro. (Below) Charles Jeffress, statewide coordinator for Student Action '71-72.

Radio waves could make splash if FCC, space, money permit

UNC-W may again hear the sounds of its own radio waves if plans are further developed for a campus station.

The campus had a station some years back, but due to a few problems had to close down.

Barry Asbury, one of the radio enthusiasts, has said that he would like for the station to feature educational programming as well as other types. It's lectures, concerts, music for students, and listings of campus activities would serve as a bridge between the University and the community.

Problems involved in setting up the station include approval by the FCC, a location, and monies to finance the project.

The first problem could be lessened if the station were of the carrier currents variety. This type is less expensive. With this system, the radio impulses would be transmitted through the electrical systems and any radio plugged into any component of the system or located within a prescribed radius of the station could receive broadcasts.

Even though the amount of space necessary for the operation of the station would be limited, antenna connections and various other problems would have to be considered.

Assuming the first two problems could be taken care of and since several University officials have given their blessings to the idea, the only problem left would be the money.

Estimates as to the full cost are unknown at present, but contacts for estimates are being made. This money could be gotten through subscription, both publicly and privately or through some college funding.

According to enthusiasts of the project, the campus already has several persons qualified to act as announcers and a part time engineer could be acquired to come in ever so often and check up on equipment.

Other campus radio systems have been contacted and information is currently being processed by a group of interested persons on campus as to how the station would operate and under what organization it could be run.

Further information concerning the project can be had by contacting Sophomore Vice President, Barry Asbury, Roger Wiggs, or Charles Poole. If none of these students can be easily contacted, Dean J. Carl Dempsey can further any information to them.

Students submit tales

Raleigh — Students in North Carolina colleges and universities are competing with words as well as with footballs this fall.

Dr. Guy Owen, editor of the "North Carolina Folklore" and English professor at North Carolina State University, announced that a prize of $100 will be awarded to the student submitting the best article on folklore.

The award will come from a $1,200 grant to "North Carolina Folklore" by the North Carolina Arts Council. Owen, author of "The Ballad of the Flim - Flam Man" and other works, said a special issue of the magazine will be devoted this winter to the student entries.

He said the competition is open to both undergraduate and graduate students and the articles may relate to folklore in North Carolina or elsewhere.

Owen said articles should be sent to the Editors of "North Carolina Folklore," Department of English, N.C. State University, P.O. Box 5308, Raleigh.

Keep the ball rollin'

By FRED OURT

The soccer team plays its first home game of the 1971 season this Saturday when it faces High Point. The 2 p.m. game will be the second of the year for the Seahawks, who played Pembroke September 25.

The team hopes to have continued support from the students, a group of which sponsored a bus to the Pembroke game. For most students, the High Point game will be their first chance to observe the 'Hawks in intercollegiate competition.

Since the team only has three home games scheduled for this season, students should take advantage of any opportunity they have to see the team in action. The Seahawks have a promising team this year and their game will be worth watching.

One of the 'Hawks home games is with Campbell, the number three team in the nation last year. Campbell won last year 3-2, but this year the story could-and will-be different. This game will be hotly contested, for it will probably decide the conference championship.

Soccer is an exciting game, both to play and to watch. Worldwide, it is the most popular sport now played. For whatever reasons one originally has for coming to a game, the excitement of the match should provide the impetus to see another. So, support the 'Hawks!

THE TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

PRESENTS

"BLACK AND BLUE"

SHOW AND DANCE

SATURDAY

OCTOBER 16, 1971

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

GRAND BALLROOM

9:00 P.M. To 1:00 A.M.

TICKETS: $3.00 ADVANCE

$4.00 AT THE DOOR

(LIMITED NUMBER OF TICKETS AVAILABLE)

BEER WILL BE SOLD

ALSO BROWNBAGGING

JACKETS REQUIRED

TICKETS MAY BE PURCHASED AT:

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

(UPPER LOBBY - REGISTRATION DESK)

HARVEY CANNON, LIMITED

Timme Plaza Motor Inn

Applications For Part Time Positions

Now Being Taken

Excellent Earning Opportunity!!!

Waitresses

Waiters

Bus Boys

Banquet Servers

House Staff

Ambitious Students Are Urged To Call:

Mr. Motley

For Interview and Application Form

763-9881

'Singer: Carol King' wants no stardom

By ARNOLD SHAW

"The best singers didn't write their own material until recently. And there was a demand for songs," Carole King said. "Now, a lot of performers do their own things and the need for outside writers has lessened. So... I felt I had to sing my own songs in order for them to be heard."

This was the thinking that led to the production of The City, an Ode album that featured composer Carole King on vocals and piano. The songs were by Goffin & King, a key writing team on the 1960's song scene that also produced two children, both daughters, now aged 9 and 11.

After coming out of Brooklyn high schools in the late 1950's, Gerry Goffin and Carole King created an amazing number of rock n' roll hits. The Drifters scored with their "Some Kind of Wonderful," "When My Little Girl is Smiling" and the much-recorded "Up on the Roof." The Shirelles made it with "Will you Love me Tomorrow," and the Cookies with "Chains" and "Don't Say Nothin' Bad about Me." Freddie Scott hit with "Hey Girl," Gere Pitney with "Every Breath I take," Tony Orlando with "Halfway to Paradise," Bobby Vee with "Run to Him," "Sharing You," and "Take Good Care of my Baby," and The Happenings with "Go Away, Little Girl." Goffin & King even produced a hit song for their maid — she called herself Little Eva — who had a runaway smash with "Loco-Motion."

"I don't want to be a star with a capital S," Carole added. "As I said, the main reason I got into performing and recording on my own was to expose my songs to the public in the fastest way. I don't consider myself a singer."

But those who worked and competed with her at Alder Music—the productive song hatchery of Al Nevins and Don Kirshner that transformed Tin Pan Alley into Rock Drive—will tell you that Carole King made the best demos of the many staff writers. She could sing all the background voices and was so inventive in the studio in her unassuming way that record producers constantly invited her to sessions when they were cutting her numerous songs.

The Goffin-King collaboration succeeded in spanning the generation gap or style changes that resulted when white Rhythm & Blues became Rock and R & B became Soul. They wrote "Goin' Back" for the Byrds, more than half a dozen hits for the Monkees including "Pleasant Valley Sunday," A "Natural Woman" (a gold record for Aretha Franklin) and "So Much Love" and "Heigh De Ho" for Blood, Sweat and Tears. (The Beatles recorded their "Chains" and "Laura Nyro did "Up on the Roof.")

But in 1968 Carole and Gerry decided to go their separate ways—"It's very hard to maintain a marriage writing together," she insisted — and Carole moved to Los Angeles "to get together a new identity." Although she married bass player Charles Larkey in September, 1969, Carole and Gerry, who has his own recording studio in L.A., still occasionally collaborate on songs.

Of all the changes in her brief 29 years of life, the one marked by her album, Carole King, is not the least traumatic. The Ode LP might well have been called Singer: Carole King, for it is the first on which she sings solo. "As a writer," she has said, "it's very safe and womblike, because somebody else gets the credit or the blame."

CAROL KING

The economic facts of college life.

Fact No. 1 — A year's tuition at U.N.C. Wilmington is about $376.50.

Fact No. 2 — It'd be nice if that was all you had to fork over.

Fact No. 3 — Unfortunately, there's this thing about books, shelter, chow and etc.

Fact No. 4 — Even if you go light on the etc., you're still talking about a lot of money.

Fact No. 5 — You need a checking account to put it in. For the safety. For the record.

Fact No. 6 — Wachovia offers a good deal on their checking accounts.

Fact No. 7 — Wachovia has an office conveniently located at 590 South College Road. Phone - 763-6501, Ext. 281.

Fact No. 8 — When you need us, we're there.

Wachovia Bank & Trust, N.A.

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON LEADING JEWELERS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

WANTED

by THE FLEDGLING

YOUR FACE

annual photos taken upstairs,
Student Services Bldg., Oct. 4-8
9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily; 7-9 p.m. Tues. night Men should wear coat and tie

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 4

Tues. Oct. 5, 1971

Poet McCord on campus Tuesday, Wednesday October 5-6

By DAVE SMITH
Atlantic Editor

Howard McCord, many-times published poet, will spend Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 5-6, regarding his work to—and talking—with students. The first in a series of lectures and workshops, McCord will give a reading of his poetry Oct. 5, 8 p.m., Education-Psychology Building Auditorium.

His ninth book of poems, Mays, was published in June; two short volumes, The Diary of a Lost Girl and The Old Beast, will appear later this year. For the last 15 years, essays, stories, and poems by McCord have been published by Harper's Bazaar, The Nation, Lillibulero, and The New York Times.

As new Director of the Master of Fine Arts Writing Program at Bowling Green State University in Ohio, his history includes travel in India and Nepal on a Fulbright Grant, as well as consultanthip to the National Council on the Arts.

LESLIE FRENCH

French here Friday

Leslie French, actor, director, producer of Shakespearian productions will present a dramatic offering of Shakespearian readings and scenes at 8:00 p.m., Friday, Oct. 8 in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. Mr. French is appearing on the UNC-W campus under the auspices of the UNC-W Fine Arts Committee.

Leslie French will present a program for the students, particularly those interested in the Shakespearian theatre, at a time to be announced on Thursday, Oct. 7. His public performance will be presented on Oct. 8. Students will be admitted free upon presentation of their I.D. cards. Others will be charged admission of one dollar.

In 1918, Mr. French joined the Ben Greet Shakespeare company and for the next five years, he appeared under Sir Ben Greet's management in classical plays touring England and playing a season every year in London. He migrated into the world of Musical Comedy and Revue and appeared with the great

C.B. Cochran in "Coronation Revue" at the Adelphi Theatre, London.

Poetry Contest accepting student work

The University Poetry Contest, sponsored by the English Department at UNC-W, is now accepting original poetry written by students here on campus. All entries should be taken to the secretary's office in the English department, where the student will be required to fill out an application form for submission. A limit of three poems per student may be submitted for consideration, and the closing date for entries will be Friday, Oct. 22. A reception for the winners of the contest, hosted by Atlantis, campus literary magazine, will be held in the conference room of the library Oct. 28. Prizes will be awarded at this time, and the winners of the contest will appear in the fall issue of Atlantis.

Summer's Gone — officially, at least - but this little fella would be hard to convince. (Staff photo)

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band will appear Sat., Oct. 9, 8 p.m. in Hanover Hall. Tickets, on sale in the cafeteria, are $2.50 for UNCW students. No alcoholic beverages will be permitted into the blanket concert.

By WAYNE ROGERS
Liberty recording artists "The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band" will highlight UNC-W's fall concert season when they appear in Hanover Hall, Saturday, October, 9, at 8:00 p.m.

The "Dirt Band" are quite a versatile act, playing as many different kinds of music for as wide a range of audiences as they can. Goodhearted country, bluegrass, traditional folk, straight rock n' roll and blends in between characterize the quintet's style.

Besides, the group play as many instruments as they do musical styles. Guitar, banjo, bass, drums, accordion, mandolin, violin, piano, harmonica and washboard all figure in the "Dirt Band's" act.

Their stylistic and instrumental versatility is evident in the group's latest LP "Uncle Charlie and His Dog Teddy." Contained within are the hits "Mr. Bojangles," "House at Pooh Corner" and their latest single "Some of Shelly's Blues."

Not only is the "Dirt Band" musically exceptional, but it is also well seasoned in entertaining it's audience.

A side-splitting "put-on" from the 1950's rock n' bop era complete with costumes and hair changes usually enhance a Nitty Gritt concert.

In any event, fun, frolic, vigor, excitement and sheer enjoyment well describe both band and audience during concerts.

"A splendid time is guaranteed for all!"

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

We apologize...

Some things are a lot funnier on deadline day than they appear in print, one week later. Things that don't look like libel when they're scribbled, look and are that way in print.

We honestly and openly apologize to all who were offended by the "Along 132" column last week. It was meant to be read as a light and humorous parody of a similar column which appears in a local daily.

Again we admit the oversight, and ask our readers to bear with us—we're new at this job, and we're learning as we go.

What can be said?

What can be said to the dozen freshmen who waited in front of the SGA office three days to take their Constitution even though the designated hour was observed, no one came to administer their quiz.

Out of 28 students who filed for election to Freshman class offices, only four took the required test. Signs announcing the event stated "the test will be given 11:30-12:30, Sept. 21-23, SGA office," yet at noon of the latter days, only the hopefuls were waiting.

Primary elections were supposedly held last Wednesday, Sept. 29, yet the elections board postponed them because of "the apparent lack of interest."

Who's interest?

Tim Sims

What is in public schools

The long range value of racial balance in the public schools and what it will do for our society is great, and most of us are probably in favor of the good aspects of any plan—even busing—which will accomplish both racial balance and the ultimate good we hope to see.

However, there are some immediate consequences which are causing a great deal of misery and bitterness, and if anyone had anticipated them they were apparently not considered important.

It always sickened me to hear white red-necks talk about how the "dirty niggers" live—how lazy, immoral, and worthless they all are; mainly because I feel that the blacks who are in that condition are there because of the white man.

A little reading in African history (pre-18th century) will convince anyone that the black race has a proud and fine heritage which the white man is to be blamed for dragging through the mud. After carting them to this country, the white man virtually destroyed all black culture and ethics, and I rather think the white man is getting his just desserts in the present racial turmoil.

But all the moralizing in the world about who's at fault will not change what is: The cultural and ethical level of most black children is far below that of most white children, and, for the first time in their lives, these white children are faced with how the other side lives.

If only half of the stories that I hear from the young people I work with are true, there is an abysmal lack of communication between the races, and the black children are bringing the white children down. I have personally witnessed several incidents that I would have not believed had someone told me, which shocked me into realizing the great gulf between black and white culture and morals.

We can only hope that, in time, the blacks will begin to come out of the hell our ancestors put them in, so that there will be some cultural and ethical progress for everyone. In the meantime, many, many heart-sickening things are happening.

Perhaps worst of all, to me anyway, is the fact that the white children who are trying to understand and accept the blacks are as rudely treated as those who aren't. As one 14 year old girl told me last week, "You've told us (church youth group) to love them and try to understand, but how can we love someone who doesn't care whether we love them or not?"

There was only one answer: "I don't know."

UNCW needs a check-up!

With a bank, two small grocery stores, and a student book store in the immediate reach of UNC-W students, it would seem one could get a check cashed.

Imagine: It's Friday afternoon, and one's suitcase is packed. But there's that check to be cashed before leaving—and the quick marts are a little far to walk to, the friendly bank across the highway accepts only their brand, and the good old UNC-W bookstore can't cash it. They're out of money and there's no way to "get more" when it's most needed—then.

When the cash runs out, it's gone—only through the Administration Building can the "supply" be replenished—the next day at the earliest.

Solutions? 1) Why can the operators of our store not take the checks to the local bank and get reimbursed on-the-spot, so students would not be denied what should be theirs? 2) Why can the local establishments not accept students' checks if proof of identity, such as their UNC-W I.D. card and/or driver's license, can be furnished?

With out-of-Wilmington and out-of-state campus residents, it's only fair to give them this service.

Feedback!

this is your chance to publicly express your opinion—use it!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

"Where is the Drama Department?"

by Sam Swett and Jerry York

Recently many of the students on the campus of UNC-W have asked "where is the Drama Department?" There is a growing interest among the students in the field of drama; however, it seems that there is no outlet for the interest. The authors of this article have been questioned as to how one becomes involved in the drama program on campus. Our answer has had to be limited to one suggestion: a student directed workshop on Saturday morning, which is inconvenient to many students and not of interest to all students with a particular interest in drama. Other suggestions, such as contacting faculty members have resulted in an inability to locate faculty members.

Although many, if not all, the members of the department have office schedules posted, it is rare that these members can be found at the posted times. Many new students are left with no alternative but to lose their interest. The drama majors who have already developed a greater interest often need to gain entrance to the facilities of the drama department to work on a particular project, but the facilities are locked and entrance cannot be gained, leaving these students to grow greatly dissatisfied and disgusted, thus stifling some of the creative interest that should be put to use. Still other problems arise when the students need to discuss aspects of drama with these professors and the professors cannot be located; if however, by chance the professors are located, the students experience constant interruptions, leaving many broken thoughts left hanging and destroying any concentrated discussion in the process.

When the six productions of the year are in production, there seems to be an emphasis on the "show appeal" of the plays. Many times, if not always, the same faces appear on the stage and the same names appear on the programs in the positions of the backstage personnel. This leads to the question: Who are the plays for? It would seem that in a college theatre the members of the student body should be given the opportunity to participate in all areas of the theatre rather than being stereotyped into a particular position. Many of the students want to try a part of each operation of the theatre. Are the productions for the students or for the egos of the professors?

Lastly we would question: are there two drama departments on campus? We can visualize two theatre structures here, but what we cannot see is the two different costume departments, or the two different make-up departments, or the two properties departments, or the two workshops; any student that hasn't seen them can easily investigate this and find it for themselves. If the department can fund this, would it be asking too much for the students to have the use of at least one?

What we, as students, would like to see is an exchanging of ideas between the different professors and the students. We would like to establish a laboratory theatre on campus where the students are free to experiment without worry of stepping on someone's ego or pride. We would like access to the facilities to the drama department and the use of the materials; we ask that our questions be answered, not attacked; we ask for some guidance, not stiff regulations or vague generalities. We ask: Where is the Drama Department?

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Assistants.....Barry Asbury
Carson Benson
Liz Buffington
Ray Buchanan
Grace Parker
Carlos Poole
David Shymanski
Kathy Tyner

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

TKE pledges 27

Have you been seeing a lot of new faces around the TEK table in the snack bar lately? The brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon have pledged 27 men, forming the largest pledge class in the history of Mu Chi Chapter. Bill Buckley was elected President by the Epsilon Pledge Class; Mike Turner, Vice-President; Fred Ourt, Secretary; Charlie Ribenbark, Treasurer; Bill Blanchard, Sergeant at Arms; and Marrow Smith, Chaplain.

Also pledged are: Jim Arnold, Sam Beard, Ken Bland, Mike Brannon, Russ Cook, George Erkes, Mike Frassis, Bob Hayes, Dan Langford, Pierre de Lespinais, Wayne Klander, Bill Munay, Gaylord Osteen, Austin Overly, Billy Peterson, Jeff Powell, Jack Sposler, Harvey Summerlin, Herbie Walton, Ren Holt, Mike Stafford.

Concerning the new pledge class, President Artie Greene had this to say, "As a first class fraternity, we are looking forward to an outstanding fall semester."

Should more stringent controls be imposed upon government agencies gathering information about U.S. citizens?

What sounds like the beginning of a political debate is—Junior Janice

"Strident citizen protest will increasingly interfere with our most accomplished and sophisticated planning efforts, unless and until we learn the techniques of working together at the grass roots," according to a Highway Administration memo published in the Congressional Record, November 25, 1970.

Asbell and Sophomore Patti McCombie, members of UNCW's Debate Team, got a sneak preview of the national debate question this summer in Omaha, Nebraska and Saskatchewan, Canada.

Sent with the help of special funds allotted by Student Senate last spring, Janice and Patti spent three weeks in August as part of the National College Debate Workshop. In Omaha they researched the topic and were lectured by experts in the field. Lecture and debate theory, practice debate and a tournament were the menu in Saskatchewan.

"In Omaha," stated Patti, "there were people from 30 of the 50 states. It was interesting to discover how people from the North, Midwest, and western parts of the States, as well as the South, felt about political matters. And it was interesting just to find out what these 'new' people were like."

When the Saskatchewan part of the event was almost over, four top speakers from the workshop were chosen to give a public debate for the Canadian townspeople. Two Bostonians, a Colorado native, and UNCW's Patti McCombie debated the national question, which was expanded to include Canadian interests.

The "negative" approach—that of Patti and her teammate from Colorado—won the tournament "by a vast majority!" according to the Wilmingtonians.

Patti added, "We're deeply indebted to the SGA for providing the funds that made the trip possible for us. Because of this experience, we're (the UNCW Debate Team) going to win trophies this year!"

Timme Plaza Motor Inn

Applications For Part Time Positions
Now Being Taken

Excellent Earning Opportunity !!!

Waitresses

Waiters

Bus Boys

Banquet Servers

House Staff

Ambitious Students Are Urged To Call:

Mr. Motley

For Interview and Application Form

763-9881

THE TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

PRESENTS

"BLACK AND BLUE"

SHOW AND DANCE

SATURDAY

OCTOBER 16, 1971

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

GRAND BALLROOM

9:00 P.M. To 1:00 A.M.

TICKETS: $3.00 ADVANCE

$4.00 AT THE DOOR

(LIMITED NUMBER OF TICKETS AVAILABLE)

BEER WILL BE SOLD

ALSO BROWNBAGGING

JACKETS REQUIRED

TICKETS MAY BE PURCHASED AT:

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

(UPPER LOBBY - REGISTRATION DESK)

HARVEY CANNON, LIMITED

Arnold Werner, M. D.

The Doctor's Bag

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

Question: My ex-boyfriend recently forced his attention on me in spite of the fact that I told him I was a virgin. When he was through with me, he stated that I couldn't have been a virgin because "it went in too easily" and I didn't bleed. It is my body and I know that I never had previous sexual relations. Please clarify this because he honestly believes I'm a loose woman.

I'm writing this the day after it happened, but are there any very early signs of pregnancy? I seem to feel sick to my stomach.

Answer: Very sadly, situations such as the one you describe happen frequently, and I, for one, have a difficult time distinguishing such an event from rape. In addition to being grossly selfish, your ex-boyfriend is also ignorant of some basic sexual facts. Ease of intercourse the first time and an absence of bleeding is no indication of a lack of virginity.

A woman has the right not to have intercourse unless she wants to and this should be unrelated to whether or not she is a virgin. Rather than hide behind technicalities, she should be prepared to take drastic measures to insure her basic human rights.

It is too early to tell if you are pregnant now, but it sounds as if the way you feel may be related to the upsetting experience you had. In such circumstances you may miss your next menstrual period without being pregnant; instead of becoming panicked, you might visit a physician that you know if you have not had a period in another month. In the someone, if you remain upset very much longer, it would be wise for you to talk this out with someone so that this experience does not jeopardize future relationships with men. Your ex-boy friend sounds like he needs professional help.

Question: Is there any harm in digesting the shells of salted peanuts or salted sunflower seeds? I've been eating them for quite sometime and so far have had no problem.

Answer: There is probably no harm in eating the shells you mentioned. If you look real closely you might discover that you are not actually digesting them. Some animals have bacteria in their gut that produce the proper enzymes to break down cellulose and other fibrous materials such as shells and husks. Man is not endowed in this way.

Nondigestable materials are important in increasing the bulk of the stool and tend to prevent constipation. Some people worry that things such as shells and small pits can get stuck in the large intestine and cause inflammations.

N. C. Environmental Rally includes Wilmington

The North Carolina Jaycees and the Conservation Council of North Carolina are sponsoring the first statewide environmental rally ever held. It will be in the 17,000 seat Greensboro Coliseum on October 12th at 8:00 p.m. The rally is free.

Keynoters for the program will be former Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall and U.S. Senator Robert Packwood of Oregon. Robert Scott, Governor of North Carolina, will be on hand along with both U.S. senators from North Carolina and the entire North Carolina Congressional Delegations.

Representatives from Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, and South Carolina will also be on hand. The entire North Carolina General Assembly has been invited to sit in a special section as have all of the North Carolina college and university presidents. As an added attraction, the potential candidates for governor have been invited to take part in the program.

A third keynoter of national prominence will be former Astronaut John Glenn.

This is the first time that an event of such importance has been scheduled in North Carolina for that matter, in the nation. It will provide an opportunity for all who are concerned about a better environment to come and demonstrate their concern.

Governor Scott and Secretary Udall will fly to cities in the state during the day of the 12th. They will meet with crowds at the airports and speak on the environment. The announced candidates for governor will also be on the plane and will speak. The cities involved are: Raleigh-Durham, Wilmington, Charlotte, and Asheville.

Again this first statewide environmental rally will be in Greensboro on October 12th at 8:00 p.m. in the 17,000 seat Greensboro Coliseum. It is free.

The economic facts of college life.

Fact No. 1 - A year's tuition at U.N.C. Wilmington is about $376.50.

Fact No. 2 - It'd be nice if that was all you had to fork over.

Fact No. 3 - Unfortunately, there's this thing about books, shelter, chow and etc.

Fact No. 4 - Even if you go light on the etc., you're still talking about a lot of money.

Fact No. 5 - You need a checking account to put it in. For the safety. For the record.

Fact No. 6 - Wachovia offers a good deal on their checking accounts.

Fact No. 7 - Wachovia has an office conveniently located at 590 South College Road. Phone - 763-6501, Ext. 281.

Fact No. 8 - When you need us, we're there.

Wachovia Bank & Trust, N.A.

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

UNC-W Rings
Diamond Rings
Birthstone Rings
Bulova Watches
Student Charge
Accounts

"Reed's for Diamonds"

Reed's

Front and
Princess Sts.

Freshmen elections bring 2 run-offs

Two run-off elections resulted from the Oct. 7 Freshman Election. Jim Wishon and Jim Arnold will contend for the presidential position; E.B. Evans and Mike Decowski will challenge for the vice presidential position.

Out of 132 ballots cast, excluding six which were voided by H.B. Rehder, Jr., because of ballot stuffing, Wishon and Arnold received 65 and 53 votes, respectively. E.B. Evans and Mike Decowski received 40 votes each.

Brad Walls, with 101 votes, topped the senatorial ballots, with Becky Weathers, Elizabeth Buffington, Billy Hammond, and Preston Maultsby respectively being elected.

Debbie Shields, with 21 votes, out ran Mike Hilburn, Vickie Pierce, Susan White, and Debbie Grieman; all were written in for Freshman class secretary.

"Although I was very pleased with the elections, I was very dissatisfied with the performance of the Elections Board members, in general. For those that did show, up, there were two or three that really helped out with the election, and I'm really grateful for this," stated Rehder.

Run off elections had not been scheduled as of press time.

the seahawk university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 5

Tues. Oct. 12, 1971

'Death of a Salesman' premiers Friday in Kenan Auditorium

Arthur Miller's play, "Death of a Salesman," will be presented October 15, 16, 17 in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. Seat reservations will not be necessary; but for those wishing to make them, the box office in Kenan Auditorium will be open in the afternoons the week of the play. Tickets will be free for all UNC-W students; non-student tickets will be $1.00.

"Death of a Salesman," which first appeared on Broadway in 1948, has been called by many critics "the modern classic of the American Theatre." It tells the story of a successful traveling salesman who suddenly comes face to face with the reality of how ungratifying his own life really is.

Members of the cast include Tom Wilson as Willy Loman, the father; Vicki Dawn as Linda Loman, the mother; Tim Wesner as Biff Loman, and Michael Deconowski as Happy Loman, their sons. Bernard will be portrayed by Gary Allen, The Woman by Cathy Medlin, Charlie by Steve Vallender, Uncle Ben by Randy Wimborg, and Howard by Jere Bradford. Patti Kandle is Jenny, Ed Danilowicz is Stanley, Sadie Bridger is Miss Forsythe and Debbie Morris is Letta.

Ed Danilowicz is working with Dr. Rogers as the assistant producer on this production. Lights will be designed by Brent Scott, costumes by Cathy Medlin. Properties will be handled by David Mercer and Liz Larosa will be the house manager.

Dr. Rogers stated, "The creative task that confronts the students in this production is to fuse the internal realistic structure of the play with the expressionistic frame with which Arthur Miller surrounds the tragedy of Willy Loman. Willy is an insignificant man in the sense of grandeur, but has universal qualities that all men can identify with."

About a week after "Death of a Salesman" has made its run, tryouts will be held for Bertolt Brecht's play, "The Good Woman of Setzuan," to be presented December 8, 9, 10, and 11. February 24, 25, 26, and 27, the department will put on "Ghosts" by Henrik Ibsen. Following "Ghosts" the Drama and Speech department will work with the Music Department to present a popular Broadway musical in March. The last production will be a student production or a senior thesis project.

Overseas study program offered

Scandinavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its study abroad program in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden for the academic year 1972-73. This living and learning experience is designed for college students, graduates and other adults who want to become part of another culture while acquiring a second language.

An initial 3 weeks language course, followed by a family stay, will give the student opportunity to practice the language on a daily basis and to share in the life of the community. For the major part of the year he is separated from his fellow American students, living and studying among Scandinavians at a "People's College" (residential school for continuing adult education) or some more specialized institution.

All Seminar participants meet at the introductory, Midyear and Final Sessions, during which the American and Scandinavian Program Directors work closely with each student on matters related to his studies, experiences and progress. The focus of the Seminar program is the student's Independent Study Project in his special field of interest. More and more American colleges and universities are giving full or partial credit for the Seminar year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, one-way transportation and all course-connected travels is $2,500. A limited number of scholarship loans are available. For further information write to SCANDINAVIAN SEMINAR, 140 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Ed Danilowicz, assistant producer, explains motives behind character movements in "Death of a Salesman". (Photo by Cmbjr)

Debate Team travels to Stetson Tourney

UNC-W's Debate Team participated in the Stetson University Invitational Debate Tournament at the Stetson campus in Deland, Florida the weekend of October 7, 8, and 9. This was the first outing for the team this year. Representing UNC-W were two 4-man teams: The first team consisted of Mike Glancey and Janice Asbell (affirmative), and Pattie McCombie and Bill Brooks (negative); the second team, Bryan Fann and Pete Epperly (affirmative), and Keith Hales and Lee Hoffman (negative). Coach Betty Jo Welch and

Mrs. Jean Huffam accompanied the team. The topics for debate was - Resolved: That more stringent control should be imposed upon gathering and utilization of information by government agencies about United States citizens.

The team left for Deland on Thursday and competed in three rounds of debate on Friday and another three rounds on Saturday. The Championship Round and Awards Banquet were held on Sunday. UNC-W along with sixty other schools participated in the competition.

Cafeteria hours change

Monday-Friday

Breakfast-7:45 to 9:30

Lunch-11:00 to 1:30

Dinner-5:00 to 6:30

Weekends and Holidays

Breakfast-9:00 to 10:00

Lunch-12:00 to 1:30

Dinner-5:30 to 7:00

DAILY MENUS ARE AT CASH REGISTER.

Those students obtaining sack lunches can get a hot lunch consisting of two hot sandwiches, french fries, a beverage, and a dessert in lieu of the meal if prior notification is given. Check with Mr. Gilbert in the cafeteria office.

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Would They Really Be Called Elections

Although eight Freshman class offices have been filled, we question the validity of the "election."

The most obvious fault of the election was the lack of publicity. Neither of the big "Vote Today" signs were posted at the entrances, and only by really looking could notices be found. Small 8x10 inch "FALL ELECTIONS TODAY—4 p.m. Polls Close" were found in one of six building checked mid-morning of October 7, Election Day, but none of these signs stated the location of the polling places.

Three of the four polls were near together in Kenan and Hoggard Halls, and in the Snack Bar. If these polls had been placed to include the north campus (Chemistry-Physics Building) and in the Student Services Building (students were gathering in the Pub to have their annual photographs made), many more Freshmen might have voted simply out of proximity.

At any of the three polls we checked, "ballot box stuffing" could have easily occurred because no lists of eligible voters were available for poll attendants to check. If fact, we were offered ballots at two polls; as members of the sophomore class, we were not even supposed to vote. Identification cards were not punched; thus anyone could have easily voted at all polls (at least three votes per person). Also, at one poll we waited 40 minutes for the attendant who never appeared.

We ask the elections board if they really intend for this fall's "election" to count—for if this is the way "elections" will be handled in the future, we recommend to the student body president that this responsibility be reappointed to another group of persons who can handle their positions with more responsibility.

Letter Unpublishable

About one week ago, we found a neatly typed letter sealed and rolled in our typewriter. Outside it said, "Publish this letter please, some people will be interested."

Inside were two typed pages of well expressed ideas which we would like to share—yet we can't, for that one necessity wasn't there: no signature; no name was found, except "Anonymous Senior."

We'll gladly print your letter withholding your identity, A.S., but your signature is required on your letter—to protect both of us.

Fickle Finger points again!

We borrow the "Fickle Finger of Fate Award" and present it to the constructors of the dorm for their skill in hiding their independent study.

During one of the recent (and not unfrequent) cold spells in the residence hall, a couple of curious students decided to investigate the controls of their room's air conditioning unit. There, placed behind the vents, was a beer can. (We still don't know if they found the controls...)

vancancy

and

nothing beyond except people who go their own paths.

confused

they walk

in opposition.

vacancy

I take it

and watch.

Feedback!

this is your chance to publicly express your opinion—use it!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

'A pretty good answer'

By H.B. REHDER, JR.
Chrmn., Bd. of Elections

In reply to the editorial "What Can Be Said?" of 5 October, appearing in The Seahawk I have a pretty good answer.

To the dozen or so Freshmen who came too late to take the Constitution Test, it may be well to remind you that you are no longer kids, and should keep appointments on time. The Board of Election can not be held responsible for your tardiness.

The article states that of 28 who filed only four took the test. Of course, this is erroneous. Eleven took the test, which is not much better, but then again, they were at the testing place on time.

The UNC-W Board of Elections is a competent unit that has a tough job. Never the less, we are interested. We would not have been appointed if we were not. But neither I, nor my committee members are going to beat the bushes to get people to run for office. We believe in letting the Freshmen do their own nominating. On with the Election!

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Photographer.....Carson Benson
Assistants.....Barry Asbury
Carson Benson
Liz Buffington
Ray Buchanan
Grace Parker
Carlos Poole
David Shymanski
Kathy Tynor

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Wanted: Glass Bottles, Aluminum Cans

The Biology Club at UNC-W is beginning a recycling program on the campus. Collecting areas are Hoggard, Administration, Kenan, and Library Buildings. Garbage cans will be provided for the recycling of non-returnable glass and aluminum foil containers such as TV dinners and beer cans.

The students, faculty, and administration are urged to donate their "contributions" to the free service of recycling provided. All clubs on campus and local business people will be invited to join in making this project work. For example, Whitey's and our food service on campus are already saving their non-returnables for next Tuesday's collection.

The glass will be taken to the Laurens Glass Company in Henderson, North Carolina. The aluminum redemption center will be Wilmington Scrap Iron and Metal Company. The money will go to the Conservation Council of North Carolina's fund for wildlife refuges around the state.

The recycling of material ought to become a regular habit with all of us. Why not save the glass and aluminum containers that end up in your trash pile each week and bring them to us every Tuesday?

Ourt's Sports

UNC-W lost its season's opener to Pembroke on September 25. The Braves scored once in the first quarter and twice in the third. The Hawks scored once in the first quarter and twice in the third. The Hawks scored their one goal in the second quarter.

The Seahawks dominated play in the first quarter, keeping the ball down around the Pembroke goal area, but they could not score. Pembroke got a quick goal near the end of the quarter and the momentum swung their way.

The two quick goals by the Braves came at the beginning of the third quarter. Up to that time the match was even and the play continued on an even basis until the last moments of the fourth quarter when the Braves took control of the game stifling the Hawks' offense.

Halfbacks Eddie Taiton and Jackie Blackmore, as well as fullbacks James Whisnant, John Howarth, and Joe Morgan played well for the Seahawks. Left inside Steve Boles scored the Hawks' goal on a cross from the right wing.

UNC-W was hurt by the loss of several players due to ineligibility and injury. Junior forward Barney Lewis, forward Ken Jones, and possibly Steve Boles are out for the season.

Coach Lane said that except for the final score, he was pleased with the game.

October Events

Oct. 12	Inter Club Council Meeting	11:30 a.m.	Pub
	Math Club	11:30	C-127
	Wantu Wazuri	11:30	K-121
	Alpha Chi Sigma	7:00 p.m.	Pub
	Dance Committee	8:00	Dorm Lobby
Oct. 14	Alpha Phi Omega "rush"	8:00	Pub
Oct. 15	Wantu Wazuri	9:00	K-103
	Alpha Phi Omega "rush"	progressive supper
	Baptist Student Union	7:00	White's Restaurant
Oct. 18	Young Republicans	8:00	Library Aud.
Oct. 19	Wantu Wazuri	11:30 a.m.	K-121
	P.E. Major's Club	7:30 p.m.	Back Gym
	Fine Arts Film "Duffy"	8:00	Kenan Aud.
Oct. 21	Student Nurses Association		K-218
	Wantu Wazuri	9:00	K-103
Oct. 26	SNCAE "annual Southeastern regional meeting"
	Wantu Wazuri	11:00	K-121
	Business Club	7:10	Cafeteria
Oct. 28	Wantu Wazuri	9:00	K-103

THE TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

PRESENTS

"BLACK AND BLUE" SHOW AND DANCE

SATURDAY

OCTOBER 16, 1971

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

GRAND BALLROOM

9:00 P.M. TO 1:00 A.M.

TICKETS: $3.00 ADVANCE

$4.00 AT THE DOOR

(LIMITED NUMBER OF TICKETS AVAILABLE)

BEER WILL BE SOLD
ALSO BROWNBAGGING

JACKETS REQUIRED

TICKETS MAY BE PURCHASED AT:

TIMME PLAZA MOTOR INN

(UPPER LOBBY - REGISTRATION DESK)

HARVEY CANNON, LIMITED

DOUBLE KNIT BY

JOHN HAMPTON

$125.00

from

Payne's
WILMINGTON, N. C.

DOWNTOWN - 131 N. FRONT STREET

HANOVER CENTER

Pat Paulsen, First Edition Hiligh Appalachians' Homecoming

Appalachian State University will present "Homecoming 1971" October 15 and 16.

The events will begin on Friday, October 15 at 8:00 p.m. with Pat Paulsen, Kenny Rogers & 1st Edition in Concert at the Varsity Gym. A parade down Main St., Boone will begin at 10:00 Saturday, October 16. At 1:30 p.m. ASU will host Catawba in Conrad Stadium with crowning of Homecoming Queen during halftime. Homecoming will end with a dance at 8:00 p.m. in the Broome-Kirk Gym. Music will be provided by 3 Prophet & Caution.

Tickets for the concert are $3.50 and $2.50 for ASU students, and for the dance $2.50 per couple and $1.50 single. For advance tickets call Area Code 704-264-8871, Extension 324.

You might want to, but on the other hand...

Each North Carolina county board of elections has its own policy concerning the registration of college students. According to Mrs. Louise Rehder, Executive Secretary of the New Hanover County Board of Elections, those students who have definitely decided to make New Hanover county their home after graduation, those students who are maintaining financial independence from their parents, or those students who were residents of New Hanover County before entering college are eligible to register to vote in New Hanover County. Those still wondering if they can register in New Hanover should talk to Mrs. Rehder.

All registered voters (regardless of age) are qualified to run for any city, county, and some state offices. If you are interested in becoming a candidate for County Commission, School Board, State Senate, State House of Representatives, etc., you must file with the New Hanover Board of Elections. The filing fee is 1 per cent of your annual income. There is no fee for registering to vote.

The New Hanover County Board of Elections is located at 14 N 3rd St. It is open Monday thru Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The next elections will be held May 2, 1972. Those wishing to vote in this election must be registered to vote by April 2. For those students who cannot possibly get downtown, the local board of elections would like to conduct a special registration on campus but the details of this service have not been worked out.

"Death of a Salesman" Cast — (L-R) Linda Loman, Vicki Daum; Biff Loman, Tim Wesner; Happy Loman, Micael Decowski; Willy Loman, Tom Wilson. The play will be presented Friday — Sunday, 8 p.m., Kenan Auditorium. It is free to students. (Photo by Cmbjr)

LET Pandora HELP YOU DECORATE YOUR ROOM WITH:

- Great deep tone Pakistani and India Print Spreads
Double or Single — or make drapes from two spreads
- Namdha Rugs — for floor or wall
- Zodiac Pictures

PANDORA ALSO HAS:

- Suede and Pakistani Shoulder bags for the girls
- Kurta shirts for the boys

• Many fun things:

Tarot Cards
Love Beads and Kits
Zodiac key chains and necklaces
Incense and Burners
Sealing wax and Seals

• Many other useful gifts and accessories for the college student-

Pocket Dictionaries of all Romance Languages
Photo Albums — Pens — etc.

Shop Pandoras — You will love the selection —
and the low, low prices.

Pandora's Gift Boutique, Inc.

4107 Oleander Dr.

Open daily 10:00-5:30

Ph. 799-4750

TIMME PLAZA

"DRAM TREE LOUNGE"

Presents

F	• Laurel & Hardy	F
R	• W. C. Fields	R
E	• Our Gang	E
E	• Charlie Chaplain	E
	Film Festival

Friday Evening 7:30, 9:00, 10:30

Free Popcorn

Michelob on Draught

Halloween Dance
Oct. 22 Pub
featuring "Freeway" costume or come
as you wish

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 6

Tues. Oct. 19, 1971

Freshman
Political Rally
Oct. 28
11:30 A.M.
Kenan Auditorium

What is little Amsey looking at? See page four. (photo by cmbjr)

French involves enthralled audience

By CARSON BENSON

As the lights went down a hush fell on the audience; the curtain opened revealing a relatively black stage. Shortly a small but stately man strode to the center stage clothed in a long black robe, white ruffled shirt and black bow tie.

"Ello thea", spoken in a quaint British accent, instead of the expected deep bass "to be or not to be—" captured the audience and Leslie French began the speech "the seven ages of man", containing the often heard phrase "All the world is a stage." Seemingly, the most enjoyed speech was "Polonius' farewell to Laertes," which tells of a father saying farewell and giving advice to his son for the last time. By the time Mr. French reached "To thine own self be true ..." he and several persons in the audience were in tears.

After intermission Mr. French reminisced for a while. When about 15 minutes of jovial anecdotes had passed, he said he had been "trifolous long enough" and went on to make the speech of Shylock from The Merchant of Venice containing the emotional "If you prick me do I not bleed? ..." Ten speech were presented Fri. Oct. 8, in Kenan Auditorium - not counting the one Mr. French gave backstage after the program, when he happily stated that he was glad to see young people taking an active interest in theater. He also made favorable remarks about the stage in Kenan Auditorium. Mr. French was well received by UNC-W and said he wished he could stay longer and that he would like to come back, adn we hope he will.

Another brass finial was reported missing Oct. 12 by Head Librarian Helen Hagan. These urn-like brass ornaments on handrails at the building entrances have been gradually disappearing since the University's construction, but lately they have vanished rapidly.

Most of the finials have been taken from the other buildings on campus, but Miss Hagan has been concerned with the disappearance of the library ornaments.

When the most recent theft was reported to the campus police department, Chief Dillon said that he didn't know there were any finials left. Evidently, an unknown person finally pilfered the final finial.

Boylan voids elections, establishes new dates

By ED BOYLAN

SGA President

After deciding to void the freshman elections because of the manner in which it was conducted, I had to make a decision concerning the Board of Elections. The Constitution allows the president (of the study body - ed.) to appoint the chairman with 2-3 of the Senate's approval. The chairman then selects the people to serve on the board, subject to the President's approval.

In deciding to maintain the present chairman and the Board of elections, I believe strongly that we can analyze the inadequacies of the first elections and with an alert (student)boyd we can conduct an election that will be well publicized and fair to both the freshmen voters and candidates for office.

I urge all freshmen to be present Thurs. Oct. 21, 11:30 a.m. in Kenan Auditorium to hear the candidates state their beliefs and reasons for running for office. I would remind the candidates that when they are elected they will be working with other class officers for all the students of UNC-W. I would charge each freshman to explore and discover the quality, desire and characteres of each candidate, as my message in On Tap, the handbook, stated, these people will be responsible for Student Government Association policy. This policy will be seen in our good and well cultivated attitudes and motives as well as through the use we make of our $28,800 budget.

I encourage each freshman to mark: Oct. 28, Thursday, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. General Elections Nov. 5, Friday, run-off elections if necessary. Polls located in Kenan Hall, Chemistry - Physics, and the dorm.

yellow lines painted in an effort to keep this space open.

Residents and visitors are asked to use the regular parking area instead of this reserved space.

Bicycling is a simple, sole-saving method of short distance transportation, but it has become a major problem on the UNC-W campus. Of the estimated ninety bicycle owners on campus, some are creating a problem by parking on walkways and directly in front of building entrances. Students have to run a spoke and handlebar obstacle course just to enter or exit a building.

This problem was embarrassingly compounded when the Wilmington Fire Department made a buildings inspection on campus earlier this month. Captain L.E. Williams of the fire department sent a reprimand to UNC-W which expressly mentioned the bicycle problem. In this memo, Captain Williams said, "This problem creates a hazard to the occupants of the building ..." and, "shall be discontinued at once."

Cycling students have a legitimate complaint when they say there is no place to park. So far, two temporary bike racks have been constructed out of old handrails, but many bikes will not fit these racks. However, Chief Dillon of the campus police department says that there are enough bike racks on order from St. Louis to accommodate over 100 bicycles. Until these racks arrive, Chief Dillon urges all cyclists to try to park their bikes off walkways and away from building entrances.

In another item from the campus police department, it has been reported that some students are parking in the loading zone in the dorm circle. This space has been reserved for loading and emergency vehicles. Recently, No Parking signs have been installed and Look through any window, what do you see? Smiling faces and paint brushes!

Debate continues

The UNC-W Debate Team returned early Monday morning after four days of strenuous competition at Stetson University in sunny Deland, Florida. Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, the team coach, seemed very pleased with the tournament results, especially Patti McCombie and Bill Brooks who tied in Third place. Also two of the team rookies, Pete Epperly and Bryan Fawn scored 4-2 wins among some 50 other schools. Among the other members were Janice Asbell and Mike Glancey (affirmative) and Keith Hales and Lee Hoffman (negative), all scoring well.

Mrs. Welch had "one basic overview"—the team gained valuable experience and found needed confidence in their early seasonal wins.

On the week-end of October 15-17 Miss McCombie and Bryan Fawn plan to attend an eight-round tourney at UNC at Chapel Hill. Other events include a meet in Georgia the last weekend of this month.

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Although the seahawk eagerly accepts all letters, we must impose a 350 word or one typed page (whichever is shorter) limit because of space limitations. Work should be typed, if possible, double-spaced on a 60-space line. Names will be withheld upon request; however, letters will not be considered for publication without the author's signature.

Neighborhood bank explains policy

By JOHN J. HUNT, JR.
Mgr., University Office
Wachovia Bank and
Trust Co., N.A.

It has come to my attention that some UNC-W students have experienced difficulty in cashing their personal checks in Wilmington. I can certainly understand and appreciate their dilemma since I had the same problem as a UNC-W student a few short years ago. The situation may be easily remedied, however, by establishing a local bank account. This will allow the student to have his checks accepted more readily at local establishments and later use the bank as a reference when making a major purchase.

Like most corporations, banks have an obligation to their stockholders to avoid unnecessary risks. When we cash a check drawn on a bank in another city or state for a non-customer we are taking what at best could be called an unnecessary risk. As many of you will know, my staff and I realizing the students' predicament, have assumed this risk on many occasions.

We will continue our present policy of cashing checks for modest amounts for students with proper identification. It will assist us immeasurably in meeting our audit requirements if students will have checks for more than $50.00 endorsed by the UNC-W Business Office.

In respect to cashing checks, our position is somewhat like that of the young people of today, you only hear and read about their faults, never their good points. By any standards our check cashing policy for UNC-W students is very liberal and we plan to continue it.

feedback!

Freshman declares election 'farce'

By JIM ARNOLD
Pres. Candidate

Reviewing the election of October 7, I feel I must state that the freshman election was anything but a fair election. In the way it was publicized (very little, if any); in the way the polls were handled; and finally, in the way the votes were counted. In general, the election was not properly organized.

But who should be blamed? All the blame should not be placed upon Henry Rehder, chairman of Board of Elections, because he had no rules to follow for the election procedures. Our SGA president? Partly, because he appointed Henry Rehder to this position and did not check the procedures of the Freshman elections with Rehder. Actually most of the blame should be placed on the Student Senate for not making sure that the Board of Elections had the rules for conducting the elections.

So with the new primary set for October 28, there should be time to correct all the mishaps of the last Freshman primary.

Tim Sims

Racial Tension vs. The Public

The racial tension in town is getting worse, and anyone who walks around with his eyes and ears open can sense this. Rumors are rampant, and facts are hard to put a finger on. There are a few facts, however, that are for certain and these imply a great deal more than would appear at first glance.

First of all, Ben Chavis is back in town, this time as a minister of a black church. Chavis (to call him Reverend seems a bit ridiculous) ostensibly was called here by the black congregation he now serves. Be that as it may, Chavis' intention are hardly either scriptural or Christian, as we may surmise from the violence his presence seemed to produce last year.

Secondly, there has, as we all know, been sniping from areas of the black community. We cannot say that the snipers are black, for no one has seen them, but anyone who says they are white has got to be kidding. The sniping has been senseless, because, in each case, no incident prompted it, and nothing was accomplished by it.

Third, there have been bands of white red-necks, riding around in trucks and cars, looking for trouble, and armed to the teeth. Incidentally, the sniping preceded these trouble-seekers, and was not a result of them.

Fourth, the police have adopted a "get-tough" policy of returning immediate fire on snipers, and a general attitude of fight back.

There is certainly much more going on than this, but even this is quite enough to illustrate the danger our town is in. We have blacks and whites ready to go to war at a moment's notice, and police ready to go to war on both groups of militants.

Well, what about the "great, silent majority"? All of us who are not directly involved in one of the three forces mentioned above are just caught in the crossfire. None of these groups, with the possible exception of the police, seems to be concerned about the public at large, only themselves.

The authorities are asking that no one play vigilante, and most of us are probably trying to comply. So what happens when the war comes to us? We can't play the pacifist, because the militant forces will not recognize that attitude as legitimate from either black or white.

Someone had better be getting ready. Clear?

There are over 2,000 prosperous members of the insect family Phasmida — the walking sticks. Thanks to their uncanny resemblance to a twig, these insects are able to remain concealed from their enemies while actually in plain sight!

The largest gold nugget ever found weighed 190 lbs.!

WSM

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Photographer.....Carson Benson
Assistants.....Barry Asbury

Liz Buffington
Ray Buchanan
Grace Parker
Carlos Poole
David Shymanski
Kathy Tynor

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Gas glubs; thieves escape

A rubber hose was found attached to a gas tank in the dorm parking lot recently. Officer Long, on a routine patrol the early morning of Oct. 8, found gasoline running from student Charles T. Harwood's auto, into a five gallon plastic pail. Long noticed about the same time a light-colored van type truck pulling away from the lot. He pulled the hose from the car and attempted to give chase to the van; however, the van traveled at a high rate of speed and drove quickly out of sight.

UNC-History Club Officers (l-r) President Joe Morgan, Secretary Veronica Sellers, Treasurer Buddy Cumber, and Vice President Johnny Wallace (photo by History Club)

Pascal hilites SNCAE

The next meeting of the Student North Carolina Association of Educators is to be held during the Regional Conference, October 28, on the campus of UNC-W in the Education building. The coffee hour will be held from 9:15 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. The cluster groups, composed of six college campuses including Chapel Hill and Fayetteville State, will hold discussions on Voter Registration from 10:00 to 11:15. To highlight the day, Dr. Jerry Pascal, past president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, will speak in the Education Auditorium. An exhibit will be held at Roland Grise from 8:30-12:00. The public is invited to attend these functions.

The officers of this years UNC-W's SNCAE are: Gloria Ramos, president; Carroll Hardee, vice-president; Isabelle Denkins, secretary; and Alice Staton, treasurer.

The first meeting of the SNCAE, held on September 20, 1971 featured a panel of guests who talked on "Trends and Issues in Education."

to congratulate the sisters and new pledges of Zeta Tau Alpha and commend them on a splendid rush!

The Phi Mu's are anxiously looking forward to the upcoming year and urge all to do their share in supporting their school in all phases of campus life. Welcome to UNC-W!

Phi Mu supports HOPE

The sisters of Phi Mu Sorority are off to another great start this year. Their officers are Melanie Karnes, president; Dru Farrar, vice president; Pat Watts, treasurer; Kathy Piner, secretary; Rachel Pickett, pledge director; Kay Gregory, membership director; and Tricia Sabrinsky, Panhellenic delegate.

The girls actually began their year in the mid-part of the summer when they went all out in support of their national philanthropy, S.S. HOPE. The sisters spent 3 days in local grocery stores pushing Clark's sausage and raised $200.

Another big step was taken just recently when Panhellenic held its Formal Rush. The Phi Mu's now have 8 new pledges; Donna Abernathy, Donna Adams, Boni Fries, Debi Rogers, Janet Hairr, Paula Hart, Olivia Danford, and Debbie Grieman. We would also like

News from the Castle

by Susan Bagrowski, from the turret

The castle poets are performing this month. The dozen or so golden poetical prodigies speak confidently of their "literary world and the immense value of universal ideas."

The conselling service sent out a memorandum welcoming student's opinions on the management and state of the castle. They gave a specific deadline, which would be the last day the survey would be conducted—only thing is that none of the students received the memorandum until the deadline day. Intentional mistake?

The dormitory suffered a recent massacre—clocks stolen, ceiling paneling torn down in several spots. The villains have not as yet been apprehended.

—Well, that's all folks. Remember to keep on the watch for those "subversive communist plots."

APO News

It is frequently thought that today's youth possesses the desire to promote humanity and the environment. The APO man believes this to be the case. We do not profess to be the greatest, for our actions speak with greater intensity than our rhetoric. We believe that work is needed to counteract the inequalities and improve society, but we are well aware that all work and no play produces no well rounded individual. So, why not come visit APO on October 20, 21 at 7:30 p.m., downstairs in the Student Services Building (Pub).

Wanted: Saleslady

Love the midi-dig the jeans - crave

all the new threads on the scene -

then you're for part-time and peak-time help at

COUNTRY VOGUE

Apply Wednesday

112 N. Front St.

HANOVER CLEANERS

3544 OLEANDER DRIVE

OFFERS SOME HELP WITH THE ECONOMIC FACTS OF COLLEGE LIFE
DISCOUNT

DRY CLEANING

SUITS DRESSES
PANT SUITS
TOP COATS

1.09 EACH

Plus Tax Ins.

SLACKS
SWEATERS
SKIRTS
SPORT COATS

55¢ EACH

Plus Tax Ins.

SHIRTS - ON HANGERS

25¢

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

The most Meaningful Semester
you'll ever spend...
could be the one on
World Campus Afloat

Sailing Feb. 1972 to Africa and the Orient

Through a transfer format, more than 5,000 students from 450 campuses have participated for a semester in this unique program in international education.

WCA will broaden your horizons, literally and figuratively... and give you a better chance to make it—meaningfully—in this changing world. You'll study at sea with an experienced cosmopolitan faculty, and then during port stops you'll study the world itself. You'll discover that no matter how foreign and far-away, you have a lot in common with people of other lands.

WCA isn't as expensive as you might think; we've done our best to bring it within reach of most college students. Write today for free details.

TEACHERS: Summer travel with credit for teachers and administrators.

Write Today to:
Chapman College,
Box CC28, Orange, California 92666

Dirt Band masters of music

By BARRY ASBURY
 Luckily enough, UNC-W got to bring the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band on campus to play a "concert". I wonder if the audience knows there was a band on stage? Or if there was a stage? At the beginning of the concert, the band was really trying to get into their music and give the audience a show. It seems though that about one fourth of the audience was at the concert because there was nothing else going on that night. The band eventually lost an enthusiasm they might have had. They kept on playing out of the kindness of their hearts. For instance, when John McKuen was trying to play his banjo solo written in 1750, some of the people didn't want to listen to... therefore there was so much noise that he couldn't hear to tune, talk to the audience, or even bear to finish the number. (I found out later that he cut it short about ten minutes.) This is not to mention the guy standing up and walking across right in front of McKuen. When the band stopped right before the 1956 number, the concert would have been over then without the coaxing from two of the more stout-hearted guys in the group. The rest of the group just didn't want to compete with the audience. (Nitty Gritty is a band that likes you to absorb all that their music has to say. They had a show to put on. Instead, they just played the music... period.)

Nitty Gritty did play music and they played it well. Not very many groups sound as good in person as they do on a recording, but NGTB came out as masters of their game.

TAPE IT! THE WAY YOU LIKE IT!

Rhythm & Blues
 Psychedelic—Jazz & Rock
 The Heavy Sounds
 with WXL Blank 8-Track Cartridges
 TDK Cassettes

Now you can tape your own kind of music for a fraction of the price of pre-recorded tapes. "JAM PROOF" 8-track or Low Noise, distortion free cassettes.

TDK CASSETTES

"F" SERIES
 30 MIN .85
 60 MIN .99
 90 MIN 1.49

"P" SERIES
 30 MIN 1.09
 60 MIN 1.29
 90 MIN 1.99

SUPERDYNAMIC
 30 MIN 1.69
 60 MIN 1.99
 90 MIN 2.99
 120 MIN 3.99

WXL BLANK 8-TRACKS

4 MIN 1.99
 32 MIN 1.99
 35 MIN 1.99
 40 MIN 1.99
 64 MIN 2.29
 70 MIN 2.39
 80 MIN 2.49

Wide Range Full Frequency
 Cassettes for the Best in High Fidelity Sound!

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

1002 So. College Road

792-7365

- Master Charge
- Bank Americard

Nominate a Vice - Chancellor

The committee to advise Chancellor Wagoner on the selection of a new Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs is accepting nominations from students, alumni and the faculty for this position. The committee is made up of five students and five faculty members with Dr. Joann Corbett as chairman. All nominations for the position of Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs should be turned in to Dr. Corbett in the English Department by November 15. The nominations should contain a brief description of the nominee as well as the name of the nominator.

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 7

Tues. Nov. 2, 1971

Senate approves Pub renovations

What has become known as "the old Pub" is getting a face-lifting. With the acceptance of plans proposed by a special sub-committee, Student Senate approved the following plans, effective Oct. 19, for the Hinton James Student Services Building.

The former cafeteria-snack bar room to be used jointly by the yearbook, Fledgling, and the literary magazine, Atlantis.

The former cafeteria storage room (kitchen) to be altered into a darkroom to be used by all campus publications.

The bookstore to be given the space in the hall between the present glass fronts and the girls' restroom. A new partition to be added and one wall to be arched.

The large upstairs room to be used as a meeting and television room.

The large downstairs room to be used as a recreation room with the present ping-pong tables repaired and moved here, with additional pin-ball type machines placed here, and with two non-coin operated pool tables brought and placed here.

That the Pub be kept open until 9 p.m. on week nights and 11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays. (to be begun when all equipment is installed). Student supervisors will be employed.

The Student Government office will remain downstairs, room S-105, and the seahawk resides upstairs, room S-201.

The publications have moved into their new locations and have begun dummy copies for the magazine and yearbook. "Having more room means we can expand our operation," explains Donn J. Sroufe, co-editor of Fledgling. "And by expanding our operation we have room for more staff; by having more staff, we become more efficient, therefore serving the students better." The Fledgling formally was located behind the Information Services office in the interview room—"A small place that had to be cleaned up and vacated every time company interviews were held," stated Sroufe. "Having this much room is really great," he added, "especially since it's really ours!"

Dave Smith, editor of Atlantis, stated that the new location of the literary magazine is advantageous. "More people know we're down here, and when they know where we are, their interest grows. People begin to realize what Atlantis is; they want to work on the magazine and to read it." Having moved from the Education - Psychology Building to the seahawk room to the old snack bar areas within eight weeks has not affected publication dates for Atlantis. The fall edition of the literary magazine is expected to be circulated prior to Christmas vacation. "There's no reason why Atlantis should not be out by the last week of classes," concluded Smith.

Mrs. Pat Gaskins, manager of the student bookstore, stated "any new space is welcome space. The room gained by moving the glass partition will give us a lot more room to offer more things to the students," she stated.

"What we're trying to do is to bring the students back to the Pub," explained Ed Boylan, SGA President. After the snack bar was closed and the new cafeteria opened, the students naturally followed the food. The building for student activities was abandoned, and to leave it that way was a waste of money and space."

Funds for the reallocation and improvements are coming from student fees. Nine dollars of every student's fees become part of a special student center fund, which was used last year to purchase and install the stereo system.

Two additional speakers will be added to the stereo system, and it will be tentatively re-located in part of the showcase immediately in front of the main entrance.

Improvements are expected to be completed by end of spring semester.

Who's Who inducts 28 Seahawks

The 1971 edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES will carry the names of twenty-eight (28) students from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington who have been selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

Student seat on Curriculum Board vacant

Applications for a student seat on the Curriculum Committee are now being accepted. Applications should include; applicants name, telephone number and qualifications.

Qualifications for this position are: a desire to see significant meaningful curriculum changes affected, an ability to voice sound, thoughtful and germane arguments, and enthusiasm and conviction.

The deadline for said application will be November 5. All applications should be submitted at the office of The Seahawk (upstairs in the pub.)

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Students named this year from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington are: Joseph Edward Boylan, III; David Kirk Brown; Pamela Ruth Brown; Karen Argie Costello; Donald Lewis Diamond; Bryan Lee Fann; Clyde Keith Farmer; Elizabeth Marlowe; Marian White Jervay; William Augustus Marlowe; Jane Rogers McCorkle; Johnny Lee McGee; Gregory Otis Nelson; Linda Kay Pearson; Linda Lewis Quinn; Kenneth Wayne Rogers; Ronald Alexander Seawell; Curtis Stewart Smith; Donn Jack Stoufe; James Ira Wentz, all from Wilmington.

Also chosen were: Janice Louise Asbell, Holly Ridge; Fernia Dianne Braak, Castle Hayne; Isabelle Anderson Denkins, Winnabow; Joseph Allen Morgan, Jacksonville; Michael Darrell Purvis, Kure Beach; Patricia Diane Watts, Ash; Nadine Frimenko, St. Petersburg, Florida; and Veronica Diane Sellers, Marion, South Carolina.

Big Brother needs you.

For more information, contact the placement office.

Anievas opens UMS tonight

The 1971-72 University Music series premieres tonight when internationally acclaimed pianist Augustin Anievas performs in Kenan Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Students will be admitted free upon presentation of ID cards.

Mozart's "Sonata in G Major, K. 232," "Sonata in B minor," Opus 58" by Chopin, and "Etudes d'execution transcendante d'opres' Paganini" by Liszt.

Anievas began study of the piano at the age of three, giving his first public recital at eight.

He enrolled in the Juilliard School of Music in his late teens where he studied with Adele Marcus, an experience he treasures. "It was she," he acknowledges gratefully, "who made me aware of the two basic problems of concert artists—how to discover the inner meaning of a work and how to project one's interpretation to an audience."

Anievas has received high praise since his first U.S. tour in 1961. The "New York Times" wrote a recent performance, "Anievas not only dazzled the ear, but also gave notice of a poetical and thoughtful musical intelligence at work."

He has undertaken several European and South American tours. As a result, Anievas has been hailed as "a veritable part of the piano,"

AGUSTIN ANIEVAS, PIANIST

"a pianist of status," "an uncommonly gifted artist," as well as "a genius."

From the first, critics have lauded his albums. Anievas has recorded work by Rachmaninoff, Chopin, Brahms, and Liszt.

The "Chopin Etudes" album of 1968 was picked as being among the top five "Year's Best Classical Recording."

One of the main reasons of Anievas solid success is his unique method of study. Hours of practice, interrupting his playing to criticize himself out loud, are daily habits.

Additional hours are spent studying the life and works of any composer he performs "to understand thoroughly what he had in mind," he says.

Anievas' international prizes include "The Michael's Award" in Chicago, The Concert Artists Guild Award in New York, and the Brussels and Bolzan Piano competitions.

Don't Forget: Freshman Elections November 4

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Politics or Education, Governor?

Besides being in the midst of political controversy in the United Nations, and in the political pathways to American Presidency, the college students in North Carolina are also caught up in one of the biggest political messes in the history of higher education. Many students can't determine what really has been happening—and even after attending Consolidated University meetings and Board of Trustees meetings, we still can't figure it out. A hunk of politics here and there might help the governor and his fellow politicians to gain face—but what about our education?

Tim Sims

Curriculum Comment

Lately, there has been quite a bit of spoken and written opinion, most of it without much basis in reality, about the need for curriculum changes. On the one hand, there is the problem of what a well-rounded education should include, and, on the other hand, the problem of subjects one has to take which bear no relation to either one's future vocation or general interest.

This little summation of no means implies that the problem is so cut and dried, but is merely intended to illustrate the general area of concern.

In higher and lower education, everything has been tried. Some schools took away all general requirements, while some reduced the number, and some maintained the status quo. As far as anyone can tell, there is very little difference in the quality of graduates from these schools with such diverse approaches.

Those who insist that there is a difference are usually speaking only in terms of general bias, such as, "He didn't even learn to speak a foreign language" as if this debility (if, indeed, it is such) will forever hamper one's life.

Since no suitable facts are presentable to prove that quality of education is either increased or decreased by either lack or abundance of requirements, one can very reasonably conclude that requirements, or the lack of them, are largely a matter of institutional preference.

Thus, the argument put forth by some of our faculty and administration that to reduce the requirements will lessen the quality of a UNC-W diploma is not only dubious, but without any factual basis whatsoever.

However, the insistence by some students that one may be educated by taking whatever he pleases, omitting that which he does not feel inclined to study, ignores all the experience of the past, and is equally without factual basis.

Some acceptable compromise will doubtless be reached, but in the meantime it would probably be good policy for students to abide by the present system (if one wishes to graduate), since a little research would probably convince most of us that the system is not really so important as individual initiative in gaining an education.

KEEP AMERICA BEAUTIFUL

you can get in . . .

By MICHAEL TYER
Night Operator

Many students seem to think that this University closes promptly at 5:00 p.m. This is not the case as night classes, plays, library activities, and social activities are going strong. The problem comes into view when the students wish the buildings to be opened. As there is only one security guard on duty in the evening, it presents a problem in locating him to open the building. The simple solution is to call the night switchboard operator who is on duty from 5:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Your problem will be solved as he has a direct line to the security guard. This saves his time and your time. The regular University number, 791-4330, will get you call through.

Senior shares college experiences

Name withheld by request

Some opinions to the students of UNC-W, from a senior who wishes to withhold his name.

As a fellow student, I have long wished to express my opinions on certain matters relevant to us all. And as a senior I had best do it now as my graduation date is in the fall. Soon I will take my place in the world. But the time spent at UNC-W has naturally been one in which I have formed opinions on many aspects of our society. The areas most important to us are the draft, being successful in our chosen field, marriage or sex, and at present, coping with our studies and our own beliefs.

The draft is with us, for two more years at the least. But I don't worry about it too much as I am a veteran. This helps you very little but let me continue. All U.S. citizens of 18 years of age in good standing can vote. You know this. O.K. so vote for the man that won't send you to S.E. Asia. It's still going on you know. Nixon is still moving in the right direction but to you that's not good enough. So raise all the hell you want but do it legally! Write your congressman a persuasive letter. Talk to other people and not just on this campus but out in society at large. Perhaps the Star - News would print your views. After all, the opinions of 2,000 people can't go unnoticed. If you really believe what you profess on this campus, hold a debate and again do not hold it on this campus but in Wilmington! After all, you still have the right of free speech and assembly. Sam Ervin can tell you that even if he doesn't agree with your opinions. The new "action army" does have action but not the type I liked. See what you can do about the situation. In 1966 there was no lottery and very few deferments. You are the voting citizenry. Back your opinions by legal action.

To be successful, one must primarily chose a field appealing to him. Many college students are unsure of what they want out of college and drop out disillusioned. If a person signs up for college he should have a goal and stick to it. Statute is a good thing to achieve but don't obtain it by going to school. You only rob another person of this seat. Obtain your degree and move on. At the same time don't neglect social events on campus. A college degree means a well-rounded person both academically and socially.

Marriage and sex are next on my soapbox oration. Too often one leads to the other in either direction. As college students you are adults and should know your own mind. Damn if I don't sound like Amy Vanderbilt. There are too many contraceptives sold in North Carolina for anyone on this campus to get into trouble. Naive students should obtain a copy of Elephants and Butterflies. If you are still in the dark, chances are that you are too stupid to get into college. So there are no excuses on sex. Marriage is another matter. Some of the wisest of men and women get married so this is permitted. The type of person that fits our idea of being your partner through life is your problem. Sorry I can't help you in that field. I'm still single as there are still too many things for me to do and marriage is not on my agenda.

College entails work and there is no way of getting around this fact. Get to know the professors on a personal basis. All kinds of help are available from your teachers away from the classroom. Know the campus in detail as you would be surprised at the number of students that frequent only the building containing their major field. When you become a senior don't neglect the freshmen and sophomores.

Some of my beliefs have changed, others have hardened. Basically, I am a loner. Politically I have changed from a Democrat to a Republican.

P.S. My apologies to the English department. Insomnia and a week of tests have taken their toll on my coordination from brain to pen.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Photographer.....Carson Benson
Assistants.....Barry Asbury
Don Massengill
Grace Parker
David Shymanski
Kathy Tyner

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Political Forum -- Where do you stand?

Crabs and Oysters are different, Mr. Sowers

By DIANN C. ANEST

A few weeks ago, the members of Project Environment wrote to Mr. Roy E. Sowers, Jr., North Carolina Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources, inquiring about the possible contamination of marine life in the Cape Fear River by mercury and other metals. It seems that at a previous PE meeting, a student informed the group that specimens of blue crab, had been taken from the Cape Fear. This student also said that when the samples were tested, the level of mercury was so high it went off the scale. However, the official report was withheld from the public due to "faulty equipment."

In a recent news release, Mr. Sowers told of a state monitoring program to determine levels of toxicity in marine organisms. The organism to be tested? Oysters. Mr. Sowers said that eight samples per month will be taken from ten stations along the North Carolina coast. Mr. Sowers also said, "This is a step forward in the area of necessary research to protect our marine and wildlife, and thereby our people, from potential danger."

However, what we must examine is what Mr. Sowers has not said. First of all, oysters are one of the marine species that is capable of throwing off mercury contamination. The blue crab, striped bass, and catfish are not; such contamination is accumulated in the muscle tissue. Therefore, by testing oysters, and consequently showing negative results, Mr. Sowers' project will serve only to placate the public for now.

My question: Why haven't the pertinent organism (blue crab, striped bass, and catfish), especially those of the Cape Fear, been tested? If the equipment is "faulty," why can't it be corrected? The citizens of North Carolina that Mr. Sowers wishes to protect. Eat these crabs! If you are as concerned as I, the man to contact is: Dr. Thomas Linton, M.C. Fisheries Commissioner, N.C. Dept. C&D, 116 W. Jones St., Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

*UNC-W Rings

*Diamond Rings

*Birthstone Rings

*Bulova Watches

Student Charge
Accounts

"Read's for Diamonds"

Read's

Front and
Princess Sts.

Circuit poets become force

By ERICH PARKER

The recent appearance on our campus of poet Howard McCord stimulated some of our literate students to question the artistic merits of contemporary poetry in general, and Mr. McCord's attempts in particular. Prior to his arrival, I carefully reviewed one of his published works, The Spanish Dark. After due consideration, I determined that either McCord had grossly mistaken his own poetic aptitude, or that he was knowingly staging another literary farce in the growing tradition of some circuit "Poets".

Howard McCord's manuscript was replete with vague imagery, obscure transience, elusive form, and whimsical didacticism. In short, everything to endear him to a sadly typical audience of enlightened students. I was reminded of Peter Viereck's remark that, "Students crave the ever more shocking and ever more new. They are looking more for emotional release than purely artistic merit." Indeed then, it was with trepidation that I attended McCord's reading of some of his latest poems. However, I was nicely surprised to discover that the speaker had matured into a pleasantly mediocre poet. Yet even then I was slightly offended by the utter presumption of the man. So, beware the prophets of doom or wondering bards who disguise themselves as poets...for a fool and his standards are soon parted.

IF THE REVOLUTION
DOESN'T HAPPEN
SOON,
I'LL HAVE TO GET A JOB.

C. Keith Farmer

Organization Needed

The recent Freshman election, if one could refer to them as such, have pointed out the continuing need for both more involvement and improved organization in our Student Government.

Some Freshmen did indeed take an interest in the elections. Their numbers, however, were very few. Of the eight positions to be elected only two of them offered the voter any choice. The others were either running unopposed or were completely without a candidate.

The apathy of the Freshman class could be matched only by the ineptness with which the Board of Elections handled the elections. The elections, of course, were thrown out and new elections scheduled. However, the same chairman of the Board of Elections who had so poorly handled the first attempt was allowed to try again. It would seem that the President considers ones ability to completely show his incompetence as criteria for this position.

What is needed to improve the situation? The answer is twofold. First and most important is a student body who does more than occasionally come to class and just let everything else take care of itself. Apathy is a much overused word; nevertheless, it fits our situation quite well. Not only in the example referred to, but in all aspects of student life. The vast majority of the students on our campus just do not give a damn. Not that they will not occasionally complain if exactly what they want is not done. They do this very well. However, when they must put forth the effort to run for office, serve on committees or work in any other way for better student life, one will find that they become very quiet very quickly. It would be great to have what they want but not if they must be required to help work for it.

The second part of the problem lies in the lack of organization in our Student Government. A new constitution was promised last spring; it has not appeared. One office was vacated in August; it is yet to be filled. It seems that those in charge or those who should be in charge either do not know what power they have or do not know how to use it. For two and a half months, there has been talk about what they want to do. It is time for them to start working something besides their vocal chords.

When you run out • • • Run in • • •

TIP MART

OPEN 7-11

ACROSS FROM UNC-W

The Hang-up
Coat.

The beauty of this Cricketeer sportcoat is that you can wear it all day, hang it up for a few hours at night and wear it again the next day, and it will be as fresh as you are. That's because it's tailored from a remarkable polyester and wool doubleknit fabric that's more wrinkle resistant and comfortable than any sportcoat you've ever worn. Try it on. You may not take it off.

CRICKETEER®
DOUBLEKNIT SPORTCOAT

$75.00

Payne's

Downtown - 131 N. Front

Hanover Center

ACS approves Chemistry degree

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington has received notification that its bachelor of science program in chemistry has been approved by the American Chemical Society.

"We are extremely proud of this accomplishment," said Dr. Will S. DeLoach, chairman of the UNC-W Chemistry Department. "It is solid evidence that our program meets the high standards set forth by professional chemists themselves."

themselves."

Approval of the program came after a three-year study of the UNC-W Chemistry Department by the American Chemical Society's Committee on Professional Training. The study included evaluations of the department's faculty, facilities, equipment, curriculum, library, and accomplishments of its graduates.

Dr. DeLoach said the ACS approval will be especially valuable to UNC-W because "as a relatively new institution, we don't have a long history of our students advancing in graduate studies, research and industry. As a result, we have been at somewhat of a disadvantage as far as professional recognition is concerned. But now our students are in a program that meets outside professional standards, that can be compared with those of other good chemistry departments."

UNC-W granted its first bachelor of science degrees in chemistry last year. Its program, designed to give students a sound background for careers as professional chemists or for advanced study in chemistry, is one of only nine programs in North Carolina institutions of higher education to hold ACS approval.

The university also offers the bachelor of arts degree in chemistry.

UNCW in Mexican journal

A University of North Carolina professor and his son have published the first critical study of the works of three contemporary Argentinian playwrights in the September-October issue of CUDANDERNOS AMERICANOS, a journal published in Mexico.

Dr. Antolin Gonzalez-del-

Valle and his son Luis coauthored "Vision del hombre y de la sociedad en tres dramaturgos contemporaneos (Three Contemporary Argentinian Playwrights and Their View of Man and Society), a study of five plays by Alberto Wainer, Nestor Kraly and Roberto Cossa. The article is the first formal analysis of the works of these authors and is the basis for a book the Gonzalez-del-Valles plan to publish.

Professor Gonzalez-del-Valle has been a member of the UNC-W Department of Modern Languages since 1964. His son Luis was graduated cum laude with honors in Spanish from UNC-W. He is currently writing his doctoral dissertation under the Cooperative Ph. D. Program of Amherst College, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College, and the University of Massachusetts.

He holds a Woodrow Wilson Dissertation Fellowship to the University of Massachusetts.

NCAE meets

Dr. Jerry Pascal, representative of Political Action Committee of Education (PACE), spoke October 26 to a North Carolina Association of Educators (NCAE) regional cluster meeting.

He emphasized that PACE will not attempt to instruct or demand teachers to vote in the upcoming gubernatorial election. Candidates will be endorsed by PACE for being "a friend of education."

The program adjourned to Roland-Grise Junior High, where an education exhibit was viewed.

YOU'RE SO TIRED
AFTER SWIMMING,
YOU CAN'T POSSIBLY FIX YOUR OWN SUPPER.
WE'LL FIX THAT.

PIZZA HUT

IT'S MORE LIKE A BIG COZY DEN
THAN A RESTAURANT

4016 Oleander Dr. 3406 Market St.

the "everything" column

Lost or found something? Need help? Wanna call a meeting but lack communication? Here's your chance! Just write it plainly and bring it to our office or give it to any staffer.

If you're interested in building costumes for "Good Woman of Setuan," a westernised Chinese play now in rehearsal, contact Cathy Medlin in the SRO theatre, 11:30 TTH or 12:30-1 p.m. MWF.

Recycle those bottles you've been wondering what to do with. Deposit them in the designated places in Kanan, Hoggard, and the Administration Buildings. Recycling every Tuesday.

Mike Gols of the Art Department has a potpourri of puppies to give away for a small donation (so that the situation may be altered).

Math Club Meetings: November 2, 11:30 a.m. in C-127 and November 10, 6:00 p.m. in Cafeteria.

Physical Education Majors Club: November 2 in Back Gym.

Student Tutorial Program: Begins Thursday, November 4 at 11:30 a.m. in first floor of Pub. Contact Don Beach (256-2392) or Ed Boylan (762-0216) for additional information.

Curriculum Committee Applications: Accepted until November 5 by Seahawk office.

Nominations for Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs: Accepted in English Department until November 15.

Deadline for applications for Attorney General: November 10. Contact Ed Boylan with applications.

Psychology Club Meetings: Watch for announcements to be posted.

LET Pandora HELP YOU DECORATE YOUR ROOM WITH:

- Great deep tone Pakistani and India Print Spreads
Double or Single — or make drapes from two spreads
- Namdha Rugs — for floor or wall
- Zodiac Pictures

PANDORA ALSO HAS:

- Suede and Pakistani Shoulder bags for the girls
- Kurta shirts for the boys

• Many fun things:

Tarot Cards

Love Beads and Kits

Zodiac key chains and necklaces

Incense and Burners

Sealing wax and Seals

• Many other useful gifts and accessories for the college student-

Pocket Dictionaries of all Romance Languages
Photo Albums — Pens — etc.

Shop Pandoras — You will love the selection —
and the low, low prices.

Pandora's Gift Boutique, Inc.

4107 Oleander Dr.

Open daily 10:00-5:30

Ph. 799-4750

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 8

Tues. Nov. 9, 1971

Need help? Student Tutorial Program initiates free assistance

During the course of a college career the student frequently feels that certain subjects are beyond his comprehension. He feels doomed and destined to fail. He asks himself how he, so brilliant in Chemistry, could be failing Great British Writers, while his roommate is clever in English but cannot wade through math. He criticizes the "system" which requires him to be well rounded in his under graduate education, he blames his teachers, and he despises that girl in the front row who knows all the answers; but all of these excuses can't teach him English.

At many colleges and universities a satisfactory answer has been found in the form of a student tutorial program. This brings together the English major and the Chemistry major and lets them help one another through these difficult classes. Its success depends on its being fun to teach what one loves in an informal and personal situation. Everyone has something he can teach and something he needs to learn. Everyone can contribute and be involved. It requires very little time and rewards can be tremendous. We would like to urge you to become involved in such a program here at Wilmington. A meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 11 at 11:30 in Student Services Building on the first floor in the large room. Come if you can to discuss the possibilities of such a program in detail. If you can't come but would like to know more, call Dea Beach at 256-2992 or Ed Boylan at 762-0216. Help us to get this started now before those finals needlessly get you down.

Telephone directories are here and may be picked up in Dean Brown's office in the Administration Bldg. Included in the new green and yellow edition are student, faculty, and special organization addresses and phone numbers.

Truly, Gifts and Accessories." Winston - Salem, North Carolina. An ivory male sperm whale donated by George Tregembo of Tote-Em-In-Zoo completes the display.

Museum adds Eskimo art

A translation of Paulose Sivuaak's explanation of Eskimo art by Jimmy Innarulik brings out that "Eskimo Art is not just imagination, it really shows how the old Eskimo life was hard. The artists also show which animals the hunter hunted. Since the Eskimo artists can't speak your language, they tell you, with their art, how their grandfathers struggled for life."

Three artifacts representative of Eskimo art from the Ungave peninsula are currently on display in the UNC-W museum located in the Philosophy - Religion - Art Office in Kenan Hall. The first of these artifacts is a recent print made from a flat soapstone depicting daily life — hunting and fishing; normally, after about thirty prints are made from each stone, the stone is broken.

Also on display are ivory birds carved from the lower jawbone of a walrus and a green soapstone carving of an Eskimo pulling a walrus from the ice. These pieces are courtesy of Maurice J. McDonald, owner of "Yours

Cheerleaders for the 1971-72 season are: (back row, L-R) Darlene Cable, Head Linda Walton, Vonnice Yeager (Middle row, L-R) Libby Weaver, Susan Lewis, Becky Weathers (Center) Co-Head Debbie Davis, (photo by cmbjr)

Even the Great Pumpkin was on campus for Hallowe'en this year!

Hallowe'en struck a little late this year

Nibble Day was unofficially held Thurs., Nov. 4, in the Pub. Two thirsty students, unhappy with the drink machine, which was not working, decided to try the other snack machines. Upon pulling the knobs of the candy machine, free and unlimited goodies appeared and appeared and appeared and . . .

After calling the vending machine company, and finding "the" man not there, the students agreed Mr. Clark, head of the food service department, was the next best choice to inform.

He wasn't in his office, either, so they left their calling card in the top desk drawer: four Reese packs, five Snickers, three Nekot crackers and three Square Cheese . . .

Tim Sims (R), first place, converses with second place winner Craig Martin.

Poetry Contest lauds Sims

Winner of the second annual UNC-W poetry contest was Tim Sims. The announcement was made Oct. 28 at a reception in the library hosted by the campus literary magazine Atlantis.

Awarded to Mr. Sims was a prize of $50 for "Fair Weather Beach." A second place prize of $25 was awarded to Craig Martin for "Oh Jesus, Did You Ever Sing the Blues?" Laviece Ward was awarded a $10 third place prize for "IX".

Three poems received honorable mention. These were "God Bless!" by Don Massengill, "Plasticity" by Vic Murray, and "James the Cat Trilogy" by Ron Midgett. Each of these contestants was awarded a copy of North Carolina Poetry 1970.

One hundred fourteen poems were entered, a considerable increase over last year's 75 entries. Judges were members of the English Dept. Miss Carol Ellis, Mrs. Nila Chamberlain, and Mrs. Isabel Foushee.

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Runny noses will have to run

To a UNCW resident, getting sick may pose a bigger problem than he or she may realize. With no infirmary on campus, students are left to their Fate, for most Wilmington doctors are bogged down with "old" patients, and to get an appointment may take weeks.

We strongly urge that an infirmary

and a part-time nurse be employed on campus. Even a simple set-up of asperin, throat lozenges, and band-aids would be an improvement over our present condition.

With 400 resident students, it's way past time to "get prepared" for them to live here.

Feedback!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

We need bicycle paths

By DIANN C. ANEST

Do you ride a bike? Don't you wish you had somewhere to ride other than streets A, B, C, and D?

We need bicycle paths! As students, we have no access to any other part of Wilmington, because of one thing — South College Road. Hugh MacRae Park is beautiful and open to everyone — except student cyclists; we can't reach it. For some obscure reason some inept engineer decided to bottleneck the fast four-lane from Oleander to Wilshire into a faster (and suicidal for the cyclist) two-lane running in front of UNC-W. It could prove fatal to a person in a car to try to cross South College Road, much less one on a bicycle! PROJECT ENVIRONMENT has a project underway to try to establish facilities for cyclists. One major part of this project is an investigation to see what can be done to help alleviate the South College Road situation.

Another investigation is underway to determine which residential streets may possibly be designated as "Bikeways." These would have very low speed limits and would be posted for use principally by cyclists. Effort is also being made to have a bicycle declared a legal vehicle, i.e., it would be bound by the same laws as automobiles.

There is no logical reason why Wilmington should not become the first major southern city to provide such progressive facilities. Just recently, Mayor John Lindsay of New York declared bicycles to be legal vehicles, and several boroughs of his city to be major bikeways, including 5th Avenue of downtown Manhattan! This was done almost as a necessity — hundreds of Manhattanites have said "To Hell!" with the costly, time-consuming commuter trains and have taken to riding bicycles to work. Wilmington pollution (due to automobiles) becomes as serious as in New York City. If bicycle paths were available not only to UNC-W students but to every citizen of this county, Wilmington could show every other southern city that we have a pollution solution.

If you are interested in taking part in this effort, call: PROJECT ENVIRONMENT, 791-9277.

Who's incompetent?

By H.B. REHDER, JR.

When I first read Clyde Farmer's article, I was amused, and to be quite honest, surprised.

First of all, Farmer is a bit late to be complaining of the recent elections that happened at the beginning of September. Since then, we've had another, and this one went fairly well. Of course there was the first one.

Well, what can we say? You can't have opinions about the truth. Sure, we made mistakes, but we came through. I think the board. Board of Elections — Ed.) followed up in good order. I honestly believe that we did a good job the second time. Isn't one of the best ways for a man to prove his worth to make mistakes and then come through in the clutch?

Now what about all this talk about incompetency. To begin with, it's coming from one of the most incompetent, and rather vain men on campus. Clyde K. Farmer is chairman of the Entertainment Committee. And they're the ones that scheduled Goose Creek and promptly lost $300 for the school. But he was given a second chance. He was allowed to schedule The Dirt this is your chance to publicly express your opinion — use it!

Band, and quickly lost $700! That's over a thousand bucks we've lost through one man's inefficiency. Well, what say? You can't have opinions about the truth.

We will not vote

By Richard H. Powell, Jr.

We are a nation of "free" people, at present. How long will this freedom last? Are we to let the extreme right or extreme left control? These are the questions over which we as youths and answer.

In the state of North Carolina over 750,000 people are considered "new" voters. Of these new voters only 315,000 will register for the May 6, 1972 primary; yet more frightful is the fact that only 42 per cent of these 17% to 23 year old voters will vote at all. When both figures are weighted we are no longer a controlling political force but a small minority.

We as the new voters can thank Dr. Eugene Grace, candidate for the U.S. Senate, for sparking the flame that started the fires in our state legislature. Without Grace's effort we would not have the absentee ballot or the primary on May 6, 1972. In my conversations with Grace he stated that his thanks would be received when the young voters go to the poll and exercise their constitutional privilege. Gene Grace then said that the youth of today are the leaders of today.

We have the power to control; now we must unite to obtain the goals that will allow America to remain a nation that is strong, free, and compassionate.

WE LIKE TO 'SPOON FEED' OUR AUDIENCE

CPS

Poignant letter raises chuckles

(Editors note: Sometimes our daily mail gets interesting, and between the advertisements, exchange papers, and political soap-ops, an occasional "goodie!" is nestled. This is one we just couldn't read without sharing)

Greetings from sunny Viet Nam

We would like to request your help in solving one of our most pressing morale problems! One of the most depressing things a G.I. can experience is returning from "Mail Call" empty handed. A few of us came up with an idea that might possibly solve that problem. Obviously, a G.I. would rather receive a letter from a relative, honest to goodness, red blooded, round eyed American FEMALE than anyone else. Now, our problem boils down to this, how do we get enough girls from back home to write to us? Especially enough girls to go around the quarter to half million guys presently stationed in Viet Nam.

We put our heads together and came up with the idea of a contest. We planned on two major categories, Letter and Photo with both subdivided into smaller groups. After pooling our resources, we found that we could afford Star Sapphire rings (real), for the two major winners and ten sets of silk slack sets for the runners-up. The main idea is to try to get as many girls as possible to write and let the guys here know they haven't been forgotten.

The rules are simple: each entrant must be female, over 17, and send a snap-shot of herself if at all possible. Contest deadline is 15 Dec. 71. The categories are as follows;

LETTER CONTEST

- 1) General—judged on the basis of being interesting, informative, and friendly. Don't sweat the grammar, it's the idea that counts.
- 2) Humorous —An open category judged on the amount of chuckles it produces.
- 3) Catch-all-any letter that doesn't fit the other categories.
- 4) Mind blowers—Anything goes and the sky is the limit. Psych us out, gross us out, or generally blow our minds—if you can!!!

PHOTO CONTEST

- 1) Beauty—This is hard to judge, especially since beauty and sex appeal tend of over-lap, but we will judge strictly on "Good Looks" alone. We will create a separate category for sex appeal.
 - 2) Sex Appeal—since we promised this category, here it is. The winner will simply be the sexiest picture we receive.
 - 3) Humorous-Candid—The funniest photo wins.
 - 4) Mind Blowers —the "Fatherest Out" flick takes the prize. (This has to be a photo of the entrant herself and if you blow our minds, you will hold the record.)
- Also, a secondary contest for the most noble Child's toy sent to us will win a Ivory bracelet (real) and all toys will be donated to "Save the Children" hospital in Qui Whon, Viet Nam. These kids appreciate them and they can definitely use them as they have so little themselves.

All entries should be sent care of:
T.C. Parker
HHT, 7-17th AIR CAV
Republic of Viet Nam
APO 96226, San Francisco, Cal.

Sincerely, Tom Parker
P.S. We thank you for your help and support and sincerely hope that everyone gets in the act.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Photographer.....Carson Benson
Assistants.....Don Masengill
Grace Parker
Kathy Tyner

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Tim Sims Rise Up!

Taste is not a matter of personal opinion, and in fact has nothing to do with personal opinion, for taste includes all the cultural magnificence of the ages that has come before our present paltry lives. The individual does not develop taste, he rises to it. He rises to it by a humble yet eager attitude towards the learning of all that is great in our past, and by realizing the immaturity of his own preferences.

Last night I went to heaven, carried there by the hands of Agustin Anievas who baptized me in Mozart, Chopin, and Liszt in one of the finest concerts I have ever heard. I wanted to close my eyes and just listen, but the expressions on the face of Anievas as he played caught my eyes and held them open — enraptured — just as my ears and my soul were enraptured by his music.

The entire auditorium — the entire world — was the face and the hands of a man who took a keyboard and spoke the tongues of men and angels.

And then, it was over. The music only echoed, and the hands — those magnificent hands — were only shadows playing a mental piano. The burning excitement that had coursed through me was now only softly glowing, and I found I could breathe again.

And then I looked around. Out of the number of people who attended, there were a sad, scarce few who were students.

Once again, despite futile attempts to repress its grim caricature, the thought of mis-placed value priorities, or the total lack of any value system at all among my own generation, had to walk his dreary, foot-sore path through my mind; stepping on my thrill, stepping on the music, stepping on those hands ...

Realizing that this editorial privilege I enjoy each week should not be so subjective as this, accepting the certain criticism of snob, moralizer, etcetera ad nauseum, and acknowledging that this may not be appreciated by even those who feel as I do, I will still say that I am disgusted and sad that we cannot seem to grow up.

Furthermore, I am preaching without apology against the sin of betraying our own University Music Series for laziness, T.V. programs, or whatever else kept our student body from attending.

Santa cries 'Help!'

The New Hanover Volunteer Mental Health Association is sponsoring "Operation: Santa Claus," a project to aid the Richardson Building of Cherry Hospital. Urgently needed are clothes (especially larger women's sizes), toilet articles, magazine subscriptions, small appliances, games, books, handicrafts, money, and volunteer time. A collection box will be placed at the foot of the steps leading to the upper deck cafeteria. Please leave your contributions in this box. For more information, contact Joyce Dowless, 762-8644, or Kathy Tyner, 799-3706.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
JEWELRY & SILVER

"If it's from Kingoff's
it's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Ever had a sea-lion laugh at you?

The Cape Fear Wildlife Club held their November meeting Tuesday night, Nov. 2, 1971, in the library auditorium. Dr. Brauer, the guest speaker, gave a lecture on diving (porpoises, sea lions, sea elephants, etc.).

Most of his material was information which he gathered on a small island off the Pacific coast. This island was a vacated Coast Guard station which is now inhabited by several thousand sea elephants and sea lions.

By means of a film, Dr. Brauer showed and told about behavior and characteristics. Many humorous things were seen and Dr. Brauer said that you have never been laughed at until you have been laughed at by a sea lion.

Also discussed were porpoises and how their heartbeat slows down when they dive, allowing them to stay submerged for fifteen minutes. Part of another film showed how their swimming motions change in deep water.

The entire lecture was very interesting, and the Wildlife Club plans to have more lectures about related subjects in the near future. These lecture times will be announced by posters around campus.

Duke University announced it will abolish its requirement that most candidates for Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degree complete basic studies in foreign language.

The new policy will go into effect at the end of the current semester.

For many years, students in the arts and sciences have been requested to demonstrate a proficiency in one foreign language to qualify for a degree.

Nurses plan lecture

Gov. Bob Scott has declared November 6-12 Student Nurse Week. The UNC-W Student Nurse Association has planned several activities for Student Nurse Week. On November 11 at 1:00 in the library auditorium a lecture and discussion will be presented on the EKG (electro-cardiograph). The EKG, which is the chief device for diagnosing heart disease, monitors electrical activity of the heart. The lecture will be given by Friz Vandenberg of Britcher, Inc., a leading manufacturer of EKG machines. The public is invited and all graduate nurses are urged to attend. On November 12 the Student Nurse Association will send a delegation to the State Student Nurse Workshop in High Point, N.C. The topic for the meeting will be "Nursing 1980."

NEW Shipments!

Studs! Stars! Candles! Posters! Incense! THE Bookstore! Jackets! New Clothes!

For Sale
Every CAPITAL 8 Track BETALES Tape
From Meet The Beatles To Let It Be.

Real Collectors Items!
The Whole Set or Separately
Call 762-8521
Also, 8 Track BELAIR Tape Player.
Call 762-8521

If it's anything in clothing, Harvey Cannon, Ltd. Does it best.

"Your fashion store for men."
North 17 Shopping Center - Wilmington

TIMME PLAZA "DRAM TREE LOUNGE"

Presents

F R E E

- Laurel & Hardy
- W. C. Fields
- Our Gang
- Charlie Chaplain

F R E E

Film Festival

Fri. & Sat. Evening
7:30, 9:00, 10:30

Free Popcorn

Michelob on Draught

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Runny noses will have to run

To a UNCW resident, getting sick may pose a bigger problem than he or she may realize. With no infirmary on campus, students are left to their Fate, for most Wilmington doctors are bogged down with "old" patients, and to get an appointment may take weeks.

We strongly urge that an infirmary

and a part-time nurse be employed on campus. Even a simple set-up of asperin, throat lozenges, and band-aids would be an improvement over our present condition.

With 400 resident students, it's way past time to "get prepared" for them to live here.

Feedback!

a weekly column devoted to campus opinions

We need bicycle paths

By DIANN C. ANEST

Do you ride a bike? Don't you wish you had somewhere to ride other than streets A, B, C, and D?

We need bicycle paths! As students, we have no access to any other part of Wilmington, because of one thing — South College Road. Hugh MacRae Park is beautiful and open to everyone — except student cyclists; we can't reach it. For some obscure reason some inept engineer decided to bottleneck the fast four-lane from Oleander to Wilshire into a faster (and suicidal for the cyclist) two-lane running in front of UNCW. It could prove fatal to a person in a car to try to cross South College Road, much less one on a bicycle! PROJECT ENVIRONMENT has a project underway to try to establish facilities for cyclists. One major part of this project is an investigation to see what can be done to help alleviate the South College Road situation.

Another investigation is underway to determine which residential streets may possibly be designated as "Bikeways." These would have very low speed limits and would be posted for use principally by cyclists. Effort is also being made to have a bicycle declared a legal vehicle, i.e., it would be bound by the same laws as automobiles.

There is no logical reason why Wilmington should not become the first major southern city to provide such progressive facilities. Just recently, Mayor John Lindsay of New York declared bicycles to be legal vehicles, and several boroughs of his city to be major bikeways, including 5th Avenue of downtown Manhattan! This was done almost as a necessity — hundreds of Manhattanites have said "To Hell!" with the costly, time-consuming commuter trains and have taken to riding bicycles to work. Wilmington pollution (due to automobiles) becomes as serious as in New York City. If bicycle paths were available not only to UNCW students but to every citizen of this county, Wilmington could show every other southern city that we have a pollution solution.

If you are interested in taking part in this effort, call: PROJECT ENVIRONMENT, 791-9277.

Who's incompetent?

By H.B. REHDER, JR.

When I first read Clyde Farmer's article, I was amused, and to be quite honest, surprised.

First of all, Farmer is a bit late to be complaining of the recent elections that happened at the beginning of September. Since then, we've had another, and this one went fairly well. Of course there was the first one.

Well, what can we say? You can't have opinions about the truth. Sure, we made mistakes, but we came through. I think the board, Board of Elections — Ed.) followed up in good order. I honestly believe that we did a good job the second time. Isn't one of the best ways for a man to prove his worth to make mistakes and then come through in the clutch?

Now what about all this talk about incompetency. To begin with, it's coming from one of the most incompetent, and rather vain men on campus. Clyde K. Farmer is chairman of the Entertainment Committee. And they're the ones that scheduled Goose Creek and promptly lost $300 for the school. But he was given a second chance. He was allowed to schedule The Dirt this is your chance to publicly express your opinion — use it!

Band, and quickly lost $700! That's over a thousand bucks we've lost through one man's inefficiency. Well, what we say? You can't have opinions about the truth.

We will not vote

By Richard H. Powell, Jr.

We are a nation of "free" people, at present. How long will this freedom last? Are we to let the extreme right or extreme left control? These are the questions over which we as youths and answer.

In the state of North Carolina over 750,000 people are considered "new" voters. Of these new voters only 315,000 will register for the May 6, 1972 primary; yet more frightful is the fact that only 42 per cent of these 174 to 23 year old voters will vote at all. When both figures are weighted we are no longer a controlling political force but a small minority.

We as the new voters can thank Dr. Eugene Grace, candidate for the U.S. Senate, for sparking the flame that started the fires in our state legislature. Without Grace's effort we would not have the absentee ballot or the primary on May 6, 1972. In my conversations with Grace he stated that his thanks would be received when the young voters go to the poll and exercise their constitutional privilege. Gene Grace then said that the youth of today are the leaders of today.

We have the power to control; now we must unite to obtain the goals that will allow America to remain a nation that is strong, free, and compassionate.

WE LIKE TO 'SPOON FEED' OUR AUDIENCE

CPS

Poignant letter raises chuckles

(Editors note: Sometimes our daily mail gets interesting, and between the advertisements, exchange papers, and political soap-ops, an occasional "goodie!" is nestled. This is one we just couldn't read without sharing)

Greetings from sunny Viet Nam

We would like to request your help in solving one of our most pressing morale problems! One of the most depressing things a G.I. can experience is returning from "Mail Call" empty handed. A few of us came up with an idea that might possibly solve that problem. Obviously, a G.I. would rather receive a letter from a relative, honest to goodness, red blooded, round eyed American FEMALE than anyone else. Now, our problem boils down to this, how do we get enough girls from back home to write to us? Especially enough girls to go around the quarter to half million guys presently stationed in Viet Nam.

We put our heads together and came up with the idea of a contest. We planned on two major categories, Letter and Photo with both subdivided into smaller groups. After pooling our resources, we found that we could afford Star Sapphire rings (real), for the two major winners and ten sets of silk slack sets for the runners-up. The main idea is to try to get as many girls as possible to write and let the guys here know they haven't been forgotten.

The rules are simple: each entrant must be female, over 17, and send a snap-shot of herself if at all possible. Contest deadline is 15 Dec. 71. The categories are as follows;

LETTER CONTEST

- 1) General—judged on the basis of being interesting, informative, and friendly. Don't sweat the grammar, it's the idea that counts.
- 2) Humorous—An open category judged on the amount of chuckles it produces.
- 3) Catch-all—any letter that doesn't fit the other categories.
- 4) Mind blowers—Anything goes and the sky is the limit. Paych us out, gross us out, or generally blow our minds—if you can!!!

PHOTO CONTEST

- 1) Beauty—This is hard to judge, especially since beauty and sex appeal tend of over-lap, but we will judge strictly on "Good Looks" alone. We will create a separate category for sex appeal.
- 2) Sex Appeal—since we promised this category, here it is. The winner will simply be the sexiest picture we receive.
- 3) Humorous-Candid—The funniest photo wins.
- 4) Mind Blowers—the "Fatherest Out" flick takes the prize. (This has to be a photo of the entrant herself and if you blow our minds, you will hold the record.)

Also, a secondary contest for the most noble Child's toy sent to us will win a Ivory bracelet (real) and all toys will be donated to "Save the Children" hospital in Qui Whon, Viet Nam. These kids appreciate them and they can definitely use them as they have so little themselves.

All entries should be sent care of:

T.C. Parker
HHT, 7-17th AIR CAV
Republic of Viet Nam
APO 96228, San Francisco, Cal.

Sincerely, Tom Parker

P.S. We thank you for your help and support and sincerely hope that everyone gets in the act.

The seahawk

UNCW, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers
Photographer.....Carson Benson
Assistants.....Don Massengill
Grace Parker
Kathy Tyner

The seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all works is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Work should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Tim Sims

Rise Up!

Taste is not a matter of personal opinion, and in fact has nothing to do with personal opinion, for taste includes all the cultural magnificence of the ages that has come before our present paltry lives. The individual does not develop taste, he rises to it. He rises to it by a humble yet eager attitude towards the learning of all that is great in our past, and by realizing the immaturity of his own preferences.

Last night I went to heaven, carried there by the hands of Agustin Anievas who baptized me in Mozart, Chopin, and Liszt in one of the finest concerts I have ever heard. I wanted to close my eyes and just listen, but the expressions on the face of Anievas as he played caught my eyes and held them open — enraptured — just as my ears and my soul were enraptured by his music.

The entire auditorium — the entire world — was the face and the hands of a man who took a keyboard and spoke the tongues of men and angels.

And then, it was over. The music only echoed, and the hands — those magnificent hands — were only shadows playing a mental piano. The burning excitement that had coursed through me was now only softly glowing, and I found I could breathe again.

And then I looked around. Out of the number of people who attended, there were a sad, scarce few who were students.

Once again, despite futile attempts to repress its grim caricature, the thought of mis-placed value priorities, or the total lack of any value system at all among my own generation, had to walk his dreary, foot-sore path through my mind; stepping on my thrill, stepping on the music, stepping on those hands...

Realizing that this editorial privilege I enjoy each week should not be so subjective as this, accepting the certain criticism of snob, moralizer, etcetera ad nauseum, and acknowledging that this may not be appreciated by even those who feel as I do, I will still say that I am disgusted and sad that we cannot seem to grow up.

Furthermore, I am preaching without apology against the sin of betraying our own University Music Series for laziness, T.V. programs, or whatever else kept our student body from attending.

The New Hanover Volunteer Mental Health Association is sponsoring "Operation: Santa Claus," a project to aid the Richardson Building of Cherry Hospital. Urgently needed are clothes (especially larger women's sizes), toilet articles, magazine subscriptions, small appliances, games, books, handicrafts, money, and volunteer time. A collection box will be placed at the foot of the steps leading to the upper deck cafeteria. Please leave your contributions in this box. For Ever had a sea-lion laugh at you?

The Cape Fear Wildlife Club held their November meeting Tuesday night, Nov. 2, 1971, in the library auditorium. Dr. Brauer, the guest speaker, gave a lecture on diving (porpoises, sea lions, sea elephants, etc.).

Most of his material was information which he gathered on a small island off the Pacific coast. This island was a vacated Coast Guard station which is now inhabited by several thousand sea elephants and sea lions.

By means of a film, Dr. Brauer showed and told about behavior and characteristics. Many humorous things were seen and Dr. Brauer said that you have never been laughed at until you have been laughed at by a sea lion.

Also discussed were porpoises and how their heartbeat slows down when they dive, allowing them to stay submerged for fifteen minutes. Part of another film showed how their swimming motions change in deep water.

The entire lecture was very interesting, and the Wildlife Club plans to have more lectures about related subjects in the near future. These lecture times will be announced by posters around campus.

Duke University announced it will abolish its requirement that most candidates for Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degree complete basic studies in foreign language.

The new policy will go into effect at the end of the current semester.

For many years, students in the arts and sciences have been requested to demonstrate a proficiency in one foreign language to qualify for a degree.

Nurses plan lecture

Gov. Bob Scott has declared November 6-12 Student Nurse Week. The UNC-W Student Nurse Association has planned several activities for Student Nurse Week. On November 11 at 1:00 in the library auditorium a lecture and discussion will be presented on the EKG (electro-cardiograph). The EKG, which is the chief device for diagnosing heart disease, monitors electrical activity of the heart. The lecture will be given by Friz Vandenberg of Britcher, Inc., a leading manufacturer of EKG machines. The public is invited and all graduate nurses are urged to attend. On November 12 the Student Nurse Association will send a delegation to the State Student Nurse Workshop in High Point, N.C. The topic for the meeting will be "Nursing 1980."

Santa cries 'Help!'

more information, contact Joyce Dowless, 762-8644, or Kathy Tyner, 799-3708.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON CLASS RINGS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

For Sale
Every CAPITAL 8 Track BETALES Tape
From Meet The Beatles To Let It Be.
Real Collectors Items!
The Whole Set or Separately
Call 762-8521
Also, 8 Track BELAIR Tape Player.
Call 762-8521

If it's anything in clothing, Harvey Cannon, Ltd. Does it best.

"Your fashion store for men."
North 17 Shopping Center - Wilmington

NEW Shipments!
studs! Candles! Posters!
Incense THE Bookstore!
Jackets! New Clothes!

TIMME PLAZA
"DRAM TREE LOUNGE"
Presents
F ● Laurel & Hardy F
R ● W. C. Fields R
E ● Our Gang E
E ● Charlie Chaplain E
Film Festival
Fri. & Sat. Evening
7:30, 9:00, 10:30
Free Popcorn
Michelob on Draught

Freshman candidates face student apathy

Freshmen candidates presented their platforms at a special class meeting October 21 in Kenan Auditorium. Out of 546 first year students an estimated 0.064 per cent of the freshman class, in addition to approximately 30 non-freshmen, were present to hear speeches by six of the candidates.

"After two weeks, so many people are still wondering if the Board of Elections is still around. We are!" remarked Henry Rehder, chairman of the board, as he opened the assembly. Jim Arnold, presidential candidate, stated that the office was not one of prestige alone. "It's working for the ideas freshmen have. I'm not going to promise anything — although I have a lot of good ideas, like changing some of the academic requirements — because these ideas need backing and support by all of the senators and class officers."

With strong vocal support from Pi Kappa Phi, Jim Wishon expressed his goals for Freshman President as "raising spirit in school politics and achieving better communication between the SGA and the students."

John Johnson, although having been contacted, did not appear to express his presidential platform.

None of the three-vice-presidential candidates have held student offices previously. Robert Thomas asked for "a chance to work for the freshman class and help. "I'd like to try, if you'll give me the chance, because I've never been in the SGA before," stated Mike Decowski. Speaking for E.B. Evans, who was unable to be present. Kathy Lowmore said "he wants change to get the ineffective senators and officers out of the SGA. He upholds UNC-W as part of the consolidated University."

No secretarial or senatorial position was presented.

"Maybe 0.2 per cent of the student body participates in SGA activities," concluded Ed Boylan, SGA president. "I hate to sound pessimistic, but until the dependability quotient is improved, we'll continue to have sloppy jobs and failure. I'm asking you to develop the opportunities we have here."

Henry Rehder reminded the voters of election procedures, introduced the Board of Elections, and called for questions. Receiving none, the meeting adjourned.

Debate team members (l-r) Patti McCombie, Pete Epperly, and Bryan Fann discuss the advantages of the negative approach. (Staff photo)

UNC-W Debaters attend Chapel Hill tournament

On the weekend of Oct. 15-17, Debate Team members Pattie McCombie and Bryan Fann competed in an eight round tournament at Chapel Hill.

The two debaters participated in three rounds Friday, four Saturday, and one Sunday, winning four and losing four.

The issue for debate concerned the amount of control that should be imposed upon gathering and utilization of information by government agencies about United States citizens. This topic, chosen by the American Forensic Association, will be debated by the team throughout this year.

Regarding the Chapel Hill contest, Bryan Fann commented, "This was a very significant tournament, because, for the first time, we competed on the varsity level, which was quite a jump from the novice division."

With varsity experience under their belts, Mrs. Betty

Jo Welch, team coach, feels that the group's prospects for a good season look extremely promising.

Besides the Chapel Hill tourney, the team also competed in a six round contest at Wake Forest this past weekend. Results unknown at press time.

In the Oct. 28 freshman primary elections, approximately one-third of the class voted to eliminate the third candidates.

Jim Arnold and Jim Wishon will compete for presidential office on Nov. 4, general election day, while either E.B. Evans or Robert Thomas for the vice-president's position.

Ed Boylan, SGA Pres., stated "This election's turn-out was excellent!"

Boylan seeks attorney general

An attorney general for UNC-W students is being sought by Ed Boylan, SGA Pres. Those students interested in upholding the laws and rights granted to the students in the Constitution are eligible.

Two copies of a personal character description and statement of why one wants this position should be given, in person, to Pres. Boylan by Nov. 10.

APO News

A recent APO undertaking was that of giving support to the United Fund drive. The brothers helped promote this local campaign by going from door to door and soliciting donations.

The fraternity is presently concerned with aiding the physically handicapped in getting around campus. Besides assisting these people in moving from one class to another, APO is also making inquiries to the administration regarding elevators and inclines for those buildings that currently lack them.

A future project that the group is considering is that of setting several benches in front of the library and chemistry-physics buildings. Also being discussed is a bicycle race, which would give the campus residents an entertaining time and in addition raise money for a worthy cause.

Alpha Phi Omega's foundation rests on the leadership and the willingness of each brother to serve his fellow man in a constructive manner which will better the world he lives in. Those male students who share these same ideals are urged to contact Jim Wentz at 799-1372 for more information.

A security guard of a different nature looms over the campus....

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

Tuesday
is College Night

at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
At The Public House

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS---PART-TIME. $25

GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL

POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,

PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING

CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 9

Tues. Nov. 16, 1971

Arnold elected

In the Nov. 5 freshman elections, Jim Arnold won the office of president and E.B. Evans became vice president. Also in the balloting, Elizabeth Bufington, Billy Hammond, Preston Maulsby, Brad Walls, and Becky Weathers were voted into the senate. No secretary was announced.

In an after-victory interview, Jim Arnold commented on his duties as president for the coming year and expressed some thoughts on the student government in general.

Regarding his obligations as head of the freshman class, Arnold explained, "My main responsibilities will be to work with student government leaders and, in addition, guide the freshman senators in passing needed legislation. Commenting on his reasons for seeking office, the new president said he ran in the hope that, if elected, he could improve the effectiveness of the student government and also remedy some undesirable conditions on campus.

Asked to name a few of these conditions Arnold replied, "One of the most pressing things needing to be done is that of rewriting our constitution. Also, I would like to see a change in the curriculum, specifically, eliminating the foreign language requirement.

Finally, we need to find ways of bringing the student government closer to the people it serves."

Who doesn't like to get all bundled up and walk barefoot on the beach? (staff photo by jcd)

UNCW Debaters meet Annapolis, Harvard

On Oct. 29-31 at Wake Forest, debaters Patti McCombie and Bryan Fann competed on the varsity level with three noted schools — West Point, Annapolis, and Harvard. After upsetting both military academies, they nearly succeeded in defeating the Ivy League team.

McCombie and Fann debated both the affirmative and negative sides of the question concerning the amount of control that should be imposed upon the gathering and utilization of information by government agencies about United States citizens. The team will continually use this topic for debate throughout the year.

Members active at the novice level were Bill Brooks, Pete Epperly, Keith Hales, and Lee Hoffman. These four debaters vied with teams from Duke, the University of Tennessee, Pembroke, Randolph Macon, and Clarion (Pa.), managing to win a majority of the time and losing only to Duke and Tennessee.

Asked if the team needed to improve in any particular area, Mrs. Betty Ho Welch, coach, replied, "We will have to strengthen our affirmative cases in order to make the negative side less effective in breaking down our arguments."

Generalizing on this statement, Keith Hales added: "The only real way to get ahead in debate is through practice in actual competition. After coming face to face with the opposition time after time, you gradually are able to work the flaws out of your case."

The teams will field an 8-man squad Nov. 12 at the University of South Carolina, competing again in both the varsity and novice divisions.

Student Tutorial Program

Math assistants needed

On Nov. 4 in the Pub, an organizational meeting was held for the purpose of starting a tutorial program designed to help those who lack a good background in any particular subject.

Students willing to tutor and those desiring tutoring were invited to attend, but only the latter type of individuals showed up—all needing help in math.

The preliminary discussion centered around certain math instructors, with various students informing program innovators Dea Beach and Ed Boylan as to the lack of communication between themselves and their professors.

Stemming from this discussion, a suggestion was made concerning a teacher evaluation program. Boylan remarked that he and the student government would take the matter into consideration.

Another proposal brought out at the meeting was that of recruiting members of the Math Club and other organizations for tutorial purposes. Also submitted was the idea of enlisting the aid of professors from the non-math departments.

Regarding the qualities desired in a good tutor, Beach remarked, "He must be a person who has patience and the willingness to cooperate."

Boylan added that such an individual must possess a good amount of perception—in other words, to be able to understand where the student is having trouble.

Those interested in this program are urged to contact Ed Boylan or Dea Beach for more information.

Pub Now Open!

'till 9 p.m. Monday - Thursday

'till 11 p.m. Friday and from 1 p.m. - 11 p.m. Saturday pinball, color t.v., ping-pong

(coming soon! play "free" pool)

SRO selects cast

By DON MASSENGILL
Rehearsals for The Good Woman of Setzuan, by Bertolt Brecht, creator of epic theatre, are now in progress. Directed by Anne Fitzgibbon, the play will be presented Dec. 8-11 in the SRO Theatre in Kenan Hall.

The play's theme is the problem of how good can survive in an evil world. Revolving around the misfortunes of a prostitute named Shen Te, the play suggests that, ironically enough, evil supports good.

Given a thousand dollars by three gods as a reward for her generosity, Shen Te attempts to mend her ways. She buys a tobacco shop, but because of her generosity is unable to make a financial success of it. Progressing from there, the plot involves the entrance of Shen Te's more ruthless cousin Shui Ta, who comes to manage the shop. Here the plot becomes more complicated.

Describing the play's "pure theatricality" as fun to work with, Miss Fitzgibbon said the play is characterized by shifts from scenes which are unashamedly maudlin to scenes which destroy the effect of the maudlin scenes.

Playing the leading role as Shen Te will be Rosalie Hilburn. Other cast members include Doc Clay as Wong, the water seller; Bob Peterson, First God; Ed Danilowicz, Second God; Mark Wilson, Third God; Pat Haines, Mrs. Shin and also the Old Whore; Randy Mercer, Yang Sun; Linda Goldman, Mrs. Yang, Yang Sun's mother; Vicki Daum, Mrs. Mi Tzu; Billy McCarty, unemployed man; Tim Wesner, policeman; Wes Knappe, carpenter; and Claudia Madeley, old woman.

The list of characters also includes a family of eight consisting of a husband, played by Art Madeley; wife, Leslie Jenkins; brother, Terry Holley; sister-in-law, Kathleen Fitzgibbon; grandfather, Eddie White; nephew, Frank Stanley; niece, Debra Arnsen; and Boy, Ira Jacobs.

Hate to study?

Read one more page....

dependent study project.

According to Dr. Davidson, the main goal of the program will be conditioning students to study even when they don't want to.

Regarding the chances for success of the project, Caulder explained, "Past research has shown that the methods used in this program will prove effective providing that the participant follows directions."

These methods center around getting the student to read more pages in his textbook each succeeding day.

The participant will be required to study his material five days per week. On the starting day, when he tires of reading, he will look over one more page and stop. The second day will be the same as the first except that the extra amount of study will increase to two pages, and so on. Gradually, it is hoped, the student won't mind spending an hour per day on the particular subject he is concerned with.

Pertaining to the aim of the project, Dr. Davidson commented, "The desired end result is that by the process of conditioning the participant will study without having to make himself do so."

Anyone interested in the program is requested to get in touch with either Lynda Caulder or Dr. Davidson in the psychology department.

Fair Weather Beach

by Timothy C. Sims, 1st place

Cold winter nights
With only Orion
To see that we were loving each other
Found us walking together.

But summer days
With spying Sol
Know that you were playing the harlot
Round with all the fun children.

And now that they're gone
—o weeping mistress —
Will you say you are mine again
As your breaking waves muffle the Sound of our talking together?

Within the spirit lies a strange land where quiet thoughts grow into reflections of oneself. From these lands comes poetry like the above, which captured the second annual Chancellor's Poetry Contest. From Dr. Powles English class, the two lower poems show another sample of local creativity.

Oh Jesus, Did You Ever Sing the Blues

by Craig Martin, 2nd Place

Oh Jesus, did you ever sing the blues,
Or drown fading hope
In boot legged gutted booze,
Or send mad dame to Mama
When she slept out on you?
Did you ever feel so horny
That making love meant to screw,
And beauty looked perverted
And sin was pretty too?

When faithless Peter hailed you
On Galilean Sea
Did you want to let him down
Saying why do you lean on me?
Did you ever want to curse your father,
Finding strength in his enemy,
Or think that Hell is for the strong and Heaven for the weak?

When they put your name in lights
Did you want credit for the show?
Did critics ask you questions
Seeking answers you don't know?
Could Judas have been your friend?
Did you understand his plight?
Was he a poor burdened soul
You might have learned to like?
Oh Jesus if you've sung the blues
Then sing them once for me.
Why you are what you are
When I'm all I can be.
Help me with your song of woe
To bear your Calvary.

yoU

And so the little man chuckled and ^cr^awled back into his box and contemplated how he could revise his world.

He could flip the box over but that would be too drastic.
He could turn the box on its side
but it might fall on the left.

So he placed a mushroom on his head and took to watching the walls age.

Cynthia Cameron

IX

by Laviece C. Ward, 3rd place

The richest loving time is fall with its Noons tinged with summer's heat and Mornings frosted with winter's chill.
Then comes a time of double ripening
Of flesh and fruit as winter's shadow clothes
The branches in a blaze of mourning.
A splendor remembered in bleak winter
As the starving limbs scratch against on
One another in the bitter gales.
This season sanctions the savorings of desire
In the lingering days and in each other.
We lie together in searing sweetness
and
Bid fair to rival with our love
The consummation of the death of the year.

If you have pen and ink sketches, poetry, or other self expressions you would like to share,
bring them to us.

It is coming.

I cannot stop it; I no longer try.

It always wins.

It comes carefully and slowly

Like a lioness stalking her prey.

It circles over me, closer and closer

Like a hawk watching a rabbit.

It overwhelms me with agony;

Its cruel swords pierce me.

Tears fill my eyes, memories fill my mind.

And Loneliness has its victory.

Kathleen Pierce

Tim Sims

Conformity

By TIM SIMS

The social pressure to fit into some sort of mold in order to be accepted is something everyone has to contend with. Each person must recognize the pressures exerted upon himself, and decide where to conform and where to resist; accepting the consequences of his actions in his own conscience.

Even the so-called drop outs from society become clannish in their own right, for man is gregarious and desires the comfort of his own kind.

Some social pressure is good, and some conformity is necessary for each individual, else we could not live in a free society where abiding by certain laws guarantees the welfare of all. No man-made system of government can exist unless the greatest number of the governed conform to certain precepts.

But on another level, the social pressure of unspoken law or custom among groups within the larger society is often more formidable a Goliath than written law. Some behavioral psychologists, and especially sociologists, have had a field day with this subject, largely just cataloging their data.

However, we do not need to read our scholarly data — gatherers to recognize and understand the pressure on our own lives, for we face it everyday. The degree to which we conform is ostensibly our decision, yet if we knew ahead of time the emptiness and even danger we often let ourselves in for, we would be very careful data-gatherers and interpreters ourselves.

On a college campus, there are different groups which exert their own kind of pressure on their own members. All of us associate with some kind of group, and we do certain things, say certain things, and act in certain ways in order to be a part of the group. No one is exempt, none of us is his "own man". There just isn't any such creature.

There is basically nothing unnatural or wrong with this state of affairs. However, there is something very unnatural and harmful to the individual who tries to be something he is not, who attempts to be accepted in a group where the necessary conformity he exercises is against his beliefs, and, in fact, plays a role which is not and never will be himself.

It may seem alright for now, it may seem the cool thing to do, or we may not even think seriously about our newly acquired way of doing things; but if psychology has anything to say to us at all, it is that our past plays a large part in determining our future. We are making — and have been — our future lives and establishing our future mental health now.

We owe it, therefore, to ourselves to closely and honestly examine what we are conforming to and why, and to make some responsible, mature decisions concerning this.

Don't trade what you are for what you can't be.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers

TIMME PLAZA

"DRAM TREE LOUNGE"

Presents

- Laurel & Hardy
 - W. C. Fields
 - Our Gang
 - Charlie Chaplain
- Film Festival

Fri. & Sat. Evening
7:30, 9:00, 10:30

Free Popcorn

Michelob on Draught

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Tuesday
is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
Be the Public House

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25
GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL
POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,
PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING
CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

When you run out • • • Run in • • •

ZIP
MART

- Wine
- Champagne
- Soft Drinks
- Mixers
- The Coldest Beer In Town

OPEN 7-11

CATERING TO UNC-W

Co-Editors explain why

Fledgling solicits staff

Recently the Fledgling year book staff has been approaching all staff members of this university to solicit subscriptions for the 1972 year book, however, there has been reports that our year book staff has not made it clear why we are doing this. Perhaps the following explanation can clear this up. This year the Fledgling was appropriated about $7,000. The price alone just to publish the book is $10,000. This leaves a shortage of $3,000 plus the additional cost of equipment, paper, film, and postage; estimated at around $1,000. To operate with a deficit of $4,000 isn't easy so along with our advertising program ($2,000 we hope), we needed some sort of revenue input to help reduce this deficit. A successful subscription campaign would almost certainly pull us out. The cost of printing this book is $9.78.

The cost of a subscription is $10.00. We are hoping that the UNC-W staff will participate in this program and assist us in making this one of the finest year books ever published at UNC-W.

I personally would like to thank those who have already pledged their subscription and I appeal to those who have not to please do so. A representative will be in touch with you or we can be reached in the Pub downstairs or at 791-9055.

Christian worship services begun by dorm students

Sunday, November 7, at 11:00 a.m., informal Christian worship services were held for all interested students in the new dorm. After some singing (accompanied by guitar) of folk-religious songs, a brief devotion was brought by Tim Sims, who conducts the services. The devotion was followed by discussion and prayer.

Tim Sims and a dorm resident, Chuck Smith, decided that there should be some worship opportunities on campus for students which would be more informal and less like the established church, so this effort was begun.

Worship services will be held each Sunday at 11:00 in the lobby of the dorm, and any student interested, whether a dorm resident or not, is invited to attend.

Sisters raises funds

Alpha Chi Sigma, service sorority, formally began its year by holding a rush for prospective members in the student services building his victory are extended.

TKE's claim a 3-1 record in intramural football.

The brothers and pledges held their annual Bowery Ball this past weekend at Orton Plantation. Climbing to the top of a 500 ft. fire tower, boating and the usual TKE hell-raising made the Ball a huge success.

Sept. 7. Barbara Morse, vice president, spoke on the goals of the organization and told what was expected of those who pledged it.

Preceding the rush, the sorority assisted at the start of the fall semester by supervising a used book sale and also helped dorm residents move into their rooms.

More recently, the group served at a faculty dinner, solicited donations for the United Fund, and held a part for those children collecting for UNICEF.

Future projects of the sorority include fund raising for muscular dystrophy and distribution of Thanksgiving baskets to the needy.

TKE donates blood

Recently the brothers and pledges of Tau Kappa Epsilon united to donate a total of 15 pints of blood for an operation on Gary Osteen, brother of Gayland Osteen, pledge. Gary was involved in a serious accident requiring the amputation of his leg.

Jim Arnold, TKE pledge, in the last election carried the freshman vote for the presidency of the Freshman Class, and on the Nov. 8th meeting was sworn in along with the rest of the elected officers. Congratulations on

the "everything" column

The SEAHAWK needs you!—especially if you're nosy and like to write, if you have experience in newspaper journalism, if you want to improve UNC-W. If any of these descriptions fit you (or if you have a better idea), come by and see us. Jane Divine, Editor, upstairs Pub.

P.E. Majors Club, 7:30 p.m., November 16, Back Gym.

Notice to all organizations on campus: The Fledgling cannot take your pictures until we have your name, organization, and date of a meeting or activity convenient for both of us. Please come by the Fledgling office—downstairs Pub—and place your name, date, organization, and if possible a phone number where we can reach you, on our calendar posted on our bulletin board. It will either be inside the office or right our front.

Seniors who had their pictures taken for the yearbook and did not fill out a senior information sheet, please come by the Fledgling office located downstairs in the Pub.

Psychology Club meeting: November 16, 4:00 p.m., E-213.

"OPERATION: Santa Claus" needs your support. North Pole Stations: bookstore, cafeteria, K-121. Christmas gifts needed for patients at Cherry Hospital

TONIGHT!

The Committee

"outrageously anti - everything!"

8 p.m. Kenan Aud.

25¢

Season Tickets
Still Available
13 Movies $1.00

Engagement Rings

Princess Rings

Graduation Rings

Birthstone Rings

Bulovia Watches

Pendants

Cuff Link Sets

Pierced Earrings

Samsonite Luggage

Stereo Systems

CONVENIENT
CREDIT

Read's

Front and
Princess Sts.

CREPE

$18⁰⁰

from Payne's
WILMINGTON, N. C.

DOWNTOWN

AND

HANOVER CENTER

Seniors and Freshmen! Nominations for secretary positions in both classes will be accepted through Wednesday, Nov. 24. A Special election will be held in Kenan Hall, Dec. 1, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. ID Card will be checked.

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 10

Tues. Nov. 23, 1971

Register to vote while you're home on vacation. "Unless we deliver on Election Day, the politicians will never meet our demands."
—Charles Jefferies
Campaign for Young Voters

UMS presents lute and song duet tuesday night

By WAYNE ROGERS

Ann Perret, mezzo soprano, and Rodrigo de Zayas, string instrumentalist will present a Renaissance of Lute Song tonight at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Admission is by I.D. Card.

The internationally acclaimed duo are appearing as a part of the 1971-72 University Music Series.

This is the first American tour for the duo, and a quite successful one. Three consecutive sell-out performances at Lincoln Center in New York in late October is proof enough.

The program consists of Renaissance and Baroque music (16th-mid 18th century) by Spanish, English, French and Italian composers. Among them are J.S. Bach, Dowland, Planson, and Trecobaldi.

Aside from the duo efforts, de Zayas will perform solo on seven authentic stringed instruments of the lute-viol family, most of which have never been heard before. Included are the soprano, tenor and bass lutes, German Baroque lute, soprano, tenor, and bass viennels and the theorba.

The entire concept undertaken by Perret-de Zayas is unique in that the music is performed in the original style, from original tablature and on the original instruments of the Renaissance and Baroque periods. Much music being performed today from those musical eras has been transcribed instead of being presented in its original form.

This extraordinary musical experience is the result of years of intensive research, and of direct work on the original texts by both performers.

The duo first performed in 1968 and have since toured world-wide.

Persian lamp completes collection

A Persian lamp dating between 586 and 330 B.C.E. (Before the Common Era) has been added to the study museum of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington to complete the ancient lamp series.

Dr. Bernard Boyd of the UNC-Chapel Hill Department of Religion purchased the Persian lamp during the summer in Jerusalem. It was the only missing link in the series from the Chalcolithic Age (4000-3100 B.C.E.) to the Byzantine Period (330-640 C.E.).

By looking at the lamps in order of their development, one can see how the Hebrews were influenced in the various stages of their history.

During the Chalcolithic Age, when the Hebrews were in Ur, their lamps resembled round pottery bowls. In the time of the Patriarchs (Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph), the lamps were fashioned with four indentions.

During the Middle Bronze II period when the Hebrews were in Egypt, their lamps were almost round in shape with only a small indentation for the wick. For the Late Bronze Age through Iron Age II, the Hebrews continued to define the wick end of their lamps.

The Persian lamp, dating from the return of the Jewish exiles to Jerusalem from Babylon in the 6th century B.C.E., clearly shows Babylonian influences. Instead of the previously round-shaped lamps, the Jews now fashioned lamps almost rectangular in shape with the wick and strongly defined.

From the Hellenistic to the Byzantine period, the lamps changed radically from the earlier models. Formerly open vessels with indentions for the wicks, they now resembled covered bowls with circular holes in the top and with the wick end extended on a neck-like projection from the lamp.

The lamp collection is but one part of the UNC-W study museum. Dr. Gerald Shinn, Curator of the collections, said, "The idea behind the study museum is to create a collection of authentic articles from the great cultures of the world which will bring history alive for the students of UNC-W."

Among the museum's other prized possessions is a replica of the goddess Anath (Asarte) from the Tigris-Euphrates valley, dated about 3500 B.C.E. It is considered the best known replica of this goddess in the United States today. "The 'jewel' of the collection is a 5,500-year-old Ishtar, or love goddess," according to Dr. B. Frank Hall, chairman of the UNC-W Department of Philosophy and Religion.

Rodrigo de Zayas and Anne Perret are the latest participants in the University Music Series.

OIS slates activities

Organizations desiring the use of campus facilities for meetings will make their initial requests for the use of such facilities to the Office of Information Services (OIS), according to a new policy memorandum from Chancellor William H. Wagoner.

This policy is conceived to lessen confusion in the scheduling of events which require the use of campus facilities.

The initial request will be routed from the OIS to the appropriate administrative officers for a decision. The person making the request will be informed of any charges set by the University for the use of its facilities. The appropriate person will be notified by OIS of the scheduled event, and a list of scheduled events will be published weekly by the OIS and circulated among concerned persons.

The initial request should include the following information: name of the organization and the person making the request, nature of event and speaker, date and time of event, facility requested, expected attendance, who may attend, admission charged.

Games to be broadcast

The Seahawks open the 1971-72 basketball season on Sat., Dec. 4, when they travel to Boone to meet Appalachian State University. The first home game on Monday, Dec. 6, when Baptist College of Charleston, South Carolina, visits Hanover Hall. All home games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

UNC-W students will be admitted free on presentation of ID Cards. All other students can buy tickets for one dollar. Adults, tickets are $1.50. Season tickets, good for all 11 home games, are priced at $12 for adults and $6 for students; and are on sale now at the gym.

All 23 games will be broadcast by radio station WFMD-FM, giving Seahawk fans the opportunity to hear the team in action for the first time in several years.

Handling the play-by-play will be Jerry Morrison, the stations sports director and a former college basketball performer himself. He will be assisted by Jim Carr, information director at UNC-W.

"We are very pleased with the arrangement," said Bill Brooks, UNC-W athletic director and head coach of the Seahawks. "WFMD-FM will give our team exposure over a wide area, and the broadcast will especially benefit our students and fans who are not able to follow us when we play on the road."

WFMD-FM broadcasts at 100.9 on the FM band, and covers Southeastern North Carolina and the northeastern area of South Carolina. The first broadcast of the season will originate in Boone, N.C. on Sat. Dec. 4, when the Seahawks open their schedule against Appalachian State University of the Southern Conference.

Debaters tie for first place

On the weekend of Nov. 12-14 at the University of South Carolina, the Debate Team tied for first place in the novice division and advanced to the varsity semi-finals before bowing to Kentucky.

Regarding the exploits of the group, Dr. Merrill Christopher, chairman of the humanities division at USC, declared, "The signs are evident that UNC-W will be one of the teams to beat in our region. Although newcomers, they exhibit excellent coaching and seasoned debate techniques."

Further recognition was accorded by Chancellor Wagoner, who held a reception for the group Oct. 15 at which time he commended the debaters for their accomplishments.

In the area of individual achievement, novices Lee Hoffman and Keith Hales both received best speaker trophies for eloquence in case presentation.

Joining them in novice competition were Janice Asbell and Pete Epperly, while Pattie McCombie and Bryan Fann continued as the team's varsity debaters.

The tournament judges, drawn from the ranks of participating coaches, used several criteria in deciding the winner of each round.

Some points considered were the ability of a team to build a good case, the plausibility of evidence employed, and persuasive power.

Questioned as to the areas in which the group has made greatest strides since the year's beginning, Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, coach, stated, "The team has acquired much more knowledge on the topic, not to mention the improvement of all members as speakers."

Tentative plans for the debaters include a tournament in Morehead, Kentucky early in December.

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

Homecoming 1972 -a time for total involvement

HOMECOMING '72 should be really great this year, as activities for the week of Jan. 31-Feb. 7 are in the final planning stages.

Now is the time to organize float committees and to be thinking about who should represent UNC-W as Homecoming Queen.

Last year's parade was only 10 as the very top guessimate—units long, and there was no music at all. Whos ever heard of a parade without a band—or clowns? Or people to watch it?

What we need is a pep band, a Seahawk mascot, but more than anything else, we need student involvement and student support, not only for the basketball team, but also for the whole week's activities.

HOMECOMING '72 can be a great time for everyone. Let's make it that way.

We have the power, but will we use it?

We're finally getting out for Thanksgiving, and Christmas is only one and one half weeks of class away. But while you are home on vacation, register to vote.

Over 20 per cent of the North Carolina electorate is under 24 years old, placing the state in the top one half of the nation's newly enfranchised voting population.

In New Hanover County, 17 per cent of the potential voters are under 24 years of age. Another 17 per cent of the local voters are black. "These statistics may mean nothing unless people in these categories register and vote," stated Charles Jefferies, director of Campaign for Young Voters.

Mr. Jefferies-himself is under 24, is a 1971 Graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill, and is researching North Carolina election procedures. He is head of the state campaign, which is a non-profit organization to get students involved and to keep them informed on their voting rights, responsibilities, and privilege as a legitimate electorate.

"Politicians are never going to listen to us," affirms Jefferies, "unless we vote. We've got to deliver on election day if we expect them to meet our demands."

New Hanover County Residents—take some identification and go to 14 N. Third St. between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, to register.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers

The Seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all work is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Copy should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Tim Sims

What you see....

"What you see is what you get"—Flip Wilson.

Looking at life through our own eyes is the only way most of us will ever see the world, and this is unfortunate. It is unfortunate because we are limiting ourselves tremendously.

First of all, my ability to see things is hampered by lack of enough education, lack of mature perception, and lack of general life experience. Therefore, what I am getting for my seeing is inadequate at best and perhaps even untrue at worst.

Secondly, we limit ourselves by failing to see through another's eyes. Try to adopt the very attitude of a Plato or an Emily Dickenson or a Christ and see how different the world looks. We do this of course by reading the works and studying the concepts of these people.

Have you ever seen the world as a lovable, but desperately lost little chicken you would like to cuddle under your wing? Or perhaps the worst hell anyone can imagine? Can we begin to comprehend the relative universe of Einstein or the world of sounds, touch and mental sights of Helen Keller?

Third, by seeing the world only through our own eyes, we fail to recognize the world as music and art. Picasso's world is not mine, nor is Mahler's, but my world is enriched by seeing theirs.

The examples are endless, but this inadequate list may serve to give us some idea of the variety of human interpretation we should be excited to explore. The musical idea of "variations on a theme" is exactly what I am talking about.

We have a world—a universe, if you please—and if we play it only our way, we get endless and boring repetition. But listen to the composition of others, and "what you see" is so much more full and colorful and diverse, that you have begun to really "get" something meaningful.

If what you see is, indeed, what you get, then what you get is really up to you. In order to get the most we can from what we see, we must learn to "see" more than our own little worlds.

Feedback!

this is your chance to publicly express your opinion—
use it!

'No market provided for product students'

By Donn J. Sroufe

I am sure that many of our students, especially those who are married and have children, are holding down a full-time or part-time job (some with two part-time jobs), have had ample time between student, jobs, school activities and what social life there is, to cover statewide all the available opportunities that are offered to the student from the University. There's not a doubt in my mind(?) that everyone is completely satisfied with our placement service. The names are endless of those who could give this University a vote of thanks for the assistance it has provided prospective employees. BULL!!!

If it was not for the genuine interest and sincerity of a certain woman who indeed has been a friend of the students, there would be NO opportunity for NO student. Along with many other responsibilities, this person has almost singlehandedly accomplished what many other people would say is the impossible.

Where placement service has been instrumental in most other universities, it has not even been provided for in our budget. As I pointed out previously, we as students are the main primary products of this University. Contrary to most efficient administrators, this administration has failed to provide a market for its product. There are standards which are expected to a achieve by concentrating heavily on the issues before us. This does not leave the student much lee-way in terms of time for interviews which he or she must have to become employed.

The program this University must reach those who are looking for qualified personnel. A placement service (and a good one) is the only answer as I can see it.

The Invisible Infirmary

Medicial facilities available to students

By BILL WALLACE
Recently The Seahawk published an editorial which alleged that the students, especially dorm residents, were faced with the problem of having no medical care available on campus.

Thomas P. Brown, assistant dean of student affairs, discredited this claim by notifying the staff that the editor's assertions were untrue, declaring that his office and the dorm both maintained first aid facilities. He also stated that two doctors were under the contract to the University for purposes of assisting those in need.

Confronted with this new information, THE SEAHAWK decided to take a closer look at the campus medical situation by means of an in-depth interview with one of the college physicians, Dr. Daniel Gottovi.

Questioned as to what first aid supplies these two stations are equipped with,

Gottovi replied, "At present we have only facilities for handling minor problems; however, for serious cases, either my partner, Dr. Norman J. Robinson, or I am on call 24 hours a day 7 days per week and anyone may contact us at 763-8251 in the daytime or, after hours, at 791-3104, my home phone or 791-3110, my associate's number. The only stipulation here is that the caller identify himself as a student."

Gottovi further stated that he could reach any campus resident needing attention at night quickly since he lives in the apartments directly across from the university.

Regarding the emergency cases that have come up since the beginning of school, the doctor disclosed, "There have been no life and death matters so far this year, but five students have had to be hospitalized for one reason or another, two of these in serious condition."

He felt that the ambulance service could have been better on occasion, but quickly added that this was a problem not confined to UNC-W alone.

On the question of an on-campus nurse, Gottovi contended that there was somewhat of a need for one. He explained, "There is no

Although advocating the idea of a nurse, the doctor was convinced that there is no need for a resident physician.

Gottovi commented, "A man of this type would not be nearly as dedicated as an off-campus practitioner, because he would have the future, it would be wise to establish a group practice for the university; in other words, to retain a number of specialists in several fields."

On the subject of health payments, the physician stated that at present the individual student must pay for his medical care but that eventually a fee should be imposed upon everyone at the school in order to finance an infirmary for emergency aid.

"This does not mean," Gottovi continued, "that everyone should be forced to pay for routine treatment, because many commuters have doctors of their own."

In concluding remarks, he stated that before any expanded medical facilities are planned, a survey ought to be conducted to get some idea of student needs.

Gottovi further emphasized, "An infirmary, no matter how well-equipped, is useless unless it is publicized."

"I am on call 24 hours a day 7 days per week and anyone may contact us at 763-8251 in the daytime . . . the caller must identify himself as a student."—Dr. Gottovi necessity as yet for a medically trained woman to be on duty at all times, but it would be desirable to have someone during the 9-5 hours. This individual could take care of various problems and judge what further action, if any, to take."

attitude that after 40 hours a week his job was over, whereas a community doctor would take more interest in each case since he is entrusted, to begin with, with the greater responsibility of being constantly on call by students and non-students alike."

He suggested as an alternative that a clinic be held for a few hours on certain days for those needing routine treatment.

Gottovi added, "In the

In conjunction with Campaign for Young Voters, the UNC-W voter registration drive wants to urge all students to register to vote in their home counties over the Thanksgiving vacation. The mechanics of registering to vote are quite simple. The responsibility of EACH citizen to perform this task is a powerful one. Register to vote—vote for your beliefs. In New Hanover County, residents register at the Board of Elections office at 3rd and Market Streets.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON, DELAWARE

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Math help offered

As a means of participating in the Student Tutorial Program, the Mathematics Department along with the Mathematics Club is providing a program of assistance for students in MAT 100, 101-102, 111-112, 115, 121-122, and 211.

Math majors will be available the remainder of this term in room C-127 (Chem-Physics Bldg.) to help students during the following hours:

Monday 11:30-1:30
Tuesday 10:00-11:30
Wednesday 8:30-10:30, 11:30-2:30
Thursday 10:00-11:30
Friday 11:30-1:30

APO wants parade, queen

For those of you who have not been informed, Homecoming Week will be Jan. 31-Feb. 5. At this point some of UNCW's activities seem to be in question. Some feel that a Homecoming Parade is of little importance and the idea of a Homecoming Queen doesn't do justice to Women's Lib.

Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity strongly entertains the idea of including these things in the activities of the week because we feel there are those who desire it. APO, along with some other organizations, has planned on building a float. Maybe more student body participation could be witnessed by having the parade rescheduled to compliment some other function on campus.

With these dates rapidly approaching, the Homecoming Committee is making final plans for the week. It realizes the weekend's success depends upon the interests and desires of the students. Students wishing to express their ideas are asked to contact Raleigh Todd, Homecoming Committee Chairman, Jim Wentz, Wes Knappe or Diane Lace.

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25
GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL
POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,
PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING
CORP. P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.: 15212.

Tuesday
is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
Dr. Oldie Public House

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

PAUL'S

5523 Oleander Dr.

A Live Band Nightly

Unescorted Ladies Free

Monday - Thursday

NAME BANDS

Fri. - Sat. & Sun.

Brown Bag Permit

You're Never A Stranger At Paul's

Society of Physics Students and Sigma Phi Sigma hosted Chancellor Wagoner (far left) and Vice-Chancellor Cahill (far right) at a special luncheon Nov. 15. (Photo by JCD)

Nixon proclaims Thanksgiving

One of the splendid events which shape man's destiny occurred when a small band of people, believing in the essential sanctity of their own being, went in search of a land in which their individuality might be the highest national value, before any arbitrary limitations or duty placed upon some men by the whim or design of others.

They went in search of a land where they might live out their own commitment to their own ideal of human freedom. In the purpose of their search, the human spirit found its ultimate expression. They found the land they sought, and it was difficult land, but it was rich. With their sacrifices they brought forth its riches, and laid the foundation for a new nation.

But more than that, they revealed a new possibility for the expression of man's spirit. In the sure unfolding of that possibility man has begun to experience a world in which he may do justice, love, mercy and walk humbly with his God forever.

For what those early settlers established, we give thanks in a way which began with them. In their first years on the hard cold edge of man's bright golden dream, they were tried and their faith was tested. But when their bodies failed, their faith did not.

The stark simple words on a sarcophagus in a little village on the seacoast of Massachusetts tell the story well: "This monument marks the first burying-ground in Plymouth of the passengers of the Mayflower. Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling company laid their dead, leveling the earth above them lest the Indians should learn how many were the graves."

Yet, because mankind was not created merely to survive, in the face of all hardship and suffering, these men and women—and those of the other early settlements—prevailed. And the settlers gathered to give thanks for God's bounty, for the blessings of life itself, and for the freedom which they so cherished that no hardship could quench it. And now their heritage is ours.

What they dared to imagine for this land came to pass. What they planted here prospered.

And for our heritage—a land rich with the bountiful blessings of God, and the freed to enjoy those rich blessings—we give thanks to God Almighty in this time, and for all time.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wish of the Congress as expressed in Section 6103 of Title 5 of the United States Code, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 25, 1971, as a day of national Thanksgiving. I call upon all Americans to share this day, to give thanks in home and in place of worship for the many blessings our people enjoy, to welcome the elderly and less fortunate as special participants in this day's festivities and observances, thereby truly showing our gratitude to God by expressing and reflecting his love.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hands this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-sixth.

Engagement Rings

Princess Rings

Graduation Rings

Birthstone Rings

Bulovia Watches

Pendants

Cuff Link Sets

Pierced Earrings

Samsonite Luggage

Stereo Systems

CONVENIENT
CREDIT

Front and
Princess Sts.

Project Recycle saves natural, live resources

Project Recycle began operation in Wilmington Sat., Nov. 20. Project Recycle, is under sponsorship of the Jaycees in cooperation with Project Environment and the Biology Club of UNC-W, will become a permanent recycling program for this area, if citizens and organizations show sufficient support.

Recycling is important for the following reasons?

1) It preserves natural resources. (If you use paper to make paper, you don't have to chop down trees to make paper.)

2) It alleviates solid waste disposal problems. (If trash is recycled, you don't have to figure out where to dump it.)

3) Recycling on a large scale should alleviate the litter problem. (If trash is regarded as a valuable resource instead of a nuisance, it is less likely to accumulate along the highway.)

Project Recycle operates on every other Saturday (i.e., alternating Saturdays) as long as it retains public support. Collection point will be Sears parking lot, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On Recycling Saturdays, bundled Newspapers, flattened cardboard cartons, boxes of used IBM or computer cards, aluminum, and clear or green glass containers, will be reclaimed.

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

TIMME PLAZA

"DRAM TREE LOUNGE"

Presents

F R E E ● Laurel & Hardy F R E E
● W. C. Fields
● Our Gang
● Charlie Chaplain
Film Festival

Fri. & Sat. Evening
7:30, 9:00, 10:30

Free Popcorn
Michelob on Draught

When you run out ● ● ● Run in ● ● ●

ZIP
MART

- Wine
- Champagne
- Soft Drinks
- Mixers

● The Coldest Beer In Town

OPEN 7-11

CATERING TO UNC-W

Good luck on those exams, and...

notice

All persons are reminded to either return library books or bring them to the library for renewal prior to leaving the campus for Christmas vacation so as to avoid paying a large fine in January. Those persons who have received notices concerning overdue books or fines are urged to clear their records between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. at the Circulation Desk.

the seahawk university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 11

Tues. Dec. 7, 1971

Business-Economics Building to be complete by March '72

The new Business and Economics Building is currently nearing completion and should be ready for use by March of next year.

The outside of the two-story building is virtually finished, but a moderate amount of work remains for the interior. The building is designed in the shape of a "T" to allow for future expansion along three possible wings.

The structure will house several large classrooms, including three laboratories to be used for practice in accounting and statistical methods.

Also featured will be six conference rooms for discussion of business-related topics.

To accommodate the handicapped, the building is to be equipped with an elevator and a number of ramps. Rounding out the structure will be 12 faculty offices and a faculty lounge.

Preliminary planning for the structure took place in the 1966-1967 school year. Wilmington College president William Randall, the board of trustees, and the Business and Economics Department worked together to collect data justifying construction. With the help of State Senator John Burney and others, the building was approved by the 1969 legislature.

The structure was designed by Altobellis and Associates of Wilmington and construction was begun in March of this year. General contractor for the project is Jack Farrell, Inc. of Sanford, N.C.

Regarding the need for a Business and Economics building, Dr. E.M. West, department chairman, explained, "25 per cent of the student body is majoring in some specialty within our school. This large demand for instruction creates a need for expanded facilities."

He further stated that the department's upcoming graduate degree program also justifies a new building because of the increased number of students that such a course offering would attract.

Questioned as to how education will be improved once the school moves from Hoggard Hall to the new facilities, West replied, "The structure is designed to encourage a greater amount of direct contact between faculty and students. The conference rooms should provide a good atmosphere for discussion and the laboratories will allow each instructor to teach more effectively."

Traffic induces 8 signal heads

By BILL WALLACE

Because of increased campus-front congestion, eight signal heads will soon control traffic flow at the intersection of College Rd. and Randall Dr.

Scheduled for installation in late December, the signals will operate in conjunction with a combination of lanes marked for various directions of movement.

The lights will be regulated from Randall Dr. by magnetic loop detectors embedded in each approaching lane. Vehicles will be able to gain access to College Rd. by tripping one of these mechanisms.

In addition to the newly controlled intersection, Street "A" will be made one-way into campus to alleviate congestion at its College Rd.

entrance.

Resulting from this change, the Riegel Rd. entrance should experience an increased flow of traffic and might consequently require regulation also.

The new stoplight system has been in the planning stages for quite some time. On a request from Chancellor Wagoner, the North Carolina ducted a feasibility study to Highway Commission to survey traffic flow on College Rd. and adjacent streets.

After determining that congestion was heaviest at the College-Randall intersection, the Highway Commission widened the latter road to accommodate additional lanes.

The only remaining bottleneck in the project is the installation of roadside curbing.

D.W. Howard, division traffic engineer, explained, "Once our contractor puts in the curbing, it will be no problem for us to pave the new lanes and set the signals in operation."

He added that the new stoplight system should have a profound effect on campus parking since more students would probably use the lots closer to the regulated intersection.

Howard further stated, "If a proposed College Rd. shopping center materializes, I wouldn't be a bit surprised for the College Acres Dr. entrance to also require traffic signals."

Santa to visit Cherry Hospital

OPERATION: Santa Claus, the project to collect gifts for the patients of Cherry Hospital, is coming "rite-on, baby." Besides the New Hanover Mental Health Association, the Psychology Club of UNC-W and Dr. Shinn's 12:30 TTh Logic class have gotten on board the sleigh to help. Boxes at the campus North Pole Stations (cafeteria and bookstore) have yielded several gifts. Two members of the Psychology Club appeared on WECT's "Jim Burns Show" Tuesday, November 23, to request gifts from the general public. Announcements are being passed along to the area TV and radio stations, asking for gifts for these needy patients.

The gifts will go to approximately 180 middle-aged men and women, and seven teenagers. Games, books, clothing, toilet articles, appliances, room decorations — anything that would make a hospital atmosphere more home-like for patients, many of whom have been forgotten by family and friends, would be greatly appreciated.

Before you decide not to give, put yourself in these patients' places and imagine a holiday season without family, friends, home or the will to live. Then think, "If I don't give, who will?..."

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE Fall Semester 1971

	Monday December 13	Tuesday December 14	Wednesday December 15	Thursday December 16	Friday December 17
8:30-10:30	8:30 MWF classes	8:30 TTh classes	1:30 MWF classes	10:00 TTh classes	12:30 MWF classes
11:00-1:00	2:00 TTh classes	9:30 MWF classes	4:30 MWF classes	2:30 MWF classes	3:30 TTh classes
2:00-4:00	11:30 MWF classes	11:30 TH classes	10:30 MWF classes	12:30 TTh classes	3:30 MWF classes
7:00-9:00	Monday night classes	Tuesday night classes	Wednesday night classes	Thursday night classes

Have a safe, happy holiday!

the seahawk's editorials

unsigned opinions are the editor's; other contributions represent only the author's views

It's only Intermission

A long semester has at last come to an end and the entire cast is weary. They exit; one young girl remains and silently looks about her surroundings. After a pause she thinks slowly and deliberately out loud. Young Girl: There have been too many disappointments and too many tears this time to remember only the good things. But too many good things have happened not to weigh them in proportion. And so I leave, thanking God for friends who have cared and have helped me.

May your Christmas be one of peace, love, and happiness. (She exits. The lights fade slowly until the stage is in total darkness, but the curtain does not close. Intermission.)

...Desiderada...

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story. Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass. Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you consider Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul. With all its shame, drudgery and broken dreams it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

"Desiderada" was written in 1927 by Max Ehrmann and was revised in 1954 by Bertha K. Ehrmann. The recording is by Les Crain, a West Coast radio announcer. Appreciation is extended to Charles Brown, WGNI, for obtaining the poem.

Tim Sims

Christmas Comment

By TIM SIMS

"What is relevant for now may only be relevant for now." -James Beeler

We are a race of short-lived creatures, spending our scant seventy-odd years upon the same planet and usually in the same country. From the time we are born until the time we die we are marked for a few toilsome years with few really grand moments in our lives. In view of our short-range tours of tension on Earth, it is understandable why we would often be concerned with short range goals in our individual lives.

It is remarkable then that throughout history men have had a broader vision than their own situations, and a longer view of the world than their own lifetimes. Perhaps the prophetic vision is compensation for the very realistic fact that we won't be here long; but whatever the psychological connotations, some men are able to reach beyond their times and grasp onto something of the eternal.

How hard for us to take the "long view"! How easy to be caught up in the situations of the moment and cry for temporary relevance without having a sufficient basis of eternal relevance.

Many examples of the eventual despair such temporary measures cause come to mind—the rapid industrialization of society in the 19th century and the ensuing problems of ecological disturbance, population distribution, thus oppressed minority groups, thus increased crime, etc. is one. The enslavement of the black man by the white man in the early days of our country and the present racial crisis is another.

We can only look to our "finest hours" where extraordinary men have caught a glimpse of that eternal relevance I speak of as having kept us from total chaos.

The prophets of Israel were such men who, in spite of the rejection of their own people, proclaimed what they felt were eternal values. The relevant thing in Isaiah's day was to live it up, cheat the poor, and have—by all means—worship of Jehovah carried on to sanctify their actions while worshipping other gods as well.

To this Isaiah responded with stinging denunciations of his people's shortsightedness, preaching the impending judgement of God, and demanding that the Hebrews look further than the moment to eternal truths in order to save themselves.

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given... And He shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."

The prophecy of the Messiah called people to look hundreds of years ahead of their times, for in the fullness of time, God would send his Son.

As Christmas is approaching once more, it may be timely to comment on that subject; for whether most people believe in Jesus Christ or not, they do observe some sort of Holiday at the time usually set aside to remember the birth of that unusual babe.

Christmas is, of course, a Christian holiday (although everyone from non-believers to money-hungry merchants—who are non-believers of a sort—have tried to turn it into something else), and therefore the world-wide community of believers are especially aware, during the season, of what the season is all about.

But not only for just "the righteous", Christ himself would say. For anyone who can see past the cheap tinsel and gaudy decorations of an evil capitalistic exploitation of His birth to what really happened on that night the angels sang, the promise of Christmas is the hope of mankind.

"Peace on Earth, goodwill towards men" were not just pretty words for lowly shepherd's ears, nor an empty epitaph over the grave of a dead Jewish malcontent who sought to make men free. Neither is this proclamation a brave but unrealistic dream which only the foolish will believe in.

Rather, it is a fact of future history, which is being accomplished in the world in the present; for Christ is eternally relevant.

I see the Spirit of God moving upon the face of the waters of man's tears, ready to create the world of peace He has promised. And when the mouth of the Lord has spoken His "Let there be...", we will—all of us—know that the mystery of Bethlehem was no children's fable nor deceitful fraud.

This Christmas, remember that all of the temporary relevance in the world—no matter what the cause—cannot hold a candle to the eternal Light of the World.

Fire in dorm dumpster quenched by students

A fire in the main trash dumpster of UNC-W residence hall was reported thirty-five minutes after midnight, Wednesday night, December 1 by T.R. Woodall and Helen Gibson. Mr. Pearsley, campus security guard, notified the Park Avenue branch of Wilmington Fire Department.

Although the fire department arrived within minutes, a group of second-floor men had already outed the fire.

Cause of the fire was unknown, and no serious damage resulted.

The seahawk

UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, N.C. 28401

Editor.....Jane Divine
Business Manager.....Wayne Rogers

The Seahawk welcomes unsolicited materials; however, all work is subject to space limitations and laws of libel. Copy should be submitted one full week in advance of publication. Office located upstairs in Student Services Building.

Homecoming representative selected

By Don Diamond

Carol Hardee was nominated as the Business Club's representative for Homecoming Queen at its monthly breakfast meeting which also featured Mr. Ellis of the local DuPont plant as guest speaker.

The Business Club possibly has the jump on other clubs by selecting their candidate for Homecoming Queen this month. Leslie Christopoulos, Jane Fowler, and Carol Hardee, three delightfully attractive students, were presented as potential queen candidates at the Tuesday's breakfast meeting. In a close contest between the three lovely girls, Carol Hardee emerged victor and will be enthusiastically supported by Business Club members for election as Homecoming Queen next semester. Congratulations to Carol who also has been an active and loyal Business Club member this semester. The club members extend their thanks to Leslie for providing an attractive addition to their early morning meeting.

Mr. Lee Ellis, Personnel Superintendent at the local DuPont plant was the featured speaker. Mr. Ellis pointed out that DuPont employs 1000 people at its Wilmington plant and expects to double this figure by 1973. The plant provides an annual payroll of $10 million which will also double by 1973. He emphasized that DuPont is interested in making a profit — but their way to maximizing profits is to provide quality products to the consumer. This is a stated objective of the DuPont organization. He went on to state that DuPont's most important and valued asset is its employees. The huge corporation looks after its employees who in turn help to develop and produce a quality product for the public.

This was the last meeting of the B.C. this semester, but not the end of their activities. The club is having a dinner and dance at the Gold-N-

Crust Friday, December 3. The club has several activities on tap for next semester and anyone interested in joining the club should contact Don Sourfe, Ray Blackburn, or Don Diamond.

The club takes this opportunity to wish everyone a successful exam period and a happy holiday season.

Business Club tours State Ports Authority

Friday, November 19, members of the Business Club toured the State Ports Authority (SPA) facilities at Wilmington. Mr. James W. Davis, executive director for SPA, presented an interesting historical summary concerning development of SPA facilities along the eastern seaboard. He pointed out that without the SPA at Wilmington, the city would have been unable to attract such industries as DuPont, GE, Hercules, and many others who are dependent upon the port for import of raw materials and for export of their finished products.

The group then toured the dock facilities and boarded a Japanese freighter which was immaculate. The dock area has extensive covered storage buildings and huge lifting cranes for loading and unloading ships.

The group then returned to the administrative building and split into groups for a more detailed briefing of the port operations. The accounting students visited the accounting and data processing installation. The business students were hosted by the sales and administrative departments, and the transportation students were briefed by the operations manager. All club members were favorably impressed with the magnitude of SPA operations and were grateful for the friendly reception accorded them by Mr. Davis and his staff.

The next meeting of the Business Club is November 30 when Mr. Lee Ellis, personnel manager of the local DuPont plant will be the guest speaker.

The last club activity prior to exams will be the Xmas party at the Gold-N-Crust on December 3 when all members will wine, dine, and dance.

(CPS) — After Fran Conley won the 17.3 mile "Bay to Breakers" footrace in San Francisco, reporters asked her two questions: Was she married and where was she from?

Then they proceeded to describe her as a "Palo Alto housewife."

Fran Conley is a brain surgeon at Stanford University Hospital.

'The Torch' agreeable, haunting; but Gould miscast

By Linda Goldman

An actor as guilty of over-exposure as Elliot Gould must eventually pay the price by attempting to do a role which he cannot do. Gould hasn't the range nor depth one normally expects from an Ingmar Bergman actor and in Bergman's latest film "The Touch", Gould is obviously out of his league. Playing a diseased, tantrum throwing archeologist who falls in love with Bibi Anderson, wife of Max Von Sydow, Gould's adolescent smirk and prognathous jaw do little for him. One fleeting change of expression from Miss Anderson reveals more about the character she is portraying than 15 minutes of dialogue and display of temper from Mr. Gould.

The affair between Karen (Miss Anderson) and David (Mr. Gould) is Karen's first attempt at infidelity and the audience is able to trace the stages of their affair by the tedious uncovering of a Madonna discovered in one of David's archeological digs. As the story of the Madonna unfolds, so does the story of Karen. The Madonna, peaceful and lovely in her ancient tomb, when uncovered awakens a beautiful but destructive insect which begins to destroy the statue from within. David does the same with Karen. Unable to leave Gould, she alienates her husband and children, totally destroying her former life. In the end, although pregnant, she rejects Gould and the affair is over.

"The Touch" is an agreeable, haunting film with excellent performances from Miss Anderson and Von Sydow. Unfortunately, because of the unbelieveability of Gould's role, it is uneven and unrealized. The film's credibility hinges on the audience's compassionate reaction to Miss Anderson's plight and when her source of destruction is as callow and selfish as Gould's David, sympathy turns to disgust.

Engagement Rings

Princess Rings

Graduation Rings

Birthstone Rings

Bulovia Watches

Pendants

Cuff Link Sets

Pierced Earrings

Samsonite Luggage

Stereo Systems

CONVENIENT
CREDIT

Reed's

Front and
Princess Sts.

The Traveler's Aide
Coat.

This Cricketeer doubleknit sportcoat is the best thing you can pack because it unpacks better than any other coat. It's a doubleknit blend of polyester and wool worsted that looks great and performs even better. It's got scalloped flap pockets, wide lapels and a high center vent. It's also got an economy-class price tag.

CRICKETEER'S FROM $65⁰⁰
DOUBLEKNIT SPORTCOAT

BOTH Payne's STORES
DOWNTOWN HANOVER CENTER

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Dear Editor—

I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says "If you see it in The Sun it's so. "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

Virginia O'Hanlon

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if you did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are seen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is still a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived could tear apart. Only faith, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God! he lives and lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Photos by Carson Benson and Jane Divine
Kids courtesy of Wilmington
Head Start Program and the UNCW Child Study Center.

Wrightsville lab holds international reputation

The Wrightsville Marine Bio-Medical Laboratory, recently merged with UNC-W, has achieved an international reputation as a center of marine research.

Under the direction of Dr. Ralph Brauer, who is recognized as one of the world's most eminent marine scientists, the laboratory has pioneered in every field it has touched since its establishment in 1965.

The laboratory's work is focused on the application of advanced technology to research in marine physiology and on the training of young scientists in a setting where pioneer research is being conducted.

Its research efforts in the field of the physiology of man in the sea, and of the physiological limits imposed by the high pressures encountered in the deep sea, have attracted an increasing volume of support from federal and private agencies amounting to more than a half-million dollars since its establishment.

Students have come to the laboratory from a number of leading institutions all over the United States and from Europe. In the words of Congressman Alton Lennon, the Wrightsville Marine Bio-Medical Laboratory "has been perhaps the most potent single factor in putting Wilmington on the map as a nationally recognized center of research in the marine sciences."

On an international level, Dr. Brauer and his staff have supported several major expeditionary efforts, participating in such ventures as the famous Tekite II expedition and the Smithsonian Institute's starfish control study in the Western Pacific.

For several years the laboratory held the depth record for human experimental dives, and recently it has developed unique facilities which allow keeping animals alive under conditions simulating depths as great as 35,000 feet. The results of the laboratory's research efforts have been published in 14 scientific journals over the last three years.

The laboratory's research facilities and scientific equipment include a unique series of simulator chambers capable of reproducing environmental conditions ranging from those at altitudes up 30,000 feet to those prevailing at the bottom of the Philippine Trench under 30,000 feet of sea water. Chambers range from very small units for microscopic observation to the famed man-size hyperbaric chamber recently donated by Duke University.

The laboratory also has a research library containing some 11,000 volumes, as well as a collection of technical treatises, monographs, historical materials and other information.

Malcolm Boyd

A Philosophy of life

By MALCOLM BOYD

On a midwestern campus recently a white male student told me: "I have no sense at all of who I really am. What is my identity? Blacks are together. Now women are defining their reality. But I feel lost."

Nina Simone sang "To Be Young, Gifted, and Black" to black students in Atlanta. The moment burst with exuberance, creative energy and hope. I wonder what can be sung, said, or exemplified to many other students who are momentarily trapped in frustration or even despair. "We Are Ourselves, Gifted, and Human" might be a start.

I share fully in the personal anxiety that inevitably accompanies this moment in history with its political action and reaction, existential dilemmas and radical spiritual questioning. These are simply a few guidelines to my present philosophy of life.

I want to be an organic part of social responsibility and community building. Yet I also want to nurture my individuality—even at the risk of being considered eccentric.

I want to weigh myself in the scales of liberation movements—Black, Native American, Women, Gay, Chicano and others—and hopefully come up with human identity. Yet I do not want to live in a melting pot that denies deep and honest differences between people.

I want to be sufficiently sober and serious about the overwhelming questions of this day, this age: poverty, emptiness, ecology, identity, racism, loneliness in a mass, war. Yet I do not want to lose my sense of humor, capacity for sheer abandon and fun, and awareness of the absurd as a quality of life.

I want to nurture protest and lend fire to dissent. Without them a democracy perishes. Yet I want to avoid slipping into paranoia, destruction for its own sake, and the morbid malaise of hopelessness.

I want to build an intellectual spirit interlaced by commitment and capable of passion. Yet I do not want to succumb to the arrogance of mere fashion by denigrating authentic tradition, academic discipline and the goal of objectivity.

I want to respond to ideas instead of charismatic personalities whose programmed chic (for whatever cause) is the product of exploitation.

I want to believe sincerely in the aspects of faith that undergird my life, yet also want to resist narrow chauvinism and self-righteous fanaticism that claims mine is the "only" faith or ideology, life-style or system. I want to fight the conviction that "we" (people who share my views and I) are "good guys" versus "bad guys" (people who hold different views).

I want to be a loyal and dependable (therefore always critical) member of movements and organizations to which I belong, yet do not want to forget that moral ambiguities mark all movements and institutions (including mine).

I want to participate in community with persons who share my views, yet do not want to lose the capacity for listening to totally different views and engaging in communication with people who hold them.

I want to be outspoken against the maladies and sins of my society, nation and institutions, yet do not want to become merely a shrill crier of doom who offers no alternatives, decent hope for change, or positive approaches to hard and complex tasks.

It is therefore obvious that I choose to live in creative tension. I do not want to shut other people out of my life, avoid shattering human experiences and relationships, or reject the growth processes of becoming fully human. The alternative is, I believe, dehumanization. Success and failure are meaningless terms to me. The meaning of life I find in its struggle.

Surfing

The surf is rolling
Like moving masses of liquid,
Cresting slowly,
Eventually pounding on shore.

The surfer is moving
Driving into the peril of the sea.
He paddles briskly
The ocean's fury he wants to reach.

The surfer is riding
Skillfully weaving in and out of danger.
He keeps low
He's one with the ocean; no longer a stranger.

His wave is cresting
A wall of thundering water and mist.
His board and finesse
Between his victory or failure.

The board is flying
Beaten by the sea like a strip of paper.
A man is conquered
By the forces of nature.

The MAN is resting
With his board beside him on the sandy shore.
Although defeated,
He must try; once more.

By Sam Lewis

THE WATER BED SHOP

1317 S. College Road

- It's Fun
- It's Romantic
- It's Healthy and . . .
- It's 20% Off To Students With I.D.'s
(Effective Til 1-31-72)

Each Bed Has A Positive Guarantee From 20 to 50 Years Depending On Manufacturer
Lay-A-Way Plan and Charge Cards

Locally Owned By Gro. and Connie Lancaster

FRIDAY

MOVIE

FRIDAY

THE DIRTY DOZEN

Starring: Lee Marvin
Ernest Borgnine
James Brown and more . . .

Kenan Auditorium

8:00

25' Single

$1.00 Season Membership
(Good For 11 Movies)

Be aware to sex

By ZORIE SMITH

There are a lot of questions we all have, besides "did the stork really bring me" and "can you get pregnant by necking" that we've never had answered. Many times they've been answered but not truthfully and with more opinions than facts. Here is our chance as interested students to become aware and to be answered with facts instead of opinions.

Dr. Robert Creighton, Jr., a doctor of Gynecology and Obstetrics here in Wilmington, will be in the upstairs Pub Wednesday, December 8 at 7:30 for a question-answer discussion on anything you have to ask. Birth control, abortion, Venereal Disease, over-population - anything YOU want to talk about.

You can submit your questions anonymously to one of the two boxes located in the SGA office or in the office of the Dormitory located in the main lobby.

This is YOUR chance to become informed. Show your concern and interest - please be there.

Trails of Progress...

TIMME PLAZA "DRAM TREE LOUNGE"

Presents

F	• Laurel & Hardy	F
R	• W. C. Fields	R
E	• Our Gang	E
E	• Charlie Chaplain	E
	Film Festival

Fri. & Sat. Evening
7:30, 9:00, 10:30

Free Popcorn

Michelob on Draught

Tuesday
is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
De Olde Public House

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

Library Hours: During Exams And Holidays

Examination Week:

Saturday, December 11 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday, December 12 through Thursday, December 16
the library will be open until 11:00 p.m.

Holiday Schedule:

Library Hours 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
The Library will be closed on weekends during the vacation period and all day on:

Friday, December 24
Monday, December 27
Monday, January 3

When you run out • • • Run in • • •

ZIP
MART

- Wine
- Champagne
- Soft Drinks
- Mixers
- The Coldest Beer In Town

OPEN 7-11

CATERING TO UNC-W

Sisters Serve Campus, Community

Phi Mu, national social sorority, has currently involved itself in service to the community and beyond.

The sisters' major undertaking is the supporting of Project Hope, an international medical aid program which brings health assistance to all corners of the world.

To raise money for this and other causes, the group has combined its talents with curious musical instruments to form a "washboard band," which has made numerous television and civic club appearances. Besides working for Project Hope, the sorority ushered at several fine arts performances in addition to serving at a tea for new faculty members.

The sisters also brightened many Thanksgivings by distributing food baskets to the needy and pine cone turkeys to the children at Babies' Hospital.

In the weeks before Christmas, the group plans to continue its musical performances by means of door-to-door caroling.

Concerning the satisfaction the sorority receives from its projects, Linda Robinson, social services chairman, explained, "The work we do enriches not only the life of those in need, but our lives as well."

Another Phi Mu, Kay

Abeyounis, added, "The helping of others allows us to achieve a sorority's main objective—the forming of an unbreakable bond among sisters."

Dr. Richard Deas will present a piano recital Sunday, January 16, 1972, at 3:30 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Students and the public are cordially invited.

Psychology Club Meeting, Tuesday, December 7, 1971, 4:00 p.m., E-210.

Contemporary Dance Class Demonstration under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Nesbitt, Thursday, December 9, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. No Admission charged. Everyone invited. Dancers will perform to Afro-American and rock music.

"Good Woman of Setzuan," a westernized Chinese play by Bertolt Brecht, will run Wed., December 8, 9, 10, and 11 in the SRO Theatre. Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. Admission is free with I.D.

Residents to vote on dorm policy

At the beginning of this fall semester, two people from each floor of the new UNC-W residence hall were elected to work on a constitution committee for the dorm. The committee met and put together a constitution for the residence hall; then on August 10 the proposed constitution was brought before a group comprised of members of the administration and faculty, residence hall assistants, and randomly selected students. After being discussed at many lengthy meetings, changes were deemed necessary in the proposed constitution. The "August 10 group" appointed a subcommittee (Zorie Smith, Calvin W. Casey, and Charles Williamson) to revise the proposed constitution, with John Munroe's help. This revised edition was to go before the "August 10 group" on December 2, 1971 for acceptance or rejection. (The decision of the "August 10 group" was not available at press time.)

If accepted by the "August 10 group" this revised constitution will come before the resident students for a vote at the beginning of spring semester 1972.

Zorie Smith, one of the resident assistants, had this to say concerning the new constitution and the residents' relation to it, "I hope the resident hall students take a personal interest to get out and vote. Their own opinions will come through on that ballot. This constitution will affect every student in this dormitory, whether they like it or not."

Sexauer displays prints

By Catherine Smithdeal

David Sexauer's one man show, now on display in Kenan Hall, is a very interesting and impressive array of graphics. The show is scheduled to run through December 14 here on our campus.

Mr. Sexauer was born in 1932 in Erie, Pennsylvania. He was educated at Edinboro State College, Kent State University, and in William and Mary in Georgia. He is now chairman of the print-making department at East Carolina University. Among his many recognitions are Mr. Sexauer's membership in Delta Phi Delta, Who's Who in American Art, and Outstanding Educators of America.

Some students made comments concerning the show. Becky George, an art major, had this to say, "I am enjoying the show and am amazed at the fine detail the artist was able to achieve in his prints." Carolyn Core, another student, said, "It's one of the nicest we've ever had."

The show is here for the students and public to enjoy between 8:30 a.m. and 9:00 p.m.

Pub's 'Gripe Box' is working...

From the non-sensical to the absurd, the complaints and notes in the Pub's "Gripe Box" often seem well intended.

"I hate gym. Do something about it," stated a ragged, torn scrap of paper, while another asked "How can we eliminate (the name of an English instructor was here—)?"

In the same scribbled handwriting was another note, "Why do you have to take a placement test for English, when at Chapel Hill all you need is 600-or-above on the verbal SAT score to be exempt from English 101 and 102? (I got 650 and I'm stuck in a grammar course)."

Apparently desperate, the next piece read: "There should be no failing grades — D should be the lowest."

"E.P. — all is forgiven. Please come home. (Signed) Desperate," and "There should be beer on tap in the Pub" were found between layers of questions; although several wishes were obscene, one flatly pleaded, "I am tired of school for awhile."

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25

GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL

POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,

PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING

CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

Register to Vote!

In the interest of youth voter registration, six people met to discuss city-wide voter registration plans. Among those present at the December 1 meeting were David Massey, the student body president of New Hanover High School, Tony Bruguere from Cape Fear Technical Institute, and Ed Boylan of UNCW. Also present were Rex Fountain and Kenneth Wallace, interested members of the community. Liz Buffington, chairman of UNCW voter registration efforts, conducted the meeting.

The tentative schedule of campus voter registration was the first order of business. From there the discussion turned to methods of reaching young people in the city who do not attend school; however no salient conclusions were reached. The group agreed that it is of paramount importance that as many students as possible Register To Vote During The Christmas Holidays.

HAVE A MERRY

CHRISTMAS

PAUL'S

5523 Oleander Dr.

King Louie and Horse - Nightly

Unescorted Ladies Free

Tuesday - Thursday

NAME BANDS

Friday, Saturday & Sunday

Now Serving Steaks

BROWN BAG PERMIT

College Students Tuesday Night

With I.D. '1.00

You're Never A Stranger At Paul's

Biology Club sorts the bottles, bundles the papers, and crunches the aluminum pieplates and cans collected thusfar in their recycling project, which will continue throughout the year. (Photo by Howe)

SAVE A TREE RECYCLE YOUR BOOKS

each 50 books recycled saves one tree

SELL YOUR BOOKS AT:
THE BOOKSTORE

Thursday And Friday

Dec. 16 and 17

'Good woman' opens

Rehearsals for The Good Woman of Setzuan, by Bertolt Brecht, creator of epic theatre, are now in progress. Directed by Anne Fitzgibbon, the play will be presented Dec. 8-11 in the SRO Theatre in Kenan Hall at 8 p.m.

The play's theme is the problem of how good can survive in an evil world. Revolving around the misfortunes of a prostitute named Shen Te, the play suggests that, ironically enough, evil supports good. Shen Te will be Rosalie

Hilburn. Other cast members include Doc Clay as Wong, the water seller; Bob Peterson, First God; Ed Danilowicz, Second God; Mark Wilson, Third God; Pat Haines, Mrs. Shin and also the Old Whore; Randy Mercer, Yang Sun; Linda Goldman, Mrs. Yang, Yang Sun's mother; Vicki Daum, Mrs. Mi Tzu; Billy McCarty, unemployed man; Tim Wesner, policeman; Wes Knape, carpenter; and Claudia Madeley, old woman.

WE'RE NEW IN TOWN

You've probably seen us advertised on Johnny Carson or Merv Griffin or the Today Show. We're part of the largest pizza chain in the world.

We would like to introduce you to our pizza. Take this buck to the Pizza Hut nearest you and get a dollar off on any large Pizza Hut Pizza or 50¢ off on any small pizza. Good at 3406 Market St. or 4016 Oleander Dr. locations.

We serve more pizza than anyone else in the world. (Offer expires Oct. 31, 1971.)

(Formerly Pizza Inns)

PIZZA HUT UNRESERVED NOTE

Redeemable with the purchase of any LARGE-SIZE PIZZA

at

4016 OLEANDER DR.
799-3650

3406 MARKET ST.
763-3418

Pizza Hut Pete
PIZZA HUT PETE

ONE

PIZZA HUTS OF WILMINGTON

Limit 1 Pizza Hut Dollar per pizza Offer may be withdrawn at any time without notice.

ONE PIZZA HUT BUCK

'Lighthouse'

is coming Feb. 3

Pending good profits

'Yes' appears in March

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol. 14, No. 12

Tues. Jan. 18, 1972

January jumps with things to do

Date	Event	Place	Time
18	FAF—Interlude/Where Eagles Dare	Kenan Auditorium	8 p.m.
	Wrestling vs. ECU	Greenville, N.C.	7:30 p.m.
	Residence Hall Constitution Referendum (for residents only)	UNC-W Residence Hall	9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
19	UMS—Igor Kipnis, harpsichordist	Kenan Auditorium	8:30 p.m.
20	Basketball vs. Baptist College	Charleston, S.C.	8:00 p.m.
21	FACF—Before the Revolution	Kenan Hall K-121	8:00 p.m.
	Wrestling vs. Elon College	Hanover Hall	4:00 p.m.
	Engineering Club Speaker	Hoggard - 225	1:30 p.m.
22	Basketball vs. Armstrong State	Hanover Hall	7:30 p.m.
23	Oberammergau Passion Play	Kenan Auditorium	2:30, 7:30 p.m.
24	Passion Play ($1 matinee only)	Kenan Auditorium	2:00 p.m.
	Wrestling vs. Pfeiffer	Misenheimer, N.C.	6:30 p.m.
	I.D. Cards made	Student Affairs Office	8 a.m. - noon, 1 - 5 p.m.
25	Passion Play	Kenan Auditorium	2:00 p.m., 8:15 p.m.
	Basketball vs. Wesleyan College	Rocky Mount, N.C.	8:00 p.m.
	I.D. Cards made	Student Affairs Office	8 a.m. - noon, 1 - 5 p.m.
26	Basketball vs. High Point	Hanover Hall	7:30 p.m.
	I.D. cards made	Student Affairs Office	8 a.m. - noon, 1 - 5 p.m.
27	Wrestling vs. Elizabeth City State	Hanover Hall	7:30 p.m.
28	Film: Kelly's Heroes	Kenan Auditorium	8:00 p.m.
29	Basketball vs. Lander College	Greenwood, S.C.	8:00 p.m.
30	Community Orchestra Concert	Kenan Auditorium	3:00 p.m.
31	Begin Homecoming Week (thru Feb. 5)	"South 40" parking lot	4:00 p.m.
	Weiner Roast and Pep Rally graduation forms to be filed now says Cheek

Seniors expecting to graduate in May should report immediately to the Student Affairs office, A-113, according to Dean Helena R. Cheek, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs.

Forms must be completed and measurements for caps and gowns must be taken now, she explained, as the shipping order must be placed within four weeks.

"Students are reminded that they are expected to participate in Commencement Exercises unless excused by an academic dean, as stated in the 1971-72 Catalog, page 59," Dean Cheek concluded.

Placement office sets interviews for Seniors

DATE	NAME OF FIRM	INTERESTED IN STUDENTS MAJORING IN	POSITIONS
January 20, 1972	U.S. Civil Service	All Majors	Various
January 26 & 27	Marine Corps Selection Team	All Majors	Officers
February 17, 1972	Upjohn Pharmaceutical Co.	Biol, Chem., Med Tech. & P.E.	Sales Representative
February 22, 1972	Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co.	All	Trainees
February 28, 1972	Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp.	All	Sales Representative
Mar. 1-3, 1972	Peace Corps	All
March 3, 1972	North Carolina National Bank	All	Trainees
March 6, 1972	U.S. Secret Service	Acctg, Bus., PE, Pol. Sci, Psy.	Special Agent
March 10, 1972	Carolina Tele & Tele	Acctg, Bus, Econ, Engl. Hist, Math, Pol Sci, Psy	Manager Trainees
March 13, 1972	N.C. State Personnel	All	Various
March 14, 1972	Internal Revenue Service	All	Various
March 15, 1972	R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.	All	Sales Representative
April 11, 1972	Rose's Stores	All	Trainees
April 19, 1972	Sears, Roebuck & Co.	All	Trainees

Other companies may be added during the semester. Check with the Placement Office for additions. To set up an interview appointment with these firms, contact Placement Office.

Student Government newswires election constitution

TENTATIVE CONSTITUTION OF THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

ARTICLE I

NAME

We, the students of the University at Wilmington, in order to further the activities of student life, promote a widespread interest in student affairs, govern ourselves by just and righteous laws, develop a greater spirit of progressive citizenship, and maintain and perpetuate high ideals in this University, do hereby establish this constitution.

ARTICLE II

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Student Government Association shall be to further the best interest of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and its students; through representing the student body in matters affecting student life and affairs; through undertaking to assume on behalf of the student body an active interest in the maintenance of discipline within the University.

ARTICLE III

MEMBERSHIP

Upon enrollment all regular students (students issued identification cards) of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington shall become members of the Student Government Association and are eligible to hold office as herein elsewhere provided.

All students who hold an elective office or an appointed position on a committee shall represent their peers as members of the Student Government Association.

ARTICLE IV

LEGISLATIVE POWERS

Section 1. Supreme legislative powers shall be vested in a Student Senate.

Section 2. The Student Senate shall be of full strength be composed of thirty-two (32) members: the President, Vice-President, Secretary of each of the four classes and five (5) Student Senators elected by and from each of the four classes.

Section 3. Organizations, meetings, transactions of business:

A. The Vice-President of the Student Body shall serve as the Speaker of the Student Senate. The President of the highest undergraduate class shall serve as the Speaker pro tempore. The Speaker shall have no vote except in case of a tie.

B. The Secretary of the Student Government Association or an unofficial under-secretary shall serve as the Secretary of the Student Senate.

C. The Student Senators and Class Officers shall be inaugurated at the first meeting following the General Election with the exception of the Freshman class officers who shall be inaugurated at the first meeting following their election.

D. The Student Senate shall meet regularly every other week and shall be at all times subject to call into a special session by the Vice-President of the Student Government Association. A quorum of the Student Senate shall consist of a majority of its membership currently in office. Each member of the Student Senate shall have one vote with no cumulative voting.

E. Any vacancy occurring in the Student Senate shall be filled by a person meeting all necessary qualifications and shall serve the remainder of the term as herein elsewhere provided.

Section 4. The Student Senate shall have power:

A. To allocate the appropriated funds for Student Activities;

B. To ratify or reject by a majority of those voting all appointments made by the President of the Student Body or in the case of the Student Superior Court members and Attorney General, which shall be by a two-thirds majority of those voting;

C. To override a presidential veto by a two-thirds majority of those voting;

D. To establish its own rules of procedure;

E. To establish and abolish such subordinate officers and committees within the legislature as it shall deem proper;

F. To make laws other than those herein elsewhere provided for governing the conduct of student elections;

G. To require reports from the standing committee and from all organizations receiving appropriations from the Senate;

H. To make all laws necessary and proper to promote the general welfare of the Student Body;

I. To establish and abolish standing committees by a three-fourths majority of those voting;

J. To recognize student organizations by ratification of their constitutions by a majority of those voting.

Section 5. Class organization shall be as follows: Senior, Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman with appropriate officers.

ARTICLE V

EXECUTIVE POWER

Section 1. The executive power shall be vested in a President of the Student Government Association who shall have the assistance of a Vice-President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer. These officers shall be elected by and from the Student Government Association at large except in the case of the Treasurer who is appointed by the President and subject to Senate approval.

Section 2. The President of the Student Government Association shall have power and responsibility to:

A. Form an advisory cabinet;

B. Appoint the chairman of Standing Committees and approve the Committee members. He shall make these appointments by a two-thirds majority of the Student Senate. Present Committee members are:

1. Board of Elections

2. Fine Arts

3. Entertainment Committee

C. To address and make recommendations from time to time to the Student Senate, provided he shall notify the Speaker of his intentions in advance.

D. To veto bills of the Student Senate which he deems unnecessary, provided he shall exercise such power of veto within ten calendar days of the passage of a bill by the Senate;

E. To preside at meetings of the Student Government Association;

F. To serve as ex-officio member of all Standing Committees;

G. To issue orders to the Standing Committees and require reports from them;

H. To represent the Student Government Association and require reports from them;

I. To establish such advisory subsidiary to him as he shall deem necessary and proper to aid him in performance of his duty;

J. To plan Freshman Orientation;

K. To call a Student Government Association meeting at his discretion;

L. To appoint members of the Student Court and Superior Court by a two-thirds Senate approval.

Section 3. The Vice-President of the Student Government Association shall preside over the Senate meetings. He shall have the power to call special Senate meetings. He shall perform the duties of the President in the event of his absence. He shall succeed to the office of the President of the Student Government Association should that office become vacant.

Section 4. The President pro tempore of the Senate shall assume the duties of the Vice-President in the event the Vice-President of the Senate vacates his office. In the event that the Vice-President vacates his office, the President pro tempore shall temporarily fill that office until a new Vice-President is elected.

Section 5. All vacancies occurring in the ranks of class officers shall be filled by special election in the class in which the vacancy occurs. This election shall be conducted by the Board of Elections and shall take place no later than ten calendar days after the Board of Elections is notified of such vacancy by the Speaker of the Student Senate. The Speaker shall notify the Board within ten calendar days after a vacancy occurs in the person filling the vacancy shall meet all the necessary qualifications and shall serve out the remainder of the unexpired term.

Section 6. All vacancies occurring in the ranks of class Senators, excluding class officers, shall be appointed by the President of the class in which the vacancy occurs with a two-thirds Senate approval.

Section 7. The Secretary of the Student Government Association shall accurately record and preserve the minutes of all Student Government Association meetings and shall be responsible for reading the minutes of the previous Student Government Association meetings.

Section 8. The Treasurer shall be appointed by the President of the Student Government Association. His appointment is subject to a two-thirds Senate approval. It is the responsibility of the Treasurer to submit a budget of the Student Government Association to the Student Senate at the first meeting of the Senate. He is also responsible for a monthly report of the Student Government expenditures. This report is to be posted on the bulletin board and published by the Student Government Association. The Treasurer shall be diligent in his duty. It is the responsibility of the Student Senate to discipline him in any manner it deems advisable.

Section 9. The Entertainment Committee shall be responsible for planning and supervising all school sponsored dances and concerts and shall have the power to make rules concerning conduct at these functions.

Section 10. The Freshman Orientation Committee shall be composed of a chairman and two other student members appointed as herein elsewhere provided. This committee shall be responsible for recommending to the student members of the committee. It shall be the duty of this committee to organize and supervise a series of programs of educational and entertaining events throughout the school year.

ARTICLE VI

JUDICIAL POWERS

Section 1. The judicial power of the S.C.A. shall be vested in the S.C.A. Student Superior Court, being the highest court established by the Constitution.

Section 2. The Student Superior Court shall have original jurisdiction in all cases involving the constitutionality of any act of the Student Senate when its constitutionality is questioned. The Student Superior Court shall be an appellate court for all other inferior courts in cases involving student infractions against the Carolina Policies and Rules which have been set forth by the Consolidated Universities and the University of North Carolina at Wilmington pertaining to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington campus or which is illegal and unlawful according to the statutes of the City, the County, the State of North Carolina, or the United States of America shall be liable to prosecution before the Student Superior Court. The Residence Hall of Res. Hall Policies shall be complete separate from the S.C.A. Sup. Court any level.

Section 3. Any student(s) tried and convicted by a lower court may appeal the decision to the Student Superior Court. All decisions reached by the Student Superior Court may be reviewed by the Student Attorney General (appropriate cases) and by the Student Senate upon written request from the student(s). The reviewing faculty committee shall have the final decision in all reviews appealed to them. Appeals may be carried beyond the Student Superior Court.

Section 4. The Student Attorney General shall be appointed by the President of the Student Government Association and must attain a grade of at least a C-.

Section 5. The procedure to be used in bringing a case or hearing before the Student Superior Court shall consist of a written request presented by the Student Attorney General or defendant(s) in an appeal. The Court must accept all cases and make a ruling within fifteen calendar days after receiving the request.

Section 6. Before any valid decisions of the Student Superior Court can be reached, the entire membership must be present, and a majority vote is required for a verdict.

Section 7. The Student Superior Court shall be composed of five members appointed by the President of the Student Government Association (two men students, two women students, and one from the Student Government Association at large). Each member must attain a grade of 70 or better on the Constitutional Quiz.

Section 8. All judicial bodies shall make and publish their own rules of procedure, but these rules shall not deny to any accused person the presumption of innocence until it is proven, the right to due notice and a fair hearing, the right of the accused to face his accuser, and the privilege of assistance. Said assistance shall come from any member of the Student Body who is not a member of a judicial body. When the accused is notified of the charges against him, the Student Attorney General, the Student Superior Court, and all other judicial boards shall inform him of his rights guaranteed under this section.

ARTICLE VII

ELECTIONS

Section 1. Qualifications for voting. Only those enrolled as regular students in The University of North Carolina at Wilmington shall be entitled to vote in any student body election.

Section 2. Board of Elections. The power to administer laws passed by the Student Senate governing conduct of elections shall be vested in a Board of Elections. This board shall consist of a chairman and six members appointed as herein elsewhere provided. The President of the Student Body shall make these appointments within two weeks after his inauguration. The Board of Elections shall have the sole supervision of all campus elections.

Section 3. General Election. There shall be a General Election held annually during the first Thursday in April.

Section 4. Officers to be elected. The following officers shall be elected in the General Election: President of the Student Body, Vice-President of the Student Body, Secretary of the Student Body, and three class officers by and from their respective classes.

Section 5. Election and methods of voting. The basis for election in the election of the Student Body Officers and Class Officers shall be by majority. In this election each voter shall place a mark by the name of one candidate for each office appearing.

In the election of the Student Senators, the straight plurality system of voting shall be used. Each voter shall place a mark by the name of the candidate of his choice. If the ballot is not filled out as stated above, it will be invalid. Votes may be cast for any number of candidates and including invalid. The offices of Student Senator shall be filled by the five candidates in each class receiving the greatest number of votes. In all students elections, write-in votes for qualified persons shall be counted and reported.

Section 6. Eligibility for Election.

A. The candidates for Sophomore, Junior, and Senior elective offices in the Student Government Association shall have at least a 2.0 quality point average at the time of their election. All holders of Student Government Association offices and Class Officers shall maintain at least a 2.0 quality point average throughout their term of office or be automatically declared ineligible, excepting Freshman Officers, who must attain a 1.5 average by the beginning of Spring Semester during their term of office. The Secretary of the Student Government will verify all officers' eligibility at the beginning of each semester.

Further requirements for candidates:

1. The President of the Student Government Association shall be a member of the highest rising undergraduate class. His (and all candidates' class status) shall be his class level as of September 1 of the same year. In the event the President or any other class officer does not attain his projected class level, he must resign.

2. The Vice-President and Secretary of the Student Government Association shall be members of either of the two highest undergraduate classes.

3. Every Student Government Association officer shall be carrying at least 12 semester hours at the time of his election. Officers must complete their semester hours throughout the semester.

4. Each candidate must attain a grade of at least 70 on the Constitutional Quiz which shall be drawn up, graded, and administered by the Chairman of the Board of Elections in order to be eligible to run for or hold a student office. There will be no cumulative voting.

5. No one person may hold more than one of the following offices in the Student Body at one time: President, Vice-President, Secretary of the Student Body, Student Senator, Class Officer, or a Member of the Student Appeal Board.

Section 7. Filing for Candidacy. All candidates for offices listed in Section 4 above shall file a statement announcing their intention to run for a particular office. This statement shall be filed with the Chairman of the Board of Elections and it shall be filed on or before the second Monday in March. These statements shall constitute a notice of candidacy to the Registrar of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington approving the student's eligibility.

Section 8. Freshman Class Officers. Freshman Class Officers and Student Senators shall file a statement to be filed in the Board of Elections two weeks after classes begin. Elections shall be held two weeks after the filing statement has been filed. The President of the Student Government Association shall call a meeting of the Freshman Class no later than three (3) days before filing statements are due for the purpose of explaining the filing system and election procedures.

Section 9. Inauguration. If officers chosen in the General Election shall be duly inaugurated on the first Tuesday following their election. Each officer shall take an oath to uphold, protect, and preserve this constitution and the government thereby created. The oath of office shall be administered by the Chairman of the Student Superior Court.

Section 10. General Rules.

A. The Primary and General Elections shall be conducted by Australian Ballot.

B. Returns from each election shall be posted on the evening of the day on which the election is held.

Section 11. Special Elections. Special elections shall be held in the event of the death of the Student Senate under the terms of the Constitution. No elections will be held during the summer sessions.

ARTICLE VIII

STUDENT BODY POWERS

Section 1. The Student Body shall have power to initiate any act within the power of the Student Senate, provided that ten per cent of the qualified voters in the Student Body shall sign a petition calling for an election within the Student Body on a bill which they shall submit in writing with the petition to the President of the Student Government Association. The President shall, if he determines the petition to be in good order within the limitations of this constitution, direct the Board of Elections to conduct an election on the bill in not less than six nor more than fifteen days after he receives the petition and bill. If the President does not direct the Board of Elections to hold a referendum, the bill shall automatically be subject to a referendum, provided 25 percent of the qualified voters sign a petition calling for a referendum on said bill, under the time limits set in this section. If the bill is approved by a majority of those voting, it shall automatically become law and shall not be subject to presidential veto. Public notice of each election shall be given not less than five days before it shall take place. A majority of the votes cast at the election shall be sufficient to pass the bill.

Section 2. The Student Body shall have power to call for a ballot on any act of the Student Senate, provided a petition calling for the ballot is specifically signed by ten per cent of the qualified voters. The referendum is to be taken within the limitations of this constitution, direct the Board of Elections to conduct an election on the act in not less than six nor more than fifteen days after he shall have received the petition. Public notice of each election shall be given not less than five days before it shall take place. A majority of the votes cast at the election shall be sufficient to pass the bill.

If the President does not direct the Board of Elections to hold a referendum, the bill shall automatically be subject to a referendum, provided 25 percent of the qualified voters sign a petition calling for a referendum on said bill under the time limits set in this section. If the bill is approved by a majority of those voting, it shall automatically become law and shall not be subject to presidential veto.

Section 3. No one person may hold more than one of the following offices in the Student Body at one time: President, Vice-President, Secretary of the Student Body, Student Senator, Class Officer, or a Member of the Student Appeal Board.

Section 4. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 5. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 6. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 7. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 8. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 9. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 10. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 11. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 12. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 13. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 14. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 15. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 16. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 17. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 18. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 19. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 20. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 21. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 22. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 23. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 24. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 25. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 26. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 27. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 28. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 29. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 30. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 31. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 32. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 33. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 34. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 35. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 36. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 37. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 38. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 39. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 40. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 41. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 42. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 43. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 44. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 45. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 46. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 47. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 48. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 49. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 50. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 51. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 52. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 53. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 54. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 55. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 56. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 57. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 58. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 59. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 60. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 61. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 62. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 63. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 64. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 65. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 66. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 67. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 68. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 69. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 70. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 71. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 72. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 73. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 74. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 75. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student Senate shall have power to make laws to enforce this provision.

Section 76. The Student Body shall have power to enforce this constitution. The Student

Tim Sims

'....and They is Us'

"I have found the enemy, and they is us." — Pogo.

There is a nation-wide publication, which comes out each month in the form of a newsletter, called Youth Report. Its editor, Samuel Grafton, seeks to call attention to trends within the youth culture for the benefit of his readers who may be interested in applying said information to any number of areas.

Recently, an interesting paragraph appeared in Youth Report concerning the word "struggle" and its new meaning among youth. For the last several years, as we all know, "struggle" has meant political activism, social reform, liberation movements, etcetera. However, says Youth Report, it now means something entirely different.

Young people of college age are now using "struggle" to indicate an internal conflict or internal striving to achieve personality, to find one's self, to overcome one's baser nature. This new meaning has come about, theorizes Grafton, because of an increased understanding by young people that the problems in our world are caused by problem-ridden people, not the so-called Establishment(s).

If this trend is really happening and I sincerely hope it is, then many of us are going to begin, if we haven't already, a serious search for the truth about ourselves, our country, and our world.

We are going to find that the biggest enemy of our own personal happiness and achievement is ourselves. We are going to discover that the enemy of peace and human understanding which leads to peace is not some external system of government, but the internal war which all men wage against themselves. In short, we will learn of the "enemy" which plagues mankind that "they is us."

And then what will we do about it?

That's where the struggle begins. Self-recrimination, self-pity, and other forms of adolescent behavior are out. Some form of positive turning from old ideas to new examination is necessary. Some new beginning, some dawning of our minds towards the reality of what man is and where he is supposed to be going has got to come about.

If, as so many relativistic babblers in our modern world are saying, men is for no particular purpose and is not supposed to be going anywhere, then it makes little difference whether we try to win the struggle or not.

But I would like to suggest that the struggle within all of us is clearly indicative that man is for something and is supposed to be going somewhere. Each man and all men have purpose which the struggle seeks to achieve — individually and collectively.

And a good start for all of us is to acknowledge the enemy within, to take a look at what we are doing to ourselves, and to make responsible resolutions for a new beginning.

the
seahawk

Editor
Jane Divine

Business Mgr.

Wayne Rogers

PLANNING ON BUYING A CAR? AS AN NAGPS MEMBER YOU CAN GET IT FOR

$100 OVER DEALER COST

YOU CAN ALSO SAVE BIG $$$ ON TYPEWRITERS, DICTIONARIES; SUN GLASSES, HI-INTENSITY LAMPS, MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS, AND BIG TICKET ITEMS LIKE FURNITURE, APPLIANCES, HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS, INSURANCE AND TEXTBOOKS

WHAT'S NAGPS?

An organization designed to help YOU the student save $ on high priced items. You are cordially invited to join. Send a check or money order for $5 to:

MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

P.O. Box 10817
St. Petersburg, Florida

Name _____ Date of Birth _____
Campus Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
University _____ School of _____ Permanent Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Married _____ Number of Children _____
Date Studies Completed _____
Date _____ Signature _____

Make $5.00 check payable to NAGPS

V 6 0 2 4

The National Association of Graduate & Professional Students
& UNDERGRADUATE COUNCIL

Engagement Rings

Princess Rings

Graduation Rings

Birthingstone Rings

Bulovia Watches

Pendants

Cuff Link Sets

Pierced Earrings

Samsonite Luggage

Stereo Systems

CONVENIENT
CREDIT

Front and
Princess Sts.

Campus Briefs

OBERAMMERGAU PASSION PLAY to be presented in Kenan Auditorium Jan. 23, 24, 25. Sunday performances 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday productions at 8:15 p.m., and student matinees at 2 p.m. Admission for students $1, matinee; $2.50 at the door for other performances.

VACANCY IN SOPHOMORE CLASS offices. Applicants must have sophomore standing, interest in leadership positions and 2.0 GPA. Contact Patti McCombie before Friday, Jan. 21, or leave name and telephone number in the Seahawk office.

I.D. CARDS TO BE MADE Jan. 24-28, and Jan. 31-Feb. 4 in Student Affairs Office, 8 a.m. - noon, 1 - 5 p.m.

NON-RESIDENT MEAL PLAN now available for spring semester. Fifteen or 21 meal plan allows the student to eat either five or seven days per week. More information can be obtained in Student Affairs Office.

UGLY MAN ON CAMPUS contest being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity to raise funds for a permanent school sign. Any organization on campus may sponsor one or more Ugly Men. The candidate who receives the most votes shall be declared winner. One vote will be given for each dollar collected by the sponsoring organization. In an effort to help these organizations raise money for their Ugly Men, A.P.O. will sponsor a University Fair on Saturday, February 5th, and only sponsoring organizations will be asked to man a booth or event. For further information, contact Don Stroufe (Fledgling Office) or Raleigh Todd (SGA office) or any member of A.P.O.

NOMINATIONS FOR '72-'73 Student Government Offices and Homecoming Queen will be accepted in the SGA office in the Pub Jan. 18-Feb. 1.

FRESHMAN class nominations for spring semester will be accepted in the SGA office in the Pub Jan. 18-27.

REPORTERS are needed by the Seahawk. We'll warn you — the work isn't easy, and the job is for only those who are sincerely interested.

SELLING SOMETHING? Student Advertisements accepted by the Seahawk.

Rates: 10 cents per line per issue.

Just What Privileges Does A Student Discount Club Member Get?

- The Student Discount Club card is honored for discounts from retail at more than 6,000 local merchants throughout the United States and Canada. Reg. Price: $3
- The International Student Discount Card is honored for discounts from retail at more than 2,000 participating merchants in Europe. Reg. Price: $10
- The Canadian Pacific Airlines Youth Fare Card is honored by 19 US Airlines and 2 Canadian Airlines for up to 50% discount on air travel in North America. Reg. Price: $3
- The Canadian National Railways Card is honored for 25% discount on rail travel in Canada and youth discounts on Grand Truck Western Lines (Railroad) in the U.S. Reg. Price $2

As a Student Discount Club member you get all these cards, for a one unit price of $5, plus a national accounts directory crammed full of unusual offers like

- an Eastman Kodak Instamatic Camera plus color film, batteries and flash cube for $6.95.
- a Summer Jobs in Europe program.
- purchase programs on American automobiles at $100 over dealer cost.
- over 200 magazines at discounted student prices.
- purchase programs on European automobiles at substantial discounts from retail.
- free film to fit instamatic cameras.
- discount room privileges at Hilton Hotels, Quality Motels and Ramada Inns.
- info on charter flights to Europe.

To get your Student Discount Club membership, just complete the attached coupon and mail it along with your check for $5 to Student Discount Club.

Dear Sirs: Enclosed is my Check for $5.00

NAME _____

PERMANENT ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

AGE _____ MAIL TO: _____

SCHOOL ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

MAIL TO: Student Discount Club, P.O. Box 10817, St. Petersburg, Florida 33733

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON, N.C.

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

VS Q 2 1

Big week for elections!!

the Seahawk

VOLUME 14, NUMBER 13

JANUARY 26, 1972

Freshman ousted

The President and Vice President of the Freshman Class, Jim Arnold and E. B. Evans respectively, were ousted last week by constitutional means, leaving the two Freshman Class vacancies to be filled by popular vote 2 February, 1972.

Both were found ineligible to maintain their office by paragraph A, Section 6, Article VII of the Constitution of the Student Government Association of UNC-W, which states that Freshmen Officers must achieve at least a 15 average by the beginning of Spring Semester during their term of office.

Arnold and Evans both failed to obtain the required average during the Fall Semester, 72.

Nomination applications will be accepted through the 27th of January at the SGA office in the Pub. The vote will be held in lieu of the Homecoming Queen election, also slated for that date.

Nominations open for 1972-1973 SGA

Student Government Association nominations were officially opened last week but according to SGA President Ed Boylan, the SGA office has not been rushed with applicants.

In order to file for the election, the student must complete an application at the SGA Office in the Pub.

The Elections, to be held in mid-March, will decide next years' Student Government President, Vice President, and Secretary; the Senior Class President, Vice President, Secretary, and five Senators; Junior Class President, Vice President, Secretary, and five Senators; Sophomore Class President, Vice President, Secretary, and five Senators.

Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen may vote for the Student Government Association President, Vice President, and Secretary.

Juniors may vote for the Senior positions, Sophomores may vote for the Junior positions, and Freshmen may vote for the Sophomore positions.

Freshman Class Officers will be elected in the Fall '72 Semester by incoming Freshmen.

Nominations will be open through 15 February, 1972.

Dormitory nominations for Dorm Senators should be filed with any dormitory resident assistant. Nominations for Dormitory Executive Council should be filed with John Munroe, dormitory head resident.

A deadline of January 26 is imposed on the dormitory elections slated for 1 February, 1972.

A parliamentary procedure test will be administered to all consenting nominees of elected offices of the Student Government Association to include all nominees to class offices and senator positions. The test, which will determine the parliamentary knowledge of all candidates, is not compulsory according to SGA sources.

Still under structural modification, the test was reared by complaints from Senate members who felt the need for parliamentary education among the senate members was essential.

According to Student Government President, Ed Boylan, the present constitution makes no provisions for such a test and made it quite clear that the test was only suggested, not required.

"I felt that we needed some sort of parliamentary procedure test, so this voluntary test was instigated

Students select food from UNC-W cafeteria. (Staff Photo)

Forced food explained

ED. NOTE. It recently came to the attention of the Seahawk, that all dormitory residents are under contract to pay for at least 15 meals per week in the UNC-W cafeteria. As a result, the members of the staff questioned the desirability of such a regulation. To get a better understanding of the situation, the Seahawk decided to interview Thomas P. Brown, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, James Clark, Director of Auxiliary Services, and Robert O. Walton, Comptroller. The interviews, conducted by Bill Wallace, Correspondent, are as follows:

Regarding the reason for a compulsory meal plan, Walton explained, "Although the state can give approval to having a cafeteria, it cannot appropriate money for it. The university has to finance the project on its own," he continued, "and added to these starting up expenses are the tremendous overhead costs."

He pointed out that there are certain fixed costs, such as utilities and employees' salaries, which must be met regardless of the volume of business.

"We had to guarantee each food service company bidding for the contract a certain amount of business," he continued "otherwise, they wouldn't have touched us with a ten-foot pole."

Walton revealed that this plan was the only feasible alternative. "The only other choice is to not have a

Continued on page 3

SGA implements tests to emphasize the importance of parliamentary procedure to all candidates to elected offices." (ed. note: A parliamentary procedure course is offered on campus, taught by Professor Betty Jo Welch.)

Bookstore expands

The University Bookstore will operate in newly - expanded quarters with new, more convenient hours beginning this semester. After removal of the center wall and janitor's closet, the bookstore now occupies the entire South wing of the Student Services Building (the "Pub").

According to Pat Gaskins, manager, these renovations, including relocation of the checkout counter and entrance, provides approximately 75 percent more floor space.

"This space will be utilized for such things as magazines, paperback reference books, and anything else the student body desires," she says. "The bookstore is here to serve the students," she continued, "and we can serve them better if we know what they want." She went on to say that if there is a particular item any student wants, please let her know and she would try to make it available.

Looking to the future, Mrs. Gaskins feels that an additional bookstore will be necessary, possibly closer to the dormitory area.

The bookstore is now open from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily.

SEASQUAWKS

and when there's nothing to do; there's nothing

What's left to do when the day's activities are through, studies finished, and those walls begin to encircle a weary mind? Why not go get a pizza, go to the movies—anything to escape boredom for a while!

Unless motor transportation is easily accessible, it's nearly impossible to get anywhere from school.

Within a five-block range of main campus, three churches, two small groceries, a service station, a bank, a furniture store, a tire dealership, and a residence hall can be reached fairly easily by foot or by pedal.

But where is a place where one can go with their friends, sit back in a relaxed atmosphere, and enjoy? Where is a place off campus, within walking distance, to have a good time?

Of all the pizza parlors, chicken outlets, hamburger inns, steak houses, movie theatres, lounges, et cetera in town, the nearest is approximately one and one half miles away.

Since residential properties have already been rezoned for commercial enterprises across the highway, why should it be complicated to get something there that the surrounding area needs and wants?

Two thousand people will not be ignored if inquiries and comments are heard frequently throughout New Hanover County.

Copies of the Seahawk are sent to John A. Jones, Jr., and to the Star-News Newspaper. We encourage signed letters—your name will be withheld upon request, stating your opinions on this matter. Correspondence can either be placed in the Seahawk's mailbox in the cashier's office, Administration Building, or brought upstairs to our office in the Pub.

'Harry, our little girl is home from college'

More placement facilities needed

In a candid interview last week, Mrs. Joyce Jackson, placement secretary, expressed a need for expanded placement facilities. She said that there is at present only one parttime room for placement purposes.

"We did have a room for job interviews, but because of a decreased number of recruiters, this meeting place was given to the computer center." She quickly added that UNC-W was not the only college to experience a drop in visiting companies.

Concerning placement personnel, Mrs. Jackson revealed that only two people are involved in placement work, both on a part-time basis. "Besides my positions as secretary, we have Robert P. Brown, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, to serve as placement director."

Regarding the number of students the placement office handles each year, Mrs. Jackson observed that although the proportion of students looking for full-time jobs has decreased, the number trying to get part-time positions has increased a good deal.

"To meet this greater demand," she continued, "we need to have both a full-time director and secretary as well as an office used for the express purpose of finding jobs for students."

In concluding remarks, Mrs. Jackson reminded students to avail themselves to the services of the placement office. She explained, "the more response we get from students, the better change we have a getting expanded facilities."

Chemistry opens seminar

The Chemistry Department is presenting a seminar series that incorporates UNC-W faculty, visiting speakers from Duke, University of South Carolina, UNC-G, NCSU, DuPont, and General Electric. The series will be conducted by three chemistry seniors who are taking the seminar for credit.

The seminar series is headed by Lewis E. Nance of the Chemistry Dept. The series, open to the public, will be given at 11:30 a.m. - 12:20 p.m. on the Thursdays indicated below in room C-114 of the Chemistry - Physics Building.

The schedule is as follows:
Jan. 20 Dr. B.M. Gimarc (USC) "Some Aspect of Molecular Orbital Theory"

Jan. 27 Dr. Anton F. Schreiner (NCSU) "Circular Dichroism"

Feb. 3 Dr. J.A. Milts (UNC-G) "Copper (I) Hydride - Fact or Fiction"

Feb. 10 Dr. Stephen F. Peterson (E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co.) "Activation Analysis"

Feb. 17 Dr. Stephen Dayle (GE) "Some Aspects of Phosphorus - 31 NMR"

Feb. 24 Dr. Richard A. Palmer (Duke) "Absorption Spectra of Some Transition Metal Complexes in Oriented Single Crystals"

Mar. 2 Dr. Louis H. Adcock (UNC-W) "The Determination of Metallic Pollutants"

Mar. 9 Mr. Haskell B. Hart (UNC-W) "Fundamental X-ray and 16 "Crystallography"

Mar. 23 Dr. Frederic M. Hornack (UNC-W) "Some Aspects of Quantum Mechanics"

Apr. 6 Douglas Carter (Student) "Mass Spectrometry"

Apr. 13 Robert A. Grace (Student) "The Three Centered Bond of Organic Reaction Mechanisms"

Apr. 20 Dan Robinson (Student) "Chemical Reactions of the Human Eye"

"The seminar series began about four years ago," stated Nance. "We feel that the series is invaluable because of the wide variety of speakers - five universities and two industries are represented. It's a great chance for majors of meet professors from graduate schools, too."

the
seahawk

Editor Jane Divine
Assistant Editor Ron Dunn
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporting staff Grace Parker, Tim Sims
Kathy Tyner, Mike Jones

Business office located on the second story of the Student Services Building, UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C., 28401

Homecoming needs Queen

Homecoming Queen applications for nomination are currently being accepted in the Student Government Office in the Pub.

Any female may enter if sponsored by an SGA recognized campus organization.

The Queen, to be elected by a February 2 vote, will be announced February 5 at half-time of the Seahawk's Basketball game with Atlantic Christian College.

According to Ed Boyland, SGA president, the Queen's Court will consist of all contestants not elected Homecoming Queen.

Among many coming activities, the Queen will represent UNC-W in the Azalea Festival. (ed. note: A complete agenda of Homecoming activities will appear in the next issue of the Seahawk, as the plans are not firm at time of this writing. — RGD)

FOOD. . .

Continued from page 1 cafeteria," he said.

This statement quickly prompted the question, "Is there really a need for a cafeteria?" To this, Mr. Clark replied that a feasibility study was made quite some time ago to look into the possibilities of a cafeteria. "A survey of those concerned indicated a need for dining hall facilities," he said.

Clark added that besides attracting more students, the food prices under this policy are less than they otherwise would be on a cash basis. "The compulsory meal plan affords the cafeteria a greater amount of business and with this large volume, the cafeteria can keep its prices low," he explained.

After the advantages of this program were enumerated by Clark and Walton, Dean Brown pointed out that the students have a voice in cafeteria policy. He noted, "There is a committee, composed mostly of students, that meets to devise methods for improving the cafeteria service."

Students tutor

The mathematics department announced last week that student assistants will be acting as tutors for MAT 101-102, 111-112, 121-122, and 211.

According to Dr. Fred Toney, Professor of Mathematics and chairman of the Department, this will be an extension of last semester's program. He went on to say, "Although there has been some success with the program, there was still an exceptionally high rate of failure among low-level math students. We hope the tutoring service will help combat this situation."

Dr. Toney encourages any student in need of such help to make use of this opportunity.

Tutorial schedules as follows:

DAYS	HOURS	TUTOR
Monday	10:30 - 11:30 1:30 - 2:30	Linda Nixon Linda Quinn
Tuesday	10:30 - 11:30 11:30 - 12:30	Linda Nixon Mike Purvis
Wednesday	11:30 - 12:30	Mike Purvis
Thursday	10:30 - 11:30 11:30 - 12:30	Linda Nixon Mike Purvis
Friday	10:30 - 11:30	Linda Nixon

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLACE SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

THE WATER BED SHOP

1317 S. College Road

- It's Fun
- It's Romantic
- It's Healthy and . . .
- It's 20% Off To Students With I.D.'s (Effective Til 1-31-72)

Each Bed Has A Positive Guarantee From 20 to 50 Years Depending On Manufacturer Lay-A-Way Plan and Charge Cards

Locally Owned By George and Connie Lancaster

Search for Tomorrow

TRYOUTS FOR "Wonderful Town" will be held February 2-3, 7:30 p.m. in the band room at Kenan Hall. Parts open include positions for actors, singers, dancers, and backstage workers.

BASKETBALL — Jan. 25, N.C. Wesleyan College at Rocky Mt., N.C.; Jan. 26, High Point College at home; Jan. 29, Lander College at Greenwood, S.C.; Feb. 2, St. Andrews College at home.

KELLEY'S HEROES with Clint Eastwood as Telly Savalas will be shown January 28 in Kenan 121 sponsored by the SGA Fine Arts Committee Popular Film Series. Tough Sergeant Savalas leads a group of US soldiers 30 miles behind enemy lines to rob a gold bullion bank.

UNC-W Wrestling — Jan. 27, Elizabeth City State at home (7:30 p.m.); Jan. 29, Duke at home (7:30 p.m.); Feb. 2, St. Andrews at home (7:30 p.m.).

POWDERPUFF FOOTBALL GAME will be held Feb. 1 in the afternoon on the Athletic field behind the gym. Public welcome.

PRESENTATION OF THE HOMECOMING Queen Candidates will be held Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pub by the Student Government Association.

Tuesday
is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
The Old Public House

... WITH BILL GREEN ON PIANO
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

*UNC-W Rings

*Diamond Rings

*Birthstone Rings

*Bulova Watches

Student Charge
Accounts

"Reed's for Diamonds"

Reed's

Front and
Princess Sts.

When you run out • • • Run in • • •

ZIP
MART

• Wine

• Champagne

• Soft Drinks

• Mixers

• The Coldest Beer In Town

OPEN 7-11

CATERING TO UNC-W

How Would You Change Or Add To The Content Of The Seahawk !

Susan White

John Cureton

Beverly Cobb

Steve Morrison

Lanna Quick

Mike Jones

Bruce Williams

Every week, the Establishment trembles a little.

Because every week, a new issue of the Guardian appears.

It carries news of revolutionary developments in Asia, Africa and Latin America; the movements for black and women's liberation; the antiwar movement; the struggles of workers, prisoners and students; and critiques of contemporary culture—all analysed for their implications and full meaning.

The Guardian is a radical newspaper with an independent political outlook. It cuts through the smokescreen of most other journals with their distortions, omissions and lies. It gets to the root of why the forces of liberation are challenging the power of the ruling class.

For example, Wilfred Burchett, the Guardian's Indochina correspondent, filed reports from Southeast Asia which were seven years ahead of the sensational (and profitable) "Pentagon Papers" disclosures.

If you want the real story, read the Guardian.

SUSAN WHITE: "We'd like to see crossword puzzles and jokes." JOHN CURETON: "More personal interviews, more personal contact." BEVERLY COBB: "I can't believe with this many kids, there's not more going on. There's also a lot of world events happening." STEVE MORRISON: "Larger and more conscientious staff and students with more time to devote to the paper." LANA QUICK: "It needs some jokes and it needs to be longer." MIKE JONES: "Too much space wasted in useless information." BRUCE WILLIAMS: "Most of the information is useless, none of it as it appeals to me. It needs to be more community oriented and world oriented."

Ed. Note: The Seahawk is now under revision and restoration. We plan to publish more extensive coverage of relevant campus events with special emphasis on variety and reliable information. Increased effort and staff members enable this.

In regard to community and world oriented news, it is the feeling of the Seahawk staff that we should concern ourselves and the Seahawk to UNC-W campus events particularly, yet not exclusively, as many accessible daily newspapers are in evidence in this area. In regards to the center-fold-out, requested by Eddie White, we are proud to announce the Seahawk's "Aardvark of the Week." To obtain center-fold status, fold point "A" to point "B", and crease firmly. Now, unfold and you are the possessor of the first-but not last-Seahawk center-fold.

mail to: Guardian, 32 W. 22nd St.
Enclosed is: New York, New York 10010

- ☐ $10. for a regular one year sub. (for Canada and Latin America, add $2. per sub; elsewhere outside U.S., add $3.)
- ☐ $5. for a one year student sub.
- ☐ $1. for a ten-week trial sub.
- ☐ $1. for a one year G.I. or Prisoner sub.
- 2263

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
School _____

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25

GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL

POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,

PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING

CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

Sports Shorts

by Mike Jones

This is a new series on sports, containing bits and pieces of information, along with some editorial commentary. Unless indicated otherwise, all opinions are the author's. If you have any comments on the column, send your signed statement to the Seahawk office. You will not go unnoticed. Anyway, we hope you enjoy the series.

This week's ACC "player of the week" is UNC's Robert McAdoo. The 6 foot - 9 inch junior college transfer from Greensboro, N.C. scored 46 points in two games to received the most votes in the Atlantic Coast conference Writers' Association poll. The junior center also grabbed a total of 17 rebounds. These two games were against ACC up-start Clemson and nationally - ranked Virginia, Carolina's most formidable conference foes to date.

The NAIA's District 29 office in Pembroke, N.C. announced their "basketball player of the week" last Wednesday, giving the honor to Lynchburg's Nowlin Wingfield. The 6-foot 5-inch senior forward made good on 43 of 53 field goals in three games for the Hornets. He also had 26 rebounds and 12 assists. Lynchburg is 3-2 in district play and 8-6 over-all.

Besides baseball and tennis, UNC-W is in the process of fielding a rowing team. Approximately thirty men will be needed.

Last year the rowing Seahawks participated in regattas here in Wilmington at both the Azalea Festival and the Feast of the Pirates, as well as in meets against Citadel, East Carolina University and other schools along the Atlantic Coast.

Anyone interested should contact Tom Doshier or Coach John Anderson. A date and time for an organizational meeting will be announced later.

Girls interested in playing intramural basketball may contact Pat Clontz. Games will be on Tuesday and Thursday nights. Additional women's activities will be announced next week.

The UNC-W Seahawks are not in as bad a position as people would have you think. Despite a 2-6 over-all record, they are 2-2 in district play and are currently ranked sixth out of thirteen teams. Most of those losses were close games until the final few minutes of play and could have gone either way. With a little more hard work, and a LOT more FAN SUPPORT, could easily prove to be winners.

NCAA TOP 20

TEAM	RECORD
UCLA	12-0	Ohio State (Tie)	10-2	Brigham Young	11-2
Marquette	12-0	Southern California	11-2	Maryland	10-2
North Carolina	11-1	Pennsylvania	9-2	Villanova	11-2
South Carolina	8-2	Florida State	13-2	Hawaii	13-1
Louisville	11-1	Virginia	12-1	Minnesota (Tie)	8-3
Long Beach State (Tie)	14-1	Louisiana	11-1	Tennessee (Tie)	8-2
		Princeton	10-2	Missouri (Tie)	11-2

ACC

UNC	W-L	W-L	Duke	1-1	6-6	Clemson	1-2	6-4
Virginia	2-0	11-1	Maryland	2-2	10-2	Wake Forest	0-2	3-9
	4-1	12-1	NCSU	1-2	6-6

NAIA DISTRICT 29

Methodist	5-0	8-1	Lynchburg	3-2	8-6	Hampton	1-3	5-6
Elizabeth City State	4-0	8-5	UNC-Wilmington	2-2	2-6	Virginia State	1-3	5-7
Fayetteville State	3-1	8-6	N.C. Wesleyan	3-4	5-7	Atlantic Christian	1-4	3-10
Campbell	4-2	9-7	Virginia Union	1-2	3-8	St. Andrews	1-4	2-10
Pembroke State	3-2	8-4	Shaw	1-3	7-4	Virginia Wesleyan	0-6	2-11

Wrestlers pinned in match

The UNC-W Wrestling team was defeated last Tuesday night Jan. 18 by East Carolina 41-11, here at Hanover Hall. The Seahawks suffered five pins, one decision and one forfeit, winning only one bout by decision and one by default. Injured was David Hughes, who received a severe shoulder pull.

The loss gives the Seahawk grapplers a 1-1 record in dual meets. The next home meets will be against Elizabeth City State Jan. 27 and against Duke University Jan. 29. Both matches will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Hanover Hall.

Individual Scoring

118 lbs. B. Vroom (ECU) by forfeit

126 lbs. C. Wilson (UNC-W) tied S. White (ECU) 4-4

134 lbs. D. Monroe (ECU) pinned C. Gray (UNC-W)

142 lbs. R. Lundy (ECU) pinned D. Adams (UNC-W)

150 lbs. E. Weddington (UNC-W) decisioned J. Stortz (ECU) 8-4

158 lbs. B. Hall (ECU) decisioned F. Kee (UNC-W) 7-4

167 lbs. D. Hughes (UNC-W) by default over D.O. Lena (ECU)

177 lbs. J. Cox (ECU) pinned B. Becher (UNC-W)

190 lbs. J. Coleman (ECU) pinned P. Lepinois (UNC-W)

Unlim. J. Huber (ECU) pinned P. Canady (UNC-W)

SUPPORT THE HAWKS

at the

DRAFT TREE

All the DRAFT BEER

or Set Ups you can drink

in 3 hours 5:00 to 8:00

$3.00 Men

$1.00 Ladies

Featuring

Ed Danilowicz on guitar and piano

Old Time Movies and Free Popcorn

Hot Roast Beef or Turkey Sandwich $1.00

DRAFT
TREE

is accepting Applications For Cocktail Waitress positions
in the Lounge

Contact Mr. Nickerson daily 4 PM-10pm
763-9881

Thank

Goodness

Vets

Friday

Mrs. Anne M. Fitzgibbons, professor of Drama and Speech, reviews work from her class in 'Survey of World Cinema.' (Staff Photo)

Students study TV

Three students, Janice Asbell, Pete Epperly, and Bryan Fann, are involved in a directed individual study project designed for learning the workings of a Television station.

The program, sponsored by the Drama and Speech Department, resulted from the efforts of Dr. Terry Rogers and representatives of Channel 3.

Professor Betty Jo Welch will be supervising the course and will frequently consult with the students on the program. John Mangum, station news director, will teach the course.

During the semester, each student will receive experience in five different departments at the station.

The class is currently gaining an understanding of the production department, which specializes in preparing local telecasts and advertisements.

The students will next be concerned with sales and management. This part of the course calls for instruction in selling advertising time to various companies as well as training for supervisory capacities.

Towards the middle of the semester, the group will work in the traffic department, which is involved in drawing up each day's schedule of jobs to be done. The students will also get some experience in the film section, where they will learn to edit the material that goes into a telecast.

Near the end of the semester, the class will be involved in the news department, which is responsible for gathering, writing, and reporting the news.

To complete the program, all three students will be required to write course evaluation papers in which they will state how valuable the program has been to them.

Besides sponsoring the course at the TV station, the Drama and Speech Dept. also is helping a number of Brunswick County high school students to set up an oratorical contest.

Mrs. Welch met with several students from the Brunswick County school system recently to advise them on this matter. The contest was made possible by the donation of a large sum of money by a private citizen of that county.

Just What Privileges Does A Student Discount Club Member Get?

□ The Student Discount Club card is honored for discounts from retail at more than 5,000 local merchants throughout the United States and Canada. Reg. Price: $3

□ The International Student Discount Card is honored for discounts from retail at more than 2,000 participating merchants in Europe. Reg. Price: $10

□ The Canadian Pacific Airlines Youth Fare Card is honored by 19 US Airlines and 2 Canadian Airlines for up to 50% discount on air travel in North America. Reg. Price: $3

□ The Canadian National Railways Card is honored for 25% discount on rail travel in Canada and youth discounts on Grand Truck Western Lines (Railroad) in the U.S. Reg. Price $2

As a Student Discount Club member you get all these cards, for a one unit price of $5, plus a national accounts directory crammed full of unusual offers like

- an Eastman Kodak Instamatic Camera plus color film, batteries and flash cube for $6.95.
- a Summer Jobs in Europe program.
- purchase programs on American automobiles at $100 over dealer cost.
- over 200 magazines at discounted student prices.
- purchase programs on European automobiles at substantial discounts from retail.
- free film to fit instamatic cameras.
- discount room privileges at Hilton Hotels, Quality Motels and Ramada Inns.
- info on charter flights to Europe.

To get your Student Discount Club membership, just complete the attached coupon and mail it along with your check for $5 to Student Discount Club.

Dear Sirs: Enclosed is my Check for $5.00

NAME _____

PERMANENT ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

MAIL TO: Student Discount Club, P.O. Box 10817, St. Petersburg, Florida 33733

AGE _____ MAIL TO: _____

SCHOOL ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

☐ Permanent Address
☐ School

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's

"It's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Administrative Briefs

CAMPUS SECURITY OFFICE:

All students should register the 1972 license tag number between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

South 40 parking lot always has plenty of space. Save time by parking there instead of driving around looking for a space or risking a parking ticket by double-parking.

STUDENT AFFAIRS OFFICE:

All Veterans who plan to use GI benefits should check by Dean Brown's office to see if their benefits are certified by February 1.

PLACEMENT BUREAU:

"College Placement Annuals" for Seniors. 544 pages of information about careers (other than teaching) and information about resume, business-letter-writing, etc.

Pamphlets for Seniors, "Making the Most of Your Job Interview." 94 questions about professional interviews.

Both book and pamphlet are FREE.

DEAN OF FACULTY OFFICE:

Joan Hunoval, A-114, is organizing "Let's Get the Faculty Organized for the Faculty Regalia." If any of the faculty has change of degree or had the wrong color outfit last year, let Joan know so she can change the orders. She also has information for anyone wanting to buy their regalia. Deadline for change of regalia is February 10.

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE:

Pat wants to thank all the students for their help in getting an addition to the bookstore.

New book in the bookstore — Kentucky Bourbon, by Dr. Henry G. Crowgey, published by the University of Kentucky, 1971.

LIBRARY:

New Library assistants for this semester: Cathy Lazarides, Cynthia Scott, Edna Taylor, David Shymanski, David Smith. Two former assistants from two semesters ago — Elvira Hernandez and Freddie Key.

"I always hated those bastards on welfare... now I am one."

SAVE UP TO 50%

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES ON POPULAR MAGAZINES

Student Periodicals handles the largest selection of magazines and newspapers available at student rates. Just check the ones that you wish to order. If you are interested in student subscriptions on publications not listed, we'll be happy to answer your inquiries.

Unless otherwise indicated, all subscriptions are for one year. Because of the wide selection and low low prices, we require payment in full with all orders. Please allow 3 to 17 weeks for delivery of the first copy and 13 weeks for renewals. If your order is a renewal of a present subscription; either copy the address label exactly or enclose it with order. All prices are subject to publishers' changes. If you desire split issues (part coming to your school address and part coming to your home address), please indicate correct addresses and corresponding dates on a separate sheet. All orders will be acknowledged after your check clears.

[] AMERICAN ARTIST 8 mos.	7.27
[] AMERICAN ASTROLOGY	3.50
[] AMERICAN GIRL 13 iss.	3.77
[] AMERICAN HOME	2.97
[] ANALOG	4.00
[] APARTMENT IDEAS 1½ yrs.	3.95
[] ARGOSY	3.50
[] ART IN AMERICA	13.50
[] ART NEWS	6.50
[] ATLANTIC MONTHLY	5.25
[] ATLAS	5.00
[] AUDIO	2.50
[] BETTER HOMES 15 iss.	4.75
[] BLACK WORLD	4.00
[] BOATING	3.50
[] BOYS LIFE 24 mos.	5.00
[] BRIDES	3.97
[] BUDGET DECORATING	2.25
[] BUSINESS WEEK	7.50
[] CAMERA 35	4.00
[] CAMPING JOURNAL	3.00
[] CAR CRAFT	4.00
[] CAR & DRIVER	3.50
[] CATHOLIC DIGEST	2.97
[] CATS 8 mos.	3.50
[] CED	7.50
[] CHILDRENS DIGEST 10 iss.	3.98
[] CHRISTIAN HERALD 11 iss.	3.97
[] CHRISTIAN LIFE	4.00
[] CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR	7.50
[] 4 mos.	15.00
[] 8 mos.	22.50
[] 1 yr.	5.00
[] COMMENTARY	6.00
[] CONSUMERS REPORT	4.98
[] CUE 49 wks.	3.50
[] CYCLE	6.00
[] DOWNBEAT	6.00
[] EBONY	3.00
[] ELECTRONICS ILLUSTRATED	3.00
[] ELEMENTARY ELECTRONICS	3.00
[] ELLERY QUEEN	5.00
[] ESQUIRE	9.00
[] EVERGREEN	3.50
[] FAMILY HANDYMAN	3.00
[] FAMILY HEALTH	3.98
[] FIELD & STREAM	4.87
[] FISHING WORLD 2 yrs.	3.50
[] FLYING	2.50
[] FLOWER & GARDEN	7.50
[] FORRES	10.00
[] AFTER 5/15/72	8.50
[] FORTUNE	3.50
[] GLAMOUR	3.98
[] GOLDEN 10 iss.	4.77
[] GOLF DIGEST 11 iss.	3.50
[] GOLF MAGAZINE	2.97
[] GOOD HOUSEKEEPING	6.00
[] GRADE TEACHER	5.00
[] GUARDIAN (National)	2.92
[] GUNS & AMMO	3.50
[] HAIRDOS & BEAUTY	4.25
[] HARPERS BAZAAR
[] HARPERS MONTHLY

COMPLETE THIS ORDER BLANK AND MAIL TO:

Student Periodicals
Box 10817
St. Petersburg, Florida 33733

Name _____
Mailing Address for _____ Apt. _____
Magazines _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
School _____
Yr. Studies End _____ [] Graduate Student [] Undergraduate

V 6 0 2 4 - 4

[] HOLIDAY	5.00
[] HIGH FIDELITY	3.98
[] HORTICULTURE 8 mos.	4.00
[] HOT ROD	6.00
[] HUMPTY DUMPTY 10 iss.	3.98
[] HOME GARDEN 12 iss.	5.00
[] HOUSE & GARDEN	5.00
[] HOUSE BEAUTIFUL	3.50
[] INCOME OPPORTUNITY	5.00
[] INGENUE	2.50
[] INSTRUCTOR	7.00
[] ISRAEL	7.50
[] JACK & JILL	4.87
[] JERUSALEM POST	18.00
[] JET	8.75
[] JOURNAL OF LEARNING	8.00
[] DISABILITIES	2.97
[] LADIES HOME JOURNAL	6.00
[] LIFE	12.00
[] LIFE 2 yrs.	3.50
[] MADAMOISELLE	2.50
[] MCALLS	2.40
[] MECHANIX II ILLUSTRATED	2.00
[] MODERN BRIDE	3.00
[] MODERN FRANCHISING	3.98
[] MODERN PHOTOGRAPHY	3.50
[] MODERN ROMANCES	3.50
[] MODERN SCREEN	3.50
[] MOTOR BOATING & SAILING	3.00
[] MOTO TREND	8.00
[] NATION	8.00
[] NEW YORK	8.00
[] NY REVIEW OF BOOKS	6.00
[] NEW REPUBLIC	7.00
[] NEW YORKER	6.00
[] NEWSWEEK 17 wks.	2.75
[] 34 wks.	4.75
[] 1 yr.	7.00
[] 2 yrs.	14.00
[] OUTDOOR LIFE	3.00
[] PARENTS	2.98
[] PENTHOUSE	8.00

[] PHOTOPLAY	4.00
[] PLAYBOY	8.50
[] POPULAR ELECTRONICS	3.00
[] POPULAR MECHANICS	2.50
[] POPULAR PHOTOGRAPHY	3.50
[] POPULAR SCIENCE	3.00
[] PROGRESSIVE	6.00
[] PSYCHOLOGY TODAY	2.50
[] RADIO ELECTRONICS	5.25
[] RAGS 9 mos.	3.75
[] RAMPARTS 8 mos.	3.99
[] READER'S DIGEST	2.50
[] REALITIES (Fr/Eng)	13.95
[] REDBOOK	2.50
[] ROLLING STONE	10.00
[] RUDDER 10 iss.	3.97
[] SAIL	6.00
[] SALT WATER SPORTSMAN	4.00
[] SAN FRANCISCO JOB NEWS	4.00
[] SATURDAY REVIEW	6.00
[] SCIENCE & ELECTRONICS	3.50
[] SCIENCE & MECHANICS	2.98
[] SEVENTEEN	5.00
[] SKI	2.50
[] SKIING	2.00
[] SKIN DIVER	6.00
[] SOUTHERN OUTDOORS	3.50
[] SPORT	3.00
[] SPORTING NEWS	12.75
[] SPORTS AFIELD	2.50
[] SPORTS ILLUSTRATED	8.50
[] SPORTS ILLUSTRATED 40 iss.	5.00
[] STEREO REVIEW	3.50
[] TAN 8 iss.	2.75
[] TAN	3.50
[] TEEN	4.00
[] TENNIS	3.50
[] TIME 24 iss.	5.00
[] TOWN & COUNTRY	6.00
[] TRAILER LIFE	3.98
[] TRAILER TRAVELER	3.98
[] TRUE 10 iss.	3.94
[] TRUE STORY	3.00
[] TV GUIDE 38 wks.	3.98
[] TV GUIDE 51 wks.	5.35
[] TV GUIDE	5.50
[] TV RADIO MIRROR	4.00
[] US NEWS & WORLD REPORT
[] 23 wks.	2.75
[] 38 wks.	4.50
[] 1 yr.	6.00
[] VILLAGE VOICE	5.00
[] VOGUE	6.50
[] WALL ST & US BUSINESS	5.00
[] WEIGHT WATCHERS	3.50
[] YOUNG MISS 10 iss.	3.98

SPECIAL OFFERS

[] 1,000 Name and Address Labels	1.00
[] 100 Photo Stamps (Send Photo)	3.00
[] 3 Line Return Address
[] Rubber Stamp	2.50
[] 4 Line Return Address
[] Rubber Stamp	3.00

YOU CAN BUY

BIC

AT THE BOOKSTORE

Writes First Time — Every Time

MEDIUM POINT .19
FINE POINT .25
ACCOUNTANT FINE POINT .49

} BLUE BLACK
RED GREEN

BIC CLIC .49

REFILLS .25

ALL NEW BIC 4 COLOR PEN .98

BLACK-BLUE-GREEN-RED

FINE OR MEDIUM POINT

REFILLS .19

THE BOOKSTORE HAS YOUR CAMPUS AND OTHER NEEDS AS WELL!

- TEXTBOOKS
- NOTEBOOKS
- PAPER
- ART SUPPLIES
- MONARCH NOTES
- DICTIONARIES,
ENGLISH AND FOREIGN
- CANDLE
- POSTERS
- PATCHES
- INCENSE
- CARDS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
- WALL PHOTOGRAPHS
- INFLATABLE AND STUFFED ANIMALS, ETC.
- LARGE WALL CALENDERS
- TOILETRIES
- BEST SELLING PAPERBACKS
- UMBRELLAS
- UNC-W SHIRTS
- UNC-W COATS
- UNC-W LAUNDRY BAGS
- UNC-W JEWELRY
- UNC-W MUGS, CUPS AND ASHTRAYS

VISIT THE BOOKSTORE SOON

the seahawk

VOLUME 13 NUMBER 14

UNC - WILMINGTON

FEBRUARY 1, 1972

Registration Planned

A Student Government Association request involving a campus voter registration effort was approved by the New Hanover County Board of Elections last week.

The request was an attempt by Student Government Association President, Ed Boylan, to obtain 100 percent student voter registration in New Hanover County.

"The request was well received by the Chairman of the board members," said Boylan, "and could most probably bring about a campus registration facility."

Boylan continued to say that it is now left up to the Student Government Association to determine the number of unregistered eligible New Hanover County student voters at UNC-W. This in turn would be reported to the Elections Board for a decision concerning a campus registration facility or other action.

Due to Boylan's request, the Student Governments of New Hanover and Hoggard High Schools also have submitted their own requests similar to UNC-W's.

A telephone solicitation, polls, and other means will be employed to obtain the number of eligible unregistered student voters according to Boylan.

Requirements for registration, according to the New Hanover Board of Elections, is that one must be 18 years of age and show proof of age such as driver's license or birth certificate, be at least a one year resident of North Carolina, and a thirty day resident of New Hanover County.

According to the New Hanover County Board of Elections sources, the New Hanover County Commissioner allotted a specified amount of money to be used for voter - registration drives outside of the Board of Elections office downtown at 14 N. 3rd. St.

Also in regards to student voting, the State Board of Elections and the Attorney General's office published a letter which stated, "Students will not be registered in counties where they are temporarily residing while attending a business school, trade school, college, or university. Any applicant who is determined to be a 'student' should be advised that he is eligible to register and vote in county or state of his legal residence only!!"

EASTERN SEABOARD — Homecoming Dance will feature Eastern Seaboard at the Cape Fear Ballroom, Friday, 9:00 p.m. till 1 a.m. Free admission with I.D.

Curriculum Committee Meets

The curriculum committee is currently meeting weekly to seek for ways of improving UNC-W's basic studies program.

Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, chairman of the committee, said "We hope that by the end of the semester we will be able to make some recommendations to the faculty. We might leave the basic studies program as it is or perhaps put a number of changes into it."

Concerning representation on the committee, Dr. Plyler revealed that in the '70-'71 school year there were approximately 7 faculty members and 3 students serving. "In an early fall meeting last year," he (noted) "the faculty as a whole approved a faculty governance document, which allowed each academic department to have one representative on the committee." He observed that this document increased the committee to its present size of about 22 faculty members and 3 students.

"There was some discussion at this same meeting about having more students on the committee, but the idea never got off the ground," he said.

Asked what could be done to increase student representation on the committee, Dr. Plyler stated, "If the students are interested in increasing representation, it would be a good idea for the SGA to circulate a petition among the students and present the list of signatures to the faculty at one of their meetings."

The committee chairman added that even without a greater amount of student representation, any student is allowed to present ideas at a committee meeting. "All I ask," he said, "is that the student check with me first at my office in room 113 in Hoggard Hall."

In concluding remarks, Dr. Plyler expressed some thoughts on the influence of the curriculum committee. He stated, "The committee has the power to make recommendations to the faculty about any curriculum changes. Lately, the faculty has met our proposals with complete co-operation."

Mayor Fails to Speak

Mayor B.D. Schwartz, due to speak for a gathering of the Wantu Wazuri and other students, failed to show for the 11:30 a.m. engagement last Thursday in Kenan Hall.

Approximately 30 students waited an hour and a half, for the Mayor who was to speak on coming issues to alleviate racial problems in Wilmington. According to Schwartz, the event was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. not 11:30 a.m.

"A Mr. Kuretin' called my office and offered us two times, 1:30 p.m. and 11:30 a.m.," Schwartz explained, "My office accepted the 1:30 engagement."

The mayor went on to say that he was at Kenan Hall at 1:15 p.m. and waited several minutes, but left upon learning of the error.

"I certainly regret the mix-up: I did not intentionally forget or avoid the meeting, and I am willing to appear at any time in the future," said Schwartz.

Officials of Wantu Wazuri could not be reached for comment.

LIGHTHOUSE

An eleven member Canadian rock band will appear in concert this Thursday night highlighting UNC-W homecoming week. "Take It Slow", the group's current single, is assuring them roots in the American rock scene. Tickets are available for $2.50 at SGA office in Pub during school hours. Students are limited to 2 tickets per I.D. Tickets $3 at door.

— Homecoming 1972 —

SEASQUAWKS

POLLUTION CONTROL?

An after-lunch scene at the UNC-W Snack Bar. (Staff Photo)

A World of Weddings

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 24 — Seeking a spouse? Where in the world to go?

Surprisingly, and despite frequent commentary to the contrary, you might try staying at home. The marriage rate in the United States has risen 26 percent in the last decade, according to a recently released study on international marriage trends by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Last year, the United States recorded 10.6 marriages per 1,000 population, compared to a record low of 8.4 in 1961, and now has the highest rate in the world.

Nevertheless, note Metropolitan Life's statisticians, although the United States ranks high, our neighbor to the north, Canada, might also be a good bet. In the past seven years alone, Canadian marriages increased more than 27 percent, with the annual number of marriages reaching new highs in each of the last three years.

European areas showed diverse marriage trends. According to Metropolitan Life, the marriage rate for the period between 1960-64 and 1969 (or 1970 where available), increased in 10 countries, decreased in 11, and showed little change in Denmark and Yugoslavia. A journey to the Netherlands, where the newlywed rate of increase is the highest in all of Europe — 18.3 percent — might prove successful. Bulgaria, on the other hand, might be less promising, for it recorded the lowest rate of increase in all Europe — 4.3 percent.

And trips to Romania and Sweden, where the rate of marriages decreased by 25.8 and 25.4 percent respectively, should probably be scratched from the itinerary entirely this year. Sweden reported the lowest rate of marriage in all of Europe last year — 5.3 per 1,000 population compared with an annual average of 7.1 in 1969-64. The Soviet Union's current marriage rate of 9.7 per 1,000 population is the highest of any European nation, but represents only a slight upswing following several years of a downward trend there, the statisticians note.

As for the Middle East and Asia, only Israel and Japan have reported complete marriage statistics for the past 10 years. Israel's rate of increase — the highest of any country reviewed — is a startling 32.9 percent, while Japan's is a relatively low 3.1 percent, concluded Metropolitan Life's study.

pleasing. That doesn't justify the polluting smog, but it creates a new and positive viewpoint where even the ugliness of pollution can have its own beauty.

Truthfully, I haven't resolved my own guilt feelings about being irrelevant. True Confession: In my city, The Lucy Show is on at the same time as the Evening News. So I sit near the color television — receiving radiation — and constantly recycle the channels back and forth from one show to the other. Last night, Lucy talked about the casualties in Viet Nam while Walter Cronkite put on a Charlie Chaplin costume and danced at a PTA meeting. It all evens out.

The Relevancy of Relevance

By RICK MITZ

True Confession: I laugh at "All In The Family" and have gotten so used to growing up with Lucy on TV that I just can't cut the cord. I run the water while I brush my teeth. I use Tide. And two-ply toilet paper. Blue. With those little fleurs de lis on them. Because they match the motif of my bathroom.

I enjoy blazing fires in my fireplace. The last movie I saw was "Lady and the Tramp," which exploits women. My bottles are non-returnable and I don't separate my garbage; which I burn in my blazing fireplace.

I just can't help it. I'm a failure at relevance.

There are, however, some things about which I am relevant. I don't have a snowmobile or a sable coat. But that's about it. I read the wrong things (Nash, not Yevtushenko). I eat the wrong things (meat, not brown rice). I enjoy the wrong theatre (Neil Simon, not Albee).

So what can I do? I am a product of an educational system and a bio-degradable environment that makes me feel I have to take the pleasure out of pleasure, the enjoyment out of enjoying.

But what's so relevant about relevancy anyway?

A while ago, I visited the University of Wisconsin campus at Green Bay — a college totally devoted to the study of ecology. There one student told me, "It's okay, but you feel guilty doing anything that's not relevant." I thought the remark was ridiculous. After a day there, I found myself checking the soap in the school lav soap dishes to make sure they were using the Right Kind.

So what is relevant? Bicycling? Good for the environment. Cuts down on air pollution. But I don't like bicycling. It's not good for my psychological environment.

And what is meaningful? It's the hey-day of the academic radical chic where everything must have a Profound Meaning; where anything more than a pair of jeans and a stereo system borders on decadence; where back-to-earth means back-to-dearth.

Ecology, racism, women's liberation, war and the rest of the list are all important issues. Too often, it seems that it's not the issues that are significant but only the relevance of the issues. We feel guilty if we're not doing what's Right, and we feel wrong if we're not feeling the guilt.

There are things — little and big — that can be enjoyed. For their own sake. And for no other reason. Too often the Relevance Regalia focuses only on what's not there rather than what exists.

For some people, perhaps, the patterns of smog formed from a dingy smoke stack might be aesthetically

'RAH.'-Lily Tomlin

By TIMS SIMS

"Rah". — Lily Tomlin.

Recently on campus, several not-so-notable (or noticeable) attempts have been made on the part of someone to resurrect that tradition of the fifties and sixties in colleges and universities called, "school spirit". Some of you have probably noticed these insane pleas (backdropped by bad poster art), attached to the walls in various buildings around campus, for our student body to generate and experience what someone has mis-named, "school spirit". One wonders why the attempt is even made.

First of all, our "student body" is not a body at all - not even a dismembered body. There is absolutely zero evidence that any large segment of the students at UNC-W are behind any one idea or program at all, much less participating in that mystical what-ever called "school spirit"; unless it is that we all are in agreement to be disunited.

Secondly, what the perpetrators of the fable of "school spirit" usually mean is "support the athletic team" — in particular, at the moment, our ill-fortuned basketball team. So we have a problem of definition.

If schools, and particularly those concerned with higher education, are to have any kind of "spirit" at all, it really should be in keeping with the primary purpose of the school, not with some in consequential program like organized athletics. That is, the spirit of a university should academically oriented.

Third, if the student body is really a body, and it somehow manages to procreate "school spirit", in the sense of what such leftovers from another era as cheerleaders and boys who wear letter-jackets mean (ergo, support the team), nothing of any importance has been accomplished; at least not in relation to what universities ought to accomplish.

Finally, it would seem that by the time we have begun to face issues in our world and in ourselves, we could come up with something better to do than to preserve another useless tradition. After all, our generation has had a great deal to say on that subject.

Perhaps there may be some value to an athletically-oriented "school spirit", if we as students cannot achieve anything else. But if there is, the majority of the students at UNC-W do not feel so, since they have not tried seriously to establish any school spirit.

And for those feeble few who have, "Rah".

the
seahawk

Editor Jane Divine
Assistant Editor Ron Dunn
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporting staff Grace Parker, Tim Sims
Kathy Tyner, Mike Jones

Business office located on the second story of the Student Services Building, UNC-W, Wilmington, N.C., 28401

'He's the one I'd recognize him anywhere!'

Administrative briefs

INSTITUTIONAL RESEARCH

"Great Decisions Group," an open discussion of current events sponsored by Foreign Policy Association will meet once a week for eight weeks, beginning February 3, 7:00 p.m. in the library conference room. Books are provided (all eight topics included in one book), but personal copies can be bought for $3.00.

History and Political Science Department members will be the topic leaders. The first topic will be "Vietnam and After: What Lessons Have We Learned?"

DEAN OF FACULTY

Thursday, February 3, 1972, is the last day to drop single courses without receiving a grade of F.

Seniors planning to graduate at the end of spring semester 1972 must file application for graduation in Registrar's Office by February 4, 1972. Those seniors failing to meet this deadline will not be given a chance to apply again until August.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Deadline for measurement of senior caps and gowns — February 11.

CAMPUS SECURITY OFFICE

Chief Dillon stresses that if you can not find a parking place anywhere else, try the South 40.

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE

New magazine rack. New shipment of Monarch Notes. Be careful about writing bad checks — you might end up on the bad check list.

Pat thinks maybe at the discretion of the students, the bookstore name might be changed from "Bookstore" to "Student Store" or something equally fitting.

Pat is planning to order more composition books — wants to know if UNC-W insignia suits everyone, or if some would prefer plain composition books (also, what color?).

BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT

New degree in Marine Biology beginning Fall Semester 1972. Easy transition for Biology majors wanting Marine Biology.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Hopefully plans to move into new building in February.

Dr. E.M. West to attend the North Carolina Council on Technical and Managerial Services (organization to help businesses) workshop February 2-3.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT

Dan Robinson has been accepted to the School of Optometry at the University of Alabama.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Student teachers start observing at schools in this area the week of February 7.

District meeting of Cluster Co-ordinators — February 8. Students from the education departments of five different campuses will meet in Education Building to discuss ideas, nominate incoming Cluster leader.

Signals Delayed

The North Carolina State Highway Commission announced last week that the stop lights at the College - Randall intersection have not been installed yet due to delays in getting certain control equipment.

According to J.H. Medlin, Division Engineer, the control equipment should be available in a couple of weeks. He also said that before the lights can be installed, the highway commission must install power poles and magnetic loop detectors, hang all equipment, and change lane markings.

Asked if feasibility studies are being made for signals at the gym entrance, Mr. Medlin said, "We hope that after these first lights go up and UNC-W gets another cross-campus connector that there won't be a need for any lights at the College - Riegall intersection." He added, however, that feasibility studies are constantly being made at all major intersections to get an idea of the current traffic two at each.

ExPlo '72

EXPLO '72, the International Student Congress on Evangelism, will be the subject of a 20-minute, color film to be shown on Thursday, February 3, 7:00 p.m. at the Kenan Building No. 121 of UNC-W.

EXPLO '72, short for "Spiritual Explosion 1972," will be held June 12-17 in Dallas, Tex. and is being sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International, headquartered in Arrowhead Springs, California.

Upwards to 100,000 college and high school students, lay men and women and clergy are expected to attend the Congress and be trained in how to share the claims of Jesus Christ with others and how to experience the abundant Christian life.

Evangelist Billy Graham, Honorary Chairman for EXPLO '72, describes the Congress in the film as what "could be the most significant and historic student gathering of our century." Graham and world Christian leaders will be major speakers at the week long gathering.

The film describes the purpose, content, and potential impact of the six-day conference. It also tells the story of a movement of tens of thousands of Christians who are carrying the claims of Jesus Christ to the world. The New Folk, Campus Crusade's own musical team, provide the film's background music. Interdenominational Christian movement which was founded at A.C.L.A. in 1951 by a young businessman named Bill Bright. The organization functions today as an evangelical arm of the local church.

Campus Crusade is active on some 500 college and high school campuses in the United States, as well as in 44 foreign countries. The staff numbers more than 2,700.

EXPLO '72 brochures are in the lobby of the Pub, or persons may phone Dickie Miller at 762-4950. Admission is free.

Search for Tomorrow

HOMEcoming QUEEN candidates will be introduced at 11:30, Feb. 1, at the Pub.

POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL game, weiner roast, pep rally, and bonfire Feb. 1, 7 p.m. at South 40.

HOMEcoming QUEEN election day, Feb. 2. TRYOUTS FOR "Wonderful Town" will be Feb. 2-3, 7:30 p.m. in band room at Kenan Hall. Parts open include actors, singers, dancers, and backstage workers.

BASKETBALL — SEAHAWKS VS St. Andrews College at Wilmington, Wed., 7:30 p.m., Feb. 2: Homecoming Queen will be announced at half time. Atlantic Christian College at Wilmington, Saturday, 8:00 p.m., Feb. 5; vs Pembroke State University at Pembroke, Mon. 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7; vs Campbell College at Wilmington, Wed., 7:30 p.m., Feb. 9.

HOMEcoming PARADE — 11:30, Feb. 3. Starts from South 40.

LIGHTHOUSE CONCERT — 8 p.m. Gym.

BICYCLE RIDERS organizational meeting will be held Thursday, February 3, 7 p.m. at the UNC-W Library Auditorium. All cyclists welcome. "Cyclist City — Project Environment."

EXPLO "72" will be presented Thursday, February 3 at 7 p.m. in Kenan 121.

ICE STATION ZEBRA, STARRING ROCK HUDSON will be presented by the Fine Arts Committee at 8 p.m., Friday, February 4, in Kenan Auditorium. The picture concerns a nuclear submarine and its run to the Arctic against the Russians in search of a top secret microfilm. Students — 25 cents or season pass. Guests — 25 cents. Faculty or staff — $1.00.

DEBATE TEAM vs University of Georgia in Georgia, Varsity division, Feb. 4.

WRESTLING — SEAHAWKS VS St. Andrews at Wilmington, 5:30 p.m., Wed. Feb. 2; vs Appalachian State at Boone, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 4; vs Western Carolina at Wilmington, 7:30 p.m. Fri. February 11.

DANCE — FEATURING Eastern Seaboard, Cape Fear Hotel Ballroom 9 p.m. thru 1 a.m., Feb. 4.

OLD TIMER'S GAME — 5:30 p.m. in the gym.

HOMEcoming QUEEN CROWNED at half-time of ballgame, UNC-W vs Atlantic Christian College, Feb. 5, 7:30 p.m.

DANCE WITH "Mark V", 9 p.m. thru 1 a.m. in the Pub, Feb. 5.

"PINOCCHIO" will be presented by the Pied Piper Theatre, 10 a.m., Feb. 7-11, each day. No charge. Kenan Auditorium.

UNIVERSITY MUSIC SERIES will present the North Carolina Dance Theatre, Tuesday, February 8, 8:30 p.m. in the Kenan Auditorium. Admission free upon presentation of I.D. card.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB meets Feb. 8, 4 p.m. in E-206.

Inquiry

Q — When is the deadline of the Seahawk?

A — Thursday evening at 5:00.

Q — Where and how may I receive an answer for any questions I may have concerning areas of campus life?

A — This column will be devoted to answering questions of the student body concerning any aspect of the campus environment. Either drop a note in the Seahawk basket, located in the Cashier's Office in the A-building, or bring your question to the Seahawk office located upstairs in the Pub, or, call the question in to the Seahawk office at: 791-8055.

AARDVARK - EATER of the week.

How can the Student Government Association better serve you?

Billy Simons: "It hasn't been too good, and it shouldn't be so dependent on the administration";

Abbey Henry: "Students have no contact with SGA — that's one of the biggest problems."

Earl Williams: "It should get more people involved in it — that's why there's so much indifference."

Pat Clontz: "It needs more publicity."

Mike Campbell: "I think they ought to change the rule about cut policies."

Doug Donald: "What SGA?"

Butch McLaughlin: "We ought to get some better officers."

Dan Rooney: "It should keep me more informed of what they're doing".

Lee Williams: "It ought to open the gym on weekends and sponsor more things on weekends. There's nothing to do but sleep."

Swedish Students Decrease

By SAL FERRERA
PARIS, France (CPS) — While universities around the world issue alarming reports on the massive increase in the student population that is crowding the campuses, Sweden seems to be a notable exception. But nobody is very happy about it. The problem is that a university education is simply no help to students seeking good jobs. As a result, the enrollment in Sweden's five universities at the beginning of the current academic year dropped by nearly 10,000 students.

According to statistics compiled by the Central Organization of Swedish Professional Workers (SACO), which represents many Swedish university graduates, up to 16 percent of the 12,000 students who graduated in 1969-70 are unemployed. Looking to the future, Finance Minister Gunnar Strang has predicted that enrollment during the next decade will remain "almost static" compared with the world wide educational boom of the previous decade — an era which resulted in one out every four Swedes going to a university.

The reason for the "static" rate of enrollment will not be entirely due to the increase in the numbers of voluntary dropouts Minister Strang would like to see more rigid admission standards and an end to "free faculties" which allow students to take courses for no other reason than they wish to. (A reason most students would consider sufficient.) He would also like to cut down on the numbers of students in liberal arts studies and encourage the more "practical studies."

The liberal arts graduates themselves would be the first to agree that there are too many liberal arts students.

SACO information director, Ingemar Elving, recently summed up the situation when he noted, "Many Swedish degrees are worthless in today's world. Course content is too theoretical, too far removed from reality."

Student Profiles

By TERESA GARNER
Journalism Class

A look inside The Seahawk door will reveal a small brunette, with huge octagonal glasses, perched behind a huge desk. This is how Seahawk editor Jane Divine spends almost eight hours of her ten-hour school day.

With a journalism background of two years on the NHHS Wildcat, and one year on the Seahawk, the sophomore editor admits, "I opened my mouth one time too many and acquired the position of editor."

Miss Divine, 19, lives with her family in Wilmington and has one older sister. She is majoring in creative arts at UNC-W, and wants to work with children and teenagers "to bring out the inside person in them." She feels that people have many different moods and that through movement, music, and general creativity, they can learn to express their personalities better.

This is what Jane does herself. She gets so involved in the paper, she lets herself completely go. She loves melodrama — "You learn to cut up and have fun while exercising a strict sense of timing", and dramas —

Jane Divine

"because they drain everything out of you, but you have to keep going on."

Miss Divine spends her summers with the theatre. Last summer she spent with the Straw Hat Theatre (and loved every minute of it) and plans to spend the coming summer with the SRO Theatre.

Her plans for the paper? "I want to see the paper grow more professional, to be something people want to read. This spring we have extra help — people who know how to organize. It's going to be a much improved paper. Also we're trying to be more responsive to student demands and we'd like constructive criticism."

Come see our Candles
Come see our books
Come see the BOOKSTORE'S
Classy new looks

We've remodeled and then some
So give us a try
And look for the magazine
You'll all want to buy

We all want to serve you
So Come on and see
The BOOKSTORE'S new face lift For students, staff and faculty

Pied Piper

The Pied Piper Theatre will present a musical version of the famous and popular story "Pinocchio" beginning Monday, February 7, and ending Friday, February 11 at 10 a.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

One performance will be held at 10:30 a.m. on February 4 for the kindergartens in the area and a final presentation will be offered on Sunday, February 13, at 3:00 p.m. for the interested public and residents in the vicinity. There will be no charge for admission.

"Pinocchio" is the story of a little wooden puppet's troubles and adventures. A carpenter named Geppetto, played by Eddie Thompson, carves a puppet out of wood and names it Pinocchio, portrayed by Rhessa Stone. The Pink Fairy, Cassandra, promises Pinocchio that she will watch over him and that he can become a real boy if he is kind and good. The next morning Geppetto sends Pinocchio to school.

On his way Pinocchio meets Esmeralda and Dumb-Dumb who are gypsy puppeteers, played by Shirley Dols and Julia Godley, respectively. They promise Pinocchio fame and fortune and lure him to act in their show.

A production number is featured at this point with Martha Beery, Nancy Bullard, Pat Mebane, Toppy Robinson, Linda Shelhart, Becky Shuford, Jean Anne Sutton and Lynn White as puppets in a dance choreographed by Kay Swink.

When Esmeralda refuses to pay him, Pinocchio escapes and encounters Fox and Cat, played by Virginia Holland and Ruth Elford, respectively. They trick Pinocchio out of his money by telling him to plant it in the Field of Miracles and a money tree will grow.

The Pink Fairy, played by Ann Butler, appears and helps him to escape and shows how he has erred. Pinocchio is finally reunited with his father, Geppetto in the belly of a whale and upon their escape is made a "real live boy."

Pianists for the musical version of "Pinocchio" are Helen Willetts and Charles Harris. Scenery is being executed by the Beggars Theatre and costumes by Sue Davis and Romana Warren.

Betsy Ormand is production manager and the director is Doug W. Swink with Tim Wesner creating the lighting effects.

North Carolina Dance Theatre to Perform

The University Music Series will present the North Carolina Dance Theatre at 8:30 p.m., Tues. Feb. 8 in Kenan Auditorium.

Established with the aid of a grant from the Rockefeller foundation, the North Carolina Dance Theatre is a professional company of 14 to 16 dancers, resident at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. With a repertoire of classical ballet and modern works, the Dance Theatre tours primarily in the southeastern region.

The Theatre maintains an apprentice program for out standing dancers in the NCSA School of Dance, and many members of the permanent company are alumni of the school. With training available in ballet and modern, the School of Dance couples this curriculum with an academic program leading to a high school diploma or a Bachelor's Degree in Fine Arts.

Robert Lindgren, producer of the Dance Theatre, is also Dean of the School of Dance. The distinguished faculty includes Nolan Dingman, Nelle Fisher, Pauline Koner Duncan Noble, Gyula Pandi, Gina Vidal, Joan Sanders, and Sonja Tyven.

The concert will be free to all students with ID cards.

Roommate Needed to occupy 65 foot trailer. Half of rent $67.50. Contact John Fraynor, 5429 Oleander Dr., Tel. 791-3306, 10:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.

The Seahawk needs several students to share in advertising and business duties. No experience necessary. If interested, come to the Seahawk office during the day of call 799-2060 after 6:00.

This marks the second year for the Pied Piper Theatre operating in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium. Last year the musical "The Clock Shop" by John Golden was played to over four thousand students in the Kindergartens and the second and third grades in the New Hanover School system.

UNIVERSITY MUSIC SERIES — presents the North Carolina Dance Theatre, Feb. 8 at 8:30 in Kenan Auditorium.

Lokal Flix

Bailey — thru Feb. 3 — "Carry on Camping"
Feb. 4 - 9 — "Vanishing Point"

Colony — Feb. 2-9 — "Cisro Pike"

Manor — Feb. 2-9 — "Dirty Harry"

Oleander Cinema No. 1 — Feb. 2-9 — "French Connection"

No. 2 — Feb. 29 — "Harold and Maud"

Star Way Drive-in — Feb. 1-3 — "Fist Full of Dollars"

"For a Few Dollars More"

Feb. 3-5 — "Doc"

"Outback"

6-8 "Drive! He Said."

"Buttercup Chain"

9-12 — "Welcome to the Club"

"Summer Tree"

Sky Line Drive-In — Feb. 2-8 — "Ginger"

*UNC-W Rings

*Diamond Rings

*Birthstone Rings

*Bulova Watches

Student Charge
Accounts

"Reed's for Diamonds"

Front and
Princess Sts.

Substance Compounded

Dr. Jack Levy, assisted by Courtland Symmes, Jr., Greg Nelson, Liz Buffington, and Wayne Whitehead (now in graduate school at the University of Tennessee), has compounded a new substance similar in molecular structure to chlorpromazine, a tranquilizing drug, in the Chemistry Laboratory.

Dr. Elmer Davidson, and Dr. Michael Bradley, assisted by Ed Lewis, Allen Hemby, and Bill Clark, plan now to test the substance in the Psychology Laboratory. Subjects used will be white mice.

The tests, performed in conjunction with Dr. Levy, will included measurements of toxicity, avoidance - response, spontaneous activity, and fear reduction.

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Tuesday

is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
Dr. Olds Public House

... WITH BILL GREEN ON PIANO
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

Running Stitch is created by piercing the fabric with small, even stitches. Variations include the whipped stitch (a) and the laced stitch (b), made by weaving contrast thread through running stitches only. Do not re-enter fabric. Possible uses: outlines and corded effects.

easy stitches.

Satin Stitch is used for smooth filling—perhaps a teddy bear's nose. Made with multiple straight stitches laid closely together, Satin Stitches should not exceed one-half inch, for they snag easily.

Cross Stitch, used in Early American samplers, is made with straight, parallel threads. Work all base stitches, then re-work in opposite direction for "cross."

French Knot looks best in closely massed groups. Bring thread and needle up through fabric and hold thread firmly about two inches from surface. Wind thread around needle three times, re-insert needle as close as possible to where it came out and pull the thread through very carefully.

Lazy Daisy suggests flower petals, its most frequent use. After drawing outline, bring floss up through center. Holding loop back to end of petal, re-insert needle into center and bring it out just inside loop. Anchor the tip with a short stitch.

Fishbone may look a little complicated, but is great for leaves, feathered effects, and filling small shapes. Make small stitch at A, bring thread out at B, and form sloping stitch across center line at A. Bring thread out at C. Repeat for motif.

Stitches soften stiffest stuff

By JANE DIVINE
Editor

Those bright emblems didn't come from the store on the jeans; somebody embroidered them. And not necessarily a girl, either.

At least one faded denim jacket at UNC-W was decorated by its owner, a tall, striking, blond fellow, who proudly stated, "Yeah, I did most of it, but I let my girl finish it for me."

Butterflies have lit on the worn-out softness of aged pant legs. "Those," commented a little coed short brown hair, pointing to two large, multi-colored Lepidoptera on her jeans, "were my Christmas holiday! I lived three weeks outside of them, just to get the creatures on there."

Flowers, from the simple daisy to almost-real bouquets, are not the only other alternative to plain clothes, as some people have chosen to let their garments speak.

Words, phrases, anything that's catchy, or appeals to the stitcher, might walk up on a hat, belt, spts, even totebags.

Embroidery has been found on Egyptian tombs, and the most ornate work has been traced to the Renaissance era throughout Europe.

And now the ancient art has been revived; dresser scarves and whimsies that Grandma did when she was little are being brought down from the attic, samplers are being rehung, and those who try embroidery are finding how simple the basic stitches are.

The type of thread of "floss" used for the needlework depends upon the type of embroidery to be made. Six-strand cotton works well on denim, and can be easily divided if it makes the design too bold. Try crewel yarn on wool or similar heavy fabrics. All embroidery threads should be colorfast.

Needles should be fine enough not to leave holds in the material, yet have large eyes that can carry the floss easily. And if the jeans are new, better have a thimble handy—those needles can get stuck, especially in closely woven, medium to heavy weight fabric.

Without a frame, that cute, little, fat-petaled flower may pull into an absolute mess when its washed. Wooden hoops come in assorted sizes and shapes, but metal frames with springs are suitable, also. Either are highly recommended.

If the jeans wear out quicker than the embroidery, applique it on something else!

Marine Lab conducts Seminar

The Wrightsville Beach Marine Bio-Medical Laboratory, under the direction of Dr. Ralph Brauer, is conducting a series of weekly seminars for the benefit of UNC-W students and all other interested parties.

The seminars, which were begun in October, are held each Friday at 4:00 p.m. at the marine lab. Guest speakers from many different universities are included in the programs along with interesting speakers from the Wilmington area.

On February 11, Dr. William Carr of the University of Florida will discuss "Chemo-Reception." Other speakers already scheduled include Dr. Donald Kapraun of UNC-W Biology Department and Morris Atkins of the Office of Saline Research.

Serving as co-ordinator for the weekly meetings is Dr. Michael Heeb, a member of the marine lab staff. Heeb reports that attendance at the seminars "has been 'satisfactory' thus far."

at the

DRAM TREE

All the DRAFT BEER
or Set Ups you can drink
in 3 hours 5:00 to 8:00

$3.00 Men

$1.00 Ladies

Featuring

Ed Danilowicz on guitar and piano
Old Time Movies and Free Popcorn
Hot Roast Beef or Turkey Sandwich $1.00

DRAM TREE

is accepting Applications For Cocktail Waitress positions
in the Lounge

Contact Mr. Nickerson daily 4 PM-10pm
763-9881

Sports Shorts

by Mike Jones

The 76-74 defeat of UNC by Duke two weeks ago has to rank as the upset of the year. Duke's tough 2-3 zone defense harried the Tar Heels throughout the game, causing costly fouls and numerous turnovers. Carolina, beating the Blue Devils in field goal percentage 31-62 to 22-42, had unusually poor luck at the line, hitting only 12 of 18 to Duke's 32-of-41. The defeat dropped the 'Heels from third to fifth in the national standings.

N.C. State's Tommy Burleson has been selected as the ACC's "Sophomore of the Week" for the second straight week. The 7-foot 4-inch center had 319 points thus far in the season for an average of 22.8. This puts Burleson second in the conference, behind national leader Bobby Jones of Carolina. Burleson also has a total of 44 rebounds.

The North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame Banquet is set for April 10 here in Wilmington. The event will be held at the Timme Plaza and will feature Wilmington natives Sonny Jurgensen and Roman Gabriel, as well as Bill Jamieson of Greensboro, and the late Jim Weaver, former commissioner of the ACC.

The NAIA's District 29 "Player of the Week" is Mark Wilson of Fayetteville's Methodist College. The 6-foot 3-inch senior forward has a season's average of 17 points per game and is one of the main reasons why the Monarchs are in First place. His consistent offensive and defensive play also accounts for the fact that this is the first time ever the Methodist team has won 10 games in one season.

Practice for the UNC-W Tennis Team began last Monday at 3:30. Tryouts will continue to be held until March 13. Any one interested should contact Coach Honeycutt in Hanover Hall.

ACCORDING TO THE LAST EDITION OF THE SEAHAWK...

Freshman officers must achieve at least a 15 average by the beginning of Spring Semester during their term of office...and...Nomination applications will be accepted through the 27th of January of the SGA office in the Pub. The vote will be held in lieu of the Homecoming Queen election, also stated for that date.

Don't believe it!!
Actually 15 should be "1.5" and in lieu should be "with." — RGD.

Freshman May Play

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (CPS) — All college freshmen will be eligible to participate in varsity football and basketball beginning Aug. 1. The announcement was made on Jan. 8 by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Assembly of Delegates at its annual meeting in Hollywood, Fla.

Technically, the new freshman ruling allows first-year players to participate only in post-season and championship NCAA events. Regular season competition is still up to conferences and individual schools.

Most basketball coaches were thought to be in favor of the new eligibility ruling, but many football coaches were dissatisfied with it. Coaches in the Big Eight Conference, which has the nation's top three teams — Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Colorado — were unanimously against the playing of freshmen. Big Ten coaches were also generally against the new ruling.

The NCAA delegation rejected an attempt to abolish the controversial 1.6 scholastic eligibility grade requirement. Also rejected was a motion to permit two outside scrimmages in addition to a 26-game basketball schedule.

NCAA Top 20
UCLA		14-0
Marquette		14-0
Louisville		12-1
Long Beach State		15-1
North Carolina		12-2
Ohio State		11-2
Southern California		11-2
South Carolina		10-3
Pennsylvania		10-2
Florida State		16-2
Virginia		12-1
S.W. Louisiana		12-1
Brigham Young		12-2
Minnesota		10-3
Missouri		13-2
Maryland		11-2
Princeton		10-3
Marshall		14-2
Hawaii (tie)		15-1
Fordham (tie)		10-4

NAIA District 29
Methodist	7-0	10-1
Elizabeth City State	5-0	9-7
Lynchburg	4-2	9-6
Campbell	4-2	10-8
Fayetteville State	4-2	9-6
UNC-Wilmington	3-2	3-8
Pembroke State	3-4	9-6
Shaw	2-3	8-6
Virginia State	2-3	7-7
Virginia Union	2-3	4-9
N.C. Wesleyan	3-6	5-10
Atlantic Christian	1-4	3-10
Hampton Institute	1-5	5-8
St. Andrews	1-5	2-13
Virginia Wesleyan	0-6	2-11

Every week, the Establishment trembles a little.

Because every week, a new issue of the Guardian appears.

It carries news of revolutionary developments in Asia, Africa and Latin America; the movements for black and women's liberation; the antiwar movement; the struggles of workers, prisoners and students; and critiques of contemporary culture—all analyzed for their implications and full meaning.

The Guardian is a radical newspaper with an independent political outlook. It cuts through the smokescreen of most other journals with their distortions, omissions and lies. It gets to the root of why the forces of liberation are challenging the power of the ruling class.

For example, Wilfred Burchett, the Guardian's Indochina correspondent, filed reports from Southeast Asia which were seven years ahead of the sensational (and profitable) "Pentagon Papers" disclosures.

If you want the real story, read the Guardian.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON CLASS RINGS

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

I NEED HELP!!! ENVELOPE STUFFERS—PART-TIME. $25

GUARANTEED FOR EVERY 100 ENVELOPES YOU STUFF. ALL

POSTAGE PRE-PAID. SEND STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE,

PLUS $1.00 FOR REGISTRATION AND HANDLING TO: ALLEN KING

CORP; P.O. BOX 6525, PGH; PA.; 15212.

mail to: Guardian, 32 W. 22nd St.
New York, New York 10010

Enclosed is:

- ☐ $10. for a regular one year sub. (for Canada and Latin America, add $2. per sub; elsewhere outside U.S., add $3.)
- ☐ $6. for a one year student sub.
- ☐ $1. for a ten-week trial sub.
- ☐ $1. for a one year G.I. or Prisoner sub. 2263

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
School _____

Hawks host AC

Saturday Night at 8:00 p.m. in Hanover Hall, the Seahawks will host Atlantic Christian College in the 1972 Homecoming Game.

The Owls are 1-4 in Dist. 29 play and 3-10 over all. A veteran team, AC is led by senior co-capt. Cliff Black. The 6'5" forward averaged 18.6 points per game last year, and received honorable mention in the NAIA All-American list. He also received AC's Most Outstanding Athlete on Campus Award. According to Seahawk head coach Bill Brooks, the entire AC offense is built around Black. "Last year they ran mostly a 'run ad shoot' type offense," he said, "but this year they are more experienced and more disciplined. They are more content to work the ball inside to Black or center Tom Bardin (6'11").

Leading the charge for the 'Hawks will be 6'5" forward Steve Langston. The freshman is UNC-W's leading scorer and rebounder, with averages of 14.8 and 7.1, respectively. Langston is followed closely in the scoring race by veterans Mike Sabrinsky (11.4) and John Sadler (10.5).

The big question mark will be how well the 'Hawks' youth can handle AC's experience and height.

Preceding the varsity contest will be an "Old Timers Game" featuring approximately 20 players from the Seahawk past. The event is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. UNC-W, Mike Sabrinsky vs. Ron Farina ACC

UNC-W Willie Lorick vs. Tom Keeling ACC
UNC-W John Sadler vs. Cliff Black ACC

UNC-W Bill Nemargut vs. Tom Bardin ACC

UNC-W Steve Langston vs. Bryan Chalk ACC

Intramurals begin

Students living on Campus should find life a little more interesting as intramural basketball season opens. A sixteen member team league has been organized by Mr. David E. Warner, assistant professor of Physical Education. Consisting of teams from the dormitory, the fraternities, and other students groups, the roster includes ...

Stumpjumpers, Cropdusters, Raiders, TKE No. 1, Untouchables, Ballers, GDI's, Shadows;

Pi Kappa Phi, Faculty, Engineers, Jocks, TKE No. 2, Mayo's, APO, DU's.

All games will be held in Hanover Hall at night. The schedule is posted on the gym bulletin board.

BATTLE—Steve Langston (25) fights for rebound against two unidentified High Point players.

(Staff Photo.)

University Music Series

Reviewers differ On Harpsichordists

By ERICH PARKER

The University Music Series presented Igor Kipnis in a recital of music for harpsichord, January 19, 1972. Generally, the artist demonstrated an uncommonly sure sense of stylistic ornamentation, and truly impressive technique. However, the concert manner of Mr. Kipnis indicated a regrettable lapse of preparation and taste.

Igor Kipnis, son of the Metropolitan Opera basso, Alexander Kipnis, studied at Harvard University under the tutelage of Randall Thompson. Subsequently he has appeared in concert and lecture recital with such distinguished conductors as Erich Leinsdorf, Charles Munch, Seiji Ozawa, Alfred Wallenstein, and Leopold Stokowski.

The harpsichordist began his program with two short pieces by Pearson, "The Fall of the Leaf," and "The Primrose." These scenic paintings of autumn and spring were pleasant enough, and led one to anticipate a handsomely played SONATA NO. 50 IN D MAJOR by Haydn. There was some disappointment then, when the second movement of Haydn's sonata simply fell apart. And although Kipnis redeemed himself with a series of well-executed embellishments in the final movement, one could not help but conclude that his performance lacked unity. Three works by Sweelinck, "Toccata No. 22," "Bello del Graduca," and "Fantasie Chromatica," were next played. And on an instrument of minimal sustaining power, Mr. Kipnis displayed smooth through vigorous sonority. For the Wilmington audience, perhaps the height of the evening was Kipnis' playing of Dussek's THE SUFFERING OF THE QUEEN OF FRANCE. This programmatic work in ten sections presented a melodramatic view of the death of Marie Antoinette. Having already established a degree of casualty in dress and manner, Kipnis furthered that impression by shouting the section titles to the audience as he played. Wilmington was delighted. I was not.

Following intermission, Igor Kipnis rambled on stage to mumble an apology that the contemporary work on the program would not be heard. The artist explained that he had not had the time to prepare the pieces—a comment which did not surprise me considering the fact that he read from his scores the entire evening. To appease the culture crowd, Kipnis played four Scarlatti pieces, and again demonstrated a refreshing certainty of ornamentation, but a distressing lack of preparation. By this time the novelty of the plucked string instrument had faded, and as a restless audience began to gather their coats, Kipnis began what was a very fine performance of Bach's Italian Concerto in F. Mr. Kipnis displayed clarity and expressive elegance. But rather than concluding his recital with this forte, he hung around to play audience requests. This addition cheapened the already shaky aesthetic quality of the evening, and discriminating listeners left the recital with a feeling that somehow Igor Kipnis had just not done his best.

By BEN R. CLAYTON
JOURNALISM CLASS

Igor Kipnis wasted no time captivating his audience in Kenan Auditorium January 19 by combining delightful monologue with a near-flawless performance on his specially built, red and gold harpsichord.

Kipnis loves music, to be sure. But above that, Kipnis is in love with his Harpsichord. He approached the instrument with somewhat the same passion and virility as a male would pursue his lady. This intense feeling naturally showed in each number he played during the 90-minute concert.

Whether expressing the pastoral beauty of "The Fall of the Leaf" or "The Primrose" by Martin Pearson, or executing the intricate finger technique demanded by Haydn's "Sonata No. 50 in D Major" and Bach's "Italian Concerto in F," Kipnis displayed complete mastery over the ten-foot, two-keyboard concert grand harpsichord.

Kipnis revealed himself as an eloquent spokesman for the attributes of harpsichords. Although this instrument gave way to the piano after reaching the height of its popularity several centuries ago, there is a noticeable revival of interest taking place. Kipnis stated there are now about 100 manufacturers building harpsichord for public demands, as well as six manufacturers of harpsichord kits for do-it-yourself fans.

Kipnis chose works of the 16th-century Dutch organist Jan Pieterszoon Sweelinck to fully demonstrate the "running capabilities of the harpsichord." "Toccata No. 22," "Bello del Graduca," and "Fantasie Chromatica" demanded lightning finger movement in the twelve-tone chromatic scale manipulations. Kipnis met the challenge with clear, crisp virtuosity.

The artist explained that one of the major differences between the harpsichord and the piano is that the strings of the former are "plucked," whereas the strings of a piano are "struck by a hammer." One difficulty encountered in mastering the harpsichord is that the instrument has no sustaining pedal as does a piano. For that reason, Kipnis noted, any sustained tones on the harpsichord "must be done by hand" by keeping the keys depressed.

The magnificent instrument Kipnis played contained four sets of strings: one loud, one soft, one an octave high, one an octave low. When all strings are coupled together and played on the lower keyboard as was illustrated by thunderous portions of Bach's "Italian Concerto in F," full rich tones pour forth to the delight of any audience.

Kipnis is a specialist in early keyboard music, having done extensive study of the Renaissance and Baroque periods. Except for one contemporary number by Scarlatti and portions of four encores, all of Kipnis' selections were by composers in or near those periods.

"The Sufferings of the Queen of France, Op. 23" by Jan Ladislav Dussek seemed to further accelerate audience enthusiasm. With the help of brief commentaries by Kipnis between each of the ten short movements, the music told the story of Marie Antoinette's last days before her execution. Dussek had been the Queen's music teacher and wrote the composition in 1873, the year of her death.

Aside from being a concert performer, recording artist, and reviewer, Kipnis recently made a musical jingle for the Mounds Candy Company in which he plays semi-baroque music on his harpsichord, followed by a rock and roll band. This commercial will be heard on national television networks.

The performer used music throughout the concert and utilized the services of a page-turner. Several audience comments were heard about this, and while not directly critical of the artist, they did indicate a preference by some for performers who work alone from memorization.

A spokesman for UNC-W Music Department, however, stated that it is a trend for performers to have the music in front of them even though most of them actually play from memory. The practice of playing a concert from memory, he declared, stems from some of the early composers who stated it to "satisfy their own egos," and the practice perpetuated itself.

All in all, Igor Kipnis is a striking musical personality and his brilliant performance comes from an extraordinarily keen sense of knowing and providing just what the audience wants to hear.

Just back from a concert tour of Australia, the Harvard-trained musician was the third artist to appear on UNC-W campus this season under the auspices of the University Music Series.

Ofuro, tutami, and away to Japan!

Eighteen American university students from the South traveled to the Orient last summer for a Workcamp - Seminar with 16 Japanese students, sponsored by the Board of World Missions, Presbyterian Church, US.

As a member of that group, I went — not knowing what to expect, and expecting nothing until it happened — for I feared disillusionment in believing everything I had ever heard or seen about Japan.

After flying for 33 hours our Boeing 707, filled to capacity, landed July 26, 1971 in a thick blanket of exhaust fumes covering Haneda Airport, in Tokyo. Disappointed in finding only one of our Japanese counterparts waiting for us, we discovered five had come nine hours earlier — they had not received word of our unscheduled eight hour overlay in Tacoma - Seattle, Washington.

From Haneda, we began our trek to the Student Christian Fellowship in Shinanomachi, Shinjuku - ku, Tokyo, where the Americans stayed three days before the Nichi - Bei Gakusei workcamp - seminar travels began.

Getting used to sleeping on the floor and to going barefoot in the house was no problem; however, when we walked around the corner to the Hakubun restaurant, all sorts of interesting things happened, the very least of which was the language barrier!

When one walked in to any small shop with a tall red haired, big-built Texan, a hefty Black wearing extremely yellow shorts, and three blonds from the east coast, all eyes immediately turned to get a glimpse of the American - ja. At the restaurant, the slightly built, quiet natives refrained from conversation while we entered; the waitress blushed, smiled, and waved timidly — she could say "hello" — but nothing else that we could comprehend. On with the charades!

We left Tokyo for Teshima Island July 29, on the Hikari monorail, traveling more than 130 miles per hour, to Shin Osaka, where several Japanese participants joined us for a much slower ride on another train that would ultimately take the 36 of us to a small ferry flotilla at Uno on the Inland Sea.

The voyage to Teshima was one of laughter, sunshine, clicking cameras; it was a great day for beginning acquaintances with those who would become part of a new family. We were quite amazed at the quickness of response from the Japanese students, for their fluent English was a happy surprise to us. In the three weeks that we would be together, many new phrases would be exchanged, and by the end of our time together, the Nipponese had expanded their vocabularies and increased their spontaneity in English; we often would surprise the little shop-keepers with "Konichi-wa" and "Domo arigato" — simple expressions of good afternoon and thank you, but words that warmed their faces even more.

FLOP! — After lugging 47 pounds through train stations all day, "buddy system" messages were needed.

Typhoon number 27 shortened our stay on the little island that supports itself with fishing villages. Given one hour to pack and leave the hand sickles, shovels, and implements of construction behind us, we abandoned the roads we were creating on the hillsides, the onions they had fed us all week long, and boarded the same tiny boat that had brought us there — only this time we were sloshed about on the high waves, and the gusty winds blew my ticket away, causing consternation to the ticket-taker in Uno, who replied in clearly spoken words, after hearing my mercy, plea, "I do not speak English, I don't speak English!"

Having upset our schedule, we were invited to spend the night in Kurashige at a new little church about three blocks from a cultural center and handicraft village that is quite popular among the Japanese, but is rarely on non-Nipponese tours of Honshu, the central island of Japan, where we traveled.

Next stop: Hiroshima, for the twenty-sixth anniversary of the Holocaust, August 6, 1945. We toured the museum at Peace Park and walked by the murky river that flowed by the Industrial Exhibition Hall — its skeleton renamed the Atomic Bomb Memorial Dome. A few hundred yards away were shacks of rotten boards and decaying straw — home to the descendants of Korean workers who were slaves when the bomb struck. Their families are still highly discriminated against. August 6, 1945, was fair and sunny, but all we saw was rain; it did not prevent large crowds from forming at the Cenotaph in Peace Park, however. Boy Scouts of all nationalities handed out bunches of flowers to place in memoriam to those killed 26 years earlier. As I laid the chrysanthemums down, I felt ashamed of being human — for only man, of all earthly creatures, could create such misery for himself. There was no hostility between Americans and Japanese at the ceremony; in fact, several native militant youth groups wanted us to join them in booing Prime Minister Sato.

Iwakuni was the next whistle stop. We had been scheduled to visit the American military installation there, but two hours before our arrival, they cancelled out on us, fearing protest marches and anti-war demonstrations from our group.

We railed into Tadanoumi the next day to visit a church for handicapped people. One of the hymns was quite familiar, and so we joined in English for the chorus. They liked that idea!

After staying overnight on a near by "resort island", where Americans manufactured poison gas during the war, we headed for Kakogawa, a truck ministry about thirty minutes down the track from Jimeji Castle. The major of Kokagawa and representatives from Rotary International and the local Lions Club greeted us with cases of Cokes, folding fans, and booklets on their city — written entirely in Japanese. The truck mission aims to keep drunken freight carriers off of Japan's small roads. By offering good hot meals at a very inexpensive rates, rooms and ofuro (Japanese style baths) Rev. Imai has seen the death rate drop and continues his efforts to get safer roads in the Kokagawa prefecture.

Arrival in Kyoto meant our last week together. We stayed at Kansai Seminar House, from whence we ventured into grand palaces, such as Ginkakuji, the Silver Pavilion. Another day, the whole group chartered a bus to Nara park, where we fed the roaming deer, and stretched to see the top of the buddhas in Todaiji Temple. O Bon, the fire festival, was celebrated while we were there, and the nearby mountains glowed with symbols through the night.

All too soon, our three weeks were over. The Japanese had to return to schools and jobs, while the Americans had a week free to travel on their own. Dollar devaluation set in the day we broke up, and so several of us returned to the Student Christian Fellowship (SCF) house in Tokyo, where we could easily afford to stay and eat and catch up on sleep — the precious commodity we hadn't seen enough of for almost a month.

We discovered the 1964 Olympic games had been held, in part, around the corner from SCF. And bravely, we set out on our own to see the Ginza, Tokyo's busiest district, to shop, and to occasionally cook supper for ourselves.

We had come to Japan with 18 different purposes. In our efforts together with the Japanese, we began to see these purposes realized, but not until the last couple of days did I really begin to understand the whole trip's meaning. To me, it was not just communication, nor just understanding, nor pleasure excursion, nor missionary exploration; instead, Japan and I made a friendship undegirded with those motives. We built a beautiful relationship, and a memorable summer — but for lack of time, we could not finish.

And so I wish to return, to pick up the strings, and to conclude the weaving of four weeks in Japan.

Art to be Shown

The tenth annual Lower Cape Fear Exhibition will be held February 13 through March 7 in Kenan Hall on the UNC-W campus. All entries should be taken to the UNC-W Art Department by February 4.

Any person living in, or a native of either New Hanover, Brunswick, Pender, Onslow, Columbus, Bladen, Sampson, Robeson, Duplin, Cumberland, or Carteret counties is eligible to submit works.

Works in all categories will be accepted including prints, drawings, and sculpture. Four works may be entered by each artist. No work shown publicly before 1969 may be exhibited. No piece done in an art class or under the supervision of an instructor will be accepted.

The show will be judged by Howard Woody with three prizes and honorable mentions. Woody is a sculptor and a teacher from the University of South Carolina in Columbia.

The prizes are $100 for first place, $75 for second, place, and $25 for third place. UNC-W encourages the sale of works during the exhibition, so prices should be included if for sale.

On the calendar of events for the Exhibition is a lecture by Howard Woody on Environmental Sculpture February 7 at 8:00 p.m.

MIJASHIMA torii, usually majestic and serene, was crowded out by festival goers.

Wonderful town

By JOAN SWART
Journalism Class

Tryouts for the hit Broadway show "Wonderful Town" will be held February 2-3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Band Room. Creating tremendous enthusiasm on Broadway, "Wonderful Town" originally starred Rosalind Russell.

Produced in collaboration with the University Theater and the Music Department, "Wonderful Town" will be presented March 24, 25, 26. The University Theater holds open tryouts to students or anyone else who wants to participate.

"Wonderful Town" offers 15 speaking parts, male and female, along with many openings for dancers and singers, plus backstage workers. According to Dr. Terry Rogers, of the Drama Department, around 50 people will be needed for the production.

Written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, this gay light, frothy musical comedy centers around two girls from Columbus, Ohio, seeking their fame in New York. One is average in looks and intelligence, and wants to become a writer, while her sister is beautiful, dumb, and wants to be an actress.

John McLain, of the New York Journal American, said "Wonderful Town" is a great, big, lovely musical, featuring the infectious drolleries of Rosalind Russell...it is the best song and dance offering of the season! It should remain in our midst indefinitely!"

The music for "Wonderful Town" is done by Leonard Bernstein, and includes such songs as "Ohio," "It's Love," "Quiet Girl," and "A Little Bit in Love."

Passion Play

"The Passion Play," a reenactment of the last week of Christ's life on earth, was presented January 23-25 in Kenan Auditorium.

Val Balfour, portraying Jesus, headed the cast which included Ann Kelley Balfour as Mary Magdalene, Joel Allynne as Judas and William O'Toole as Pilate.

Opening with a prologue depicting the birth of Jesus and one of His miracles—the healing of a blind woman—the play begins with Christ's entry in Jerusalem.

The priests' fear of the Man from Galilee was shown expertly by the performance of Steven Jay Rolnick (Aadok) and Jack Groverland (Caiaphas).

Working with Judas (whose role was done very well by Allynne), the priests have Jesus arrested and taken to trial.

After being taken before Pontius Pilate and then to King Herod, Christ was returned to Pilate, who reluctantly sentenced Him to die.

Perhaps the most moving and best portrayed scene was the crucifixion which opened the final act of the play.

The costumes were one of the highlights of the program. It would be difficult to imagine any more realistic than those used.

Minor problems with the sound system and the use of a well-scratched record for the musical passages detracted greatly from the performance.

Balfour is the director for the production which is an abbreviated version of the original "Passion Play" performed in Oberammergau, Germany.

"The Passion Play" was brought to Wilmington by the Senior Fraternity of the Brigade Boy's Club.

Dorm Constitution

Continued from page 11

floor.

2. Nominations for all executive elected positions will be filed with the resident counselor of the UNC-W Residence Hall.

3. An interim election board of seven members shall be appointed by the resident counselor to operate these elections.

Section 3: At the conclusion of the election and the posting of official results of this election by the interim Board of Elections, the oath of office shall be administered by the chairman of this board to all officials. As soon as the Judicial Board appointments have been made, Article XII shall be automatically repealed from this constitution.

'Issues' Issues'

PATIENCE HELL, I Want To Kill Somebody!

Debate Cancelled

The UNC-W debate team saw no action the weekend of January 21-22 because the Davidson College tournament they were to compete in was cancelled.

The next scheduled tournament is on February 4 at the University of Georgia, where Janice Asbell, Pete Epperly, Bryan Fann, and Patti McCombie will represent UNC-W in the varsity division.

The team will also travel to the Citadel February 25 and there is a possibility that they will see action at Old Dominion College in Norfolk, Virginia.

Two new debaters, James Davis and Margaret Fensil, will gain experience in some of the contests this semester.

The more experienced debaters will start working their way towards the regional tournament to be held sometime in April. Schools from all over the southeastern United States will be represented in this varsity contest.

Mr. Betty Jo Welch, team coach, pointed out that the debaters must win a major tournament or at least 70 percent of their rounds to be considered for these play-offs.

Greek News

Alpha Phi Omega held elections for spring semester on January 13. The new officers are as follows: President, Jim Wentz; 1st Vice-President, Steve Grady; 2nd Vice-President, Don Stroufe; 3rd Vice-President, Jack Paul; Treasurer, Raleigh Todd; Corresponding and Recording Secretary, Dickie Miller; Alumni Secretary, Ed Boylan; Historian, Rick Deasy. Robert Grace was appointed by the president to the position of Parliamentarian. A.P.O. plans a rush week in the near future. Any UNC-W male who would like to be of benefit to his school and community and who would entertain the idea of learning more about our brotherhood is urged to drop by during rush week. The rush dates and location will be posted soon.

Alpha Phi Sigma held rush on January 27 at 7 p.m. Refreshments and good times were enjoyed with the new girls. Cheryl Reid was elected representative for homecoming queen. Alpha Chi Sigma has just completed a drive for Muscular Dystrophy. —Susan McClenndon, Secretary.

Theta Iota Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta has nominated Elizabeth Harvin as their representative for homecoming queen.

The sorors feel that UNC-W needs a homecoming to be remembered by election of a black homecoming queen. She is presently secretary of Student Government Association, vice-President and Dean of Pledges of Theta Iota Chapter, Secretary of Wantu Wazuri, member of Student Affairs Committee, and the Business Club. She is a senior majoring in accounting.

HARVIN

Dorm Constitution Approved

The new Residence Hall Constitution was approved by a referendum held January 18-19, according to John Munroe, residence hall counselor. The vote ran 189-YES, 15-NO, 1-ABSTAIN.

The new Residence Hall Constitution is as follows:

Article I — NAME

The name of this organization shall be the Student Government of the UNC-W Residence Hall.

Article II — PURPOSE

The Student Government of the UNC-W Residence Hall shall have the following responsibilities:

Section 1: To provide for the welfare of the occupants in the UNC-W Residence Hall.

Section 2: To seek, maintain, and enhance reciprocal channels of communication between the UNC-W Residence Hall, faculty, administration, and the general public.

Article III — MEMBERSHIP

All residents shall be members of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government, and they shall be eligible to vote in all elections.

Article IV — EXECUTIVE

Section 1: The executive duties of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government shall be vested in a committee of three, assisted by a secretary, and such appointments as outlined in the following sections and appointments deemed necessary by the executive committee with the approval of the Residence Hall Student Senate.

Section 2: The duties of the executive committee shall be:

A. To select a chairman to preside over all the meetings of the executive board which shall consist of the executive committee, secretary and treasurer.

B. To sign or veto all bills passed by the Residence Hall Student Senate.

C. To call special sessions of the Residence Hall Student Senate or the executive board at its discretion.

D. To appoint a treasurer and all other positions deemed necessary.

E. The executive committee shall act as official spokesmen for the UNC-W Residence Hall to the UNC-W Student Government Association, the faculty, the administration, and the general public.

F. To appoint members of the UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Branch with the approval of a two-thirds (2-3) vote of the entire membership of the Residence Hall Student Senate.

G. To appoint seven-member interim boards to govern the UNC-W Residence Hall during the summer sessions and the semester until the officers elected in the fall take office. The interim governing board shall have the power to enforce all rules and regulations set forth by the UNC-W

Residence Hall Student Government. The interim governing board may not revise any legislation or enact any new legislation.

H. Shall appoint a five member board of elections with the approval of two-thirds (2-3) of the entire membership of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

Section 3: Secretary

The Secretary of the UNC-W Residence Hall shall have the following responsibilities:

A. To keep records of the meetings of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate and Executive Board.

B. To handle correspondence relative to the operation of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government.

Section 4: Treasurer

He shall be responsible for the collection and disbursement of all funds of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government.

Article V — LEGISLATIVE

The legislative power of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government shall be vested in the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

Section 1: Membership

The UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate shall be composed of twelve members, one member elected from each suite of the residence hall.

Section 2: The speaker shall preside over the Student Senate of the UNC-W Residence Hall.

A. The speaker will be elected by the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate from within its membership. This election will take place during the first meeting of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

Section 3: The responsibilities of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate shall be as follows:

A. To approve or reject, by a simple majority of its entire membership, all appointments made by the executive committee and speaker of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

B. To approve, reject or amend, by a simple majority of its membership, any budgetary proposals made by the treasurer.

C. To pass, by a simple majority of its entire membership, any bills or recommendations to the UNC-W administration concerning rules, regulations, and all other aspects promoting the general welfare of occupants of the UNC-W Residence Hall.

D. To override the executive committee votes by a two-thirds (2-3) vote of its entire membership.

E. To establish its own rules of procedure.

F. To bring impeachment proceedings against UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government officials by a two-thirds (2-3) vote of its entire membership.

G. To meet at least every two weeks during the fall and spring semesters.

H. To accept UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board appointments with a two-thirds (2-3) majority vote of its entire membership.

I. To approve the rules and regulations set down by the board of elections.

J. To approve any appointment to fill a vacancy for the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate by a two-thirds (2-3) majority vote of its entire membership.

Article VI — The Judicial power of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government shall be vested in the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Judicial Board.

Section 1: Membership

A. The Judicial Board shall consist of five members appointed by the executive committee with a two-thirds (2-3) approval of the entire membership of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate. Resident Assistants are not eligible for membership in the Judicial Board.

Section 2: The Judicial Board shall elect from its membership one member to serve as Chief Justice of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Judicial Board.

A. The Chief Justice shall preside at all meetings of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Judicial Board.

B. The Chief Justice shall appoint a secretary to record the minutes of the UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board meetings. This appointment must have the approval of the UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board.

C. The Chief Justice may call a meeting of the UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board at any time.

Section 3: The UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board shall have the responsibility to:

A. Establish its own rules of procedure.

B. Make sole interpretations of this constitution and make decisions on the constitutionality of all laws protested before the board.

C. To try any violators of rules or regulations passed and approved by the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government, the UNC-W administration, or any other action which would be detrimental to the welfare of the occupants in the UNC-W Residence Hall.

D. Make decisions on penalties, provided the vote for conviction is reached by at least three (3) out of five (5) members of the Residence Hall Judicial Board.

E. Meet on a regular basis and try all cases within two (2) school days of the report of the violation.

F. Try all cases of impeachment with a four-fifths (4-5) majority needed for conviction. If a justice is being impeached, he will have no vote and a three-fourths (¾) majority will be required for conviction.

Section 4: The judicial actions of the Residence Hall Student Government will be separate from those of the Student Government Association Supreme Court.

Article VII — RIGHT OF APPEAL

Any residence hall student found guilty of an offense by the Residence Hall Judicial Board shall have the right of appeal to the Student Affairs Office and then to the chancellor.

Article VIII — ELECTIONS

Section 1: Qualifications:

A. Any resident of the UNC-W Residence Hall is eligible to seek and hold any office.

B. All candidates for the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate must be a resident of the suite for which they are seeking election. A suite is defined as half of the resident rooms on each floor, with the floor lobbies as division markers.

C. No student may hold more than one elective office in the residence hall.

Section 2: A five member board of elections shall conduct all UNC-W Residence Hall Student Government elections.

A. The Executive Committee shall appoint this five member board with the approval of two-thirds (2-3) of the entire membership of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

B. No member of this board of elections shall seek office while serving on the board.

C. The board shall decide on all rules governing elections provided for in this constitution. These rules will be subject to approval by a simple majority of the Residence Hall Student Senate.

Section 3: Nominations shall be filed in the period between the second and third Tuesdays of the regular fall term.

A. A candidate must file a signed statement of his intention to seek a specific office within this period.

B. This statement shall be filed with the Board of Elections.

Section 4: Elections will be held on the fourth Tuesday of the regular fall term.

Section 5: Vacancy

A. Any vacancy of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate shall be filled within two weeks by appointment of the Executive Committee with the approval of at least a two-thirds (2-3) majority of the remaining members of the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate.

B. In order to fill a vacancy in the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate the prospective senator must fulfill all requirements necessary in order to seek office.

C. Executive elected vacancies shall be filled by special elections within three weeks after such a vacancy occurs.

Article IX

Section 1: Tenure of office: All with the exception of the interim board and board of elections shall run from the time of inauguration until the official end of the spring semester.

A. Inauguration shall be held within five (5) school days following the election or the appointment of any official.

B. The chairman of the interim governing board shall administer the oath of office to all officials elected in the general elections and to the UNC-W Residence Hall Judicial Board.

C. The oath of office shall be administered to all appointees with the exception of the Judicial Board and all officials elected in special elections by the chief justice of the Judicial Board.

D. The oath of office shall be: I do affirm that I shall uphold my office and our constitution to the best of my ability.

Article X — AMENDMENT PROCEDURE

Section 1: Amendment procedures can be initiated by a petition signed by at least ten percent of the resident population of the UNC-W Residence Hall, and filed with the Board of Elections.

Section 2: By passing in the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate with at least two-thirds (2-3) majority of all residents voting during special referendum to consider the amendment.

A. This referendum will be held within two school weeks following the official proposal of the amendment.

B. The Board of Elections shall conduct all referendums concerning amendments to this constitution.

Article XI — RATIFICATION

Section 1: This constitution shall become effective if passed by a vote of a simple majority of those voting in a referendum under the terms of Article XII.

Section 2: All articles shall become effective upon ratification. Article XII shall be effective only as a means of implementation and will take precedence over any article which it should contradict, but only for that time period until the first general election.

Article XII — IMPLEMENTATION

Section 1: All regulations of the preceding articles of this constitution shall be in effect unless directly contradicted by this article.

Section 2: If this constitution should be ratified, it shall be implemented as follows:

A. Nominations for all elected positions will be held in the period of one week following ratification.

1. Nominations will be filed with the resident assistants of each floor for the UNC-W Residence Hall Student Senate positions from that

A PERMANENT MEMBER OF THE CAMPUS

This Christmas tree awaits destruction that seemingly will never come. Located behind the Pub, the tree has remained in that position since after Christmas. (Staff Photo)

Organizational News

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION
No news reported.

SENIOR CLASS
No news reported.

JUNIOR CLASS
A vacancy exists for a Junior Class Senator. Applications will be received in the Seahawk office. Requirements are Junior Class standing and a 2.0 average.

SOPHOMORE CLASS
No news reported.

FRESHMAN CLASS
No news reported.

ACCOUNTING CLUB
No news reported.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION
No news reported.

BIOLOGY CLUB
Project Recycle collects paper, aluminum, and glass every Tuesday at collection points in Hoggard, Kenan Hall, and the Administration building.

CIRCLE K CLUB
No news reported.

COLLEGIATE CIVITAN CLUB
No news reported.

ENGINEERS CLUB
No news reported.

FRENCH CLUB
No news reported.

HISTORY CLUB
No news reported.

MATH CLUB
No news reported.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION MAYORS CLUB
No news reported.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB
Meeting — February 8, 4:00 p.m., Education — 206.

PHYSICS HONOR SOCIETY
No news reported.

SPANISH CLUB
No news reported.

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
No news reported.

STUDENT NURSES ASSOCIATION
No news reported.

STUDENT POLITICAL ACTION CLUB
No news reported.

WANTU WAZURI
No news reported.

WESTMINSTER FELLOWSHIP
No news reported.
Any one interested in forming a Trampoline Club should contact Kitty Hipps at 791-8835.

Senate Approves Funds

The Student Senate approved a request for use of all remaining reserve funds for use on the upcoming concert March 6 last week.

The motion was made by Wes Knappe of the Dance Committee. The concert will present "Yes."

In other action, Karen Thomas was appointed Chairman of the Student Board of Elections. She was immediately given the floor to announce upcoming elections. Student Govern-

Atlantis

By JUDY JORDAN
Journalism Class

Atlantis, UNC-W literary magazine, is accepting material for its spring edition in the Atlantis office, located in the Student Services building, and in Mr. Treanor's office, upstairs in Kenan Hall.

Dave Smith, editor of Atlantis, plans to call a meeting of his staff within the next week. Anyone interested in working with the literary magazine is invited and encouraged to attend. Time and place of the meeting will be posted.

The ATLANTIS staff is in need of support from all interested students. Most of its members will graduate this spring, and it is important for next year's staff to gain experience now.

Atlantis is probably the most widely read off-campus of all publications. Copies are sent to other colleges and universities, and competition is great among the literary magazines on these campuses. With the support of the students, our literary magazine can be a great source of recognition for UNC-W.

ment Elections will be March 15.

Vacancies in the Senate were recognized as: Senior Secretary, Senior Senator, Junior Senator, Sophomore Senator, and Freshman Class President and Vice President, both senators.

A motion was accepted which would set application filing dates for staff positions of publication. Senator Divine was appointed to set dates and compile a report for the next Senate Meeting.

A special meeting was called for February 1 and the Senate adjourned at 12:10 p.m.

Doctor's Bag

By ARNOLD WERNER,
M.D.

Q: I have very large breasts and nipples. The breasts are obviously a focal point of my body as I am other wise quite normal in shape and proportion. My measurements are 44-21-36 and I am 5 ft, 5 in. tall. I wear a bra all the time and do not wear revealing clothes, but I am beginning to feel as if I am a freak and wish that men would look at me instead of my bust. Fortunately, my breasts are high and firm; it would be awful if they hung down to my belly button.

Because I am so big I am concerned about breast cancer. Do large breasts have more of a cancer rate than tiny breasts?

A: Largeness alone would not change the probability of you developing cancer. However, very large breasts are more difficult to examine and it is conceivable that an early cancer would be harder to detect. Breasts are primarily fatty tissue and are not well supported on the chest. Therefore as all women age, they experience some sagging of their breasts. You could expect to have a fair amount of difficulty with this. As well, fatty tissue bruises easily and this can be quite painful, causing you further problems.

In reading your letter my concern is more with the effects of being stared at, and your description of being dealt with as if you are deformed. Nature can be quite unkind in the way she distributes body tissues. Fortunately, some of the things that do not look right can be corrected. Plastic surgeons perform an operation that will reduce breast size resulting in a more normally proportioned body. Such an operation will not interfere with breast function and can be of major long term benefit in terms of reducing postural abnormalities, eliminating problems in buying clothes, and producing a general increased sense of well being. Many women are not aware

Before the Revolution, "Story Of Love and Youth"

Review by Spence
Foscoe

The first showing in the UNC-W Cultural Film Series "Before the Revolution," a 1964 Italian film, was presented Friday, January 21 in Kenan Hall.

Directed by Bernardi Bertolucci, this motion picture gives the viewers a look at the Italian labor upheaval of 1962 through the eyes of an Italian youth caught in the frenzy of revolution. However, this is more a psychological movie than a social one.

A young man from a middle-class family in Parma, Italy, befriends a young runaway. An attempt to communicate with his new found friend proves futile, for the runaway commits suicide. The young man feels this death is partly his fault and refuses to attend the funeral.

He develops a close relationship with his aunt, visiting from Naples, and is involved in a fiery love affair with her. After ending his romance he finds no satisfaction in his revolutionary aims and abandons them to marry a young socialite.

Director Bertolucci uses the facial expressions of his actors, rather than mere words, to a greater effect in his contemporary love story. "Before the Revolution" is a story of a rebel and how reality, in the form of his affair, enables him to face life and himself.

Comedy and irony are also viewed through the lenses of Bertolucci. The movie ends at the wedding of the young man. His aunt is lavishing her affections on another youth as the honeymooners drive away.

that such operations exist, since most talk centers around other cosmetic plastic surgery procedures, including increasing breast size. You are at the perfect age to have such surgery performed and ought to consider visiting a qualified plastic surgeon for an opinion.

"I AM SORRY, BUT YOUR CALL CANNOT BE COMPLETED AT THIS TIME. PLEASE HANG UP AND DIAL AGAIN. I AM SORRY, BUT..."

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

Volume 13 Number 15

February 15, 1972

Second floor

Visitation revoked

Visitation rights were revoked on the second floor of the UNC-W Residence Hall Sunday, Jan. 6.

John P. Munroe, resident counselor, made the announcement in a notice to second floor residents that was posted on the hall bulletin board. "Due to the complete disregard for state property by second floor residents, visitation will be suspended until further notice."

Munroe stated at a hall meeting Sunday night that the action came not as a result of recent disturbances, but because of a series of events throughout last semester. "This was just the last straw," he explained. "Second floor is usually filthiest in the dorm. Last night was just the last straw."

A waste basket full of water was found leaning against the elevator door. When the door opened, the water spilled into the elevator car, down the elevator shaft to the first floor. Water was also spilled in the second floor lobby. George Snyder, second floor R.A. said he heard a disturbance that sounded like a drunk person but did not investigate as the shouting did not last. "I really didn't think anything of it, until the security guard woke me."

After the hall meeting, several students remained in the lobby to discuss ways of solving the problem and of restoring visitation to the floor. Munroe made it clear that the suspension affected second floor only. Visitation will be the same as usual on all other floors.

Visitation Hours

Men ... 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.
daily, 7 p.m. - 11:30 p.m. Sun.-

Thurs., 7 p.m. - 2 a.m. Fri.-Sat. Only

Women ... 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.
Sat-Sun. only, 7 p.m. - 10 p.m.
Sun. - Thurs., 7 p.m. - 2 a.m.
Fri.-Sat. only.

Nominate through Feb. 22

Nominations for SGA, class officers, and class senators will close Feb. 22. Although this date is little more than a week away, only seven nominations have been made for the 27 positions.

Running thus far are Patti McCombie and Bill Brooks for SGA Vice President, Liz Buffington for sophomore vice president. Senatorial contenders are Gloria Ramos and Sandra Jones, junior class, and Brad Walls and Preston Maultsby, sophomore class.

Still vacant are SGA presidential and secretarial positions; senior, junior and sophomore class presidents, vice presidents and secretaries are yet to be nominated, as are three senatorial seats in the sophomore and junior classes, and all five seats in the senior class.

Karen Thomas, Chairman Board of Elections, pointed out that if these offices are not filled, "there will be no SGA next year."

Commenting on the apparent lack of interest by the student body, SGA president Ed Boylan concluded, "The Senate spends $40,000 a year, and if the student don't care who will be spending it next year, well — they don't have much room to complain."

(Staff Photo by Mike Clemmer)

HOMECOMING QUEEN DIANE LACE

Lace crowned queen

Miss Diane Lace was crowned UNCW's Homecoming Queen for 1972 in ceremonies last Saturday night during the UNCW-Atlantic Christian basketball game.

Miss Lace, co-sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, received her crown from 1971's Homecoming Queen, Kathy Lowrimore. First runner-up was Delta Upsilon's Brenda Walton and second runner-up went to Pi Kappa Phi's Caroline Smith.

Guests of honor were Fayetteville Methodist College's Homecoming Queen Peggy Bland and Pembroke State University's Homecoming Queen Millie Ivey.

Awards were also presented for the best float (TKE) and Most Original float (APO).

Publications seek '72 - '73 editors

Editor and business manager positions for Fledgling, Student yearbook, and The Seahawk newspaper have been opened for the 1972-73 school year. The Student Senate approve plans for early application dates last week.

With no publications board to refer the matter to, SGA Vice President Kirk Brown appointed Jane Divine, sophomore senator and Seahawk editor, to look into the situation.

Filing dates for editor and business manager positions was set by both publications for February 8-22. Applications should include full name, address, phone number, class standing, past experience, and an explanation of why the position is pursued. The application should be submitted to the editor of the appropriate publication no later than Tuesday, February 22.

Consideration will be given to each applicant not only by the current chief, but also by the advisors of the yearbook and newspaper staffs and the Student Affairs Committee.

"Although Senate creates Continued on page 3

'Wonderful Town' casts 50 in musical comedy

"Wonderful Town," a play jointly sponsored by the Drama and Speech and Music Departments will be presented March 24-26 at

BEFORE YOU HIJACK A PLANE TO CUBA, READ THIS ...

According to Cuban news releases, an "anti-loafing" law has been enacted by the Cuban Government.

In a speech given by Major Jesus Montane on January 11 in Havana, he applauded the law designed "law 1231", and described its penalties as "most severe".

Kenan Auditorium. Admission will be free for students and $1.00 for non-students.

The musical, dating back to 1953, was written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. Music for the play was composed by Leonard Bernstein.

The setting takes place in 1953 in Greenwich Village. Two sisters, looking for fame in New York, move into an apartment in that city. The girls' new surroundings touch off a comic situation. One sister is intelligent and average looking while the other is beautiful and lacking in intelligence.

Throughout the play, the educated sister is constantly losing suitors to her more attractive roommate. The play ends happily, however, with the plainer sister finding the man of her dreams.

Tryouts for "Wonderful Town" were held Feb. 2-3. Students auditioned for the 50 different on-and-off-stage positions, including acting, dancing, and backstage work, that were available.

In order of appearance, cast includes Mark Wilson as delivery boy and Yogi and Bev Arnette as Eileen. Bob Baker is played by Doc Clay; Chick Clark by Billy McCarty; Frank Lippencott by Steve Vallender; Wreck by Ed Danilowicz; Helen by Sussanne Howell; and Ken Rene will play Appopolous.

Frank Stanley will be seen as Valenti; Terry Holley as Fletcher, Radical, and Drunk; Bob Hudson as Lonigan; Claudia Madeley as Violet. Guide will be played by Steve Tabor, and Mrs. Wade by Leslie Jenkins.

Chorus for "Wonderful Town" includes Sharon Blake, Elizabeth Willets, Laura Todd, Margaret Longley, Jean Welker, Debbie Ezzell, Mark Wilson, Karen Parker, and Charlotte Parker.

Dancers are Lesa Rogers, Julia Ann Odon, Uma Shankar, and Jall Jeffords.

According to Dr. Terry Rogers, director of the play, the group will hold 35-40 rehearsals before opening night. Regarding production problem, Dr. Rogers stated, "Our greatest challenge will be to co-ordinate the dramatic and musical parts of the performance."

SEASQUAWKS

Fireside toe-proppers?

(The following letter was addressed to Rick Mitz, author of "The Relevancy of Relevance" which ran in the last edition of this paper.)

Dear Failure of Relevance,

Join the group! Your article in the recent Seahawk loosened me up and my sides still ache with the pure joy of uncontrolled laughter. Once again, I feel I can take pleasure in just "little things." Poof! My guilt complex has vanished. Thank you for relieving my conscience by writing "The Relevancy of Relevance." At last, I find a level head among all the chic misguided academics with their gospel of "mishmash". Think I'll just prop up my long ugly toes by the glowing fire and sip my beer in comfort.

Is it Bud? Is it Pabst? Is it Schlitz? Is it Millers? Who cares! I enjoy it! Your devoted fan,
Mrs. Doug W. Swink

We hate to disappoint Mrs. Swink, but Rick Mitz's column comes through the mail from the Midwest, and oddly enough, his work is sponsored by a beer corporation!! (Rick's brand is not sold in this area to our knowledge.)

That fireplace sounds terribly inviting ...

Homecoming '72 was bogged!

Watching a majestic (potential) bonfire melt into a heap of soggy greens under 96 hours of liquid sunshine is sad.

Even sadder is watching a vivid float literally and figuratively floating.

Homecoming '72, despite daily deluges brought "Lighthouse" in concert considered by many as the best ever held here, and the floats in Friday's parade were the prettiest we've seen in any Wilmington festivity for years.

Tau Kappa Epsilon's "Stew Pot" truly deserved it's award for Best Float as did Alpha Phi Omega's Most Original "Southern Belle" and unreal Approach.

Next year's activities, barring dry weather ... maybe an alligator hunt on the north end of Street B ... and a hydroplane race down the south extension, while skiers plow down Street A...

Imagine the action around the traffic circle!!!

The Seahawk
University Of North Carolina
At Wilmington
P. O. Box 3725
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

Editor Jane Divine
Assistant Editor Ron Dunn
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporting staff Grace Parker, Tim Sims
Kathy Tyner, Mike Jones

Business office, S-201, James Student Services Building

STATUE GARDEN

Annual migration route for more than $35,000 ...

Statues

From The Seahawk, March 31, 1967:

Statues. A statue is something made out of stone. A statue is created by the artist. A statue gives the appearance of being alive, but it does not speak. There are also human statues. A human statue is alive, but does not speak. It does have the ability to giggle and smile upon occasion.

There have been reports of human statues existing on this campus. Look around you, for you have created these statues. They sit in the Pub, and there are probably one or two in some of your classes. These human statues do have a function. Their function is to represent the student body in the statue garden known as the Student Senate.

You, the average student, elected them. In some cases you had no choice since there were not many people who wanted to enter this statue garden and those elected had no opposition.

The statue garden has two caretakers who smile beginning at the human statues. The caretakers help the human statues make the rules in which the statues, since they do not speak, seem to have no interest in.

It is possible that, outside of the statue garden, the human statues have the ability to speak, but that is ended as soon as they enter the garden. They lose their ability to speak and can only smile and giggle. Oh yes, it must be admitted that a few true humans enter and speak and say things, but these are only a very few that sit among the statues.

The students, as previously stated, are the creators of these statues. To the students who ask if anything can be done about the statue garden, the reply is yes. This editorial is a reminder that student elections are not too far off in the future. These elections should not be popularity contest for statues and statue seekers who have been elected in the past, but people who will speak out and up should be nominated and elected.

It is time that the student senate should become something more than a statue garden!

Tim Sims

getting it

By TIM SIMS

Anyone who has taken courses from a certain eccentric but excellent professor on campus has heard - time and again - that all-important injunction to "go to the primary source" concerning any subject one wishes to pursue.

Commentaries can be helpful, but also harmful, and the best way to get as close as possible to what, for instance, Martin Luther King was trying to say is to read his own words.

This advice, if perhaps not new to us, is foreign to the way we operate in most cases. How many times have you heard the phrase "they said..." in reference to someone or something (other than "they"), and acted upon the second third, or fifth-hand information you then received?

Getting it "from the horse's mouth" may certainly be more difficult at times, but I am convinced that more human misery, including everything from a misunderstanding or an unfavorable opinion of someone we don't really know to a global war, has been caused by "getting it" from somewhere other than the proverbial horse's mouth.

Common student manifestations of this problem include things like not taking courses from certain professors because so-and-so said such-and-such, or believing without knowing that the administration is insensitive to student needs, or deciding that student government is doing only "busy work", and isn't really concerned with anything vital to the student, or, perhaps worst of all, accepting verbatim every pseudo-commentary handed out from biased professors on any given subject from art to

Continued on page 3

— LETTER —

To the Editor:

It is unfortunate that the UNC-W tennis team will not be able to sport as good a record as could be expected. The reason being that several prospective players will not be allowed to compete due to hair length.

Nonetheless, this is another victory for the conservative P.E. machine, but a loss for the tennis team. It will be interesting to note the effect the hair restrictions will have when soccer season rolls around next fall.

—Wayne Rogers

BLUSTERY DAY for Homecoming '72 Parade judges (L-R) Doug Swink, Joyce Jackson, and Larry Crowder. (Staff Photo)

Editors, Business managers

Continued from page 1

the budgets that Fledgling and Seahawk work with, the scholarships offered to the journalists are funded by North Carolina State Government," explains Thomas P. Brown, Associate Dean of Student Affairs and chairman of the Student Affairs Committee. "Until a student publications board is formed by SGA, some Senate recognized group must keep tabs on matters of this nature," he continued, "otherwise, it's going to look like a popularity contest."

Final decisions on the positions will be decided by Senate February 23, 11:30 a.m., upstairs in the Student Services Building.

Donn J. Sroufe and Pat Watts, co-editors of Fledgling, explained the role of a yearbook's director: "The problems and responsibilities of editorship are many, varied, and difficult; it involves the handling of finances as well as understanding the mechanics that go into making up a college yearbook."

"An editor must be able to delegate authority and let those to whom he or she has given this authority function as a productive member of the staff. Since a yearbook is composed of several component parts, it is essential that it has a chief editor who can correlate all efforts into a publication that has meaning and substance," continued Miss Watts.

Said Sroufe, "This entails many hours of detailed work, which includes scheduling camera shootings, reviewing layouts and copy, establishing communications between faculty, students and community leaders, the publishers, professional photographer as well as working with the business manager and continually reviewing his budget. Sroufe emphasized, "The editor must above all meet his deadlines on time and simultaneously have complete control of his staff."

"It would be advisable," noted the co-editors of Fledgling, "that those who are carrying more than 15 hours not apply for the position of chief-editor."

Yearbook business manager handles and sells the advertising does the bookkeeping and invoicing.

"As Seahawk editor," stated Miss Divine, "one must be able to stay calm, to meet people easily, to maintain confidence in himself, and to give many uncountable hours to endless deadlines, details, and last minute hassles. Assembling a reliable staff to produce a reliable and viable newspaper organizing this group so everyone can realize their own responsibilities without hindrance or duplication, and remaining constantly on the lookout for events before they surface—these are the slightest of the challenges that confront a newspaper's editor-in-chief. Business manager is responsible for all advertising that appears in each edition, billing and collecting receipts and general bookkeeping."

"Due to the responsibilities assumed in leadership responsibilities, he or she should not attempt more than 15 semester hours," she concluded.

The three editors invite further inquiry from students interested in these positions.

Tim Sims

Continued from page 2 psychology without ever going to the primary sources purportedly represented.

Concerning problems particular to the administration or the SGA, because of our size at UNC-W there is really no excuse for not "getting it" from the primary source, from

(cont. p.3)

SGA people are willing and able to discuss their function and work with anyone.

And as for what we are taught, it is our own responsibility to check the primary sources from which our professor's lectures come.

Now we all realize that going to the primary source is not always possible, and sometimes circumstances are going to necessitate our settling for commentaries of one kind or another. Then, too, commentaries often prove to be valuable assets in our search for truth.

But whenever possible, there is no substitute for "the real thing", and when dealing with subjects - and especially people - it is immeasurably helpful and meaningful to "go to the primary source."

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

Search for tomorrow

TUESDAY FEBRUARY 15

WRESTLING — SEAHAWKS VS Campbell at Wilmington, 7:30 p.m.

POPULAR FILM SERIES presents "With Six You Get Eggroll" starring Doris Day and Brian Keith at 8: p.m. in K-121. When widow and widower fall in love, bringing their teenagers together is about as easy as bringing a group of freaks and the local police together.

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 16

BASKETBALL — SEAHAWKS Vs High Point College at High Point.

AIR FORCE REPRESENTATIVES will be in the Pub from 10-12 noon.

FRIDAY FEBRUARY 18

SOCIETY OF PHYSICS LECTURE by Dr. W.P. Bebbington, Savannah River Plant, on "Effects on the Environment of the Operation of a Complex Nuclear Facility", 218 Chemistry Physics bldg at 7:30 p.m.

CULTURAL FILM SERIES presents "The Servant" 8 p.m. in K-121. An indolent, spoiled and wealthy young man living in a palatial home, hires a manservant who succeeds in taking over the house and dominating the master. The way in which the plot is executed is fascinating and shocking and adds up to a complete exploration of the class structure in England.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19

WRESTLING — SEAHAWKS Vs Pembroke State and UNC-Charlotte at Pembroke. Triangular match.

BASKETBALL — SEAHAWKS Vs Pembroke State University at Wilmington.

UNSAT, FEBRUARY 20

THE UNCW COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA performs at 3:30 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Free. Public invited.

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Tuesday
is College Night
at

Snoopy's
PIZZA PARLOR
De Old Public House

... WITH BILL GREEN ON PIANO
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER

CLASSIFIEDS

(rates: 10 cents per line per issue)

ROOMMATE NEEDED to occupy 65 foot trailer. Half of rent, $67.50. Contact John Traynor, 5429 Oleander Dr., Tel. 791-3306, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

THE SEAHAWK needs several students to share in advertising and business duties. No experience necessary. If interested contact Wayne Rogers in the Seahawk office during the day or call 799-2060 after 6 p.m.

Wrightsville lab feels the deep

By DAVID SHOW
Journalism Class

Are you familiar with the term "chemo-reception"? Have you ever lived underwater for a period of two weeks? If the answer to each question is no, then a visit to the Wrightsville Beach Marine Bio-Medical Laboratory might prove to be a fascinating and informative experience.

Specializing in "experimental high-pressure physiology," the Wrightsville lab conducts studies in depth simulation and the effect of underwater pressure on animals and man.

Occupying the lab's indoor-outdoor primate centers are dozens of tiny squirrel monkeys, used for experimentation. Many of the monkeys have electrodes planted in the tops of their heads.

The lab is equipped with a mini-submarine and various underwater chambers. A "man-rated" medical operating room, can be used to a depth of two hundred feet. A haboon-sized chamber is used for one mile depth simulation.

Dr. Michael Heeb, a member of the lab staff, is presently involved with studying starfish and their feeding habits. He is specifically interested in the ability of the starfish to "smell" its food through the excretion of a mysterious fluid. This ability is known as chemo-reception.

Another staff member, Dr. J. Morgan Wells, left recently for the Florida Keys to conduct experiments for the National Oceanographic Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). He will live for two weeks in an "edlab" (underwater habitat) and will use a portable undersea instrument chamber which some UNC-W biology students helped to construct.

RECYCLE THE SEAHAWK—Biology Club members sort out the newspapers, cardboard, aluminum, and glass left in Kenan, Alderman, and Hoggard halls. (Photo by Howe)

Poet Kumin reads work

By JUDY JORDAN
Journalism Class

Mrs. Maxine Kumin, poet and novelist, recently visited the UNC-W campus. She read several poems from each of her three poetry books, including Halfway, The Privilege, and her latest, The Nightmare Factory. She briefly discussed her most recent novel, The Abduction. Her novel, she says, is "very poetic, not in the sense of descriptive or heavy, but it's planned like a poem." The novel is set in Washington, D.C., during the riots after the assassination of Martin Luther King.

Mrs. Kumin also discussed her Jewish upbringing in the Puritan era in Germantown, Pennsylvania. "I grew up in an old house, a Victorian house, with six chimneys, and the bats used to come down," she said.

She grew up next to a convent and has written about the confusion it caused her as a child. "I wanted to belong and knew that I didn't," she explained.

Mrs. Kumin uses many literary symbols, loves form, and likes to write in rhyming couplets. She says that this is difficult in Anglo-Saxon, and she often must use slant rhymes. She likes to write poetry "so that it tickles the ear without pounding on it."

The title poem in THE NIGHTMARE FACTORY appears last in the book. It expresses her idea that nightmares are "terribly private visions," for they are manufactured and "packed up for us who must dream them."

This most recently published book of poems includes a section of tribal poems, which are family oriented. Mrs. Kumin read several poems from this section because, she said, "We all here are sons and daughters of someone."

One poem from this section, "For My Son On the Highways of His Mind," expresses her deep understanding and admiration for her son and his generation. The rhythm of this poem is similar to that of rock music, and the rhyme is of a difficult order which she invented. This poem, as do many, she said, came "out of chaos in search of order."

Mrs. Kumin is the mother of four children, three natural and one adopted, and teaches creative writing at The School of the Sacred Heart in Newton, Massachusetts. Her appearance at UNC-W was sponsored by the N.C. Poetry Circuit.

SPS sponsors lecture series

The Society of Physics Students will sponsor a lecture series concerning nuclear power plants. Scheduled through March, the talks will be held in room 218, Chemistry Physics building, at 7:30 p.m.

"The purpose of these talks is not to promote one point of view or the other concerning the use of nuclear power for electrical generation; stated Dr.

Hildelisa C. Hernandez, SPS advisor; rather, they are intended to increase one's basic knowledge of reactor science so that he may better determine the validity of recommendation both for and against the increased use of nuclear power."

"Interested persons are invited and encouraged to attend the entire series for a thorough understanding of the subject," she concluded.

Talks are scheduled for the following dates:

February 11, Dr. W. Seagondollar, NCSU, "Nuclear Physics and Fission Products".

February 18, Dr. W.P. Bebbington, Savannah River Plant, "Effects on the Environment of the Operation of A Complex Nuclear Facility".

February 25, Dr. R.L. Murray, NCSU, "Nuclear Power Plants of the Future".

March 3, Mr. W.E. Selkinghaus, "Carolina Power and Light — Southport Plant".

Tuition Postponement Plan works

Hartford, Conn. (CPS) — A total of 1,257 students at Yale University have elected to sign contracts under the new Tuition Postponement Option which permits them to finance the cost of their education against future lifetime earnings.

The Yale Plan, announced a year ago, went into effect this fall. Students in Yale College choosing the option can defer up to $800 each academic year out of the total annual charge for tuition, board, and room. With more than 1,200 students — including undergraduate, graduate and professional students — now signed up, Yale officials feel the Tuition Postponement Option Plan is off to a successful start and that enrollment in future years will continue at a similar if not greater rate.

The unique features of the Yale plan are that 1.) each individual's obligation rises and falls with his income after graduation rather than being a fixed indebtedness, and 2.) each group of students leaving Yale will have their obligations terminated when the group as a whole has repaid its amount postponed with interest.

The administrative official responsible for the loan, Albert W. Buesking, Associate Treasurer and Comptroller of Yale University, stated that there is widespread interest in the educational community. "One hundred and twenty-two colleges and universities have contacted Yale since last winter to learn about the plan. Yale has applied to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a grant to finance assistance to these universities, and is committed to sharing Yale's experience with the entire educational community. If this interest continues to grow and our experience continues to be successful, development of a secondary money market and student access to that market may become a reality."

*UNC-W Rings

*Diamond Rings

*Birthstone Rings

*Bulova Watches

Student Charge
Accounts

"Reed's for Diamonds"

Reed's

Front and
Princess Sts.

PROBLEM PREGNANCY

...If you'd like skilled, immediate help in thinking through all possible plans, call the Children's Home Society in North Carolina. The Society, a United Fund program, offers this experienced counseling service to you without charge.

740 Chestnut Street
Greensboro, N.C. 27405
Telephone 274-1538

Mrs. Selma Smith
P.O. Box 1597, Carolina Power & Light Building
Wilmington, N.C. 28401 Telephone 763-9727

Film review: (RA)

By SPENCE FOSCUE
Journalism Class

The origin of the New World civilization is questioned in "The Ra Expeditions," Thor Heyerdahl's fantastic voyages on a papyrus boat from Africa to the Americas.

An unprecedented film, except for Heyerdahl's previous "Kon-Tiki" travels, "The Ra Expeditions" combines excitement and the atmosphere of high sea adventure. The expeditions are made on the Ra, a papyrus reed ship designed in the likeness of reed boats used for thousands of years.

The film offers a brief explanation of the similarities between the stone pyramids found in Egypt and South America. While giving a history of the construction of reed vessels on both of these continents, Heyerdahl proceeds in the construction of RA with workers imported from Chad, in North Africa.

The real adventure begins on the open sea when the ill-fated Ra I runs into early problems with its wooden rudder. Other mishaps continue to plague the expedition until it is finally abandoned only a week's journey from its destination.

Still convinced of the flexibility of papyrus and its seaworthiness, Heyerdahl acquired the aid of Peruvian boat-builders and launches Ra II, constructed on a different principle, using two main bundles of tightly woven reed instead of one. This time they make it, landing on the island of Barbados after their two-month adventures.

Photographed by Carlo Mauri and Kei O'Hara, "The Ra Expedition" takes on a professional quality not found in many documentaries. The scenes underwater are equally as beautiful and impressive as those topside although not as frequent.

Heyerdahl's seven crew members are from seven different countries and the fact that they live together in near-perfect harmony is stressed throughout the film. This is nothing new, however. The situation was the same on board Kon-Tiki.

As sadder and perhaps more penetrating note is the amount of pollution found by the voyagers. Small solidified fragments of oil deposits are found on both expeditions. Heyerdahl, in helping to solve the question of man's migration, has confronted us with an even greater one, his survival.

A BONFIRE glows as Homecoming '72 closed to an end Feb. 5. Postponed five times because of rain, it didn't hesitate to burn.

Bulletin board

Anyone with suggestions for improvements in the cafeteria is urged to contact Terry Workman at 799-4493 or at dorm room 418.

PUB HOURS

Mon thru Thur. 7:30 a.m. — 10 p.m.
Fri. 7:30 — 12 midnight
Sat. 1:00 p.m. — 12 midnight
Sun. 1:00 p.m. — 10 p.m.

Tutors are available every Friday at the Chemistry - Physics building for all chemistry students who desire additional assistance with their work.

Sessions will be held from two until four p.m. in either C-127 or C-129. The Chemistry Club, sponsor of the sessions, provides the tutors at no expense to the students.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Bob Grace, club president, or anyone on the chemistry staff.

CAFETERIA HOURS

Monday-Friday
Breakfast 7:45 to 9:30
Lunch 11:00 to 1:30
Dinner 5:00 to 6:30

Weekends
Breakfast 9:00 to 10:00
Lunch 12:00 to 1:30
Dinner 5:30 to 7:00

LIBRARY HOURS

Monday-Friday
8:00 to 10:00
Friday
8:00 to 5:00
Saturday
9:00 to 1:00
Sunday
2:00 to 10:00

Students gear studies to vocational goals

(CPS) — According to a recent Carnegie Commission on Higher Education study American college and university students are gearing their studies to vocational goals.

Undergraduate enrollment in such fields as pre-medicine, pre-law, psychology, journalism, social work, and nursing have risen notably this fall.

Generally, the current economic condition is reflected additionally in the shift away from enrollment in such areas as engineering, education, and physics. There recently has been a sharp drop in employment opportunities in these fields.

The Carnegie study shows that the number of new students entering biology this fall was up by 16 percent over last year's number in a survey of 357 institutions.

There is still a shortage of trained medical personnel and medical schools report a dramatic rise in applications.

At Harvard, the number of biology majors rose 30 percent over last year. And enrollment in organic chemistry, a prerequisite for medical school, has doubled in two years.

On the other hand, enrollment in subjects severely affected by the economic slowdown has dropped drastically.

For example, enrollment in aeronautical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has dipped from 687 students in 1969 to 385 this year.

At the same time there has been an increase in enrollment in oriental languages courses despite the overall shift away from foreign languages studies. Stanford University reports over the past two years the number of students enrolled in Chinese and Japanese language courses has increased by 25 percent.

Journalism and communication arts are among the most rapidly growing areas of study even when the news industry is suffering severe cutbacks in personnel. Journalism enrollment at the University of Wisconsin leaped from 181 last semester to 246 this fall.

Other areas now enjoying an increased popularity, according to the Carnegie study, are ecology, urban studies, city planning, agriculture and theology.

However, ethnic studies, which became popular two years ago, experienced a 12.1 percent decline according to the Carnegie report.

Atlantis springs

Atlantis, campus literary magazine, is currently accepting short stories, poetry, essays, and other creative works for its spring issue. The deadline for contributions will be around the last of March.

The magazine, which published its first issue in 1970, stemmed from a growing need to reflect the creative thoughts of students on campus. "We wanted to give UNC-W a cultural boost," stated Dave Smith, Atlantis editor.

Looking back over the fall issue, Smith felt it to be fairly successful. "Our magazine was twice as large as the year before," he said. The editor added that he would especially like to see an interview with a well-known literary figure published in this semester's issue. "A satire might also be good," he stated.

Besides Dave Smith, staff members for this semester include Erich Parker, Associate Editor, Wrightson Jackson, Editor of the Editorial Board, Ray Buchanan, Prose Editor, Diane Braak, Poetry Editor, Terry King, Art Editor, Jeannie Howe and Lee Howe, Photographers, and Susan Dall, Publicity Editor.

Other staff members include Ron Seawell, Ted Betts, Hilda Hawes, Rick Stiles, Jack Paul, and Sherry King.

Dr. James Collier and Mrs. Nila Chamberlain are faculty advisers for the magazine.

Atlantis invites any students interested in literary publications to become part of the staff.

Feb. 22 Tuesday

1-Nomination For '72-73 Student Government Offices Will Not Be Accepted After 5:00 P.M.

2-11:30 A.M. Upstairs Pub Constitution Test & Parliamentary Test Will Be Administered To Those Who Have Filed.

Feb. 23

Last Day To Take Constitution & Parliamentary Test. Time To Be Announced (After 1:30 P.M.)

Feb. 29

10 A.M. to 12:30 P.M. — Candidates Speak, Questions & Answer

March 8 Wednesday

ELECTIONS

MARCH 15 Wednesday RUN — OFF (IF NECESSARY)

Vote

Cafe under new manager

By CATHY TYNER
Staff Writer

This semester, the cafeteria has been under new management. Ron Osborn has come to the UNC-W campus from Omaha, Nebraska after joining Interstate Food Service last August.

Osborn previously worked with ARA, another food service corporation, in which he trained for two years in all phases of food production, inventory control, and managerial services. He has worked seven years with ARA Food Services at colleges (Simpson College - Indianola, Iowa; Morehead State-Minnesota; Kearney State - Kearney, Nebraska) and at restaurants in Omaha, Nebraska.

A day for Osborn usually starts around 8:30 a.m. and ends around 7 p.m. During this time, he checks with the cafeteria employees on duty, discussing the plans for the day's menu. According to Osborn, "I never know what will come up from one hour to the next —" (Osborn washed dishes, pots, and pans the day of this interview).

Osborn hails from Wisconsin and is married with two children. His family is currently in Omaha waiting until he can find a house here in Wilmington for them. Osborn is twice a grandfather — one granddaughter born in August he has not seen yet.

About the food service - student relation, Osborn said, "We all are trying to please the customers (students). We welcome legitimate gripes and act upon them. Also, I'm going to have menus posted in the cafeteria soon. We need helpful criticism from the students ... and for the spring we've got some really BIG SURPRISES planned."

In conclusion, Osborn said, "I enjoy working with students. The students here are the most polite I've ever seen (this is Osborn's first time in the 'good ole South'). They actually say 'Sir.'"

Greek beat

PHI MU SORORITY initiated seven girls into its organization the night of January 30. New sisters include Brenda Bonser, Boni Fries, Janet Hairr, Paula Hart, Debbie Rogers, Cindy Turner, and Pam Welsh. The sisters intend to hold another rush in two or three weeks. As of now, plans for this gathering are incomplete.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA FRATERNITY, plans to hold an Ugliest Man on Campus contest later this month. Proceeds from the project will in all probability go for a permanent sign for the front of the campus. All interested organizations are invited to enter a candidate in this contest as soon as possible.

PI KAPPA PHI FRATERNITY opened rush last week with a biology seminar. Paralleling BIO 215, the seminar was conducted by Ken Brock, social chairman. After the audiovisual presentation, group discussion was held. Refreshments were set on tap throughout the event.

Anyone interested in PKP should drop by the house at 4216 Market St.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA — no news reported.

DELTA UPSILON — no news reported.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON — no news reported.

ZETA TAU ALPHA — no news reported.

MAN AND HORN — UNC-W Music Professor, William Adcock, demonstrates his electronic saxophone, which is played through amplifier shown in picture. Note control box attached to the bell of saxophone. (Photo by Ben Clayton)

Electronic sax has 63 sounds

Electronic horns played through amplification systems are the latest fad in musical instruments, and a UNC-W professor is the proud owner of one.

William F. Adcock, Asst. Professor of Music, purchased his Electronic Tenor Saxophone, called a Vari-Tone, last summer and he is still "experimenting" with it to learn the 63 combinations of sounds claimed by the manufacturer.

"These is a pick-up mike built into the neck pipe of the saxophone," Adcock explained, "that goes to a little box mounted on the bell, which in turn goes to an amplifier."

Through the amplification system, any amount of volume can be obtained. Combinations of high, medium, and low frequencies are possible for any tone blown through the instrument. Also, certain ones can be cut out. Moreover, a switch is mounted on the horn that will engage an echo chamber to any desired degree.

"One rather odd feature," Adcock noted, "is called an Octamatic." By turning a knob to a prescribed setting, he explained, it is possible to play a duet with yourself in octaves.

"If I, for example, am playing the Note C, then this instrument plays the C an octave below that," he pointed out. By turning the knob its full circle, it is possible to cut out the original sound entirely and the low octave takes over. The upper octave is not reproduced at all.

Adcock said there is "another little wire on it that I can use to operate a foot pedal that will allow me to cut in and out on this anytime I want to. In other words, what they (the designers) have really done electronically is to incorporate a tenor saxophone with a bass saxophone. It actually goes that low."

Adcock described a similar instrument by a different manufacturer which has gone a step further. This innovation actually changes the sound of the instrument. Adcock said that if he attached this particular invention to his tenor saxophone, "I can get combinations that, instead of sounding like a tenor saxophone, would make it sound like a bass clarinet, or an oboe, or a flute. Yet I'm still playing one instrument."

Emphasizing that it actually changes the sound of the instrument electronically, Adcock compared the device to the electronic organ. "It's just like an organ," he said, "when you change the stops. It's the same principle as the electronic organ."

The electronic saxophone is the identical size of any other tenor saxophone and the only extra weight is the box attached to the bell which weighs 16 ounces. But merely because the instrument has been electrified does not mean it cannot be played in the normal manner. "If I don't want to use electrification," he stated, "I just don't use it. It plays like any other saxophone."

Adcock plans to demonstrate publicly what this instrument will do in a program call "Music by McAfee" to be held on UNC-W campus. The date for this program has not yet been released.

Suggestions offered

The cafeteria committee held a meeting last week to discuss ways of improving the food service. Present at the meeting were Chairman Terry Workman, Student Representative Cathy McCormack, and Dean Thomas P. Brown.

Miss McCormack presented a list of foods that different students would like to see the cafeteria feature more often. Included in the list were steaks, pizzas, various salads, and a number of ideas for special offerings on Valentine's Day.

Workman decided to take the list, along with his own ideas, to Mr. Ronald H. Osborn, cafeteria manager. He also expressed a hope that the cafeteria would start giving its menus to the committee a couple of weeks in advance. "This way," he stated, "we will be able to inform the manager of the students' feelings way in advance."

The chairman further said that he intends to take a student survey on the snack bar facilities.

Dorm elects senators

Elections were held Tues., Feb. 1, in the UNC-W Residence Hall to select members of the Dorm Government's Executive Committee and Senate.

Elected to the Executive Committee were Brown Belt, Pat Rivenbark, and John Wilkins. Those elected to the senate were: 1st floor Men, Bob Becher and floor Women, Betty White 2nd floor North, Mike Kennedy and floor South, Jim Stoneham 3rd floor North, Bob Foran and floor South, Buster Griffin 4th floor Men, Nolan Hurt and floor Women, Kay Rouse 5th floor North, Cathy McCormack and floor South, Lynn Keller 6th floor North, Anne Barr and floor South, Barbara Ford.

Among the first items of business for the new Government will be the appointment of a secretary and a treasurer, and the selection of a five-member Judicial Board.

Senate to debate new constitution

The student senate appropriated $3,000 of its $5,000 reserve fund for use by various groups in its regular meeting Feb. 1.

The concert committee received the lion's share of the money, getting $1,500 to back a concert planned for March 6. Wes Knappe, chairman of the committee, felt a need for a minimum amount of money to be guaranteed to the performer.

Another $1,500 went to a number of groups and special funds, including $300 to the debate team, $150 to Atlantis, campus literary magazine, $100 to the president's discretionary fund, $500 to the Fledgling, school yearbook, $250 to the SRO Theatre group, and $200 to the active treasury.

In other action debate ensued on the method of approving the new SGA constitution. Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, a faculty member in the audience, suggested that a special meeting be called for the purpose of going over the constitution article by article.

Speaker Kirk Brown called a special session for Wed., Feb. 16, 7:30 p.m., upstairs Pub.

Myrberg speaks 'fish'

The Wrightsville Beach Marine Bio-Medical Laboratory, in its continuing series of weekly seminars, presented Dr. Arthur Myrberg Friday, January 28th.

Dr. Myrberg specializes in the behavioral study of marine fishes at the University of Miami's School of Marine and Atmospheric Sciences. He has worked closely with the Bimini Video-Acoustic Installation, a television, camera permanently mounted on the Bimini reef with its receiver located in a lab at the Lerner Marine Laboratory.

Myrberg told of his research in behavior as a function of sound on the bicolor damselfish, EUPOMACENTUS PARTITUS, and on sharks. Besides showing slides of his research, he used his own guttural ability to speak the language of the fish he studied as recorded during his research.

'Hawks struggle against ACC

Atlantic Christian College's Clifton Black did it all as the Bulldogs defeated UNCW 114-95 Saturday Feb. 5 in the Seahawks' annual Homecoming game.

Black scored a total of 52 points for a new ACC school record. Next in the scoring list was UNCW's Steve Langston with 31. Also in double figures for the 'Hawks were David Prince with 24, John Sadler with 19 and Mike Sabrinsky with 11. Black also led rebounding with 17 while Langston had 13 snags for UNCW.

The game saw the Seahawks play the best thirty minutes of basketball this season. Taking the opening tip-off, UNCW had a brief 3 point lead before ACC got on the board. The score was tied nine times during the first half in a tense see-saw battle.

The second half saw the score knotted four times until ACC's 5 pt. lead with 12:01 left to play. With Black, Jim Nixon, Bob Gant, and Bryan chalk leading the charge, the Bulldogs put together a fast break that beat UNCW's tough man-to-man full-court press for three straight baskets.

The Seahawks are now 4-3 in Dist. 29 play and 4-11 overall. Next home action will be against Shaw University on Feb. 12.

In the "Old Timers" game preceding the varsity contest Coach David Miller's White Team defeated Jerry Hooks' Green Team 86-84. Leading scorer for the White All-Stars was Jim Hall with 23 pts. Ronnie Vance led the Green All-Stars with 20.

Lorick, 2 FG, 3-0 FT, 3 F, 4 PTS
Belch, 1 FG, 6-4 FT, 1 F, 6 PTS
Prince, 10 FG, 5-4 FT, 2 F, 24 PTS
Nemargut, 0 FG, 1-0 FT, 1 F, 0 PTS
Langston, 13 FG, 6-5 FT, 5 F, 31 PTS
Sabrinsky, 2 FG, 7-7 FT, 5 F, 11 PTS
Sadler, 7 FG, 5-5 FT, 1 F, 19 PTS
TOTALS, 35 FG, 33-25 FT, 18 F, 95 PTS

Gant, 3 FG, 6-4 FT, 5 F, 10 PTS
Nixon, 7 FG, 3-3 FT, 4 F, 17 PTS
Chalk, 10 FG, 3-2 FT, 4 F, 22 PTS
Cleaton, 0 FG, 2-1 FT, 3 F, 1 PTS
Jones, 4 FG, 0-0 FT, 4 F, 8 PTS
Black, 23 FG, 11-4 FT, 4 F, 52 PTS
Barden, 2 FG, 0-0 FT, 2 F, 4 PTS
TOTALS, 49 FG, 25-16 FT, 26 F, 114 PTS

Sports Shorts

By MIKE JONES

The formation of two leagues for intramural basketball was announced last week by Dr. David E. Warner, director of UNCW's intramural program.

The Gold League will include: The Crop-Dusters, the Raiders, TKE, the Ballers, the Faculty, the Shadows, the Jocks and the Mayo's.

The Green League will consist of Pi Kappa Phi, the Stumpjumpers, the Untouchables, the Engineers, the Red Raiders, APO, and DU.

The winner of each league will play each other in a final game to determine a champion. All games will be played at night in Hanover Hall. Schedules are posted on the Gym bulletin board.

The P.E. Majors defeated the Panhellenic Council 14-0 in the Powderpuff Football Game last Saturday.

The current '71-'72 academic year marks the first time that UNC-W has fielded a bowling team. The newly formed Seahawk bowling team, coached by Mr. Warner, is participating in the Coastal Division of the four divisional Southern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference. Seventeen teams from Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland round out the conference.

The Coastal Division consists of University of South Carolina, the Citadel, Armstrong State University, Savannah, Georgia and UNC-Wilmington. The teams roll each other twice; at home and away in the five team matches.

Bowling scores are on a man to man scratch basis with no handicap involved. A point system is utilized to determine the winner. Two points are awarded if a bowler beats his opponent; six points to the team with the highest overall pinfall per game; and 10 points to the team with the most total pinfalls for the entire five game match. Thus, a team may attain a possible 90 points.

The top team from each division will compete at the season's end for team, doubles and singles conference honors at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville in April.

Netters begin practice

By JOAN SWART
Journalism Class

With four returning netters and three new players, the UNC-W tennis team began practice last week. At least three more players are expected to try out for the team.

Returning are sophomores Danny Conner and Ray Barshick, junior Bill Brooks, and senior Mark Thompson.

Freshmen Jay Dawson and Jim Miller are expected to be the strong support for the team. Dawson played in the number one slot last year for New Hanover High School and placed first in the regionals and third in the state in high school competition. Coached by Larry Honeycutt, the team practices Monday through Friday, with early emphasis on physical conditioning.

In order to qualify, freshmen must have passed 16 hours last semester, and upper-classmen must have passed 24 hours over their two preceding semesters.

The schedule promises many good matches, with the toughest competition expected from Campbell College.

Bowlers travel

After two matches the Seahawk bowlers have evened their record at 11. The team suffered an 80-10 loss against Armstrong State on Jan. 22, but came back defeating The Citadel 50-40 on Feb. 5. Both were home matches at the Bowling Center.

Total pinfall was the decisive factor in the win, with the Seahawks taking the 10 points for winning total pinfall, 4167 to 4165.

Top individual scorer against the Citadel was UNC-W's Tom Jones with a 241 game and 963.5 game total.

Although UNC-W dropped its match against Armstrong State, the leading scorer was the Seahawks' Wayne Rogers with a 223 game and 931 total.

The teams next match is with The Citadel in Charleston this weekend. Our bowlers travel to Savannah, Ga. on Feb. 26 for a meet with Armstrong State.

Lottery drawn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Birthdates of men born in 1963 and the order in which they are eligible for call for possible military service in 1973.

Jan. 1-150	Jan. 16-309
Jan. 2-328	Jan. 17-231
Jan. 3-42	Jan. 18-72
Jan. 4-28	Jan. 19-303
Jan. 5-338	Jan. 20-161
Jan. 6-36	Jan. 21-99
Jan. 7-111	Jan. 22-259
Jan. 8-206	Jan. 23-258
Jan. 9-197	Jan. 24-62
Jan. 10-37	Jan. 25-243
Jan. 11-174	Jan. 26-311
Jan. 12-128	Jan. 27-110
Jan. 13-296	Jan. 28-304
Jan. 14-341	Jan. 29-283
Jan. 15-221	Jan. 30-114
	Jan. 31-240

Feb. 1-112	Feb. 15-308
Feb. 2-278	Feb. 16-227
Feb. 3-54	Feb. 17-46
Feb. 4-68	Feb. 18-11
Feb. 5-96	Feb. 19-127
Feb. 6-271	Feb. 20-106
Feb. 7-154	Feb. 21-316
Feb. 8-347	Feb. 22-20
Feb. 9-136	Feb. 23-247
Feb. 10-361	Feb. 24-261
Feb. 11-26	Feb. 25-260
Feb. 12-195	Feb. 26-51
Feb. 13-263	Feb. 27-188
Feb. 14-348	Feb. 28-295

March 1-203	March 17-363
March 2-322	March 18-357
March 3-220	March 19-358
March 4-47	March 20-287
March 5-266	March 21-300
March 6-1	March 22-317
March 7-2	March 23-71
March 8-153	March 24-71
March 9-321	March 25-65
March 10-331	March 26-24
March 11-239	March 28-24
March 12-44	March 27-161
March 13-244	March 28-45
March 14-47	March 29-287
March 15-117	March 30-21
March 16-152	March 31-213
March 17-94	March 32-228

April 1-12	April 15-343
April 2-106	April 16-119
April 3-104	April 17-183
April 4-280	April 18-242
April 5-354	April 19-158
April 6-86	April 20-314
April 7-163	April 21-4
April 8-90	April 22-264
April 9-324	April 23-279
April 10-373	April 24-362
	April 25-355
	April 26-233

April 11-350	April 27-265
April 12-23	April 28-55
April 13-169	April 29-83
April 14-81	April 30-69

May 1-58	May 6-337
May 2-275	May 7-145
May 3-166
May 4-172	May 8-201
May 5-292	May 9-276
May 10-100	May 10-310
May 11-307	May 22-333
May 12-115	May 23-216
May 13-49	May 24-246
May 14-224	May 25-122
May 15-165	May 26-118
May 16-101	May 27-293
May 17-273	May 28-18
May 18-98	May 29-133
May 19-148	May 30-48
May 20-274	May 31-67

June 1-15	June 10-178
June 2-360	June 11-64
June 3-245	June 12-190
June 4-207	June 13-318
June 5-230	June 14-95
June 6-251	June 15-16
June 7-251	June 16-32
June 8-282	June 17-91
June 9-83	June 18-238
June 19-52	June 25-143
June 20-77	June 26-345
June 21-315	June 27-330
June 22-146	June 28-53
June 23-212	June 29-75
June 24-61	June 30-142

July 1-39	July 15-359
July 2-297	July 16-74
July 3-109	July 17-199
July 4-92	July 18-121
July 5-139	July 19-332
July 6-132	July 20-33
July 7-285	July 21-5
July 8-355	July 22-286
July 9-179	July 23-365
July 10-89	July 24-324
July 11-202	July 25-35
July 12-340	July 26-204
July 13-306	July 27-60
July 14-306	July 28-200
July 15-185	July 29-253
July 16-222

Aug. 1-323	Aug. 16-19
Aug. 2-27	Aug. 17-6
Aug. 3-3	Aug. 18-113
Aug. 4-313	Aug. 19-105
Aug. 5-63	Aug. 20-163
Aug. 6-208	Aug. 21-30
Aug. 7-57	Aug. 22-140
Aug. 8-131	Aug. 23-302
Aug. 9-7	Aug. 24-138
Aug. 10-249	Aug. 25-290
Aug. 11-125	Aug. 26-76
Aug. 12-199	Aug. 27-34
	Aug. 28-40

Aug. 13-329	Aug. 29-84
Aug. 14-205	Aug. 30-182
Aug. 15-241	Aug. 31-218

Sept. 1-219	Sept. 2-17
Sept. 3-226	Sept. 17-189
Sept. 4-356	Sept. 18-269
Sept. 5-354	Sept. 19-228
Sept. 6-173	Sept. 20-141
Sept. 7-144	Sept. 21-123
Sept. 8-97	Sept. 22-268
Sept. 9-364	Sept. 23-296
Sept. 10-217	Sept. 24-236
Sept. 11-334	Sept. 25-291
Sept. 12-43	Sept. 26-29
Sept. 13-229	Sept. 27-248
Sept. 14-353	Sept. 28-70
Sept. 15-235	Sept. 29-196
Sept. 16-225	Sept. 30-184

Oct. 1-215	Oct. 7-129
Oct. 2-128	Oct. 8-157
Oct. 3-103	Oct. 9-116
Oct. 4-79	Oct. 10-342
Oct. 5-86	Oct. 11-319
Oct. 6-41	Oct. 12-171
Oct. 7-14	Oct. 13-269
Oct. 8-14	Oct. 14-193
Oct. 9-277	Oct. 15-256
Oct. 10-59	Oct. 16-9
Oct. 11-177	Oct. 17-78
Oct. 12-192	Oct. 18-325
Oct. 13-167	Oct. 19-327
Oct. 14-352	Oct. 20-349
Oct. 15-288	Oct. 21-346
Oct. 16-191	Oct. 22-10

Nov. 1-107	Nov. 12-66
Nov. 2-214	Nov. 13-124
Nov. 3-232	Nov. 14-237
Nov. 4-338	Nov. 15-176
Nov. 5-222	Nov. 16-209
Nov. 6-211	Nov. 17-264
Nov. 7-299	Nov. 18-160
Nov. 8-312	Nov. 19-270
Nov. 9-151	Nov. 20-301
Nov. 10-257	Nov. 21-287
Nov. 11-159	Nov. 22-102
Nov. 12-320	Nov. 23-135
Nov. 13-180	Nov. 24-130
Nov. 14-25	Nov. 25-147
Nov. 15-344	Nov. 26-134

Dec. 1-170	Dec. 16-187
Dec. 2-90	Dec. 17-294
Dec. 3-56	Dec. 18-13
Dec. 4-250	Dec. 19-168
Dec. 5-31	Dec. 20-149
Dec. 6-336	Dec. 21-80
Dec. 7-267	Dec. 22-188
Dec. 8-210	Dec. 23-252
Dec. 9-120	Dec. 24-185
Dec. 10-73	Dec. 25-6
Dec. 11-82	Dec. 26-351
Dec. 12-85	Dec. 27-194
Dec. 13-85	Dec. 28-156
Dec. 14-335	Dec. 29-175
Dec. 15-38	Dec. 30-281
Dec. 16-137	Dec. 31-164

Administrative briefs

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT

Two more students entered the honors program this semester. Gregory Otis Nelson (Chemistry-Mathematics) is working on a research project entitled "Preparation of organophosphorus chlorpromazine analogs." This work is being supervised by Dr. Jack B. Levy. Joseph Lester Shoub (Business) is working on a research project entitled "A history, explanation, and revelation concerning the acquisition of real property by adverse possession." Dr. E.M. West is supervising this research.

Together with the six honors students from last semester, the total of eight students is the largest number of honors students the program has had on the campus.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Dr. Houlon wants to remind future teachers that there is a Teacher Placement Office on campus. The office is located in the Education Building.

PHYSICS DEPARTMENT

Dr. Irvin Clator was presented an award January 17 by the Department of the Navy and United States Navy Weapons Laboratory in Dahlgren, Virginia for invention of a shaped-wave generator, a method and device for controlling the shape of explosively generated shock waves. The invention was patented on October 12, 1972.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

DEADLINE FOR MEASUREMENT OF CAPS AND GOWNS — FEBRUARY 11

DEAN OF FACULTY

Faculty — do not forget to contact Joan Hunoval about regalia for graduation. Deadline is February 10.

CAMPUS SECURITY OFFICE

South 40 still has parking places for those students who can not find an empty space.

Ladies watch found during Lighthouse concert. Can be claimed by identification.

LIBRARY

For the past three weeks, library staff has been teaching instructions on use of the library to English classes on campus. Sessions have been held in the library during regular class periods.

"Society" stolen

A cast aluminum sculpture, "Society," was reported missing from Kenan Hall January 20, 1972. The sculpture, 16 to 18 inches high, is valued to $400. "Society" was one in a collection by Howard Woody on display in Kenan Hall.

The theft was reported to the Campus Security Office around 11 p.m. January 20 by Byron Corcoran.

According to the Security Office, the theft was estimated to have occurred between 7 a.m. and 10 a.m. An unsuccessful effort was made by the Art Department to locate the sculpture.

Dancers volunteer

Five students from UNC-W's contemporary dance class instructed by Mrs. Dorothy Nesbitt have volunteered to help the Dance and Drama Project of Wilmington. These students are: Vickie Willis, Kate Fewell, Vicki Daun, Debbi Ezzell, Joyce Register.

The Project, to be held at the five public housing sites in Wilmington, is sponsored by a federal grant.

Mrs. Dorothy Nesbitt, a student and instructor here on campus, is a teacher in the Dance and Drama Project. Juday Morgan, another UNC-W student, is an assistant teacher in the Project.

Bus schedule

WILMINGTON CITY LINES
WILM-UNCW-CAPE FEAR HOSP.

MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
Effective Jan. 25, 1971

2nd. Red Cross	UNCW College	Cape Fear Hospital
6:30 a.m.		6:55 a.m.
7:15 a.m.	7:35 a.m.	7:45 a.m.
8:15 a.m.	8:35 a.m.	8:45 a.m.
9:15 a.m.	9:35 a.m.	9:45 a.m.
10:15 a.m.	10:35 a.m.	10:45 a.m.
11:15 a.m.		11:40 a.m.
12:05 p.m.	12:25 p.m.	12:30 p.m.
12:55 p.m.		1:20 p.m.
1:45 p.m.	2:05 p.m.	2:15 p.m.
2:45 p.m.	3:05 p.m.	3:15 p.m.
3:45 p.m.	4:05 p.m.	4:15 p.m.
4:45 p.m.	5:05 p.m.	5:15 p.m.
5:45 p.m.	6:05 p.m.	6:10 p.m.

SATURDAY ONLY

2nd. Red Cross	UNCW College	Cape Fear Hospital
7:15 a.m.	7:35 a.m.	7:45 a.m.
8:15 a.m.	8:35 a.m.	8:45 a.m.
9:15 a.m.	9:35 a.m.	9:45 a.m.
1:45 p.m.	2:05 p.m.	2:15 p.m.
2:45 p.m.	3:05 p.m.	3:15 p.m.
3:45 p.m.	4:05 p.m.	4:15 p.m.
4:45 p.m.	5:05 p.m.	5:15 p.m.
5:45 p.m.	6:05 p.m.	6:10 p.m.

No Sunday nor Holiday
Service

Bus stops at traffic circle.

Organizational news

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

SGA — all '72-'73 offices open for nominations through Feb. 22.

SENIOR CLASS

No news reported.

JUNIOR CLASS

No news reported.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

No news reported.

FRESHMAN CLASS

No news reported.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

No news reported.

BUSINESS CLUB

The Business Club heard Jaycees President Earl Scofield at a recent breakfast meeting.

Scofield gave a brief history of his organization and informed members of the purpose of the Jaycees.

BIOLOGY CLUB

Project Recycle collects paper, aluminum, and glass every Tuesday at collection points in Hoggard, Kenan Hall, and the Administration building.

ENGINEERS CLUB

No news reported.

FRENCH CLUB

No news reported.

HISTORY CLUB

No news reported.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

MAJORS CLUB

No news reported.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Meeting — February 8, 4:00 p.m., Education — 206.

SPANISH CLUB

No news reported.

STUDENT NATIONAL

EDUCATION

ASSOCIATION

No news reported.

STUDENT NURSES

ASSOCIATION

No news reported.

WANTU WAZURI

No news reported.

If you think you're so divine be your own darned Valentine If, however, you have a doubt come to the BOOKSTORE and find out.

Valentines Galore
Cards and Gifts!

THE BOOKSTORE

Put yourself in this space

All SGA '72 - '73

candidates are hereby offered one free

nine inch ad -

to be run the week of General Elections.

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XIII NO. 16

FEBRUARY 29, 1972

Boylan Speaks

By BILL WALLACE
Correspondent

In a recent interview, student government president Ed Boylan expressed his thoughts on the upcoming SGA elections.

He predicted that next year's enrollment would average around 1800 students, each paying about $19 per year in student activity fees. The president pointed out that as a result of these fee collections the SGA will have around $35,000 to appropriate for various student endeavors.

Boylan hoped that qualified students will come forward and run for the SGA offices that will be available in the coming elections. "The SGA will have a lot of money to work with next year, and we need people who will use intelligence and common sense when looking after our finances," he said.

Regarding the financial problems of the SGA, Boylan said that the senate does not have enough time to plan expenditures for the next school year. "At present, the planning for each fall semester is done in the preceding spring semester. It would be desirable to shift these budget studies to an earlier time," he said.

Continued on page 5

YES, YES, YES, YES, YES, YES, YES

In Concert March 6th. Tickets on sale in the Pub. Advance Students — $3. At Door — $4.

Things They've Said About Yes

"Vivid instrumental and vocal textures abound in The Yes Album (Atlantic), the third by this British group. The close-harmony, upper-register singing will remind you of Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young. But it's generally more competent, certainly more ambitious. In fact, during one or two of the long numbers, Yes's ambition borders on pretension. When the blend of texture and structure is right, as in 'I've Seen All Good People, they make beautiful music.'

"In contrast, Yes displayed as many dimensions, moods, tempos, and as much over-all creativity as seen in these parts for plenty moons." — Marvin Martin, The Register.

"Yes is a progressive rock group with technical excellence, writing and arranging originality and a great deal of finesse and subtlety." — Marvin Martin, The Register.

Continued on page 5

21 Students Vie For SGA Offices

21 students are running for upperclass SGA offices as of Feb. 22. Seeking the office of SGA president are Barry Asbury, Bill Brooks, and Tim Sims. The contest for SGA vice-president is between Bill Brooks and Pattie McCombie.

In the Senior Class, Janice Asbell, J. Margaret Ingram, and Jack Paul are campaigning for president. Candidates for senator are Janice Asbell, Diane Goetz, Joe Green, Wes Knappe, and Jack Paul.

The Junior Class has two candidates for president, Barry Asbury and Gloria Ramos. In addition, Lee Hoffman, Sandra Jones, Bill Renn, and Bill Wallace are seeking the position of senator.

In the Sophomore Class, George Wayne Huggins has filed for the presidency and Elizabeth Buffington for the vice-presidency. Senatorial candidates include Mike Jones, Preston

Continued on page 5

Constitution Changes

The senate held a special meeting the evening of Feb. 16 at which time it made changes through nearly two-thirds of the proposed constitution before adjourning for the night. Subsequent meetings will be held for revising the remainder of the document.

The constitution was read to the senate item by item, and debate took place on certain questionable sections. Many of these items were ultimately revised. The discussion opened after the reading of the preamble, which initially read, "We, the students of the University of Wilmington..." This was

Continued on page 9

BACH'S UNCLE

Thursday, March 2, the University Music Series will present Bach's Uncle (not a rock group) at 8:30 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Playing the Cello, Oboe, Flute, and Harpsichord, they will give master classes at UNC-W.

Short Story Deadline Set

Short stories are now being accepted for the 1972 Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest. Stories may be submitted in the English department office, second floor, Kenan Hall.

The deadline for submission is Thursday, March 16. The contest is open to UNC-W students only. The number of stories per person will be limited to two.

This will be the third annual contest in memory of Miss Jessie Rehder. Miss Rehder was a native of Wilmington and a published writer. Her best-known work is a novel entitled REMEMBRANCE WAY. Miss Rehder also headed the creative writing department at Chapel Hill.

Winners in the contest will each be awarded prizes. Amounts of these prizes and further details will be announced later.

SEASQUAWKS

In Defense Of Spiro Agnew

A Series By

RONALD G. DUNN

Upon being asked for a series of political "relations" (my word), I chose to defend Vice President Agnew for several reasons. a) he couldn't be as bad as the united press makes him out to be; b) his speeches are eloquent in style and beautifully carried, with an uncanny logic unmatched by contemporary statesmen; c) most people laugh when his name is mentioned for no reason other than it is the popular thing to do. In fact, no fact-filled answer can be drawn from these compulsive gigglers when posed the question, "Why do you laugh?"; d) judging from his past accomplishments and orations, his is not, nor has ever been, a racist attitude, nor has he shown any outstandingly biased tendencies; e) and finally, his individuality strikes me as uncommon in an age that produces the mimic's mimics and I like that.

My viewpoint is obviously biased yet, I believe, biased to the point that reason is biased to logic, and logic to productive thought.

In order that the reader gain the proper perspective of the task I now enjoin, allow me to start at the beginning with the selection of Governor Agnew as Nixon's running mate in 1968 in Miami, which was a surprise to both Democratic and Republican parties although moral vultures did not waste any time in beginning their attempts to "lay his moral carcass bare".

Before his selection, the relatively obscure lawyer was all in favor of Mr. Nixon's archantagonist, Nelson Rockefeller, at which time he failed to betray any serious weakness the more liberal hopefuls were likely to profit from. He, in fact, was still fresh from rescuing Maryland, in 1966, from the leadership of a Democratic committed to segregationism, at which time his candidacy (for Governor) was endorsed by the "Washington Post" and the "Baltimore Sun", both which presently lead the "Agnew is a joke" campaign.

Up until the spring of 1968, he was construed to those who knew him as, if anything, a Republican who was content to be ruled by futile idealism to the extent that it's goals should take precedence over individual freedom, a still much desired trait among intellectual liberals.

Then, in the spring of 1968, the tide turned in the Governor's life. He took certain actions and stands that differentiated him from the school of men who hold that civil disobedience is justified upon the grounds that the citizens of this country owned slaves 100 or so years ago. Governor Agnew arrested a couple of hundred students, answering a sit-down seizure at a Maryland College. He did not stop there however, but went on to instruct Negro leaders in the Baltimore area that their duty was to lay a firm repudiation of such as Rap Brown and Stokely Carmichael. He continued to deplore that facet of our society which proclaims that the reasons for riots and disorders is that White Americans are racist.

I contend that this analysis he spoke of (White Americans are the cause of the then current riots) is at worst misleading in that a group of citizens do not just up and leave their domiciles to wreak havoc on a community, but must be antagonized not from without, but from within, often without their actual realization. Such has been the tactics of the "riot makers".

No doubt it was his stand on these issues, the general disappointment of the more liberal school, and Rockefeller's unavailability to run, not to mention his popping up in favor of Nixon, that gained him popularity with Nixon's group.

Immediately on the announcement of his appointment by Nixon, shunned contenders began their search for moral flaw, yet came up only with the half-hearted public comments to the effect that he was chosen to "appease the South". Those of the principal opposition, mainly supporters of Lindsay, used this as an excuse, yet it seems ironic that their entire argument for Lindsay as VP stemmed from a parallel purpose, ... to appease the North and the large cities.

I pause to remind the reader who may be in doubt, that the Supreme Court upheld in 1968 and upholds to this day that the Southern section of the United States, inhabited by American citizens, is entitled to political consideration. The fact that southern civil rights leaders believed as Agnew did and does, ... in civil rights, not civil disobedience, is complementary, and to be desired.

Needless to say, yet I'll say it in any event, Agnew was persecuted by the news

Continued On Page 9

Song For Sigmund

By RICK MITZ

There's a new music—newer than Joni Mitchell, American Pie, the Taylor Family, and Mrs. King's rock Queen Carole.

There's a new neon-lighted music that makes Janis Joplin seem like just another pretty voice and makes Frank Zappa the boy next door.

This new multi-dimensional music is gaining impetus like the sound of umbilical cords snapping all around the country.

In an era of environmental health, health foods and mental health, it's only natural that there should be Health Music.

Music often has been used as a means toward health. For more than twenty years, psychologists have used music as a tool in treatment of mentally handicapped patients. Opera is well-known for its Mad Scenes. And many songs — from Deutschland Uber Alles to On, Wisconsin — have provoked an emotional reaction in their listeners. But now, music is changing its tune.

Two new songwriters are writing creatively cathartic music as they revel and reveal through musically "meaningful" experiences.

It all began about five years ago with Arthur Janov's controversial Primal Scream therapy. Neurosis, Janov says, is frozen childhood pain. All neuroses are symptoms for releasing that Primal Pain, brought about by unfulfilling childhood experiences relating to parents. He points to a single cure: The neurotic person must dismantle his defenses and return to where he made the decisions to act out expectations of others rather than his own feelings. Janov's theory is complex but, briefly, the Primal patient must re-live pain to remove the "curse" in order to understand his neurotic tensions. Naturally, Mother and Father are an integral part of the therapy. The Primal patient is urged to call out his parents and, as he does so, the patient often begins screaming long and sorrowful sobs. This is the Primal Scream.

But now, Primal Scream Mothers and Fathers have found their way to the phonograph. Dr. Janov's best-known patient is John Lennon, former Beatle. Lennon's latest two albums underscore his therapeutic involvements. In a song called "mother," he musically writhes in pain, screaming: "Mother, you had me, but I never had you I wanted you, but you didn't want me ... Good-bye." He ends the album with a short and snappy song to the tune of Three Blind Mice: "My Mummy's dead — I can't get it through my head — I can't explain — so much pain — my Mummy's dead."

In his album, Lennon has creatively attempted to work out his Mother Thing, yelling at and for her at the beginning of the record ... putting her to rest forever at the end. There is a blurred photograph of Lennon as a young boy on the album cover.

Dory Previn's music is of the same genre. When her husband, Andre Previn, left her for Mia Farrow, Dory's psyche cracked. She was institutionalized. "While I was in the hospital," she has said, "I started writing to get some order out of chaos. What I've tried to do is bring the madness out in the open."

And she's succeeded. Maybe too well. Her three albums contain more Mad Songs than all opera combined. In one song, she relives her four-month long sanitarium experience. But mostly she sings about her parents.

"Damn you, Mother — how I hate you — you will never know how deep — I must cling till you release me — I could kill you in your sleep — I would smile to watch your life blood creep across your wretched hair yes, of course I love you, Mother — I'll never leave you — I swear."

But behind each element of Dory's madness is an element of sadness that passes through the listener's ears and straight to the heart.

This song is dedicated to the father: "The telephone rang — my sister calling — Dad is dead? — when did it happen? — six a.m. she said — did you ask for me? — what did you say? — Never mind. ... God is kind."

Songs about parents have changed somewhat since the days of "I Want a Girl, Just Like the Girl ..."

Health music affects the listener, too. It's easier to work out our own problems through someone else's efforts. And sing along. We can easily play audio voyeurs and eaves-drop on other people working out their neuroses. And some of ours surely overlap. This Health Music has been called names from Freudian to Fraudulent — but it's a music that can teach us something. Between Previn and Lennon, there are five albums to show for it. Might just be the perfect gift for your parents' anniversary.

LETTERS

I am dismayed by the fact that one must present his student ID card in order to legitimately check out a library book. Yet one can easily put the book under his arm or in his briefcase and simply walk out of the library without anyone questioning him. To adhere to the rules one must identify himself, as if he were under suspicion of some wrongdoing. To circumvent the rules one is left alone. It would appear that the administrators may have lost their sense of purpose. Judicious procedures would NOT dictate subjecting the law abider to proving his identity and purpose, but to establish procedures which would discourage or deter the non-law abider.

DON DIAMOND

The Seahawk

University Of North Carolina

At Wilmington

P. O. Box 3725

Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

Acting Editor Ron Dunn
Acting Associate Editor Mike Jones
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporters Grace Parker, Tim Sims,
Kathy Tyner, Bill Wallace

Business office, S-201, James Student Services Building

Senate Helps Bowling Team

The senate held its regular meeting Feb. 22. First on the agenda was a recommendation by the finance committee to appropriate $336 to the newly formed bowling team so that they could finish out the rest of the semester.

Raleigh Todd, spokesman for the team, told the senate about the group's predicament. He stated, "We couldn't get the money from the intermural fund, because our tournaments are held off-campus." He added that the team also tried to receive aid from the physical education fund. "This money was disallowed also, because the school would be held responsible for any injuries we might suffer if the team were backed from this fund," he said.

Todd then gave an itemized list of expenses, stating that $150 would be spent on board, $100 on transportation, and the remainder on practice and tournament fees, after further discussion, the senate approved the appropriation.

After the senate took care of the rest of its regular business, it spent the remaining time approving a few more sections of the proposed constitution. In the article concerning elections, Jane Divine moved that there should not be any academic requirements for eligibility to seek or maintain SGA office. The proposed section requires a 2.0 average for upperclass officers and a 1.5 average for freshman.

Miss Divine stated that interest in the SGA mattered more than grades; however, the majority of the senate felt that the SGA had to keep high academic standards, and the motion was defeated.

Patli McCombie attacked the next item, which stated that the SGA vice-president be from the highest rising undergraduate class. She stated the SGA vice-president was allowed by the constitution to come from the next lowest class and pointed out, "If this officer had to take over the presidency and was not in the highest class, such a move would be unconstitutional." Miss McCombie suggested that the president be allowed to be in either of the highest classes. The senate approved this revision, and Robert Grace quickly introduced an amendment to the changed part. He presented a motion stating that no president would be allowed to serve two terms in office. The senate voted down this idea, the majority opinion being that the students could decide this question for themselves at the polls.

Discussion ended at this point, and senate decided to hold another special meeting Thursday night to finish approving the constitution. Results of this meeting were not available at press time.

Fragments Of A Few Loose Ends . . .

By P.V.

The core of man is the pit of Daemons
Filled by its raw energy,
A being's seeds of becoming Erupt through the grounds
Of complacency.
Discontent
Fans the flames of progress;
Burning its possessor
When he cheats
And destroys
Within and Without,
As a mortal strives for
A shred of immortality.

"Yes Is Coming"

The Doctor's Bag

By ARNOLD WERNER,
M.D.

QUESTION: Several women friends of mine have this wild idea that cats can suffocate infants by sucking their breath away. They claim that this happens because the cat smells milk on the baby's breath. I contend that this is an old wives' tale started by an over protective mother. What's your opinion?

ANSWER: Sounds like an old tale started by someone whose sex is undetermined (you don't think that I'm going to fall into the trap of using that male chauvinist expression "old wives' tale," do you?). Most cats I know lap up their milk and do not engage in intimate kissing with infants. It is possible that an animal could physically suffocate a tiny infant by lying on top of it, and there are stories of such happenings. Since animals do not smother their own young, such stories are hard to believe.

"How much for that President in the window?"

LOCAL FLIX

Beginning Feb. 29 -

BAILEY

"J.W. Coop"

COLONY

"Diamonds Are Forever."

CINEMA No. 1

"Such Good Friends"

CINEMA No. 2

"Cactus in the Snow"

New Food Offered

Terry Workman, chairman of the cafeteria committee, recently presented a list of student suggestions for new food offerings to Mr. Ronald H. Osborn, cafeteria manager.

Mr. Osborn stated that he would try to include new foods in the menu, but he added, as an answer to many inquiries, that having steak more than once a month was out of the question because it was not planned for in the budget. He also said that he would like to have fried shrimp or fish more often but stated that this was impossible because of limited equipment.

Mr. Osborn added that a glass coffee maker will soon be installed. He stated that this innovation should improve the taste of the coffee which is presently made in a metallic pot.

Workman also found out that Mr. Osborn hopes to have a hamburger and hotdog fry outside sometime this semester. The manager realized that many students have to eat in the cafeteria and felt that such a special event would make campus life more enjoyable.

Besides discussing cafeteria improvements, Mr. Osborn also gave the committee the planned menus through March 17. The committee will study these menus and after talking with students will make recommendations to the manager about any needed changes.

Anyone with suggestions for improvements in the cafeteria is urged to contact Terry Workman at 799-4493 or at dorm room 418.

suspects of the Board of Higher Education.

UNC-W Comptroller Robert O. Walton said that during April each student currently enrolled will be billed for his $50 deposit toward the fall semester tuition and fees. The deposit will be payable on or before May 1, 1972. If the student, after paying the deposit, decides not to return to UNC-W or if he is ruled ineligible to return because of his grades and notifies the university by June 9, 1972, the deposit will be returned.

After June 9, the deposit will be returned only if the withdrawal of the student is the result of illness, a call to military duty or other circumstances which are beyond the control of the student and which the university deems adequate. Forfeited deposits will be used to supplement appropriations for scholarships.

New students and students transferring to public institutions of higher education will also be affected by the legislation. These students will be required to remit a $100 deposit toward tuition and fees for the term for which they are accepted. The deposit will be due within three weeks of the mailing by the institution of the notice acceptance. If the deposit is not paid within the three-week period, the applicant shall be assumed to have withdrawn his application.

If after remitting the deposit, the applicant decides not to attend the institution and gives notice of this decision by May 1, in the case of application for the fall term, or at least one month prior to the beginning of the term in the case of application for the spring term, the deposit will be refunded.

Any deposit will be refundable if the withdrawal of the applicant is the result of illness, a call to military duty or other circumstances beyond the student's control and which the institution deems adequate. Forfeited deposits will be used to supplement appropriations for scholarships.

Walton pointed out that summer sessions are exempted from the requiring of deposits.

Chinese Publish First Newspaper

PEKING, China (CPS) — The Ching Pao, a silk newspaper appeared in 700 AD and the "Peking Gazette", published in 1350, were the first printed dailies of which there is any record.

'Atlantis' Shows Improvement

Review

By JUDY JORDAN

New ideas in style and structure of this year's fall edition of Atlantis show great improvement over the two editions of the literary magazine published last year.

The magazine itself deviates from the ordinary magazine size and shape. The cover, designed by Terry King, is colorful and abstract. The blue pages and the structure of the paper used contribute also to the unique quality of the magazine.

There are many poems in ATLANTIS dealing with human relationships. Tim Sims, in "Father's Day, 1971" and "Requiem For Friendship" describes two of the most often experienced and deeply cherished of these relationships.

Some of the photography is also intact with this theme of human relationships. In one of his photographs, Lee Howe captures the warmth and mutual love and understanding contained in a young family.

In "To A Chinese Mistress," Kenn Keffer discusses a dream about a strange relationship between two people who communicate without words. Laviece Ward compares human isolation to the complete union of the shadows of two people in "Images On Pavement."

Human characteristics are used by Craig Martin for quite a different subject. In "Jesus, Did You Ever Sing the Blues," Jesus Christ, approaching the Christ figure as does the rock opera, "Jesus Christ, Superstar."

Other poems center also on somewhat religious themes. In "A Nun's Pillow," Pat White reveals the absolute and unalterable faith of one who has "married Her Lord. In contrast, "Prayer and Contemplation," by Dianne Braak, is a prayer of one who experiences honest doubt and cannot settle for "simple love and trust."

There are several subjects in the poetry which revolve around nature, particularly the ocean. "Fair Weather Beach," by Tim Sims, brings the human relationship theme into nature. Dave Smith, in "A Meeting of the Twain," compares the ferocity of the ocean with the "quiet eddying" of the river, after which he describes the meeting and union of their waters.

Both of these poems are effectively illustrated with photographs by Jeannie Howe. Other photographs in the magazine also capture the serenity, as well as the ferocity of nature.

Another interesting subject found in Atlantis is the effect of writing on the writer, creation on the creator. Dianne Braak's "Revelation" reveals the comfort which creation lends when one is lonely and restless. Ray Buncahanan, in "My Poetry," also describes what his poetry is to him.

"James the Cat Trilogy," by Ron Midgett, is "a child's poem for big kids." It tells the adventures of James the cat, who is pursued by all the other cat fishermen because he alone knows the secret of keeping fish fresh. The rhythm and rhyme scheme complement the mood of this delightful poem.

"Broken Treaty," by James Clark, is the touching story of the relationship between a very old golden retriever and a young man. Golden Recollection was quite a fine dog in his day and won prizes in many shows. He once belonged to Doc's father, and the story reveals the lasting sense of responsibility for Doc which the father instilled in the dog fifteen years earlier.

The story ends on a sad note, when Golden Recollection feels that he is no longer needed because he is betrayed by his beneficiary. "Wreck did not really love anyone anymore; he had outlived all his young loves..." All he has left to live for his his responsibility for Doc, and when this becomes no longer of any use to anyone, the old dog is ready to die.

Kathi Beale, in "The Ghost Sang Loud," tells the story of a ghost who is very real, but quite unfeared. "Lost," by Hilda Hawes, is a touching story about a little boy who become very attached to a coin which he found because it seems to be the only thing which he feels really belongs to him.

ATLANTIS, Volume 2, No. 1, edited by Dave Smith, also contained poems by Jean-Claire Wilkes, Ron Seawell, Harold Wheeler, Julie Odom, Donald Massengill, Victoria Baun, Erich Parker, and Ted Betts, and a previously unpublished poem by Jessie Rehder, which was donated by the Rehder family.

Besides the Photography, sketches by Terry King, Jack Paul, and Erich Parker are used to illustrate the literature.

IT'S BEEN 3 YEARS NOW SON
AND WE WERE WONDERING IF YOU'VE GOTTEN IT TOGETHER YET?

Editor Lectures Class

By BEN R. CLAYTON

Nick Evers ambled into Journalism Class 245 a couple of weeks ago and said more in fifty minutes about the practical side of this profession than could have been learned from twice the time spent studying textbook theory.

The City Editor for the Star News Newspapers gave the first in a series of lectures Dr. James Collier has arranged for his class of fledgling writers.

Shying away from the academic, such as "writing a sixty-word 'graph about an acorn," Evers plunged right into the nuts and bolts of good writing.

The lead paragraph of any story, said Evers, particularly a "hard news" story, is the most critical test of good journalism. A trick of the trade he shared with the students, which will test the effectiveness of a first (lead) paragraph, is to try and write an intelligent headline of about six words from it. If this can be done, "You've got a good lead 'graph," he said, "but if not, it is bad lead."

The veteran newsmen explored some of the problems encountered by working reporters. For example, he said "there are writers and there are reporters. Writers will merely rewrite what is handed them. But a good reporter will ask question and dig for facts."

In his casual but no-nonsense style, Evers warned the students that in the process of gathering facts of a story, the reporter will have trouble many times obtaining and interview. Once it is obtained, the reporter can then easily lose control of the interview by allowing the subject to sidestep questions or hide behind that favorite safety barrier, "This is off the record."

The reporter must be patient, said Evers, but he must also be persistent. Evers feels strongly that the journalist, not the subject, must be the one to decide what is or is not "off the record." But, he cautioned, the reporter must also safeguard his news sources and not betray a confidence.

The Editor related the news gathering problems and procedures during 1-st February's civil turmoil in Wilmington. He had to deploy twelve reporters and four photographers in order to cover all aspects of the widespread trouble areas. Then, he used that background to point out that reporters from other cities with very little knowledge or background of the local supposed to be knowledgeable dispatches to their newspaper. Some were fair, he admitted, but some were not.

The job of the newspaper, he said, is to inform the public objectively. Any opinions of the writer should be clearly noted and

Library to Get Security System

Officials of UNC-W's Randall Library are in the process of installing a "checkpoint" security system which will hopefully cure the library's ever-increasing loss of resources due to carelessness and theft.

A checkout counter or desk, to be named full-time by various staff members, will be installed at the building's exits within the next two weeks.

According to Librarian Helen Hagan, the "increasingly alarming" loss of books in recent years necessitates some form of precaution. "I sincerely hope," she said, "that students realize that precautionary measures are being taken to provide better service to students and faculty members."

Mrs. Hagan, along with other library staff members, began studying methods of control over two years ago. Limited funds have restricted any action on the matter prior to this semester.

Electronic systems were studies involving turnstiles and "triggering" devices located in each book. These methods, however, proved to be extremely expensive.

The problem at UNC-W is not unique. Both N.C. State and UNC-CH have library security systems. State employs the turnstile method, while the Chapel Hill facility has a controlled entrance with checkers on duty at the door.

Mrs. Hagan feels that if various security measures prove ineffective, libraries will be forced to return to the inconvenient "closed stack" operation. Under this method, students are not allowed to glance through books but must choose from a card catalog. Selections are turned in and books are retrieved by a library worker.

The inconveniences of this method brought about the "open stack" system that we are accustomed to today. According to Mrs. Hagan, libraries began taking a "calculated risk" for the benefit of students.

"It is regretful," she said, "that money which could be used to buy more books and better mankind should be spent for protection."

Curriculum Committee Studies New Program

UNC-W's curriculum committee is currently working on a new basic studies program to go into effect next year.

The tentative proposed program was reported out Feb. 1 to the committee by one of its subcommittees. Since that time, the committee has been in the process of amending the initial proposal item by item. The exact details of the program haven't been decided on yet, but preliminary reports show that it will be divided into four major classifications: math-English, humanities-creative arts, natural sciences, and social and behavioral sciences.

A certain number of hours will be required under each of these classifications for students of all majors. This new program should be more liberal than the present one, because there will be a greater flexibility in the selection of courses. Students will hopefully be able to elect more courses from a particular classification, instead of having to take so many required courses.

When the committee works out the details of this proposal, it will be made public and open hearings will be held for both students and faculty members that wish to present their views.

The committee will then take these ideas into consideration and institute additional changes in the proposal. As a last step, they will submit the final draft of the program to the faculty for approval.

The committee is composed of a chairman, one member from each academic department, and three student representatives, including Keith Farmer, Richard Formaini, and Albert Register. These representatives are currently soliciting opinions from various students and reporting their findings to the committee. They also became quite involved in the discussion during the meetings. Richard Formaini stated, "I never hesitate to give my opinion on whatever we're discussing."

To insure adequate student representation, the SGA has set up so that alternates can be sent to the meetings in case one of the representatives is unable to attend.

Anyone wishing to speak at one of the closed meetings is invited to do so, but they must first check with committee chairman Dr. Daniel B. Plyler in room 113 of Hoggarth Hall.

Boylan

Continued from page 1

I hope the voters will elect students that are able to do a good job when it comes to budgeting money," he further noted.

He challenged the voters to also use intelligence and common sense when deciding on a candidate for office. He stated, "Each voter should decide before he marks his ballot who would do the best job in a particular office."

Boylan also urged that each student vote in the elections. "The less turnout we have," he continued, "The less representative the SGA will be."

He also said that speeches by candidates will in all probability be made between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Feb. 29 in the education psychology auditorium. Boylan continued, "The elections will still be on March 8 and the runoffs on March 15."

Faculty Profile

Problems of the outside world and its surroundings interest Miss Cecile Maria McNulty, a UNC-W sociology instructor. Her interest in sociology came from her wish to understand the goals and purposes of society.

She has done research on "how various socioeconomic factors of college students affect their religiosity." Most of her studies are in the "urban, racial, and demographic" field of sociology.

To acquire information for her studies she has done "typical traveling for a sociologist I have traveled in this country and Europe," Miss McNulty explained.

Miss McNulty said enthusiastically, "I'm glad we will be having another faculty member next year. And I'm glad that the department is expanding." The sociology department will be offering a major next year.

When asked if she was planning on furthering her education she explained, "Probably in the near future I will get my Ph.D."

Concerning the students, Miss McNulty said, "I enjoy the students here. They are very nice and a fun group to work and be with."

"UNC-W," Miss McNulty says, "is a nice atmosphere to work in, not only in class but in the office also." "The longer I'm here the better I like it, not that I disliked it at first," she concluded.

Continued from page 1

"Yes presented the day's perfection. If anyone's still liable to be tagged with that grossly misused expression (and possibly doesn't tag 'progressive,' then it's Yes. Such faultless playing, and yet never in danger of forgetting feel and mood. They get frighteningly better by the month."

"They were surprisingly fresh after what seems an endless tour of the states, getting it on to produce a glorious sound. Paul Simon's 'America' was another revelation - what more they can do to this length of music I just don't know. 'See All Good People' and the remarkable 'Perpetual Change' made for a tremendous set. Compliments to the fine playing of organist Tony Kay, and of course guitarist Steve Howe, who included his ever varied 'Clap.'"

"There are guys with outstanding soloists who dominate; there are groups with solo stars, and here the aim is usually to merge all the talents so that no one stands out. Both policies can be successful."

But rarely has a group gathered so much cohesion as Yes, and few groups can boast such a winning mixture of dazzling soloists and total togetherness. The precision and lightness of their performance at London's Royal Festival Hall, on Friday, was staggering. Two encores insisted on their return to the stage. At the end of the night, Yes had been elevated to superstar status.

They proved they deserve most of the superlatives that have been heaped on them. Five musicians, beautifully complementing each other, blend into a joyful sound which, while keeping its roots in rock, strives successfully for a non-raucous gloss. None of the players is incapable of fierce, aggressive solo work—but the Yes sounds excites more through its shiny sparkle.

After taking one to set up equipment, during which the stage looked more like a radio station than a setting for a concert, Yes raced into a pacy act featuring material from their new 'Fragile' album.

"Mood for a Day" featured the Spanish guitar work of Steve Howe, who wrote the piece. Steve's delicate acoustic touch contrasted vividly with his other work, and this segment of the show was especially pleasing. In "Heart of the Sunrise," Rick Wakeman showed a keen sense of dramatics in his multi-keyboard acrobatics. He is an electrifying player who knows how to please an audience.

Chris Squire got his personal spin with 'The Fish' which emphasized the striking effect used by Yes with stinging, fast changing, textures. Rick Wakeman did a send-up of an old 'Housewives Chorus' signature tune before playing into a slow, haunting 'Perpetual Change' and 'Ours is No Disgrace' showing their melodic strength.

Yes's sound is taut, driving and a thorough joy.

Jonathan Swift opened the show. After meeting an unresponsive audience, he worked well to persuade us that his songs were worth hearing. An infinitely better acoustic guitarist than singer, Jonathan impressed with 'Blue Eyes,' his new single, and songs from his debut album. A promising folk talent." —Ray Coleman, Melody Maker.

BIRTH OF THE NEW YES

Out-Tony Kaye

In-Rick Wakeman

"All this," says Tony Kaye, speaking of his departure from the group, "started quite a long time ago. When we first got the new band together, it was happy and creative. But later, we weren't writing, or in the studio, just doing concerts, and there was not time for me to practice."

"Now I have the chance to do some sessions and play with other people. In the last six months I have really got into playing at home, and writing and recording. I'm deciding what I want to play on my own and not just as a unit with Yes."

"I quite did what was put down on the last LP but I'm not ever happy with the stuff I played. The way I feel at the moment, I want to rest from being on the road and business scenes. I just want to think. I've been on the road and playing for six years."

"Yeah, yeah, I feel disappointed at leaving as a founder member. It's a good band, playing its own music. But now I want to do something different. I think the spirit will work us both a lot of good. Anyone can change, and it's happened to us. They wanted me to play Moog and Mellotron and other keyboards, but I just wanted to play organ."

Said Yes lead vocalist Jon Anderson: "The split was a bit strange and a freaky thing. Tony is a tremendous guy and in the years we were together he was very efficient and great for the band. Getting Steve in changed us and visiting the States gave us greater realization of the potential. We wanted a more colorful sound and Tony was content to groove along, which was nice. But we knew how good Rick was, and he has proved tremendous. It's so exciting to work with somebody like him. I think he's been bottled up in the past and now it's all pouring out. It was very hard to make the change, but we shall be friends with Tony."

"There is something about Rick that turned me on completely. He's very enthusiastic and very talented and already it feels as if he has been in the band for years. He and Steve got on very well."

"The bank will always carry on, and if one person leaves, then there got to be a change. It's very strange that the next LP title is 'Fragile'! We just want to create the best music we can."

Work on the new album has already begun and last week the MCA was privileged to attend one of the sessions at Advision's 16-track studio in London. Apart from engineer-producer, Eddie Offord, a familiar face of many of the albums who has guided the fortunes of Emerson, Lake and Palmer among others, the band consisted of manager Brian Lane, an itinerant classical oboe player, peering through the glass partition and crowding around the band's desk.

Bill was pacing about cigarette in hand, a stream of smoke and indignation, and with a steady pouring forth. The drummer seemed to argue constantly with bassist Chris Squire, and as both have positive ideas on the role of electric bass guitar and drums in the modern group—neither could reach agreement, which caused Rick to laugh in fits.

From his session ering activities, Rick is a kind of casual confidence that contrasted to the intense concentration of Steve Howe, Chris, Bill and Jon. But through the tension of the session, gradually began to emerge a stunning sound.

It was the sound of a revitalized Yes that more than ever before will seduce the public ear with Rick Vista-Vision. Steve in a black t-shirt frowned over his guitar, as Jon continued to play a little and tapping line with Rick, while Chris and Bill played in their ideas. It was complicated. They make mistakes. Re-thought endings. Replayed passages over and over.

But when the melody and mechanics of rehearsal-recording could not shroud the spirit.

They all came pouring out of the studio to listen to a tape. "Bill, the snare drum is a bit damp. Could you take the stuff off," said Eddie. "It sounds beautiful to me!" said Bill.

The piece being worked out was tentatively titled: "Heart of the Sunrise" in three parts. Jon objected to something Bill was playing on cymbals. "You can't start playing Chinese music during that! At the moment—it's all noise."

Bill: "Oh man—it's a beautiful sound! You can't hear the guitar at all. Good heavens, I'm getting hysterical and cross. This is getting silly."

But the argument stemmed from enthusiasm and a genuine, unshaking faith. At one point the band almost broke into applause for some of Rick's splendid piano licks.

It was like being at the test bed of some amazing flying machine destined to bring continents closer together. And when the new Yes take-off in the Autumn—they will soar to new heights of invention.

Rick Wakeman talked about his ideas on where Yes was heading and why he split from the Strawbs after being in the band for nearly 15 months. "It was in July last year that Rick first came to light after the Strawbs' first solo concert in London at Queen Elizabeth Hall. At the time people were asking how long they could keep the skinny long blond-haired keyboard player."

"I couldn't understand at the time, I mean you take a job because you like what you are offered, and if you are lucky enough to get a job you are really interested in you don't think about leaving," said Rick.

When did he first think that he would be leaving the Strawbs? "It started about seven months ago when for some unknown reason the Strawbs thought that I was going to leave them. I had had a lot of offers to join other bands, and not told them—which I suppose was the wrong thing to do. Everything that has happened with Yes has happened in the last month."

"Chris Squire phoned me about a month ago, he asked me if I would like to join Yes. We arranged a blow, and frankly I was knocked out with what they were doing."

"Then Steve Howe rang me a few days later at 1:30 in the morning after I had been in bed for about an hour after 36 hours without sleep, which wasn't the best time to catch me. I was very un- together, but completely knocked out by the fact that they wanted me to join Yes, and by the ideas they had for 'Fragile' and the live show," said Rick. "I think they are moving into what I can only describe as orchestral rock. You've had the heavy bands such as Cream and the Who, now we are trying to move on one stage further into orchestral rock. I think we have the same element that heavy rock. I think we have the same excitement that heavy rock generated, but what Yes are doing is a hell of a lot more complicated and musically refined."

"Every bar is thought out when the song is formulated. Once the whole thing is together you can play it and you feel it, but there is a solid backbone and arrangement to work from. We're working 15 hours a day recording and rehearsing, and some of the things that were coming out are just—well—they're silly."

Silly? "You know Steve (Howe) will get a really tight riff, and instead of just the guitar taking it, we're putting it out together. When we finish we just have to laugh. It's impossible to explain. I don't really know how to explain it."

"The way Yes think is amazing too. Bill is not a drummer and Chris is not a bass player—can you follow that. Jon doesn't think like a singer either, they all think like musicians. Suggest a straight bass line to Chris and he might as well forget about it before you start," said Rick.

SGA Offices

Continued from page 1

Maultby, and Brad Walls.

Four students from this list are running for more than one office. While there is nothing illegal about this, the SGA constitution states that only one office may be held at a time, should any of these candidates win more than one position.

Each of the 21 candidates will get a chance to speak before the student body at a political rally set for Feb. 29 at 10 a.m. in the Education Psychology Auditorium. Elections will be held March 8 of the following week and run-off elections, if needed, will take place March 15.

Karen Thomas, chairman of the board of elections, is in charge of supervising the balloting. Other students on the board include Carson Benson, Jack Jeffords, Dickie Miller, Rachel Pickett, Frances Robinson, and Pam Simpson.

The board has a number of duties connected with the SGA elections. Weeks before the actual balloting, it posts signs calling for students to nominate themselves for office. The board also sets up facilities where candidates can file for office and checks the academic qualifications for each nominee.

It then administers a constitution test to approved candidates, who must make a score of at least 70 percent to be put on the ballot. It also introduces each candidate at the political rally held just before elections to allow voters to hear speeches by each nominee.

During the actual elections, the board mans the polls and counts the ballots at the end of the day. Their job is finished after the results are posted.

Asked what problems the board of elections faces, Karen Thomas stated, "The biggest problem is that not enough students nominate themselves for office. This causes us to have a larger than normal number of write-in votes, which naturally creates more work for us."

She further said that the lack of voter participation is a problem for the school as a whole, because it makes the SGA less representative than it otherwise would be. In concluding remarks, Miss Thomas urged as many nominees and voters as possible to get involved in the upcoming elections.

Sports Shorts

By MIKE JONES

At present there are five varsity athletics that are supported by UNC-W funds: baseball, soccer, basketball, wrestling, and tennis, and in that order.

We have now a chance to make a name for UNC-W in both bowling and rowing. Due to our membership in the Southern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference, we have the chance to compete on a varsity level with such as University of South Carolina, the Citadel, and other major NCAA schools along the Southern East Coast. Only two other schools in North Carolina have rowing teams: UNC-Chapel Hill and East Carolina.

One would think that our location on the coast would make UNC-W a major power in intercollegiate rowing, but the Athletic Department doesn't see it that way.

Neither the bowling team nor the rowing team receive funds from the Athletic Department. At present, the bowling team receives only $336 from the SGA's Student activity fund. The rowing team is completely devoid of funds, solely dependent on money obtained from raffles and car-washes staged by the team members.

It would seem that Bill Brooks would try to forget about trying to continue that string of national championships in baseball, at least at the expense of sports that could possibly draw bigger crowds.

Students are sick of watching the best basketball game of the season only to realize that the final score was 114-94, in their favor.

It is disgusting to see two eight-man shells and two four-man shells sitting on their racks at the field house disintegrating along with the opportunity to establish a great intra-state rivalry.

It is pathetic that a team must be forced to go the SGA, whose funds are already limited, to finance an activity that properly belongs to the Athletic Department.

When the Athletic Department becomes more responsive to the needs and desires of the student, perhaps UNC-W High School will be on its way to deserving the title "university."

Methodist Coach Chosen "Coach of the Year"

PEMBROKE — Gene Clayton, the 32-year-old coach of the surprising Methodist College basketball team which rolled up its finest cage record ever this year in winning the Dixie Conference regular season championship and clinching an NAIA District 29 playoff berth, is NAIA District 29 "Basketball Coach of the Year."

Clayton was chosen by the other 14 District coaches for the honor.

Clayton's Methodist team compiled a 10-2 record in the district and a 15-5 mark overall. This is a considerable jump from a year ago when the Monarchs were only 11-10 for the season.

For the first time in its history, Methodist, a non-athletic scholarship school, defeated Atlantic Christian, Pembroke State and UNC-Wilmington, all of which give scholarships.

Clayton says his success has stemmed from personal contact and selling prospects on the idea "Of playing more and immediately at Methodist instead of going to scholarship schools where good players sit on the bench." He says the only financial help a Methodist player receives is through the regular student aid program.

With this approach, he was able to recruit such players as Harry Flipping, a junior who transferred from Chowan Junior College; Elton Stanley, a freshman from Shalotte; and Craig Knight, a freshman from St. Petersburg, Fla. "I was down in Florida a week last spring," Clayton said. Flipping, Stanley and Knight were starters this year, Stanley made first team All-Dixie Conference and both Flipping and Knight were honorable mention.

"We also started out workouts early this year and had nine hard scrimmage games with other schools before playing our first official game. We won eight of those and were at our peak when the season started. As a result we got off to a great start," observed Clayton.

At first, Clayton said no one took Methodist seriously, but soon they discovered the Monarchs were for real.

"The balance on our team was the key," said Clayton. "We have five players averaging in double figures. I'm extremely pleased over being named 'District Coach of the Year,' but the total credit belongs to the players. Without their hustle, desire, hard work, and dedication, we wouldn't have the record we do. I didn't score a point all season."

Clayton indicates, too, that this is only the beginning for Methodist. "I have players transferring here from Appalachian and West Virginia," he said.

Clayton is in his eighth year at Methodist. He has been head basketball coach and athletic director for the last six years. He earned his B.A. at Catawba and his M.A. at UNC-Chapel Hill. He joined the Methodist coaching staff immediately after graduating.

NAIA District 29 Standings

(through Feb. 19):

TEAM	W	L	W	L
Elizabeth City State	9	1	15	10
Methodist	10	2	15	5
Lynchburg	9	3	19	8
Campbell	8	3	17	9
Fayetteville State	8	3	16	10
Virginia State	6	6	14	11
Shaw	5	5	13	11
UNC-Wilmington	6	6	6	15
Virginia Union	4	6	9	14
Atlantic Christian	4	6	7	17
Pembroke State	5	8	12	12
N.C. Wesleyan	4	8	8	14
Hampton Institute	1	9	8	15
Virginia Wesleyan	1	9	3	17
St. Andrews	1	11	4	21

The debate team placed second in overall competition in tournament at Old Dominion College the weekend of Feb. 11-13. Schools from 10 states in the surrounding area participated.

Representing UNC-W in the varsity division were Bryan Fann and Patti McCombie, while Janice Asbell, Pete Epperly, Keith Hales, and Lee Hoffman competed in the novice division.

The debaters won over teams from the University of Virginia, the University of Richmond, Randolph Macon, and Hofstra (N.Y.), as well as a number of teams from other schools. The group won 12 out of 18 rounds, and was surpassed in total performance only by William and Mary.

Besides coming in second, the team also had several members receiving special awards. In the category of after dinner speaking, Bryan Fann was first in the field. His win was significant, because for the first time in the history of the tournament, he was the unanimous choice of the judges. Another first-place award went to Keith Hales, who was considered by the judges to be the best speaker in the entire novice division. Another team member, Lee Hoffman, was third place in the same category. Hoffman and Hales combined their talents to become the third place team in novice debate.

The last award went to Mrs. Betty Jo Welch for being the coach with the "Perpetual smile."

The next contest for the debaters will be held at the Citadel Feb. 25. They are also planning to go to a tournament at Lenoir Rhyne College March 24. In non-debate activities, the team hopes to hold public interviews with several political figures before the end of the semester. They also intend to help set up some high school debate tournaments in the near future.

Debate Team Scores

NCAA Top Twenty

1. UCLA	20-0
2. Marquette	22-0
3. North Carolina	18-3
4. Pennsylvania	18-2
5. Louisville	19-2
6. Long Beach State	21-3
7. (tie) South Carolina	17-4
8. (tie) Brigham Young	18-3
9. Missouri	19-3
10. Virginia	18-3
11. Maryland	17-3
12. S.W. Louisiana	20-2
13. Florida State	21-4
14. Ohio State	15-5
15. Kentucky	17-4
16. Marshall	21-2
17. Houston	17-5
18. Hawaii	22-2
19. (tie) Providence	16-4
(tie) Toledo	16-4

Bulletin Board

STUDENTS WHO HAVE COMMENTS ON TWO MEALS being served on the weekend instead of three should see Mr. Clark in A-109. This will mean breakfast from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and dinner from about 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

SEAHAWK OFFERING ALL SGA candidates one free 9-inch ad the week of elections. (Whenever that is).

RESIDENCE HALL DEPOSITS — Mrs. Fillon of the Students Affairs Office said deposits from off campus students are coming in at a rapid rate. Rooms are on a first come basis. Everyone is advised to make a deposit as soon as possible.

MEN'S INTRAMURAL VOLLEYBALL ... will start March 14. Get your rosters in to dorm room 330 or Mr. Warner as soon as possible! Additional information will be posted.

SOME RESIDENCE ROOMS WILL BE CLEANED during Easter. All students are requested to clear their floor before they leave.

JUDICIAL BOARD FOR THR RESIDENCE HALL was appointed by the Executive Committee on Feb. 15. The Residence Hall Senate approved these appointments and also the appointments of secretary and treasurer on Feb. 16.

The Judicial Board members are Bill Murray, Mike Jones, D.H. Whitley, Mike Shoaf, and Cynthia Stewart. Chief Justice of the Judicial Board is Bill Murray, and the secretary is Mike Jones.

The secretary for the Residence Hall is Cora Jones. The treasurer is Vicki Willis. All Judicial Board cases should be turned in to Mr. Munroe or Bill Murray.

FIRE DRILL LAST WEEK, many students returned before the "All Clear" was given. Only Mr. Pursley, Mr. Munroe, or the Fire Chief gives this statement. Students are to stay out of the building until the "All Clear" is given by one of the three above people.

GIRL'S INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL ... will have the gym on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

SUNDAY BIKE RIDES ... Cape Fear Cyclists. Call 762-8651 evening.

ALL GIRLS INTERESTED in participating in intramural badminton are asked to sign up at the gym bulletin board March 1-3. Practice will begin on the 13th and tournaments will last until March 28. Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

THE BUSINESS CLUB will hold its monthly breakfast meeting Tuesday, Feb. 29. The guest speaker at this meeting will be Mr. Thurmond Sallade, Director of Advertising Department of the Start-News. Mr. Sallade is active with several merchants associations, is an experienced newspaper advertiser, and should provide an interesting presentation to club members.

SION, Switzerland (CPS) — Valais State government officials have told American LSD advocate Timothy Leary

Shower Freak Sets Record

Batesville, Ark. (CPS) — Carl Farina, an Arkansas College freshman, "stepped out of the shower at 5 p.m. last Monday with a new world record for staying under the shower the longest.

"Taking showers is a favorite pastime of mine anyway," he remarked. "I have taken 11 showers in one day and average around 5 a day.

Farina stayed under the spray for 72 hours, 9 minutes, beating the old record as listed by the Guinness Book of World Records as 72 hours and 5 minutes.

"I could have stayed longer," he said, "but the college was charging me a dollar an hour for the water I was using and all the money we could raise was $55."

Upon breaking the world's record, Farina immediately took a shower and went to bed.

he is no longer welcome and have asked him to leave.

Police Chief Arthur Bender said Leary's presence was a bad example for local youth. Leary, 51, had been living in the mountain resort of Crans writing a book on psychology.

Leary escaped from a California prison 17 months ago where he was serving a 10-year sentence for marijuana possession. Claiming later he was spirited out of the country by the Weatherman underground with $30,000 supplied by the nation's largest psychedelic drug wholesalers, Leary first fled to Algeria, then came to Switzerland.

The Swiss both rejected a U.S. request for this extradition and denied Leary's plea for asylum.

Johnson Elected Fresh President

John Johnson was voted in Feb. 2 as Freshman Class President in a special election called to fill the vacancy at that post. He took the oath of office at a recent senate meeting.

GREEK NEWS

PI KAPPA PHI Fraternity wishes to announce Mu Pledge for Spring '72. The following men have been selected for this honor: Neil King, Tommy Smith, Dennis Redman, Dennis Haynes, Billy Kelly, Ray James, Dallas Nobles, and Jeff Pennington. These pledges will take an active role in events concerning both the chapter and the campus as a whole.

The brotherhood also announces that the chapter house at 4216 Market St. is currently under-going remodeling and renovation.

Pi Kappa Phi is collecting empty cigarette packs to be returned to manufacturer. For every pack returned, two seconds in an iron lung will be donated by the manufacturer to a victim of collapsed lungs.

DELTA SIGMA THETA SORORITY held a slumber party Saturday, Feb. 19 at the Delta House on North 7th St. in Wilmington. We truly enjoyed ourselves, for it was the time to get it together with our new Sorors who came over last semester. They are Mrs. Edna Taylor, Miss Sandra Jones, and Miss Annie Henry.

Liz Harvin succeeded Gloria Ramos as president.

ZETA TAU ALPHA SORORITY initiated four girls Sunday, Feb. 13. The four new Zeta sisters are Hilda Hawes, Libby Weaver, Becky George and Diane Sinhel. Three more Zeta pledges, Bonnie Becken, Cathy Landen, and Susan White, are to be initiated in May. The Zeta sisters and pledges wish to congratulate Libby Weaver for being voted TKE pledge class sweetheart, Diane Race for her new title as Homecoming Queen, and Becky George for earning a 3.8 grade average last semester.

The Zeta sisters are making plans for spring rush beginning Sunday, Feb. 27. We anticipate a successful rush.

Representatives from Phi Mu Sorority will attend a workshop at Chapel Hill March 4. Chapters from over the state are expected to send delegates. While there, the girls will receive instruction on running a sorority and they will also find out how to carry out various service projects. In addition, the group will exchange ideas with other delegates on activities common to all chapters.

Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity has just pledged eight students for the spring semester. The prospective brothers include E.B. Evans, Jimmy Foster, Bill Jones, Ted Kalnen, Robert Ludwig, Jerry Pyles, Marrow Smith, and Mike Straus.

ALPHA DELTA UPSILON — no news reported.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA — no news reported.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA — no news reported.

Library Helps Freshmen

By DAVID SNOW
Journalism Class

What began several years ago as a simple library tour has evolved into an extensive program designed to familiarize students with the resources available at UNC-

W's Randall Library.

Freshmen English students, under the direction of Reference Librarian Philip Smith, recently received information which should prove useful to them in writing research papers.

Librarian Helen Hagan explains that orientation procedures are low being primarily focused on helping students when they are involved with term paper writing. "Library resources are needed most when term papers are assigned," she said, "we are trying to teach students how to locate more information, faster."

Though orientation programs have generally been limited to English classes, Mrs. Hagan feels that all groups should be involved. A few other classes, including a nursing class and a "methods" class for teachers, have been exposed to the program.

Mrs. Hagan urges all students to seek assistance from library personnel when difficulties arise. She added, "We are always open to suggestions for improvement."

UNC-W SNCAE Select Teachers

The UNC-W Student North Carolina Association of Educators met in Kenan-106 Monday, Feb. 21 for their February meeting.

A panel of four teachers who graduated from UNC-W recently came to discuss their experiences as student teachers and teachers. They were: Mrs. Margie Kernokle, Mrs. Marion Jervay, Miss Sandra Valley, and Miss Janice Dalton.

Gloria Ramos, our president, was selected by a unanimous vote to run for State President of the SNCAE; the office now being held by our own Miss Brenda Taylor.

The highlight of the evening was the selection of a Mr. and Miss Student Teacher from our campus. The requirements are: Active participation in the SNCAE, good scholastic average, and a good recommendation from members of the Education department. The persons voted upon from a list of more than seventy-five names were Miss Pat Watts and Mr. K.M. Simmons.

Tuesday, Feb. 27, 1972, Pat Waddell, Susan McLendon and Mrs. Betty Stike went to Pembroke State University to elect a cluster co-ordinator for the South Eastern District of SNCAE.

Pat Waddell was the nominated representative from UNC-W. There were nominations from Methodist, Pembroke, St. Andrews, and UNC-W.

George Gealty of St. Andrews was elected Cluster Co-ordinator for this district to replace Susan McLendon at the end of the semester.

Susan McLendon has been working as Cluster Co-ordinator for the South Eastern District.

Pat Waddell, selected as local Cluster leader for 1972-73, attended The District Convention at Pembroke State University.

Dorm Board Appointed

The Judicial Board of the UNC-W Residence Hall was recently confirmed by the Residence Hall senate after appointment by the Hall's executive Committee. Those selected were: Bill Murray, Chief Justice; Mike Jones, secretary; and Mike Shoaf, D.H. Whitley, and Cynthia Stewart, associate justices.

The Board will try all cases of violation of dorm rules, and will hear arguments concerning the constitutionality of rules passed by the dorm senate.

The Board will meet on a regular basis at 10:30 p.m. on Thursday nights.

On Sept. 9, 1776, the Second Continental Congress put an official stop to the practice of calling the United States the "United Colonies" on official documents.

UNC-W Enrollment To Increase 13%

UNC-W is projected to have a 13 per cent increase in overall enrollment from this year to next year.

There are presently about 1930 regular students enrolled, and it is predicted that there will be about 2,180 next year. Added to this last figure are about 140 non-degree students.

In specific categories, the number of applications for next year's freshman class: received to Feb. 15 has increased from 605 a year before this date to 665 by this date. Freshman acceptances have also gained from 343 to 413. In addition, transfer applications have gone up from 70 to 108, and transfer acceptances have risen from 36 to 63.

In the freshman class alone, a total of 530 were accepted for this year. Asked if the number of additional freshmen for next year would be limited, Mr. William H. Browder, Director of Institutional Research, stated,

"We're not really sure yet. This depends on the number of additional applications that come in for next year. If we receive too many of these, I would predict that a cut-off date will be established."

Mr. Browder also commented on the alternatives of rejected applicants. He stated that there are surrounding community colleges that they might try to enter.

UNC-W used several criteria for freshman applicants, including graduation from an accredited high school, satisfactory scores on the college boards, and a "C" average on all work attempted in senior high school. In addition, a number of specific high school units are required, including English (4), foreign language (2), algebra (1), geometry (1), history (1), elective in history, economics, sociology, or civics (1), and science (1).

Business Club Hosted

The Wilmington Chapter of the National Association of Accountants hosted the Business Club to a supper last Thursday evening. The dinner was preceded by cocktail and fellowship hour during which B.C. members became acquainted with local accountants. Following a sumptuous meal, Dr. W.E. Cullison presented an informative address concerning the Appraisal of Current Trends in Finance to the group. Dr. Cullison is an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank in Richmond, Va.

"PRIESTS AND NUNS ON TRIAL AS CRIMINALS—WHAT'S THE CHURCH COMING TO?"

Community Orchestra Reviewed

Ben R. Clayton

Strong, icy winds not withstanding, Wilmingtonians packed Sarah Graham Kenan Auditorium Sunday February 20 to hear the UNC-W Community Orchestra in concert.

Sponsored by "Friends of the University," this was the first public performance of the 46-piece orchestra since its organization last August. The program included Symphony No. 40 in G-minor (Mozart); Bacchanale from "Samson and Delilah" (Saint-Seans); "Unfinished" Symphony No. 8 — B-minor (Schubert); Gavotte from The Classical Symphony (Prokofiev); Waltz from "Billy the Kid" (Copland); and The Sound of Music (Rodgers and Hammerstein).

Composed of a cross-section of the community, the orchestra is made up of housewives, university professors, public school teachers, an automobile bodyshop foreman, industrialists, a dentist, a minister, college students, and high school students.

Psy Club Meets

The Psychology Club of UNC-W met Wednesday, Feb. 23, with Ed Lewis, vice-president, presiding. Plans for a group trip to Cherry Hospital next month, were discussed.

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

*UNC-W Rings

*Diamond Rings

*Birthstone Rings

*Bulova Watches

Student Charge
Accounts

"Read's for Diamonds"

Front and
Princess Sts.

SPORTSWEAR OUTLET

4103 Oleander Dr.

SAVE 40% to 60%

Nationally Advertised Merchandise

FOR YOUNG MEN AND LADIES

Constitution Changes

Continued from page 1
changed to read "...the University of North Carolina At Wilmington..." This was changed to read "...the University of North Carolina at Wilmington..."

The next item challenged was the article concerning membership in the SGA. The original statement said that only students issued I.D. cards could become members and be eligible for office. The senate decided to include students eligible for I.D. cards, so as to not leave out those students who do not take the opportunity to get the cards. In the article concerning executive power, a list of standing committees was read and the senate decided to include the finance committee in this list. In the same article, a question was raised concerning two sections having to do with elections. A majority of the senators voted to strike out these sections since they belonged in the article on elections instead of the one on power. As a last change in this article, a section describing the functions and organization of the finance was added. The newly created section stated that the finance committee was formed to budget the money received from student activity fees. It also said that the committee would be composed of two senators, two students at large, and the SGA treasurer.

The next round of debate took place on the article on judicial powers. One section stated that all infractions against the rules and policies of UNC-W and the laws of the city, county, state, and United States would be liable to prosecution before the Student Superior Court. After lengthy discussion, the clause stating the Court could prosecute for off-campus laws and deleted, since it was felt that the University should only be concerned with his own rules.

Another section read that the Superior Court would be composed of two men, two women, and a member of the SGA at large. The senate revised this section to merely call for five students members, because the majority felt that gender was not an important consideration in the staffing of the Court.

The last part of the same section stated that each court member needed to score at least 70 percent on the constitution test required for appointment. This figure was revised to 80 percent to insure that each justice would have an acceptable knowledge of the constitution.

In the article concerning elections, several senators challenged a section which stated that the upperclass SGA elections are to be held the first Thursday in April. This date was revised to any day selected in the month of March to allow for more flexibility and also to give the new senate more time to plan the budget for next year.

A new section concerned with run-off elections was also added to this article. The revision stated that a run-off election would be held not later than 10 days after the general election for candidates that did not receive a majority of the votes in the first round of balloting. It further stated that the students will then vote for the two candidates with the most votes for each office, excluding the class senator position, where being one of the top five vote-getters is all that is needed for election.

The last item debated at the meeting had to do with the qualifications of write-in candidates. The original section stated that all candidates needed to score at least 70 per cent on a constitution test before being eligible to run for office. It was decided that the write-in candidate does not need to meet this requirement unless he is elected, in which case he must pass the test before taking office.

At this point in the meeting, it was moved and seconded that the meeting be adjourned because of lateness in the evening and the need for more time for the senate to study the remaining sections in the constitution. The motion carried and speaker Kirk Brown stated that the senate would continue revising the constitution at the next regular meeting if there was enough time and also possibly at another special meeting.

Editor Lectures

Continued from page 4

primarily confined to the editorial page. However, Evers lamented, statistics show that only 50 percent of the people read newspaper. And of those who do, he said on 4 percent read the editorial pages. He wondered aloud about the people's desire to keep themselves informed.

Competition is not between the various forms of news media, suggested the speaker, but the competition is for a person's time. In the hustle and bustle of modern living, people allocate only a limited amount of time for keeping up with the news. For that reason, he revealed, it is the thinking of newspaper industry that some changes in format should be made. Although nothing is definite, it appears that important news may be capsuled in the front section of the newspaper, and the longer, background material will be toward the back for those who desire in-depth details about the news.

What are the chances of breaking into the newspaper business? Evers admitted that the job market for newspaper reporters is tight, but "a good reporter can always find work." He also mentioned that his firm is interested in part-time student workers, and that the management is always open to discuss the possibilities.

In Defense Of

Continued From Page 2
media which seems to blindly follow the orders of the more liberal faction of the political spectrum, for his non-existent racist views beginning immediately upon the presentation of his acceptance speech in Miami.

Being quite outspoken in his own viewpoints, which is very refreshing in this non-individualistic age, he fought back, only to find that to do so created more effort to quell his credibility and turned many of his common fellows against him in self defense, they, attempting to retain their own popularity by denouncing Agnew.

(To be continued)

Administrative Briefs

Theft of the painting "Daddy-O," by Rock Kershaw was reported by Claude Howell of the Art Department, on Feb. 15. The painting was valued at $55.00.

Theft of a tape player from a car belonging to Betty White was reported Feb. 13. The car was parked in the Athletic Field Parking Lot, and the theft was determined to have occurred between 8 p.m. Feb. 12, and 3 p.m. Feb. 13. Tape player was valued at $80.00 and damage to the car was estimated at $15.00.

REGISTRAR'S OFFICE

Pre-registration dates for summer school and fall semester, 1972 are as follows:

March 13, 14, Seniors;
March 15, 16, & 17, Juniors;
March 20, 21, Sophomores;
March 22, 23, & 24, Freshmen.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Dr. Norman K. Kaylor and Mr. Robert Appelon, attended the Carolina Educational Colloquium for Accounting professors Feb. 25 and 26. Dr. Kaylor participated in a panel discussion concerning "Integrating Quantitative Methods in Accounting Courses."

Attention Seniors!

Graduation Announcement Orders Are Now
Being Taken At Kingoff's Jewelers

Deadline For Orders is Friday, March 3

This is your only opportunity to place orders

Payment is to be made in full when order is placed

ANNOUNCEMENTS 25¢ each
CALLING CARDS $3⁵⁰ per 100
THANK YOU NOTES $1⁷⁵ per box of 24

Kingoff's
JEWELERS

10 N. Front St.

THE BOOKSTORE, YOUR ...

BIC

PEN HEADQUARTERS

IS HAVING AN ART SUPPLIES SALE.

INCLUDED SALE ITEMS ARE:

- ACRYLICS IN JARS
- PORTFOLIOS
- OIL PAINTS
- BRUSHES
- INDIA INK
- PASTELS
- COLORED CHALK

NEW!!

CUT OFF SHORTS
& TANK SHIRTS

IN MEMORIAM

"I heard sounds of weeping."

"Stop That!"

"Up, Up, and Away."

"DUH, my nose is itching!"

"I think it's broken."

Finally, off to enjoy the returns of many years of marital bliss, "at least til we get busted," he said.

It happened at UNC-W Friday... "There was nothing to do so..."

Movie Review

'Dirty Harry'

By SPENCE FOSCUE

"I know why they call him Dirty Harry...he gets all the dirty jobs." Clint Eastwood is Dirty Harry and Harry is a cop.

Eastwood has advanced greatly in his financial assets since his initial fame in those Italian "spagetti" westerns, but his acting hasn't. His natural dead pan style and his mockish leer make this a typical Eastwood movie.

Harry Callahan is a San Francisco detective on the trail of a psychopathic killer. His partner is in the hospital and he is appointed a new one.

Their pursuits take them across San Francisco rooftops until Harry, against police orders, wounds the killer, finally capturing him in a football stadium.

However, due to Harry's unorthodox crime fighting methods, such as torturing the suspect, the killer is given his freedom. Harry continues to follow him and finally there is a showdown, with the killer getting his just rewards.

Clint Eastwood has his own movie-making enterprise and employs some competent film makers in filming this fast, slick detective yarn. But in Hollywood psychopathic killers and tough detectives are numerous and this film seems stereotyped.

However, there is Harry. He seems more in the psychotic mode than his suspect. He takes delight in killing, unlike the Eastwood of old who killed for bounty.

Dirty Harry, in chasing the killer becomes a killer himself. He is out to rid his ego, not the public, of its enemy. He is a policeman who takes too much of the law into his own hands.

Sen. Muskie
Meet
Sen. Muskie

"The increasing dependence of our elections upon money is a distortion of the elective process and produces terrific pressures toward corruption."—Sen. Muskie before the Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee, March 3, 1971.

"I don't think the American rank and file understand the extent to which people give large sums of money without asking any quid pro quo."—Sen. Muskie before a group of contributors who had paid $500-a-plate to eat dinner with him; quoted in the Portland (Maine) Press Herald, Jan. 14, 1972.

SSS Voids Orders

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — The Selective Service System has cancelled outstanding induction notices that would soon go to 11,000, and placed them—as well as all of the 115,000 members of the 1972 Extended Priority Selection Group—in a lower priority draft group, thus justifying Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird's December remark that there would be no inductions during the first three months of 1972.

Selective Service Chief Curtis W. Tarr instructed local boards to take the actions on Feb. 8.

Affected by the order are men whose original 1971 induction dates were postponed "to the first call in 1972," or "until further notice," and those whose induction postponements were scheduled to expire on a specific date prior to April 1. Postponements scheduled to expire later than that are not affected by the action.

Tarr also announced that lottery number 200 would be the temporary "administrative ceiling" for men facing the draft during the rest of 1972.

Eavesdropping School Searches For Students

(CPS) — A school for legal eavesdropping and its sales pitch to an Idaho prosecuting attorney are featured in the February 5 issue of the New Yorker magazine.

In an article headed "Letters We Read With Mounting Horror," a letter received by the prosecuting attorney of Valley County (Idaho) from the Audio Security Institute, Inc., of Smithtown, N.Y., is reprinted below.

Sir:

"Title 18 of the United States Code permits the use of court-authorized eavesdropping.

No law enforcement agency, no matter how large or small, can afford to ignore this outstanding aid in combating organized crime. Is your department staffed and equipped to obtain maximum results with minimum effort and expense while utilizing this privilege, or are you still sacrificing men...and court convictions due to dedicated but unfortunately inexperienced or poorly trained personnel?"

The letter also plugs the school's post-graduation services.

"Not only will your department gain qualified court technicians, but it will benefit from our circulars informing our alumni of the latest devices, techniques, court decisions and law amendments."

The letter points out that "enrollment is restricted to police officers of accredited law agencies only."

The letter ends with information for enrollment and is signed by Donald A. Frank, president of the school.

Campus Profile

By WANDA GURGANUS
UNC-W is a challenge to Dr. John H. Scalf, Jr., head of the sociology department. Dr. Scalf became a member of the UNC-W faculty last semester.

In 1951, he received his Masters in sociology at Stetson University in DeLand, Florida. At Wake Forest in 1955 he received his Bachelor of Divinity. Finally, Scalf finished his Ph.D. in sociology at University of Kentucky in 1969.

"I came from a conservative Baptist minister's home...then I went through seminar at Wake Forest. For twelve years, in North Carolina, I served as a Baptist minister before going back to Stetson in 1964." Dr. Scalf explained that he taught at Stetson for several years before coming to Wilmington.

Next Scalf explained how the roles of a minister and sociologist are similar. "My years in the ministry gave me a great deal of insight in social relations and helped me understand organizational structure as well as personal relationships. I see no conflict in these two roles. They are compatible. I continue to be active in the church. Also, I really have pleasure in the function religion plays in the integration of society."

"The challenge of the new department and the chance to be involved with an expanding school that had never yet incorporated sociology into for such, all offered a challenge." This was only part of Dr. Scalf's reason for coming to Wilmington.

"I was also coming home," he continued. "Most of my years I spent in North Carolina. I had lived in southeastern North Carolina for a while. Also, the weather at Wilmington was the closest thing to Florida's weather. Plus, Wilmington had beaches which we were used to."

Scalf uses some stories of experiences to get examples across to his classes. He explains why. "The stories come out of years in public relations. They are a basic benefit in teaching experience. I don't want to ever divorce the two. They are both useful to each other."

Dr. Scalf is happy here and concluded, "I am really pleased with the direction of UNC-W and hope to continue to be part of its growth. My relations with students have been stimulated."

Al Capp Fined $500

EAU CLAIRE, Wisc. (CPS) — Cartoonist Al Capp pleaded guilty to attempted adultery here Friday. Charges of sodomy and indecent exposure were dropped by the state.

Capp, who was arrested last April after lecturing at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, was fined $500 plus court costs. Circuit Court Judge Merrill Farr said the alternative to paying the fine and costs would be one year in prison. Capp paid the fine.

Circuit Court Judge Farr ignored the recommendation made by Dist. Atty. Lawrence W. During that Capp be placed on probation and receive psychiatric treatment.

Capp's charges stemmed from the accusation made by a married Eau Claire student that he made indecent advances toward her in his hotel room during an interview she was conducting with him.

In his campus lectures Capp is critical of "permissiveness," "new morality," and other aspects of the youth culture."

NEW ENLARGED
1972 EDITION

ALL U. S. STATES and MANY FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Take your choice of location.

SUMMER THEATRES — DUDE RANCHES
GIFT SHOPS — HOTELS — BUSINESS WORLD WIDE STUDY AWARDS — INDUSTRIES — NATIONAL PARKS — TRANSPORTATION — SUMMER CAMPS — STATE PARKS — SUMMER RESORTS — TRAVEL TOUR AGENCIES — WORK CAMPS and MANY OTHERS.

INFORMS YOU JUST HOW AND WHERE TO APPLY

Directory includes salaries, description of type of work, and names and addresses of employers.

World-Wide Summer Placement Directory

OVER 100,000 SUMMER EARNING OPPORTUNITIES

EARN, LEARN AND TRAVEL
WHILE YOU VACATION

GET A JOB THAT TAKES YOU TRAVELING

Please make checks payable to:
SUMMER PLACEMENT DIRECTORY
P. O. Box 10817
St. Petersburg, Florida 33733

NEW ENLARGED
1972 EDITION

DON'T WAIT — START EARLY

Be first and get the job you want.

PRICE $7.00

Air Mail $1.00 — 1st Class 75¢
Reg. Mail 25¢

When Institutions require billing, add 50¢
All orders prepaid please

Name

Street

City State

V6Q24

Trustees Say

May Get Graduate Studies In Marine Science

A group of students met recently in the library with a visiting committee from the state board of trustees to exchange information on the situations of both the local and statewide university system.

The students, led by SGA president Boylan, first asked the committee how the new university system would affect UNC-W. They were told that the change would not have too much effect on a university at a local level, but that at a state level, a 32 member board would be put in charge of the university system.

Another student asked, "How much chance is there that UNC-W will get a graduate program in marine and environmental sciences?" A committee member familiar with these proposed programs stated, "I think that your university will have no trouble getting a program in these disciplines. UNC-W is near the ocean and this factor gives it an advantage over all other universities when requesting a program of this nature."

He concluded that UNC-W has the potential to have the best marine and environmental sciences programs in North Carolina. "The state will find it impossible to ignore UNC-W on this request," he said.

The committee then asked the group about the amount of student involvement on campus. The students generally agreed that there was a need for more participation in extracurricular activities and one of the group stated, "I think the situation will improve as we get more dorm residents."

After further discussion, Ed Boylan expressed a few thoughts of his own. He first gave his opinion of the SEAHAWK. He stated, "Last year at this time, there wasn't much communication at UNC-W, but lately the SEAHAWK has improved a great deal in this area." Boylan explained that the present staff is more professional than those of the past. He continued, "The SEAHAWK is doing a better job in reporting relevant news."

Ocean Rising — Or Shore Sinking?

Scientists from the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration report that the sea level from Maine to Virginia has been rising at three times the normal Atlantic rate of one foot every 100 years. The continued upward swing of the water reportedly poses a danger to resorts and industry along the northeast coast.

According to the Department of Commerce, scientists differ as to whether the sea is rising or the land is subsiding, but the practical effect is the same since the water is inundating the land to a greater extent than before. Many reportedly believe it is a combination of both, caused by a number of factors, including the melting of glaciers and the removal from the ground of increasingly large supplies of water and petroleum.

Although precise measurements of ocean rise have only been available since 1893, there is substantial geologic evidence that the oceans have always risen and fallen. Apparently, no one can predict how long the present rise will continue.

How to double your money and Creem too

CREEM isn't just another rock and roll magazine. It's the only one.

In the last couple of years, things have changed a lot. The music scene, whatever it once was, has been scattered and divided. Magazines that once held rock music as their very core, now roam so far afield it is sometimes hard to remember where they once began.

CREEM is different. Every issue is jampacked with the kind of stuff rock and roll addicts want to hear about: features and record reviews and yes, commentary about books and films. But all of it is centered in the music. Our music... rock and roll music.

Intelligent? Yes, CREEM is intelligent; the people who write for us are the very best in their fields. But CREEM hasn't forgotten the other things that make rock and roll so very special to all of us: wit, whimsy, flash, style.

We still "believe in the magic that can set you free." We've gone on believing it, every month, for quite a while. Every month we get better at it. Meanwhile, there's a hole in your life, if you haven't found CREEM. There must be, otherwise you wouldn't have bothered to read this far.

While you're reading this, CREEM is preparing features, photos, and articles about people and things you care about: Rod Stewart, Bob Dylan, Van Morrison, the latest books, records and films.

CREEM costs 60 cents every month on the newsstands but you can get 12 issues for $6.00 with the coupon below. In addition — and this is what makes this offer really urgent and very special — if you subscribe NOW — we're willing to send you a copy of the Rolling Stones' Greatest Hits collection, Hot Rocks, for only 50 cents extra.

Hot Rocks is a two record set, worth at least six dollars even in discount stores; it's hard to see how any true rock fan could bear to pass this offer up. We have only a limited quantity* of albums to offer — so the subscription has to come in right away.

But that's all to the good... every issue of CREEM you miss is an issue full of the kind of stuff rock fans want to hear about: Rock and Roll. So send the coupon today, and get your copy of Hot Rocks in the bargain. And it is a bargain.

*After we run out of Hot Rocks we will substitute another great album.

creem

Enclose check or money order and send to:

creem P. O. Box 10817
St. Petersburg, Florida 33733

- ☐ 12 issues — enclose $6.00 (for CREEM only)
☐ 12 issues & Bonus Album — enclose $6.50 (for Hot CREEM & Hot Rocks) ☐ Renewal (please include mailing label)

name _____

address _____ apt. no. _____

city _____ state _____ zip _____

V6224

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

Hounded by Debts?

use Seahawk Classifieds

If any one has lost a book or anything of value in the Pub, please contact Bruce Williams or Steve Morrison.

FOR SALE — 1966 SIMCA. Good condition, economical transportation. Call 799-3608.

FOR SALE ... Deluxe Schwinn bicycle. Chrome-plated double basket over back wheel, lock included. $15.00. See Bruce Strickland in dorm room 428.

Roommate Needed to occupy 65 foot trailer. Half of rent 87.50. Contact John Fraynor, 5429 Oleander Dr., Tel. 791-3306, 10:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.

The Rumor Control Center needs volunteers to man phones during times of Community Crisis. All interested persons should call 762-0136 for information.

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XIII NO. 17

"By students, for students."

MARCH 14, 1972

(ed. note: Due to monetary problems the SEAHAWK must continue to be printed in the current fashion.

Candidates For SGA Speak

By BILL WALLACE
Correspondent

Ten candidates running for Student Government Association Offices presented their views and made their platforms known to the student body in a political rally held March 9 in the Education-Psychology Building Auditorium.

Barry Asbury, candidate for SGA president, opened his speech by stating that, if elected, he would try more than anything else to be representative of the students. 'To aid me in this undertaking,' he continued, 'I plan to appoint advisors from each class in addition to consultants from any other important groups around the campus.'

In the area of curriculum, Asbury stated that he intends to work with the curriculum committee in bringing about needed changes. 'I hope to bring the views of the student body to the committee,' he said.

Asbury also revealed that he would have someone advising him on financial matters. He explained, 'I realize that I do not know as much as I should about finances, so I am going to get a student working with me who does.'

Another presidential hopeful, Bill Brooks, stated that he lived on campus for quite some time. 'During this time, I have gained valuable insights into problems at UNC-W.' He pointed out that UNC-W has a tremendous growth potential and suggested a few improvements that would help this growth to be realized. 'For increased efficiency in the SGA,' Brooks said, 'we need to have a reorganization of SGA records.'

He added that more committee reports at senate meetings would also be desirable. Still on the subject of committees, he stated, 'If elected, I will appoint a calendar committee to help organize the scheduling of events.' The last part of his platform calls for a publicity committee to open the channels of communication around the campus.

The third presidential candidate, Tim Sims, stated that although he had no experience as an SGA officer, he could still do a good job because he could look at the SGA objectively. He explained, 'Having never served in the SGA, I have not formed any biases.'

Regarding financial problems, Sims asserted that the physical education department got too much money while other worthwhile groups around campus didn't get any or enough. 'I would like to reallocate some of this money for concerts, fine arts productions, and anything else that students would be interested in,' he said.

He observed that although students wouldn't get involved in activities until they were ready, some well-directed funds might help them to get ready.

The unopposed vice-presidential candidate, Patti McCombie, pointed out that, 'Although vice-presidents have worked behind the scenes in the past, you will find me coming out in the open.' She stated that most of the vice-presidents problems are in the student senate itself. 'Being well-versed in parliamentary procedure, I think that I will be able to keep the senate meetings running smoothly.'

To accomplish this goal, Miss McCombie plans to send a list of items to be discussed to each senator before each meeting. 'I also hope to have these up-coming items published in the campus newspaper, as well as reports of previous meetings.'

A candidate for senior class president, Janice Asbell, first revealed her plans for a class project. 'I hope that we will be able to set up a scholarship for some worthy student,' she said.

On the subject of apathy around the school, Miss Asbell stated that although the student body frequently criticizes the SGA, it never does much about SGA problems. She added, 'I feel that the SGA and the student body should work more closely together to solve some of these problems.'

Jack Paul, also running for senior class president, said that there is an isolation between the SGA and the student body. He also expressed a hope that these two groups would work more closely together.

Linda Goldman, a write-in candidate for senior class senator, stated that she is running because she is concerned about the $35,000 in student activity fees that will be budgeted for next year's activities. She added, 'Although I am not acquainted with SGA financial matters at present, I plan to be up on the money situation by the time that the budget planning takes place.'

Miss Goldman disclosed that she could only serve half a term, since she is to graduate this coming December. 'At least I will be able to serve at the crucial time when next year's budget is being drawn up.'

The first of the Junior class candidates to speak was Gloria Ramos, nominee for president. She observed that there are too many divided groups at UNC-W. 'I hope to unify these diverse groups towards a common goal,' she said. She also hopes for a greater dissemination of news on campus. 'We need to get news on the activities of all groups,' Miss Ramos continued, 'not just some.'

Lee Hoffman, senatorial candidate for the Junior class stated that he would like to see the SGA establish a used book store. He further said that he would do everything he could to see that the $35,000 in SGA funds was properly spent. He concluded his speech by urging that each voter give consideration to each candidate running for office.

Mike Jones, who is seeking a senatorial position in the sophomore class, observed that Wilmington Collegewas established 25 years ago and that it was given University status four years ago. 'It is high time that we run this place as a university and not as a high school,' he said. He hoped that only responsible people would be elected to SGA offices. 'I also hope,' he continued, 'that the SGA will appoint dependable people to its committees.'

Student Constitution Approved In Referendum

189 votes total. 170 - yes, 19 - no. (ed. note: The SEAHAWK has shown commensurate interest in this constitutional referendum as the students.)

'Wonderful Town' Opens March 24th

The University Theatre and the Department of Music of UNC-W will present the Broadway musical "Wonderful Town", to open on March 24 and run through March 26th. This is a full scale musical production making use of actors, singers, dancers, and many production people.

"Wonderful Town" was written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. The music was composed by Leonard Bernstein. When "Wonderful Town" swept on to the stage of the Winter Garden Theatre in New York the audience and critics were equally raised to a fever-pitch of excitement. Not since "Guys and Dolls" had there been such an outburst of unanimous enthusiasm, according to periodicals of that time.

The play depicts the adventures of two girls from Columbus, Ohio in Greenwich Village seeking fame and fortune in "1935". This was the high period of the Bohemian World and opens up many great possibilities for the actors to have fun playing a strange, funny, and unusual character. There are characters of all sizes and descriptions.

"Wonderful Town" is the culmination of a happy series of successes. It began as a brisk and brilliant book by Ruth McKenney about her baby-faced man-playing sister Eileen. The book was transformed into a winning play ("My Sister Eileen") by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, after which it made an equally effective appeal when it reached new audiences as a laugh-provoking motion picture. In each version the plot was about the same. In "Wonderful Town" it again centers about girls from Columbus, Ohio, who came to the Big City on the Hudson to seek fame and fortune. Ruth wants to be a writer, Eileen an actress. Ruth is dark, attractive, possessor of a sharp wit, a girl who knows how to take care of herself. Eileen is blonde, bland, and wide-eyed, the kind of girl every maninists upon protecting. The time is 1935; the place is Greenwich Village, and the troubles begin as the girls settle into their one room basement apartment.

Friday and Saturday night performances will begin at 8 p.m. The Sunday performance will be a matinee at 2 p.m. Students of the University are admitted free of charge and can make reservations or pick up tickets by contacting the Drama Department Office beginning Monday, March 20 through Friday, March 24 between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. The price for non-University students is $1 per seat. Both Student and non-student tickets may be reserved in advance.

SEASQUAWKS

this page definitely not for restroom use!

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

Latest returns from the Homecoming week organized and presented by the Student Government Association here at UNC-W indicate that the week-long festivities were indeed successful. As in the past, the week was crammed with numerous activities climaxed by the Homecoming parade on Friday and the crowning of the 1972 Homecoming queen on Saturday.

Highlighting the Homecoming Parade was the Float entered by APO Fraternity, the well-designed float which incidentally won "the most original" prize. The piece of resistance of dubious originality which crowned the APO Float was a resplendent Confederate Flag. Of course, Black students here on campus have long realized that Homecoming and other activities here on campus are usually organized with exclusion in mind, but the flagrant display of the symbol of Southern defeat not only insulted Black sensibility but served to remind us of the empty promises of White students faculty and administrators here at UNC-W.

Specifically, black students wonder at the intentions of the student government association president, Ed Boylan, who in private discussions with black students on campus is continually assuring us that he will make every effort to erase areas of tension that exist between black and white students. Privately, Boylan insists that the Student Government, under his administration, would seek ways to remove sources of irritation and implement ways to bridge the social gap. It must be noted that these assurances were given to black students during the previous elections when Boylan was out shopping around for votes. The implication being that black votes can be obtained by making idle promises. It would seem logical if Boylan was working towards these aims that he would not have been a party to the displaying of the Confederate Flag during recent Homecoming activities here at UNC-W.

This reflects the callousness with which Boylan regards his alleged commitments to the black students and the promotion of racial harmony.

The Black students of UNC-W are somewhat surprised and dismayed by the actions of the school administration in permitting the display of the Confederate Flag here on campus. Throughout the county school systems thoughtful educators and administrators have banned the display of the "Bonnie Blue Flag" in an effort to bridge the racial gap and to promote tranquility. It seems strange that conservatives and southerners of all stripes are righteously indignant when anti-war demonstrators in the recent past have displayed the Viet Cong Flag while for years the banner the same southerners hold in the highest esteem is the banner that represents sedition, succession, and treason; and they display it at every opportunity. Aside from being a treasonous banner, the "Stars and Bars" is and always will be a symbol of white racism and the repression of black aspirations.

When the budget is entered for the next fiscal year, probably included in the account should be an authentic costume of Robert E. Lee and a close replica of his horse.

Wantu Wazuri

Dear Editor:

The Upsilon Nu chapter of Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity, chartered on the University of North Carolina At Wilmington campus, wishes to extend its sincere and honest apologies to those individuals who were offended by the appearance of Alpha Phi Omega's float represented in UNC-W's Homecoming parade this year.

It was not the intention of any member of this Fraternity to degrade or cause insult to any person or persons.

It is with this attitude that Alpha Phi Omega publicly conveys all apologies for whatever injurious feelings that may have occurred.

Alpha Phi Omega is a National Fraternity whose membership is open to all men regardless of Race, color, or creed. It is in this spirit we extend this letter in the hope of better understanding and continued goodwill among us all.

Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity

The Seahawk
University of North Carolina
At Wilmington
P. O. Box 3725
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

Acting Editor Ron Dunn
Acting Associate Editor Mike Jones
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporters Grace Parker, Tim Sims,
Kathy Tyner, Bill Wallace

Business office, "B-201, James Student Services Building

"What's the matter with you? The President's ending unemployment! Don't you read, or are you one of them damn radicals?"

Small Talk

By WATT HUNTLY

The doctor was giving the patient his post-examination summary and pep talk.

"If you give up smoking, drinking, and chasing after women, you will live longer," said the doctor.

"No," replied the patient. "It will only SEEM longer."

The Government (meaning the Feds when it is spelled with a capital "G") is headed in the direction of making us all seem to live longer—whether we like it or not.

Several years ago the Government started an anti-tobacco campaign and didn't rest until it had killed some tobacco advertising and required a statement on cigarette packs: "Warning: Ther Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

Now the Government (represented by some obscure but well-paid bureaucrat) has come to the front with the amazing discovery that some people drink too much whiskey and that it is bad for them. So what else is new? Some people have been abusing alcohol ever since the discovery of fermentation. It would be interesting to know what this obvious conclusion cost the taxpayers.

The next thing you know there will be a move to require whiskey bottles to be labelled: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that liquor drinking is dangerous to your health." And people will go right on drinking, just as they go right on smoking.

The Government is simply a meddlesome killjoy.

The next research at taxpayer expense will be a study of sex and its harmful effects. Factors considered will be VD, illegitimacy, and the population explosion.

Congress will pass a law requiring that all babies born after 1984 have tattooed on their backs: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that sex is dangerous to your health."

The only present danger to the general public from sex is that it produces more bureaucrats to make inane studies at taxpayer expense.

But regardless of the Feds and their pontifical findings, people will go right on smoking cigarettes, drinking liquor, and otherwise enjoying themselves.

Kennedy Wins Award

(CPS — Senator Edward M. Kennedy has been awarded with the 1971 "Chappaquiddick Lifesaving Medal" with crossed shamrock leaves by the London Daily Mirror.

Loan Cancellations Cancelled

(CPS) - Elimination of the cancellation clause in the National Defense Student Loans (NDSL) will soon be in effect. Two bills currently in Congress, House Bill HR 7248 and Senate Bill S659, concern the extraction of a clause which states that cancellation of payment will take place if a person joins the armed forces or becomes an employed teacher in a recognized institution.

This would not include students who now hold such a loan, but will effect those who will apply after the bills pass or those who have it now and apply later for another.

Both of the bills have passed both houses and are now in the Conference Committee where it is expected that a merged bill will result.

The NDSL program was originally passed in 1958 when the US was concerned with the advancements of the Soviet Union in the areas of science and education. The sole purpose of the NDSL was to encourage college bound students to pursue the areas of science and education.

Reasons for the bills currently in Congress are that the bill at one time did its job, but not now. Today the original goals of the NDSL are readily with the advancements of the Soviet Union in the areas of science and education. no need for continuation of the program, especially in the area of cancellation of payment.

Dr. Bailey Speaks On 'Moon Voyages'

By JUDY JORDAN
Journalism Class

'Moon Voyages in Science Fiction' will be the topic of Dr. J.O. Bailey's lecture on March 16 at 8 p.m. in the library auditorium. Admission is free.

Two years ago Dr. Bailey, of Chapel Hill was honored by the Science Fiction Research Association with the title 'Pilgrim Number One' for having written Pilgrims Through Space and Time, the first book-length study of science fiction.

This book, published in 1947, has been a rare book for a long time. The publishing firm that brought it out dissolved, and it was not reprinted. However, it is now being reprinted by Greenwood Press in both hardback and paperback editions.

When Dr. Bailey first published his book there was not a great deal of scholarly interest in science fiction. But in recent years interest has mounted considerably, especially with the dawn of the Space Age. Now courses in science fiction are being offered in many colleges and universities.

Since 'Pilgrims Through Space and Time' there have been other book-length studies of science fiction. One of the most recent of these is a series of essays written by a variety of people and entitled 'SF: The Other Side of Realism'. This book is edited by Thomas D. Clareson and published by the Bowling Green University Popular Press.

Dr. Bailey is a leading authority on Thomas Hardy. He has published two books on this subject, 'Thomas Hardy and the Cosmic Mind', and 'The Poetry of Thomas Hardy'.

Mel Gibson Named Coach

By TERESA GARNER
Journalism Class

After 14 years under the instruction of Bill Brooks, the UNC-W Basketball team now has a new coach, Mel Gibson. Gibson has spent one year as assistant coach at UNC-W, but in past experience was head coach at Baptist College.

Coach Gibson, 31, is a native of Rockingham where he was team captain and most valuable basketball player of his high school for two years. He also starred in high school football.

He was team captain of Western Carolina University and named most valuable player for three years.

He has also played on the U.S. Team in the Pan American Games at San Paulo, Brazil, and was number two draft choice of the Los Angeles Lakers in 1963.

After playing a year with the NBA, he returned to North Carolina to receive his Master's Degree from Western Carolina. At WCU he served one year as assistant coach, and four years as head coach at Baptist College in Charleston, S.C.

Brooks, although stepping out of head basketball coach position is still athletic director of UNC-W. He commented in a recent interview that with the new dormitory and improved facilities at UNC-W, there will be more recruiting for sports, especially in basketball.

'And That's the Jackass that Pushed Me In'

Dr. Wagner released the following statement concerning the coach position:

"Intercollegiate athletics has been an integral part of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington for more than two decades. Beginning with the formation of the first Seahawk team in basketball in 1951, our athletic program has grown with the university until today it comprises six varsity sports.

One man has over the years been primarily responsible for the development of this program, and any credit for its success must go to him. I am referring, of course, to Bill Brooks. Since 1951, when he joined the faculty of what was then Wilmington Junior College, Bill has devoted untold hours to a position which, for all practical purposes, has amounted to four full time jobs. In addition to his duties as athletic director, he has been head coach of our basketball and baseball teams and has served as chairman of our Department of Physical Education.

The growth of our university and the expansion of our athletic program have made it physically impossible for one person to handle the responsibilities that Bill Brooks has had. With this in mind, Bill recommended to me some time ago that we expand our athletic staff and turn the basketball program over to someone who could devote more time to it. I agreed with this recommendation, but Bill and I decided that this change should not be made hastily. We decided to take our time, to make certain that we selected the right man for the position.

After a careful search, we firmly believe we have found that man. A year ago, Mel Gibson joined our staff as an assistant coach after four successful seasons as head coach at Baptist College at Charleston, S.C. He immediately proved to be a valuable addition to the staff and made an extremely favorable impression on us all. Bill recommended to me early in the season that Mel be made head coach.

So today I am announcing that after 21 years, Bill Brooks is stepping down as head basketball coach of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and I am announcing the appointment of Mel Gibson to that position.

Bill, of course, will continue as athletic director and as head baseball coach, as well as chairman of the Physical Education Department, and his role as the father of Seahawk basketball will not be forgotten. As athletic director, he will continue to work closely with Coach Gibson.

Mel has a proven record as a winning coach and as an outstanding recruiter. He has an excellent basketball background and is a gentleman in the truest sense of the word. We were extremely impressed with the way our basketball players accepted him this year, and we look forward to a long and successful association with him. I personally pledge the wholehearted cooperation of the university administration to Mel Gibson as he takes over our basketball program.

400 Students And Faculty Register

Approximately 400 students and faculty members registered to vote March 7 and 8th at the on-campus facilities, manned by the New Hanover County Board of Elections.

March 7-8 were the only dates set for on-campus registration this year; however, according to NHC Board of Elections Office, anyone failing to register may do so before April 7, at the Board of Elections Office at 14 North 3rd Street.

Bulletin Board

THE STUDENT NC ASSOCIATION of Educators will hold their monthly meeting March 20 in K-106 at 7:30 p.m. All members please attend.

THE SATURDAY LIBRARY HOURS have been changed at the request of the Student Government Association. The hours will be changed starting March 4 from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. to 11 a.m. - 3 p.m.

You are a student at UNC-W. You are very interested in part-time work but have a demanding schedule that restricts your number of available working hours.

The University placement center, located in the office of Student Affairs, could prove to be the solution to your problem.

Under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Jackson, the Center attempts to find jobs suited to the needs of individual students. A variety of occupational openings, ranging from part-time floor sweeping to full-time engineering are posted daily on a bulletin board outside the Student Affairs Office.

Over 150 job openings have been posted thus far this school year, many of which were snapped up by interested students.

STUDENTS DESIRING MATH TUTORAGE are encourage to attend the free tutoring classes each weekday in room 217 of the Chemistry-Physics Building.

Anyone now taking Math 101-102, 111-112, 121-122, or 211-213, may take advantage of the sessions at the following times: MON-10:30 - 11:30 and 1:30 - 2:30; TUE-10:30 - 12:30; WED-11:30 - 12:30; THUR-10:30 - 12:30; FRI-10:30 - 11:30.

In order to reduce the loss of books in Randall Library, a check system was installed in the Library beginning last week.

The check desk will be manned by student assistants who will be not only checking books to see if properly charged, but also stamping books out. To facilitate the operation of the system, the Library is asking everyone who leaves the Library to show all books, open brief cases, zippered notebooks, etc. Books charged out prior to going by the check-out desk should be opened to the date due slip in the back of the book to allow more rapid checking.

ART DEPARTMENT - Ann Conner of the Art faculty won honorable mention in the UNC School of Public Health's 10th Annual Art Exhibition. The juried show was open to all adult professional artists in the southeastern US. Juror Edwin F. Frye, former associate curator for the Solomon Guggenheim Museum in New York, selected Miss Conner's colored woodcut print entitled "Montelungo" for the award.

PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION DEPARTMENT - Welcome back to Dr. Gerald Shinn who has been in the hospital for about the past two weeks. Sure glad you're feeling better, Dr. Shinn.

INSTITUTIONAL RESEARCH - Pre-registration for the 1972 Summer Sessions and the Fall Semester will be held on March 13-24. Times for pre-registering are as follows: March 13 - 8 a.m.-12 noon; 1 p.m. - 6:30 p.m. (note: this will be the only late afternoon registration. March 14 - 24 - 8 a.m. - 12 noon, and 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.

Pre-registration for Special Non-degree students will be held in the Office of Institutional Research. Tuition is payable at the time of pre-registration. Course listings will be available during pre-registration.

HISTORY and POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENTS - Professor Walsen H. Allen, Jr., will present a lecture and slide program "Ireland: Land of Beauty Faith, and Tragedy" on Thursday, March 16, 11:30 a.m. in the Library Auditorium. Everyone is invited.

Dr. Samuel T. Chambers presented a lecture and slide program, "Portugal, Today and Yesterday," on February 24 in the library auditorium. The program was about his holiday tour of Portugal, and his sightseeing and studying while there.

DAR Slams Women's Lib

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) - The National Convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in its meeting last month, issued an eight-page declaration that the women's liberation movement will lead to sexual promiscuity and destroy the morals of American society.

"We have been liberated for a long time," said Mrs. Nettie Arnold Hawkins. "You don't see us leaving our homes to demonstrate for abstract movements."

The DAR paper hinted that the women's liberation movement may be a direct link to a communist overthrow of the country.

GREEK NEWS

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity is currently making plans for a conclave of State Pi Kapp chapters to be held during the Azalea Festival at Wrightsville Beach.

The brothers are also making plans for their annual Rose Ball and Beach Weekend at Ocean Drive.

Alpha Delta Upsilon - All of the brothers registered to vote on March 7 and 8. The second spring rush began March 9. A band party featuring "Spirit Wheel" is planned for March 18. All students are invited to drop by the D. U. House at 4525 Market Street anytime.

Alpha Phi Omega - Brother Jack Paul was at Texas Tech University last weekend working with other A. Phi O's on ways to improve the fraternity financially. This study group will give a report to the National Convention in Denver this Christmas.

Prospects for a Rock-A-Thon this Easter seem good. The brothers and pledges plan to do this service project to help raise money for the Easter seals campaign in this area. The project involves a brother or pledge trying to break the local record for continuous rocking in a chair. The record set last year was 56 hours and 20 minutes. Also, in the service projects area, brother Timmy Hodges is APO's ugly man on campus. The contest will run through April 10. All donations will help.

Pledge class officers are: President, Larry Lapkovitch; Vice-President, Buddy Cumber, Keith Hales, Jim Washington, Kenneth Hales, John Floyd, and Charles Wells.

Zeta Tau Alpha - Proudly pledged 12 beautiful girls shortly after summer break. Following the successful rush initiation was held for our Spring 1971 pledge class, which was followed by a cookout in honor of the new initiates.

In October, the sisters entertained the new pledges at a Halloween party in the upstairs Pub - a party complete with goblins, fortune-telling, and apple-bobbing. Also in October, Zeta sisters chose their Sweetheart, Bob Elliox, and traveled to the TKE House to present him with a ZTA shirt.

In early November, the pledges treated the sisters to a joint slumber party at the home of pledge Bunnie Becken. A turn about found the sisters being sent on a scavenger hunt. The pledges held a very successful doughnut sale, grossing over $50.

In December, sisters and pledges joined forces to contribute to Operation Santa Claus. On the Sunday before Christmas, our pledges, under the leadership of Susan White, acted in the spirit of Christmas to help a needy family. They presented the family with clothing, food, and toilet articles.

Also on that Sunday, the pledges treated the sisters to a Christmas Party at the home of pledge Cathi Landen, which followed an evening of caroling.

Pledge Class officers are Libby Weaver - President; Cathi Landen - secretary; and Diane Sinhel - treasurer.

Alpha Chi Sigma - no news reported.

Tan Kappa Epsilon - no news reported.

Delta Sigma Theta - no news reported.

Phi Mu - no news reported.

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

Hounded by Debts?

use
Brahmank Classifieds

If any one has lost a book or anything of value in the Pub, please contact Bruce Williams or Steve Morrison.

The Rumor Control Center needs volunteers to man phones during times of Community Crisis. All interested persons should call 782-0136 for information.

WANTED: VOTERS - Opportunity for progressive ideals and attitudes at UNC-W. Come to polls on March 16 and vote for Gloria Ramos, for Junior Class President.

FOR RENT - Two bedroom Apt at 5 W. Greensboro St, Wrightsville Beach. $100 mo contract. See Ernie Howard.

FOR SALE - Auto Short Wave Radio, 6 channels, $25. Contact Ernie Howard, 5 W. Greensboro St., Wrightsville Beach.

FOR SALE - G.E. Portable Stereo & 35, & English Racer 3-speed bike, $15. Contact Terry Platt at Meires Apts., 718 S. Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach.

Elect

Janice AsbellSenior Class President

REASONS WHY

1. -- Past Experience: Sophomore Class Senator and Junior Class President. I've served on all the committees on which a Senior Class President must serve.
2. -- Dedication: I've attended all call meetings and scheduled meetings.
3. -- Willingness To Work: I've served on Food Services Committees, Senate Nomination Committee, and the Pub Policy Committee.

If You Care

Vote

For Someone That Does

Vote For

Jack
Paul

For

Senior
Class
President*Cycling Safety DiscussedBy LESLIE HEWLETT
Journalism Class

Methods to promote the enjoyment and safety of cycling were discussed February 17 in the UNC-W library auditorium.

Gene Anest, from the sponsoring organization, Project Environment, was chairman of the meeting. Other speakers included Dr. Phil Smith, who spoke on the medical benefits of cycling, and Tom Davis, who discussed the topic 'Bicycles Vs. Automobiles'.

Also present to answer questions were Arnold Peterson, retiring chairman of the Parks and Recreation Department; John Baverlein, Chief Traffic Engineer of Wilmington; and Jim Cobb of Cape Fear Cyclists.

After displaying a map of a proposed bike route through part of Wilmington, Baverlein stated that the signs necessary for marking the streets along the route could be made and installed by the city's sign department. The cost of the materials, however, could not be borne by the city's present budget.

Although there are no bikeways in the Wilmington area, local cyclists still have an opportunity for excursions with Cape Fear Cyclists, an organization started last year for the promotion of cycling. Cobb, representing CFC, noted the growing popularity of bicycles. Over 8½ million bikes were sold in 1971.

Dr. Smith related the increasing occurrence of heart ailments in younger people today with the lack of proper exercise. As an example, he noted that many men in the 21 - 23 years-old bracket were found to have coronary arteriosclerosis, hardening of the arteries.

Many disadvantages of the automobile, including its initial as well as its maintenance cost, were pointed out by Davis during his discussion. Besides contributing heavily to air pollution, the average car requires 30 times the space of a bicycle.

According to Davis, bicycles have an edge in city traffic as evidenced by the fact that the average speed of an automobile in New York City is 8½ miles per hour. Think about that the next time you are in bumper-to-bumper traffic on Front Street.

'I'm a rehabilitated convicted pacifist'

GENERAL ELECTIONS WEDNESDAY

Campaign Statement of BILL BROOKS Candidate for SGA President

Two weeks ago, the students at Chapel Hill nearly elected a dog for SGA Vice President. The dog was running on a ticket with his owner running for President. Becoming alarmed when his dog made the run-off election, the master dropped out of the race taking his dog explaining that, if elected, they would lose too much privacy. Whatever the reason, as a candidate for SGA President I promise not to do this since I do not have a dog.

Possibly, you could question my qualifications, my motivation, and my reasons for seeking the office of President. During my first two years as a student here, I lived off campus. Because of that experience, the problems of the majority of commuting students are familiar to me. However, for the past seven months, my place of residence has been on campus. Eating most of my meals in the cafeteria, being here on weekends with nothing to do, and other such experiences have given me a special insight into the problems of the resident students. As President of my class for two years, I was witness to the innermost workings of the Student Senate, while serving on the Academic Council, the Faculty Student Affairs Committee, and a host of others I gained the practical experience and knowledge necessary for crucial decision-making. This year as a non officer of the SGA I have viewed the operations of the SGA as a regular student and have deepened and changed some of my views about our Student Government.

But I do not justify my position as a candidate entirely on these criteria. I am excited about the fact that this school has a tremendous future ahead of it. We are at the point where we are finally being recognized as a University in the strict sense of the word. Academically we have always been recognized as being ahead of our size and tuition. As many students continue research and graduate programs are added we can readily detect growth in this area of academics. The athletic teams of the 60's put this school on the map, nationally, but recently development has come from other areas. In its second year, our debate team is fast gaining a reputation as a power on the Eastern U.S. Circuit, by virtue of their several tournament wins this year. Our literary magazine, THE ATLANTIS, is receiving much praise from the academic community as more UNC-W students find channels for the expression of their ideas. The school paper, THE SEAHAWK, is expanding and gaining ground as a student paper with complete editorial freedom. Our concert committee has brought in several good groups this year which attracted students from all over the eastern part of this state. The Fine Arts Committee has developed a good film series and provided the students with more serious entertainment through the Music Series. There is also no other state supported school in North Carolina with a faculty comparable to ours.

Turning though, to what can be done to improve our university, there are several structural changes in the organization of the SGA which make much sense. First, a necessary reorganization of SGA records will eliminate much unnecessary debate and repeated mistakes concerning the same problems. Secondly, the standardization of many forms and student reports which will improve the final communication between the offices of the SGA and the students. Thirdly, many scheduling problems could be eliminated by the establishment of a calendar committee which would co-ordinate all student activities on campus. And fourthly, the establishment of a publicity committee which would design various accepted means of getting the word out about those activities. These are a few problems and areas which inhibit the successful operation of our SGA but they represent significant problems and constitute a rational place from which to begin.

Ideas, though, are not much good if there is nothing done to initiate those ideas into workable solutions for problems. We know many of the problems we know some of the solutions. It's time for the students to raise their voices at the polls and simply make a vote for action. My only promise is to work, serve, and represent you to the best of my ability in God's will. I am really excited about this chance to further the growth of this University. Let me share that excitement with you. Vote for BILL BROOKS, for SGA President when you go to the polls, to make that vote for action.

(ed. note: All statements and/or notices from candidates running in the March 15 elections which were given to the Seahawk, are printed in this issue. To be fair and equitable, all candidates who did forward any campaign material to the Seahawk, have their material printed in its entirety. All space to these concerned candidates is divided equally to the best of the Seahawk's Staff ability.

Abort Pill Tested

LOS ANGELES (CPS) — An abortion inducing pill is being tested on several hundred women at 19 centers in the U.S.

Upjohn fertility research D. Edward M. Sothorn said although the use of the drug (Prostaglandin (PG's)) for abortion to date has been by injections the "discrepancy for the future" is by tablets which the woman could administer.

PG's are hormone-like substances present in many human tissues which aid in a wide variety of physiological functions. Fourteen PG's have been identified so far.

The activities they aid include from stomach acid secretion to labor induction. Chemists now synthesize PG's which means it could be easily produced commercially in the future.

Campaign Statement of BARRY ASBURY Candidate for SGA President

In running for the office of your Student Government Association President, I, Barry Asbury, would like to tell you about some of the things I plan to do during my term of office.

First, I would like to see us have one concert a month on campus. The Student Government needs to supply the students with activities. Of course, the money allocated to the different committees is in the hands of the Student Senate and try to get what the majority of the students desire.

Also, I want to open a means of communication between myself and the student body, therefore, I plan to form a cabinet of advisors. One of my main advisors will be an advisor on Community Relations. I want the community to know that we at UNC-W are concerned with the problems of the community. Another of these advisors will be one on Student Government Financial Affairs. This person will keep me up to date on the Student Body's money. In not wanting to leave any part of the student body out, I will have an advisor on Fraternity affairs, sorority affairs, freshmen affairs, sophomore affairs, junior affairs, senior affairs, and any other group that has any relation to our campus.

Third, I want to try to get more representation on the Curriculum Committee for students. I feel that it was wrong for the faculty to almost double their representation and the student representation to remain at three.

Next, I would like, if possible, to get a calendar of next fall semester's events before this semester is over and schedule them accordingly. I'm not going to break anyone's arm to force him to participate in any UNC-W events, or cry if someone doesn't go. I just want to give you a chance to attend everything that we are spending your good money to present.

In conclusion, I want to represent, and to be an asset, to the entire Student Body more than anything else.....not just one part or interest, but taking the whole student body into consideration. I have strived to do this as Vice-President of the Sophomore Class this year and will continue to do this next year if you elect me, BARRY ASBURY, as your Student Government Association President.

Campaign Statement of PATTI McCOMBIE for Vice-President of the SGA

The Vice President of the SGA has one chief responsibility — he (or she) is the presiding officer of the Student Senate. It is this duty that makes the Vice President a key individual in Student government. There are several important qualifications a presiding officer should have. He should be familiar with subjects they haven't had adequate time to consider. A more effective use of the confusion caused by lack of research into topics to be discussed. Regular of procedure are sometimes frowned upon as trivial; however, if an organization the size of the Senate is to be run efficiently, certain rules must be adhered to in order to insure that business is carried out in an organized way and to insure that each individual has the opportunity to express his opinions on the subject at hand. The VP should also be capable of organizing meetings and planning the agenda in advance. At present, there are no planned agendas and consequently Senators are unprepared for discussion and voting on subjects they haven't had adequate time to consider. A more effective use of the committee system made up of responsible people would eliminate the confusion caused by lack of research into topics to be discussed. Regular and efficient committee reports should be given so that students are more aware of what the SGA is doing and how the student fees are being used. Perhaps most important of all, the Vice President of the SGA has the responsibility of insuring that students are aware of the activities of the Student Senate. If possible, agendas should be published in the SEAHAWK in advance so that students would have the opportunity of discussing the proposed business with their representatives and a vote more reflective of student opinion would result.

It is my belief that many of the SGA's problems stem from the present lack of order and organization. If elected to the office of Vice President of the SGA, I will carry out these and other seemingly minor changes which will result, I feel certain, in a more effective, more responsible Student

Campaign Statement of GLORIA RAMOS for Junior Class President

Meet Gloria Ramos, progressive candidate for Junior Class President. Gloria is a sophomore, of course, majoring in elementary education. She is presently President of the Student North Carolina Association of Educators at UNC-W. She has been nominated for the State Presidency of SNAEE by her chapter.

This young woman is a member of the Teacher Education Council, Inter-Club Council, and the Chancellor's Committee for Equal Opportunity in Employment. She is past President of the Theta Iota Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., and member of the Alter Guild at St. Mark's Episcopal Church. Along with her civic activities, she is a member of the staff at WECT, a local TV station. Because of her experience and many activities on campus and off, Mrs. Ramos is thoroughly familiar with the social issues and problems faced by all citizens in the community, which includes UNC-W students.

Mrs. Ramos also successfully manages a home and a family. She is the wife of Diego Ramos and mother of an eight-year-old son, Miguel.

Sports Shorts

By MIKE JONES

When interviewed, Mrs. Ramos expressed the desire to see a tradition at UNC-W if she is elected to office—namely the tradition that UNC-W is one of the most progressive and equal opportunity minded schools in the south. She further stated in the form of a pledge that if elected she will attempt to bring some unity among all the different factions of the school, which to some extent are presently divided. She then expanded on the cliché of "united we stand, divided we fall!" Gloria said that she does not want to make unreasonable promises which cannot be fulfilled and cheat the members of the Junior Class and student body. Some of our university politicians are making promises to the student body which cannot possibly be carried out — mainly because of lack of funds and the possibility of lowered educational standards.

Mrs. Ramos explained that she is running for one office only because her attentions and efforts must be dedicated primarily to the Junior Classmen preparing for the future and for advancement to Senior status. She urges that everyone should come out to the polls and vote on March 16 so the tradition of everyone on campus working together for the future can begin now.

Debate Team Boasts 60% Tourney Record

The debate team won 60% of its rounds at a tournament at Lenoir Rhyne College the weekend of March 3-4. 18 Schools from surrounding states participated.

UNC-W fielded two two-man teams which included debators Bill Brooks, Patti McCombie, Keith Hales, and Lee Hoffman. These four students beat teams from Chapel Hill, Duke, the University of South Carolina, Wingate, and several other schools.

The Brooks-McCombie team won four rounds out of six, and the Hales-Hoffman combination went three for six.

The topic for debate, which was selected for all tournaments this year, concerns the amount of control that should be imposed upon the gathering and utilization of information about United States citizens.

Asked how the experience of this tournament benefitted the team, Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, coach, stated, "We got a lot of practice in presenting cases that appeal to judges. The type judges we have varies from tournament."

Regarding improvements that the team needs to make, Mrs. Welch stated that the group hopes to get more material for its positive and negative files.

The team plans to attend one more tournament before the end of the semester. The debators will travel to West Virginia University for a contest to be held April 7-8.

The team also intends to sponsor the first annual Azalea High School Invitational Debate tournament March 21. Students from the fundamental debate classes will serve as time keepers and the regular team members will be judges for the event. The main purpose of the tournament is to give the high schoolers experience and to allow them to hear constructive criticism. The team also hopes to attract some of these students to UNC-W for the purpose of building up future teams.

In non-debate activities, the team plans to hold panel discussions with two political figures before the end of the semester.

'Friends' Make $5,000 Contribution To Library

The Friends of the University held their annual business meeting February immediately before the Community Orchestra Concert, which they sponsored. The annual meeting, since 1963, has featured the Friends presentation of a cash gift to UNC-W's Library.

This year, the Friends presented Miss Helen Hagan, UNC-W's librarian with a $5,000 check. The gift also included a memorial fund established in November, 1970, in honor of the late Mrs. Ialeen Tillery, an original member of the Board of Directors.

More than $30,000 has been contributed to the college by the Friends of Wilmington College since 1963. These funds for the annual gift are raised through memberships.

During the first years the money was used to build up the needed reference collection. After that, the funds were used to establish a basic collection in all subject fields.

In recent years funds received from the Friends have been distributed to the different departments of UNC-W to be used for current acquisitions that relate specifically to the department needs.

Funds were appointed especially for books when they were desperately needed. This designation was broadened in recent years to meet the need for periodicals. This enabled the library to add many required periodicals' subscriptions to support the periodical indexing services that were being added to the reference collection.

Books bought by the Friends fund are designated with a special bookplate. Many of these are specified as memorial gifts. In 1971 a special fund in memory of Mrs. Ialeen Tillery was given for a microfilm reader.

This is a university, not a high school or a community college. It has been for three years. It is time we started acting like one. Sure, there are basic changes involved with the switch from a senior college to university status and we cannot expect them over-night. But steps should be taken now to effect those eventual and inevitable changes.

Anyone who has lived in Wilmington or New Hanover County for very long should be familiar with that sad piece of antiquity known as Legion Stadium. Dedicated in 1938, the structure desperately needs renovating, rebuilding, or something.

Perhaps some agreement could be reached between city officials and university officials to build a stadium/coliseum on campus at UNC-W. The facility could be used by area high schools for various athletic contests, football, track, etc., as is done at ECU's Ficklen Stadium in Greenville. The university could take a certain percentage of the receipts with the rest going to the city through the school system.

The stadium could also be rented for rallies, concerts, and other gatherings, such as the Christmas festival this past year. Perhaps even professional football could be brought to this area in the form of exhibition games like those in Carter Stadium of Raleigh.

Sure, there are problems involved and details to be worked out, but a workable solution could probably be arrived at that would be beneficial to both sides. Wilmington would have a new outdoor arena and UNC-W would have a stadium as a first step towards a Seahawk Football Team; a fine example of campus — community cooperation.

The Seahawks will take on St. Andrews at Laurinburg on March 18 and N.C. State at Raleigh on March 19. Next home game is March 22 against Eastern Connecticut State.

The tennis team meets East Carolina in Greenville on March 18, and the golf team entertains Campbell at Wilmington Municipal Golf Course March 17. The linksmen will travel to Paradise Point Golf Club for the Camp Lejeune Tournament on March 18 and 19.

Winners of girls Intramural basketball tournament were the BULL-PANTS. Congratulations to Jo Ann Blanton, Brenda Knowles, Susan Brown Gay Williams, Debbie Sloan, and Gail Lanier.

Faculty Recital 'Memorable Experience'

By BEN R. CLAYTON
Journalism Class

Those who went to the recent UNC-W Faculty Recital expecting to hear an extraordinary musical performance certainly came away well rewarded. February 27 was a memorable Sunday afternoon at Kenan Auditorium when Mrs. Josephine Simons, pianist, and Miss Ann Darden, soprano, with her accompanist, Dr. Richard Deas, combined their considerable talents in a glittering performance. With the soloists appearing alternately, the five-part program was one in a series presented by the staff of the University's Music Department.

There was an infectious charm mixed with expressive elegance in Mrs. Simon's treatment of works by Hayden, Brahms, and Chopin. But near the end of the program, Mrs. Simons plunged confidently into a series of unbelievably difficult compositions by Ravel, Shostakovich, and Bartok. Her brilliant keyboard technique made the audience gasp at her uncommon precision.

Without hesitation, she met the challenge demanded by these composers. It was a delight to listen and watch as she skillfully guided her nimble fingers at lightning speed through baffling passages.

Then, standing serenely in the curve of the concert grand piano, Miss Darden sang her portion of the concert with an air of confidence available only to a true professional. With grace and ease, her obedient voice danced through a series of sensitive numbers by Brahms, Schubert, and Mozart. Her clear interpretations, training, set a high standard of excellence. But even with her remarkable talent and ability, Miss Darden never for a moment rose above her audience. Rather, it was as if Miss Darden were speaking directly to each person sitting there, sharing as friend to friend, her stories of joy and sadness.

Dr. Deas fulfilled his role as the ideal accompanist. Never intruding on Miss Darden as soloist, never attempting to overpower her, Dr. Deas nevertheless displayed a wealth of expression in his keyboard accompaniment. During interludes between verses, though, Dr. Deas came through strong in interpretative abilities. His technique is natural, not artificial or mechanical, and his playing reveals great verve and skill.

Viewed from every angle, the Faculty Recital was a smashing success.

Muskie Zooms

(CPS) — Senator Edmund Muskie is zooming around the country in his quest for the Presidency in an airplane named "The Josephine," after his mother. There is just one drawback—his mother wants Richard Nixon re-elected.

"IF YOU DID IT, THEY WERE VIET CONG— IF I DID IT, THEY WERE LEPRECHAUNS!"

Basic Studies Program To Be Revised

The curriculum committee was scheduled to finish revising the proposed basic studies program by March 14. Progress reports weren't available at press time but details of the proposed program will be publicized as soon as possible. Preliminary reports show that the proposed basic studies program will require a certain number of hours from each of four academic categories: Math-English, Humanities, Creative Arts, Natural Sciences, and Social and Behavioral Sciences.

This new program should be more liberal than the present one, because there will be a greater flexibility in the selection of courses. Students will hopefully be able to elect more courses from a particular classification, instead of having to take so many required courses.

After the proposal is made public, open hearings will be held for any students or faculty members that wish to present their views on the program.

The committee will then take these ideas into consideration and institute additional changes in the proposal. As a last step, they will submit the final draft of the program to the faculty for approval. If the faculty votes in favor of the program, it should go into effect in the fall semester of this year.

Asked if the proposal had run into any significant opposition so far, Dr. Daniel B. Phyller chairman of the curriculum committee, stated, "Just about everyone on the committee favors this proposal, although there are a few minor details that need to be worked out." He added, "According to reliable administration sources, there should be no decreases in faculty as a result of the curriculum changes.

Dr. Phyller explained that although the new program might decrease the demand for certain courses there would be no staff reductions.

Suit Filed Against Paper Sales

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS) — The state Attorney General of New York filed suit to prevent the sale of term papers to hundreds of students, some of them in Ivy League colleges and universities.

The unprecedented suit, filed in the New York State Supreme Court by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz, seeks to enjoin one Kathleen Sokanitt from conducting a term paper business on the grounds that she aided and abetted the students in fraud.

Ms. Sokanitt's business, which operates under the names of New York City Termpapers, Inc., or Termpaper Unlimited of New York, has grossed over $35,000 since Nov. 1.

WANTED:

BRIGHT YOUNG COLLEGE MEN FOR EXECUTIVE POSITIONS IN GOVERNMENT. MUST MEET PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS. QUALIFY THROUGH SPECIAL TRAINING COURSE.

SEE OR CALL

TSGT JERRY T. LEWIS

WILMINGTON, P. O. Bldg. Rm. 205

PH: 763-3849

Here's a government job with a real future. A pilot and officer in the Air Force. An executive-level job in anybody's book. To qualify, college grads enter the Air Force's Officer Training Program and upon receiving their commission continue on to flight school. Investigate. You'll find that as an Air Force pilot you'll be able to go far, fast.

Find yourself in the United States Air Force

Dog Owners Revolt

DENVER (CPS) — Dog owners won a minor victory last month when the dog catcher was driven from Cheeseman Park by an angry crowd of park visitors.

The dog catchers have been causing Denver dog owners a lot of grief in recent months by handing out tickets in the parks to people who permit their dogs to run around without a leash.

Last month, however, on a warm Sunday afternoon, when the dog catchers drove their van into the middle of a football game and began handing out tickets, a crowd totalling perhaps 85 gathered. And quickly got mad.

"Dogs need exercise too," someone shouted.

"Yeah, what are parks for if you can't let your dog run around?"

The dog catchers were silent. They just kept writing the tickets and radioed for help, and in no time there were two park policemen parking their cars next to the white dog catcher van. The football game had long ceased.

The crowd grew restless, and the police got scared ("There must have been a thousand people there," one of the dog catchers reportedly said later). They called for more help, and soon two Denver city policemen arrived.

The Denver cops were the only ones who would talk to the crowd, and for about a half hour they argued the relative merits and demerits of Denver's leash law. But the crowd wouldn't be mollified, and sensing the potential for trouble, the city police told the dog catchers and the park policemen to stop handing out tickets and leave, which they did.

Match Saves Mitz

By RICK MITZ

I used to be a nothing — a little short, fat, whiney kid from Milwaukee with a running nose. I was a real thorn in my mother Rose's side; a regular down-and-out; a wipe-out; a has-been who never was, and not at all beloved in the neighborhood.

Then something happened. I became educated. It all began in high school when I dropped out of P.S. 184 and enrolled in what must have been the first Alternative School. In the swamps of Milwaukee, everyday after school, we guys used to smoke alfalfa on the shores of lovely Lake Michigan. One afternoon, I noticed my friend, Norman, lighting up. On the cover of his matchbook it said "Finish High School".

"Let me see that, Norman," I said to Norman. "Okay," Norman said to me. And as I lit my weed, I opened the book of matches and read on: "Are you tired of being a nothing, a little short, fat, whiney kid from Milwaukee with a running nose, a real thorn in your mother Rose's side, a regular down-and-out, a wipe-out, a has-been who never was, and not at all beloved in your neighborhood? Then finish High School in your spare time. You can't get anywhere without a High School diploma. Write away right away."

So right away I wrote away. A few weeks later my info arrived in a plain wrapper.

"What's in that plain brown wrapper?" my Mother asked.

"Just some obscene literature," I told her.

"Okay," she said, "just as long as it isn't any of that correspondence school stuff." I promised her it wasn't and the next day dropped out of school. Everyday, between the hours of 7:45 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., I'd sit on the banks of the Michigan and do my assignments diligently, taking only an hour out for lunch.

A few months later, my diploma from Matchbook High School with my name magic marked in arrived. And it now hangs proudly over my Father's pipe rack.

Upon discovering there was no Matchbook College, I enrolled at the state university and took classes in bio-physics, freshman English, and animal husbandry.

And then it came in the mail. A pamphlet proclaiming: "Instant Learning—courses that turn your tape recorder into an automatic learning machine." Shaking with excitement, I read on.

"Now! Electronic Technology gives you a New Way to Learn Any Skill You Wish — so easily — so quickly — so automatically — so perfectly and permanently that it will take your breath away."

I gaped. Could this be true? Could this be from those nice people who brought me Matchbook High School? And, would I, as the pamphlet promised "be turned into a walking encyclopedia to whom your friends and business associates will turn as a final authority on virtually any point?" I decided to sign up then and there and find friends and business associates later.

I dropped out of college. I sold my dorm contract, bought myself a tape recorder and ordered learning tapes on each subject. I learned to "At last! Speak Fluent Spanish, French, Italian, German in exactly 24 hours!" I started, as the ad said, "chatting away like a native." For $9.98.

I obtained a "Power Personality" — and got "all the friends you ever wanted." I "regained accounts that were considered lost." I won "the unconditional approval, respect, and admiration of everyone I came in contact with." And I revitalized, as the ad promised, "my marriage into a thrilling daily experience." It all worked. And I wasn't even in business or married. Only $9.98 per tape.

I learned how to develop my "Creative Mind Powers" as I began to Liberate the Creative Flow Seething Within You! I learned "How To Defend Yourself Against the Human Parasites Who Want to Rule Your Life" and, before you could say $9.98, I forgot my "feelings of inadequacy" and learned how to "pry open the clenched fists of control that people wrap around you!"

Night after night, while I was asleep, I began to double my power to learn (In Just A Single Weekend). I learned the "Magic of Mystic Power" into my life. I learned how to "avoid lawyers, to eat my way out of fatigue, cast astrological horoscopes, write articles that sell" and, "Through The Magic of Push Button Self-Hypnotism," started to shed pound after pound. "You'll be More alive, More Alert, More Attractive to the Opposite Sex." And all for only $9.98.

In one tape I found the secret of perfect living — Instant Sleep — and learned to skyrocket my child's grades in school, as well as become a successful secretary, learn "the new science to command persuasion" and win "unlimited power and control."

All this in two quick weeks.

Now I can do anything. I am the American Dream. I'm happy, I'm rich I have control over people, I know everything you always wanted to know about everything — just ask — and I am beloved in the neighborhood. I am the perfect human being.

And now I'm in business for myself. With all of my vast experience in educational alternatives, I'm opening up what I call "Knowledge College" under a new, novel and unique principle: you arrive at my building at about 8 a.m. and spend the day sitting at something called a desk as a teacher lectures to you and you take notes. The you're tested and you give back the information to the teacher by rote. This learning program should take about four years. It is a radical plan, I know, but it just might work. As for cost, just send me $9.998.

Navy Blacklists Schools

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — The U.S. Navy has ruled that Naval officers will no longer be allowed to take graduate courses at a total of 15 universities throughout the nation.

The schools have been "blacklisted" because they have phased out their Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program. Among the schools listed were Harvard, Dartmouth, Princeton, Stanford, Yale, and Columbia.

The action was taken under pressure from House Armed Services Committee Chairman Rep. Edward Hebert (D., La.).

Secretary of the Navy John H. Chafee said that the prohibition of officers from graduate courses in certain schools was stated in a House Armed Services Committee report last July 13. The report asserted that, "It is morally wrong for the military to spend dollars sending students to a particular college or university which has chosen not to cooperate with the military services."

THE SEAHAWK, March 14, 1972-9

Despite the report, there was never any Congressional sanction of the Committee's position. Much opposition to the action has already arisen. Rep. William Ryan (D., N.Y.) has intimated that he will press the issue in the House, terming the Navy decision "nothing but a blacklist".

Library Adds Texts

By DAVID SNOW

Journalism Class

UNC-W's Randall Library, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Hagan, recently received a shipment of approximately 150 new books to be added to the library's ever-increasing volume of publications.

According to Mrs. Hagan, the library receives between 100 and 200 new books each week. The books, which cover a wide range of student interests, are displayed in a special case outside the librarian's office.

For the musically inclined student, a new book called "The Computer and Music," edited by Harry B. Lincoln, is in the library. Lincoln skillfully documents the efforts of many composers and music researchers who use the computer in their work. He also illustrates the limitless possibilities offered by the computer in music composition and research.

In "Psychology of Birth Planning," Edward Pohlman provides a unique study of the psychic processes responsible for all of the attitudes and practices in the increasingly important field of conception control. This book should be of particular interest to the future psychologist.

Arthur L. Smith's attempt to bridge the 'communication gap' between blacks and whites is entitled 'Rhetoric of Black Revolution'. In this book, he discusses the origins, context, and strategies of black revolution. He uses the term 'black revolution' in the broad sense of drastic change in our social, political, and economic structures.

Dr. Murray Lectures Physics Students Society

Dr. Raymond L. Murray, head of the Nuclear Engineering Department and Burlington Professor of Physics at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, N.C., was guest lecturer at the lecture series of the Society or Physics Students Friday, Feb. 25.

He delivered a very interesting and informative talk on the subject, 'Nuclear Plant of the Future'. The lecture was well attended by students, faculty and private citizens.

Microfiche Catalogue In Library

The D. H. Hill Library, NC State Library in Raleigh, has published its serials catalog in a microfiche edition. The catalog contains about 26,000 titles and cross-references on five 4 inch X 6 inch microfiche. The catalog is contained in a unique self-supporting three-ring binder and is available in the William Madison Randall Library. The library has recently acquired a new microfiche reader to facilitate the use of this and other material on microfiche.

The computer print-out serials catalogs of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Davidson are also available in the William Madison Randall Library.

"We're UNC-W Oriented"

Wellington Lee SHOES

MARKET PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

RAY HINES
MANAGER

17 NORTH KERR AVE.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

PR Director Speaks To Journalism Class

By DAVID SNOW
Journalism Class

If UNC-W Public Relations Director A. J. Carr pushed heroin as effectively as he does journalism, he'd be number one on the F.B.I.'s 'Ten Most Wanted' list.

Speaking to Dr. James Collier's class of future news writers on Friday, March 3, Carr outlined clearly the requirements of and the opportunities offered by a journalism career.

A 1965 graduate of UNC-Ch, Carr began his lecture by relating details of his journalism background. He described the journalism program at Chapel Hill as 'liberal', the only requirements being courses in basic news writing, journalism history, libel law, and news editing.

'Students are offered a wide range of electives, including courses in public affairs, reporting, movie reviews, communications, press photography, and newspaper management,' he said.

According to Carr, the news editing class was set up as an actual newsroom with students seated around a 'horseshoe' desk. The instructor, who served as wire editor, sat in the center. Under this method of operation, the students would actually put out their own newspaper.

When questioned about the value of a journalism degree, Carr admitted, 'nothing can be learned in a journalism school that cannot be learned in a newsroom.'

He went on to explain that experience was the journalist's best tool and that the advantage in getting a degree was centered around the amount of writing experience gained.

'A journalism degree is equivalent to approximately 5 to 6 months of practical experience,' Carr said, 'Journalism is an area where one has to prove himself. Salaries start out low but rise swiftly as a writer proves his worth.'

According to Carr, there are three basic areas in which a journalism major can concentrate. These are advertising, public relations, theoretical journalism, and general news writing, by far the most popular of the choices.

In closing his lecture, Carr explained the differences between news, writing and public relations.

'My primary aim at UNC-W is to publicize the university, whereas the purpose of the news writer is to keep the public informed. It is important to differentiate between information and publicity,' he added.

Before accepting his present position at UNC-W last year, Carr worked for newspapers in Durham, Wilson, and Fayetteville.

Student Senate Receives Few Applications

The Student Senate held its regular meeting March 7. First discussed was the selection of next year's editors and business managers for the SEAHAWK and FLEDGLING. Jane Divine, the senator in charge of accepting applications for these positions, stated that none had been turned in to her.

Speaker Kirk Brown stated that he had received a few applications, and he gave these to Miss Divine. Brown requested that she give the applications to the Student Affairs Committee as soon as possible so that they could be approved before the next senate meeting. The senate is responsible for making the final decision in the selection of students for these positions.

Before the Senate left this item of business, Janice Asbell moved that a publications committee be established to assist the senate in the review of applications for these same positions. She also proposed that this committee consist of former publishers and faculty advisors of the SEAHAWK and the FLEDGLING. The Senate approved the measure, since it felt that it would be desirable for journalistically experienced people to review the applications.

Discussion next centered on the entertainment committee. Janice Asbell requested that a member of the committee be present at the next meeting to report on profits realized from the 'Yes' concert held March 6. She also hoped that this member would inform the senate of the general conduct at the concert in addition to the opinions of students on this performance.

At this point in the meeting, Elizabeth Buffington, chairman of the voter registration drive for UNC-W, reminded each senator to register on campus March 7th and 8th if he had not already done so. She also requested that the senators urge their friends to register.

In final business, the Senate set the inauguration date for new SGA officers for March 28.

Equipment Donated To Chemistry Dept

An emission spectrograph, a sophisticated laboratory apparatus valued at more than $10,000, has been donated to the Chemistry Department of the UNC-W by E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Company.

The apparatus, which took about six months to set up, is already in operation and has provided a great boost to teaching and research at the University.

'The emission spectrograph will be of great value to us in our teaching and research programs,' said Lewis E. Nance, Chemistry professor who was primarily responsible for its acquisition. 'We are grateful to DuPont for the interest they have shown in our university.'

The spectrograph in effect is a giant camera which photographs the spectrum of a burned compound. From the photograph, the type and quantity of elements in the compound can be determined.

The UNC-W emission spectrograph already has been scheduled for instructional use in advanced analytical chemistry courses, and for use in physical chemistry laboratories to show alkali metal spectra. In addition, Nance plans to use it in research he is conducting on palladium and platinum, and the UNC-W Physics Department will also make use of it in research work.

Teachers 'Turned Off'

(CPS) - Colleges and universities across the nation are "turning off the faucets" and discouraging many of their students from entering education fields.

Thirty-seven per cent of all college graduates are certified to teach, and some 234,100 new graduates will be competing for 115,900 jobs in U.S. public schools this year, according to figures released by the National Education Association (NEA).

Four years ago 175,500 teachers could pick from 177,600 jobs.

'This is the worst time in history for the profession in terms of jobs. Colleges and universities have to turn off the faucets. If they don't we'll have two teachers for every position for the next 10 years,' said Eugene Karol, chairman of the NEA committee formed to study the problem.

Reasons for the overwhelming overflow of graduates in this area are: 1) teacher ranks have swollen, but schools in financial hot water have limited their hiring drastically and 2) public school enrollment, which has been rising and practically guaranteeing expansion of teacher ranks, have leveled off now, according to a report in the Wall Street Journal.

Some colleges and universities have succeeded somewhat in their efforts to limit the number of education majors.

Freshmen enrollment in schools of education dropped 14 per cent this year, while general freshmen enrollment declined only about one per cent. The trend is expected to continue.

Summer School

FIRST SUMMER SESSION '1972'

DPT	No	S	CR	TITLE	INSTRUCTOR	BLDG	DAYS	TIME	TIME ENDS
ACG	201	01	3	PRIN OF ACCOUNTING	DUNN	B103	MTWTF	1200	1340
ART	121	01	4	BEGINNING CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	122	01	4	BEGINNING CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	221	01	4	INTER CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	222	01	4	INTER CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	321	01	4	ADV CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	322	01	4	ADV CERAMICS	CORCORAN	K131	MTWTF	1000	1340
ART	385	01	3	ART FOR ELEM SCHOOL	GOINS	C205	MTWTF	0800	1100
BIO	105	01	4	PRIN OF BIOLOGY	PLYLER	H111	MTWTF	1000	1100
BIO	105	51	0	PRIN OF BIOLOGY LAB	PLYLER	H117	TT	1200	1500
BIO	215	01	4	ANATOMY/PHYSIOLOGY	MILLER	H111	MTWTF	1200	1340
BIO	215	51	0	ANATOMY/PHY LAB	MILLER	H118	TT	1400	1600
BIO	485	01	4	ORNITHOLOGY	PARNELL	H109	MWT	0800	900
BIO	485	51	0	ORNITHOLOGY LAB	PARNELL	H109	MTW	0600	0800
BIO	485	02	4	MARINE PHYCOLOGY	KAPRAUN	H103	MTWT	1000	1100
BIO	485	52	0	MARINE PHYCOLOGY LAB	KAPRAUN	H103	TT	1200	1500
BUS	345	01	3	MARKETING	WEST	B112	MTWTF	1200	1340
BUS	346	01	3	RETAILING	WEST	B112	MTWTF	1000	1140
BUS	348	01	3	SALES AND SALES MANAGE	BURKE	B216	MTWTF	0800	0940
BUS	356	01	3	PERSONNEL MANAGE	DUNN	B217	MTWTF	0800	0940
BUS	358	01	3	BUS STATISTICS	BURKE	B103	MTWTF	1000	1200
CCM	281	01	3	COMPUTER COMM I	HALSEY	H203	MTWTF	0800	0940
CHM	101	01	4	GEN CHEMISTRY	STAFF	C114	MTWTF	0800	0905 or WF1000-1105
CHM	101	51	0	GEN CHEMISTRY LAB	STAFF	C126	MTT	0915	1210
CHM	311	01	4	ORGANIC CHEM	DELOACH	C221	MTWTF	0800	0905 or TT 1000-1105
CHM	311	51	0	ORGANIC CHEM LAB	DELOACH	C107	MWF	0915	1210
D&S	115	01	3	FUND OF SPEECH	WELCH	K129	MTWTF	1200	1340
D&S	201	01	2	STAGECRAFT & SHOP	SWINK	K129	TBA	TBA
D&S	202	01	2	STAGECRAFT & SHOP	SWINK	K129	TBA	TBA
D&S	221	01	3	HIST/APPREC OF THEAT	FITZGIBB	K121	MTWTF	0800	0940
D&S	222	01	3	HIST/APPREC OF THEAT	FITZGIBB	K121	MTWTF	1000	1140
D&S	415	01	3	ORAL INTERPRETATION	WELCH	K103	MTWTF	1000	1140
ECN	221	01	3	PRIN OF ECON	HILL	B102	MTWTF	1000	1140
ECN	327	01	3	MONEY AND BANKING	HILL	B102	MTWTF	1200	1340
EDN	405	01	3	ISSUES/TRENDS EDUC	HULON	E201	MTWTF	0800	0940
EDN	415	01	3	TEACH PRACT & TECH	HULON	E201	MTWTF	1200	1340
EDN	425	01	3	BASIC PHIL OF EDUC	DOSS	E204	MTWTF	0800	0940
EDN	435	01	3	SCHOOL-COMM RELAT	DOSS	E204	MTWTF	1000	1140
EDN	483	01	3	EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUC	BARTOLOM	E107	MTWTF	0800	0940
EDN	484	01	3	CURR OF EARLY CHILD	BARTOLOM	E107	MTWTF	1000	1140
ENG	101	01	3	ENGLISH COMPOSITION	MCCALL	K202	MTWTF	1000	1140
ENG	101	02	3	ENGLISH COMPOSITION	ROSSELOT	K201	MTWTF	1200	1340
ENG	102	01	3	ENGLISH COMPOSITION	FOUSHEE	K201	MTWTF	0800	0940
ENG	211	01	3	GREAT BRITISH WRITER	MCCALL	K202	MTWTF	1200	1340
ENG	322	01	3	AMER LITERATURE	ROSSELOT	K202	MTWTF	0800	0940
ENG	345	01	3	LIT FOR CHILDREN	FOUSHEE	K201	MTWTF	1000	1140
ENG	415	01	3	THE 18TH CENTURY	COLLIER	E103	MTWTF	1200	1340
FRH	101	01	3	ELEM FRENCH	GALLOWAY	E206	MTWTF	0800	0940
FRH	201	01	3	INTER FRENCH	BEELER	E103	MTWTF	0800	0940
FRH	201	02	3	INTER FRENCH	BEELER	E103	MTWTF	1000	1140
GER	201	01	3	INTER GERMAN	LOWE	A203	MTWTF	1000	1140
GGY	135	01	4	INTRO PHY GEOG	DRANDALL	A214	MTWTF	1000	1140
GGY	135	51	0	INTRO PHY GEO LAB	DRANDALL	H225	MWT	1400	1600
GLY	105	01	4	PHY GEOLOGY	THAYER	H201	MTWTF	0800	0940
GLY	105	51	0	PHY GEOLOGY LAB	THAYER	H227	MWT	1400	1600
HST	111	01	3	WESTERN CIV	CHAMBERS	A204	MTWTF	0800	0940
HST	111	02	3	WESTERN CIV	USILTON	A204	MTWTF	1200	1340
HST	112	01	3	WESTERN CIV	WATSON	A204	MTWTF	1400	1540
HST	231	01	3	AMER HISTORY	CROWGEY	A214	MTWTF	1200	1340
HST	445	01	3	NC HISTORY	WALLEN	A204	MTWTF	1000	1140
HST	473	01	3	HISTORY OF CANADA	CROWGEY	A214	MTWTF	0800	0940
MAT	100	01	0	FOUND OF ALGEBRA	MOYE	C101	MTWTF	1200	1340
MAT	101	01	3	COL MATH/GEN STUDENT	IRVING	C101	MTWTF	0800	0940
MAT	101	02	3	COL MATH/GEN STUDENT	MOYE	C101	MTWTF	1000	1140
MAT	111	01	3	PRECALCULUS MATH	TONEY	C127	MTWTF	0800	0940
MAT	121	01	3	FINITE MATH	GREIM	C129	MTWTF	1000	1140
MAT	211	01	4	CALCULUS/ANAL GEOM	TONEY	C127	MTWTF	1000	1200
MUS	115	01	3	SURVEY OF MUSIC LIT	HONEY	K106	MTWTF	1000	1140
NUR	135	01	6	PSYCHIATRIC NUR	STAFF	TBA	MTWTF	TBA
P&R	315	01	3	ETHICS	WALLEN	K103	MTWTF	1200	1340
PED	102	01	1	PE ACTIVITY	LANE	G	MTWTF	0800	0940
PED	201	01	1	PE ACTIVITY	LANE	G	MTWTF	0800	0940
PED	202	01	1	PE ACTIVITY	LANE	G	MTWTF	0800	0940
PED	102	02	1	PE ACTIVITY	HARRIS	G	TBA	TBA
PED	201	02	1	PE ACTIVITY	HARRIS	G	TBA	TBA
PED	202	02	1	PE ACTIVITY	HARRIS	G	TBA	TBA
PED	305	01	3	HEALTH EDUC	WARNER	H205	MTWTF	0800	0940
PED	385	01	3	PE IN THE ELEM SCH	LANE	H201	MTWTF	1000	1140
PED	415	01	3	ADAPTED PE	WARNER	H201	MTWTF	1200	1340
PED	455	01	3	TESTS/MEASURE IN PE	MILLER	H205	MTWTF	1000	1140

Continued on p. 12

SUMMER SCHOOL ..Continued from p. 11

DEPT	No	S	CR	TITLE	INSTRUCTOR	BLDG	DAYS	TIME	ENDS
PHY	101	01	4	ELEM PHYSICS	HHERNAND	C218	MTWTF	0800	0940
PHY	101	51	0	ELEM PHYSICS LAB	HHERNAND	C206	MWF	1000	1140
PHY	101	01	5	GEN PHYSICS	HHERNAND	C218	MTWTF	1000	1140
PHY	201	51	0	GEN PHYSICS LAB	HHERNAND	C206	MWF	1200	1340
PLS	201	01	3	AMER NATL GOVERN	JDIXON	A201	MTWTF	1200	1340
PLS	201	01	3	STATE/LOCAL GOVERN	JDIXON	A201	MTWTF	0800	0940
PSY	101	01	3	PSY OF GROWTH/DEVEL	BRADLEY	E208	MTWTF	0800	0940
PSY	101	01	3	EDUC PSY	BRADLEY	E208	MTWTF	1200	1340
SOC	201	01	3	PRIN OF SOCIOLOGY	SCALF	B213	MTWTF	0800	0940
SOC	201	01	3	CRIMINOLOGY	SCALF	B213	MTWTF	1000	1140
SPN	205	01	3	ELEM SPANISH	BELLAMY	E212	MTWTF	0800	0940
SPN	206	02	3	ELEM SPANISH	BELLAMY	E206	MTWTF	1000	1140
SPN	315	03	3	ELEM SPANISH	PEREZ	E206	MTWTF	1200	1340
SPN	316	01	3	INTER SPANISH	GONZALEZ	A205	MTWTF	0800	0940
SPN	105	02	3	INTER SPANISH	PEREZ	E212	MTWTF	1000	1140
SPN	355	03	3	INTER SPANISH	GONZALEZ	E208	MTWTF	1200	1340

SALLY SEAHAWK SAYS:

City Hall is useless

Vote NO!! on March 15

UNC-W Football Revealed Crush CARS 3-0

In a candid statement last week to SEAHAWK Reporters, Gil Crooks, information officer for the Athletic program, disclosed the information that the Miscellaneous and Sundry Board here at the college had given him permission to announce that "we really do have a football team."

The team, called the "Seahogs", were made public due to their first winning game ever.

The win came against the "Grease Monkeys" of the Carolina Automobile Repair School (CARS).

CARS lead through most of the game, but in the last few seconds of the fourth quarter, the Seahogs' "Slingshot Simmons" threw a two-yard bomb to the left and "Butterfingers Baker" to put the ball on the CARS one-foot line. "One Leg Wong", who transferred to UNC-W from the Hung-Chow Medical Institute, kicked a record five yard field goal to put UNC-W ahead.

Head Coach Iben Dozenoff, said that he was pleased with the play of the Seahogs for the first time in their 24 year history. "However, our offense still has a lot to work on," he mused, "the only reason we got the ball on their seven yard line was because of their repeated delay-of-game penalties." Coach Dozenoff was referring to the fact that CARS' players kept standing around in shock, unable to believe that UNC-W had actually fielded a team. They obviously had succumbed to the popular rumor that has caught the world like wildfire.

Team statistician G. I. Cantsee said that Simmons pass set new school records for most completions in a game, longest completions, and most plays in succession.

"In fact," he said, "they are the only school records we have."

When asked about Wong's field goal, Cantsee said, "I must have left before that happened."

The "Hogs" will play in the April Fools Bowl against Goose Run Industrial and Technological School (GRITS) in GRITS Stadium on March 31.

Due to lack of interest, no home games are played

Bureaucracy

in Action

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XIII NO. 17

"By students, for students."

MONDAY, APRIL 24, 1972

Malloy Named To UNC-W Student Affairs

Dr. William M. Malloy, presently dean of students at Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va., will join the University of North Carolina at Wilmington on July 1 as vice chancellor for student affairs.

Dr. Malloy's appointment was announced by UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner on Monday. He will succeed Dr. J. Marshall Crews, who is retiring to full-time teaching in the university's Department of Mathematics after 21 years in administration.

"I am pleased that we have found a man of Dr. Malloy's ability and background for this important position," Dr. Wagoner said. "As chief administrator of student affairs, he will hold one of the university's most demanding positions. I am confident that he will meet the challenge of his new responsibilities."

Dr. Crews, who requested that he be able to devote full time to his duties as professor of mathematics, also endorsed Dr. Malloy as his successor in the student affairs post. "I feel that we have selected a good man for the position," he said. "We made a thorough search before choosing Dr. Malloy, and I am pleased that he will be joining us."

Dr. Malloy, contacted by telephone in Huntington, said he was "excited" over the prospects of his new position.

"I feel this position will represent a significant professional advancement for me in student personnel work, and I consider this opportunity a personal challenge," he said. "I am impressed with the growth potential of UNC-W, as well as with its student body and faculty."

At 31 years of age, Dr. Malloy will be one of the youngest administrative officers in North Carolina's university system. A native of Columbus, Ohio, he received the B.A. degree in 1963 from Denison University. He was awarded the M.Ed. degree in 1965 by Wittenberg University, and received the Ph.D. degree in 1969 from Ohio State University.

Prior to becoming dean of students at Marshall last year, he served for three years as dean of students and director of placement at Lenoir Rhyne College. While a graduate student at Wittenberg, he served as an instructor in health and physical education, head wrestling coach and assistant football coach. At Ohio State, he was assistant to the dean of men and a residence hall director before becoming assistant to the dean of the College of Education.

WILLIAM M. MALLOY

chairman of the Curriculum Committee which recommended the new program, said consideration of the matter over the past two years has involved "continual input from all segments of the academic community. Student representatives on the committee took part in all deliberations, and faculty and students outside the committee have participated in open hearings on the proposal."

Basic Studies Revised

A new program designed to give students wide latitude in choosing courses to fulfill basic studies requirements will be instituted this fall by the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

The program won final approval Thursday in a vote by the university faculty after two years of planning and consideration. It will be put into effect with the beginning of the fall semester this year.

Under the new requirements, students will complete a basic studies program of at least 45 semester hours, including at least six semester hours in English composition, three hours in mathematics and two hours in physical education. Students may be exempted from the English and mathematics requirements through proficiency examinations.

The remainder of the basic studies courses may be chosen from four divisions, with maximum and minimum limitations on the number of hours which may be taken in each division. These divisions, their subject areas and hour ranges are: Humanities — English (excluding creative writing courses), History, Modern Languages and Philosophy-Religion; 9 to 15 semester hours.

Creative Arts — Art, English (creative writing courses only), Drama-Speech and Music; 3 to 6 semester hours.

Natural Sciences and Mathematics — Biology, Chemistry, Geology, Geography (only physical geography, climatology and marine biology acceptable from geography courses), Mathematics and Physics; 7 to 12-semester hours, including at least one laboratory science course.

Social and Behavioral Sciences — Anthropology, Economics, Geography (excluding courses listed in Natural Science), Political Science, Psychology and Sociology; 3 to 9 semester hours.

The new plan replaces a program which had more specific course requirements in mathematics, history, social science, the humanities, natural science, modern language and physical education.

Dr. Charles L. Cahill, vice chancellor for academic affairs at UNC-W, said the purpose of the program is "to provide a basic foundation in the liberal arts and sciences which will complement the student's area of concentration. This plan provides flexibility to allow the student, in consultation with his faculty adviser, to design a program of basic studies which will lend itself to his interests."

UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner noted that the planning of the new program involved "the entire academic community, students and faculty alike."

"The faculty is charged with the responsibility of setting requirements for graduation; and in this capacity had the final word on the change," Dr. Wagoner said. "But throughout the development stage, students were involved in planning and drafting the proposal, and their suggestions and comments were considered along with those of the faculty."

Dr. Daniel B. Plyler,

UNC-W Signs Va. Cage Star

Ernie Lynn, a 6-7 center from Fairfax, Va., who won all-star honors at Fairfax Senior High, has signed a basketball grant-in-aid with The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

A consistent performer, he averaged 17-points and 10 rebounds per game as a senior, with high marks of 27 points and 23 rebounds in a game against Madison High.

Seahawk Head Coach Mel Gibson, who announced the signing, described Lynn as "a very active center."

"He is constantly moving on both offense and defense and is a good outside shooter for a center," Gibson said. "He is extremely aggressive and has tremendous potential as a college player."

Senate Warns SGA President

The Student Senate passed a resolution Tuesday calling for Hil Brooks, president of the SGA, to make the appointments the president is responsible for, according to the newly passed Student Constitution.

The resolution stated that drastic action might have to be taken if he did not name his nominees.

Several Senators have hinted at attempted impeachment of the newly elected president of the student body.

During the Senate meeting, Brooks announced his choices for Student Body Treasurer and Chairman of the Board of Elections at the Board of Elections.

The nominees were present and each gave a presentation to the body.

George Chadwick, nominee for treasurer, was applauded by Brooks who said Chadwick had experience in this area since he had been serving as acting treasurer for some time.

Brooks also named Joe Morgan as chairman of the board of elections. He informed the senate that Morgan worked with the last chairman of the board of elections.

Chadwick told the senate that he was a senior business major who had taken several courses in accounting, bookkeeping, and economics.

Morgan told the senate that he had prior experience in the SGA, having served on the student appeals board. He added that he had assisted the board of elections in counting ballots.

After some discussions, the senate approved the nominations.

The Chairman of the Club Charters Committee, Jack Paul, was on hand to report to the senate that he had not received charters from every club.

May 1st was set as the deadline for the remaining clubs to forward their charters to the committee.

In earlier action on March 28, the senate approved two appointments of Speaker Patti McCombie, Janice Ashbell, to head the senate rules committee and Jack Paul to head the club charters committee.

Also on that date, the senate approved the nominations for editors of the SGA publications.

Ron Dunn was confirmed as editor of the SEAHAWK. Jack Paul as editor of the FLEDGLING Yearbook, and Erich Parker as editor of the ATLANTIS, literary magazine.

Originally, the senate was to appoint business managers for these three publications, but the senate, following the recommendation of the Publications Board, voted to allow the respective editors to choose their own business managers.

SEASQUAWKS

"Lets Play Ball"

The SEAHAWK is presently under reorganization. We feel that our function is to provide UNC-W students with news, features, and editorial copy to suit you.

In doing this we expect to step on a few toes, but toes are like opinions, everybody's got one.

As the students know, requests for the new budget are now before the senate. It has been implied by a few senators that the SEAHAWK had better "play ball" with the senate if we expect to get our budget approved.

We need this money desperately to make the SEAHAWK a paper the students can be proud of, a newspaper which comes out regularly with news, features, and editorials, voicing student opinion.

But, even though we need the money to provide that newspaper, we will not be bribed or threatened by the student senate or anyone else.

So below you will find the editorial this all stemmed from, and we are prepared to accept, in the students behalf, any consequences, monetary or otherwise, that may befall the SEAHAWK as a direct result.

If we have to, we will come out next year on toilet paper. But we would hope that the majority of the senate members insist that objectivity and honesty prevail in that governing body whether the SEAHAWK budget request is approved or not.

The student senate is off to a great start. In their three meetings, they have written a letter to the faculty urging the passing of the new basic studies requirements, approved the appointments of SGA President Bill Brooks, and approved the heads of the three major student publications. What comes to our minds is why they are letting grass grow under their feet (excuse the expression). What about the budget? What about anything?

Reports have it that the reason they can't seem to make any headway into their really important business and functions is their senate rules. THEY DO NOT HAVE ANY!!

If they cannot govern themselves, why should the student body to allow them to govern them, distribute the approximate $40,000 allocated student funds, and hold supreme legislative powers (according to the new constitution which was voted on and passed by only 11% of the student body).

The senate also seems to have a few nit-pickers. For example one senator said that it took 45 minutes to approve the letter that was sent to the faculty, a matter of pure penmanship. "I want an 'an' here,....Duh, there should be a clause in it that states that uh,....", probably said one senator.

Let's face it! Sure we are not a Chapel Hill, or an ECU, but we deserve an active Student Government. After all, we're paying for it. And when we say active, we don't mean bickering over rhetoric.

Oh yes! The senate has also passed a resolution in which they told SGA President Bill Brooks that he had better hurry up his appointments or that drastic action would be taken. We take it that by "drastic action" they mean impeachment.

We wonder when the senate last tried to find qualified volunteers for the Board of Elections or other non-paid appointments. The same thing goes for the Treasurer and the Attorney-General.

Even if the President is lucky enough to find a decent volunteer, he is stood before the Senate and grilled, as if they had a choice whether to approve the nominee or not. Brooks cannot just point his finger at the nearest student and order him to work all next year.

Many students throughout the world are busy fighting Administrations. It seems here that our antagonists come from within our own corner.

If you, as a student, are interested enough, as the SEAHAWK is, attend the next meeting of the student senate and act accordingly. We have a small enough voice in active politics today as it is. The SEAHAWK intends to remain boisterous and strong,WHAT ABOUT YOU?

Facultly Fear.....

Well, UNC-W has finally made a start towards coming out of the dark ages of education. The faculty passed the new Basic studies requirements. However, the thing that surprises us the most was not the fact that they were so openly opposed to the change, but rather the petty inter-departmental bickering that went on at the two open hearings of the Curriculum Committee.

The charges of 'empire building' seemed entirely out of place at those meetings, whether they were true or not. It would appear that educators should be more concerned with education and its quality rather than discovering if the 'sociology department gets more funds than another department'.

A member of the Language Department admitted that ten of the twenty opposing votes represented the entire foreign language staff. They obviously felt that their positions were in danger. Perhaps if classes on the whole were taught on a level that did not insult the intelligence of college students, they would be more eagerly sought after. It is difficult to consider oneself a 'university student' in a high school atmosphere. It's time to stop the factional quarrelling among faculty, as well as students, and get down to business of making the University of North Carolina at Wilmington a 'university' in the true sense of the word. We have enough quarrels with administrators and legislators in Chapel Hill and Raleigh.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

In regards to the letter received from Wantu Wazuri; it is necessary to clarify some vast discrepancies concerning the origin, meaning, and displaying the Confederate Flag.

The "Bonnie Blue Flag" was designed by a lady from Louisville, N.C., and first displayed in Franklin County March 18, 1861. At that time southern citizens were almost 100 per cent in favor of the south taking a strong stand against Federal encroachment on States' Rights, even should it mean secession. The Confederate Flag was a symbol of these beliefs and represented nothing else.

Whether some students like it or not, they are living and/or attending college in the south and in a city that is rich in southern history. There are many markers and statues that reflect our southern heritage located in and about Wilmington. I am sure that these symbolic gestures were not erected to harass the Black race nor is public displaying of the Confederate Flag a representation of racial supremacy.

The misconceptions concerning this subject has long irritated me mainly because there is always a few narrow minded individuals who jump to conclusions instead of searching for the truth.

Frankly, the statement in the letter which stated 'repression of black aspirations, is a bit ridiculous, and if the Confederate Flag upset me that much, I would certainly pursue my educational goals elsewhere.

JOSEPH O. GREEN, III

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to offer this letter to you in hopes that it may be used in your newspaper.

There have been many predictions about the future concerning droughts, famines, and such. Predictions such as these have always existed, though usually never finding themselves coming into being. But now more than ever could one imagine a revolt by nature, in her trying to tell us the need for balance and harmony.

Last summer I was invited to share in the harvesting of some fruit trees. I was amazed to see the vast quantity of food that was given from these four trees. The pears, apples, and peaches that were picked that day would have been enough to last a family for many months in a needed situation.

Some friends of mine in college are planning to ask their student senate if for one year they could use their class money for planting a small fruit orchard to be used to help the needy of their town, while also giving the students something good and free to eat. Churches could do something similar, in either giving certain families these kinds of trees or in planting their own.

I think about the many families in our country having to receive welfare to help in their living. And I think

Continued to page 3.

STUDENT SENATE

Administrative Briefs

Department of Geography and Geology

A paper by Victor A. Zullo entitled "Factors governing the presence of balanomorph barnacles in the Virginian Province" has been accepted for presentation at the Atlantic Estuarine Research Society's meeting in Myrtle Beach, S.C., which was held April 13-15.

Department of Music

Dr. Richard Deas, chairman of the music department, presented a piano recital of Twentieth Century Piano Works at Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama, March 30, in a series sponsored by the Auburn Student Union.

Ken Roberts, clarinetist, presented his senior recital on Monday, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the Kenan Auditorium.

Language Department

Professor J. Rush Beler's review of a recent translation of Jean Mesnard's PASCAL appears in the current issue of the SOUTH ATLANTIC BULLETIN. The translation by Claude and Marcia Abraham of Florida State University makes available to American readers a brilliant analysis of Pascal's meditations on Christian doctrine by one of the foremost French scholars of our day.

Art Department

On March 24, Claude Howell attended the quarterly meeting of the Advisory Council of the North Carolina State Art Society.

The 14th Annual Student Art Show and Senior Exhibitions opened on April 16 and will remain on display in Kenan Hall through May 10.

Chemistry Department

Robert Grace, a student, conducted a chemistry seminar at 11:30 a.m. in C-114 on April 12. Grace's topic was the "Three Centered Bond in Organic Reaction Mechanisms."

Physics Department

Rolla C. Nelson attended a Revitalization of Physics Conference held at Eastern Mennonite College, Harrisonburg, Va., April 7-8. The theme of the conference was the Keller Plan of Instruction.

Business Department

The UNC-W computing center will offer a computer programming institute for high school students June 15 through July 14. There will be a $30 per student charge for the institute and upon successful completion of the program, students will be given 1/2 unit credit.

Education Department

Mrs. Betty Stike and DR. Saul Bachner were at N.C. State University April 14 for a meeting of university professors who are involved with training social studies teachers.

Mrs. Betty Stike attended the North Carolina Council of the International Reading Association's convention in Raleigh on March 16-18. She is a member of the state executive board of this organization.

Athletic Department

The UNC-W Alumni Association will pay tribute to Coach William J. Brooks, who recently retired as basketball coach, at a dinner in the UNC-W Cafeteria April 29 at 7:30 p.m. Plates will cost $2.50 each, and reservations should be made through the Alumni Office on Campus.

SALLY SEAHAWK SAYS:

"KEEP THE BIG BOYS HONEST !!!"

Continued from page 2.

about that for two or three dollars apiece, fruit trees could be given to them through their welfare payments or some government help; and in a few years not only would these trees be an excellent source of food and nutrition, but they would also add some beauty to the sometimes very coarse surroundings.

I spoke to my father about planting some trees on our property, and he groused out something about fruit rotting and the lawn mower, extra expense and care... but ya see dad, they are very strong trees and almost completely self-sustaining, and agencies do exist that would readily take whatever fruit we couldn't use to give away fresh or to preserve; for still most of the world is hungry.

Thank you,

A Friend

(ed. note: the following letter was sent to all faculty members from the student senate)

The following resolution was unanimously passed at the regular student senate meeting on April 11, 1972: Whereas, the present basic studies program at UNC-W lacks a desirable flexibility to allow the student to pursue his basic studies in a manner suitable to the individual's educational goals,

Whereas, the proposed curriculum changes provide a degree of flexibility and yet maintain required standard levels of proficiency in basic skills and basic foundation in both the liberal arts and sciences, and

Whereas, the proposed curriculum changes provide the student with an opportunity to make responsible decisions in shaping his own curriculum within the framework of the divisional requirements and with the guidance of an experienced advisor.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the Student Senate of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington urges the faculty of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington to approve the proposed changes and continue investigation and revision of the basic studies and prerequisite requirements.

Bulletin Board

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES: will be held on May 15, at 8 p.m. in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium.

commencement announcements: May 1 - 10 all academic regalia must be secured from the Student Affairs Office. Due to a limited amount of space in the auditorium, the number of guests is limited to 4 per graduate. Graduates will be issued their 4 admission tickets when they pick up their regalia. If any graduates have not paid the $10 graduation fee in full, please do so before picking up cap and gown.

Monday, May 15, 10 a.m.--Commencement Rehearsal at Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium.--Graduates are requested to be prompt so that a minimum amount of time will be required for the rehearsal.

Monday, May 15, 7 p.m.--All graduates will report to the William Madison Randall Library to line up for the academic procession. They are requested to wear dark shoes with the academic regalia. The Senior Class Officers decided to purchase Keepsake Caps and Gowns this year; therefore the graduates may keep their regalia.

THE CONTEMPORARY DANCE CLASS of the Physical Education Department will hold a demonstration program at 8 p.m. on April 27 in Kenan Auditorium. The instructor is Dorothy Nesbitt and the theme will be shapes and sounds. The students, faculty, and public are cordially invited.

INTRAMURAL GOLF TOURNAMENT--will be held Thursday April 27 at Duck Haven Country Club. No entry fee required. Trophies will be awarded to 1st and 2nd places low net and low gross using a Callaway handicap system. Everyone will have an equal chance to win. Sign up in Gym. Open to male students and faculty.

MEMBERS OF THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION attended the State BSU spring conference at Fort Caswell. Raleigh Todd was elected President for next year.

THE PSYCHOLOGY CLUB met April 12 to discuss plans for a group trip to Cherry Hospital April 18. Plans were made for a meeting to be held Wednesday, April 26 at 1:30 p.m. in E-208.

UNC-W SENIOR AUTHORITY ON SHOWBOAT

Joseph O. Green, III, a senior at UNC-W, carried readers back to the days of NC's "James Adams Floating Theater", published in THE STATE magazine recently.

The story of the James Adams, built in Washington, N.C. in 1913, furnished an interesting plunge into NC history.

Green's article, entitled "Showboating in the Albemarle", told the story of how life on the James Adams provided material to Edna Ferber, who stayed on board in 1923 or 24, to use as a basis for her novel, "SHOWBOAT". After the publication of this book, the owners of the boat changed its name to THE ORIGINAL SHOWBOAT. Green relates how the rehearsals on the James Adams were described by a high ranking church member as "a hell-hole of iniquity filled with lunksliders, rift-raff, and colored folk."

On November 16, 1929, The Original Showboat, the article notes, struck a stump and sunk while traveling up the Dismal Swamp Canal. However, it was completely repaired by the Elizabeth City Iron Works.

Green concludes his article by telling of the contradictions concerning the termination of the Original Showboat. He explains that some say the boat burned while others say it was phased out by the introduction of radio and moving pictures.

Green explained that he got the idea for writing the story from Doug Swink. After getting the information, a friend suggested that he sent it in to the STATE. So, he sent in the completed manuscript, along with several fine photographs. The results may be seen in the February 1972 edition.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE SPRING SEMESTER 1972

	Thursday May 4	Friday May 5	Monday May 8	Tuesday May 9	Wednesday May 10
8:30- 10:30	8:30 TTh	8:30 MWF	10:30 MWF	10:00 TTh	11:30 MWF
11:00- 1:00	9:30 MWF	2:30 MWF	2:00 TTh	4:30 MWF	3:30 MWF
2:00- 4:00	12:30 MWF	11:30 MWF	1:30 MWF	12:30 TTh	3:30 TTh
7:00- 9:00	Thurs. nite		Mon. nite	Tue. nite

GREEK NEWS

PI KAPPA PHI Fraternity is currently preparing for its annual Rose Ball to be held May 6 at the Cape Fear Ballroom. Brothers, pledges, and little Sisters are anxiously awaiting this gala occasion.

During April 7-9, Pi Kappas held their annual Beach weekend at Myrtle Beach, SC. Despite the cold weather a good time was had by all.

Equally enjoyable was the State Pi Kapp Conclave that was held at Carolina Beach during the Azalea Festival. Representatives from the six NC chapters of Pi Kappa Phi met to discuss fraternity business and just plain enjoy the surf, sand, and sun.

ZETA TAU ALPHA is proud to announce its newly installed officers for the 1972-73 school year: President, Catherine Smithdeal; Vice-president, Diane Lacey; Treasurer, Abbey Henry; Recording Secretary, Becky George; Pledge Director, Libby Weaver; Ritual and Membership, Diane Sinhel; Corresponding Secretary, Terry Rogers; Historian-Reporter, Hilda Hawes; Social and Activities, Debbie Davis; Fraternity Education, Francis Robinson; Standards, Madeleine Dunn, Music, Conne Davis; Scholarship, Karen Castello; Panhellenic Delegates, Debbie Davis and Hilda Hawes.

On March 18, the sisters and pledges of ZTA held a very successful fund raising drive for the March of Dimes. Our contribution was $130. We wish to thank all those who contributed to this worthwhile cause.

On April 22, Zeta will hold its first annual Themics Ball. New pledges will be presented at that time.

On April 29, Zetas will travel to Southern Pines for North Carolina State Day.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA -- will hold its Awards Banquet on Friday, April 21. All Alumni and Brothers are requested to make their reservations with Jack Paul, the Fellowship Chairman.

Brother Jack Paul was in Lubbock the first of March where he represented Region III in an effort sponsored by the Beta Sigma Brothers of Texas Tech University to improve the financial status of our National Fraternity.

Brothers went to Camp Tom Upchurch several weeks ago and spent one night. While there, they managed to assist in some cleaning in preparation for summer camp.

They had a Dribble Thon for the March of Dimes that raised $160. The money was dumped into the till by several of the Brothers on the TV-3 Telarama. Our few hours of work was well worth it and we are more than pleased at our accomplishment.

Easter weekend was a very special one for us because of the third Rock-A-Thon for Easter Seals. To make it even more special our pledges also had one. The brothers were at Roses and the pledges were at Gibsons. Brother Bob McLeod and pledge Ricky Ritter both surpassed the old record of 56 hours and 21 minutes of continuous rocking. A total of $2,479 was collected in the 57 hours.

Sad news came to our chapter with the death of National Fraternity President Aubrey B. Hamilton. The Brotherhood

The Seahawk

Editor Ron Dunn
Associate Editor, Mike Jones
Business Manager Sandy Boney
Staff Grace Parker, Kathy Tyner, Bill Wallace

The SEAHAWK is published weekly by and for the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. It is a member of the College Press Service, 1452 Pennsylvania St., Denver, Colorado 80203. Business Office is at S-201, James Student Services Building, UNC-W. Letters to the editor must be signed, however names can be withheld upon request.

THE OBSCENE CALL

by EADens

NON-MAJORS

ECON COURSE

NOW OFFERED

The business department now offers subjects in the area of economics for non-majors.

Beginning in the fall of 1972, Economics 205 will be offered. This course is designed primarily for non-business and non-economics majors. The course will concentrate on building up certain economic principles and using these principles in analyzing current issues. The emphasis will be on the relevance of economics, not on techniques of analysis.

Another new course offered by the business department primarily for Environmental Science majors is Economics 405. This course includes an application of economic concepts to environmental problems, such as common property resources, public goods, and technological externalities as determinants of market failure.

In addition, two courses have been added for business majors: Business/Economics 301-302 (Quantitative methods in Business and Economics) and Business 357 (Production Management).

FLA. ABORT LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL

GAINESVILLE, FLA (CPS)—The Florida Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the state's entire abortion statute, including the section that prohibited publishing abortion information.

In October 1971, Ron Sachs, editor of the Florida Alligator was arrested for inserting a list of abortion referral agencies in the University of Florida student newspaper.

Charges against Sachs were dismissed in December by Alachua County Felony Court of Record Judge Benjamin M. Tench.

It took the Florida Supreme Court decision to settle the issue.

In the decision, the state high court said, "In our opinion men of ordinary intelligence must guess at the meaning of the words, 'necessary to preserve the life of such mother,' and the statutes are so vague as to violate the U.S. Constitution's 14th Amendment."

Meanwhile, Sachs' defense lawyers have donated $500 to two University of Florida colleges to be used for student loans.

WANTED:
BRIGHT YOUNG COLLEGE MEN FOR EXECUTIVE POSITIONS IN GOVERNMENT. MUST MEET PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS. QUALIFY THROUGH SPECIAL TRAINING COURSE.

SEE OR CALL

TSGT JERRY T. LEWIS

WILMINGTON, P. O. Bldg. Rm. 205

PH: 763-3849

Here's a government job with a real future. A pilot and officer in the Air Force. An executive-level job in anybody's book. To qualify, college grads enter the Air Force's Officer Training Program and upon receiving their commission continue on to flight school. Investigate. You'll find that as an Air Force pilot you'll be able to go far, fast.

Find yourself in the United States Air Force

Jessie Rehder Awards Presented

Awards were presented to winners of the third annual Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest by Mr. Sam Ragan in the UNC-W Library Auditorium on March 23.

There was a tie for first place between Ken Keffer for "Digging the Basement" and Mike Church for "Cats Belong On the Floor." A cash prize of $75 was presented to each.

Tim Sims received third place and $30 for "Reasons." Honorable mention and $10 went to Kathi Beall for "Satan's Passion, Angel's Breath" and Ed Boylan for "The Abandoned Fort."

These prize-winning stories will be published in the spring edition of Atlantis, the UNC-W literary magazine.

Mr. Ragan appeared on the campus of UNC-W to read and discuss poetry from two of his published volumes. It was appropriate that he present the awards, for he knew Jessie Rehder personally during her lifetime.

Speaking of Miss Rehder, Mr. Ragan said, "She was able to bring out in her students things they never knew they had in them."

He said also that she had very strong feelings about Wilmington, which was her hometown, and this part of North Carolina.

In connection with the contest, a display was set up in the lobby of the UNC-W library. It included a picture of Miss Rehder, several of her books, some of her other published work, and an article which appeared in The News and Observer on November 21, 1970, about the fourth annual Jessie Rehder Flea Market.

Proceeds from these flea markets go to the Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund, which is used to encourage creative writing through prizes and publications.

Appearing also in the display was one of Miss Rehder's earliest published poem, "Etchings," which appeared in an Asheville high school literary magazine, Peaks. This magazine was presented to the UNC-W library by Mrs. James Collier.

Jessie Rehder was head of the creative writing division of the English Department at UNC-CH until her death in 1967.

WINNERS - JESSIE REHDER SHORT STORY CONTEST

Contest winners shown left to right are Tim Sims, 3rd place; Ken Keffer and Mike Church, who tied for first place; Kathi Beall, Honorable Mention.

Ed Boylan, who received Honorable Mention also, was not present for the awards.

REHDER FAMILY VISITS UNC-W

Dr. James Collier, UNC-W English Dept. (Left), hosts guest on Award Night for The Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest. On the right are speaker

Sam Ragan, former editor of the NEWS AND OBSERVER, and two members of the Rehder family, Mrs. J.H. Gerdes and Henry Rehder.

OFFICER OF NAACP LECTURES HERE

Alfred Baker Lewis, treasurer of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), spoke on campus Friday.

Lewis, a member of the NAACP since 1924, has spent the past seven years making ten to twelve week speaking tours throughout the South and Southwest.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania law school, Lewis taught economics briefly at the University of Pennsylvania.

He has appeared before committees of the state legislatures of Massachusetts and Connecticut on behalf of labor and social security laws as well as for civil rights legislation.

He is a member of the American Federation of Teachers, affiliated with the AFL-CIO. He is also a member of Americans for Democratic Action and a supporter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The NAACP, according to Lewis, is the oldest and most effective of the civil rights organizations. Besides their support for civil rights legislation for racially underprivileged, the NAACP also supports economic legislation for the financially underprivileged.

Edible Cans May Be Cure For Pollution

Within the next decade, the wrappings may be tasting better than the food they contain, according to a scientist at Pennsylvania State University at University Park, Pa.

Dr. Manfred Kroger, a food scientist at Penn State, suggested that in the face of growing waste and pollution, consumers will be disposing of used food and beverage containers by eating them.

The age of edible films and coating for food is already here, said the doctor, who pointed out that several restaurants are already using containers that dissolve in water during cooking. Dr. Kroger added that an international airline has brought out a cup which can be eaten after the drink is consumed.

No Big Impact

While some in the food industry feel the edible wrappers will have a sizable effect on the packaging of future frozen foods, Dr. Kroger reported that the idea of containers to be eaten with the meal has yet to make any large impact on the food market.

One problem, explained Dr. Kroger, was that some of the products that are water-soluble may not be able to withstand touching and handling by moist hands, let alone exposure to moist environments.

He added that the cost of edible containers cannot always justify the convenience.

According to Dr. Kroger, "for sanitary and esthetic reasons, an outer disposable material will probably always be a packaging requirement."

The heart of every American goes out to those who died in this war

72-73 CONCERT PERFORMERS ANNOUNCED

Names of performers who will appear in Wilmington for the 1972-73 season of evening concerts on UNC-W campus have been released by the Board of Directors of the University Series. Ticket requests for the concert series at Sarah Kenan Auditorium are now being accepted.

Dr. Robert A. Melton, board chairman, announced that the new season to begin with the opening of the University this fall will feature seven, concerts, rather than the usual six.

Three performances will feature musicians of international reputation, according to Dr. Melton. They are I Solisti Di Zagreb, the internationally famous string orchestra from Yugoslavia; Quartetto Italiano; and the Yuval Trio, which is composed of a piano, violin, and cello from Israel.

The schedule also calls for a well-known folk duo known as Addis and Crofut to appear at one of the evening programs. A highlight of special interest will be the appearance of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Men's Glee Club. Also from UNC-Chapel Hill Music Department will be Marvin Blickenstaff, concert pianist, who will make a solo appearance.

The Jones-Williams Soul Trio also is scheduled for the series, with a program known as music of Black America. According to Dr. Melton, he believes this is the first time a group devoted entirely to music of Black America has been brought to the Wilmington area under similar sponsorship. Season memberships for the seven concerts are $10 for adults and $5 for students. Annual membership passes are available now by writing Dr. Robert A. Melton, University Music Series, University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Wilmington, NC 28401. Remittance should be accompanied by complete name, address, phone number, and the number of adult or student memberships desired.

GODFATHER, "Not To Be Missed"

A Review By David Snow

By David Snow

With memories this year's Academy Award presentations still fresh in the minds of many, "The Godfather," a story about a Mafia family, has already established itself as a favorite to capture several categories when the awards are presented next year.

Correctly hailed as his best performance since the days of Stanley Kowalski and "Streetcar," Marlon Brando's portrayal of Don Vito Corleone, a Mafia chieftain, is superb.

Al Pacino, a newcomer from the off-Broadway ranks, plays Don Corleone's youngest son and eventual heir to the family business. Pacino's character transformation from a clean-cut war hero into a tough hood is both subtle and convincing.

"The Godfather" is centered around a gang-land war between the Corleone's and various other mob families. Though there is a great deal of blood in many scenes the violence seems only to add a necessary touch of realism.

The movie's only weak spot is its musical score. Though the story provides plenty of working room for an ambitious composer, the soundtrack leaves a good deal to be desired. Due to the film's ever, this weakness goes virtually unnoticed. The one musical brightspot is the "love theme" song at the wedding ceremony.

"The Godfather" explodes on the screen with all the reckless flare of Eliot Ness, the Capone Gang, and the days of prohibition. The script, screenplay, costuming, and direction are all magnificent. The movie is filled to the brim with a realism that shouldn't be missed.

ENGLISH COMEDY....."Seems Unfunny"

A Review By Spence Foscue

The outlandishness of British public schools and their profusion of bureaucracy is conservatively but humorously treated in "The Happiest Days of Your Life," a 1950 comedy film.

English comedy, in many ways, seems unfunny beside our American brand of slapstick prankishness. Frank Launder takes a perfect comedy situation and sets it in tune with the unemotional British way of life.

A girls' school, through the bumbling of the Ministry of Education, is assigned to an all-boys college. The situation is chaotic, especially when the governors from another school, expecting to find only boys, visit at the same time as some of the girls' parents.

Launder's handling of the plot, making it thicken and finally bringing it to the breaking point, is well done. Yet the still maintains its British style with the co-tors, including Margaret Rutherford, their usual unemotional and utterly "British" selves.

"The Case of the Mukkinese Battle Horn," unlike "The Happiest Days of Your Life," ignores conservatism and relies on slapstick and foolishness.

Idiotcy reigns supreme in this spoof of a British mystery film, a classic Peter Sellers detective yarn.

As usual, Sellers portrays the bungling inspector, this time on the trail of international Mukkinese Battle Horn smugglers. The inanity of this film often reaches unbearable moments as Sellers switches from character to morose character.

The film's short length is a blessing in disguise since more of this madcap nonsense would have driven any ordinary person literally up the wall. Since this film, Sellers has toned down his "inspector" roles, but many of his original traits are still with him.

In Thoroughly Enjoyable Musical Evening

Harsanyi Conducts Piedmont Orchestra

A Review By Ben Clayton

That feeling of excitement and exhilaration that comes with hearing a live musical concert took on new meaning April 11 as Nicholas Harsanyi conducted his Piedmont Chamber Orchestra in the final program of the 71-72 University Music Series.

Appearing at the Sarah Graham Kenan Auditorium on UNC-W campus, the 25-piece orchestra was well unified and demonstrated a noteworthy balance of component sections. The superlative not only the musical excellence of individual members, but the powerful professionalism of the conductor himself.

Harsanyi's enchantment with music and conducting was evident as he bounced happily and swayed furiously to extract just the mood he wanted from his musicians. Holding an expressive, trembling hand close to his round face that was masked by a suffering look, he would wring the last drop of beauty from every musical passage.

Schubert's Symphony No. 5 in B Flat Major was the first on the program. Typical of the standard four-movement symphony, this number, particularly the 4th Movement, demanded racing violin technique, and the orchestra's string section responded with a well-fused, high-quality performance.

Concerto in D Major (Boccherini) followed with cello soloist Marion Davies. The stage was rearranged to accommodate the traditional Concerto setting, with Miss Davies seated on a raised platform in front of the orchestra in a semi-circle. Without score, the attractive soloist sailed through the most difficult passages with elegant grace, despite the awkwardness of the instrument.

Disappointment for most of the audience followed intermission, disappointment, not with the orchestra because they played with uncommon skill, but with the unfortunate inclusion of a "Scherzi Musicale" by Ulysses Kay, a contemporary composer. While some modern music is understandable and digestible, this particular number should logically be assigned for use as soundtrack music for a horror movie. It was a mad jumble of discords; it was complete and utter dissonance. For the average listener, there was no really detectable form or development to any of the five sections. The audience waited. They waited for that moment when the music would smooth out and evolve into some discernible melody. But the audience waited in vain.

No program notes were included to clue the audience as to just what composer Kay had in mind when he wrote these selections. But if he intended to shock his listeners, if he intended to rip into the listener's nerves and tease the exposed raw ends, then success crowned that effort. But those who went to the concert seeking beauty were sorely disappointed in Part III of the program. The audience, as a whole, indicated a general disapproval of the numbers by responding with a merely polite but perfunctory applause in place of their otherwise generous, enthusiastic response.

Everything turned out all right, though, because Harsanyi and his master musicians gallily romped through Five Old French Dances (Marius-Cooley) to conclude the four-part program. It was refreshing to hear once more a tuneful melody and the contrast with the preceding selections made one quite aware of the versatility of musical instruments which can switch so suddenly from the grotesque to the beautiful.

The final group of five French dances was a redemption. And the audience showed its approval with resounding applause, bringing Conductor Harsanyi back for several curtain calls.

For an encore, the orchestra presented the sinfonia from Bach's Cantata No. 29, featuring a string sextet which stood throughout the number, backed by the remaining pieces. The swift, complex work climaxed a thoroughly enjoyable musical evening.

A MATTER OF TIME

LES HEWLETT

Perhaps it was Ra, or the Midnight Skulker, or Father Time. Regardless of who was responsible, time was changed at UNC-W recently. Quite mysteriously, the sundial located in front of Kenan Hall was adjusted to its correct position for the first time in the five years of its existence on campus.

After being donated to Wilmington College by the Class of 1967, the solar "clock" was mounted with its rod turned toward Kenan Hall rather than to the north - the proper direction.

The result, of course, was the incorrect time.

Although sundials cannot be expected to be as precise as an atomic clock, they are usually correct within a few minutes.

The dial, even after being adjusted in the right direction, is still slightly erroneous. This may be due, however, to the angle the rod makes with the face of the clock.

Now, at least, students can no longer use the sundial's incorrectness as an excuse for missing classes altogether.

If the phantom timekeeper can be persuaded to make one more adjustment, we may yet have the correct time available to us from the sundial. Otherwise, we may rely on a clock which does not work at all. At least it will be right twice a day.

How Dave Barker is bridging the post-college financial gap. With Super Start.

"Believe me. It wasn't easy there at first to get started," says David L. Barker, Class of '71 UNC-CH School of Pharmacy. Dave has a family and a good job. And the extra expenses of getting established in his new town. Then the car they had driven in college started to clunk out. That's when Dave had more expenses than cash. But Dave was lucky. The very year he graduated, First-Citizens Bank invented Super Start for people just like him. So Dave got his new car. No hassle, and a preferred rate loan with a delayed payment option.

Graduating students from four years of college, post graduate or professional school can qualify for Super Start.

Also, be a student in good standing with a C or higher average. And be of legal age with definite plans to live and work in North Carolina after college.

Ask about Super Start at any of the 164 offices of First-Citizens Bank in North Carolina.

We serve 67 towns from the mountains to the coast. There is a Super Start Officer in each office of First-Citizens Bank. See any of our Super Start Officers.

Another Can Do first. Exclusively at First-Citizens Bank.

Free banking services and a loan at a preferred rate with delayed payment option are included in this unique package of banking services.

Super Start offers ● free checking service with no service charge for one year ● 200 free personalized checks ● free safe deposit box for one year.

Super Start offers you a line of credit ● a preferred rate installment loan for a new or used car or other major purchase with no payments due for the first six months ● a Master Charge credit card with no payments due for the first six months. Finance charges do accrue, however, during these six months' periods.

First-Citizens. The Can Do Bank.

Member F.D.I.C. © First-Citizens Bank & Trust Company 1972

ABSENTEE BALLOTS AVAILABLE FOR PRIMARY ELECTIONS

1972 will be the first year absentee ballots will be available for primary elections. To obtain an absentee ballot for the May 6, 1972 primary election you must:

1) Be registered to vote
2) Be affiliated with a party (Democrat, Republican, or American Independent)
3) Expect to be out of the county in which you are registered to vote during the entire time the polls are open on primary day

4) Request an application for an absentee ballot. This request must be sent by mail to the board of elections in the county in which you are registered to vote

IT MAY NOT BE SENT BEFORE APRIL 1, 1972.
IT MAY NOT BE RECEIVED

BY THE ELECTION BOARD AFTER MAY 2, 1972

5) Your election board will then send you an Official Application. This must be returned by mail.

6) Your election board will then meet and send you an Absentee Ballot

7) After voting the ballot you must then have it notarized, then mail the ballot back to your local election board. The ballot must be received by the board Earlier than Noon, May 3, 1972
8) Free Notary service will be available all this week Contact Liz Buffington in the SGA Office (791-8055) or at home (762-7235)

The SEAHAWK urges all eligible voters who will not be home on May 6th to take advantage of the absentee ballot.

Request Cards are available in the Student Store and the SGA Office.

Mr. Chairman:

I request an absentee ballot for the May 6 primary, as [] I will be absent from the county on primary day.

[] Illness will prevent my going to the polls.

(check one).

I am a registered: Democrat Republican American party member (circle one).

Full Legal Name _____

Address at which registered _____ precinct (if known) _____

Address to which ballot should be mailed: _____

Date _____ Signature _____

SAMPLES OF REQUEST FOR ABSENTEE BALLOT, FRONT AND BACK

from _____

6c stamp here

Chairman, _____ County

Board of Elections

(county seat, your county)

North Carolina

(zip code)

FINANCE COMMITTEE DISCUSSES BUDGET RECOMMENDATIONS

The SGA Finance Committee met Thursday to discuss the 72-73 budget.

Recommendations were submitted by SGA President Bill Brooks, Jr. to the committee which is composed of representatives of both the student senate and representatives appointed by Brooks.

Most of Brooks' proposals were based on hearings held by his Budget Advisory Committee. This committee was in essence a conference of all organizations funded by student funds.

Publications received almost half of the entire SGA allocation, Brooks recommended that the ATLANTIS be allocated $2,800, however, this was based on an estimated print order of $1,500 copies for two issues. One Committee member said that he felt that at least 50% of the students will not care one way or another about the magazine, "myself included", he said. It was decided to ask the Atlantis staff for a new estimate, based on $1,000 copies for both one large edition as well as the bi-semester plan originally scheduled.

The other publications' requests were accepted as recommended by Brooks; the Fledgling Yearbook, $10,000; the SEAHAWK, $36,000; the SEAHAWK, $3,600; telephone directory, $400; student handbook, $500. The total allocation for publications was $17,500, subject to change by a new Atlantis estimate.

Fine Arts Committee budget was split into three sections.

The University Music Series was allocated $2,800, as Brooks requested. However, the Popular Film Series was cut $1,000 from $4,500 to $3,500. Most members expressed the thought that they would rather see a few "real good films" than a lot of ones they had never heard of or were about five years old. The lecture series received $3,000.

The UNC-W debate team received $2,800, University Drama - $1,000.

Under entertainment, the concert committee received $1,000 to go with the $5,000 surplus from this year. The dance committee received $1,500, SGA Operations - $1,130.

After the finance committee completes their recommendations, the senate must approve their findings.

SOME GRAD SCHOOLS ARE MORE CHALLENGING THAN OTHERS.

It's graduation day and there you stand... diploma in hand and future in doubt. You could go on to graduate school. Or you could look for a job in today's ever-tightening job market. Or, you could put your education to work immediately by applying for the Air Force's Officer Training School program.

Upon qualification, you'll find yourself beginning 12 weeks of specialized study designed to prepare you for the challenge and responsibilities of an officer's commission. And, give you the chance to go on to flight school to earn those famous silver wings as an Air Force pilot or navigator.

OTS is your chance to break away from the crowd and be recognized. For all the facts, mail in the coupon. Or, call 800-631-1972 toll free!

Remember, with an Air Force future, the sky's no limit. * In New Jersey call 800-962-2803.

US AIR FORCE RECRUITING SERVICE DIRECTORATE OF ADVERTISING (RSAV)
RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE
TEXAS 78148

Please send me more information on Air Force OTS.

Name _____

Address _____

Date of Birth _____ Sex _____

City _____ County _____

State _____ Zip _____

Date of Graduation _____ School _____

I understand there is no obligation.

Find yourself in the Air Force.

Remember when water was clean and sex was dirty?

GUILDORD COLLEGE IS REPRESENTATIVE

FOR STUDENT INTERNATIONAL ID CARDS

Greensboro, N.C.--Gulford College in Greensboro, N.C., is the sole representative in Southeast United States for making International Identification Cards available to full-time college students with valid U.S. passports for European travel.

The International I.D. Cards which entitle the holder to numerous discounts in Europe, may be obtained for $2 from The Overseas Study Program, Gulford College, Greensboro, N.C. 27410.

Claude Shotts, Overseas Study director, said the cards bring discounts in Europe at theaters and concert halls, in shops and museums, at student restaurants, for charter flights in Europe and for train and bus transportation.

"Student charter flights which have been successfully operated for a number of years represent an excellent bargain by which students can save up to two-thirds of the equivalent commercial flight fares within Europe," Shotts said.

At present, Gulford College's Overseas Study Program is organizing its 15th annual Seminar Abroad to Europe and summer school sessions in London and Athens. There are some openings for students from other colleges.

The Seminar Abroad is a 64-day visit to 14 major cities in 11 countries to learn about the people, their culture, way of life and political and economic systems as well as to visit museums, art galleries and points of cultural and historic interest.

Cities include Paris, Amsterdam, Vienna, Bern, Wengen, Florence, Rome, Athens, Beirut, Moscow, Leningrad, Berlin, Copenhagen and London. The full cost from New York and back to New York is $1,775. Dates are June 12 through Aug. 16.

Summer school in Athens will provide one week in Paris, five weeks in London and three weeks of free time. Summer school in Athens provides a day of sightseeing in Paris, one week of study in Rome, five weeks of study in Athens and three weeks of free time.

Each summer session lasts from June 14 through Aug. 13, and each costs $850.

Additional information is available through the Overseas Study Program at Gulford College.

ASPIRING JOURNALISTS TREATED TO DETAILS OF SPORTSWRITING

Members of Dr. James Collier's class of beginner Journalists were treated to a detailed account of the "Ups, Downs, and Rounds of sportswriting when Harold Sterling presided as guest speaker on Friday, March 24.

Sterling, a sportswriter for Star News Newspapers and a full-time student at UNC-W, began his talk with a brief summary of his background. He explained that even though he originally wanted a job as a news reporter, the only opening available was in the sports department.

"I knew absolutely nothing about sports at that time," Sterling said, "but I guess everyone has to start somewhere."

He went on to relate humorous accounts of his first attempts to cover sports events.

Speaking seriously, Sterling said his most noteworthy accomplishment thus far was a feature article concerning bowling classes for retarded children.

In a question-and-answer period following the talk, Sterling was asked to elaborate on the advantages, if any, of being a sportswriter. "One definite advantage," he said, "is that through working in the sports department you learn all aspects of newspaper work. The sports page is published like a newspaper within a newspaper. To work in sports, one must become familiar with other phases of newspaper work such as newspaper layouts and headline writing."

He went on to explain that leads or opening sentences were difficult for the sportswriter.

"In sports writing, you are restricted to facts and there is very little room for creativity," he said.

Sterling, a political science major, concluded his discussion by saying that he would like to remain in sportswriting until he could "really master it." "Only then," he said, "will I be interested in moving into another area."

HAROLD STERLING

DEBATE TEAM BLISTERS PEMBROKE STATE APRIL 14

The debate team defeated Pembroke State in a two-round practice tournament April 14.

Representing UNC-W were Keith Hales, Lee Hoffman, Janice Asbell, and Patti McCombie.

After the matches, both teams with coaches discussed methods for improving debate.

UNC-W's final tournament of the year will be at Catawba College April 21-22.

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

WANTED: Apartment for the summer at College Manor. Married couple, ages 21 and 25. Will negotiate price. Call 763-5487 on MWF - 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Ask for Phyllis.

FOR SALE: Bean Bag Chairs of different sizes and prices. Contact Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, 4216 Market Street or call 763-9179

UNC-W STUDENTS TO SPONSOR EXPLO '72 TRIP

Arrangements are being made to support a bus of UNC-W students to attend EXPLOR '72 in Dallas, Tex., June 12-17. Interested persons should contact Dickie Miller or Bill Brooks at the SGA Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

(ed. note: The following is a press release furnished for those who wish elaboration)

"People have tried everything else...now, by elimination, they're coming back to God. The hope for our nation and the world rests in a great spiritual awakening."

So recently said Dr. Bill Bright, who foresees one, explo '72, a Campus Crusade for Christ International project, will take place in Dallas June 12-17, and will involve attendance figures that would terrify a Rose Bowl promoter. The conference, called officially "The International Student Congress on Evangelism" will launch into a strategy to train 500,000 people during 1972 for a spiritual explosion across America and around the world," according to Bright. Approximately one thousand students from N.C. will be Asheville, Durham, and Raleigh, as well as many other towns.

A site the size of the Cotton Bowl will be used to accommodate the crusaders and will be televised nationwide. Throughout the big week, morning sessions will train the multitudes in how to experience the abundant life in Christ and how to share that life with others.

The finale of the Congress will be a rally in a natural amphitheatre that is expected to draw one quarter-million of the faithful, surely one of the largest gatherings of Christians in history. Students and laymen from throughout the U.S. and many foreign countries will attend.

RE-ELECT SENATOR

B. Everett Jordan

R
E
E
L
E
C
T

J
O
R
D
A
N

Senator Jordan has long supported the effort to end our involvement in the war in drained away, our national strength...the country is eviscerated...respect for law and order has given way to violence, thousands of young people have brought home

AGRICULTURE

COUNTS

Senator Jordan introduced and led the fight for acreage-pollage legislation which is hailed as having saved the tobacco program; he was the leading figure in passage of the law which established the one-price cotton system benefiting cotton growers as well as the cotton textile industry; and he pushed through legislation improving seed quality, peanut marketing, and tightening the Wholesome Meat Act, all benefitting the ultimate consumer as well as those directly concerned. He works closely with producers of Irish potatoes, and other crops, as well as with all the states vigorous farmers organizations in helping develop sound federal legislation without which there would be chaos in the farm economy.

EDUCATION

COUNTS

Senator Jordan has shown his dedication to the cause of education by his support of every bill which has come before the Senate providing a better educational facilities and opportunities. These include benefits to schools and students at the prime area, secondary and college and university levels. They include the expansion of the school lunch program; the growth of vocational education; and the college student loan and work study programs.

Senator Jordan believes that equal educational opportunities must be provided for all students without regard to their racial or economic status, and has worked unflinchingly to help make this dream a reality.

from Vietnam the deadly heroin habit...to join with tens of thousands more at home addicted to this and other dangerous drugs....We have used our God-given resources for destruction...without even hoping to win a military victory while allowing our cities to decay and our institutions wither for want of adequate support. We have spent ourselves into a raging inflation with ever increasing prices for the necessities of life accompanied by ominously growing unemployment and the highest interest rates of this century." The Senatos has often spoken out against federal spending patterns which deny funds for such domestic needs as education, health, and housing programs but provide vast sums for foreign countries, and has stressed the urgency of revising our national priorities.

EXPERIENCE

COUNTS

On Primary Day Everett Jordan will begin his 15th year as a United States Senator. He stands 19 in rank among Senate Democrats and in the upper one-third of all Senators.

Congress does most of it's work in its committees. Senator Jordan is the only North Carolinian in either House who is Chairman of a full committee. He also alternates as chairman of two joint congressional committees and serves as chairman of five key Senate sub-committees. In fact, no other Senator or Congressman holds as many chairmanships as Senator Jordan.

These responsibilities offer an experienced Senator ever-increasing opportunity for effective service to his state and nation.

INDUSTRY

COUNTS

Senator Jordan has many times identified water as the principle key to industrial growth, and in 1966 he said that "We need to do today with water what we did with electric and telephone service in our state 30 years ago." He called for networks of county-wide and area-wide interconnecting water systems noting that future development would follow the water lines. The year before that he had helped enact the law which provides federal assistance for rural water and sewer systems such as the ones now operating in Anson and Davidson counties.

He sees good highways as another key to progress, including improved interstate highways and as a ranking member of the Sub-committee on Roads he has pushed for provision of a modern and safe highway network in North Carolina and the nation.

Re-elect Senator

B. Everett Jordan

Democratic Primary May 6

Says Decision Group

"Our World Is Crowded"

"Our Crowded World" was the topic for discussion at the final Great Decisions' ...1972 forum held March 23 in Randall Library's special collections room.

Problems of an ever-increasing population and methods to curb the high birth rates in some countries were discussed by the group, headed by Dr. Richard Paulsen.

Although the U.S. has a relatively low birth rate, some participants in the meeting voiced the opinion that we should "clean our own house first" before exercising controls over foreign governments.

It was noted that while population controls seem to have had an effect in China and Japan they have not done so in India and other troubled countries.

Culture and religion were cited as two of the reasons for the overpopulation of some foreign nations.

Most of the "problem" countries are primarily agrarian. Consequently, the people desire large families to provide more farm labor. Oftentimes, the predominant religion of a country contributes to the problem by prohibiting the use of any birth controls.

While some people believe

Zero Population Growth (ZPG) is the ultimate answer, others, particularly the minorities who believe the project is aimed at them, regard it as dictatorial.

Although no clear-cut answers to the problem were brought forth, everyone left the discussion with a broader view of the situation—which is exactly the goal of the Great Decisions program.

The local forums were sponsored by the UNC-CH Extension Division. Great Decisions is a nonpartisan discussion program of the Foreign Policy Association.

Interesting fare winds up drama students year

(ed. note: Reprinted by permission of Wilmington Morning Star, April 22, 1972.)

By SARALINDAU
Entertainment Editor

The annual UNC-W student productions opened Friday night at Kenan Hall for a three night run.

"Studio '72", which is directed and performed primarily by students as a traditional finale to the university drama season, consists this year of four one act plays.

First and third were actually the same plays, a pantomimic study of frustration written by Samuel Beckett. The same roles were played by Marty Hopkins and Doc Clay. Props included several large blocks, a bottle marked "water" and a tree limb, all of which were lowered and raised as the silent character tried to reach untie knots and perform other frustrating activities.

Miss Hopkins performed first, with direct lights and casual clothes, and Clay did it with all the assets the theater has to give: white face make up, black costume, light tricks. With all these advantages and expressive use of his body, Clay's performance of this pantomime was particularly effective.

Oddly enough, to me the Beckett portion was the least all around satisfying, perhaps because by now his stance of expressing modern man's frustration and powerlessness is classic and stated so often as to be stale. But at the same time, the devices and action under the direction of Cathy Medlin were fine.

"A Horse on You" by Ken Rene D'Aubour, was the second selection. D'Aubour is a UNC-W Drama student, and he has written a diverting, if fantastic version of creation.

Use of lights effectively sets the stage for the wild situation, with flashes and pops showing a spaceship crash. The men in the ship, it seems, lose their pills by which they rejuvenate themselves, and a racial memory stirs them to turn one of their number into a woman they have secretly hungered for.

Most of the action takes place after this event, and a good deal of it consists of the men nosing around the woman who insists she is really John Essex, the member of the craft who was changed a la Myron Breckinridge.

At any rate, the Garden of Eden, Snake, Eve, Adam (part horse) and the old routine comes about.

Directed by Tim Wesner, this play contains some divertingly humorous touches involving Kathleen Fitzgibbon (who plays the archetype of the female to a 't'). Others in the cast, particularly Steve Vallender Adam, and Marty Hopkins (the snake), did an entertaining job, with a deft, sprightly style.

Last of all was "Something for Joe", by a college professor, Robert Versteeg of Lewisburg College. Directed and acted in by Sam Swett, this is a retrospective look at the phenomenon of JFK. A crew of applecheeked, enthusiastic sailors (one of whom plays John-John) happily extol all the hero-worship of JFK, while a cynic, (Sam Swett) nates the more negative attitudes that have attacked the Kennedy mystique since his death.

Swett does an effective job as the commentator-cynic in a story that goes into detail of JFK's career. Terry Holley as JFK is the proper broad shouldered, clean cut paragon, and the action again is precise and apparently well-rehearsed. Another plus the whole night through is the lighting, by Brent Scott, Terry Holley.

Curtain for the plays are at 8 p.m. nightly through Sunday. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

STAR-NEWS JOURNALIST TALKS TO J-CLASS

Combining wit and humor along with some serious journalism, C.S. Crawford, of Star - News Newspapers, spoke to Dr. Collier's journalism class last Monday. Crawford explained his beginnings in the journalism field by telling the class how he had served in the Marine Corps 21 years and had suffered many frustrations while in Korea. He felt he had something to say and people to say it to. So he enrolled in the Famous Writers Correspondence Course, which he completed in only 2 of the usual three years.

Just before retiring from the Marine Corps, Crawford brought his work to Star-News and was given a job writing obituaries. He told how, after three days on the job, he wrote up a Standard of Operation Procedure on how he thought obituaries should be and presented it to the editor, who agreed ed it.

"The greatest thrill in a long, long time" was when Crawford received his first front-page by-line on a robbery he had stumbled across in Kenansville.

Crawford then got down to serious journalism and explained to the class the inverted pyramid and its purpose. He then told the class about lead paragraphs and places to find news.

He warned the students not to become stereotyped on writing on only one subject, but to get involved with all types of news.

In conclusion, Crawford encouraged reporting as a profession. He said, "It's a terrific feeling—a great way to make a living."

Dr. Collier's journalism class features a variety of journalists as guest speakers. C.S. Crawford proved that a journalist could be diversified in his interests and versatile in his approach.

LORETTA LYNN

ANTHONY ARMSTRONG JONES

Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty Headline Country Show

Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty are slated to headline "Country Spotlight No. 1" Friday, April 28, at UNC-W's Hanover Hall. Reserved tickets for the two shows, one at 7 p.m., one at 9 p.m., are being sold for $5, $4, and $3. Special guest for the show will be young, talented Anthony Armstrong Jones, who makes big music to match his big name.

Mrs. Lynn, married at age 14 to miner and war veteran "Mooney" Lynn, got her first exposure to performing by singing her children to sleep. When her husband suggested she might be good enough to take up singing, she got some books and taught herself to play the guitar. Her first song, "And Now I'm a Honky Tonk Girl," was her first hit, becoming one of the country's top ten records. And Loretta has had consistent hits ever since. Appearing with her will be The Coalminers.

Conway Twitty's Success and fame as a country artist has grown with each of his hits such as "Image of Me," "Love You More Today," and "How Much More Can She Stand." His personal appearance schedule is one of the busiest of Country Music stars, and he and the Twitty Birds play nearly 250 personal appearances throughout U.S., Canada, and the rest of the world. Once again he and the Twitty Birds will appear this time at Hanover Hall.

The Country Spotlight No. 1, sponsored jointly by The John T. Hoggard High School Band Boosters Club and the Ogden Volunteer Rescue Squad, will also feature Randy and Sandy Burnett and Kenny Starr.

Tickets may be purchased in Wilmington from all locations of Henriksen's Pharmacy, Kings Department Store, McGrath's Music Store, and Thompson's Restaurant; in Burgaw from Dee's Drugs; in Holly Ridge from Boomtown Grocery; and from any Hoggard band booster or Ogden Volunteer Rescue Squad member.

CONWAY TWITTY

STUDENTS ! LET'S ALL HAVE A "PICK-NICK" WITH NICK

FREE DRINKS!

FREE HOT DOGS!

NICK for the SENATE

NICK for the SENATE

NICK GALIFIANAKIS

The Young People's Candidate
NICK WANTS TO TALK TO YOU

See You At Hugh McRae Park 6:00 P. M. May 2

Sports

Seahawks dump Lynchburg, 3-1

Hawks drop net match

FLORENCE, S.C.—The University of North Carolina at Wilmington's Seahawks were defeated by Francis Marion College 7-2 here Friday in intercollegiate tennis.

The Seahawks are now 3-8 for the season and will travel to Laurinburg Tuesday for their next match.

Results of the single matches were: Dawson (UNC-W) defeated Witherspoon 6-3, 6-1. Brooks (UNC-W) was defeated by Gray 6-1, 6-4. Miller (UNC-

W) was defeated by Barringer 8-6, 3-6, 6-3. Arnette (UNC-W) was defeated by White 6-0, 6-0. Barschik (UNC-W) was defeated by Murrell 6-4, 6-2. Shaw (UNC-W) was defeated by Oran 6-3, 6-1.

In the doubles Dawson and Miller defeated Witherspoon and Barringer 7-5, 6-2. Brooks and Arnette (UNC-W) were defeated by Gray and White 6-1, 6-3. Barschik and Shaw (UNC-W) were defeated by Murrell and Oran 3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

LYNCHBURG — The Seahawks of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington coasted to their sixth NAIA District 29 baseball win here Friday afternoon by defeating Lynchburg College 3-1.

The Seahawks are currently undefeated in District 29 play and boast a 20-5 overall record for the season. The UNC-W squad continues on the road stopping at Hampton on Saturday in a 1:30 P.M. contest before journeying to Petersburg on Sunday for an afternoon contest with Virginia State College.

The Seahawks return to Brooks Field Monday in a return match with Lynchburg. With one out in the top of the fourth inning, singles by Alan Smith and Dave Sandlin placed the Seahawks in scoring position. A sacrifice fly by Gregg Dalton scored Smith and forced Sandlin out to give the Seahawks an early 1-0 lead.

The second run for the Seahawks came in when Smith scored on a base hit by Bruce Cavanaugh.

In the eighth inning Sandlin singled followed by a walk by Booth. Bill Warrmack connected for a single to load the bases. Eric Higgins walked to force in the third and final run for the Seahawks.

Eddie Booth went the distance for the Seahawks, striking out ten, walking two and giving up one run.

UNC-W	ab	r	h	er	bb	so
Edgerton, cf	4	0	1	0	0	0
Cavanaugh, c	4	1	1	0	0	0
B. Smith, rf	3	1	1	0	0	0
Sandlin, lf	5	0	3	1	0	0
Dalton, 3b	3	1	0	1	0	0
Booth, p	3	1	0	1	0	0
Hutchinson, ss	4	0	1	0	0	0
Womack, lb	3	0	2	0	0	0
Higgins, 2b	1	0	0	1	0	0
TOTALS	30	3	9	3	0	0
Lynchburg	ab	r	h	er	bb	so
Noon, 3b	2	0	1	0	0	0
Goodman, 2b	4	0	0	0	0	0
Gaff, cf	4	1	0	0	0	0
Godsey, lb	4	0	0	0	0	0
Leonard, ss	4	0	1	0	0	0
Massey, lf	4	0	1	0	0	0
Foley, c	3	0	0	0	0	0
Williams, rf	3	0	0	0	0	0
Phillips, p	2	0	0	0	0	0
White, c	1	0	0	0	0	0
TOTALS	31	1	2	1	0	0
UNC-W	0	0	0	1	0	1
Lynchburg	0	0	0	0	0	0
E. Higgins, Foley, Godsey, 2B:	0	0	0	0	0	0
Womack, Massey, 3B: Booth, 1B:	0	0	0	0	0	0
W 8, Lynchburg 5.	lp	h	r	er	bb	so
Booth (w)	9	3	1	0	2	0
Phillips	6	1	3	0	2	1
White	12	3	1	1	2	0
Carter	1	0	0	0	1	0

ECU wins golf meet, tops Hawks

GREENVILLE — The University of East Carolina golf team defeated the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, 14-4, in a match here Thursday.

The loss left the Seahawks with a 9-6 record for the season. UNC-W resumes action Tuesday at Laurinburg with St. Andrews.

Ed Pinnix, of ECU, was medalist for the round with an even par 72.

Seahawk scores included Austin Overby with a 74, Jim Crawford with a 78, Bern Coulter with a 79, Jim Bedworth with an 81, Kenny Long with an 86, and Allen French with a 91.

Friday to Continue As System President

Consolidated University President William C. Friday will become the first President of the new 16-campus University of North Carolina System when it becomes an official reality on July 1.

His unanimous election was carried out by the 34-member Board of Governors, acting as a planning committee until June 30, at its monthly meeting in Greensboro on March 17.

Mr. Friday, previously Secretary and Acting President of the University, has held his present office since succeeding Gordon Gray in 1956. On his election he expressed his gratitude and said "There are great opportunities here, but one of the major tasks is going to be redefinition of institutional function and putting these things together in a well-ordered system of higher education."

At this same meeting the governors also reached agreement on a code for the new system, under which the President will have strong executive powers.

The $1.2 million general administrative offices of the consolidated University in Chapel Hill, completed last year, were selected as headquarters for the new system for at least the first three years.

TENNIS SCHEDULE

April 29 (Sat.) at St. Andrews College
April 29 (Sat.) at home Campbell College

May 12 & 13 (Fri. & Sat., NAIA Dist. 29 Tournament

BASEBALL SCHEDULE

April 24, Mon. at Campbell College
April 25, Tues. at home St. Andrews College
April 26, Wed. " Atlantic Christian College
April 28, Fri. " Methodist College
April 29, Sat. " S.C. Baptist College

May 1, Mon. at Atlantic Christian College
May 5, Fri. at Pembroke State University
May 6, Sat. at home East Carolina University
May 11, 12, 13 NAIA Dist. 29 Tournament

GOLF SCHEDULE

April 25 (Tues.) St. Andrews College
April 25 (Tues.) at St. Andrews College
April 28 (Fri.) at Campbell College
May 1 (Mon.) at home Pembroke State University
May 8 & 9 Mon. & Tues NAIA Dist. 29 Tournament

Powles Can Conduct World Tour-At Home

By: WANDA GURGANUS

A tour of the world could be taken at the home of Dr. Marie A. Powles. She and her husband, Edward Powles, make excellent guides as they have traveled around the world and collected marine and other types of antiques.

Originally from England, Dr. Powles is a UNC-W English professor. She received her Ph. D. in English with a concentration in Renaissance Literature from Wayne State University in Michigan.

Mr. Edward Powles, a retired Royal Air Force Officer, was commander of the last Spitfire Squadron in Singapore. After retiring they went to Japan where Mr. Powles worked for ANSCO, a film industry. Now he is a real estate counselor in Wilmington.

The interest in antiques probably derived from their travels around the world. Also, they are both fond of music and art.

Many of their marine antiques are ship models. Two of the models are quite old and very colorful. One about 200 years old, is from Italy and the other is a model of "a beautiful, ancient Greek ship" which is approximately 150 years old. Another ship model is The Eagle. This is a 1774 French ship made of bone by French prisoners. The H.M.S. Lyme is made similar to The Eagle. This is a 1740 model which came from Scotland. But the H.M.S. Lyme is about twice the size of The Eagle. The next model the Powles have on display at their home is the Flying Cloud, a U.S. Clipper Ship built by Donald McKay at East Boston. This was the largest merchant ship afloat when launched on April 15, 1851. The last model which was just been repaired is the Wanderer. "This is one of my favorites," Dr. Powles goes on to explain why, "... it is similar to the ship used for whaling in Moby Dick."

Another antique model of a sailing ship prized highly by the Powles.

They own other marine antiques like a whaling harpoon, a carved wooden statue of a sailor, an atmospheric clock that Dr. Powles claims to be the "best timepiece" in their home, two barometers, and a picture of a sailing vessel signed by G. Powles. Dr. Powles told that G. Powles happens to be the initials of her father-in-law.

Dr. Powles points to intricate rigging on model of an ancient sailing ship.

They also have Maps of Wales, England and Britain. One of these dates back to 1610. The Powles know that some of these maps are original because of the "... press and water marks. The press marks indicate the type of press used to print the map ... And if the map is held up to light the water marks can be observed."

A visit to China can quickly be taken by looking at some of the Chinese antiques. A large hand-carved Chinese chair is located in one corner of the Dining Room. Next to catch your eye is a set of hand-carved horses portraying an ancient Chinese myth. Dr. Powles very interestingly goes on to tell that the horse has been stung by a bee. Each of the eight figurines show the different positions of a horse stung by a bee.

Many pictures can be found in Dr. Powles' home. Most of these have a symbolic meaning which Dr. Powles happily explains. One set is the Tree of Life and the Tree of Death. The Tree of Life consists of good fruit like prayer, mercy, honesty and affection. Beside the Tree of Life there stands an angel. But, on the other hand, the Tree of Death presents a skeleton, devil and a fire that is symbolic of evil and darkness. This tree is filled with such fruit as idleness, envy, anger and adultery.

One of Dr. Powles' favorite articles is a piece of mounted granite from London Bridge. She has a sentimental attachment to this article because, she says, "I have

Original Bone Ship Model made by French Prisoners of War during the Napoleonic Wars. Represents a French ship of the line "L'Aigle."

R-PARTY SEEKS YOUTH

(CPS)--In an attempt to offset talk that most young voters are affiliating with the Democratic Party, the Republican Party is attempting to attract many youths to their National Convention in San Diego this summer. Special events appealing to the under 30 crowd are being planned so that television coverage will show plenty of young faces at the convention.

LEANING TOWER TO LEAN LESS

(CPS)--A commission of 25 experts have found the leaning tower of Pisa gets leaner by exactly one millimeter a year. The government of Italy has set aside $5.5 million to stop the slow fall of the tower--not to set it upright, but to stabilize it at its optimal 4.4 meters off center.

Travelers Are Antique Collectors

Bone Ship Model of H.M.S. Lyme built on the Thames in 1745.

walked across London Bridge many times."

Mr. Powles has worked on some of the antiques, such as the mid-nineteenth century stick barometer that is characterized by the beautiful Victorian carving at its base. Another prized possession that he has revived is a century old clock he found in Connecticut.

Another fascinating and valuable collection is Dr. Powles' library. Many of the books are antiques and have very unusual backgrounds.

She has an American nineteenth century ten cent classic of King Lear. This book is very valuable because the Preface is written by Herbert A. Evans. A 1637 book titled History of the Moderne Protestant Divines brings a person's attention to the page numbering. Normal numbering, like 1, 2 3 etc., appears at the page top. But at the bottom there is the old type of numbering, such as A1, A2, A3 and so on. Her favorites are two volumes that they found in Hereford, England. These are titled Select Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher dated 1786. Ovid's Metamorphosis Englished Mythologiz'd and Represented in figures by G.S. is prized because of the workmanship. In this work George Sandys, the author, and Clein, the artist, were the first to combine talents to publish a book. All the pictures are allegorical. The most valuable work is done in the third book.

Dr. Powles displays one of their antique barometers.

Alongside Dr. Powles' rare collection of books there is a wooden carved bust of Shakespeare which was found in America. This statue represents her enthusiasm for Shakespeare as does her teaching of the Shakespearean course at the university.

"Not all our antiques are displayed in this house because it is smaller than our previous one," Dr. Powles comments. The Powles hope to build a Marine Room especially for the display of their beautiful antiques.

The Powles are very fond of cats. They own two Siamese cats that are named Percy, short for Sir Henry Hotspur Percy, and Kappa.

In one center of the den you can find a carved Indian statue which is about a hundred years old. On the statue there lays a water pistol. Dr. Powles says, "The pistol is for Percy when he misbehaves. All we have to do is show it to him."

The Powles have lived and visited various places around the world. Some of the localities are Singapore, Hong Kong, Japan, Middle East, Germany, Holland, France, England, Penang which is located in the North West Federation of Malay and Majorca which is in Spain.

Through traveling, Dr. Powles has led a very exciting life. She has been a television announcer, set up a nursery school, and done portrait painting. In her work in Japan she learned to read, write, and speak in Japanese. She also has a knowledge of Chinese, Arabic, Malay, German and French.

A near life-size statue of a wooden Indian.

Traveling is on the agenda of the Powles in the near future. They hope to go to England this summer and want to travel to Africa.

If you are interested in the Powles fascinating collections you may see them in the next couple of months. Miss Hagan, the librarian at the UNC-W Library, has ask Dr. Powles to put on display her maps and her ancient books. If you have any curiosity or interest in her valuable collection keep your eyes on the display case at the library.

NO CRYING...

NO NOTHING

(CPS)--If the city of Des Plaines, Illinois, has its way, that town will probably be the quietest town in the country. They've just passed an ordinance that bans the following:

"...crying, calling or shouting, using a whistle, rattle, bell, gong, clapper, hammer, drum, horn, hand organ, mechanically operated piano, or other music device, radio, phonograph, sound amplifier or other similar electronic devices so as to destroy the peace of the neighborhood."

The nine page document, passed unanimously by the Council, also requires motorists on vehicles, except for buses, to be shut off while idle.

The ordinance carries fines of $15-$300 for a first offense and a jail term of up to six months for additional offenses.

Mantle in the Powles home contains an atmospheric clock (center) with horse in varying positions depicting its reaction to a bee sting. Above mantle is picture of sailing ship painted by G. Powles.

POLICE ACCIDENT RATE: TOO HIGH?

(CPS)--The Denver Police Department is fighting a serious traffic safety problem in that city--the Denver Police Department.

Last year Denver's Finest were involved in 489 accidents, which is a high accident rate considering they only have 458 cars.

LAWYER'S ASS'T

in only 3 months — $9,000 or more to start

College graduates and other qualified persons (male and female)—our instructors (all practicing lawyers) will train you to become a lawyer's assistant to perform paralegal services under a lawyer's direction and supervision (but not as a legal secretary—in fact, you too will use the services of a legal secretary). Attend classes days or evenings for only 3 months. Housing accommodations are available at an extra charge.

We will teach you practical, "how to" information and techniques on CORPORATIONS • SECURITIES REGULATION • LEGAL AND NON-LEGAL RESEARCH • DOMESTIC RELATIONS • LITIGATION AND TRIALS • MERGERS AND ACQUISITIONS • TRUSTS AND ESTATES • REAL ESTATE • PUBLIC AND PRIVATE FINANCING • and much, much more.

- Enter a new and exciting field and become involved
- Do interesting research, analysing, discussing and writing
- Earn a high salary starting at $9,000 or more per year
- Accept responsibility
- Perform and be treated as a paralegal specialist
- Associate with lawyers and their clients
- Increase your knowledge and potential
- Become a skilled and valuable part of the growing legal industry

SUMMER CLASSES ARE NOW FORMING; APPLY FOR ADMISSION RIGHT AWAY.

Call or write for FREE BOOKLET
NY (212)
TR 9-7500

PARALEGAL INSTITUTE, Dept. 13G
One Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10003

Name _____ Phone _____
Address _____ Apt _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

© 1972 by Paralegal Institute

Some of the time,
it won't make much difference
who's governor.
But for the times when it does, don't you want the best man for the job?

It's true, you know.

When you cut through the promises of politicians, it often won't make much difference whom you elect as North Carolina's governor.

It's a one-man, one-term job.

The next governor can promise to protect every job in the state . . . or clean every river . . . or make every school the best in the country . . . or cut your taxes in half.

But that's a lot different from doing.

Nobody knows this better than Pat Taylor. He's had seventeen years of experience in State government —as a legislator, as Speaker of the House, as Lieutenant Governor.

And because he knows what can't be done, Pat Taylor also knows what can be done. And how to get things done.

Like restoring public confidence and pride in our schools. Or getting better treatment for the victims of mental illness. Or leading the fight to keep our rural communities healthy and to protect our cities from the disease of urban America.

Some of the time, it won't make that much difference who's governor. But for the times when it can make a difference, don't you want the best man for the job?

Taylor for Governor Committee
Hotel Sir Walter
P.O. Box 2508
Raleigh, North Carolina 27602
919-832-8836

It all adds up...

17 years of experience
+ a lifetime of integrity

= Pat Taylor.
Governor.

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XV NO. 1

"By students, for students."

EIGHT PAGES

UMS Schedules Series

Musical artists lined up for the new University Music Series season represent a variety of cultures and promise a varied musical experience for subscribers to the series.

Chairman of the Music Series Dr. Robert Melton said that largely through the voluntary participation of the student activities fund, a seven concert series will be presented with a limited number of 500 season tickets available to subscribers other than UNC-W students.

Dates for the membership drive are September 10-20. Season tickets of $10 represent a saving of over 50 percent compared to individual admission prices of $3 per concert, according to Melton.

Those who buy memberships can first look forward to series opener on October 10 by the Pearl Williams-Jones Soul Trio presenting a concert entitled, "Music of Black America."

Her programs consist of a blend of Afro-American spirituals, songs of peace and freedom, contemporary song themes of love and power, and Afro-American gospels. She and her trio were said to have received much acclaim at a recent concert managers' convocation in Chicago. The group has received classical training.

An Israeli piano, violin and cello trio comes next on November 28. The Yuval Trio consists of artists who have performed in Europe and the U. S. The Trio has performed for the Library of Congress recently, what Melton terms an unqualified success. The pianist, Jonathan Zak, teaches at Tel Aviv University and the violinist and cellist are with the Israel Philharmonic.

The action swings back to North Carolina artists on January 16, when Marvin Blickenstaff, who is Chairman of the UNC-Chapel Hill Piano Department, offers a concert. He will perform what Melton said is a rarely performed work by Samuel Barber.

Blickenstaff offered a concert in Wilmington during the Spring of 1972.

Addis and Crofut, whose nationalities were not stated, will give a folk concert on January 25. This duo is a Columbia Masterwork offering, and have reaped laudatory reviews from publications including the New York Times. Even more interestingly, Dave Brubeck has described their playing with 'infectious joy and enthusiasm,' according to information from Dr. Melton.

From Yugoslavia, an "internationally famous" string orchestra called I Solisti Di Zagreb will appear here on February 15.

This will be their tenth North American tour, under the auspices of impresario Sol Hurok. Their recordings are said to be classical best sellers, and their membership includes two complete string quartets, the Zagreb Quartet, and the Quartet of Radio Zagreb.

Action next comes from Italy, with The Quartetto Italiano coming to Wilmington to perform on April 12. After 25 years of playing together, the string quartet has reaped praise from critics the world over.

This group should be an excellent addition to the Azalea Festival activities.

Finally, Chapel Hill again comes through and provides UNC's Men's Glee Club for the final University Music Series concert, slated for April 28. Dr. Melton describes the group as "vastly improved over the past three years under the direction of Robert Porco," and in Wilmington will probably provide a program of choral music for male voices.

This year, as last, the concerts will be given in Kenan Memorial Auditorium on the UNC-W campus. Concerts will begin at 8 p.m., and single admissions will be sold only if seats are still available after students and season ticket holders are seated.

Checks or money orders for season tickets of $10 should be sent to University Music Series, UNC-W, Wilmington, N. C. 28401.

NOTE NEW DATING
SERVICE

PAGE 5

scene cut — "All The Loving Couples"

COMING SOON TO UNC-W MOVIE SERIES

"ALL THE LOVING COUPLES" STUDIES WIFE-SWAPPING

Recently, the film "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" dealt with a social phenomenon reported to be well-established in many sections of America: wife-swapping. According to one widely-heralded sociological study, 7 million out of 42 million married couples are what the practitioners themselves call "swingers." Can 7 million Americans be wrong?

Here is your chance to find out. "All the Loving Couples," opening... at the... theatre, is a topical, funny and serious look at swinging: who does it, how and why. The plot involves four couples who meet for an evening of wife-swapping. As the entertainment becomes increasingly uninhibited, fast-paced montages provide the amorous action that earned the film its X rating.

"All the Loving Couples," in color, was produced by Milo Frank and Harold Nebenzal and directed by Mack Bing from a screenplay by Leo Gordon.

CC Elects Officers

The UNC-W Curriculum Committee met last Tuesday in their first meeting of the Semester to elect officials and discuss briefly their yearly goals.

Dr. Daniel B. Plyer was again elected chairman of the committee with Mrs. Isabelle Foushee as secretary.

Termed by Doctor Ply-

er as a 'very brief meeting,' Dr. Charles L. Cahill spoke for a moment with the committee members and requested a study be indicated to determine current trends in higher education curriculum.

The two unknown student members of the committee were not present.

MOVIE SCHED. ♦ ♦ ♦

U.N.C.W. Presents

In Concert

ARGENT

and

Rory Gallagher

Brogden Hall

Tuesday, September 12, 8:00 p.m.

Tickets

Students
$3.00 in advance
$4.00 at door

Gen. Admission
$4.00 in advance
$5.00 at door

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT

King's McGrath's Payne's
Belk's Book Store Harvey Cannon

WILLIAM MADISON RAGGALL LIBRARY UNC AT WILMINGTON

SEASQUAWKS

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Door's Side Post
5. Poisonous Arachnid
13. Russian Mountain Range
14. Of the Underworld God
16. Oriental Souther
17. King of Judea
18. Russian Name
20. Church Official
22. African Tree
24. Exist
25. European King
27. Ever and
29. Burmese Language
30. Musical Instrument
34. Roguish Persons
36. Peer Gynt's Mother
37. Chose
39. Spanish Friend
40. Strike-breaker
42. Danube Tributary
44. Island Country (post.)
45. Incognita
47. European Gold Coin
49. Scottish Digit
50. Bug
52. Dying
54. Bone
55. Tape Recorder Brand
57. Mother of the Gods
58. Drink of Liquor
60. Kick
62. Inferior Substitute
66. Before Long
68. Set of Rooms
70. Taj Mahal Site
71. Descriptive of Owls
73. Mr. Error
74. Pistol Cases
75. Body Part Fr.

DOWN

1. Fits of Intoxication
2. Bitter Drug
3. Short-tailed Cat
4. Circus
5. Liquor
6. Guevara
7. Other Sp.
8. "The Bad Seed"
9. Imaginary Small Town
10. Fashionable
11. New Zealand Muttonbird
12. Female Camel
15. Nationality of 25-across
19. Thought Out
21. Potpourri
23. Lisa
26. Stinking
28. Appellation
30. Fortifications
31. Christian Holiday
32. Toothed Wheels
33. Watery Blood
35. Love of Art
38. Room Setup
41. Harle
43. North Carolinians
46. Served Well
48. Row of Seats
51. Ankle Bone
53. Columnar Rock
56. Woo
59. Milne Character
61. Long For
63. To One Side
64. Jogging Gait
65. Grey
67. Military Person
69. Sailor
72. 81st Element

BULLETIN BOARD

Any news for this column can be left in the Seagull mail basket in the Cashier's office.

CAMPUS SECURITY
Copies of campus traffic regulations are available in the security office.

LIBRARY
LIBRARY HOURS
FALL & SPRING
Mon.-Thurs. 8 a.m.-10 p.m.

Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Sat. 10 a.m.-2 p.m.
Sun. 2 p.m.-10 p.m.

HOLIDAYS

Library hours will be posted.

Mr. Philip Smith, Reference and Circulation Librarian, is conducting introductory classes of library resources and reference material. Faculty members wanting these introductory classes for their students should contact Mr. Smith.

Students are asked to have books, large parcels, and notebooks open for inspection as they leave the library.

BIOLOGY DEPT.

All prospective lab assistants please see Mrs. Roth immediately.

Three new faculty mem-

"YOU WERE BUSTED? OH, THAT'S A RELIEF—FOR A SECOND THERE I THOUGHT YOU SAID YOU WERE BUSED!"

The Seagull
University Of North Carolina
At Wilmington
P. O. Box 3725
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

Editor Ron Dunn
Acting Associate Editor Mike Jones
Business Manager Wayne Rogers
Photographer Carson Benson
Reporters Grace Parker, Tim Sims,
Kathy Tyner, Bill Wallace

Business office, #8-201, James Student Services Building

AQUA WORLD inc.

Professional Diving Instruction
N.A.S.D.S. Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

Final Statistics
UNC-Wilmington Seahawks
Summer, 1972

Name	G	IP	H	R	ER	BB	SO	W	L	S	ERA
Eddie Booth	1	9	8	5	2	2	12	0	0	0	2.00
Barnes Yelverton	12	47 1/3	37	17	12	18	39	5	2	1	2.28
Harry Kincaid	11	66 2/3	59	24	17	22	34	3	4	0	2.29
Paul Fulton	9	52 2/3	50	24	14	25	23	3	2	0	2.39
Dave Sandlin	13	102 1/3	69	35	29	46	82	8	4	0	2.55
Bill Warmack	1	2 2/3	2	1	1	3	1	0	0	0	3.37
Bob Becher	9	41	52	28	23	27	21	2	1	0	5.05
Carroll Bickers	12	31 2/3	36	25	18	15	23	2	3	1	5.11

PITCHING:

★★★★★★★★

★★★★★★★★

BATTING:

Name	G	AB	R	H	2B	3B	HR	SB	RBI	AVG	Team	39	353	1/3	313	159	116	158	235	23	16	2	2.98
Joe Blick	3	2	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	.500
Dave Sandlin	39	143	19	52	7	3	3	0	34	.364
Billy Smith	9	36	8	13	4	0	0	0	3	.361
Bruce Cavanaugh	39	151	34	46	6	2	10	6	33	.305
Greg Dalton	38	147	20	40	5	1	1	0	22	.272
Howie Edgerton	38	145	25	39	3	0	0	9	11	.269
Bill Hutchinson	39	146	26	37	3	0	3	8	17	.253
Bob Becher	9	16	2	4	0	0	0	1	2	.250
Eric Higgins	39	147	15	36	7	2	1	1	12	.245
Barnes Yelverton	12	18	2	4	1	0	0	1	0	.222
Bill Warmack	34	102	15	20	3	0	1	0	9	.196
Dennis Jeffus	32	100	12	18	4	0	1	3	6	.180
Randy Lail	23	76	8	12	3	1	0	0	8	.158
Bobby Schupp	4	7	1	1	0	0	0	0	2	.143
Allen Smith	17	48	6	6	0	0	0	1	5	.125
Harry Kincaid	11	22	0	2	1	0	0	0	3	.091
Paul Fulton	9	19	1	1	0	0	0	1	0	.053
Carroll Bickers	12	10	2	0	0	0	0	0	1	.000
Kerry Stoker	4	4	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Eddie Booth	1	4	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Team	39	1343	197	332	47	9	20	31	168	.247

PROJECT ENVIRONMENT
8:00 SEP 12 UNC-W
LIBRARY AUDITORIUM
ALL STATE CANDIDATES FOR HOUSE & SENATE will discuss environmental issues

We Want Your Business
UNIVERSITY OFFICE
WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Paul's

5523 Oleander Drive

Phone 791-9841

"THE SHOWPLACE OF THE STARS"

CLOSED MONDAY

LIVE
Entertainment

NIGHTLY

IT'S
 A HAPPENING
 AT

Paul's

Now

Featuring

"KING LOUIE

And BACKTRACK"

Open 7p.m.

AUGUST 18-25

*For Your Dancing Pleasure
 Band Starts at 9:00 P.M.

Unescorted Ladies Free

Tues.-Thurs. 129569

WATCH FOR "BIG NAME BANDS" APPEARING NIGHTLY AT PAUL'S
 "SHOWPLACE OF THE STARS"

"You're never a stranger at Paul's."

bers have been added to the biology department this year. They are: Dr. David E. Roye, Invertebrate Marine Animal Physiologist; Dr. Paul E. Hosler, Marine Ecologist; and coming to the campus next week Dr. Janet L. Dorigan, Invertebrate Marine Animal Physiologist.

New Book News

FINANCIAL AID
College Foundation checks are here. Room A115A.

COMPUTING CENTER
New hours have been added for student use--Saturdays 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. and Sundays 1 - 6 p.m.
A new Xerox machine is available for student use.

FINANCIAL AID: Prospective teacher loan checks are here. A115A is less a person than a symbol for his masochism. Rebelious students, with whom he argues savagely and pitifully, humiliate and outrage him after invading his office -- or is it his mind? In fact, he keeps intermittent control over them by assuring himself that they are figments of his imagination.

With dazzling sleight of hand, the author shuffles transparencies of subjective and objective reality so that they overlap, separate and come together again. He spares his protagonist nothing and his reader little, but the novel's progress is so swift and variegated, its tone of black farce so astringent, that it creates a mood of elation rather than one of despair.

gensis

by wolfe
Breezed into the place around 3. Ready, willing, and able to overtake, only to find myself waylaid and critical-eyed by hordes of pions all with like purpose in mind.

How disillusioning to find myself featureless and alone and somehow worse-catalogued. At least, there is safety and immunity in being nondescript. Safety in numbers and safety in being a number.

Played musical elevators for awhile and lost consistently. Also climbed to the top of Mt. Olympus, (cleverly disguised as the residence hall), feeling I had reached the pinnacle of something not quite real. Setting myself up for a downer of dubious necessity.

Off and running. See the sights of future hassles. Pretty crackerjack box buildings coming to life. Here. If only my mind would catch up with me "unpolarized." "No Valence".

Feeling like a Gnostics True Kalidoscope, moving, changing. Isn't fantastic just too, too-trite? Fantastic!

Thought about it all long before. Oh, so this is it. Joe Cool down at the student union, some dude in the corner making it with a Bible. One of the girls looks green. Eyes. Never saw so much in them before.

The girl down the hall wears false eyelashes and I'm beginning to feel a little threatened. Hmmm, must be some kind of status symbol. Like black nail polish.

Everyone's trying to make time with each other. "Oh so you're the guy in 410," interesting. Let's go out and raise some of it. We return at long last to the prison of freedom. 6 floors and 5 ceilings.

UNIVERSITY MOVIE SCHEDULE

SEPTEMBER

12 -- Joe
20 -- Johnny Got his Gun
29 -- Willard

OCTOBER

3 -- The Wild Bunch
20 -- Little Big Man

NOVEMBER

3 -- Night of Comedy
10 -- Diary of a Mad Housewife
14 -- Beyond the Valley of the Dolls

DECEMBER

8 -- Patton

SALLY SEAHAWK SAYS:

KEEP ON TRUCKIN'

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL

Save $10
brother.
'Charger II'

portable typewriter

THIS WEEK
ONLY

29⁹⁵

All steel rugged machine with full 84 character keyboard; pica type. Low price includes metal carrying case, clamp on lid. See this feature packed buy today.

LONG LEAF SHOPPING CENTER

S. College Road--Shipyard Blvd.

SHOP 9:30 a.m. - 9:30 p.m.

MONDAY-SATURDAY

OVERNITE CANOE/CAMPING TRIPS

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

LIGHT FOOT EXPEDITION COMPANY

Box 326

Wrightsville Beach

BILL CLARK

PHONE 256-3470

FOUNTAIN

REAL ESTATE

M. L. FOUNTAIN, SR.

RESIDENTIAL SALES
COMMERCIAL SALES
APPRAISALS and LEASES

Serving Wilmington With Reliable & Dependable
Service For Nearly A Decade

791-5193

1409 39th
JUST OFF OLEANDER DR.

(1101)

SEAHAWKS TAKE SUMMER LEAGUE CROWN

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington Seahawks put it all together when it counted the most and came away with the North Carolina Summer League baseball championship.

The Seahawks led by pitcher-hitter extraordinaire Dave Sandlin, managed to overcome a talented Univ. of North Carolina squad and a Tar Heel home field advantage in the final championship game to win by a score of 7 to 4.

Sandlin, whose .364 batting average and 8-4 pitching record earned him the league's Most Valuable Player award, gave the voters no cause for second thoughts as he went the route on the mound and batted in four runs from his cleanup position in the batting order. It was the second time in four nights that the ace lefthander had baffled the Tar Heel hitters. Dave had twirled a neat three-hitter in the all important opener of the double elimination tournament as the Hawks won 4-1.

The tourney was a baseball fan's paradise, in that in UNC-W, UNC, East Carolina Univ. and Louisburg College. It pitted four of the most evenly matched collegiate squads to be found anywhere and in that there was also a considerable array of individual talent on hand. The two opening games were held at UNC and ECU with Wilmington whipping Carolina behind Sandlin and the home-run hitting of catcher Bruce Cavanaugh and Louisburg emerging victorious over ECU. After the openers the remainder of the playoff action swung to Carolina's Boshamer Field. ECU was quickly put to rest as Carolina won in the losers bracket game, and Wilmington then gained the upper hand in the tourney by defeating Louisburg 4-1 on the strength of some fine pitching by Barnes Jelverson. This forced a battle between Louisburg and the Tars for the right to face the Hawks again. Carolina won and thus the same two teams who had battled to the wire for the championship last year came to grips again.

The Tars defeated the Hawks 11-6, giving UNC-W its first defeat in the playoff and setting the stage for the final championship game.

The outcome of the final series was not really too much of a surprise. The Seahawks finished a mis-leading fourth in the regular season, mainly because of a mid-season slump and injuries to key personnel. The Seahawks have a very strong squad that is capable of defeating any team in the nation at the collegiate level. Sandlin is by no means the only star. Several of the players have been watched closely by pro scouts for some time, not the least of whom is Cavanaugh, the fleet catcher with a cannon for an arm who boomed out 10 homers led the squad in runs, scored and finished second in RBI's. Outfielders Billy Smith and Howie Edgerton, shortstop Bill Hutchinson, and 3B Greg Dalton, all of whom are said to have pro-potential give the Green and White outstanding speed and power. Eric Higgins and Bill War-mack are also players who have continually performed exceptionally. Sandlin, Yel-verton, Carroll Bickers, Bob Becher, Harry Kincaid and Paul Fulton, formed the nucleus of a fine pitching staff which compiled an ERA of 2.98 and gave head mentor Bill Brooks no cause for worry.

All of this serves well for area baseball fans as nearly the entire summer squad will be returning next spring. The Hawks promise to make a strong run for NAIA honors on both district and national levels.

Seahawk Dating Service

HERES HOW IT WORKS:

1. Fill out the coupon below and drop it in the box for this purpose located in the Administration building adjacent to the cashiers office. Please remember your number as each one is different and it is the only way that the Seahawk has of contacting you.

2. In the next issue of the Seahawk, there will be dating instructions. You will be matched up as compatibly as possible from the questionnaire.

3. No one will ever know who you are except your date, if you decide to date him or her. EACH QUESTIONNAIRE AND DATE WILL BE HELD IN THE STRICTEST CONFIDENCE.

SEX _____

AGE _____

CLASS _____

RELIGION _____

RACE _____

RATE YOURSELF POLITICALLY : Liberal , Moderate , Conservative

MAJOR _____

HAIR COLOR _____

EYE COLOR _____

HEIGHT _____

WEIGHT _____

DO YOU OWN CAR _____ IF YES AND FEMALE , WOULD YOU DRIVE ON DATE

HOBBIES _____

WHERE WOULD YOU LIKE TO GO ON DATE _____

DO YOU APPROVE OF SEX BEFORE MARRIAGE _____

RATE YOURSELF ON LOOKS: GREAT GOOD FAIR POOR

DESCRIBE THE MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR YOUR CHOICE OF DATE:

DESCRIBE YOUR OWN PERSONALITY:

FEMALE ONLY: Is money a factor in your dating choices? If so, explain:

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in
Wilmington.

Visit Our Mod
| Mod World

Phone:
799-0990

WHEN IT'S FASHION
THE NAME OF THE GAME IS KNITS!

And the best looking knits and finest in all fashions are at Harvey Cannon, Ltd., Your
UNC-W oriented shop for men.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

Open nights 'til 7:00 Fri.
'til 9:00 Sat.

THE BICYCLE SHOP

UNIC — SPORTS

LIB

FUGI

KALKOFF

SERVICE & REPAIR

ACCESSORIES

Mun Docycle

4403 Wrightsville Ave.

Water Bottles $2.50

Air Pumps $2.40

Tourist And Tool Bags

Well, this is just a small note to let all you students know that the vacation is over and it's time to get down to some serious work. We have most of the things you'll need to make it through this first semester. Necessities such as pipes, papers, rolling machines, black lights posters and tapes. We also have luxuries like pants, struts, jewelry, patches & More junk

4th CORNER

4503 OLEANDER DRIVE

Heaters

Liners

buy seperately or as a complete unit.

WATER BEDS

Only $24.95

ANY SIZE

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

Hounded by Debts?

use
Brahmank Classifieds

WANTED: Someone to share expenses on house ($60.00/month). Contact Bill Korngay at 3276 Camden Circle. Cal at North Brunswick High School in Leland after Aug. 26.

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE to thumb to West Coast with. Leave anytime after Sept. 1. Call James 791-4677.

NEEDED: Refrigerator desperately. 3715 Wrightsville Ave. Up to $30.

FOR SALE: Stereo system AM-FM radio tape player, BSR McDonald Turntable, two 6" speakers, walnut grain. In top shape must sell. $120. Call 791-2032 after 6 p.m.

S
e
a h
a w k

needs
your

Help!!

typist
writers
reporters

MEETINGS
MONDAY
4:30

DOWNSTAIRS
Stud. Serv. Bldg.

FREE

C
L
A
S
S
I
F
I
E
D
S

TO UNC-W

Students

He's the Laughter Man. And he isn't that funny. He doesn't have to be.

Dr. Harvey Mindess, a UCLA psychologist and author who teaches a class in humor on the side, believes that humor can be used as therapy to help us "get away from taking ourselves in the proper perspective." He suggests we "use humor as a coping mechanism and to alleviate our tendencies to become pompous, inflated, egotistical, self-righteous and all that crap."

It was "all that crap" that I was most interested in. I'm not too knowledgeable about tendencies and proper perspectives, but I do know a lot about the crap that students put themselves through as we are taught day after day, class after class, to handle life stiff-upper-lip style. Pressures have been put on us not to laugh at anything -- our own personal problems or the problems of the world. Would you dare laugh about ecology? Racism? The War? Our collective guilt says they're definite no-no's. And would you dare to laugh at collective guilt?

"The whole bit of really believing that what you stand for and what you are doing is the most important thing in the world," Dr. M. says. "Well, it matters, but not really so much as we think. What upsets us a great deal today will be forgotten two weeks from today."

"It's in college," he adds, "that students are taught to take themselves too seriously."

Dr. Mindess is the author of a new book on humor called "Laughter and Liberation" that's about as funny as the Dead Sea Scrolls. Through 247 pages, he takes humor, plops it down on a couch, analyzes the guts out of it, and, as we finish the last chapter, Tonsils (instead of Appendix), leaves us realizing that we just might be in big trouble as we perform the wake over our sleeping senses of humor.

He's right. There are tons of examples to prove it: the divorced lady who laughs that her ex's new wife looks just like her...

Good Humor Man

by Rick Mitz

the final examination that's so unbelievably hard it's funny. . . buying red jockey shorts and looking the other way as the clerk writes up the sales slip. . . trying to find tons of examples of things that are funny. . . guys with BAs in chemical engineering working as janitors after graduation. . . meeting your professor the same day of the exam when you said you'd be at your grandmother's funeral (whome you've already "killed" five times in the past four years.) Having that professor meet your grandmother. Writing a serious book on humor. Potential y, all are crisis experiences, but, as Dr. M. would say, in the right perspective: funny.

There's been a lot of talk -- mostly humorless -- about the death of student humor that pooped out with the Thirties and was laid to rest with indented bottoms that sat on flagpoles and swallowed goldfish. In this era of ecology, swallowing fish is no way to preserve the balance of nature and sitting on flagpoles is a the balance of nature and sitting on flagpoles is a pain in the neck. Well, those things weren't funny anyway, but the attitudes that brought them about were. Nothing was taken too seriously. College life -- so they tell us -- was just like in the moo-vees, would the college football star get good enough grades to play in Saturday's big game? No one cared, but it gave them something to laugh about.

So along comes some joker like Dr. Mindess who has the gall to tell us to laugh again. How? How does one develop a sense of humor

-- as opposed to a sense of horror -- in These Troubled Times?

"We're all very touchy about our sacred cows," Dr. M. says. "We become so serious and committed that we refuse to laugh at anything connected to our Cause." His answer is simple. "Just enjoy. Stop analyzing. It's safer to be straight, but a lot of good things can happen to you if you dare to be just a little bit crazy. Humor can be a liberating device."

The problems of the world might not be solved through Dr. Mindess's philosophy, but they might be more easy to cope with.

Read his book if you can laugh up $7.95. And if you're ever out L.A. way, visit Harvey Mindess. He's good for a laugh.

Condolences Extended

Dr. Thomas Moseley's little dog, Rusty, died last Friday night. Rusty, a faithful friend of Dr. Moseley and his students, could often be seen obediently following Dr. Moseley to classes and even to ballgames. Every test day, particularly Rusty would make his appearance. For the past few years, Rusty had been plagued by a heart condition which curtailed many of his activities. Our condolences are extended in behalf of the student body to Dr. Moseley.

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

Furniture
CITY

North 17 Shopping Center

544

Travel Hints

Each year, thousands of young Americans travel abroad for study, work or kicks. For most, it's great. But for an increasing number of travelers, it's a "bust."

To help young Americans avoid the problems of foreign travel, the U.S. State Department has just published a pamphlet which offers some helpful suggestions on planning a successful trip abroad.

The pamphlet, on sale by the U.S. Government Printing Office for 20 cents, provides useful information on passports and visas, travel in Eastern Europe, vaccination requirements, charter flights, study and work programs and the role U.S. embassies and consulates play in protecting the rights of U.S. citizens overseas. A handy pre-travel checklist and a bibliography of selected contacts for further information also are provided.

Entitled "Youth Travel Abroad: What to Know Before You Go," the 19-page pamphlet is designed to help travelers, especially young Americans, avoid the "hassles" that can turn a trip abroad into a frightening experience.

This booklet just published by the U.S. Department of State provides helpful information for young Americans traveling abroad—for fun, cultural exchange, work or study programs.

Tells what you need to know about passports, visas, travel regulations, immunization requirements, charter flights, study programs, currency exchange, and travel in Eastern Europe. Provides advice on how to stay out of trouble, but also how to find help if you don't.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Send check or money order for 20 cents and ask for "Youth Travel Abroad", G.P.O. Stock No. 4400-1416. Catalog No. S1.71-263.

YOUTH TRAVEL ABROAD

WHAT TO KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

ETS Announces GRE Dates

PRINCETON, N.J. -- Educational Testing Service announced today that undergraduates and others preparing to go to graduate school may take the Graduate Record Examinations on any of six different test dates during the current academic year.

The first testing date for the GRE is October 28, 1972. Scores from this administration will be reported to the graduate schools around December 4. Students planning to register for the October test date are advised that applications received by ETS after October 3 will incur a $3.50 late registration fee. After October 10, there is no guarantee that applications for the October test date can be processed.

The other five test dates are December 9, 1972, January 20, February 24, (only the Aptitude Test is administered), April 28 and June 16, 1973. Equivalent late fee and registration deadlines apply to these dates. Choice of test dates should be determined by the requirements of graduate schools or fellowship sponsors to which one is applying. Scores are usually reported to graduate schools five weeks after a test date.

The Graduate Record Examinations include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests measuring achievement in 19 major fields of study. Full details and registration forms for the GRE are contained in the 1972-73 GRE Information Bulletin. The Bulletin also contains forms and instructions for requesting transcript service on GRE scores already on file with ETS. This booklet is available on most campuses or may be ordered from: Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey, 08540; Educational Testing Service, 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704; Educational Testing Service, 960 Grove Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201.

Ed. Must Change Says SNEA Rep.

by wolfe staff writer

"Now is the time for change in educ." And Gloria E. Ramos, Junior class president at UNC-W is change, with a capital C. She has been elected Regional Representative for the Student National Education Association. . . no small accomplishment for a black. She will coordinate the activities of the Student NEA for most of the deep south states including North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee.

It is the opinion of Mrs. Ramos that students, more now than at any other time, are not only capable but responsible for creating change in our educational system.

The student NEA, consisting of 77,000 students, is the largest group of pre professional students in the country. Though they are an affiliate of the NEA, they have formed their own charter and have their own bill of rights. Their main goals is to insure people of all backgrounds an education that will serve them equally well in and out of the classroom. The word, education, usually applied to some sort of school, has taken on new meaning for the Student NEA. They attempt to teach and more to give knowledge.

"We teach things to people that will enrich their lives," she says. "Children are receiving dancing lessons, health classes, learning to do needlepoint, and studying art. Things most of these children could never be exposed to, except for the Student NEA."

"The key word to life today is involvement, and the NEA is very involved. These future teachers give not only their time and effort, they give concern, something sadly lacking in our educational system today. Keep an eye on the Student NEA, they're going to change all that."

GET YOUR MAN WITH A Want Ad

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

1313 So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches

ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms

Mon thru Sat

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p. m.

Three Cheers

For Campus Stereo

PANASONIC
AM/FM STEREO
ENTERTAINMENT
CENTER

The smartest stereo system to ever hit campus. With fully automatic 3-speed record changer, FM/AM/FM stereo radio, and 2 cylindrical speakers. Walnut grain cabinetry.

Our 31st year in Electronics

SOUTHEASTERN
ELECTRONICS

$139.95

Master Charge—
Bank Americard

1002

South College Road

Rd. 791-7365

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL XV NO. 2

For Students, By Students

September 15, 1972 Eight Pages

Chancellor Wagoner Explains SHT Student Admission Fee

Chancellor William H. Wagoner appeared at the invitation of the UNC-W student Senate to explain his decision not to allow free admission of last year's summer school students to the Straw-Hat Theatre productions.

Chancellor Wagoner stated that he based his decision on the fact that the Straw-Hat Theatre is not an integral part of the Drama Department and UNC-W does not receive state funds for its operation.

He compared the Straw-Hat Theatre to East Carolina's summer theatre productions. "While East Carolina has in the past received special appropriations, it is still a community service project," he said. ECU does not allow summer school students free admission to its summer theatre productions.

The Chancellor said that he would like nothing better than to continue the Straw-Hat Theatre series like that (free of charge) but can't "due to the financial situation."

Wagoner said that this decision was based on facts and "although someone else might have ruled differently, I made it the decision as best as I knew how."

Other actions by the senate showed an appointment of a Student Health Care Committee to work with Dr. Malloy to inform students of the newly-available health services at UNCW. These services, including a nurse's station in the dormitory are available to both dorm and off-campus students.

Joe Morgan was reappointed to another term as chairman of the Board of Elections and was instructed to make immediate plans to fill the vacancies now existing in the Senate.

Barry Asbury was appointed chairman of the Dance committee.

Student Senate President McCombie announced that the SGA office would be open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mon thru Friday. A calendar of events will be available.

Facilities Available

On-campus health facilities are available to all UNC-W students, residents and commuters, for the first time this year. The health services on-campus are from 9 a.m.-12 noon, Monday-Friday, in the residence hall. These services are geared to do routine lab work, minor stitching, and to care for minor illnesses. After hours, weekends and holidays, these same health services can be received by telephoning Dr. Daniel Gottov, campus physician, and identifying yourself as a UNC-W student. It is important to telephone Dr. Gottov before going to his office, otherwise, you will be charged a $10 office fee. The Health service as it stands is covered in the special fees paid in student tuition amounting to $8 per student per semester. Night call covered by this plan, but again before going to the

Continued on page 3

Nurses See Busy Month

DRIENNE CULVER
The UNC-W Student Nurses Association has had a busy month. Activities began with the annual "Welcome Tea" for new and returning nursing students and faculty. Our special guest was Dr. William M. Malloy, the new vice chancellor for Student Affairs. On September 13 a Capping Ceremony and Tea was presented and organized by the second-year students for their freshman sisters. There were 30 students capped at that time. Miss Sherri Taor, a second-year nursing student, welcomed the students, faculty and their guests. The capping procession was led by Mrs. Jane Lowe and Nurse Toni Barfield. Miss Mary Alice Whitfield led the newly capped freshmen in the "Nightgown Pledge" and Miss Dorothy Dixon, the Nursing Department head, spoke briefly about the purpose of a capping ceremony and the significance of a nurse's cap. A benediction was pronounced by Miss Loretta Booe. Delicious goodies were then enjoyed by all present.

On September 14, a regular business meeting was held at 11:30 a.m. at New Hanover Memorial Hospital. Mr. Charles E. Wiley, Director of Nursing, at the host institution was the guest speaker.

On Saturday, September 30, members will journey to Fayetteville for the 10:00 a.m. meeting of the district meeting of the Student Nurses' Association of North Carolina.

'JOE' EXPLORES RADICAL VIOLENCE IN AMERICA

"Joe" is perhaps the first motion picture to deal with the unrest and lifestyle of contemporary middle America. Produced by David Gil and directed by John Avildsen, the film tells the often touching, frequently amusing story of two widely contrasting figures. Joe Curran (Peter Boyle), homeowner, bowler and World War I veteran who earns $160 a week and Bill Compton (Dennis Patrick), a $60,000-a-year advertising executive. Despite their contrasting degrees of sophistication, they are drawn together by a common distrust and envy of youth. When Bill's daughter, Melissa (Susan Sarandon), becomes enmeshed in an East Village environment of drugs, Bill and Joe lash back with a vengeance that is a timely and stunning commentary on the consequences of radical violence in America.

People well may credit the makers of "Joe" for having made a prophetic film. Actually, Norman Wexler wrote his original screenplay nearly two years ago, intending only to create a fantasy which dealt with the ramifications of the generation and political gaps that trouble our country.

When the Wall Street alterations of the Spring of 1970 began between the youths and construction workers -- nearly six months after the completion of filming "Joe" -- the cast and crew were perhaps the most shocked of all, though perhaps less surprised than the average man on the street

CC Elects Officers

The UNC-W Curriculum Committee met last week in their first meeting of the Semester to elect officers and discuss briefly their yearly goals.

Dr. Daniel B. Plyer was again elected chairman of the committee with Mrs. Isabell Foushee as secretary.

Termed by Doctor Plyer as a "very brief meeting" Dr. Charles L. Cahill spoke for a moment with the committee members and requested a study be instigated to determine current trends in higher education curriculum.

The two unknown student members of the committee were not present.

WIN FREE TICKET TO NEXT UNCW CONCERT OR SEASON PASS TO UNCW
MOVIES
(SEE PAGE 2)

UNCW SNA president Mrs. Mary Anne Yow (center) welcomes Miss Dorothy Dixon (right) and Dr. William M. Malloy (left).

SEASQUAWKS

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Narrow Waterway
7. Mongolian Tribe
12. Harem
14. Peaceful
16. Short Saying
17. Surroundings
18. Depression
19. Chopped Down
21. Against (abbr.)
22. Looks At
23. Greek Giant
24. Constrictors
26. Soviet Division
27. Plan (1924)
28. European Capital
29. Indian Seaport
30. Fuse Together Again
31. Three-legged Stand
33. Geometric Angle
34. Race Horse Type
35. Vegetable
36. Fairies
37. Understand
38. Check
41. Prevaricates
42. Recipient of Money
43. Huntz
44. German Pronoun
45. Landed Estate
46. "Mr. Christian"
47. Causing Vomiting
50. Lending at High Rates
52. Strauss Opera
53. Legislators
54. French City
55. Death

DOWN

1. British-Indian Soldiers
2. Legal Term
3. Prices
4. Turkish Title: Var.
5. de France
6. Chesapeake
7. Famous Square
8. Dry
9. Aviv
10. Black Cuckoo
11. English Abbey
12. Bank Items
13. Breakfast Dish
15. Swore (slang)
20. Existed
23. Brother of Moses
24. Cries
25. Pointed Arch
27. Chests
28. Weighty
29. Aspects
30. "Canterbury" Storyteller
31. Charm
32. Split
33. Turned Backward
34. Fights
35. Southern Streams
37. Jacinto
38. Prohibitions
39. Entice
40. Wish Well to
42. Steps
43. West Indies Country
45. Initiate
46. Unit of Weight
48. Biblical Priest
49. Fielding Character
51. French Number

★ ★ WIN FREE ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Ticket to next UNC-W Student Concert or season pass to UNC-W movies

Bring the above Targum Crossword Puzzle to the Seahawk office correctly filled out by 6:00 p.m. today (Friday, Sept. 15, 1972) to win it. That's all you have to do.

The first one to submit a correctly worked puzzle will receive the free ticket. The Seahawk office is located downstairs in the Student Services Building. This contest will be offered each week using a completely different crossword puzzle.

Sorry only one ticket may be given to any one student in the 72-73 academic year. Only UNC-W students may qualify for the free tickets, the first to win being able to choose the concert or movies ticket.

The Seahawk

Editor. Ron Dunn
Assistant Editor. Mike Jones
Advertising Manager. Pam French
Reporting Staff. Cathy Tyner

Beverly Causey
Sharon Wolfe

Eddie Deese
Richard Suggs
Robert Braxton

Photography. Ian Truman
Wayne Huggins

Circulation. Don Hamilton
Mike Lefever

Faculty Advisor. Thomas Lupton

Mothers and other strangers

by Rick Mitz

Like nearly every other mother in the world, my Mother told me never to talk to strangers. As a child I kept my mouth shut in public buses, trains, restaurants and restrooms. I went through the formative years pointing a lot. Every day before I'd walk to school alone, my mother would whisper in my ear, "Now be sure not to talk to strangers. Or you'll be sorry."

And Chairman Mao is a real pro at her own teachings. She leaves notes for the milkman, turns away the Avon lady, and doesn't use a mouthwash, "just so people won't be tempted to talk to me."

"Me, she talks to," my Father laments. "How did I ever get so lucky?"

Recently, my 14-year-old brother, Barry, and I got together when nobody was looking. He told me that his teacher, Mr. Elmm sent home a note to my mother. "Barry is uncommonly quiet and does not participate in classroom discussion. Please come in to see me."

So my Mother dragged in and sat in conference in Mr. Elmm's office.

"Why is it that Barry won't talk in class?" he asked. "He won't talk to his peers."

"Peers, shmears," my mother to him. "I told him not to talk to strangers."

"But I don't understand."

"You will never understand, Mr. Elmm, until you've been a Mother."

Last week, she called me up to see if everything was going well.

"So listen," she said. "Now that you live away from home, you don't talk to anyone, do you?"

"Of course not."

"You don't talk to anyone? How're you ever going to meet anyone if you don't talk to anyone?"

a "But you told me not to talk to strangers. . . ."

a " . . . or you'll be sorry. Remember that."

"Well, at what point does a stranger become someone you can talk to?"

"When he becomes your mother."

"Mom, didn't you ever walk to a stranger?"

"Yes, once. And look what happened to me."

"What happened?"

"I married your father," a My Mother also applies her philosophy to strangers -- like the President of the United States.

"You see," she said, "if that man had listened to his mother and not talked to strangers, we'd be getting along with other countries now."

She looked up startled. "You're going to argue with a mother?"

And history is not exempt from Mother's advice.

"If that girl Juliet had listened to her mother and not talked to strangers, she'd be alive today."

I visited a friend in New York last month and spent half the day finding some half the day finding someone who'd stop long enough to give me directions.

a "I don't understand it," I told my friend. "No one will talk to me in this city. What is it with these people?"

"What can I tell you?" my friend told me. "Everyone in the city of New York has a mother who told him not to talk to strangers. In fact, if my Mom knew I was talking to you right now, she'd murder me."

Recently, I called my parents that I would be coming home that weekend for a visit. When I called, I talked to my Father because my Mother was out at bridge -- "Either playing or jumping off, I'm not sure which," he said.

An hour later my Mother called.

"I'm hurt," she said. "Why?"

"Because you didn't tell me you were coming home this weekend."

a "But I told Dad to tell you."

"Sure," she sighed. "I had to hear it from a stranger."

What you can do

LETTERS -- Letters can be about anything at all and generally fall into two categories. The printable and unprintable. We can tell the printable ones from the unprintable ones because the unprintable ones ask us not to print them. Both kinds are valuable. With the first we fill up space and get your views before the University community and with the second we get your opinion on some aspect of something that for some reason you don't want publicized.

It would be greatly appreciated if you would sign your name so perhaps we could get together and discuss the matter. If you request, The Seahawk will hold your name in the strictest confidence. The main thing is we want to know how you feel about what's happening with us or anything.

EDITORIAL RESPONSES

If we write an editorial or article that just makes your blood boil or even something you agree with, let us know. Writing this kind of thing is good for the soul releases tensions, and could perhaps accomplish something. You write it, we'll read it, and print it if you don't tell us not to.

CALENDAR -- Items for the calendar include group meetings, events, activities, movies, orgies, and the like. They should include pertinent information. All pertinent information, we reserve the right to edit, rearrange and make comprehensible if it's not already. Keep 'em short and sweet.

CLASSIFIEDS -- It is of perpetual amazement to me that as I stroll around campus I see things tacked on bulletin boards all over.

The usual thing seems to be to make up a bunch of them on 3x5 index cards and stick them everywhere. If someone where in the process you would give one to us we would run it space permitting, in your paper -- which by the way, is ready more than 2,000, people every week. Maybe you don't think it's worth it -- I do.

LEADS FOR STORIES -- If you think there's something we should be writing about and we aren't, why don't you tell us about it? We'll either change our ways or tell you why.

JOIN THE STAFF -- If you're interested, we'll put you to work. Drop by the Seahawk office in the Student Services Bldg. If no one's there, leave your name and we'll give you a call.

Dear Mom and Dad,

I am fine.
How are you?

Welcome Mrs. Moore

The Administration and students of UNC-W extend a Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities. This is a new position which involves coordinating between the desires of the administration and students upon activities such as films, concerts, dances, etc.

Mrs. Moore graduated from the University of Buffalo in New York. Afterwards she attended graduate school toward her counseling degree. Prior to her present job Mrs. Moore worked as a New York state recruiter for the Department of Mental Hygiene. The duties of Mrs. Moore consisted of recruiting social workers and psychologists which included traveling to college campuses interviewing, as well as answering inquiries concerning jobs. Following this Mrs. Moore married and lived in Illinois where she became involved in elementary education as a fourth grade teacher for three years. She came to Wilmington in September 1971 and is enjoying her present position as Director of Students Activities.

WHERE'S IT HAPPENING

The Student Service Building is where everything is happening! A busy fall is shaping up with a variety of improved recreations and displays in the lobby. In addition to the present recreations which consists of ping-pong, pool, chess and checkers there will be football machines installed around October first. The displays include community and campus actions.

Also, the Juvenile Detention Center is in need of student volunteers. Any student group may acquire the display case by scheduling it through Mrs. Moore. For more information drop by the SS Building and get "involved" - now. The vending machines WILL BE FIXED and all suggestions concerning activities are welcome.

Bulletin Board

DANFORTH FELLOWSHIP
The deadline for submitting applications for Danforth Foundation Fellowships is October 1, 1972. Dr. Gerald Shinn in K-122C has application blanks for the fellowships.

The Danforth Fellowships are for persons interested in college teaching and only students who are above average will qualify. Applicants must register by October 3, 1972 to take the Graduate Record Examination on October 23 in order to be considered.

NIGHT DEANS -- Thomas R. Lutton and Rolla C. Neilson are serving as assistant directors of the evening program and ask that they be informed concerning all events occurring on the campus during evening hours. They are using room 123 in the Chemistry

GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT - lots of new and strange things are happening in the Psychology Department this fall. New professors, new research and new - - - well, Gloria weaver won't tell us what else! All she will say, is "We will tell ALL at the Psychology Club meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 26, 1972 at 11:30 a.m. in the Library Auditorium. All students are welcome no matter their major. Psych majors, you have a real "need to know"."

Physics Building and can be contacted at extension 324. COMING EVENTS -- Tuesday, September 19 Soccer Match with St. Andrews College - Soccer Field - 3:30 p.m.

Tuesday, September 19 North Carolina Symphony Chamber Players - Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium - 8:15 p.m.

Wednesday, September 20 - Fine Arts Committee Popular Film Series Presents "Joe" - Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium - 8 p.m.

Season tickets for the fine Arts Committee's Popular Film Series are still available from Doug Swink in Kenan Auditorium and M. S. Cathy Burruss in the Department of Modern Languages. Season tickets, good for 22 movies, cost $5; single admission is $1 per show

FLEDGELING

Presidents and members of all clubs on campus: In order to get yearbook pictures taken early, please submit the times of your scheduled meetings, functions, etc. to Zorie Smith in order that a make out can in order that a photography schedule can be made. You can contact Zorie Smith in room 434 at the residence hall, or leave a note at the Fledgling office in upstairs Pub, the sooner the better. Zorie Smith, Organizations Editor.

ATLANTIS
ATTENTION: Presidents and members of all clubs on campus. In order to get yearbook pictures taken early please submit the times of your scheduled meetings, functions, etc. to me so we can make out a photography schedule. You can contact me in Room 434 at the dorm or leave a note at the Fledgling office in upstairs pub, the sooner the better.

Zorie Smith
Organizations Editor

ATLANTIS
The Atlantis is now accepting material for publication.

Submissions should be brought to Mrs. Ronaert: English Department Secretary. Deadline: October 24. CIRCLE K CLUB

Join Circle K. A gentler form of protest. Organizational meeting, Thursday, Sept. 21 7 p.m. Room 202 Admin. Bldg.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

One (1) vacancy for woman in residence hall.

HEALTH SERVICES

9 a.m. - 12 noon, Mon. - Fr. Weekends, holidays and afternoons, call Dr. Daniel Gottovi and identify self as UNC-W student hospital, telephoning Dr. Gottovi that you are a UNC-W student is imperative.

Continued on page 5

Health . .

Continued from front

This system extends not only over weekdays but also on weekends and over holidays.

Any charges for other services specialists' treatment, hospitalization, etc.) than those covered by the health plan will be the responsibility of the individual student.

A regular insurance policy is available to students through the Puritan Life Insurance Company of Providence, R.I. for $27. The local claims agent is Glasgow Hicks Company of Wilmington. This policy is effective from August 24, 1972-August 24, 1973. Brochures with further explanation are available in the Student Affairs office.

APPLICATION FOR CREDIT FOR STUDENTS AT UNIVERSITY OF N. C. AT WILMINGTON

Date _____	College Class _____
STUDENT'S NAME _____	PHONE _____ AGE _____
WILMINGTON ADDRESS _____
NAME & ADDRESS OF PARENTS: _____
PHONE: _____
PROFESSION OR OCCUPATION _____
AND BUSINESS ADDRESS OF PARENTS - FATHER: _____
AND/OR MOTHER: _____

$75/$25 UNC-W STUDENT CREDIT PLAN

½ down payment with first purchase when opening account. Purchase charge balance may be maintained up to $75.00 as long as a total of $25.00 is paid in each calendar month, or ½ of the balance each month. Account automatically closed if monthly payment is missed. 1% service charge is made on the unpaid balance each month.

PRESENT CURRENT UNC-W STUDENT I.D. CARD AND DRIVERS LICENSE AND PAY ½ OF FIRST PURCHASE FOR IMMEDIATE SERVICE IN OPENING AN ACCOUNT.

MAIL MONTHLY STATEMENT TO:

BOTH

Paynes'

HANOVER CENTER

9:30 - 9:00

STORES

DOWNTOWN

9:30 - 5:00

FREE

CLASSIFIED

S
TO

UNC-W

STEREO COMPONENTS 20 to 50% discount most major brands available. All equipment new and fully guaranteed. Cal 799-1696 after 6 p.m. and weekends. Robert McKeithan, 515 MacDonald Dr., Wilmington, N.C.

WANT GIRL to share my apartment with me. $40 a month, includes utilities. Sec: Catherine McKlirick 2301 Adams Street, Wilmington. Riverside Apts.

10-SPEED BIKE will be given away, Friday, Sept. 23. Donations 50¢ to Pi Kappa Phi scholarship fund. Drawing will be held on UNC-W campus.

BAILEY
702-7203 • 18 N. FRONT ST. the ultimate trip

STANLEY KUBRICK'S
2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY
TIME: Mon.-Sat.
2:20, 5:10, 8:00
Sun.: 1:00, 3:50, 8:00
NEXT: THE GREAT MINNESOTA RAIL

WANTED: Someone to share expenses on house ($60.00/month). Contact Bill Kornegay at 3276 Camden Circle. Cal at North Brunswick High School in Leland after Aug. 26.

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE to thumb to West Coast with. Leave anytime after Sept. 1. Call James 791-4677.

NEEDED: Refrigerator desperately. 3715 Wrightsville Ave. Up to $30.

FOR SALE: Stereo system AM-FM radio tape player, BSR McDonald Turntable, two 6" speakers, walnut groin. In top shape must sell. $120. Call 791-2032 after 6 p.m.

Seahawk

needs
your

Help!!

typist
writers
reportersMEETINGS
WEDNESDAY
MONDAY
4:30DOWNSTAIRS
Stud. Serv. Bldg.

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

founded by Debts?

use
Seahawk Classifieds

SUNDAY

4:00 French Chef
4:30 Excep Children
5:00 Now
5:30 Folk Guitar III
6:00 Book Beat
6:30 N.C. People
7:00 Jean Shepherd
7:30 Jazz Set
8:00 Firing Line
9:00 Masterpiece Theatre
Last of the Mohicans
10:00 Boston Pops

MONDAY

8:45 Cover to Cover
9:00 Cultures
*9:30 U.S. History
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Earth Science
*11:30 Math
12:00 Ripples
*12:15 Math
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 Earth Science
*3:00 World of Science (T)
*3:30 Film
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
*6:00 Evening Edition
*6:30 Gov't Management
8:00 Special: "The Restless Earth"

TUESDAY

*9:00 Math
*9:30 Physical Science
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Cultures
11:30 Cover to Cover
11:50 Earth Science
12:30 Electric Co.
*1:00 U.S. History
*1:30 Physical Science
*2:00 Film
2:30 Cultures
3:00 Film
*3:30 Ready-Set-Go (T)
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
*6:00 Evening Edition
6:30 Soc. of Education
*7:00 TBA
7:30 Excep. Children
*8:00 N.C. News Conference
8:30 Boston Pops
*9:30 Can You Hear Me?
* Denotes Program Schedule Change

WEDNESDAY

9:00 Cultures
9:30 Physical Science
10:00 Sesame Street
*11:00 Math
11:30 Meet the Arts
12:00 Earth Science
12:30 Electric Co.
*1:00 Film
1:30 Physical Science
2:00 Earth Science
2:30 Cultures
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
*6:00 Evening Edition

*6:30 TBA
*7:00 Now
*7:30 TBA
8:00 Election '72
*8:30 Film Odyssey
*10:00 Soul

THURSDAY

8:45 Meet the Arts
9:15 Ripples
*9:30 U.S. History
11:30 Earth Science
12:00 Images & Things
12:30 Electric Co.
*1:00 U.S. History
*1:30 Granny
*2:00 Math
2:30 Cultures
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
*6:00 Evening Edition
6:30 Soc. of Education
*7:00 TBA
*7:30 Gov't Management
8:00 Jean Shepherd
8:30 N.C. People
9:00 Hollywood TV Theatre
10:00 World Press
10:30 30 Mins. With

FRIDAY

9:00 Earth Science
*9:30 Physical Science
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Granny
11:20 Images & Things
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 Ripples
*1:15 Math
*1:30
2:30 Meet the Arts

4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
*6:00 Evening Edition
6:30 Consultation
*7:00 You the Deaf
7:30 N.C. This Week
8:00 Washington Week
8:30 Take Des Moines--please
9:30 Jacob Bronowski
*Denotes Program Schedule Change

FLAG FOOTBALL
ORGANIZATION MEETING
SEPT. 18 (MONDAY)
7:00 P.M. H-201

Any person or group wishing to enter a team be present -- 1 representative for each team only.

THERE ARE MANY OPINIONS OF THE SEAHAWK

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

exhibition & sale of original graphics for collectors

CHAGALL, BASKIN, ROUAULT,
DAUMIER, MATISSE, PICASSO
AND MANY OTHERS.

University of North Carolina
at Wilmington
KENAN HALL
Thursday, September 21, 1972
11 a.m. til 8 p.m.

PURCHASES MAY BE CHARGED

ARRANGED BY
FERDINAND ROTEN GALLERIES
BALTIMORE, MD

DAILY AT 2-4-6-81

NOW SHOWING

WALT DISNEY PRESENTS
The Biscuit Eater

IT'S THE DOGGONEST FUN YOU'VE EVER SEEN . . .

799-3950

OLEANDER DR.

TODAY AT 2-4-6-8-10

Cinema 1&2

ALL SEATS 75¢ DAILY
2:30

LIMITED
ENGAGEMENT

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" PG
YOU MAY LAUGH YOURSELF
SILLY -- OR DIE LAUGHING

NEXT: "NICHOLAS & ALEXANDER" "GONE WITH THE WIND"

Intramural Activities Begin

by ROBERT BRAXTON

Softball, s, fresbies, horseshoes, and an assortment of many other instruments will be used this year as the University intramurals get under way. A total of sixteen different activities will be supported throughout the year with eleven of these opened to both men and women students, while the other five are closed just for men. These sixteen activities should offer a wide variety of things that the UNC-W student can get involved in.

The intramural activities are made for teams and individuals with some of which will be primarily for teams and others for the individual. Teams will be made up of independents, fraternities, and dormitory floors. Officials will be needed also in these activities. Any person interested in joining a team or the forming of one, or interested in officiating some of activities can receive full information on all of this from Mr. Dave Warner, coach, at his office in Hoggard 215A or by leaving his name at the Physical Education office.

The first activity on the intramural agenda will be Flag Football which will begin very shortly. Coach Dave Warner, who is in charge of the intramural program, is currently getting together a handbook on UNC-W intramurals. This handbook should be out within the next week. The University intramural program is still growing, but this year's activities promises to be the best yet.

A list of the activities, when they will be held, and for whom, are below.

- INTRAMURAL ACTIVITIES
1. Flag Football Fall Teams only
 2. Cross Country Fall Individuals only
 3. Free Throws Winter Individuals only
 4. Poo Spring Individuals only
 5. Frisbie Spring Individuals only
 6. Archery Fall Individuals only

7. Horseshoes Fall Individuals only

8. Tennis Fall Singles, Doubles, Mixed Doubles
9. Card Games Year Round Singles, Pairs, Mixed Doubles
10. Badminton Winter Teams and Individuals
11. Basketball Winter Teams only
12. Bowling Winter Teams and Individuals
13. Table Tennis Winter Singles, Doubles, Mixed Doubles
14. Volleyball Winter Teams only
15. Golf Spring Individuals
16. Softball Spring Teams only

The first five activities are those for men only, while numbers six through sixteen are opened to both sexes

Bulletin Board

Continued from page 3

Library hours:

FALL & SPRING

Mon.-Thurs. 8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Sat. 10 a.m.-2 p.m.
Sun. 2 p.m.-10 p.m.

HOLIDAYS

Library hours will be posted.

Mr. Philip Smith, Reference and circulation librarian, is conducting introductory classes of library resources and reference material. Faculty members wanting these introductory classes for their students should contact Mr. Smith.

CAMPUS SECURITY

Copies of campus traffic regulations are available in the security office.

Vehicles should be registered for 1972 before Friday, Sept. 1. Be sure to have the number of your state tags with you.

BIOLOGY DEPT.

All prospective lab assistants please see Mrs. Roth immediately.

Three new faculty members have been added to the biology department this year. They are: Dr. David E. Royce, Invertebrate Marine Animal Physiologist; Dr. Paul E. Hosler, Marine Ecologist; and coming to the campus next week, Dr. Janet L. Dorigan, Invertebrate Marine Animal Physiologist.

FINANCIAL AID

College Foundation checks are here, Room A115A.

COMPUTING CENTER

New hours have been added for student use -- Saturdays 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. and Sundays 1 p.m. - 6 p.m.

A new Xerox machine is available for student use.

Any news for this column can be left in the Seahawk mail basket in the cashiers office.

Faculty Profile

Teen of '59' At UNC-W

Deep in the depths of Lincoln Forests there lives a man who is not only the head of the Psychology Department of UNC-W, but the proud owner of a trophy bearing the inscription:

"1959 Teenager of the Year presented to him by the Optimist Club of Dallas, Texas, the trophy is only the beginning of his accomplishment's."

Dr. John Taylor Williams is a man of many, and varied, talents. Not only does he hold degrees in both Psychology and Comparative Psychology but he has written innumerable papers on the subjects included in his field.

Williams says he finds his work "exciting", especially since so many of his colleagues have been unable to find work in the slightly flooded psychology field. His role as an administrator here is a challenging one.

Not only a man of many talents, Williams has many interesting hobbies. For instance, he is not only an enthusiastic cyclist, (week-end bike trips of 30 miles) but an avid scuba diver.

His life, satisfying as it may appear has been a long series of minor and major calamities. He has been stranded in the coral reefs off the Florida coast in a storm, boatless, one mile from land. He has managed to exceed a grant by $1400 in one summer studying the behaviour of marine organisms. And, after being in Wilmington, only a short time, he had his car stolen, and returned with $500 worth of damage.

The 32 year old Dr. Williams hopes to build the Psychology Department of UNC-W into a strong, influential one. He plans to expand and diversify in this area during his time here, which he says will be at least 5 years.

Dr. Williams, his wife and two children, have only been living in Wilmington a month. But they like the people and the area they say. We at the Seahawk welcome Dr. Williams to the staff of UNC-W and to this community. He will certainly be a welcome addition.

PERSONAL DATA:

1959-1961 Southern Methodist University

1961-1963

Arlington State College (now University of Texas at Arlington, received B.A. in Psychology in 1963.

1963-1967 University of Florida, received M.A. in 1965 and Ph.D. in Comparative Psychology in 1967.

Publications and Papers:

Williams, J.T. Jr. Cleaning symbiosis in the Florida keys, FAUNA, in Press.

Williams, J.T. Jr. Conditional discrimination learning in a reptile. Paper presented at the meeting of the Animal Behavior Society in Reno during June 1972.

Williams, J.T. Jr. Developmental age and the critical period for imprinting. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1972, 27, 165-166.

Williams, J.T. Jr. & Albiniak, B.A., Jr. Probability learning in a crocodilian. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1972, 27, 165-166.

Williams, J.T. Jr. Cleaning symbiosis on a Florida patch reef. Paper presented at the meeting of the Animal Behavior Society in Logan, Utah, 1971.

Williams, J.T. Jr. & Robertson, S.G. Brightness discrimination learning in calmons. PERCEPTUAL AND MOTOR SKILLS, 1970, 30, 259-262.

Williams, J.T. Jr. Reversal-learning in the spectacled caiman

WHEN IT'S FASHION
THE NAME OF THE GAME IS KNITS!

And the best looking knits and finest in all fashions are at Harvey Cannon, Ltd., Your UNC-W oriented shop for men.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

OPEN NIGHTS 'TIL 10 P.M. - FRIDAY 'TIL 11 P.M.

Yvonne's
DRESS SHOP

FINE FASHIONS PETITES, JRS., MISSES

MARKET PLAZA, 19 S. KERR AVENUE

Continued to page 7

UNC-W Soccer 'Strong'

Friday afternoon, under dark and cloudy skies this sports writer slipped on his shoes and took a stroll out to the soccer field. There practicing were the soccer players, and among them was Jackie Blackmore, a senior at UNC-W. Jack had been one of the three captains on the soccer team last year. I talked with Jackie about the University's soccer team, and its chances for the upcoming season.

Jack told me that the team should have a very good season this year. Last season there were quite a few problems and injuries but the outlook is bright. With the loss of only two players from last year's squad and the arrival of some new talent, Jackie feels certain that the team should have more experience and will be much improved in all areas especially with their depth. The Seahawks will have about sixteen players and may be more that will be able to go all out at any time. "Much of our team's strength right now lies in our very strong defense, while the offense still needs much improvement," Jackie said while talking with me. If the Seahawks can

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON VARSITY SOCCER SCHEDULE 1972

DATE

Tuesday, Sept. 19
Friday, Sept. 22
Saturday, Sept. 23
Thursday, Sept. 28
Friday, Sept. 29
Saturday, Sept. 30
Wednesday, Oct. 4
Saturday, Oct. 7
Wednesday, Oct. 11
Saturday, Oct. 14
Tuesday, Oct. 17
Saturday, Oct. 21
Friday, Oct. 27
Tuesday, Oct. 31

COACH: Calvin Lane

Athletic Director: Bill Brooks

NOTE: Weekday Home Games will be played at 3:30 p.m.

Saturday Home Games will be played at 1:00 p.m.

OPPONENT

St. Andrews College
Madison College
Eastern Mennonite College

Campbell Classic

Jacksonville University
East Carolina University
Campbell College
Pembroke State University
Atlantic Christian College
Methodist College
High Point College
Lynchburg College
N.C. Wesleyan College

SITE

Wilmington, N.C.
Harrisonburg, Va.
Harrisonburg, Va.

Butes Creek, N.C.

Greenville, N.C.
Greenville, N.C.
Bute's Creek, N.C.
Wilmington, N.C.
Wilson, N.C.
Wilmington, N.C.
High Point, N.C.
Wilmington, N.C.
Wilmington, N.C.

Colors: Green and Gold
Team Name: Seahawks

OUR ADVERTISERS ARE RELIABLE.

AQUA
WORLD inc.

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

Soccer Outlook Very Bright

by Eddie Dees

Soccer Coach Calvin Lane forecasts a much improved team for the upcoming season despite the fact that his Seahawks will be facing its most challenging schedule in history. Not only will the Hawks play their grueling schedule against district 29 opponents, but they will also play in two tournaments as well.

A bunker crop of returning lettermen plus several promising newcomers has the second year soccer mentor in an optimistic mood as he prepares his UNC-W squad for a 15-game state Performing with probably the best nucleus of soccer veterans in recent years the Seahawks will face several top-notch opponents.

In the tournaments UNC-W will face NCAA finalist Madison College and probably Erskine College the NAIA finalist of last year. Add to these two soccer powers, Jacksonville Univ. of Florida and perennial powers Campbell, Lynchburg, and St. Andrews of district 2A.

Lane maintains his positive attitude despite a few key graduation losses. Chief reasons for Lane's confidence is the presence of approximately 11 lettermen, including last year's MVP Jackie Blackmore.

Another key beam in Lane's shining light is Steve Boles, the team's second leading scorer and assistant leader of a year ago.

Other key veterans are: Bill Clanchad, Mike Brannon, John Howorth, Kim James, Joe Morgan, Ron Kopacz, Mike Strauss, Mos. Whisnaut, and Charlie Wells.

Top rookie newcomers are: Kevin Rittlinger, from Raleigh; Hal Goodson, Joe Masters, and Vic Jones of New Hanover; and Frank Busnitis and teammate David Wyche of Hoggard.

Campbell and Lynchburg are picked by Coach Lane to battle it out while he rates St. Andrews and his Hawks as contenders.

Forecasting Like Russian Roulette

Picking a winner from the jail-madness that is the Atlantic Coast Conference Football Fight is akin to playing Russian Roulette. Only there is no empty chamber.

For every game, every shot, there is a victim. And the eventual winner deserves more than just a chance at a Bowl Bid. It deserves a citation for bravery beyond the call of duty, hazardous duty pay and the Medal of Honor. It's almost too tough to win.

Most people like the chances of the North Carolina Tar Heels, but don't be surprised to hear rumbles of desert from down Death Valley way. The Tigers of Clemson have strength, talent and depth available.

A new feeling persists in the ACC. A winning team is a necessity. There is not a team in the conference that has not taken great strides in recent months to upgrade its program.

As stated earlier, there is no way on earth to predict the winner of a game in this annual cardiac event, much less the champion. So, naturally, we'll pick all the standings. That ought to draw a little intestinal fortitude. Or ignorance.

We believe the Tar Heels will win 5 of their conference tests and nine overall games. The Heels are strong with potential stars at all positions except in the defense backfield where the Tar Heels have been weak at in recent years. Their only loss will be at the hands of Clemson at Death Valley November 4.

Clemson will win 4 conference games for second place while State, Duke and Maryland will come close to winning 3 conference tests apiece. Wake Forest and Virginia are not to be taken lightly -- however, they just don't have it this year.

No matter what, a strong desire to develop sound football programs now exists. And that is the key in a drive for any type of success

Stay Ahead 4th Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat.

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p.m.

Calvin L. Lane

We are CONCERNED
with your
PREGNANCY PROBLEMS

Feel free to call us collect 215-877-7700

"CONCERNED" A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION
Serving your college campus

Dr. Williams

Continued from page 5

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHOLOGY, 1968, 81, 258-261.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Psychology and pseudolearning. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1968, 11, 159.

Williams, J.T., Jr. & Scott, M.H. Reversal learning in an escape situation. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1968, 11, 177-178.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Factors influencing the vicious circle phenomenon. PSYCHOLOGICAL REPORTS, 1967, 21, 633-642.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Comparison of maze learning on spatial and confounded discriminations by calimans and toads. PERCEPTUAL AND MOTOR SKILLS, 1967, 25, 585-588.

Williams, J.T., Jr. A test for dominance of cues during maze learning by toads. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1967, 9, 259-260.

Williams, J.T., Jr. A test for dominance of cues in the spectacled caliman. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1967, 8, 280.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Efficient motivation for studying crocodilian learning. PSYCHONOMIC SCIENCE, 1967, 8, 279.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Trends in comparative psychology. Invited address at the South Carolina Psychological Association banquet in Charleston, 1967.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Reversal learning by the crocodilian. CAIMAN SCIENCE

EROPS. Paper presented at the meeting of the Psychonomic Society in Chicago, 1967.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Successive habit reversal learning by the spectacled caliman. Doctoral dissertation, University of Florida, 1967.

Williams, J.T., Jr. The effect of intertrial interval upon vicious circle behavior. NEWSLETTER FOR RESEARCH IN PSYCHOLOGY, 1967, 19, 5-7.

Williams, J.T., Jr. A simple, rugged, and efficient shock scrambler. NEWSLETTER FOR RESEARCH IN PSYCHOLOGY, 1967, 19, 8-10.

Williams, J.T., Jr. A test for cue dominance in the spectacled caliman. NEWSLETTER FOR RESEARCH IN PSYCHOLOGY, 1967, 19, 8-10.

Williams, J.T., Jr. The effect of intertrial interval on vicious circle behavior. Paper presented at the meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association in Atlanta, 1967.

Salzberg, H.C. & Williams, J.T., Jr. Effect of three types of feedback on concept formation in chronic schizophrenics. PSYCHOLOGICAL REPORTS, 1956, 18, 831-837.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Vicious circle behavior with variable and fixed locations of shock. Masters thesis, University of Florida, 1965.

Williams, J.T., Jr. Participated in a symposium on 'The effects of punishment: Critique of different theoretical explanations of vicious circle behavior' (with J.S. Brown, R.C. Martin, K.B. Melvin & J.A. Donahoe) at the meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association in Atlanta, 1965.

Williams, J.T., Jr. & Kimmel, H.D. Vicious circle behavior with variable location of punishment. Paper presented at the meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association in Gaithersburg, 1964.

Williams, J.T., Jr., McCann, G., & Kuenstler, R. The partial reinforcement effect following four training trials. Paper presented at the meeting of the Southwestern Psychological Association in Dallas, 1963.

Job experience within psychology: 1967-present. Assistant professor of psychology, University of South Carolina.

1969. Taught developmental psychology at summer institute at Columbia. 1967. Taught part time (physiological psychology) at Augusta College.

1956-57. Research technician at the VA Hospital in Augusta, Georgia.

1965-1966. Graduate assistant to Dr. B.N. Bunnell at the University of Florida.

1964-1965. Experimental psychology trainee at the VA Hospital in Augusta.

1963-1964. Graduate assistant to Dr. H.D. Kimmel at the University of Florida. 1962-1963. Student assistant to Dr. Garvin McCann and caretaker of the cat laboratory at Arlington State College.

Memberships, honors, and awards:

1972. Became a member of Sigma Xi.

1971. Became a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Littoral Society, and the International Oceanographic Foundation.

1968. Became a member of the Psychonomic Society and the Animal Behavior Society. Added to the consultant list for regional va hospitals.

1965. Elected secretary of the University of Florida chapter of Psi Chi.

1964. Became student affiliate of Southeastern Psychological Association.

1962. Selected for membership in Phi Kappa Theta honorary scholastic society at Arlington State College.

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

Visit Our Mod

Mod World

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
799-0990

ATTENTION SENIORS PLACEMENT INTERVIEW SCHEDULE

Date	Name of Firm
Interviewing
October 4, 1972	Burroughs Wellcome (Drug Company)
October 9, 1972	Fieldcrest Mills
October 16, 1972	Haskins & Sel, S. CPA
October 16, 1972	Marine Corps Selection Team
October 25, 1972	Internal Revenue Service
October 26, 1972	Wachovia Bank & Trust Company
November 1, 1972	R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

November 23, 1972 U.S. Navy
Seniors interested in participating in the interview program should go by the Placement Office in Alderman Administration Building, Room 113, to register and set up interview appointments. For seniors interested in the Teacher Placement Program, please get in touch with the Education Department in King Hall (Education-Psychology Building).
Other firms may be added to this list. Please check in the Placement Office for additions.

Interested in Interviewing
Students Majoring in
All Majors
All Majors
Accounting
All Majors
All Majors, especial y
business and accounting
All Majors, especial y
business and math
All Majors, especial y
business
All Majors

Overnite Canoe/Camping Trips

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

Light Foot Expedition Company

Box 326

Bill Clark

Wrightsville Beach

Phone 256-3478

Furniture CITY

North 17 Shopping Center

5554

SNCAE Boosts Member Drive

The Student North Carolina Association of Educators on the UNC-W campus is now boosting a membership drive. Prospective teachers in all fields have been extended an invitation to join.

Any interested person may contact Laura Babb or Judy Evans to obtain a membership card. Mrs. Eakins, the secretary for the education department in the Arnold Kimsey King building, also has these cards. The membership fee is $6.50 per year. Payment of this fee enables one to be a member of the national, state, and local organizations and entitles them to receive two magazines a month. The membership drive will continue until December 1; however, the sooner a student pays his fee the sooner he will get his magazines, according to UNC-W SNCAE President Laura Babb.

A student may go to meetings of the SNCAE before paying his fee. The UNC-W chapter meets the third Monday night in the month at 7:30 in the Kenan building. The first meeting is set for September 18. Meetings consist of interesting and informative programs for persons considering becoming a teacher.

There is more to being a member of SNCAE than just attending meetings and receiving magazines," says Babb. "Each member has the chance to meet other prospective teachers, members who are doing their practice teaching get legal protection, members receive a pamphlet four or five times a year from the Student National Education Association, and also, members get the news bulletin from the NCAE. There is a main project -- such as, tutoring students in the public school system -- that is planned each year. In October the members give a tea or coffee hour for the faculty members. The officers and several other delegates attend the State convention of SNCAE in April. Near the end of April, the UNC-W chapter of SNCAE gives a banquet to honor the student teachers and their sponsoring teachers.

"Being a member of SNCAE means that a student has a professional attitude about his future career. The Student National Education Association is one of the largest pre-professional organizations in the United States. Last year the students at UNC-W showed their professional attitude by making the UNC-W chapter of SNCAE one of the largest in North Carolina. All prospective teachers at UNC-W this year have a chance to be professional. Now is the time to join SNCAE."

THE

etc.

SEAHAWK

Advertising

Circulation

NEEDS

Typing

Reporting

YOU

Seahawk Dating Service

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

1. Fill out the coupon below and drop it in the box for this purpose located in the Administration building adjacent to the cashiers office. Please remember your number as each one is different and it is the only way that the Seahawk has of contacting you.

2. In the next issue of the Seahawk, there will be dating instructions. You will be matched up as compatibly as possible from the questionnaire.

3. No one will ever know who you are except your date, if you decide to date him or her. EACH QUESTIONNAIRE AND DATE WILL BE HELD IN THE STRICTEST CONFIDENCE.

SEX _____
 AGE _____
 CLASS _____
 RELIGION _____
 RACE _____
 RATE YOURSELF POLITICALLY : Liberal Moderate Conservative
 MAJOR _____
 HAIR COLOR _____
 EYE COLOR _____
 HEIGHT _____
 WEIGHT _____
 DO YOU OWN CAR _____ IF YES AND FEMALE, WOULD YOU DRIVE ON DATE
 HOBBIES _____
 WHERE WOULD YOU LIKE TO GO ON DATE _____
 DO YOU APPROVE OF SEX BEFORE MARRIAGE _____
 RATE YOURSELF ON LOOKS: GREAT GOOD FAIR POOR
 DESCRIBE THE MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR YOUR CHOICE OF DATE: _____

DESCRIBE YOUR OWN PERSONALITY: _____

FEMALE ONLY: Is money a factor in your dating choices? If so, explain: _____

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

Vol. XV No. 3

For Students, By Students

Wednesday, October 4, 1972

EIGHT PAGES

—Jack London, America's Fastest Pickpocket

ESP Expert To Speak Oct. 4

Noted expert on psychic phenomena, Jack London, will speak here on October 4, at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Mr. London has a background of years of successful personal appearances before leading civic, service and fraternal organizations. Known as the man who beats psychics at their own game, London is in constant demand by law enforcement agencies to lecture on the problems of "Prediction," and "How to Read Minds."

Mr. London has undertaken a daring experiment. On August 31 of this year, Mr. London mailed a parcel to Raleigh Todd of the Fine Arts Committee.

The parcel, which is actually a locked and sealed metal deposit box, contains a prediction of an event of local, national or possibly international import. This box is on display in the pub.

On the date of his appearance, Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. at the Kenan Auditorium, the parcel will be opened. Mr. London believes his prediction will prove to be correct!

Psychic Vision, Telepathy and Clairvoyance are some of the forms of PSI phenomena that Mr. London will cover during his talk and demonstration.

differentiating between the true psychic and the fraudulent one.

Hundreds of people have said that seeing Jack London's program is the most valuable time that they have spent, because through his informative presentation, they have learned to protect themselves and their families against the wiles of the thieves and confidence-men who infest the periphery of the psychic world.

Mr. London has appeared on television with Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas and Merv Griffin. He has been a popular guest on, "The Today Show," "Play Your Hunch," and has helped John Daly stump the experts on

"What's My Line?"

In his talk Mr. London answers such questions as: How do you separate fact from fantasy in ESP phenomena? Is the observation of psychic phenomena by scientists illuminating, or does it cloud the issue? Why is Astrology so popular today? Why is such a vast multitude of the intelligentsia involved in the Psychic Scene?

His tours have taken him halfway around the world, through Canada, the West Indies, Europe and the United States. He was featured not long ago in the New Yorker magazine, and in addition he has authored: "Psychic Vision,"

New Instructors

UNC-W has enriched its History Department with two very capable instructors for the 1972-73 academic term.

Miss Thelma B. Yarborough, instructor in history, obtained her BA degree at D.C. Teachers' College in Washington. She received her MA degree from Memphis State University and received this in May, 1972. Miss Yarborough enthusiastically states that she enjoys her classes.

Mr. Richard A. Cooper, instructor in history also, obtained his BA degree at Duke University in June, 1966. After college graduation, he served as a teaching assistant at UNC-Chapel Hill. Following this, he obtained his MA degree in January, 1970. Mr. Cooper is presently completing work for his PhD from UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dept. Slates Poetry Contest

The English Department of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington has announced its annual University Poetry Contest. The contest will be open to any student who is enrolled at UNC-W. Cash prizes will be awarded, but the amounts have not been determined this date.

Fifty dollars was the first prize the last two years, and the amount is expected to be higher this year. Smaller cash prizes will be given to the runners-up. Entries should be submitted to the secretary of the English department, whose office is located on the second floor of Kenan Hall.

There is a limit of three poems per student. Deadline for submitting to the contest is noon, October 16.

A panel of three judges from the English department will decide the winners and then the prizes will be awarded at a reception for all those submitting on Oct. 19. The winning poems will be published in the fall edition of Atlantis, the school's literary magazine.

Tim Simms was the contest winner last year, and Kathi Beall, then a freshman and now studying in Spain, was the winner of the inaugural contest.

Register 2,570 Vehicles

As of September 15, 1972 there are 2570 vehicles registered with UNC-W's Campus Security, including bikes, more than one car per student, and motorcycles; and 1840 parking spaces available on campus including the residence hall parking area. During any given time, approximately 75% of the total number of registered vehicles will be on the campus. On Mondays Wednesdays, Fridays, particularly between 9:30 a.m. - 11 a.m., the central parking areas (lots A, B, C, D, E, F, G) are usually substantially filled. Lot J, or South 40 by the tennis courts, is the remaining lot available in the general classroom area. During these congested hours, Campus Security has noted that South 40 has never been over 1/3 full, even when the other centrally located lots were filled to capacity. The point is then, that if designated spaces in other lots are not available, there will probably be ample parking spaces in South 40.

Studies are now being done to determine how much more parking space needs to be made available. In the future, the Business Office has been authorized to spend up to $45,000 for student parking, but this money will be borrowed, not appropriated, and will have to be repaid. Upon completion of the parking study, these funds will be used as necessary to increase the number of parking places and to improve the parking area of South 40. In addition, a parking lot will accompany the new Marine Science and Oceanography building to be built in the near future, meaning more spaces for the congested area.

Ibsen's 'Ghost'

The University Theatre of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington now has in rehearsal Henrik Ibsen's modern classic "Ghosts." "Ghosts" combines the bleakest realism with an intense project against everything that shackles the individual in his pursuit of happiness and integrity. This statement places the play right in the middle of our contemporary life. Although the play was written in 1881 it is as contemporary as today's struggles between established authority and individuals who want to question the present validity of that authority. The play centers on the painful stifling of individual expression in a world that is governed by "duties" that will not tolerate questions.

On a structural level "Ghosts" stands as the finest "well made play" ever written. Ibsen had discarded the pretty little devices of "A Doll's House" and increased the reality of his dialogue and dramatic development, until the play became an example

(Continued on page 4)

SEASQUAWKS

In the wake of the busts...

by Jay Walker

 Reprinted by permission
 The Journal, UNCC
 Sept. 5 1972

You may have heard that nineteen UNCC students have been charged with selling drugs. It rated a six column headline in the Charlotte News. The Observer, with a better sense of proportion, put it on 12A with the obituaries. The News may come on like an emaciated National Enquirer, but they know what sells newspapers. A big drug bust/scandal at UNCC appeals to the prurient interests of the panting masses they write for.

D. W. Colvard, our Chancellor, was put in a very ticklish spot. His prepared statement was the source of three quotes in a related article entitled, "Chancellor Anxious to Nip Campus Drug Sales." They are as follows:

"...we are anxious to have any person involved apprehended."

"We are cooperating fully with the State Bureau of Investigation and are encouraging them to apprehend persons who may be dispensing drugs in our dormitories."

"We shall make every effort to prevent any person from illegally dispensing drugs on our campus."

In view of the fact of the drug arrests, these statements are not surprising, indeed, they are what should be said.

Many students have blamed various University agencies for the busts, most prominently Security. The story goes something like this: In January, February and March the SBI had an undercover agent, or rather a student informer, by the name of John Walker, sign up for courses and come to UNCC for the purpose of finding "pushers." He did. Recently he "surfaced" i.e. blew his cover and signed out the nineteen warrants — all people he has allegedly purchased drugs from. Here's where security comes in. On August 25, the agents came to campus security chief Jerry Hudson and told him they had warrants for nineteen students and in effect asked him did he want to get them or did he want them to do it. Jerry, picturing riots and all sorts of trouble, volunteered to apprehend the people named in the warrants. He did this by going to the person's room and telling them that the SBI was on campus with a warrant for their arrest and would they please come down to the security office? And so it went.

Back to the Chancellor. When asked to clarify his statements to the press, he commented, "We are not trying to bust students. We're trying to help students and preserve a desirable living environment on campus."

"Disciplinary actions should be used...our desire is to have the student courts handle each situation on its merits." "We want to help students have maturing experiences... providing the maximum of freedom within the bounds of the law and with respect to the rights of other students."

Dean of Students, Dennis Rash, said that there are two things that students must realize. First, that the University is not a sanctuary from the law. The laws are enforced here the same way they are in the community. Second, the SBI will come on the campus without the permission or knowledge of University officials. And when they investigate, they don't let anybody know what they're doing... nor do they have to. The same goes for any lawful investigatory agency.

Rash also said, "Once the spotlight is turned... many other things will follow." This means that now that there has been one bust, in all probability other agencies will launch investigations on this campus.

Rash said that he has just ordered a book on both the prosecution and defense of narcotics cases and that if anyone is interested it is available in his office.

There is some doubt as to whether the University actually passes along information about drug offenses. In the News article Rash said, "If we get hard information about anyone pushing drugs on campus, we pass it along, too. They told us a long time back that if we run into instances like this to let them handle it." He said when University officials get information about drug activities, "usually rank rumors" — the information is passed to the SBI.

However, an article on the University's drug policy which appeared in the November 1, 1971 issue of the Journal said this:

But Rash says the University does not call the SBI to alert them to drug offenders and does not ask them to come on campus.

"When they come, we have an obligation to cooperate. But cooperation doesn't mean initiating investigations," Rash said.

Although these statements are seemingly contradictory, they needn't be. The overall impression is that the University doesn't really care to involve itself with passing information to law enforcement authorities. This is as it should be. One reason is that it results in bad publicity.

As Rash said in the Journal article, "Our function is to educate, not to investigate."

The University has a discipline committee which is in the process of being reconstituted. The disciplinary action taken ranges from probation to suspension, however the case is not referred to civil authorities. The aim of the committee is to educate and rehabilitate — not primarily to punish.

The thing that cannot be stressed strongly enough is that if you are doing dope — be cool about it. Smoking at concerts is not cool — smoking before you go is. Going door to door with garbage bags full of kids is uncool — getting some for a very trusted friend is. Discretion, it is said, is the better part of valor. Until the drug laws are changed it is very wise to cover your ass in every way possible. We are living in the height of a period of prohibition, which we hope will someday end. Until that time all you have to do is be cool and hope for the best.

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Frank

"I'll have the LONDON BROIL MEDIUM RARE, SIMMERED IN ITS JUICES, BROILED IN BUTTER MUSHROOMS, ASPARAGUS TIPS, CHEF'S SALAD..."

© FRANKLY SPEAKING Post Office Box 1523 East Lansing, Michigan 48823

The Seahawk

Editor..... Ron Dunn
 Assistant Editor..... Mike Jones
 Advertising Manager..... Pam French
 Reporting Staff..... Cathy Tyner

Beverly Causey
 Sharon Wolfe
 Eddie Deese
 Richard Suggs
 Robert Braxton

Photography..... Jan Truman
 Wayne Huggins
 Circulation..... Don Hamilton
 Mike Lefever

Faculty Advisor..... Thomas Lupton

Faces of Opinion

Question:

—What do you, as a freshman, think of UNC-W?

1- Phyllis Whitley — It is nice and there are a lot of nice people.

2- Debbie Gore — Love it, but visitation hours are unfair.

3- Judy McDougall — Different than I expected — much more enjoyable.

4- Etelea Brinkley — I like it ok now that I've met some people and know my way around campus.

5- Patty Whitt — The people are great and I like the school.

6- Dan Sykes — I really enjoy it and it's better than being at home.

7- Keven Rutlinger — It's Great!

8- Paul Sisrare — I like it. The campus and faculty are nice.

9- Rick Alessi — It's alright, I imagine.

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist

Question: Is it advisable or is it harmful to have sexual intercourse during your menstrual period?

Also, I have always been very irregular; my periods range from four to six weeks apart and even eight weeks apart twice, and last for four to five days never more. Is this an indication that something is wrong? —Signed, D.C.

Dear D.C.: As to the advisability of having intercourse during a menstrual cycle, we leave that up to the individual couples involved. We know of no scientific evidence that has reported "harm" in having sexual intercourse during a menstrual period. With regards to your irregularity, please see your local physician.

Question: Last year, I took birth control pills for three months, and did not have a period during that time. My doctor said it was unusual, but not harmful. I stopped taking the pills, and then had a period two months later. My question is that I would like to take the pills again, but I am afraid of what they are doing to my system.

Could you please comment on this — or suggest someone who could tell me exactly what my problem is? —Signed, Was Scared.

Dear Was Scared: It is not unusual for a patient that is on birth control pills to have scanty periods or to miss a period. We suggest that before you start on the pills again, however, that you see a physician either in the Health Education Clinic or student infirmary for a thorough physical examination and repeat cancer smear.

Question: How large are the various IUDs and is insertion painful? —Signed, M.B.

Dear M.B.: Intrauterine devices range in size from a quarter to the size of your thumb nail. The amount of pain depends on what part of the menstrual cycle you are in when the IUD is inserted. We usually recommend that the intrauterine device be inserted during a menstrual period.

The smallest IUD is a delcon shield. The largest is Ortho's gynacoil.

Question: I heard you speak about two years ago, and I seem to remember you saying that douching is not necessary. I am married now and I would like to know if this is true and why. If douching is necessary, what method do you most recommend? Also, how effective are Norforms? —Signed, Interested.

Dear Interested: Douching is not necessary because it is felt that in most cases it will alter the normal acidity in the protective environment of the vagina, and thus may actually encourage infection. However, most women want to douche right after a menstrual period, and most doctors will recommend an occasional douche with a mild vinegar and water solution — usually one to two tablespoons of white distilled vinegar to a quart of warm water.

We feel that the commercially prepared solutions are not necessary and the most they do is sensitize the sensitive vaginal mucosa. We are not aware of any studies that have compared Norform to douching with vinegar and water.

Question: In your article of Monday, September 20, 1971, you answered a question from "Inquisitive Reader" regarding male circumcision in older males. I am approximately six years older than Inquisitive and am on the verge of getting married next year and am considering the same operation; however, some of the comments I have heard regarding the long and painful convalescence period have held me back. How long is the convalescence period and how painful will this time period be for an older male? Also, how long must the male remain in the hospital? —Signed, Abhors pain and suffering.

Dear Abhors pain and suffering: The convalescence period usually lasts from three to four weeks. The pain varies with the individual. At the present time circumcisions are done in the hospital and the patient stays in the hospital overnight. The surgeon's fee runs somewhere between $70 and $80, however, this may be misleading since other costs have to be figured in. This could include recovery room fee, use of hospital bed, anesthesia time and laboratory fees. This could bring the cost up to somewhere between $200 and $300.

We understand that plans are being made to start doing circumcisions in the clinic and this would certainly reduce the cost considerably. Please contact the Urology department of N.C. Memorial Hospital for further details.

(Questions should be addressed to Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist, in care of The Daily Tar Heel, Student Union, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.)

Bulletin Board

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Dr. Doss cut his left foot Sunday. Now he is going to classes on crutches.

Student SCNAE meets every 3rd Monday.

Student teachers and kindergarten began September 18.

COUNSELING AND TESTING

Information concerning the GRE test can be obtained by writing Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey, 08540, or by contacting counseling and testing in A-217. Information about the LSAT can also be obtained from counseling and testing.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Football is coming. Look for it around the first of October in the Student Services building. Ten cents per game.

MATH DEPARTMENT

The Math Club will meet Tuesday, Sept. 26 at 11:30 a.m. in room C-129. Officers will be elected and plans for this year will be discussed. Math majors and all other interested students are invited to attend.

LIBRARY

A collection of rare books and maps is on display now in the lobby of the library courtesy of Dr. Marie A. Powles. Some parts of the genuine antique collection dates back to the 17th century. The maps and books contained in the collection come from the United States and England. Three books are by George Sandys, a poet renaissance man, and administrator of Jamestown. Dr. Powles' doctorate dissertation was on this man.

SOCIOLOGY

Newly formed sociology club meets 2nd Thursday of each month at 11:30 a.m. Club has presently approved constitution, which will soon come before the SGA. The club's purposes are to further the interest in sociology, create a means for students to learn about post graduate, research, and application work. The club is open only to sociology majors, and the advisor is Miss Betty McEntire.

Approximately 40 students taking courses in the sociology department are to work with the new Juvenile Services Center of New Hanover County. The students will work in the capacity of juvenile counselors, etc.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

For the first time this year the English Department is offering the services of an English Laboratory. It is located in the King Hall, room 202, directed by Mrs. Isabell L. Foushee, is open Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30-11:30 a.m. and Monday through Thursday 1:30-4:00 p.m. No appointment is necessary. If you are plagued with composition problems, such as spelling, grammar, or paragraph development do not hesitate to seek help. You may discover that you can overcome your writing deficiencies so that you can write more sensible, effective exposition. Each student will work independently with cassettes or programmed texts on a plan designed to meet his particular needs. This work will be evaluated but not graded. ALL students are WELCOME.

There are two openings for senior class senators. If you are a Senior and have a 2.0 quality point average and would like to be considered for one of these openings contact Jack Paul, Senior class President through the SGA or Fledgling Office in the Pub.

SGA OFFICE

Any freshman wishing to run for freshman class officers must pick up a form to announce his intention to run from the SGA office in the Pub, S-105, between 10:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m., Monday - Friday. Deadline September 29, Friday, Chairman, Board of Elections.

HEALTH SERVICES

Infirmary hours on campus: 9 a.m. - 12 noon, Monday - Friday, residence hall. After hours, call Dr. Daniel Gottowi and identify yourself as a UNC-W student.

HISTORY AND POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Information on LSAT — contact Dr. James Dixon, A205H.

Organizational meeting of the history club was Thursday, September 21, in A-204, 11:30 a.m. In the past, the club has had field trips to historic sites and has presented interesting programs.

If you are as great as you think you are then Rush for Alpha Phi Omega. The fraternity of great men for great men. Rush week October 2nd through 6th. Watch for posters indicating time and place.

The photographer taking class pictures for the year book will be on campus on the following dates: October 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10 and 11. These pictures will be taken in the PUB, upstairs. Watch for posters indicating the times.

If you are interested in working on the Fledgling (yearbook) staff please come by the Fledgling office (upstairs in the Pub). If there is no one in the office please leave a note with your telephone number on it or indicate other means of getting in contact with you, or contact Jack Paul, editor.

Books Donated

The personal library of Dr. E. L. Mackie, math professor for many years at Chapel Hill, has been donated to the math department of UNC-W. The library contains many rare collections of math books that will soon become available to UNC-W students through Randall Library.

The personal library is donated to UNC-W by Dr. Mackie's daughter, Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon, drama professor at UNC-W.

MAP To Give Students A Chance

When Charles E. entered the University of North Carolina at Wilmington as a freshman two years ago, he had all the earmarks of a good student. His high school record was well above average, and his scores on college admissions tests were very high.

Since that time Charlie has been struggling just to stay in school. He has changed his major three times and he constantly complains that his course work is "irrelevant." He is bored, and his grades show it. He says he can't force himself to "carry out the machine-like mental operations" which he thinks are required to make good grades.

Susan C. is a sophomore at NC-W this year. Like Charlie, she has compiled an undistinguished academic record in spite of her ability. Her problem, though, is not boredom — it is time. As a freshman she had to work almost full-time at an off-campus job in order to meet her educational expenses.

Cynthia R., also a sophomore, is an honor student who has no motivational problems. She made Dean's List both semesters in her first year of College and has her sights set on a career as a research chemist. Cynthia's interest in science runs deep, and to her the classroom is only the beginning of the learning experience. But so far that experience has been confined to the classroom.

Charles, Susan and Cynthia have a great deal in common. All three have demonstrated, either through achievement or by testing, that they possess great creative ability. But for various reasons — lack of motivation, money or opportunity — they have yet to realize their potential.

Hopefully, this situation can be corrected. Charlie, Susan and Cynthia are among some 40 students participating in UNC-W's new Multiple Abilities Program, which is designed to give promising students a chance to develop their creative potential.

Financed for a three-year period by a $300,000 gift from an anonymous donor and $100,000 from state, federal and private sources, the program will involve students in original research projects and creative tasks covering the entire academic spectrum. The idea for the program originated with Dr. Gerald Shinn, professor of philosophy and religion at UNC-W, and the funding came about in large measure through his efforts.

"We don't expect miracles, but we feel our chances for success are good," said Dr. Jack B. Levy, a chemistry professor who is directing the program. "We are attacking the major obstacles which bar students from developing to their full potential."

As far as motivation is concerned, Levy said, "It is an established fact that in many cases intellectual abilities such as creativity are ignored in the classroom and many students are 'turned off' by the usual academic program. What we hope to do is get them 'turned on' again, to put some excitement in the learning process for them."

Honor students, such as Cynthia, will benefit from the opportunity to expand their knowledge. The Multiple Abilities Program will incorporate the university's traditional honors program, which in the past has involved only selected top students in individual research. And students like Susan who have financial problems will not to every writer who sought to create naturalness in the theatre. "Ghosts" set the stage for playwrights who wanted to add "Soul" to their dramas rather than merely cutting up a few hunks of meat, dicing a few carrots and potatoes, adding some vegetables then mixing well and stirring up a stew of a plot. With Ibsen, content and style were integrated into a solid drama that produced a total effect that did not need to be made palatable by the ever present tricks of the theatrical trade.

Ibsen's

(Continued from front)

Henrik Ibsen was a pioneer of the modern theatre who wanted to expand the importance of world theatre. In a letter to a friend he said: "It seems to me that the time had come for moving some boundary posts." In "Ghosts" Ibsen does indeed move some boundary posts and he also moves many theatre going people. In the past few years Ibsen has undergone a fantastic revival on both the professional stage and the non-professional. This success is not supported by theatre tricks but is supported by the depth of humanity that cannot be missed in a play by Henrik Ibsen.

He was able to touch the humanity of all and the University Theatre will do its best to present the soul of Ibsen's "Ghosts."

This production is under the direction of W. Terry Rogers with Tim Wesner serving as scenic designer and technical director. The cast is composed of Vicki Daun as Mrs. Alving, Ed Danilowicz as Pastor Manders, Mark Barefoot as Oswald, Becki Owens as Regina and David Brickley as Engstrand. Rounding out the production unit is Jane Divine as the assistant director.

ACM WORLD INC.

Professional
Diving
Inspection

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5025 WINGTOWN AV.

FOUNTAIN

REAL ESTATE

M. L. FOUNTAIN, SR.

RESIDENTIAL SALES
COMMERCIAL SALES
APPRAISALS and LEASES

Serving Wilmington With Reliable & Dependable
Service For Nearly A Decade

791-5193

1409 39th
JUST OFF OLEANDER DR.

We Want Your Business
UNIVERSITY OFFICE
WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat.

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p. m.

Seahawk Sports

Andrews Defeat Hawks 4-0

by Robert Braxton

Tuesday afternoon, St. Andrews College handed a 4-0 defeat to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington in the opening soccer match of the season for the Seahawks.

The sluggish Seahawks could never get anything started as St. Andrews, also a member of NAIA District 29, moved out ahead early and led 3-0 at the half. The second half for UNC-W was much the same as the first as the Seahawks could not manage much of an offensive showing. St. Andrews added another goal in the second half making the final outcome, St. Andrews 4 and the Seahawks 0.

Richard Latshaw scored twice to spark the Knights' victory with both goals coming in the first half. Other scores for the Knights were Don Cooper and Charles Hales who added single goals.

The only bright spot for the Seahawks was the outstanding play of goalie Bill

Watkins. Bill made some fantastic stops of the St. Andrews goal attempts. As the dominating Knights had 22 attempts while the Seahawks made only six shots at the goal.

Coach Calvin Lane, head soccer coach at UNC-W, told this reporter after the game that he blamed much of the sluggishness of the Seahawks on the fact that they were not in their top physical condition, and that they did not play as aggressively as they should have on offense. He also said that the Seahawks were a much better team than what they showed on the field yesterday, and the Seahawks should be able to bounce back.

Go Hawks

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON VARSITY SOCCER SCHEDULE 1972

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE
Tuesday, Sept. 19	St. Andrews College	Wilmington, N C
Friday, Sept. 22	Madison College	Harrisonburg, Va.
Saturday, Sept. 23	Eastern Mennonite College	Harrisonburg, Va.
Thursday, Sept. 28
Friday, Sept. 29	Campbell College	Buies Creek, N C
Saturday, Sept. 30	Jacksonville University	Greenville, N C
Wednesday, Oct. 4	East Carolina University	Greenville, N C
Saturday, Oct. 7	Campbell College	Buies Creek, N C
Wednesday, Oct. 11	Pembroke State University	Wilmington, N C
Saturday, Oct. 14	Atlantic Christian College	Wilson, N C
Tuesday, Oct. 17	Methodist College	Wilmington, N C
Saturday, Oct. 21	High Point College	High Point, N C
Friday, Oct. 27	Lynchburg College	Wilmington, N C
Tuesday, Oct. 31	N C Wesleyan College	Wilmington, N C
COACH: Calvin Lane
Athletic Director: Bill Brooks
NOTE: Weekday Home Games will be played at 3:30 p.m.
Saturday Home Games will be played at 1:00 p.m.
Colors: Green and Gold
Team Name: Seahawks

NFL Football - 'Excitement Plus'

by Richard Suggs

From now until the end of January, the madness that is called professional football will grip some 60 to 70 million Americans every weekend. Most of the knocking, smashing, running, and breaking will occur on the playing fields, but a considerable amount will also occur in living rooms from coast to coast as distraught wives try in vain to uproot their huddles from in front of the TV set. For many, pro football has become more than just a game; it's a way of life. It's not too hard to understand why. The players get bigger, faster, and stronger every year, and the stages of frenzy and excitement that are sometimes reached late in a game as two teams battle to the wire border on extreme fanaticism. The game is now an art and a science, and a shoe-string tackle that saves a touchdown can be as pretty as a ballet.

The League is split into two conferences, the National and the American. Each conference has three divisions, the Eastern, Central, and Western. At the end of the regular season, the winners of each division plus the two runners up with the best record from each conference will vie in a playoff series for the right to play in the Super Bowl, the sports event that packs more glamour, excitement, fans, and money in a three hour period than any other.

Here are this season's predictions:

The Eastern Division of the AFC is the toughest division to figure. While Buffalo and New England are seemingly out of it and will figure only as spoilers, Miami, Baltimore, and the New York Jets are rated almost even. The Dolphins showed a great deal of strength in last Sunday's 20-10 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs and must be rated a slight favorite. In Bob Griese, Jim Kiick, Mercury Morris, Larry Csonka, and Paul Warfield, the Dolphins have five of the most talented offensive players to grace the NFL in a long time. The defense is young, strong, and hungry, and will provide a lot of grief for opposition offenses this fall.

As long as Joe Namath is at the helm, the Jets are a threat to beat anybody. There are many other fine athletes on the squad, but somehow Namath acts as a catalyst, and everyone plays twice as well when he is in there. The Jet offense is strong but the defense may be a little suspect, especially in the secondary. Such talented youngsters as Riggins, Bell, Caster, Barkum, and Tannen will go a long way in deciding the Jets' fate.

The strength of the Baltimore Colts lies in age and experience. The team has to be one of the smartest around. The desire of the great Johnny Unitas and the many other veterans on the squad to go out in a blaze of glory will be hard to beat.

The Pittsburgh Steelers have not won a title of any kind in their entire history. Behind the leadership and the passing game of Terry Bradshaw the Steelers should make amends this year and win the Central Division. Houston is out of it and Cleveland and Cincy will offer only token threats, especially if the Steelers get off to a good start and gain confidence.

Kansas City will win in the AFC West. Despite last Sunday's lackluster defeat to the Dolphins, most experts will still agree that the Chiefs should go all the way to the Super Bowl. There has never been a more talented 40-man squad in the history of the game. It will all boil down to execution and desire. The Chiefs are the biggest and fastest team in either league. Leon Dawson is one of the game's premier QB's and he has the enviable good fortune to be able to work with Otis

Taylor, the leagues best gamebreaker from his wide receiver position. The rest of the offense is strong, fast, and experienced, a tough combination to beat. Defense is just as strong. The line is monstrous, the secondary quick, alert, and larcenous, and the linebacking trio of Lanier, Bell, and Lynch is simply the best in the game. The kicking game features Stenerud and Wilson, the best placekicker and punter in the league. Put all this together under the leadership of Coach Hal Stram, the Game's most brilliant innovator, and it should be the year of the Chief.

Despite the strength of the Chiefs, it will probably be another year of butting it down to the wire with the Oakland Raiders. The rivalry between KC and Oak is now the strongest in the game, and anything can and usually does happen. Oakland is well

(Continued on page 6)

s
e
a h
a w k

needs
your

Help!!

NFL - Continued

(Continued from page 5)

fortified at every position and a very rough football team. If all else fails, the Raiders turn to ageless George Blanda, the great quarterback and kicker who pulls a miracle out of his pocket every other weekend. He gives millions of middle-aged men a new lease on life everytime he steps on the field. San Diego and Denver appear much stronger but should be no match for KC and Oak.

Dallas Cowboys should win in the NFC East, although they may get a strong argument from the Wash Redskins. The Cowboys are loaded with pure talent and do not have a weakness anywhere. Roger Staubach's injury may hurt, but it could be Craig Morton's time to shine. The dedication of Coach Tom Landry and such premier athletes as Hill, Hayes, Garrison, Lilly, Pugh, Alworth, and Rengo should keep Dallas on top, even though things are stirring in the nation's capitol. Coach George Allen took the Wash Redskins and made them a great football team overnight, and the Redskins will be tough to stop this year. The biggest dilemma Allen has is deciding which of his great quarterbacks, Sonny Jurgenson or Bill Kilmer, should run the ballclub. The Cowboys should repeat but Jurge, Taylor, Brown, et al will have something else in mind. St. Louis, the N.Y. Giants, and Phila will bring up the rear of the division. Minnesota will win in the NFC's black and blue central division, but Detroit and surprising GB could make it close. The Chicago Bears will hibernate. The Vikings have been the terror of the NFL for the past three years; their only problem has been the inability to win the big games, a problem that has seemingly transferred from Dallas to Minnesota. The defense is acclaimed as the game's best, and Alan Page became the first defensive player in history to be named the League's MVP. The offense has been no more than adequate, but scrambling Fran Tarkenton returns to Minn with his bag of magic tricks and things should hop this year. This could be the Viking year if the desire is still there. Detroit has a club that just can't seem to get over the top. Injuries and the loss of one key game every year have held them back. The Pack is seemingly back as Coach Dan Devine has implemented his system well. John Brockington and MacArthur Lane will give the Packers a crunching ground attack that may be second to none.

San Francisco and Los Angeles should battle right down to the wire for the NFC West championship. From here it looks like San Francisco must be given a slight edge. The 49ers are a solid ball club with an outstanding leader in John Brodie. The ground and aerial games mix well, and the 49ers will seldom beat themselves. The Rams are more of a razzle-dazzle outfit since the firing of Tommy Prothro. Los Angeles is another team that has been right around the top for the last few years without being able to make the big step. The health and performance of Romar Gabriel will go a long way towards deciding who wins in the west.

Atlanta should be much improved, but most of the noise in New Orleans will come from the French Quarter.

It will be a long and exciting season and anything can happen. To this writer, it looks like it will be the Chiefs and the Cowboys, or possibly the Vikings, in the Super Bowl. It could be Houston and Atlanta, though, and it will be the element of surprise that will keep the fans enthralled.

"VIRGINIA WOOLF"

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," the enormously successful Edward Albee play, was filmed by Warner Bros. as a contemporary document calculated to entertain and provoke motion picture audiences as never before.

The film, opening... at the... Theatre, became one of the most discussed of its decade, arousing passions and controversy while eliciting attention through both its artistic merit and its shock potential. It was nominated for 13 Academy Awards and won five.

"Virginia Woolf" was directed by Mike Nichols and stars Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, George Segal and Sandy Dennis. The Burtons play the roles of Martha and George, a self-destructive vulgar campus couple who share with their young visitors a Walpurgis Night of fun and games, ending in exorcism.

The subject and dialogue was kept so close to the original stage play that Jack L. Warner, then head of Warner Bros., established an "adults only" policy for the film, prohibiting exhibitors from admitting anyone under the age of 18 unless accompanied by a parent. This policy was set before the now-familiar MPAA rating system had been introduced by the industry.

SECOND BIG WEEK
SHOWS 2-5-8-15

799-3950

OLEANDER DRIVE

OLEANDER
Cinema 1&2
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRES

NOW SHOWING
SHOWS 2-4-6-8-10

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER!

Nicholas
and Alexandra

SPECIAL SHOWS AND DISCOUNTS TO SCHOOLS

PG

CANCEL MY RESERVATION

BOB (WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE)
HOPE!
IN COLOR
G

75¢ TIL
2:30!

COMING NEXT "DOCTOR ZHIVAGO" LIMITED ENGAGEMENT

Pictured above is the most tightfisted, thrifty man in America.

He is Ralph Ginzburg, the New York magazine publisher. No one holds on to money more tenaciously than he. Mr. Ginzburg has made a career of perfecting and implementing ingenious methods of making and saving money. Now he has even launched a publication devoted to that subject. Its name is Moneyworth.

Moneyworth is more than just a manual of Ralph Ginzburg's personal financial ploys. It is a brash, jolly, authoritative Fagin School in the art and science of shrewd money management. It covers personal finance as well as consumer affairs (including product ratings).

Perhaps the best way to describe Moneyworth is to list the kinds of articles it prints:

The New Japanese Cars: A Rating

Earn 10% to 12% Interest on Your Savings Account
How to Collect Social Security from Canada and the United States Simultaneously—It's perfectly legal.

When to Hire a Negligence Lawyer—By Melvin M. Belli.
The Third Most Expensive Item You'll Ever Buy—It's your funeral, and Moneyworth tells how to minimize the grief.

Is She or Isn't She?—A little-known, reliable $2 mail-order self-test kit for pregnancy lets her know for sure.
Earn Interest on Your Checking Account

The Unshrouded Facts About Life Insurance—This article, alone, may save you hundreds of dollars.

Sewing Machines that Seam Fine—Why Moneyworth chose a $40 model as its best buy.

Living Afloat without Getting Soaked—By novelist Sloan Wilson.

Freeze-Dried Coffees Rated (and Berated)

Small Bite—How to get dentures from one of America's top dental clinics for only $40.

Water Beds Are Making a Big Splash

How to Hold onto Your Auto Insurance

Food Fit for King: Best Buys in Dog Food

A Blast at Aerosol Cans—How they threaten your health and pick your pocketbook.

"How We Live on Less than $75 a Month"

Providing Your Teenager with Contraception

The Wisdom of Maintaining a Secret Swiss Banking Account—Half a million Americans can't be wrong.
America's 25 Best Free Colleges—As rated by the students themselves.

The Boom in Going Bust—The growing popularity of personal bankruptcy.

How to Get a Divorce without a Lawyer

Air Travel at 50% Off

Ski Areas without Steep Prices

Drug Combinations that Can Kill You

The World's 100 Best Free Catalogs

Both a Borrower and Lender Be—Shrewd use of your life insurance policy's little-known loan feature.

How College Students May Qualify for Food Stamps

The Makes and Models that Car Thieves Like Best

Land Investment in Canada

Trailers with No Hitch: A Product Rating

How to Break a Lease

Heretical Retirement Advice

Teaching Your Child the Value of Money—Without having him overvalue it.

Undetected Bank Errors—A report on the untold millions of dollars lost each year by consumers who fail to reconcile their monthly bank statements.

The Most Dangerous Car of All

Franchising: The Perils of "Being Your Own Boss"

A Consumer's Guide to Prostitution

Quadrasonic Hi-Fi: Innovation or Commercial Hype?

Wheeling and Dealing for a New Bike—Which are the best buys and how to bargain for them.

The Painful Truth about Circumcision

How to Contest a Bad Credit Rating

Indigestion Remedies that Pass the Acid Test—An evaluation by brand name.

How Two Widows Nearly Got Merrill-Lynched

Illustrated Sex Manuals—A buying guide.

The Link Between Heart Attack and Coffee—A suppressed report by a member of the President's Commission on Heart Disease.

The Spirit of '72—A report on the new "light" whiskey that has the industry in ferment.

A Guide to Low-Cost Legal Abortion

Easy-Riding Motorcycles: New Models Rated

The Best of the Good Book—An evaluation of currently-available editions of The Bible.

Safety Bug—A preview of the Volkswagen model being developed to replace the easily crushed "Beetle."

In sum, Moneyworth is your own personal consumer crusader and chancellor of the exchequer—in one. It is a bonanza of uncanny monetary intelligence.

Although launched only a year ago, already Moneyworth has become the most widely read newsletter in the world (with a circulation of 400,000 and readership estimated at one million).

Every week, Moneyworth is inundated with enthusiastic, unsolicited testimonials like the following (which are completely authentic):

• "Thanks to the advice in your article 'Inaccurate Billing by the Phone Company,' my own firm, the Bayard Pump & Tank Company, has just received a $1,593 refund." Armand DiRienzo, Bristol, Pa.

• "Moneyworth is to be commended for the reliability of its merchandise evaluations. I just bought a Canonet 35mm rangefinder camera—which you recommended as 'First Rate'—and have gotten some beautiful shots with it. Moreover, thanks to Moneyworth's buying advice, I saved over 30% on its cost." Robert D. Goodrich, Tucson, Ariz.

• "Your article 'How to Fight a Traffic Ticket' saved me a $200 lawyer's fee and a ticket. I did exactly as you suggested: taking pictures of the scene and double-checking the statute book, and came out the winner in court." W. R. Wendel, Hicksville, N. Y.

• "Thanks to your article 'How to Buy a New Car for $125 Above Dealer's Cost,' I have just purchased a Malibu Sport Coupe at a saving that I conservatively estimate at $350." Ron Bromer, Anita, Iowa.

• "I am grateful for your tip on 'Tax Savings for Teachers'—which saved me the cost of a tax accountant and got me a very high income tax refund." Charles Bryan, Brooklyn, N. Y.

• "Your article on low-cost, unadvertised trans-Atlantic air fares enabled me to save $108 on a vacation to Ireland. In addition, once I was there, I saved $64 on a car rental, thanks to your advice." Bernard Bullon, Bronx, N. Y.

• "I want you people to know that because of your article 'Hiring a Lawyer to Avoid the Draft,' I am today a free man." T. Weda, St. Paul, Minn.

• "Upon Moneyworth's advice, I asked the phone company for an itemized bill. As a result, I discovered that for years I had been paying for a nonexistent extra line. Result: A $550 refund. My trial subscription has paid for itself 110 times over!" George T. Persche, Washington, D. C.

In short, Moneyworth has become an absolutely indispensable mentor for many of America's most astute consumers.

The staff of Moneyworth consists of several of the most keenly analytical and imaginative minds in the fields of consumer affairs and journalism. At the helm, of course, is Ralph Ginzburg himself, as publisher. Moneyworth's editor-in-chief is Donald Stewart, who for many years was with The New Yorker. Its articles editor is Dorothy Bates, formerly of Scientific American. Herb Lubalm, the world's foremost graphic designer, is Moneyworth's art director. Augmenting this team of hard-nosed, experienced editors are reporters, researchers, product-testers, and consultants throughout the United States. Together, they create America's first and only financial periodical with charisma.

Moneyworth is published fortnightly. It is available by subscription only. The average newsletter (according to the Directory of Newsletters) costs well over $25. But we are offering Special Introductory One-Year Subscriptions to Moneyworth for ONLY $5.00! This is a MERE FRACTION of the going rate.

Moreover, we are so confident that Moneyworth will prove invaluable to you that we are about to make what is probably the most generous subscription offer in publishing history: We will absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that the tips, techniques, and inside information in Moneyworth will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15% or we'll refund your money IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, Moneyworth guarantees that it will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500 or you get your money back. And, meanwhile, you will have enjoyed a subscription to Moneyworth ABSOLUTELY FREE! As you can see, a subscription to Moneyworth is an absolutely fool-proof investment.

To enter your subscription, simply fill out the coupon below and mail it with $5.00 to: Moneyworth, 110 West 40th Street, New York, New York 10018.

We urge you to act at once. In this case, especially, time is money.

c/o FLORIDA PERIODICAL SERVICE P.O. Box 3434 Seminole, Fl. 33542

I enclose $5.00 for a Special Introductory One-Year Subscription to Moneyworth, the shrewd, audacious new fortnightly on consumer affairs and personal finance. I understand that I am paying a MERE FRACTION of the going rate. Moreover, Moneyworth guarantees that it will increase the purchasing power of my income by at least 15% or I will get my money back IN FULL!!

62960

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

© MONEYWORTH 1971 TM REG. PHO 9DA

Miniature Refrigerator

R
E
N
T

B
U
Y

For more information call 301-656-5770

SPECIFICATIONS: 2.2 cubic feet. 18 high, 19 1/2 wide, 18" deep

• Freezer compartment. 2 large ice cube trays furnished with unit (will hold up to four)

• Noiseless • Trouble Free • 5-year guarantee on compressor

MINI REFRIG UNLIMITED

4405 East-West Highway • Suite 210 • Bethesda, Md. 20014

Enclosed is check or money order for $ _____. Allow 10 days for delivery.

☐ Rental Plan - $55 & $20 refundable deposit (Total $75 a school year)

☐ Sales Plan - $79.95 No shipping charges on either plan.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

OUR MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE-If this machine is not exactly as we stated, put it back into the shipping carton and send it back C.O.D. You must be 100% satisfied or your money back. This is a quality machine at a low price.

Yvonne's
DRESS SHOP

FINE FASHIONS PETITES, JRS., MISSES

MARKET PLAZA, 19 S. KERR AVENUE

Visit Our Mod
Mod World

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
799-0990

WHEN IT'S FASHION
THE NAME OF THE GAME IS KNITS!

And the best looking knits and finest in all fashions are at Harvey Cannon, Ltd., Your
UNC-W oriented shop for men.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.
NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER
Wilmington, N. C. 28401

OPEN NIGHTS 'TIL 7:00 P.M. -- FRIDAY 'TIL 9:00 P.M.

Free

Classified

To UNCW
Students

Stay Ahead
4th
Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

OVERNITE CANOE/CAMPING TRIPS

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

LIGHT FOOT EXPEDITION COMPANY

Box 326

Wrightsville Beach

BILL CLARK

PHONE 256-3470

Three Cheers
For Campus Stereo

PANASONIC
AM/FM STEREO
ENTERTAINMENT
CENTER

The smartest stereo system to ever hit campus. With fully automatic 3-speed record changer, FM/AM/FM stereo radio, and 2 cylindrical speakers.
Walnut grain cabinetry.

Our 31st year in Electronics

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

$139.95

Master Charge-
Bank Americard

1002
South College Road
Rd. 791-7365

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XV NO. 4

"By students, for students."

Thursday, October 12, 1972

Ibsen's 'Ghosts' Opens Thurs.

The University Theatre of UNC-W will open its second production of the year, "Ghosts" Thursday, October 12, and play through Sunday, October 15. Henrik Ibsen's play will be presented in the S.R.O. Theatre with the curtain at 8:15. There will be a special matinee performance on Saturday, at 2:00 p.m.

"Ghosts" is a thriller, a tragedy and a thesis. As a thriller it has all the ingredients of the Boulevard entertainment. It has love, death, fear, small mindedness, blackmail and manipulation for power. The characters are clear and well developed as they struggle in an ever increasing feeling of doom. The plans and dreams of happiness collapse in unrelieved horror at the end of the play. This ending is tragic and if the characters were of a grander scale it would produce tragedy in the nature of "Oedipus Rex."

But under the exciting intrigue and the violently clear surface of "Ghosts" is a web of thought that transcends the immediate and opens up the possibility for the theatre goer to probe his own value system in our world today. "Ghosts" has the potential of moving an audience to personal internal thought. Ibsen's characters have the extraordinary ability of appearing realistic on the surface while springing from the abstract truth that is couched in all humanity. This "well made play" has "soul".

Appearing in the cast will be Vicki Daum as Mrs. Alving, Ed Danilowicz as Pastor Manders, Mark Barefoot as Oswald, Becki Owens as Regina, and David Brickley as Engstrand. Jane Divine is the assistant director. The entire production is under the direction of W. Terry Rogers with Tim Wesner serving as the designer and technical director. Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon has designed the costumes which will help to create the realistic feeling of the Victorian age. A great deal of time has gone into research on this period and the costumes and the set promises to be one of the finest technical achievements of the University Theatre.

Reservations can be made by calling 791-4330, Ext. 332 between the hours of 2-5 p.m. Monday, October 7 through Friday, October 13. The price of admission is $1.00. The University students are admitted free.

Senate Accepts Student Court Appointments

The UNCW Student Senate voted to accept SGA president Bill Brooks' appointment of Butch Pegram as head of the Student Superior Court last week at their regular meeting.

Pegram is a junior transfer from Wingate College. While at Wingate, Pegram served in the Student Senate, and as a delegate to the North Carolina Student Legislature, as well as student body president at Wingate. Commenting on his appointment Pegram said, "While I hope there arises little need for the court, the Student Superior Court will be more active this year than it has in the past."

Brooks also announced the appointment of Brett Wilson as chairman of the Calendar Committee. Brooks gave a report on his activities in trying to coordinate action between the student body presidents of the 16 state supported universities.

In other action, the Senate heard reports to change its meeting time and day.

Sophomore senator Mike Jones introduced a resolution to join the North Carolina Student Legislature. The bill was referred to the Finance Committee to study cost.

JOHN SEBASTIAN

John Sebastian Highlights Week

John Sebastian and Pure Prairie League will highlight the October 12th, 8:00 concert at Brodgen Hall sponsored by the UNCW Concert Committee. Tickets are now on sale at the Pub for $3.00, advance student rate. The price at the door will be $4.00, so everyone is urged to get their tickets now, and attend what will certainly be one of this year's finest concerts.

JOHN SEBASTIAN BIOGRAPHY

John Sebastian can't read music. But he sure can write it.

Son of a classical harmonica player, Sebastian learned his craft by osmosis rather than formal education. "You hear a cat practicing in the next room six hours a day, and you have to pick up something." That's about as much as you can get from Sebastian on the subject of how he became a music man.

Yet on the eve of his 25th birthday, John Sebastian's place on the upper rung of the rock ladder is secure. As a Lovin' Spoonful member, he's remembered as a performer and as the writer of such pop classics as "Do You Believe in Magic?" "Summer in the City" and "Did You Ever Make Up Your Mind?" As a film score writer, Sebastian's credits include "You're A Big Boy Now," "What's Up Tiger Lily?" and the upcoming "Magic Christian," starring Peter Sellers and Ringo Starr. A native New Yorker, Sebastian literally got his musical education on the sidewalks of New York.

"I picked up the guitar when I was 13. Then I was hanging around Washington Square Park, and I got to meet people and I started playing folk music. After that, I started making recording dates as a guitarist for rock sessions. I played with Bluegrass musicians and I worked with Jim Kweskin in the jug band thing. I was really playing at music for a while."

Sebastian's academic credentials include a brief stay at New York University, but he dropped out and began building a reputation as

(Cont. on Page 12)

STARS DUSTIN HOFFMAN

Don't Miss 'Little Big Man'

Oct. 20, KENAN, 8 p.m.

SEASQUAWKS

Mariette
THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER

"STRANGE—I THOUGHT WHEN WE GO UP, HE GOES DOWN!"

SNAP COURSE by Rick Mitz

It's called honest-to-God Canine College and there I was with my little dog and her little neck and a choke chain and a long leash and thirty other dogs and their pets.

Canine College. THE education establishment for dogs and their masters; the Harvard of dog schools, with tuition to match.

We were told not to bring our dogs to the first lesson. Like the PTA. So we could learn what we'd be learning. There were youngsters, grandmas, proud parents. A big man passed Polaroids around of his huge St. Bernard leaping at his wife. "Isn't she cute?" he said. "You have a lovely wife," his neighbor said. "Not my wife — my dog, Teeny," he growled. A little lady whispered in my ear. "My husband and I weren't fortunate enough to have a college education. That's why we want our Maxie to go to college."

"Quiet, shut up and no," barked the nasal instructor who talked as if she'd just swallowed an adenoid. "In the next twelve weeks, we're going to learn to heel our dogs, to make them sit and other things, too. And when they don't obey, choke them hard — hard. They'll cry and whine and yelp, but when they do — snap, choke them. Remember, obedience means never having to say you're sorry." And then she demonstrated on her arm with a little chain that she'd snap whenever her arm (Cont. on Page 11)

Amendment is Unfair

On November 7th, there will be several amendments to the North Carolina state constitution offered to the public. Among those will be an amendment to change the voting age in North Carolina from 21 to 18. This is only a formality as the national constitution already provides for this. It is the second part of the proposal that is important. This section seeks to deprive newly-enfranchised 18 to 20-year-olds of the right to hold public office.

This measure is an attempt by the existing political machine to regain its control of North Carolina ballot boxes. It is entirely unfair.

It is highly unlikely that North Carolina would have an 18-year old governor, but the proposal would prevent many people from participating in important local elections, such as for the school board or county commissioners. Why shouldn't a student be allowed to serve on a school board? He probably knows more about what's going on in schools than some older county politicians.

It all boils down to the theory that a lack of age means a lack of competence. That went out with stone knives and bear skins.

The North Carolina Student Legislature recently passed a resolution voicing their opposition. UNC-Chapel Hill student body president Richard Epps has issued statements condemning the measure. UNC-W student body president Bill Brooks has also come out against this unfairness as have many other student body presidents around the state.

The SEAHAWK urges everyone to vote NO on this amendment.

Take Advantage of Free Admission

Ibsen's "Ghosts" opens October 12th for a three-day running as part of University Theatre Productions. This is a University function and is free upon presentation of a student I.D. The Student Senate appropriated $1,000 to the Drama Department to take care of all admissions. With all the complaints about vending machine rip-offs, book-store prices, concert prices, etc., finally students can get something for free. Support the University Theatre.

The Seahawk

Editor..... Ron Dunn
Assistant Editor..... Mike Jones
Advertising Manager..... Pam French
Reporting Staff..... Cathy Tyner

Beverly Causey
Sharon Wolfe
Eddie Deese
Richard Suggs
Robert Braxton

Photography..... Ian Truman
Wayne Huggins

Circulation..... Don Hamilton
Mike Lefever

Faculty Advisor..... Thomas Lupton

POT: To be or not to be legal in Calif.

San Francisco, Calif. (CPS) — Voters in California may legalize possession of marijuana in that state this November 7 election.

The California Marijuana Initiative (CMI) has achieved the "impossible" task of placing the issue on the ballot paper, and the proposition is now expected to poll more than 35 per cent of the vote.

A late poll shows 33 per cent of the population in favor, with 63 per cent against, and five per cent undecided.

And this is before hundreds of volunteers, including students and long hairs, start canvassing door-to-door with leaflets supporting the issue, now known as Proposition 19.

Although ad hoc organizations in several states including Michigan, Florida and Colorado attempted marijuana initiatives, only California succeeded.

Last spring, the CMI collected 500,000 certified signatures, surpassing the necessary 382,000, to place the proposition on the ballot.

And experts agree that about five million people — a quarter of the population — have tried marijuana in California, and will form the backbone of the "Yes" vote.

Proposition 19, if approved, would remove all criminal penalties for the use, possession, cultivation and processing of marijuana by persons over the age of 18 years.

It would, however, retain penalties for sale, and legislation which prohibits persons under the influence of marijuana from engaging in activities which endanger others.

There is little opposition to the proposal, but the little that is currently circulating is akin to the propaganda first publicized by the father of the anti-marijuana laws, Harry Anslinger.

University of California

physician and physiologist, Dr. Hardin Jones, insists that marijuana is more harmful to users than alcohol, and that heavy smoking "probably causes shrinking of the brain, quickly turning users into what he calls 'mental zombies.'"

Dr. Jones adds that marijuana smokers can become "heavily dependent" on pot after four years of use, whereas the dependence on alcohol requires at least 30 years of heavy drinking.

Supporters of the proposal argue that a "yes" vote would save Californian taxpayers the hundreds of millions of dollars expended each year on arrest, prosecution and punishment of marijuana smokers.

More important, they say, is that the chance to end the annual arrest of more than 600,000 individuals — most of them under the age of 25 — is just eight weeks away.

"The message isn't just marijuana," says a statement released by CMI this week.

"This issue is freedom — the right of people to be free in their own homes, the right of individuals to control their own consciousness, to make their own decision as to what substance they will or will not consume."

If the proposition is approved, it will surely have national implications setting a precedent for voters and lawmakers in other states.

TDK CASSETTES DO NOT HOP, SKIP NOR JUMP!

All Cassettes Are NOT Created Equal!

TKD assures deluxe tape quality and mechanical reliability to eliminate jamming, high frequency loss, wow and flutter.

Extra-Dynamic (ED) Cassettes

For those who demand the ultimate in recording fidelity. Broadest range of frequency response, greatest dynamic range of any tape on the market. 40, 60, and 90 mins. 60 mins., $3.00

Super Dynamic (SD) Cassettes

First cassettes to offer true high fidelity recording... "real-life" sound reproduction second only to TDK "ED" tape. 30, 60, 90, and 120 mins. 60 mins., $2.29

Krom-Oz Chromium Dioxide Cassettes

Used only with recorders/players with "CROZ" bias switch for new performance standards of frequency response, signal-to-noise ratio, distortion, & output uniformity. 60 and 90 mins. 60 mins., $2.99

Deluxe Low Noise Cassettes

Superior to competitive "premium" cassettes... Ideal for most general recording purposes. Six lengths from 30 mins. up to the world's only 3-hour cassette... perfect for lectures, operas, meetings, concerts. 60 mins., $1.49

TDK Maverick Cassettes

TDK's standard cassette... great for voice letters, notes, dictation where high fidelity is not so important. Packed in convenient mailing cartons. 30, 60, and 90 mins. 60 mins. $1.19

TAPE ALSO AVAILABLE IN

- 8-Track Super Dynamic Cartridges
- Super Dynamic Open Reel Tape
- Deluxe Low Noise Open Reel Tape
- Special Use Endless Cassettes
- Recorder Head Cleaner Cassettes

• Master Charge • Bank Americard

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

Phone 791-7365

1002 So. College Rd.

ARMA
WORLD inc.

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

Admissions already at work

More than 500 new students have barely begun their college careers at UNC-W, but the university's admissions counselors are already hard at work lining up next year's freshman class.

L. Murrie Lee and Ralph Parker share the responsibility of contacting prospective students, processing and evaluating applications, and deciding which students will be admitted to the university. And for both it is a year-round job.

During the next 12 weeks they will travel over 15,000 miles, visiting nearly every county in North Carolina to talk with high school seniors who may be interested in attending UNC-W. While one of them is on the road, the other will be in the admissions office reviewing applications for next fall which are already pouring in.

"It's definitely not a seasonal job," said Lee as he prepared to leave for a week during which he will represent UNC-W at "Career Day" programs in 10 different counties. "We actually began working on admitting students for 1973 even before we completed registration for this year, and we won't be finished until registration ends next fall."

Parker, who taught for nine years at Brunswick County High School before joining the UNC-W staff a year ago, is "still getting used to all the traveling." But, he says, the job has its rewards. "It's not all just saying yes or no," he noted Tuesday. "In many cases we are able to guide students in a direction that will affect them for the rest of their lives. The choice of a college, or whether to attend one at all, is one of the most important decisions a young person ever has to make."

Last year, Parker and Lee talked to more than 1,000 high school and junior college students each. Largely as a result of their efforts, the university received applications from 958 high school seniors and 438 prospective transfer students. A total of 746 prospective freshmen and 330 transfers were accepted by UNC-W, and 506 freshmen and 216 transfers actually enrolled.

In addition to visiting high schools and participating in Career Day programs, the two also visit the campuses of community and junior colleges throughout the state. They explain UNC-W's programs and requirements to interested students and answer questions concerning everything from campus life to Azalea Coast weather. They also take advantage of the opportunity to consult with school guidance counselors, and try to keep the counselors up-to-date on developments at the university.

"We don't try to pressure students into attending UNC-W," Lee said. "Our purpose is simply to give them a chance to see what educational opportunities are available to them. It's a big advantage to the students to have the colleges come to them, rather than having to write all over the state for information on the schools they're interested in."

According to Parker, the biggest problem the UNC-W counselors face is the recruitment of black students. "We are experiencing the same basic problems that are faced by every other historically white institution in the South," he said. "We have to compete with the predominantly black colleges and universities, but our position is improving with the addition of courses more appealing to blacks, such as in black history and literature, and the hiring of black faculty members."

UNC-W's enrollment this year is about four percent black, while the average throughout the South is about three percent. "We are always available to provide information or counseling for any student considering UNC-W," Parker said.

The enrollment at UNC-W has grown steadily over the past several years, and the addition of programs such as marine biology and environmental studies will attract increasing numbers of students in the future. That naturally means more work for Murrie Lee and Ralph Parker. But they don't mind.

"With all that work and all that traveling, we'd be disappointed if we didn't draw more students," Lee said.

UNCW Student Now In Spain

Miss Kathi Beall, a junior at UNC-W, is spending this year as a student at the University of Madrid, Spain. Kathi is part of a group of students taking part in a program sponsored by AMFC (Associated Mid-Florida Colleges) and is taking a group of courses emphasizing Contemporary Literature, Folklore, and Art of Spain.

AMFC is composed of six institutions which are in Florida: Stetson University, Rollins College, Florida Southern College, Florida Presbyterian College and Bethune Cookman. In North Carolina the member is Wake Forest University. The association also supports programs in Switzerland and Germany.

Any student interested in finding out the details about these programs may contact Mr. Carlos A. Perez at Kenan Bldg.

Are you a hazard to your wealth?

Take stock in America.
Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

ELECT
ED

SNEAD

TO THE HOUSE

Furniture

CITY

North 17 Shopping Center

SKY

Floristic study now being conducted

Dr. Donald F. Kapraun, along with four UNC-W students, is presently involved in a floristic study of benthic marine algae along the North Carolina coast. The local flora seasonally includes elements from tropical and cold temperature American waters. These species often assume a typical morphology on the edge of their ranges, thus adding to the difficulties of identification.

After only a year of study, two problems became apparent: 1) What environmental parameters tend to set the coast of North Carolina as the north-south boundary for many algae species, and 2) how do algae populations respond morphologically to conditions which approach the limits allowable for species survival? Previous field work done in the northern Gulf of Mexico by Dr. Kapraun involved some of the same species found in the Wilmington area during the winter. This disjunct distribution simulates on a permanent basis the seasonal alternation found along the North Carolina coast.

Consequently, taxonomic studies are not an end in themselves, but a means of understanding natural relationships. The significant questions have to do with genetic variations within populations which produce such diverse morphological variation and which can survive in such a wide range of habitats. These questions can only be answered when the identity of the algae is certain and when information concerning life histories and reproduction is available. Consequently, collecting trips have been made to Florida and New England to provide material for an algae herbarium, and numerous species being grown in culture. Much of the culture work is being done for students under the Multiple Abilities Program.

Ed Flynn is studying the morphological variation of local and northern Gulf of Mexico species in culture. Flynn is using a cross-gradient culture apparatus that simultaneously simulates temperature and light intensity extremes of summer and winter. It is hoped that these studies will provide information on conditions which cause variations in algae populations.

Terry Workman is studying the life histories of two marine algae from Central America which previously were unreported for the tropics.

Mici Ragan is studying algae epiphytes, in an attempt to determine if there is a causal relationship between supporting plant and algae growing on it.

Janet Dobo is presently working with Flynn and Ragan identifying algae. She is considering a project involving the vertical distribution of local algae associated with tides. This study would be made with a culture chamber that simulates tides.

All of these individual projects are aimed at answering questions concerning population dynamics and algae mechanisms for change in new environments.

POETRY CONTEST RECEIVES BOOST

by
David Snow

The North Carolina Junior Sorosis recently donated $100 in prize money to the University Poetry Contest at UNC-W.

The money will be distributed among the top three finalists, with $50 for first place, $30 for 2nd place, and $20 for 3rd place.

In addition, the North Carolina Sorosis will provide contest officials with two books of poetry to be awarded as prizes for honorable mention.

These prizes will be awarded at a reception for the contestants and guests to be held in the Library Conference Room on October 19, at 11:30 a.m.

Deadline for the University Poetry Contest, which is open to any student enrolled in at least one course at UNC-W, is Monday, October 16, 12:00 noon. All entries must be turned in to the English Department secretary by that time.

The University Poetry Contest, sponsored by the UNC-W English Department, is now in its third year. In 1970, the first year the contest was held, Kathi Beall won for her "Microscopy," a poem that offered a definition of poetry itself.

Peter Venable finished second with "Trilogy," while the third place prize went to Timothy Sims for "The Fire."

Sim's "Fair Weather Beach," a poem about love and the sea, won the second poetry contest in 1971, with Craig Martin taking second place money for "Oh Jesus Did You Ever Sing the Blues." Laviece Ward finished third with "IX."

Honorable mention in the second contest went to Don Massengill for "God Bless," V. H. Murray for "Plasticity," and Ron Midgett for "James the Cat Trilogy."

FUCUS U.?

L to R: Janet Dobo, Terry Workman, Ed Flynn, Mici

Ragan, Dr. Don Kapraun. Fucus U. is the name of an algae, along with a complete flora being named and studied by this group.

'Mountain Music Holiday'

MARS HILL, N.C. -- Banjos, fiddles, guitars will ring out with the strains of "Sourwood Mountain" and "Cripple Creek" here on the Mars Hill College campus Saturday, Oct. 14, during a series of events billed as a "mountain music holiday."

The Baptist college, along with a local Civitan Club and community crafts cooperative, have invited all "mountain musicians and mountain music aficionados," according to a display poster, to the campus for all day jam sessions, crafts demonstrations and the fifth annual "Bascom Lamar Lunsford's Minstrel of the Appalachians" mountain music festival.

The jam sessions will start at 10 a.m. under tents and parachutes set up on the baseball field. The sessions will give opportunity for musicians to play with old friends and new acquaintances and for novices to learn from the more experienced pickers and singers.

The crafts demonstrations will begin around 11 a.m. beside a century-old log cabin, which serves as the outlet shop for 100 crafts people. There will be weavers, whittlers, quilters, carvers demonstrating and talking about their skills.

The day will wind up with the festival, named in honor of the 90-year-old music collector who was born on the Mars Hill campus. The festival will begin at 7 p.m. in Moore Auditorium and will last until midnight.

Some 50 performing groups and individuals have been invited, ranging from traditional ballad singers and "old-time" musicians to bluegrass bands and dance teams. An admission of 50 cents for students and $1 for others will be charged with proceeds going toward the establishment of an Appalachian folk museum and resource center on campus.

The Appalachian Consortium will meet in conjunction with the music holiday. At its luncheon meeting the consortium board of directors and advisors will cite Madison County musicians Tommy Hunter, Obray Ramsey, Byard Ray and Lamar Lunsford, son of Bascom Lamar Lunsford, for their efforts in keeping mountain music a "viable folk expression."

Stay Ahead 4th Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME
So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat.

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p. m.

We are CONCERNED
with your
PREGNANCY PROBLEMS

Feel free to call us collect 215-877-7700

"CONCERNED" A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

Serving your college campus

Dope is bad for you

Arlington, Texas (CPS) -- People who smoke marijuana and think they are enjoying themselves are wrong, according to a sociologist at the University of Texas.

Dr. Jess Lord, associate professor of sociology, came to that conclusion while doing research for his book, Marijuana and Personality Change. Marijuana users, according to Lord, usually describe their experiences as pleasurable, but psychology tests of subjects while under the influence of the drug did not bear out their contentions.

"The experience isn't like the user thinks it is," he said in a recent interview, "I'm convinced of that."

Lord believes the apparent deception isn't conscious or deliberate and "bears a lot more investigation." He can offer little explanation for the seeming paradox.

Lord has also come to the conclusion that marijuana is more dangerous than he previously believed.

"As I went through research, I became more impressed with the damaging aspects of marijuana. My impression of the drug shifted, believing it to be more dangerous than I had thought originally."

Three and a half years ago, Lord began research on his book with funds from a University of Tulsa grant. Since then he has supervised extensive testing of 37 marijuana users, both male and female, ranging in age from 17 to 23 years of age.

According to Lord, the 37 users had personality problems even when they weren't stoned.

"As a group," he laments, "they were poorly adjusted. They were considerably more maladjusted than the 'normal' college age group."

He obtained "very definite reactions" from tests subjects in five contact with reality, overt anxiety, social adjustment, excitement and personal adequacy. His studies indicated that as the amount of marijuana increase, response rose accordingly.

Lord also determined that females tended to show a "higher level of negative reaction" while males were more strongly influenced by the drug.

LSD can now be measured

Washington, D.C. (CPS) -- A major scientific breakthrough in the detection and treatment of "LSD abuse" was announced at a science and medical editors conference September 7 by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD).

A team of scientists at Collaborative Research, Inc., of Waltham Massachusetts, which is under a contract with BNDD, has discovered a method to detect LSD in a few milliliters of blood or urine after a psychedelic dose and also measure accurately how much of the drug is present.

Prior to this discovery, there had been no analytic method sensitive enough to measure concentrations of the drug in body fluids after a dose. An active dose of LSD is in microgram amounts, which are so small that after distribution throughout the body the amounts are diluted to such a degree that a sample of blood or urine will not contain enough LSD to be detected.

According to Dr. Theresa Harwood, chief pharmacologist of the Biological Research Branch of BNDD, "It will now be possible to study the distribution of LSD throughout the animal body, its metabolism can be followed, the rate and patterns of its excretion can be measured, blood levels of the drug can be correlated with pharmacological effects and behavior, and duration of drug concentration and accumulation of the drug in the body can be studied. This new method will be an asset in the diagnosis of bizarre behavior in the emergency room of the hospital."

What this new method actually is has not been revealed yet.

Overnite Canoe/Camping Trips

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

Light Foot Expedition Company

Box 326

Bill Claar

Wrightsville Beach

Phone 256-3

THE FINEST

In Mobile Homes

'We enjoy a reputation for excellent service for over 25 years.'

Charlie Cannon,

Joe Fuller,

Charlie Parker,

Ed Lee

Oakwood Mobile Homes

5202 Oleander Dr. Wilmington

791-0317

BULLETIN BOARD

LOST & FOUND

There are three main places to check now when hunting something you've lost: the cafeteria, the cashier's office (Administration Bldg.) and the Pub. A lady's watch, several pairs of glasses, and two high school rings are among the articles being held by the cashier. Mrs. Moore has several books and notebooks, umbrellas, a sweater, and a fraternity pin in her office in the Pub. The Cafeteria manager holds anything found there — mainly texts and notebooks. (Dorm students, of course, should check with Mr. Munroe). If you lost anything during summer school or since fall semester began, be sure to check these places.

Everything You Always Wanted to Know...

Dr. Robert Creighton, local gynecologist, will appear on campus again this year to hold an informal discussion on venereal disease, birth control, and abortion. He will answer any and all questions on these or related topics. Question boxes have been placed in the cafeteria lobby, in Kenan, and in the Pub. Submit any questions on or before Monday, October 16.

Dr. Creighton is witty, relevant, with it. Plan to see for yourself — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 8 P.M.,

UPSTAIRS PUB.

John Sebastian and the Pure Prairie League will perform Thursday, Oct. 12, 8 P.M. at Brogden Hall.

The concert is arranged by the Concert Committee of the UNC-W SGA.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Sunday afternoon Bike Rides. Groups for fast, slow, long-distance, short-distance riders. Meet at Jim Cobb's house. Leave about 1 p.m. For more information, call 762-8651. After 6 p.m.

"Frankly Speaking"

'THERE WILL BE NO DRUG TAKING DURING TRAINING - EXCEPT THOSE I GIVE YOU BEFORE EACH GAME, OF COURSE!'

© FRANKLY SPEAKING Post Office Box 1523 East Lansing, Michigan 48823

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCTOBER 8 - 14

SOUND OF MUSIC

Sound of Music by Thalian Association, October 19, 20, 21, 22 at 8 p.m. Admission $2.50. Wednesday, October 18, special student night, admission $1.

STUDENT ACTIVITY

Bike Races - October 15 at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base starting at 2 p.m. $2.00 registration fee. Register at Base gym from 12 noon -

by Phil Frank

1:30 p.m. Three age groups for men and women: up to 14, 15 and 20, 12 and up. $25.00 first prize, $15.00 second prize, $10.00 third prize.

TEKES NOTES

The TEKES have acquired two more pledges to bring the

(Cont. on Page 8)

NOTICE

Any group, club, or organization which desires to use university physical facilities for any purpose other than regularly scheduled class periods must submit a written request to the Office of Information Services, Room 119 in the Alderman Building. The request should be submitted at least three days in advance of event.

Gwen Croom
Assistant Director
Information Services

AMERICAN
COPYRIGHTING & PUBLISHING ASSOCIATES

COMPLETE
EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE
30,000 MANUSCRIPTS
ON FILE
331 West Main St.
Durham, N. C. 27701
919/688-2744

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Layers
7. Sullen
13. Protective Wall
14. Actress Marie
15. Swollen, as veins
16. Halo
17. Troop Encampment
18. Partly Frozen Rain
20. Hospital Employee
21. French City
22. God
23. Type Size
25. Individual
26. Paddled
27. Sword
28. Armed Naval Vessel
30. Rest
31. Fixe
32. Molten Rock
33. Market Places
36. French Satirist
40. British-Indian Soldier
41. Toxic Protein
42. Business Abbreviation
43. Branch of Accounting
44. Rescued
45. Bread comb. form
46. "Monopoly" Property
47. Golfer George
48. Boys' Stories Writer
49. Philippine Head-hunter
52. Disinclined to Talk
54. Bathing Suit
55. Word Roots
56. Pennsylvanian City
57. Brief Suspension

(answers on page 10)

DOWN

1. Moslem Enemy of Crusaders
2. Food Derived from Ox
3. Political Contest
4. Military Address
5. Mosaic Squares
6. Artist's Studio
7. Exchange Medium
8. Death Notice
9. Part of Sleep Cycle
10. Sphere
11. Places of Origin
12. Trap
13. Film on Copper Coins
15. Poisonous Secretion
19. Airport Info. (abbr.)
22. Coolidge's VP
23. Of the Church
24. African Tribe
26. Pass the Time
27. Hills of Rome
29. Siberian Region
30. Mad
32. Tear Jaggedly
33. Attribute
34. Southern State
35. Harvest Goddess
36. Construction Worker
37. Pneumatic Weapons
38. Hurlan
39. Hold in Contempt
41. Flatfish
44. Silk Fabric
45. Voice Parts
47. Cul
48. Loves Fr.
50. Approves
51. Dye Brand
53. Reference Book (abbr.)

'73' Pinto Runabout

1973 Fords
Now On Display

The 1973 Fords have new safety features and must meet federal emission standards before sale.

THE LITTLE PROFIT SAVES YOU MORE THAN ANYTHING YOU EVER BARGAINED FOR.

Cape Fear Ford

4222 Oleander Drive

799-4060

Yvonne's
DRESS SHOP

FINE FASHIONS PETITES, JR.S., MISSES

MARKET PLAZA, 19 S. KERR AVENUE

Bulletin Board

(Cont. from Page 7)

total number of pledges to thirteen. The two new pledges are Tom Harris and Bob Kincaid. The Theta pledge class has chosen their two sweethearts. They are Kay Abeyounis and Adrienne Rice. Congratulations to the two Sweethearts.

The Hell's Angle party was an absolute blowout Saturday night. Way to go Herbie -- you did a good job.

The TEKE football team showed their superiority over the RA Raiders by beating them 49-0. Outstanding players in the game were Herbie Walton, Glenn Tew, and Jerry Gregory. Lookout, the TEKES have got their together again!

J. Foster - Histor

ATTENTION JUNIORS AND SENIORS

Dr. Lawrence H. Arney, Assistant Dean of the Graduate School at Western Carolina University will be on campus October 18, at 1:30 p.m. to answer and discuss questions relative to graduate school.

While Dr. Arney represents Western Carolina University, he will welcome the presence of any students who are considering graduate school after their graduation. This will be an excellent opportunity for all students considering graduate school to receive valuable information and answers to any other relative questions.

Dr. Arney will be located upstairs at the Student Services Building. Please be certain to note his visit as it should prove to be quite worthwhile.

A limited number of brochures pertaining to the Graduate School at Western Carolina is available in the Student Affairs Office.

Ads in News

Gainesville, Fla. (CPS) -- The abortion ad business is raising its ugly head again, this time in Florida.

The University of Florida administration has proposed that the student newspaper, the Aligator be placed under a professional editor. The present editor is accepting and publishing the abortion information ads.

Student leaders, the paper's staff and a number of professional journalists have denounced the plan as contrary to the freedom of the press and one that would end student journalism in the Florida university system.

You've heard about all of the Football dynasties such as the Green Bay Packers, the Baltimore Colts and now, the Dallas Cowboys, but no one has paid much attention to the dynasty at this University: namely, the "Intramural Flag Football Leagues." Through the first 2 weeks of competition, UNCW Flag Football has truly gotten off to a flying start.

All the teams in both leagues have really started working now and it looks as though it will be a fantastic season. Both leagues, the Green League and the Gold League, are extremely strong this year with each team in both leagues striving for the ultimate goal of the UNCW Intramural Football

Flag football 'great'

Superbowl.

The current standings finds the "Jacks" in the lead of the Green League while the "Shadows" have the upper hand in the Gold League. But as any follower of the UNCW Flag Football knows that on any given day anything can happen, and the season has a long way to go before it is over.

 UNCW INTRAMURAL FLAG FOOTBALL STANDINGS *****
GREEN LEAGUE			GOLD LEAGUE
	W	L		W	L
Jacks	3	0	Shadows	3	0
Pi Kappa Pi	2	1	TKE	2	1
DU	1	2	Castrator	1	1
Nads	0	3	Engineers	1	2
			Raiders	0	3*
All Games Thru Oct. 8

Ladies Tennis Lagging

The Ladies Fall Tennis Intramurals may not ever get rolling unless there are some more entries into the program. In talking with Coach Dave Warner, who is in charge of University Intramurals, he explained that without more entries there would be little need of having tennis as part of the program. Any female wishing to sign up for the Fall Tennis Intramurals may do so by contacting Coach Warner at his office in Hoggard 215-A or by leaving their name at the Physical Education Department Headquarters in the gymnasium.

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING

YOU'LL FIND IT IN THE CLASSIFIEDS

CHAMPION TERMPAPERS

636 Beacon St. (No.606)
Boston, Mass. 02215
617-536-9700

Research material for Termpapers, Reports, Theses, etc. LOWEST PRICES. QUICK SERVICE. For information, please write or call.

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND TRUST CO. N.A.

Visit Our Mod
Mod World

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
799-0990

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

NOTICE

The APO Service Fraternity

FREE Chance To Win

Multiplex Stereo System.

Only $1 Donation

on display in Pub

See any APO brother

Seahawks capture first game of season

The Seahawks captured their first game of the 1972 soccer season when they defeated the Pirates of East Carolina University in Greenville, 3-2.

UNCW playing a great deal more aggressively than they have in the past, scored three times on sixteen tries and the Seahawk goalies, Moose Whisnant played a fantastic game and was credited with 12 saves. The Seahawks improved both their offensive and defensive game, and Coach Lane said that it was a much better, well-balanced attack for the Hawks overall.

The Pirates got on to the scoreboard first early in the match after three minutes elapsed on a shot by Jess Kunkler. The Seahawks were unable to score until the closing two minutes of play when Steve Bowles booted in the tying goal.

The Action in the closing minute of play in the first half was extremely exciting. With one minute remaining in the half, East Carolina's Tom O'Shea kicked a goal, and UNCW retaliated with less than half a minute left on a goal by John Howarth to knot the score at 2-2.

The winning goal for the Seahawks came late in the second half with three minutes left as Bowles got his second goal of the game.

Seahawk's Taking Rough Kick

by
Robert Braxton

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington soccer team has played quite a bit of outstanding soccer against some really tough competition, although their record does not show this. After the season opener against St. Andrews College in which the Seahawks lost 3 to 0, the Seahawks soccer team have played a truly tough schedule.

After St. Andrews, the Seahawks moved on to play in a tournament at Harrisburg, Virginia. The first game for the Seahawks was against Madison College, runner-up of last year's NCAA Small College Division of soccer. This game was a very hard fought contest with Madison College winning it, 2 to 0. The following day UNCW played East Mennonite to finish up the tournament. The game was played to a 1 to 1 stalemate, Coach Lane felt that the Seahawks could have beaten East Mennonite if it had not been for the lack of substitutes, which hurts a team in the later parts of the game.

Following this tournament, UNCW had a four day rest before entering the Campbell Classic, a two day event, at Bules Creek, and then playing host to Jacksonville University from Florida.

In the classic, the Seahawks played Erskine for their first match. UNCW had many chances of winning this contest, taking 17 shots at the goal as compared to Erskine's 11 attempts, but the ball was bouncing Erskine's way as Erskine won it 3 to 2. It was a hard game for the Hawks to lose, and this proved true when they played a weaker Guilford team. The Seahawks were both mentally and physically tired as they lost the game 3 to 0.

The next day UNCW played its third game in as many days against Jacksonville University at home. This game was a very sluggish game for the Seahawks. Coach Lane noted that the Seahawk offense was not at its best, and Jacksonville controlled the ball much of the game. This allowed Jacksonville to make many more goal attempts than the Seahawks as was the case in 33 to 8. But the game was still up for grabs until UNCW missed on a penalty kick in the last five minutes, and Jacksonville got a quick score, making the final tally 3 to 1.

After this game, the Seahawks played East Carolina University Wednesday, a week ago, and Campbell, Saturday. The game against East Carolina was probably the best game of the season so far for UNCW if for no other reason, simply because they won it. Coach Lane told me that the Seahawks had an extremely well balanced attack in this game, with both the offense and defense playing great ball. The final score was UNCW 3 and the Pirates 2. As it happened, the game against Campbell actually wasn't all that bad for the Seahawks. Coach Lane said that the Seahawks were extremely sluggish the first half and we never really got started playing in the first half. Although the Hawks fell behind 3 to 0 in the first half, they played the Camels even for the second half and Lane was very pleased with this.

Two balls in play at practice before ECU game.

UNCW hasn't had a very glorious season so far, but they are still several games left, and the Seahawks should win at least six of these. The Hawks played Pembroke State University, Wednesday at Brooks Field and will travel to Wilson on Saturday to meet the Bulldogs of Atlantic Christian.

Classifieds Page 10

S
e
a h
a w k

needs
your

Help!!

typist
writers
reporters

MEETINGS
MONDAY
4:30

DOWNSTAIRS
Stud. Serv. Bldg.

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS

Largest available collection of reference reports
from $1.90 per page

The most qualified staff of research-writers
Quick and quality results

Cost of call reimbursed when you order

(202) 785-4511

2430 Penn. Ave. N.W., Wash. D.C. G-24 20037
t.p.u. of d.c., inc. t/a

MARKETING REPS. WANTED

PUBLIC NOTICE

I wish to take this opportunity to again express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to the many folks of New Hanover County for their fine support during the May Primary.

Hopefully you will see fit to continue to support me in the November General Election.

Again your continued support is appreciated.

ELECT
PENDER P.
DURHAM
County Commissioner

Paid Political Ad

WANTED: Someone to share expenses on house ($60.00/month). Contact Bill Kornegay at 3276 Camden Circle. Cal at North Brunswick High School in Leland after Aug. 26.

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE to thumb to West Coast with. Leave anytime after Sept. 1. Call James 791-4677.

NEEDED: Refrigerator desperately. 3715 Wrightsville Ave. Up to $30.

FOR SALE: Stereo system AM-FM radio tape player, BSR McDonald Turntable, two 6" speakers, walnut grain. In top shape must sell. $120. Call 791-2032 after 6 p.m.

WANT GIRL to share my apartment with me. $40 a month, includes utilities. See: Catherine McKittrick 2301 Adams Street, Wilmington. Riverside Apts.

10-SPEED BIKE will be given away, Friday, Sept. 29. Donations 50¢ to Pi Kappa Phi scholarship fund. Drawing will be held on UNC-W campus.

The GOLDEN SCREW...

the gift that needs no explanation...

2 inches long... .24 kt. gold plated. Exquisite Hand Polished, Rich Patina Finish in a PRESENTATION CASE. $2.00 postpaid, or 3 for $5.00.

The GOLDEN SCREWS can be given in love, appreciation, hate, revenge or just for a laugh.

GOLDEN SCREW BOX 3434 SEMINOLE, FLORIDA 33542

Dear GS:

I know at least one person who deserves one. Please send me

☐ Golden Screws
☐ Enclosed find my check for

☐ Please bill my order to my:

☐ BankAmericard
☐ Master Charge

My credit card

number is

For Master Charge, please also give the four digit interbank number above your name:

☐ ☐ ☐ ☐

Name

Street

Address

City

State

Zip

TV GUIDE ANNOUNCES

A Special Subscription Offer
Saving you 30%
of the single-copy price
28 single copies regularly cost $4.20

28 WEEKS $2.94

SUBSCRIBE TODAY!

TV GUIDE • Box 3434 • Seminole, Florida 33542

Dear TV Guide:

☐ Please send me the 28 issue subscription for $2.94.
☐ I'd like a longer money-saving subscription of 54 issues for $5.67, at the same 30% special savings rate.

Name

Street

Address

City

State

Zip

☐ Enclosed find my check for payment in full.

☐ Please bill the subscription to my:

☐ BankAmericard ☐ Master Charge

My Credit Card No. is:

For Master Charge, please also give the four digit interbank number above your name: ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐

Woolco
Your one-stop for values.

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL

Save $10
brother.

'Charger II'

portable typewriter

THIS WEEK
ONLY

29⁹⁵

All steel rugged machine with full 84 character keyboard; pica type. Low price includes metal carrying case, clamp on lid. See this feature packed buy today.

LONG LEAF SHOPPING CENTER

S. College Road—Shipyard Blvd.

SHOP 9:30 a.m.—9:30 p.m.

MONDAY—SATURDAY

RE-ELECT
BERRY A.
WILLIAMS
COUNTY COMMISSIONER
Experienced - Dependable

Welcome To "Jim Fountain Country"

HIGHLY TRAINED SALES ASSOCIATES —
REPRESENTING SOME OF NEW HANOVER COUNTY'S MOST REPUTABLE BUILDING FIRMS.

COMMERCIAL SALES & LEASING DEPARTMENT

PROPERTY MANAGEMENT — RENTALS

Jim Fountain REALTY

791-1070
917 S. KERR AV.

Snap Course

(Cont. from Page 2)

wouldn't sit or heel.

A week later, we brought our dogs and left our grandmothers home. Pavlov would have been proud. No one salivated except the owners, but the dogs did learn some new tricks. Oh, not how to heel or sit or lay down or anything complicated like that. But how to shut up when they were choked, which I guess is important in a dog's daily life. I had visions of graduation day when my dog would fetch her diploma.

For an hour, we walked around in circles. If your dog doesn't walk close to your leg, pull the leash hard and — snap. If your dog doesn't sit — snap. If your dog fetches and you haven't said "fetch" — snap.

"Remember, dog lovers," the instructor said. "You are the master. If your dog doesn't behave — snap," she said, pulling the choke chain around the wrist that wasn't in a cast. But finally it was over and the instructor said we should go out and "empty our dogs out," as she put it, although most of our dogs had already emptied themselves out, in.

On the way home my dog sat in the front seat of the car gagging. Finally, she caught her breath, looked up at me and spoke.

"Why are you doing this to me?" she said. "If you wanted me to sit, why didn't you just ask me like a normal creature? Believe me, I would have sitten."

"Sat," I corrected. "Sat. Gosh, do you ever need schooling."

"Okay, sat. So big deal. I made a mistake. But I'm not going back to that place — all that choking and yelping."

"You are because," I said, "I want you to learn to behave."

"Behave, shmave. All you'd have to do is ask me nicely and politely and I'd behave. Anyway, I'm going to drop out."

"No you're not. I'll cut you off without a milkbone if you do."

"Big deal. I'll run away. I'll get a little place of my own. Or I'll join a canine commune. I don't like this school. I want to go to a free school where we don't have all these strict requirements and where we can learn at our own pace and where I can do my own thing. And all those Teenies and Fu-Fus and Maxies. Ugh. Those aren't names for real dogs."

"Shut up, Zsa, Zsa. You'll do what you're told."

"What do you care? I'm the only dog in the class who isn't purebred. A spaniel asked me where my papers were, and I told her that I don't use papers anymore now that I'm housebroken, and she laughed at me. She said I must have been bused here."

We drove in silence for awhile and then: "Hey watch out — you'll hit that kid on the bike." More silence. "You know, this isn't the kind of education you believe in. I thought you believed in freedom of expression and liberation of soul. How will I ever find out Who I Am and Where I'm Going with all that regimentation and choking? What do you want, that I should be on Ed Sullivan or something, jumping through hoops of fire?"

"The Ed Sullivan Show was canceled, stupid!"

"Yeah. That's another thing — you'll only let me watch educational TV now. What am I ever going to do with Sunrise Semester Intermediate Spanish and Japanese cooking?"

"I am only doing this for your own good. Someday you'll thank me."

That was yesterday. Today I went back to classes and homework and examinations and grades. I can't understand it. All day I've had this sharp snapping pain around my neck.

OUR ADVERTISERS
ARE RELIABLE.

SALLY SEAHAWK SAYS:

EXPAND YOUR MIND

Vote for B. D. (Bennie)

SCHWARTZ

FOR STATE HOUSE

Experienced in:

- GOVERNMENT
- EDUCATION
- BUSINESS

HE KNOWS
OUR NEEDS

Elect Him to N.C. House of Representatives
(No. Pol. Adv.)

THE BICYCLE SHOP

FUJI

UNIC - Sports

FALCONI

ROOLD

Libertas

MIAMI SUN

VENQUER

Quality European and Japanese ten-speeds

Sales and Service

4403 Wrightsville Ave.

Owned and Operated by Students

Cheap Repairs and Quick Service

NISHIKI

Toe clips

Handle Bar Tape

Tools

Car Racks

Tires - Tubular and Sew-uo -ups

FREE

CLASSIFIEDS TO

UNC-W

Students

John Sebastian

(Cont. from Front)

a harmonica player on Greenwich Village streets. And from those streets he formed his first group, the Even Dozen Jug Band, which had from six to 13 members, depending on the individual dispositions of the musicians on a given night.

Sebastian's next group, the Mugwumps, will probably be remembered by pop buffs for some time. The Mugwumps really never amounted to much commercially, but few who have ever heard the group will ever forget it. Besides John Sebastian, it included Cass Elliott and Denny Doherty, who later became half of the Mamas and the Papas, and Zal Yanovsky, who joined Sebastian to form half of the Lovin' Spoonful.

Always a creature of whim, Sebastian left New York briefly after the Mugwumps folded and lived in Marblehead, Mass., where he learned sail-making in that old whaling port.

But the pull of music was too great, and Sebastian moved back to New York, where he lived with Lightnin' Hopkins, a legen in Negro folk blues. "I spent a couple of months buying gin for Hopkins, and I learned a lot — got to play exactly like him, right down to the mistakes." By that time, Sebastian was an accomplished guitar and autoharp musician.

Among those Sebastian met in his Hopkins period was another legendary blues singer from the South — the late Mississippi John Hurt. Hurt had written a song with the following refrain:

"I love my baby by the lovin' spoonful . . . the lovin' spoonful."

And that was to be the name of Sebastian's new group. With three friends from his Village days — Zal Yanovsky, Steve Boone and Joe Butler — "Do You Believe in Magic?" was born, and it swept the pop scene. It was Sebastian's first published song.

The style of the Spoonful was Sebastian's, a blend of nearly everything American — from jug band to blues to country and folk, with Sousa and minstrel seasoning.

Sebastian followed the Spoonful's first hit with "You Didn't Have to Be So Nice." "Daydream," "Summer in the City," "Nashville Cats," "Younger Girl," "Didn't Have to Do It" and "Did You Ever Have to Make Up Your Mind?" By the spring of 1969, Sebastian had an even 100 published songs to his credit.

Cash Box and Billboard each voted the Sebastian-led Lovin' Spoonful the top U.S. group of the year in 1966. And more than 100 artists and groups recorded his songs — among them Peter Nero, Nelson Riddle, Bobby Darin, Chico Hamilton, the Four Freshmen, Wayne Newton, Jane Morgan, Cher, Flatt & Scruggs, Pat Boone, Astrud Gilberto, Gary Lewis and the Playboys, Homer & Jethro and Kate Smith. He was all of 22 at the time.

In 1967, as it happens to most groups, the Lovin' Spoonful began to break up. By 1968, Sebastian felt it was time to go on to other things, mainly concentrating on writing. That's when he did his first Broadway show,

"Jimmy Shine," starring Dustin Hoffman and that's when he signed his Reprise Records contract, as a solo performer. He will have a heavy college concert schedule throughout the year.

Sebastian now divides his time between his Hollywood Hills home and a farm in the fishing community of Sag Harbor, Long Island, where he grows organic vegetables. His inner world consists of his wife of three years, Lorey, four dogs and five cats, and assorted musicians.

Foosball Now In Student Services Building

Electronic Calculators Sale Prices

As low as $59.95 and up.

Several Models in stock
for immediate delivery.

Portables, AC/DC, & AC only

Smith-Corona Portables &
Electrics also on Sale

Electronic Calculators

1709 Dawson St. Wilmington 762-9526

The Revolutionary's Newspaper

There is only one Guardian, the independent, radical newsweekly that is the voice of a growing, principled American left. The Guardian provides extensive coverage of international and national events with a perceptive Marxist analysis. This coverage is forthrightly partisan—to the interests of the working class, to the struggles of national minorities in the US, and to the liberation movements of women, GIs, migrant workers and other oppressed groups in this country. The Guardian is likewise partisan to and provides accurate and exclusive reports on national liberation struggles throughout the world—from Ireland and Angola to Indochina and Chile.

There is only one Guardian. To be effective it must reach a larger audience which includes, not only movement activists, but also more working people, students, welfare recipients and others. You can support it in this task. Read the Guardian—give it to friends. Help a revolutionary paper do a revolutionary task.

mail to: Guardian, 32 West 22 St.
New York, New York 10010

Enclosed is: 1110
() $10 for a regular one year sub
() $5 for a one year student sub
() $1 for a ten-week trial sub
() $1 for a one year G.I. or prisoner sub

(for Canada and Latin America, add $2 per sub; elsewhere outside the U.S., add $3)

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
School _____

Guardian independent radical newsweekly

YOU DON'T NORMALLY NEED MONEY
TO MAKE A DEAL WITH US.

DAVE GARRISS

DON
POWERS

People with a high degree of intelligence normally buy Fiat and Subaru, because they recognize the sophisticated engineering features of both.

TEST DRIVE AT
AMERICAN IMPORTS

1529 S. College Rd.

791-2137

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XV NO. 5

"By students, for students."

MONDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1972

By Senate

Seahawks now under investigation

The Student Senate voted to appoint a committee to investigate the typesetting equipment purchased by SEAHAWK last year. Senator Barry Asbury introduced the motion, but then withdrew it explaining that he had not been in the Pub and did not know the four machines had already been purchased and were in the SEAHAWK office being used.

However, Senator Lee Hoffman objected to the withdrawal and the motion was discussed further, then passed. Senators Jon Greene and Norman Melton were appointed to the committee.

In a later interview, SEAHAWK editor Ron Dunn said, "All the senate had to do was ask me about the newspaper and I would have told them anything they wanted to know. I know there has been some discussion on the regularity of SEAHAWK, but this could not be avoided. I have personal problems, as I am sure do the senators."

Editor Dunn also said that he will wait for formal notification from Senate President Patti McCombie before aiding in the investigation.

In further action the senate voted to send a letter to the Chancellor concerning on campus concerts.

Following the wording of the petition that has been circulating around campus, the letter reads, "The UNCW Student Senate respectfully requests the Chancellor to reconsider and rescind his order banning student concerts on campus open to the general public."

Senator Lee Hoffman introduced a series of constitutional amendments that would have had the effect of taking from the SGA President the power to appoint the Student Superior Court and the Attorney-General and placing it in the hands of the Senate. Several senators pointed out that despite problems involved with the present administration the measures would destroy the system of checks and balances within SGA. The motions were defeated.

Norman Melton was approved and sworn in as junior class senator.

FLEDGLING editor Jack Paul announced that yearbook coverage would be extended to full-year coverage.

Seahawks trounce ACC

The UNCW soccer team put on their offensive shoes this past Saturday afternoon and trounced the Atlantic Christian College Bulldogs by a score of 5-0 in NAIA District 29 action at Wilson.

Seahawk Coach, Calvin Lane, remarked that this was a very fine game for UNCW and an over-all team effort. He also added that the team played very aggressively on both offense and defense, and that we needed this win very badly. The victory was the second of the season against seven losses and a tie for the Seahawks.

The Seahawks played host to Methodist College Tuesday afternoon and then they will travel to High Point to play High Point College on Saturday. The Seahawks end their season by hosting their last two soccer games, one against Lynchburg College on Friday, Oct. 27, and N.C. Wesleyan College on Tuesday, Oct. 31.

UNCW led the ACC Bulldogs 4-0 at the half and from there on the Seahawks coasted to victory scoring one more goal in the second period of play.

For UNCW, the first goal came after 11 minutes of playing time when David Wychel scored on an assist from Steve Bowles. The second goal came after 18 minutes of play. This goal was scored by Boles on a head shot with an assist from Jackie Blackmore.

The Seahawks third goal came just three minutes following their second score as Wychel collected the goal unassisted. The final goal of the first half came when Kevin Rittlinger made good on a kick unassisted making the score 4-0.

In the second half, the Seahawks scored with six minutes remaining on a shot by Steve Bowles. This made the final score 5-0.

The Seahawks completely dominated the game with 35 goal attempts as compared to only three shots by ACC.

Concert petition being circulated

A petition is presently being circulated which would have future concerts held on the campus allowing the general to attend.

The petition, which now reportedly has over 400 signers, states:

We, the undersigned students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, respectfully request that the Chancellor reconsider his decision and rescind his order banning concerts open to students and the general public at Hanover Hall. Please sign only once.

The petition may be signed in the Student Services Building (Pub).

According to one concert committee member, Steve

Morrison, the push behind the petition to move the concerts back to the campus and allow general public admission originated from the concert committee itself.

"It should be moved back to the gym as in past years," he stated.

A decision was recently rendered by Chancellor Wagoner to bar the general public from being admitted to the concerts if held in Hanover Hall (gym).

The concert committee felt that without the general public being admitted that their concerts would not render the required revenue necessary to gain good professional groups.

Therefore, the concerts were moved to Brogden Hall to ensure sufficient ticket sales.

However, interest and ticket sales have dropped considerably and the concert committee feels this is a direct result of off-campus concerts. We have lost approximately $4,000. due to this move.

We are appealing to the students to help us convince the Chancellor that his decision means financial insecurity for all UNCW concerts."

Chancellor Wagoner could not be reached for comment at the time of this writing.

Debate tourney held here

The first Annual UNCW Blockade Runner Invitational Debate Tournament was held Oct. 13 & 14 on the UNCW campus. The event drew participants from 9 universities and colleges from Ga., S.C., N.C., and Va.

The tournament offered both novice and varsity divisions with awards for 1st and 2nd place teams and 1st and 2nd place individual speaker awards in both divisions. After 6 rounds of debate, Davidson College emerged victorious in both divisions, capturing 1st place varsity award, 1st place Aff. novice award, and 1st place Neg. novice award.

Lenoir Rhyme College ranked 2nd in varsity, while UNCW received the 2nd place novice trophy.

At the awards luncheon, held in the cafeteria Saturday following the final round of debate, Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, the UNCW coach and Tournament director, announced the final results. Mrs. Welch said that the tournament had run very smoothly and was quite successful adding that next year's tournament would be even larger. Mrs. Welch explained that UNCW debaters did not participate in the tournament because they acted as hosts to the visiting schools and were needed to work in tournament direction and tabulations. The UNCW team wishes to thank the many students who volunteered to act as timekeepers for the debates. The team is also indebted to 10 members of the UNCW faculty who acted as judges for many of the rounds.

A random sampling survey to predict student participation and preference in the N.C. gubernatorial race is being conducted at UNCW this week.

Being performed by the 'Bowles (Skipper) for Governor' campus coordinators, the poll should show student preferences in the N.C. governor's race between Skipper Bowles (D) and Holshouser (R).

According to one unidentified pollster, she had polled approximately 30 students with only five being in favor of Bowles and two non-committal thus far.

The poll will end Thursday, 18 Oct. 1972.

SEE Exam Schedule Page 12!

SEASQUAWKS

Ibsen's 'Ghost' - Talent

Talent. It was more than evident. And anyone who missed it, obviously missed the University Theatre's "Ghosts".

The Henrik Ibsen thriller, under the direction of W. Terry Rogers, was brought off with a professionalism that belied the cast's amateur standing.

Viñki Daum was no less than great in her portrayal of the aging widow, Mrs. Alving, who, by the play's end, loses everything dear to her, and worse, is forced to face the fact that the beliefs and guidelines she has lived her life by were horribly and irrevocably wrong.

Pastor Manders, Ed Danilowicz, was so believable a character that it was almost frightening. He was symbolic of all the narrowmindedness that was perpetuated in that Victorian time.

Mark Barefoot was intense and beautiful as Oswald and the only fault that can be found with Becki Owens portrayal of Regina is that there was not more of it.

David Brickley should receive special acclaim for his Engstrand. He gave the otherwise depressing tragedy just the right touch of wit and humor. He was the original "dirty old man."

The beautiful set and costumes also served to heighten the reality of this fine effort, aided and abetted by the capable assistant director, Jane Divine, designer and technical director, Tim Wesner, and costumer, Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon.

The cast of "Ghosts" has the praise and thanks of not only SEAHAWK, but of the whole student body.

Non-smoking roommate sues Vassar

Poughkeepsie, N.Y. (CPS) -- A one million dollar law suit at Vassar College over the university's liability for assigning persons with incompatible lifestyles as roommates has ended in a stalemate.

Nancy Graber, ex-class of '73, sued Vassar College for $1,000,000 last October, but agreed last summer to an out of court settlement of $2,100. Vassar officials say that this sum represents a "refund" on the remainder of Graber's tuition payment for the 1969-70 year she spent at Vassar.

Graber claimed that her roommate, identified as "Pamela," was "embraced by all the aspects of the drug culture" in February of their freshman year, and that "regularly, while Pam was on a trip, she would play guitar and sing throughout the night, oblivious to her surroundings."

Pam, according to Graber, was also involved with a circle of friends who also used drugs and that a "male non-student was a frequent late night visitor."

The original suit brought against Vassar by Graber's father, Raymond Graber, alleged that Nancy flunked out of Vassar in 1970 because her roommate held all night pot parties, "exposing Nancy to noise and the haze of pot smoke."

The million dollar law suit covered damages of a "prospective nature" because Graber failed at the college with a permanent "bad record." Graber wanted to stop Vassar from either proclaiming her "unfit for college" or denying her recommendations to another university.

Graber said that Vassar was responsible for her failure because residence officials refused to change her room, although she never actually applied for a formal room change. She claimed that Elizabeth Drouilhet, dean of residence, responded to her complaints by telling her to "open the window if the smoke bothered her."

Vassar's attorneys recommended the settlement saying that it is "by no means an admission of guilt" or of wrong doing on the part of the college, but that the "cost of a lengthy court case would substantially exceed the cost to the college of this settlement."

Indian leader shot

(CPS)-- Richard Oakes, Mohawk Indian leader of the 19-month occupation of Alcatraz island, in San Francisco Bay from 1969 to 1971, was shot and killed September 20 on a YMCA camp in Sonoma County, California.

The Sonoma County district attorney said the shooting followed a dispute by YMCA camp manager Michael Morgan that an Indian youth had stolen a horse. Morgan allegedly shot Oakes when the two met in the woods and Oakes demanded why the youth had been taken to the juvenile court. Morgan has been charged with manslaughter.

YMCA is known for its efforts to preserve Indian lore through its nationally known program, "Indian Guides."

Dear Editor:

This letter is to announce the 1972 Homecoming weekend at the University of Virginia. PK-German is fortunate to present in its first concert of the 1972-73 academic year the dynamic super group, Chicago. The performance will begin at 8:00 p.m. at University Hall in Charlottesville on Saturday, October 28, 1972. I advise all interested in attending, write in advance to Larry Wicktor, PK-German Dance Society of the University Union, Newcomb Hall, University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901. Enclose a check made payable to the University Union for $4.00 per ticket and a self-addressed, stamped, return envelope. Tickets will be on sale for $4.00 in advance and at the door, and I take this opportunity to invite all of you to attend.

Cordially,
Larry J. Crickenberger
Program Board
PK-German Dance Society of the University of Virginia

The Seahawk

Editor. Ron Dunn
Assistant Editor. Mike Jones
Advertising Manager. Pam French
Reporting Staff. Cathy Tyner
Beverly Causey
Sharon Wolfe
Eddie Deese
Richard Suggs
Robert Braxton
Photography. Jan Truman
Wayne Huggins
Circulation. Don Hamilton
Mike Lefever
Faculty Advisor. Thomas Lupton

"AWRIGHT, LOUIE, AS MY PART IN THE WAR AGAINST CRIME, I'M INCREASING MY TAKE TO 20%!"

Students hire lawyer who can't defend them

Alkalb, Ill. (CPS)- The student body of Northern Illinois University has hired a lawyer who may have to tell students to get themselves a lawyer if the need arises.

Attorney Patrick Conboy was hired by the student government of NIU recently, but his contract first had to be approved by the Board of Regents. The regents approved Conboy's contract, but with the contractual agreement that he could not represent a student in court.

John Templin, legal counsel for NIU, said there were two reasons for the contractual limitation. First, the salary paid to Conboy is considered part of state monies and "should not be used against the state, in effect, to sue the state."

Secondly, Templin questioned whether it was proper to "extend a portion of every student's fee to support the actions of an individual."

Robert Barr, chairman of the Board of Regents, has questioned both the legality of Conboy's right to represent a student, and the practicality of a student body attorney.

Letting Conboy represent a student in court would create a legal and ethical problem, Barr said, because the attorney would be paid by a third party. This, according to Barr, will create divided loyalties.

"You have a serious question if the lawyer can do anything," Barr said. "If you try to give him worthwhile duties you run into the problem of whether those duties are legal."

According to the Student Association Student Legal Assistance Act, Conboy was hired to advise students involving problems with landlords, merchants, and housing and job discrimination.

whether Conboy's present function justifies the $23,620 cost of the attorney's office.

if the program could not be made effective this way," he said.

Conboy said that he

Conboy, who draws a $14,500 salary under the new contract, believes he can aid the students within the provisions of the contract.

"I would consider quitting hoped, through participation of other attorneys, to provide adequate representation when necessary.

Since Conboy is not allowed to directly act as a student's lawyer, the Board of Regents is now asking

Intra-mural
Flag Football Championship Game
Monday, Oct. 23
Field A-4 P.M.
Jacks Vs Shadows

TDK

CASSETTES

DO NOT HOP, SKIP NOR JUMP!

All Cassettes Are NOT Created Equal!

TKD assures deluxe tape quality and mechanical reliability to eliminate jamming, high frequency loss, wow and flutter.

Extra-Dynamic (ED) Cassettes

For those who demand the ultimate in recording fidelity. Broadest range of frequency response, greatest dynamic range of any tape on the market. 40, 60, and 90 mins. 60 mins. $3.00

Super Dynamic (SD) Cassettes

First cassettes to offer true high fidelity recording... "real-life" sound reproduction second only to TDK "BD" tape. 30, 60, 90, and 120 mins. 60 mins. $2.29

Krom-Oz Chromium Dioxide Cassettes

Used only with recorders/players with "CRO" bias switch for new performance standards of frequency response, signal-to-noise ratio, distortion, & output uniformity. 60 and 90 mins. 60 mins. $2.99

Deluxe Low Noise Cassettes

Superior to competitive "premium" cassettes... Ideal for most general recording purposes. Six lengths from 30 mins. up to the world's only 3-hour cassette... perfect for lectures, operas, meetings, concerts. 60 mins. $1.49

TDK Maverick Cassettes

TDK's standard cassette... great for voice letters, notes, dictation where high fidelity is not so important. Packed in convenient mailing cartons. 30, 60, and 90 mins. 60 mins. $1.19

TAPE ALSO AVAILABLE IN

- 8-Track Super Dynamic Cartridges
- Super Dynamic Open Reel Tape
- Deluxe Low Noise Open Reel Tape
- Special Use Endless Cassettes
- Recorder Head Cleaner Cassettes

•Master Charge •Bank Americard

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

Phone 791-7365

1002 So. College Rd.

AQUA
WORLD

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR - SALES - RENTALS
CHARTER - REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WINDYVILLE AV.

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist

Question: I need to know if tubal ligation has side effects or complications. Do you recommend vasectomy or tubal ligation? What is cheaper? - Signed, Mother.

Dear Mother: The choice of the operation whether it be done in the male or the female should be left entirely up to the couple. The physician should be advisory, but the final decision as to who should have the operation is the couple's responsibility.

As to the side effects or complications from a tubal ligation, that all depends on the method used, the type of anesthesia used, the age of the patient, the number of pregnancies she may have had and what kind of care she will receive.

The vasectomy is a much cheaper operation, particularly if it is done on an outpatient basis.

Question: While taking the pill, is sexual intercourse safe for the whole 28 days, or only for the 21 days on the pill? Also, is it abnormal for my periods to be scantier while on the pill? - Signed, Wondering.

Dear Wondering: If the pill is taken correctly you are safe the entire 28 days of the cycle. Intercourse may be a little messy during the last seven days since you will normally be having your period, but it is safe.

It is perfectly normal for your periods to become "scantier" while on the pill. You may not even have a period after being on the pill for three or four months. And there is some evidence that menstrual cramps improve.

Question: I heard you speak about two years ago, and I seem to remember you saying that douching is not necessary. I am married now and I would like to know if this is true and why. If douching is necessary, what method do you most recommend? Also, how effective are Norforms? - Signed, Interested.

Dear Interested: Douching is not necessary because it is felt that in most cases it will alter the normal acidity in the protective environment of the vagina, and thus may eventually encourage infection. However, most women want to douche right after a menstrual period, and most doctors will recommend an occasional douche with a mild vinegar and water solution - usually one to two tablespoons of white distilled vinegar to a quart of warm water.

We feel that the commercially prepared solutions are not necessary and the most they do is sensitize the sensitive vaginal mucousa. We are not aware of any studies that have compared Norform to douching with vinegar and water.

Question: Is there such a thing as a chastity belt these days? - Signed, Curious.

Dear Curious: The last time we saw one was in a museum. Yes, they do exist. They probably had their beginning somewhere in the 15th century. There is mention in an Italian manuscript in 1405 of a "girdle of chastity" used for contraception. Our best sources say that as late as 1897, the United States government granted a patent to a Michael McCormick for a "male chastity belt," whereby fathers could put them on their adolescent sons to prevent masturbation. Our veterinarian friends have informed us they still make chastity belts for female dogs.

Questions should be addressed to Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist, in care of The Daily Tar Heel, Student Union, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

COPYRIGHT (C) 1972 by Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist. All rights reserved.

Writers wanted!

The Seahawk

(We train you)

ELECT
ED

SNEAD

TO THE HOUSE

Paynes'

Hanover Center 9:30-9:00

Downtown 9:30-5:00

Sylvia Griffin, freshman at UNC-W models this 'Long Dress' by Mr. Arf of California. Handbag by Codette of Italy.

Paynes'

Are you a hazard to your wealth?

Take stock in America.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Pembroke Braves dump Seahawks

by
Robert Braxton

The UNCW soccer team has really taken some rough jolts this season, and this past Wednesday was no exception, as the Pembroke Braves got off to an early start and handed the Seahawks a 4 to 1 defeat. This loss was the seventh of the season for the Hawks against only one win and a tie. UNCW had five games left on their schedule after this game.

Pembroke controlled the entire first half keeping the ball on offense much of the time. The Braves got on the score board quickly when Soochul Kim made good on a close kick after the first 7 minutes of the game. For the next 30 minutes neither team could score with Pembroke having many chances but the rugged Seahawk defense foiling them all. A penalty was called on Seahawk Hal Goodson, with seven minutes left in the half, giving Pembroke's Tommy Carr a free kick which he made. Pembroke scored once more in the first half on a goal by Glenn Pruitt making the score 3-0 just before the 3 minute mark.

UNCW finally got a score during the last 16 seconds of the first half. Seahawk Charlie Welles received the ball about 30 yards away from the goal and moved in to score on a good second effort. This made the score 3 to 1 at the end of the half.

After a very sluggish first half, the Hawks finally got rolling in the second half displaying a massive offensive attack. They continually bombarded the Braves goal controlling the ball eighty per cent of the time but were unable to score. However, Pembroke did score with 20 minutes left on a short-quick kick by Gary Dwyer. The score was now 40 to 1, and that is how it ended at the Braves won.

Although the Seahawks did not win, the attendance for the game was very good with an estimated 300 in attendance.

Intremural Flag Football

Green League

Jacks 5-0

P. Kaps 4-1

D U 2-4

NADS 0-5

Gold League

Shadows 4-0

TKE 3-1

Castrators 2-2

Engineers 1-3

RA Raiders 0-4

Mike Vaughan

Republican

County Commissioner

on ENVIRONMENT

or LIVABILITY

QUESTION: Would you classify yourself as an environmentalist?

ANSWER: Since the word is so often misused, I prefer to be known as one who has a deep abiding interest in New Hanover and American quality of living or "livability".

QUESTION: Does your position here differ from incumbents and other candidates?

ANSWER: Evidently! I am the only candidate with any track record whatsoever!

QUESTION: Briefly, what is your record?

ANSWER: Take two areas as illustration. First, I am the only county or city candidate or incumbent of any office who has proposed that our county is being over-industrialized, that the middle and lower class people are being victimized by a small group of promoters. HERE I take the position that the Democrat Commission bows to these people at the expense of the vast majority who put them in office. My position has repeatedly been carried loud and clear by the news media for many months.

Secondly: Ordinary people are being shut out from any natural ocean beaches. I originally proposed state acquisition of the nine mile Masonboro Island for public use. After literally hundreds of hours and great personal expense, I expect to see this becoming a reality next year.

QUESTION: But the promoters say we need to bring new payrolls to New Hanover for higher income. How do you answer this?

ANSWER: Poppycock. These are the same people who have neglected our "Brooklyn's" for a century. One has only to read the Star News want ads to understand that "employables" here are almost entirely employed. Let's upgrade the people we have! And I don't mean the Promoter Committee!

(Mike Vaughan needs student volunteers. Call Diane Helgeson at 763-1641) paid political ad

INTRAMURAL SPORT SHORTS

BASKETBALL - Basketball team entries will be due prior to November 1, 1972, with games beginning the week of November 6.

CROSS COUNTRY - Ten men are out for cross country. These men practice every afternoon for the big race set for October 31, 1972.

LADIES TENNIS - Ladies tennis has begun this week with eight entries.

Foosball Now In Student Services Building

We are CONCERNED
with your
PREGNANCY PROBLEMS

Feel free to call us collect

215-877-7700

"CONCERNED" A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

Serving your college campus

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p. m.

Stay Ahead 4th Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

H. J. - anti thumbers

(CPS) -- Hitchhikers used to have to face weather and time. But times are getting worse: now they have to face the wrath of the Howard Johnson chain of roadside eateries.

Each Howard Johnson restaurant along the New Jersey Turnpike has been provided with anti-hitchhiker placemats.

The colorful mat tells of a study of hitchhikers apprehended on the New Jersey Turnpike.

The diner is given this information out of 501 hitchhikers, 162 were runaways, 98 were AWOL servicemen, seven were escapees from mental institutions, five were escaped convicts, and one was a murderer.

To complete the picture Howard Johnson displays two drawings. One of a longhaired freak being passed by two scowling travelers, and one of happy people waving to a grinning cop.

Free use of Classified Columns given to UNC-W Students.

Hounded by Debts?

use
Seahawk Classifieds

The GOLDEN SCREW...

the gift that needs no explanation...

2 inches long... 24 kt. gold plated. Exquisite Hand Polished, Rich Patina Finish in a PRESENTATION CASE. $2.00 postpaid, or 3 for $5.00.

The GOLDEN SCREWS can be given in love, appreciation, hate, revenge or just for a laugh.

GOLDEN SCREW ☐
BOX 3424
SEMINOLE, FLORIDA 33842

Dear GS:
I know at least one person who deserves one. Please send me

☐ Golden Screws
☐ Enclosed find my check for.

☐ Please bill my order to my:
☐ BankAmericard
☐ Master Charge

My credit card

number is _____
For Master Charge, please also give the four digit interbank number above your name:

☐ ☐ ☐ ☐

Name _____
Street _____
Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

NOTICE

The positions of

Junior Class Vice-president
and Senator need to be filled!

Contact Barry Asbury,
Junior Class President
or put message in SGA
box in Pub.

THE FINEST

In Mobile Homes

'We enjoy a reputation for excellent service for over 25 years.'

Charlie Cannon, Charlie Parker,
Joe Fuller, Ed Lee

Oakwood Mobile Homes
5202 Oleander Dr. Wilmington
791-0317

BULLETIN BOARD

LOST & FOUND

There are three main places to check now when hunting something you've lost: the cafeteria, the cashier's office (Administration Bldg.) and the Pub. A lady's watch, several pairs of glasses, and two high school rings are among the articles being held by the cashier. Mrs. Moore has several books and notebooks, umbrellas, a sweater, and a fraternity pin in her office in the Pub. The Cafeteria manager holds anything found there — mainly texts and notebooks. (Dorm students, of course, should check with Mr. Munroe). If you lost anything during summer school or since fall semester began, be sure to check these places.

SOUND OF MUSIC

Sound of Music by Thalian Association, October 19, 20, 21, 22 at 8 p.m. Admission $2.50. Wednesday, October 18, special student night, admission $1.

PROGRAM NOTES

October 22 - October 28, 1972

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA TELEVISION

8:40 Cover to Cover
9:00 Cultures
9:30 Physical Science
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Earth Science
11:30 Math
12:00 Ripples
12:15 Math
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 Earth Science
1:30 Physical Science
2:00 Ready Set Go!
2:30 Cultures
3:00 World of Science (T)
*3:30 Cultures
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
6:00 Evening Edition
*6:30 Comm. in Local Gov't.
7:00 Backyard Gardener
8:00 Special: "Profile in Music: Shirley Verrett"
9:30 Book Seat
10:00 Sign Off

TUESDAY Schedule
8:30 You the Supervisor
9:00 Math
9:30 Learn to Think
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Cultures
11:30 Cover to Cover
11:50 Earth Science
12:20 Film
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 Images & Things
1:20 Ready Set Go!
1:40 Cover to Cover
2:00 The Humanities
2:30 Cultures
3:00 Statistics for Problem Solving
*3:30 Film
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
6:00 Evening Edition

(continued on page 9)

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Sunday afternoon Bike Rides. Groups for fast, slow, long-distance, short-distance riders. Meet at Jim Cobb's house. Leave about 1 p.m. For more information, call 762-8651. After 6 p.m.

CORRECTION

Last week in the write-up of the UNCW-ECU soccer game, there was a mistake made when it read "Seahawk goalie Mose Whissant." It should have read "Seahawk goalie, Bill Watkins."

FISH & CHICKEN

Fish & Chicken dinners will be sold for $1.50 Sat., Oct. 21st. Buy tickets in advance from any Wantu Wazuri member (try the Snack Bar during the day). Dinners can be picked up between noon and 7 P.M. at 1503 Orange St. or deliveries can be requested by telling any Wantu Wazuri member or by calling 762-4895 or 762-0561. Candy apples and soda will also be sold.

PUB MAILBOXES

Student organizations now have mailboxes. They're located in the Pub, around the corner from Mrs. Moore's office. This will probably be a primary means of communication to each club, so members are reminded to check their boxes once a day.

Dr. Creighton's scheduled talk on VD, abortion, and birth control has been postponed because of illness. His talk will be rescheduled some time this semester. Save your questions!

Anyone who did not pick up their money or unsold books from the UNCW Business Club Book Sales should call George Chadwick at 763-1737 after 10:00 P.M.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Dr. William A. Ward is to attend the International Conference on Unemployment in Developing Countries in Bellagio, Italy on October 23-28. Dr. Ward will present a paper "Macro-Level Interactions for Aggregate Analysis of Rural Employment in the Development Process." Dr. Ward is also to give a seminar in Rome to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization about Rural Unemployment Problems in Developing Countries. (Note: According to the Business Department, the Italian navy has more admirals than it does ships.)

CASHIERS OFFICE

Lots of mail for students has collected in the in-coming basket of the Cashiers Office. Check the basket — you may have a letter from a long, lost relative!

INFIRMARY

Hours: 9-12 noon.
Monday - Friday. After hours call Dr. Daniel Gottovi and identify yourself as a UNCW student.

HISTORY CLUB

Elections of officers held at last meeting, October 11:
President — Gregg Willett
Vice-president — Bob Page
Secretary — Linds Maready
Social Activities Committee — Betty Lou Collins
Program Chairman — Stuart Benson
Advisor — Dr. Henry Crowgey

Meetings are held the 1st Wednesday night of each month, 7:30 p.m. in A-204. All interested persons are invited to attend.

MODERN LANGUAGES

Dr. Antolin Gonzalez-del-Valle has accepted a position with Journal of Spanish Studies: Twentieth Century as a member of Editorial Advisory Council. The periodical stresses the esthetic characteristics of literary work, and will appear three times annually (Spring, Fall, Winter) beginning 1973.

NOTICE

Any group, club, or organization which desires to use university physical facilities for any purpose other than regularly scheduled class periods must submit a written request to the Office of Information Services, Room 119 in the Alderman Building. The request should be submitted at least three days in advance of event.

Gwen Croom
Assistant Director
Information Services

AMERICAN
COPYRIGHTING
& PUBLISHING ASSOCIATES

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE
30,000 MANUSCRIPTS
ON FILE
331 West Main St.
Durham, N. C. 27701
919/688-2744

Give your ears a break.

WMFD-FM
100.9

An "Oasis" of Fun at

Pappagallo

$19.00

JEAN SALE
Starting Monday

25% OFF

2231 Wrightville Ave.

Yvonne's

DRESS SHOP

FINE FASHIONS PETITES, JRS., MISSES

MARKET PLAZA, 19 S. KERR AVENUE

Sipress

Student Linda L. Quinn, Major Mathematics, Advisor Thaddeus G. Dankel, Jr. "A study of probability theory from the beginnings of the field, through its modern measure-theoretic formulation, and into a selected problem, possibly concerning the central limit theorem and/or Brownian motion."

Student Louise F. Whittington, Major English, Advisor James G. Collier. "To write an original novel of 40,000 words."

Twelve enter honors program

Twelve students entered the Honors Program this semester. The following gives the major field, research project, and faculty member supervising work for each student.

Student Janice Louise Asbel, Major Drama and Speech, Advisor Betty Jo Welch. "Produce, direct, and perform in a program to be broadcast over WWAY-TV."

Student Arnold Jackson Canady, Major Physics, Advisor Hildelisa C. Hernandez. "Analysis of rainfall variance over Brunswick County, N.C."

Student Richard E. Formaini, Jr., Major Psychology, Advisor Elmer H. Davidson. "Investigation of biolateral transfer in the blue crab (Callinectes sapidus)."

Student Troy Kenneth Hales, Jr., Major English, Advisor Joanne K. Corbett.

"Analysis of Slavic and Finno-Ugric mythology after the principles of Georges Dumézil."

Student Dalia Hernandez, Major English, Advisor Gerald S. Rosselot. "In-depth study of the fiction of Stephen Crane, with emphasis on his treatment of character."

Student Charles H. Keffer, Major French, Advisor Jackson G. Sparks. "Some aspect or aspects of the works of Raymond Queneau, contemporary poet and novelist."

Student Martha S. Murray, Major Elementary Education, Advisor Paz Bartolome. "School popularity as a factor in academic achievement."

Student Frederick C. Ourt, Major English, Advisor James G. Collier. "Investigation of the art of science fiction, including a study of current critical attention, evaluation of major nineteenth and twentieth century authors, and establishment of criteria for judging science fiction as an art form."

Student Erich S. Parker, Major English, Advisor Joanne K. Corbett. "The progression of characterization in selected novels of Charles Dickens."

Student Brenda C. Peterson, Major Biology, Advisor Anne B. McCrary. "The quantitative collection and the identification of the benthic fauna from two ecologically distinct areas — and low salinity, brackish waters of Alligator Creek and Brunswick River, and the higher salinity waters of Baldhead Creek."

Three students who started honors work last year are still in the program. They are: Gregory Otis Nelson (Chemistry-Mathematics), Joseph Lester Shoub (Business) and Daniel Gray Grady (Physics).

Four students completed the Honors Program last year: Dianne Braak (Music), Harry Stephen Howard (Physics), Michael D. Purvis (Mathematics) and Laviece C. Ward (English).

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING

YOU'LL FIND IT IN THE CLASSIFIEDS

CHAMPION TERMPAPERS
 636 Beacon St. (No. 605)
 Boston, Mass. 02215
 617-536-9700
 Research material for
 Termpapers, Reports, Theses,
 etc. LOWEST PRICES.
QUICK SERVICE. For information, please write or
 call.

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
 TRUST CO. N.A.

Visit Our Mod
 Mod World

Our Prices Are
 Guaranteed to
 Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
 799-0990

ABORTION
INFORMATION
 PREGNANCY TEST AVAILABLE
 An Abortion can be arranged within 24 hours
 You can return home
 the same day you leave.
CALL COLLECT:
215 - 735-8100
 OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK A Non-Profit Organization 24 HOURS

NOTICE

The APO Service Fraternity

FREE Chance To Win
Multiplex Stereo System.
Only $1 Donation

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

See any APO brother

TV SCHEDULE

(continued from page 7)

- 6:30 Soc. of Education
7:00 School Food Service
7:30 Excep. Children
8:00 Candidates '72
*8:30 U.N. Day Concert
10:00 So. Perspective
11:00 Sign Off

*Denotes Program Schedule Change

WEDNESDAY Schedule

- 8:40 Ready Set Go!
9:00 Cultures
9:30 Physical Science
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Math
11:30 Meet the Arts
12:00 Earth Science
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 World of Science
1:20 Film
1:30 Physical Science
2:00 Earth Science
2:30 Cultures
3:00 You the Supervisor
*3:30 Film
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 Electric Co.
6:00 Evening Edition
6:30 Statistics for Problem Solving
7:00 Now
*7:30 Scholars & Dollars
8:00 Election '72
8:30 Playhouse New York
"New Actors for the Classics"
10:00 Soul!
11:00 Sign Off

THURSDAY Schedule

- 8:45 Meet the Arts
9:15 Ripples
9:30 Learn To Think
10:00 Sesame Street
11:00 Cultures
11:30 Earth Science
12:00 Images & Things
12:20 Film
12:30 Electric Co.
1:00 The Humanities
1:30 Granny
1:50 Math
2:20 Film
2:30 Cultures
3:00 Film
3:20 Ready Set Go! (P)
3:40 Film
4:00 Misterogers
4:30 Sesame Street
5:30 The Electric Co.
6:00 Evening Edition
6:30 Soc. of Education
7:00 Auto Mechanics
*7:30 TBA
8:00 The Advocates
9:00 International Performance
10:00 World Press
10:30 30 Mins. With...
11:00 Sign Off

Sex leads to high marks?

Kent, Ohio (CPS) -- A new "morals" question has arisen at Kent State University following an address given to the freshman class by KSU student body president, Bob Gage.

Gage was scheduled to speak at an opening night gathering, which started off freshman week, and was attended by freshmen, faculty, parents, University administrators and the president of the Board of Trustees.

Gage announced at the podium that instead of the usual "welcome freshman speech" he was going to talk about sex. This triggered off some laughter and mumblings in the audience, but Gage continued.

He launched into a talk about premarital sex -- "Your father tells you to not go get caught, and your mother tells you not to do it."

Gage then told the crowd of a report he had seen documenting the correlation between a great deal of sexual activity and high scholastic achievement, adding, "I don't mean you have to go out and have sex to get A's."

Gage then concluded by saying, "I want this to be a campus where you can not only walk up to your fellow student and say 'hi,' but I want this to be a campus where you can walk up to another student and say 'Do you ball?'"

Typical of the many reactions to Gage's speech was that of parents who immediately demanded that their child be withdrawn from KSU. "What he (Gage) said fit exactly with what my neighbors were telling me about KSU all summer. I thought his speech was in extremely bad taste."

Overnite Canoe/Camping Trips

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

Light Foot Expedition Company

Box 326

Bill Clark

Wrightsville Beach

Phone 256-3441

"Wilmington's Largest Diamond Importers"

Read's

37 NORTH FRONT STREET

WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA 28401

- *University Rings
- *University Jewelry
- *Engagement Rings
- *Diamond Jewelry

*Student Charge Accounts

*New Accounts Welcome

"It's Read's for Diamonds"

Front and Princess Sts.

VOTE
Ray Matthis

State House of Representatives

Paid Political Ad.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I wish to take this opportunity to again express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to the many folks of New Hanover County for their fine support during the May Primary.

Hopefully you will see fit to continue to support me in the November General Election.

Again your continued support is appreciated.

ELECT
PENDER P.
DURHAM
County Commissioner

Paid Political Ad

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS

Largest available collection of reference reports
from $1.90 per page

The most qualified staff of research-writers
Quick and quality results

Cost of call reimbursed when you order

(202) 785-4511

2430 Penn. Ave. N.W., Wash. D.C. G-24 20037
t.p.u. of d.c., inc. t/a

MARKETING REPS. WANTED

WANTED: Someone to share expenses on house ($60.00/month). Contact Bill Kornegay at 3276 Camden Circle. Cal at North Brunswick High School in Leland after Aug. 26.

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE to thumb to West Coast with. Leave anytime after Sept. 1. Call James 791-4677.

NEEDED: Refrigerator desperately. 3715 Wrightsville Ave. Up to $30.

FOR SALE: Stereo system AM-FM radio tape player, BSR McDonald Turntable, two 6" speakers, walnut grain. In top shape must sell. $120. Call 791-2032 after 6 p.m.

WANT GIRL to share my apartment with me. $40 a month, includes utilities. See: Catherine M. Kilrick 2301 Adams Street, Wilmington. Riverside Apts.

S
e
a h
a w k

needs
your

Help!!

typist
writers
reporters

MEETINGS
- 11:30 P.
MONDAY
4:30

DOWNSTAIRS
Stud. Serv. Bldg.

The GOLDEN SCREW...

the gift that needs no explanation...

2 inches long... 24 kt. gold plated. Exquisite Hand Polished, Rich Patina Finish in a PRESENTATION CASE. $2.00 postpaid, or 3 for $5.00.

The GOLDEN SCREWS can be given in love, appreciation, hate, revenge or just for a laugh.

GOLDEN SCREW []
BOX 3434
SEMINOLE, FLORIDA 33542

Dear GS:
I know at least one person who deserves one. Please send me

☐ Golden Screws

☐ Enclosed find my check for

☐ Please bill my order to my:
☐ BankAmericard
☐ Master Charge

My credit card number is

For Master Charge, please also give the four digit interbank number above your name:

[] [] [] []

Name _____

Street _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

State _____ Zip _____

Needed

1 Photographer

1 Assistant Editor,

1 Business Manager

THE SEAHAWK

TV GUIDE ANNOUNCES

A Special Subscription Offer

Saving you 30%

of the single-copy price

28 single copies regularly cost $4.20

28 WEEKS *$2.94

SUBSCRIBE TODAY!

TV GUIDE • Box 3434 • Seminole, Florida 33542

Dear TV Guide:

☐ Please send me the 28 issue subscription for $2.94.

☐ I'd like a longer money-saving subscription of 54 issues for $5.67, at the same 30% special savings rate.

Name _____

Street _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Enclosed find my check for payment in full.

☐ Please bill the subscription to my:

☐ BankAmericard ☐ Master Charge

My Credit Card No. is:

For Master Charge, please also give the four digit interbank number above your name:

[] [] [] []

RE-ELECT
BERRY A. WILLIAMS
COUNTY COMMISSIONER
Experienced - Dependable

GO HAWKS

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. German State
5. Slight Difference
10. Declare Positively
14. Bohemian River
15. Claw
16. Volcanic Rock
17. Actor Guinness
18. Watchful
19. Coffin Stand
20. Cell Division
22. French Painter
24. Allen Belt
25. British Nobleman
26. English County
29. In Medias
30. Peruvian Volcano
34. Sly Look
35. Put on
36. Defensive Barrier
37. Miss Lupino
38. Thus (L.)
39. Japanese Sash
40. Every one
41. Body Powder
43. Undivided
44. Girl's Name
45. Follow
46. Brazilian City
47. Sultan's Wives
48. A Ford
50. Greek God
51. Flickering
54. Group Leader
58. Continent
59. Part of Church
61. Tardy
62. Vend
63. Bury
64. Fencing Sword
65. Dormitory
66. and Penates
67. Measure of Length

DOWN

1. Line of Juncture
2. There: Sp.
3. Help
4. Get Jack
5. Discoloration
6. Dutch Painter
7. Beer
8. Sewing Society
9. Penetrate
10. Balkan Country
11. Futile
12. Flat
13. -earth Metal
21. Jazz Instrument
23. Voodoo Snake Deity
25. Son of (Heb.)
26. Typewriter Type Size
27. Automobile Kind
28. Closes
29. Mythical Bird
31. Step
32. Mark Used in Spanish
33. Mohammedanism
35. Vague
36. Fortas
38. Tanned Leather
39. Beale's Wife
42. Pool Table Item
43. Petroleum
44. American Inventor
46. Eye Part
47. Chinese Dynasty
49. Slow-moving Mollusk
50. Heavy Columns
51. Whip
52. On the Ocean
53. English Philosopher
54. Swiss Painter
55. Jackie Gleason Role
56. Roman Road
57. Requisite
60. Orchestra Section (abbr.)

IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF YOUR LIVING!

Vote for B. D. (Bennie)

SCHWARTZ

FOR STATE HOUSE

Experienced in:

- GOVERNMENT
- EDUCATION
- BUSINESS

HE KNOWS OUR NEEDS

Elect Him to
N.C. House of Representatives
(Reg. Pol. Adv.)

YOU DON'T NORMALLY NEED MONEY
TO MAKE A DEAL WITH US.

DAVE GARRIS

DON POWERS

People with a high degree of intelligence normally buy Pats and Subarus, because they recognize the sophisticated engineering features of both.

TEST DRIVE AT
AMERICAN IMPORTS
1529 S. College Rd. 791-2137

Catholic
Digest

Catholic
Digest

Catholic
Digest

Catholic
Digest

Catholic
Digest

Catholic
Digest

Human Interest Editorial... in a
Special Interest Market

Take human-interest, digest-type editorial. Tailor it to a special interest audience. Result? A powerful medium for building product acceptance.—Catholic Digest!

For over thirty-four years, the Catholic Digest has informed, entertained and inspired its readers with a judicious selection of articles, stories, and features, digested from the world's best newspapers, magazine, and books.

Contents — only 20% are of a religious nature — deal with family, health, emotions, raising children, hobbies, etc. Patterned on this successful editorial formula, Catholic Digest wins a monthly welcome into the homes of over 535,000 Catholic families with over 864,000 primary adult readers, the cream of the Catholic market — a market of increasing economic and special strength.

CATHOLIC DIGEST
Box 3434 • Seminole, Fla. 33542

Enclosed find:

- ☐ my check for $2.97, a one-year subscription to
CATHOLIC DIGEST.
- ☐ please bill my subscription to my:
- ☐ BankAmericard My credit card no. is:
- ☐ Master Charge
- for Master Charge, please also give the four-digit interbank no. above your name.
- ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

CATHOLIC DIGEST
described by TIME as "the most widely accepted... the most successful magazine of the largest periodical publisher in the U.S., The Roman Catholic Church."

FREE

C L A S S I F I E D S

TO

UNC-W

Students

'WE'RE LOOKING FOR A MAN WHO'S NOT AFRAID TO STAND UP AND SAY: "YES SIR BOSS, ANYTHING I SAY, SIR!"'

Electronic Calculators Sale Prices

As low as $59.95 and up.

Several Models in stock
for immediate delivery.

Portables, AC/DC, & AC only

Smith-Corona Portables &
Electrics also on Sale

Electronic Calculators

1709 Dawson St. Wilmington 762-9526

NEEDED!

Ideas for future dances

and homecoming week

dance. Leave msg. in

Dance Committee box in

Pub.

Official Agent for
U.N.C. at
Wilmington
Class Rings

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON LEADERS JEWELER

"If it's from Kingoff's
It's Guaranteed"

Convenient
Terms

10 N. Front St.

FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE - FALL '72

9:00-11:00 1:00-3:00 7:00-9:00
Tues. 8:30 MWF 2:30 MWF Tuesday night
Dec. 12 classes classes classes

Wed. 9:30 MWF 3:30 MWF Wed. night
Dec. 13 classes classes classes

Thurs. 10:30 MWF 1:30 MWF Thurs. night
Dec. 14 classes classes classes

Fri. 11:30 MWF 2:00 T Th
Dec. 15 classes classes

Mon. 12:30 T Th 12:30 MWF Monday night
Dec. 18 classes classes classes

Tues. 10:00 T Th 11:30 Th
Dec. 19 classes classes

Wed. 8:30 T Th 3:30 T Th
Dec. 20 classes classes

COLLEGE SENIORS

HERE IS NEWS ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE BENEFITS NOW AVAILABLE ONLY TO YOU! IT'S A UNIQUE INSURANCE PLAN DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR YOU BECAUSE OF YOUR HIGH EARNING POTENTIAL AND YOUR EXTENSIVE INSURANCE PROTECTION NEEDS.

The College Special

CHECK THESE BENEFITS:

1. $10,000 to $25,000 of permanent life insurance at low guaranteed premium
2. Additional $10,000 to $25,000 in case of accidental death
3. Option to buy up to $90,000 additional life insurance in the future, regardless of insurability... your choice of permanent plans
4. If disabled, an additional life insurance policy up to $15,000 may be applied for on next option date and premiums waived on this new coverage
5. Guaranteed premium payments should you be disabled 6 months or longer
6. Guaranteed cash values at any time to meet emergencies
7. Financing available for first annual premium.

FOR FURTHER DETAILS, CONTACT:

AGENT'S NAME

ADDRESS

TELEPHONE

Jefferson Standard
Life Insurance Company
HOME OFFICE / GREENSBORO, N. C.

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

VOL. XV NO. 6

EIGHT PAGES

"By students, for students."

FRIDAY, NOV. 2, 1972

For Suspicion

Ousted Students Await Appeal

A large crowd of students numbering approximately 175 gathered at the Dormitory last week and marched on Chancellor Wagoner's home that same night in protest of the dismissal of 5 male students from the Dormitory Sunday.

The five students were removed from the Dorm on Monday of last week for suspicion of smoking marijuana, according to Dean Brown. The students were advised to leave the Dorm within 24 hours and did so.

These students seem to be in agreement that they had been treated unfairly. After word spread throughout the student community, other students joined in protest of the eviction. A demonstration ensued in the lobby of the dormitory, and as other students joined the ranks of those already in demonstration, a short march began from the dormitory to the Administration building by approximately seventy-five people.

When the demonstrators discovered that none of the administration staff were available at the administration building they returned to the Dormitory. After a general consensus they boarded a number of cars and roared in caravan fashion to the Chancellor's house at 17th and Market.

When the students arrived at the house they assembled at the front entrance and elected two students representatives whom they wished to talk to the Chancellor; however, the city police prevented this as the demonstrators were informed that they were trespassing and in violation of the law.

After being advised by the police that they were disturbing the peace, the demonstrators voluntarily disbanded themselves. One student said, "I believe that this demonstration was successful in that the students were allowed to return to the Dorm pending further decisions by Chancellor Wagoner."

The students themselves were interviewed and explained all the events that led up to their initial dismissal from the dormitory. The six students are: Kevin Beard, a freshman from Buies Creek whose major is medical technology and resides in room 303; David Mashburn, 19, a freshman from Charlotte whose major is business and resides in room 417; Tommy Riddenhour, 20, a junior from Mocksville whose major is marine biology and resides in room 420; Henry McNair, 18, a freshman from Raleigh whose major is Veterinary medicine and resides in room 416; Stan Ozment a junior from Laurinburg whose major is accounting and resides in room 303; as well as an off campus student whose name is not known at the present time. This is the first semester at UNC-W for all of these students.

According to these students on the night this incident occurred, they were watching TV when a knock came at their door. They answered their door inquiring "who is it." At this time John P. Monroe III, the dorm counselor, pushed his way into the room, and said "Alright what have you guys been smoking?" We replied "nothing".

"Monroe insisted that both floors above and below ours had complained about us burning candles or tea or something. When Monroe inquired about this we replied "no".

"Monroe then took all our names and then carefully investigated an ash tray, but declined an offer to a more thorough investigation of the room. He then left saying that he would have further talks with us the following day.

"Monday we received messages for appointments at Dean Brown's office at 11:30 a.m. (A total of 3 classes were missed by the group)." Beard and Oxment were the first to arrive and were received by Dean Brown and according to the students Dean Brown claimed they were smoking pot. Both students said "we denied it, because it was the truth."

Dean Brown indicated that Monroe said that he smelled it in the hall. The students stated that Dean Brown thought that this was sufficient grounds for asking them to leave the dormitory. They were informed to turn in their ID cards and explained no refund was possible. "He emphasized the fact that we were not welcome in the Dorm even for visiting purposes," they said. At Dr. Malloy's suggestion the students were allowed to remain in the dorm pending a

(continued on page 5)

Seahawks edge 'Meth's 1-0

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington's Seahawks edged Methodist College 1-0 in NAIA District 29 soccer action at Brooks Field Tuesday afternoon.

The victory was the third of the year for the Seahawks against seven setbacks and one tie. The win was the second straight and three of the last four for coach Calvin Lane's Seahawks.

The Seahawks scored on an unassisted goal by Kevin Rittlinger after 20 minutes had elapsed in the first half.

The Seahawk dominated the first half of play and had numerous scoring opportunities, but couldn't put another score.

Methodist controlled the ball and the game in the second half, but Seahawk goalie, Bill Watkins, made some fantastic stops on shots, and Methodist was unable to score.

Fullbacks John Howarth, Mose Whisnant, Hal Goodson, and Mike Strass had good games for the Seahawks.

Hosier soon to finish dissertation

Paul E. Hosier, a marine biologist new this year to the biology department of UNCW, will soon finish his dissertation at Duke University concerning hurricane effects on vegetation of the North Carolina Outer Banks.

Dr. Hosier has been working specifically on the islands Core Banks and Shackleford. Due to the lack of hurricanes during his study, he has simulated sand and seawater effects of a hurricane.

Also on Core Banks, he has studied the plant productivity as it differs between dunes and grasslands. In addition to these studies, Shackleford's dune slacks, or the "valleys" of the dune area, contain different vegetation than that found on the dunes themselves. Dr. Hosier's study here revolves around why the vegetation grows where it does and the adaptations necessary for it to live in the duneslacks. Another of his studies includes investigation of seaweed as a growing bed for sea oats, much like the Indians used fish as a growing bed for corn. Dr. Hosier has found that sea oats have more rapid growth when in beds of seaweed. This could have important implications in commercial growing of sea oats or growing stock for replanting demolished dunes.

Dr. Hosier worked with the National Park Service this past summer in the area designated to be the Cape Lookout National Seashore, a recreation area soon to be established on the Outer Banks. Dr. Hosier worked on the resource management plan for the area; that is, a survey of resources in the area, and problems resulting from use of the park area by visitors.

Dr. Hosier will co-ordinate the new Marine Ecology course to be offered spring semester. The course will be a joint effort of members of the department, and will cover "advanced concepts involving the ecology of estuarine and marine environments."

Movie

'night of Comedy'

Friday, Nov. 3

8 p. m. Kenan

Intramural Basketball Announced

Entries are currently being received from any group or organization wishing to enter a team in the men's intramural basketball program.

Entries must be filed with Coach Dave Warner by November 1. Games are now set to begin during the week of November 6. Warner is hoping for a total of either 18 to 20 teams to enter so that there can be two leagues this year. This would give each team in the two leagues a chance to play around nine games not including the playoffs.

In talking with Warner this past Friday on how the two leagues would be comprised, he commented "there will be two leagues this season with the stronger teams in one league and the weaker teams in another league. Play-offs will be held at the end of the season to determine league champions. The winner of each league will then meet to determine the over all champion."

Any further information needed on the Intramural Basketball program can be located by seeing Coach Dave Warner.

Cheering squad announced

Fifteen girls tried out for the 1972-73 cheering squad, Tuesday night, October 15. Eight girls were graded on appearance, pep, poise, pleasantness, and loudness of voice. Chosen were Barbara Branch, Nancy Barrk, Ann Morse, JoAnne McChesney, Pat Long, Darlene Cable, Margaret Marcum and Janet Silar.

Debate team splits

The Debate team is splitting up this weekend.

The novices are slated to participate in the Wake Forest tournament, scheduled for this Friday and Saturday.

The new arguers include Mike McCombie, Lance Ferrell, and two others.

The Varsity debaters plan to debate at the "slaughterhouse", a gruelling 3-day period, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, at Chapel Hill. They will battle teams from all over the country including many ivy league schools. According to Patti McCombie, varsity team debater, this will be their toughest competition of the season.

Varsity team members include Janice Asbell, Patti McCombie, Lee Hoffman, Keith Hales, William Jasper Brooks, Jr. and Fred Ourt.

SEASQUAWKS

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Japanese City
6. Actor John
10. Lichtenstein Painting
14. Lowest Point
15. Spanish Conjunction
16. Mr. Goldberg
17. Soviet Order
18. Pol. ows
19. Judah's Son
20. Assassin
22. Decay
23. Statutes
24. Sorrow
26. Windpipe
28. Occasional
33. Interjection
34. Analyze
35. Tenet
37. Mooselike Deer
40. Cut
41. Picture Game
42. Fencing Sword
43. Greek Letter
44. Makes Vibratory Sound
45. Express Opinion
46. Novice
47. Not Normal
49. Restrain
53. Edible Grain
54. Horse Color
55. —square
57. Meddle at Card Game
62. Enthusiastic
63. Hindustani
65. Place but Goodie
66. Place for Chapeau
67. Midday
68. Requires
69. Arabian Prince
70. Remove
71. Potato Type

DOWN

1. Burden
2. Japanese Beer: Var.
3. Jewish Month
4. Graphite
5. Cellar Entrance
6. Fitting
7. Accoutrements
8. Cant
9. Pulpits
10. Bitlike Tool
11. Meal
12. Lesson
13. I.Q. Society
21. Head Motion
25. Sea Duck
27. Moslem Title
28. Wise Man
29. CEEB Exam
30. Greek Mountain
31. Football Cheer
32. Poisonous Snake
36. Relish
37. Narrative Poem
38. Siberian River
39. Ship Part
41. Reddish
42. Prefix
44. Bar
45. Choices
46. Slag
48. Long-haired Ox
49. Angry
50. Latin Numeral
51. Duvalier's Country
52. Pang
56. Object of Worship
58. Left Town
59. Fixe
60. Turn the —
61. Piquancy
64. French Numeral

Editor named defendant in suit

by Cathey Brackett
Staff Writer

Daily Tar Heel Editor Evans Witt has been named as a defendant in the suit brought by four UNC students against the DTH.

Witt's request to be admitted to the case as a defendant was to be one of the considerations at a hearing on Nov. 2 in Durham Federal Court. The hearing will still be held, however, to decide on the defendants' motion to postpone further proceedings in the DTH case until a similar case, involving the student newspaper at N.C. Central University, is resolved.

The order appointing the editor as defendant was signed by Chief Judge Eugene Gordon of Greensboro on Wednesday. Gordon ruled in the NCCU Echo case that the University could not dictate opinion by financial support of a newspaper.

The Echo case is currently on appeal in U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. Witt said Judge Gordon will probably also hear the DTH case.

The DTH editor joins Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor, University President William C. Friday, Vice Chancellor of Business and Finance Joseph Eagles, the UNC Board of Governors and the UNC trustees as defendants.

Like the other defendants, Witt will be acting as an individual and in his official capacity as editor.

Plaintiffs in the suit are Robert Arrington, David Boone, Robert Grady and Gray Miller.

The crux of the suit, filed in July, lies in the questioned right of the University to collect fees to support a student newspaper whose opinions are not compatible with those of some students. The student plaintiffs contend that being forced to financially support views with which they do not agree violates their constitutional rights.

Read This, It'll Slay You

To the Editor:

Please print the following: In times of improved methods of doing things, it is not surprising that we have uncovered sure and uncomplicated ways of committing suicide. No longer must we rely on those old fashioned ways that brought scandal on families and lost us insurance money — no more muss, no more fuss. Our do it yourself methods are quite an improvement over the old ones. And what is more, we have time to change our minds, if we can muster the will power before it's too late.

One plan is called "Eat Now Pay Later". We've repeatedly been warned about obesity and what it does to the heart, that's an old one, no big deal right? But we've got a new one now, the number one KILLER today and that's called CORONARY ARTERY DISEASE. You don't have to be overweight with this one, so you can be a trim cadaver. Now that's an improvement! Chances are real good that somewhere between the ages of 40 to 70 you should have arteriosclerosis or hyperlipidemia. Take your pick. In case you are really interested in latching on to one of these, all you have to do is keep taking in all the cholesterol. You are off to a good start! Fatty deposits will just keep building up on the walls of your arteries, making possible coronary thrombosis. To date it has not been definitely proved that any food has any effect upon the development of these diseases but some facts and circumstances appear to indicate the relationship between diet and the disease. So, though we can't guarantee that it's a perfect way for you to rid the world of your presence, we can give you pretty good odds. Like, the national dietary average for fat consumption is at an all-time high in the United States, with approximately 50% of our dietary calories being derived from fats. Studies show that populations that consume low-fat diets generally have been found to have lower blood serum cholesterol levels than those consuming high fat diets. During the past 70 years there has been a dramatic increase in the proportion of sugar to starch in the diet of the American public. It has been suggested that this dietary practice as well as the increased consumption of animal fats may be related to the high risk of coronary artery disease in the general population.

The American Heart Association has endorsed a policy recommending some modification in diet for everyone — reducing the fat content of the diet, and also maintaining body weight at normal levels. But if we all started taking the advice of the Heart Association this world might get awfully crowded with people keeping fit and perhaps there would be some nurses out of jobs. No telling what the implications would be if we began to practice what we have learned.

So that you can be sure of having all the sugars you need for your long term suicide plans, vending machines are handy everywhere. Students take good advantage of these helpers. They can always be seen with a soda in one hand and a candy bar or crackers in the other. Cafeterias are also a big help! They supply the excess fats in whole milk, french fries, hamburgers, potato chips for the hungry student who needs a quick snack before the next class. As long as we supply the demand, they will have the supply. Does that mean if we supplied the demand for a melba toast or skim milk machine we'd have that? Never... why we might be the laughing stock if we ever advocated something different. We'd much rather die of things other than embarrassment!

This first plan of suicide is a sure bet, but a slow one. Another bad feature about it is that the finale sometimes comes at a bad time; like when you are sitting back trying to enjoy some leisure after the kiddies are grown. One consolation is that you men can leave the wife while she is still young with plenty of money to spend on the next "High Cholesterolized Male." It might be interesting to note at this point that a brilliant young surgeon they call "Ted Terrific" has launched an aggressive fight

Continued on page 3

Jocks crush Shadows in Superbowl

By
Robert Braxton

The Jocks just simply out-offensed, out-defensed and out-played the Shadows as they went on to trounce the Shadows 41-0 in the University Intramural Flag-football Superbowl.

The Jocks who had averaged a little more than 55 points a game in winning their League Championship and allowing only 4 points on defense never let the Shadows start moving as they cruised to victory. Jock Captain Butch McDaniel said that it was an overall team victory in that every man helped contribute to the victory.

The first Jock touchdown had been set-up by an interception by Carroll Bickers just at the end of the first half as Bickers intercepted the ball, and returned it to the 1 yard line.

Read This,

Continued from page 2
against this number one killer. His surgical specialty is an exacting operation in which he restores the blood supply to a deteriorating heart muscle by attaching small pieces of vein to bypass fat-clogged sections of the heart artery. That is something to look forward to in case you change your mind at the last moment.

So Dig In and you'll be hearing from us next printing with Plan No. 2. You do your thing and we'll do our thing. Our thing is keeping you informed of "Health Happenings".

First Year Nursing Students

This made it very easy for Robby Ivey to run wide and pick-up the score. The conversion was good on a pass from Bill Warmack to McDaniel, and the score was seven to zip. The Jocks scored three more times in the first half and as the half ended, the Jocks were leading by a score of 27 to 0.

In the second half not much had changed for the Shadows, as the Jocks continued to dominate play. The Jocks didn't score in the third quarter but in the fourth period the Jocks got two scores making the score 41 to 0 as the game ended.

The Jocks quarterback Bill Warmack had a very good afternoon picking up 12 completions out of 21 attempts with 3 interceptions, and throwing the ball for about 180 yards and three touchdowns.

The Superbowl Jocks entire team consisted of Bill Hutchinson, Bill Warmack, Bo Pittman, Bill Dolan, Carroll Bickers, Ed Duetsch, Robby Ivey, Doug Donald, Bruce Failings, Eric Higgins, Bob Becher, Tom Davis, Billy Smith, Joe Miller, and Captain Butch McDaniel.

	Shadows	Jocks
1	0	0
2	0	27
3	0	0
4	0	14
	0	41

J - Ivey 1 yd. run (McDaniel Pass from Warmack)

J - Ivey 63 yd. pass from Warmack (Miller pass from Warmack)

J - Hutchinson 8 yd. pass from Warmack (Warmack run)

J - Hutchinson 20 yd. run

(Miller pass from Warmack)
J - Ivey 5 yd. run (McDaniel pass from Warmack)

FREE

C L A S S I F I E D S T O

UNC-W

Students

Writers wanted!

The Seahawk

(We train you)

Visit Our Mod
Mod World

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
799-0990

Vote for B. D. (Bennie)

SCHWARTZ

FOR STATE HOUSE

Experienced in:

- GOVERNMENT
- EDUCATION
- BUSINESS

HE KNOWS
OUR NEEDS

Elect Him to
N.C. House of Representatives

(PG. 101 Adv.)

We are CONCERNED
with your PREGNANCY
PROBLEMS

Feel free to call us collect 215-877-7700

"CONCERNED" A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

Serving your college campus

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat.

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p.m.

Paynes'

Hanover Center 9:30-9:00
Downtown 9:30-5:00

Sylvia Griffin,
freshman at UNC-W models this 'Long Dress'
by Mr. Arf of California.
Handbag by Codette of Italy.

Paynes'

Women's Tennis begun

The University Women's Intramural Tennis pairing were finally set last week, and the competition is already in progress.

There are eight girls entered in this tournament; all of which are very experienced and extremely talented, and this should go far in creating some very good and exciting tennis competition on our local courts.

In talking with Coach Dave Warner about this tennis tournament as to how it would be conducted, he said that there will be a winners bracket and losers, but no double elimination. Instead, the winners of the first matches will go in the champion bracket semi-finals, and the losers will go into the consolation semi-finals bracket. The winners of all four semi-final matches will then go into their own finals; championship bracket finalists into the champion finals and the consolation bracket finalist into the consolation finals. The losers in the consolation semi-finals will stop there, while the

Freshman Election Results

These are the results of the Freshmen elections. 72 voters, 7 void. 14% of Freshman class voted.

PRESIDENT

Phyllis Joyner	53	Winner
Terry Ward	10

VICE PRESIDENT

Betsy Johnson	40	Winner
Karen Saleeby	15

SECRETARY

Debbie Kennedy	53	Winner
Marion Scholar	2

SENATORS

Nancy Barr	53
Anne Morris	53
Beceryl Causey	23	Winner
Tom Rabon	22
Pamela Hall	21

losers in the championship semi-finals will advance on in the playing with a playoff for third place. This will mean that their will be four prizes given away; one each, to the champion, runner-up to the champion, third place, and the consolation winner.

Matches line-up like this for the tournament: Betsy Johnson will play Vickie

Murray and Sharon Norris will play Nancy Parker. In the lower bracket, Debbie Hooker will play Margaret Marcum while Marsha Crews will play Julie Odom.

It will be the responsibility of each contestant in the tournament to contact their opponent and decide on their playing dates. The winners of each match should contact either Warner or Pat Clontz so that the match can be posted. As far as the play of the matches themselves, Warner said that they would follow usual tournament play.

Anyone, contestants or others, wishing further information about the tournament should contact Coach Warner or Pat Clontz.

ELECT
ED

SNEAD

TO THE HOUSE

'73' Gran Torino Sport

1973 Fords

Now On Display

73' Pinto Runabout

The 1973 Fords have new safety features and must meet federal emission standards before sale.

THE LITTLE PROFIT SAVES YOU MORE THAN ANYTHING YOU EVER BARGAINED FOR.

Cape Fear Ford

4222 Oleander Drive

799-4060

We invite all UNCW students to visit us with this coupon you get $1 off any large pizza.

PIZZA HUT UNRESERVED NOTE

PIZZA HUTS OF WILMINGTON

Limit 1 Pizza Hut Dollar per pizza

Offer may be withdrawn at any time without notice.

Redeemable with the purchase of any LARGE-SIZE PIZZA at

4016 OLEANDER DR.
799-3650

3406 MARKET ST.
763-3418

Pizza Hut Pete
PIZZA HUT PETE

ONE PIZZA HUT BUCK

Bring this coupon

Offer expires November 5

"Students Ousted"

(continued from front)

decision by the Board of Trustees.

According to Vice-Chancellor Malloy, Monroe called Dean Brown after ascertaining that marijuana smoking was actually taking place in the room. Under Dean Brown's instruction he entered the room and got the names of the students involved.

"In my opinion the students confuse the college position with civil law," Malloy said. Every dorm resident had it in writing through their newsletter, that dorm students should not consider the dorm as a sanctuary for the possession and use of prohibitive drugs.

"Paragraph 11 of the room and dorm contract gives the University the right to ask a student to vacate their room when the University feels that this is necessary to promote welfare of the academic community.

"Our decision to ask these students to leave the dorm is

The quicker farmers lend their support to all efforts to raise net farm income, the quicker they can obtain their rightful economic position in our urban-oriented society.

The cost of farming has gone up much more than prices received by the farmer, giving him less net profit today.

Business Club sponsors workshop

The Business Club will sponsor an Interview Workshop in the Business Building, Room 112, November 14, for those students who need help in getting a job.

Al McGuire, job developer with the Employment Security Commission, and two of Wilmington's prominent personnel managers will deliver an hour long program which will include a film entitled "How to Get A Job", and tips on securing a job. A question and answer period will follow.

The Business Club encourages all students to participate in this workshop. Because of the increasing keenness in job competition this workshop should prove very beneficial to students seeking employment officials said.

LOOK FOR Savoy Brown
and 2 other
Rock Bands
Wednesday, Nov. 14
Coming soon to Brogden Hall
brought to you by
UNCW SGA

Students

Advance	Door
$4.00	$5.00
$5.00	$6.00

based on information provided us by our staff members and paragraph 11 of the room and dorm contract. We have been accused of using these five students as examples. By virtue of them being the first "caught", they have actually made themselves examples. We are enforcing University regulations.

The students are still living in the Dorm at the present time pending an appeal to the Executive Committee of UNC-W's Board of Trustees on Thursday.

Further appeal action may be taken to the UNC Board of Governors in Chapel Hill.

Overnite Canoe/Camping Trips

$12.50 per person

Singles, couples, or groups

Light Foot Expedition Company

Box 326

Wilmington, DE

Bill Cla

Phone 250

VOTE on Nov. 7

Make your own voice head

30 yrs. old

Graduate

NHHS

and

NC State

Independent Businessman

Energetic, fair - wife
is a teacher

New Hanover County

NEEDS

Dynamic, fresh leadership

PETER R. DAVIS

For County Commissioner

paid political ad.

THE FINEST In Mobile Homes

'We enjoy a reputation for excellent service for over 25 years.'

Charlie Cannon, Charlie Parker,
Joe Fuller, Ed Lee

Oakwood Mobile Homes
5202 Oleander Dr. Wilmington
791-0317

Police instigate 'Ride along' Program

According to a letter received by the Student Government Association from the Wilmington Chief of Police, H. E. Williamson, a "Police Ride-Along Program" has been inaugurated which encourages citizens to ride along in a patrol car during an evening tour of duty.

The letter reads as follows: The Wilmington Police Department has inaugurated a program known as the "Police Ride-Along Program" which encourages citizens to requested to be appropriately dressed, to have consumed no alcoholic beverages, and to assume all personal expenses during their stay with the patrolmen.

Applications for this program are available at the Wilmington Police Department.

ride along in a patrol car during an evening tour of duty. These few hours with a patrolman gives the citizen an opportunity to evaluate the problems facing a police officer in his everyday activities. It also gives the police officer the opportunity to have closer contact with community residents and to better understand their concerns.

The program is available on any night from 7:30 until midnight. All participants are

It is necessary that several restrictions be placed on participants. Persons under the age of 21 cannot take part due to a legal restriction on the waiver of liability exemption, a requirement of all participants. We welcome the participation of elected officials, but feel that candidates for political office should not participate in the program. Female applicants are welcome to apply and special arrangements will be made for their participation.

MIKE VAUGHAN

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMISSION CANDIDATE

on ENVIRONMENT or "LIVABILITY"

Question: What do you think is happening to "livability" in New Hanover County?

Answer: A County Commission (and also City Council) under the thumb of the promoters is catering to the pocketbook of the promoters at the expense of the 99 1/2% of the ordinary people of the county. This overacceleration of growth results in over-crowded schools, damage to residential areas, congested traffic, increased crime and narcotics problems to name a few.

Question: Don't you think that the "BOOM" will soon slow?

Answer: Yes! At the present rate they will have "Jersey Cityized" the whole country in a few years. Then, the promoters will escape to an island paradise and leave you and I to face the mess. They'll have the loot; we'll have the bag!

MIKE VAUGHAN
REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMISSION CANDIDATE

FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE — FALL '72

9:00-11:00 1:00-3:00 7:00-9:00
Tues. 8:30 MWF 2:30 MWF Tuesday night
Dec. 12 classes classes classes

Wed. 9:30 MWF 3:30 MWF Wed. night
Dec. 13 classes classes classes

Thurs. 10:30 MWF 1:30 MWF Thurs. night
Dec. 14 classes classes classes

Fri. 11:30 MWF 2:00 T Th
Dec. 15 classes classes

Mon. 12:30 T Th 12:30 MWF Monday night
Dec. 18 classes classes classes

Tues. 10:00 T Th 11:30 Th
Dec. 19 classes classes

Wed. 8:30 T Th 3:30 T Th
Dec. 20 classes classes

Stay
Ahead
4th

Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

RE-ELECT
BERRY A.
WILLIAMS
COUNTY COMMISSIONER
Experienced - Dependable

VOTE

Ray Matthis

State House of Representatives

Paid Political Ad.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I wish to take this opportunity to again express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to the many folks of New Hanover County for their fine support during the May Primary.

Hopefully you will see fit to continue to support me in the November General Election.

Again your continued support is appreciated.

ELECT
PENDER P.
DURHAM
County Commissioner

Paid Political Ad

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

Question: You hear so much about the hymen and how important it is to have it intact when you get married as proof of your virginity. What function if any, does it really serve? - Signed, Pat.

Dear Pat: The importance of it is only as great as those involved attach to it. Medically, as far as we have been able to determine it serves no particular function.

An intact hymen is not a reliable indicator of virginity and likewise an absent hymen does not imply that the girl has given away anything.

Question: What signs other than a late or skipped period can a girl use an indication of pregnancy? How soon after conception does morning sickness begin? - Signed, B.J.

Dear B.J.: There are three manifestations of pregnancy. The first are presumptive manifestations which include amenorrhea (missed period), nausea, vomiting which is usually confined to the first 12 weeks, breast tenderness and tingling, weight gain and urinary frequency. There can also be breast changes which include enlargement. The vagina and cervix may turn slightly blue in color and there is a softening of the mouth of the uterus. But remember these are just presumptive manifestations.

Probable manifestations usually occur after 28 weeks and include uterine enlargement and contractions of the uterus.

And finally positive manifestations which are undeniable medical and legal proof include the hearing of a fetal heartbeat, the demonstration of a fetal skeleton and the palpation of a fetal outline.

Morning sickness varies and can begin from one to two weeks.

Question: I have heard that Vitamin E pills will increase potency. If this is true would one have to take them over a long period of time or what? - Signed, Curious.

Dear Curious: To the best of our knowledge, the exact role of Vitamin E (a tocopherol, wheat germ oil) in man is unknown. Claims for its usefulness in heart disease and other diseases in humans have not been substantiated.

Question: I was recently informed by my girlfriend that I should not, as I always had done, throw away condoms after a single use. She says American condoms are thick enough to be reused, so long as they do not develop leaks. Is this true? Also, she says, containers are sold for storing a cleaned, used condom. Where can I get one of these?

What should be done to lubricate a used condom, or need it be lubricated? Does it make any difference as to whether one uses natural skins or rubber condoms? How many times is a condom reusable? What are the advantages to either party of using a condom more than once? - Signed, Uninformed.

Dear Uninformed: It is best not to reuse condoms (except for the heavy sheaths available in England) because each handling increases the chances of weakening the rubber. The cost of skin condoms, however, justifies their reuse (keep them in a glass of water) especially if you use another method at the same time (cream or jelly). We can think of no advantages other than economic in reusing condoms.

(Questions should be addressed to Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist, in care of The Daily Tar Heel, Student Union, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514)

COPYRIGHT (C) 1972 by Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist. All rights reserved.

"Hi... I'M CALLING IN REFERENCE TO YOUR AD IN THE MEN'S ROOM."

THE EDUCATION OF OUR CHILDREN SHOULD TRANSCEND ALL POLITICAL PARTIES

ESTELLE M. LEGWIN

Has

* EXPERIENCE

* ABILITY

* INTEGRITY

* COMMON SENSE

Life Member N.C. Association of Educators
American Assn. of University Women
Thursday Morning Music Club St. John's Art Gallery, Inc.

Taught 15 years in New Hanover County Schools

VOTE FOR ESTELLE M. LEGWIN

Board of Education

Paid Political Ad

COUNTY COMMISSIONER

* AMERICAN PARTY ****

DR. J. D. HODGES

I concur whole-heartedly with the principles of Mr. John Schmitz and the American Party and offer no list of empty promises.

I feel that we must get government out of the hands of the professional politicians who have gotten America in the compromising position we are in today.

This we must do if we are to save America and our way of life. I will Appreciate Your Vote and Support in 1972.

* VOTE - J. D. HODGES ****

I am for: Removing those citizens of this county who could but will not work from the welfare rolls. The working tax-payer does not owe these people a free living.

I am for: Reducing the tax rate of New Hanover County to the tax rate of 1971 or below.

I am for: No more re-zoning of privately owned property by any government until the owners have given their consent.

I am for: Open public meetings of New Hanover County Commissioners at a time of day when the average working citizen can attend if he so desires.

I am for: Private and free enterprise in this county and country. I feel that we must prevent the Board of County Commissioners from showing favoritism to individuals or certain corporations and companies engaged in free enterprise in this county.

I am for: Keeping all of the elected positions in county government elective that were elective before 1970. We must be aware of the fact that a new constitution has been approved for N.C. which gives the state legislature the power to abolish all elected positions in county government, except the position of county sheriff.

I am for: Refusing Federal Aid and Appropriations (It's our tax money to start with) to our local law enforcement agencies. If these funds are accepted, the Federal government will dictate and issue guidelines just as they have in our public schools. If you don't like federal control of our schools, buses, etc., wait until they take control of our local police departments.

I am for: Total freedom of choice in our public school system and feel that the parents should receive a government voucher which would enable each child to attend the school of the parents choice whether the school be public or private.

I am against the consolidation of city and county governments. This could, among other things, do away with the sheriff's department and cause this department to be merged with our local police department now under the direction of Chief Williamson.

Paid Political Advertisement

YOU DON'T NORMALLY NEED MONEY
TO MAKE A DEAL WITH US.

DAVE GARRIS

DON
POWERS

People with a high degree of intelligence normally buy Fiat and Subarus, because they recognize the sophisticated engineering features of both.

TEST DRIVE AT
AMERICAN IMPORTS

1529 S. College Rd.

791-2137

The typical Wilco Student

The following article was printed in the Seahawk Friday, April 11, 1969. It is printed here for student speculation and interest.

Skirts and Sweaters Forever

Is there a typical Wilco student? When asked this question students on campus had a good variety of answers as they tried to answer this question.

"Apathetic, bigoted, intelligence average, interests mostly beer and parties," decided one freshman girl.

"An ambitious person that knows how to work and how to relax. He is conscious of his responsibilities to his friends and environment," said another freshman girl.

"Certain sects appear to be undesirable such as the 'hippie' group. Other groups are active, proud participants. Unfortunately, too many are not school spirited," decided one senior girl.

One junior girl describes the typical boy on campus as "draft dodging."

"The typical college coed is a native or long time resident of Wilmington who is highly infected by the local view that 'life is not change,' that Wilmington is truly an example of the All-American city and completely unpossessed of any types of stimulating ideas," said a senior girl.

She continued, "She has probably never experienced a situation in which she was challenged to think and would be extremely shocked at the thought of daring to be an individual."

"By the way, she is so conventional that you seldom see her dress in even the nationally accepted styles; for example, boots, bell-bottoms, 'skirts and sweaters forever.'"

This same girl described the male students in much the same manner, but added, "He is even more resistant to change than the coed. He is more of a racist and probably voted for Wallace. He is so very straight that he probably doesn't realize that there are opinions other than his own."

A freshman married male thinks "that many are here to get an education with outside activities of secondary importance. Of course, there are some exceptions. Many are married and have children and it is impossible for them to get involved with outside activities."

Another freshman male thinks the students here are the products of their environment which they have been raised in. They are not reactionary on many subjects, but under the proper educational system their basic goodness could be drawn out for the betterment of themselves and those around them."

An out of state junior male says, "It appears to me that the typical male at Wilco knows everyone from Dr. Wagoner to the custodial engineer in the gym. He dresses nicely, likes the beach, has a new car (I don't know how), and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi."

One male freshman, declared that the majority of students are here for an education and not for the purpose of avoiding the draft. I feel that if a student is not here for educational purposes that he will probably flunk out for lack of interest and drive."

"A high school graduate that really hasn't broken the tie from high school and really doesn't care to become involved."

"The typical Wilmington student is just like any other college student except that he is perhaps a bit more inactive in campus affairs. He is also a bit conceited and non-mannerly.

"A self-contained individual who is usually not concerned with what everyone is doing."

Another freshman girl thinks the typical student here is "just a little short of the ivy league."

"Lazy, apathetic, complaining about offered activities that aren't enough or good enough."

Talking about the campus coeds, one junior boy stated, "They are selfrighteous, stuck up, non-bending to really help the other person. They look for only the good time. Not the realistic view of what a girl is supposed to do.

For free road
atlas contact

BUS. PHONE: 763-1604
RES. PHONE: 686-0144

G. W. SMITH
SPECIAL AGENT

Professional Student Counseling

JEFFERSON STANDARD
LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

202 N. 5TH AVENUE
WILMINGTON, N. C. 28401

OUT - OF - COUNTY STUDENTS

All out-of-county students are urged to apply now for an absentee ballot, for the upcoming November Presidential election.

Applications must be made in writing and mailed to your local Board of Elections.

Liz Buffington, who can be contacted through the Chemistry Office (C-103, Ext. 321), or at home (762-7235) will notarize all ballots free of charge.

IS YOUR VOTE FOR $ALE ? BOWLE$ THINKS IT IS !

"HANDBILLS, HELL—THEY'RE DOLLAR BILLS!"

THINK ABOUT IT !!! VOTE JIM HOLSHOUSER

Paid for by Holshouser for Governor Committee

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

Movie
diary of a mad housewife
 FRIDAY NOV. 10
 8 P.M.
 KENAN

VOL. XV NO. 7

EIGHT PAGES

"By students, for students."

FRIDAY, NOV. 10, 1972

Savoy Brown

'Anatol' termed 'frothy', 'sexy'

The University Theatre is presently in rehearsal to produce "Anatol", a play by Arthur Schnitzler, which will open Thursday, November 30, 1972.

An Austrian Don Juan type romance comedy, Dr. Terry Rogers describes the play as "Frothy and Sexy".

The cast is made up of seven females and four males, and is directed by Dr. Rogers. The Technical Director is:

David Brickley, Costumer - Jane Divine, Assistant Director - Billy McCarty, Lights - Laurel Vaughn and Terry Holly, Props - Becki Owens, House Manager - Mark Barefoot.

Peter Smith plays Anatol, a young romantic Don Juan type character who lives in a world of love never facing a true relationship.

Sam Swett plays Max, Anatol's friend, a realist who delights in poking fun at Anatol's romantic dreams.

The girls in the seven affairs will be announced at a later date.

A waiter is played by David Brickley and "Franz, the Butler", is played by Ed Danilowicz.

The play circles around seven loves and affairs of Anatol. "The circle of love is examined in the affairs of Anatol," says Dr. Rogers, "the sets are quite unique in that it is entirely circular. All stage properties are circular. This production is probably one of the most unique approaches to any production that has thus far been produced on this campus."

"Episodes will be bridged with entracte slides that will enhance the central imagery of this play that dares to expose love life in Vienna in the 18th Century."

To be held in the SRO Theatre, Dr. Rogers suggests that students reserve a seat two days in advance by calling the Drama Department at 791-4330, Ext. 332. All non-University admissions - $1.00.

Savoy Brown - Nov. 14

Savoy Brown highlights the next SGA concert coming to UNCW at Brogren Hall Wednesday, November 14, 1972.

Also showing will be Atomic Rooster and Steely Dan. Prices will be Student - Advance $3.50, Door $4.00; General - Advance $4.50, Door $5.00.

The following is an article on Savoy Brown which will introduce the reader to Brown and his music.

"LION'S SHARE" is the third Savoy Brown album since they re-grouped a little over a year ago. It completely realizes their intensive efforts to stabilize an identifiable and unpretentiously enjoyable sound which is stylistically different from the last line-ups, but, which can retain the sturdy reputation built over seven years and seven albums.

Basically this record sounds like the best of the last three because it captures part of the riotousness heard at their concerts, shows off lead guitarist Kim Simmons very well and generally radiates a feeling of immediacy. It's more raunchy too. They lean, not surprisingly, more toward the basic blues structures that first made the name Savoy Brown popular.

For the past year the group's work schedule was rigorous. After their first month of rehearsals, "STREET CORNER TALKING" was recorded. It reflected their 'newness'. Working with the most essential elements (i.e., roots) they came up with what John Koegel in Rolling Stone called "... the group's most comprehensively enjoyable record in ages".

After their first U.S. tour during September and part of October, 1971, they went back to Britain to work up new material to be followed by another States-side tour before the end of the year.

During the early part of 1972, the group cut "HELLBOUND TRAIN" a

Continued on page 7

Veteran's benefits upped in Nov.

Big increases in benefits to veterans for college or other training are provided in legislation just enacted by Congress. The basic allowance for a single veteran who is a full-time student rises from $175 a month to $220. Payments to a married veteran increase from $205 a month to $261; to a married veteran with one child, from $230 a month to $298.

The allowance for additional dependents goes from $13 a month to $18.

The new legislation also will eliminate the long delay that veterans have experienced in the past in receiving educational benefits. From now on, payments will be in advance instead of after the end of the month they cover. Aim is to ease the financial pinch at the start of the school year.

The veterans administration will send out payments at the new rate in early November, covering benefits for both October and November, plus the difference required to make the September payment equal the higher rate.

Any veterans with more than 180 days of service, any part of which was after Jan. 31, 1955, are eligible for educational benefits. A veteran is entitled to one and half months of payments for each month of service, up to 36 months - or enough to last through four years of college.

FOR LOST AND FOUND ARTICLES
 CHECK PUB
 OFFICE.

Lynchburg edges Seahawks

A disputed call on a goal attempt by the Seahawks in the second overtime period enabled Lynchburg College to defeat the UNCW soccer team, 1-0, in NAIA District 29 action Friday afternoon.

The loss eliminated the Seahawks from possible participation in the NAIA District 29 tournament in mid-November. A Seahawk victory would have meant almost certain participation in the four team event.

The Seahawks are now 2-4 in District play and are 4-7-1 overall after the loss to Lynchburg. UNCW had one game remaining, and that was against N.C. Wesleyan, Tuesday afternoon at Brooks Field.

As for the game itself, it was an outstanding soccer match, and the best one seen all year by Seahawk fans. The game started off rather slow at the beginning, but soon, things got going. Neither team controlled the ball throughout the match, with the Seahawks taking just as many shots toward the goal as Lynchburg.

With about 23 minutes gone in the game, Seahawk forward Steve Boles made a fantastic head shot that just barely hit the top of the goal post and didn't go. Another great shot came on a close-in quick-kick by Seahawk forward Charlie Wells with about eight minutes left in the first half, but the Lynchburg goalie just tipped it and it was a missed.

When the second half opened back up, the Lynchburg kickers immediately went on the attack, but the rugged Seahawk defenders would not let them score. The Hawk offense finally came alive during the half way point of the second half and repeatedly bombarded the Lynchburg goal during this most punishing soccer match, but it was to no avail, as regulation time ended with the score tied 0-0. This meant that the teams would have to play two five minute overtimes.

The first overtime was all Lynchburg, as they went on the offensive attack. UNCW played good defense, but with about 50 seconds left on the clock, Seahawk fullback Hal Goodson was called for a direct penalty inside the penalty area, and so therefore, Lynchburg was awarded a free kick from about eight yards out. Goalie Bill Watkins made a tremendous stop on the free kick, but then he was called for an indirect penalty for taking too many steps with the ball, and this time Lynchburg was awarded an indirect kick from the Hawks six yard line. Pete Collins of Lynchburg scored the winning goal with an assist from Jim Bangarter on a kick from about 5 yards that

Continued on page 5

Trip To Europe Offered

A European Trip is now being offered which highlights three weeks in Durham, England, this summer.

Offered and chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weiss of Wilmington, the trip is open to ages 16-21.

Durham University, located near Scotland, is the site of three of the six week trip, in which courses in English literature or history and Modern Art or Music will be offered the visitors. Credit will be given.

The other three weeks will be set aside for a variety of European places such as the Riviera, Barcelona, Majorca, Carthage, Sicily, Palermo, Rome, and Geneva.

Total cost will be $1190. The Weiss's are both New Hanover County teachers and can be contacted by calling 762-1163.

SEASQUAWKS

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Fastened Together
8. Periods of Luck
15. End of Saying
16. Snood
17. "Lady ___ Good"
18. Mop
19. Judge
20. Adjectival Suffix
22. Rigorous
24. Palm Drink
25. Spring
27. Set's Dog Upon
28. Victory
29. Sex Expert Havelock ___
31. French Condiment
32. Metallic Sound
34. Influence
36. Replenish Battery
38. Lion's Noise
40. Litigation
41. Careful
45. West Point Freshmen
49. Foreigner
50. Extinct Bird
52. Foolish
53. Sick
54. Murders
56. Slant
57. Ridge of Sand
59. Make Beloved
61. Illuminated
62. Paid No Attention to
64. Scottish Kiss
66. Six
67. Every (2 wds.)
68. Surfing Feet (2 wds.)
70. Thin
71. Driving Away

DOWN

1. Celebration
2. By ___ Alone
3. Brightness
4. Greek Letter (pl.)
5. Pulls
6. Political Regions (Fr.)
7. Scattered Remains
8. Metal Restraints
9. Fruit Pies
10. Tease
11. Island Country (Poet.)
12. Peace-loving
13. Retaining
14. Peculiar
21. Nelson
23. Cold Drink
26. Perforate
30. Hold in Contempt
32. Mexican Food
33. Hidden
35. Scottish Digit
37. Drinking Container
39. Aid to Recollection
41. Creaminess
42. Unlawful
43. Quiet
44. Related
46. Empty Boat of Water
47. Make Interesting
48. Background
51. Hebrew Letter (pl.)
54. N.H. Resort City
56. Wife of Abraham
58. Dry Wind; Var.
60. Gambling Resort
63. Stick
65. Self
69. Note of Scale

Californians vote on pot

Los Angeles, Ca. (CPS) -- About four and a half million votes are needed to legalize use of marijuana in the state of California this November.

Nine million registered voters are expected to either narrowly approve or defeat Proposition 19 -- to "decriminalize" production, possession and use of marijuana.

Proposition 19 has an excellent position on the 22 position ballot -- wedged between a number of referendums expected to return positive replies.

Acceptance of the proposition by California could have far reaching effects within the United States, and around the world in countries which have repressed marijuana under American pressure.

Latest state-wide polls show 33 percent in favor of the proposition, but surveys in the cities of Los Angeles and San Francisco show favor running as high as 57 percent.

The California Marijuana Initiative (CMI) is described by Los Angeles County co-ordinator Lawrence Skinner as "one of the most ideal solutions for one of the greatest problems in recent times."

The proposition does not affect present laws governing selling of marijuana. It does not deal with the complexities of trafficking marijuana, and avoids the problem feared by many people that marijuana will be eventually advertised as being sexy, or something familiar.

Some supporters believe that approval of the referendum will give police a mandate to concentrate on trafficking of marijuana and narcotics.

Of a total of six marijuana initiatives in the U.S. this year, only the California initiative achieved a position on the ballot. Attempts failed in Washington, Oregon, Arizona and Florida, but the Michigan initiative may be able to collect sufficient signatures for a place in the 1970 state referendum.

CMI has not only achieved what may be regarded as "impossible" with the actual initiative. In the drive to register voters, they trained 411 deputy registrars, and registered more than 20,220 voters.

At first, early this year, people were "paranoid, and thought they would be arrested," says Skinner. But working within the law this time has avoided any bother with the police.

A sign on the steps up to the CMI office pleads with visitors to "leave your stash outside" and the only plants in the building are those supplied by one of the group's officers.

Support has come not only from underground media, but also from two television stations -- KNBC in Los Angeles, a network affiliate, and KPXI in San Francisco -- which have broadcast editorials condoning tolerance of marijuana.

And Skinner predicts that a number of police officers may also support the proposition by attesting through a judge so that they can retain their anonymity.

The initiative has already received support from the Police Officers for Justice and the San Francisco Deputy Sheriff's Coalition.

The campaign has spent a total of $80,000 on the initiative, and plans the same expenditure during the last two weeks on a final burst which will include radio spots.

Most of this has been raised through small private donations, and an additional grant of $15,000 from Amorphia, the marijuana foundation. The remainder should be covered from the showing of the film Reefer Madness by the Playboy-backed MOKWL organization.

But the private donations still count -- a teacher bag hangs in a corner of the Los Angeles office collecting Blue Chip trading and postage stamps.

Ski trip planned for semester break

Who could think of a better way to forget about first semester exams than to traverse the birch-studded, snow-covered slopes of Mt. Sunapee, New Hampshire?

Sounds great, but wouldn't it cost a fortune? No! Not if you join the group organized by the Outing Clubs of Duke, UNC-Chapel Hill and UNC-Greensboro.

By renting an entire motel (near the slopes), by cooking family style, and by getting group equipment rental and lift ticket rates, the cost per person is pared to the bare minimum:

Room (6 nights): $20-26/week

Board (7 breakfast, 7 lunches, 5 dinners) $15/week.

Equipment Rental (skis, boots, poles) $18/week.

Lift Tickets (beginners) FREE! or (beginner-intermediates) $2.50/day; or (intermediate-advanced) $4.50/day.

Lessons (5 group lessons) $12/5 lessons.

Transportation (charter bus) $35 round trip OR (car, share driving) $25 round trip.

Three separate excursions from North Carolina are planned: Dec. 25 - Jan. 1, Dec. 31 - Jan. 7, and Jan. 6 - Jan. 13. If you are interested in this trip and would like additional information, contact Dr. Ned Martin in Chemistry 108 this week. A limited number of spaces are available, and reservations will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis.

Newspaper, not agency

San Francisco, Ca. (CPS) -- A U.S. court of appeals recently upheld a decision that newspapers are not employment agencies, and are not prohibited by the 1964 Civil Rights Act from using sex designations in classified advertising.

The three-judge panel said it could find no dictionary or legislative support for the idea that a newspaper is an employment agency when it runs classified job ads.

The court was upholding a 1970 decision dismissing a case against the San Francisco Newspaper printing company. The suit had tried to stop the use of sex designations in the San Francisco Chronicle and the Examiner.

Co-ed ousted for bottle of booze

Last year the administration of South Western Texas State College ousted a co-ed who was working as a counselor, whose parents are dead, and who was homeless, except for her dormitory room "home".

The co-ed was sent away because she broke the rules of the university -- she had alcoholic beverages on campus, five unopened whiskey bottle miniatures.

A student-faculty appeals board ignored pleas that the miniature whiskey bottles were used for decoration in her dorm room, and ousted her with only one student voting in her favor.

Unfortunately, the procedure of justice is not always so swift. When a SWT basketball player was caught stealing books (to sell for money), he was reprimanded, but allowed to stay at the college.

Savoy Brown

Plus Atomic Rooster And Steely Dan

Brogden Hall

Nov. 14

student $3.50 - door $4.00 general $4.50 - door $5.00

The Seahawk

The Seahawk is published at every possible chance by the Student Government Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Business office is located in the Student Services Building (Pub) and is opened intermittently during school hours and at night.

Mail should be addressed to "The Seahawk", P. O. Box 3725, Wilmington, N. C. 28401. Telephone 791-8055.

Editor Ronald G. Dunn

Managing Editor Rocky Moore

Sports Editor Robert Braxton

Staff Reporters Cathy Tyner

Beverly Causey

Sharon Wolfe

Photographers Tom Smiley

Wayne Huggins

Faces of Opinion

Question:

Do you feel that the Administration listens to student opinion?

DEBBIE BENSON: I haven't been here that long, but I feel the school isn't as oriented to students as it should be. There should be more individualized one-to-one studies.

STEVE MORRISON: No, I've haven't seen any concrete proof of it yet, maybe someday.

DEBBIE HARMON: No, they listen, but they don't hear

CATHY McCORMACK: No, because the issue of returning the concerts back to the campus seems to have been shrugged off by Chancellor Wagoner.

DANNY FLOWERS: So far this year it seems not. The concert issue should give us an idea of their good intentions.

TERRY MOORE: They listen when its convenient for them to listen!

OPHELIA BRYANT: No, I've never seen anything administration has done to help any student.

ROBERT MCCLEARY: No, the students pay their money and are in prison for the next 4 years or as long as they stay.

JAN GREENE: The administration listens when what they hear pleases them. Dr. Malloy and Linda Moore

NOTICE

Any group, club, or organization which desires to use university physical facilities for any purpose other than regularly scheduled class periods must submit a written request to the Office of Information Services, Room 119 in the Alderman Building. The request should be submitted at least three days in advance of event.

Gwen Croom
Assistant Director
Information Services

WWSC students file suit

Bellingham, Wash. (CPS) -- The Washington state attorney general has advised the administration of Western Washington State College to cut off all spending by the WWSC student government pending the results of a law suit against the school.

The Associated Students filed suit against the school last June. The point of contention is whether or not the AS is an "arm or agency of the state or a separate organization." The suit also asks for clarification of the campus co-operative bookstore and for AS to be awarded control to the $178,000 of the bookstore reserve fund.

Since the AS budget is collected by the state, the WWSC administration considers it to be "state money" and will not release the money to an agency which claims to be a separate entity.

The administration is

"very desirous to see that student government is carried on and activities continue," a WWSC spokesman said recently, "but in light of this law suit they find themselves in a peculiar position, in that they cannot fund a corporation separate from the state."

"The cutting off of our funds is a pressure that's been hanging over my head all along," AS chairman Jim Kennedy said, "but I'm not going to let it affect my judgment of what we may get out of this (the lawsuit)."

Although Kennedy expects an out-of-court settlement, he is not willing to drop the case at the expense of the students. Meanwhile, the state attorney office officials and AS attorney John Anderson, who is being retained with a contingency fund of $2000 taken from last year's AS budget, have been working on a list of stipulations to be used as a working agreement.

The legality of Anderson's salary is also in question - that of using state funds to sue the state.

The conflict between AS and the administration began last spring when AS claimed complete control of the co-operative bookstore and all its assets, including the $178,000 reserve fund. The AS board of directors dissolved the bookstore board and established their own. The administration told the bookstore manager to disregard the instructions of the new board and to follow the existing board.

The AS created a negotiating team to come to an agreement with the administration and other matters concerning a revamping of that student government. The team are quite helpful and do their jobs well. They won't listen until the students present a unified viewpoint and present it intelligently and clearly.

maintained that the administration had nothing to do with the incorporation of the AS. AS, they claimed, was incorporated in the same manner as the Boy Scouts, the YMCA, or any other non-profit organization.

The negotiations came to an impasse in June when the suit was filed.

LOST and FOUND

Fraternity pin
suede jacket

white sweater denim jacket

notebooks

to claim, see Mrs. Moore - Pub

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS

Largest available collection of reference reports
from $1.90 per page

The most qualified staff of research-writers
Quick and quality results

Cost of call reimbursed when you order

(202) 785-4511

2430 Penn. Ave. N.W., Wash. D.C. 20037

t.p.u. of d.c., inc. t/a

MARKETING REPS. WANTED

ATOMIC ROOSTER

AMERICAN TALENT INTERNATIONAL LTD.
188 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019
(212) 765-1999

Honor System Challenged

Fredericksburg, Va. (CPS) -- The honor code of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia, has been, over the past few years, debated in classrooms; opposed in numerous student newspaper editorials; and upheld, in ever-decreasing majorities, by student referendums.

Throughout the controversy, however, the future of the 28-year old honor system has remained unchallenged. The entire college population shuddered therefore when an ex-student initiated a legal assault against the code, which will undoubtedly affect the honor systems of every state-supported college or university in Virginia.

At the end of the last school year the nine-member student Honor Council dismissed a fellow-student on charges of an alleged on-campus theft. Over the summer, the ex-student sought legal assistance through the Virginia Federal District Courts in obtaining re-admission to the college.

Although Federal District Judge Robert Merighe denied immediate re-admission to the college, he set a future trial date and expressed serious doubts that Virginia colleges have a strong case in maintaining present honor codes.

In requesting the temporary restraining order, which permits the ex-student's immediate re-enrollment, attorneys argued that her constitutional rights under the 14th Amendment had been violated by her dismissal, and that a college has no authority under law to delegate powers of absolute dismissal to a student-run honor council. Counsel also contended that the ex-student has undergone severe "psychological suffering and a loss of potential income" due to the interruption of her education.

Representatives of the Virginia Attorney General's office oppose issuance of the restraining order, claiming that the controversy "represents a most serious threat to the lifeblood of the institution," commenting that "this is a direct attack on the honor council system."

The Assistant Attorney General continued to passionately describe the concept of an honor system as "a very delicate mechanism," and an historical institution. Merighe dismissed the state's line of argument, stating that "the real issue here is whether power delegated by the state legislature to the college can be turned over to the students. The court has serious doubts about this."

Merighe based his decision to deny immediate relief through re-admission on the fact that other students and college administrators would suffer more harm by the ex-student's immediate re-admission, than that the ex-student would suffer by his failure to issued the restraining order.

As representatives of the Attorney General's office explained, "We have incoming freshmen right now being indoctrinated in the honor system." "Even a temporary injunction," he commented, "will cause a state of confusion among them."

Despite his refusal to issue the restraining order, Merighe stated that the ex-student "has a very strong case."

Reaction to the Honor

Council challenge has been extensive and emotional on the MWC campus. The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association and the Board of Visitors passed a resolution not only endorsing the concept of the present honor system, but also resolving "to defend vigorously... the Honor System and the College." The Alumni Directors added that the "Honor System has long been an integral part of college life and an essential instrument for providing an atmosphere of freedom, responsibility and trust. Having lived with the Honor System, alumni are committed to the preservation of the system as necessary to a free and democratic way of life at the College."

A majority of the faculty also voted to endorse the present system.

The only campus group which has yet to endorse the Honor System is the Student Association.

Student Locator Service Begun

PRINCETON, N.J. -- A new program designed to help the nation's graduate schools seek out potential students from minority groups is underway this fall.

Called the Minority Graduate Student Locator Service, the program is offered by Educational Testing Service. ETS estimates that about 10,000 to 15,000 students could initially use the new service which is offered free to both students and institutions this year.

According to J. Bradley Williams, ETS director of the project, "One of the problems facing graduate schools seeking to increase enrollment of students from racial and ethnic minorities is that of identifying potential students."

The locator service will be used first by graduate schools in December. According to Williams, some 300 schools are expected to join this year with more offering the program later.

The locator service is open to second-term college juniors, seniors, and college graduates.

Nearly 2,200 counselors at undergraduate schools across the country have received information about the program and can supply questionnaires to interested students, whatever their racial background.

The student response form is also available with information bulletins describing the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE). But ETS said GRE scores are not included in the locator service and that a student need not take the exams in order to participate in the locator service.

Tuitions to rise in '73

According to a bulletin published by the Consolidated Universities of North Carolina, tuition and fees for in-state students rose 7.3 percent at the 16 public senior institutions for 1972-73.

Out-of-state costs rose 34.4 percent at the same 16 institutions.

The average, commuting in-state student pays $260 per year in tuition. A total of $120.50 in fees is broken down as follows:

$15.00 Registration Fee
$22.00 Intercollegiate Athl.
$20.00 Intramural Athletics
$20.00 Student Union

Dormitory students pay an extra $350. per semester and out-of-state students are charged $1800 in tuition.

FOR SALE: Full set Slingerland Drums, mounted Tom, Floor Tom Snare and Bass. A Zelnig Cymbles, 22" ride, 18" sizzler, 19" crash, 14" matched Hi-hat. Covers, throne stools, brushes & mallets included. Must sell. Call Charles 791-4330, between 5 & 10 p.m.

F**

NEEDED

Ideas for future dances
*and homecoming week
*dance. Leave msg. in
*Dance Committee box in
*Pub.

Basketball season begins Nov. 25

Tournament basketball will return to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington this season when Elizabeth City State, Campbell, and High Point join the Seahawks for a two-night holiday classic to be played in Hanover Hall.

The tournament, to be played Thursday and Friday, January 4 and 5, highlights the demanding 24-game schedule for the Seahawks.

Elizabeth City and High Point have long been recognized as national basketball powers, and the rivalry between UNCW and Campbell goes back to the days when both were junior college powerhouses. Elizabeth City last year was a semifinalist in the NAIA championship tournament at Kansas City.

Campbell and Elizabeth City meet in the tournament opener at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 4, while the Seahawks square off against High Point at 9 p.m. Friday night will see the losers meeting in a consolation game at 7 while the winners tangle for the championship at 9.

The Hawks will not be without tournament experience. A week earlier, they will join Elon, Pfeiffer, and Belmont Abbey for a two-night affair at Belmont. UNCW will play Belmont Abbey in the opening round.

Counting the holiday tournament, the Seahawks will play 13 contests at home and 11 on the road. With the exception of the tournament, all home games will begin at 7:30 P.M.

The season opens on Saturday, November 25, when the Seahawks entertain District 29 foe Hampton Institute at Hanover Hall. Following road trips to Baptist College at Charleston, S.C. and to Pfeiffer, they return home to meet Campbell on Saturday, Dec. 9. The pre-Christmas schedule ends with a trip to Hampton, Va., for a return match with Hampton Institute.

Following the two holiday tournaments, the Seahawks return to Belmont for a single game with Belmont Abbey, and then on Saturday, Jan. 13, right after classes start for the spring semester, they meet Washington and Lee in Hanover Hall.

Other home games will be against N.C. Wesleyan, St. Andrews, Pfeiffer, Belmont Abbey, Baptist, Pembroke State, Methodist, and Atlantic Christian.

Additional road trips will be to Fayetteville, where the Hawks meet Fayetteville State in the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium, and to Pembroke State, High Point, Campbell, and Atlantic Christian.

edges Seahawks

Continued from page 1 simply rolled between the Hawk defenders.

The Hornets figured that they had everything locked up, but it wasn't until with about 20 seconds left in the second overtime that they could start counting their chickens. UNCW came out on the offensive from the start of the second overtime period, and didn't ever let up. With about 35 seconds left in the period, forward Steve Boles kicked a ball that hit the crossbar of the goal and bounded down, breaking the plain of the goal area, but was ruled no good by the referee because the total ball did not go into the goal. From there, the game ended, with Lynchburg winning it 1-0.

OUR ADVERTISERS
ARE RELIABLE.

JOINTED STREAKS
UNQUOTE MATINER
BE SWAB ADLCEER
ISH STRICH MIPA
DEAP SICKS WIN
BPLIS SET CLANG EFFECT RECHARGE
ROAR SUIT
DISCREET PLEES
ALIEN MOA TRANE
ILL KILLS RILE
REEP ENDEAR LIT
IGNORED FREE VI
BACHONE HANGREN
SLENDER SHOOTING

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON VARSITY BASKETBALL Schedule 1972-73 SCHEDULE 1972 - 1973.

Date	Opponent	Site
Saturday, November 25,	Hampton Institute, Wilmington	25, Wilmington
Tuesday, December 5,	Baptist College at Charleston, Charleston, S.C.	Charleston
Thursday, December 7,	Pfeiffer College, Misenheimer	25, Wilmington
Saturday, December 9,	Campbell College, Wilmington	25, Wilmington
Saturday, December 16,	Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.	16, Hampton
Friday, December 29, and Saturday, December 30,	Belmont Abbey Tournament, Belmont	Belmont
Thursday, January 4 and Friday, January 5,	UNCW Tournament, Wilmington	Wilmington
Thursday, January 11,	Belmont Abbey, Belmont	Belmont
Saturday, January 13,	Washington & Lee University, Wilmington	Wilmington
Monday, January 15,	Pembroke State University, Pembroke	Wilmington
Saturday, January 20,	N.C. Wesleyan College, Wilmington	Wilmington
Monday, January 22, St. Andrews		Wilmington

Date	Opponent	Site
Thursday, January 25,	Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville	25, Fayetteville
Saturday, January 27,	Pfeiffer College, Wilmington	Wilmington
Monday, January 29,	Belmont Abbey, Wilmington	Wilmington
Wednesday, January 31,	High Point College, High Point	High Point
Monday, February 15,	Campbell College, Bule's Creek	Wilmington
Thursday, February 8,	Baptist College at Charleston, Charleston, S.C.	Charleston
Saturday, February 10,	Atlantic Christian College, Wilson	Wilson
Wednesday, February 14,	Pembroke State University, Wilmington	Wilmington
Saturday, February 17,	Methodist College, Wilmington	Wilmington
Wednesday, February 21,	Atlantic Christian College, Wilmington	Wilmington

COACH: Mel Gibson - Telephone Number 791-4330, Ext. 265, Home No. 799-2334. Athletic Director: Bill Brooks - Telephone No. 791-4330, Ext. 266. Sports Information Director: Jim Carr - Office Phone 791-4330, Ext. 222; Home Phone 791-8134. TEAM NAME: Seahawks COLORS: Green and Gold

After the game, Coach Lane commented on the game by saying that the game with Lynchburg, Friday, was probably without a doubt the best game we have played all year. He said that this was devoted toward many reasons, one of these being that we controlled the ball as much as Lynchburg did, and the other big reason being that we played extremely well on defense. He also commented that this lost was very difficult for us to take, because this eliminated us from the playoffs, and we had been playing so well lately that I felt that if we had gotten into play-offs after our slow start that we would have been a definite threat.

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND TRUST CO. N.A.

FREE

CLASSIFIEDS TO

UNC-W

Students

NOTICE

The positions of

Junior Class Vice-president
and Senator need to be filled!

Contact Barry Asbury,
Junior Class President
or put message in SGA
box in Pub.

BULLETIN BOARD

STUDENT AFFAIRS

A meeting of the Student Affairs Committee was held last Thursday. Dean Brown was named chairman of the committee and Gail Jeffords was elected secretary. A purpose was decided upon for the committee and issues to be taken up were discussed. An all-student judicial body is forming to design a judicial code for the entire campus. The body is also going to consider the issue of concerts back on campus and present their decision to the chancellor. This body will serve as a recommendation-making device about issues on campus.

Stay Ahead 4th Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

TERM PAPERS

Send for your descriptive, up-to-date, 128-page, mail order catalog of 2,300 quality term papers. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage and handling.

WE ALSO WRITE
CUSTOM MADE PAPERS.

Termpaper Arsenal, Inc.
519 GLENROCK AVE., SUITE 203
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90024
(213) 477-8474 • 477-5493
"We need a local salesman"

SENIORS

All seniors are urged to pick up their free copy of the 1973 College Placement Annual in the Placement Office.

COUSLING AND TESTING

GRE was Saturday, October 28.

State Merit test will be given November 11.

PUB

New bulletin board in the front lobby of the pub.

PLACEMENT OFFICE

Many jobs are available on the list from the placement office. All information is posted on the bulletin board in the A-building.

Math credits explained

According to the new basic-studies program, students at UNC-W are required to take only a three-hour basic skills course in mathematics. Consequently, MAT 102 is not specifically required. However, the student who elects to take MAT 102 can count it toward satisfying three hours in the division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics.

In order for MAT 102 to be more adaptable to various student interests and hopefully to be more appealing, the Mathematics Department is offering several options in the course during the spring semester. For about two-thirds of the term all students will cover essentially the same material with the remaining third reserved for special topics in the various options. Therefore, students preregistering for MAT 102 should make sure they sign up for the section which provides the particular option in which they are interested. Below is a listing of the sections with the various special options which will be included in the spring schedule.

MAT 102-1: College Mathematics for the General Student (Geometry Emphasis). 8:30 TT (Appropriate for students majoring in elementary education.)

MAT 102-2: College Mathematics for the General Student (Emphasis on Manipulation). 10:00 TT (Appropriate for students interested in obtaining as

The Student Affairs Committee will meet in the Board Room of the Administration Building on Thursday, November 9, 1972, at 11:30 A.M. If you have any urgent topics for discussion, please let me know before the meeting so that these topics may be given priority on the agenda.

much manipulative skill as possible.)

MAT 1-2-3: College Mathematics for the General Student (Computer Emphasis). 12:30 TT (Appropriate for students wishing an introduction to the nature of computers.)

MAT 102-4: College Mathematics for the General Student (Statistics Emphasis). 2:00 TT (Appropriate for students in majors where a statistics course is required or used in the major, particularly sociology and psychology.)

YEARBOOK PICTURES

Photographers will be back Nov. 9, and 10. Sign up in A-119.

Minority Students Bolstered

Now, students will have a chance to voluntarily complete a special 17-item questionnaire as one step towards entering graduate school.

Information about the academic interests and goals of Black, American-Indian, Asian-American, and Spanish or Mexican-American students who wish to pursue graduate level education, will be available to those institutions seeking to bolster minority enrollment.

Admissions officers may then contact students directly and invite the applications of those whose particular interests could be served by their schools' graduate offerings.

Campus Grill

STUDENTS WELCOME

So. College Rd.

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches
ALSO

Evening Delivery to Dorms Mon. thru Sat.

791-4673 Place all orders by 9 p. m.

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

For free road
atlas contact

BUS. PHONE: 763-1604
RES. PHONE: 686-0144

G. W. SMITH
SPECIAL AGENT

Professional Student Counseling

JEFFERSON STANDARD
LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

202 N. 5TH AVENUE
WILMINGTON, N. C. 28401

ABORTION INFORMATION

PREGNANCY TEST AVAILABLE
An Abortion can be arranged
within 24 hours
You can return home
the same day you leave.

CALL COLLECT:

215 - 735-8100

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK A Non-Profit Organization 24 HOURS

Give your ears a break.

WMFD - FM 100.9

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist.

Question: I am considering using the diaphragm as a means of birth control and I have some questions about this method of contraception. How effective is the diaphragm? I understand the diaphragm must be kept in place at least six hours after intercourse. Can one bathe or shower during this period without injuring its effectiveness? How long before intercourse may the diaphragm be inserted and still be effective? Signed, Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Effectiveness depends on the person using the contraceptive method. Studies show that the diaphragm is around 80 to 85 percent effective. Most of the time when the method has failed the reason has been neglected use, improper insertion or misunderstanding of instructions given by the physician issuing the diaphragm.

You are correct. The diaphragm should be left in place six to eight hours after intercourse. Taking a shower or bath during this period to our knowledge will not decrease the chance of effectiveness. The diaphragm may be inserted up to two hours before intercourse.

Question: During the "saline induction" abortion technique, I understand that sometimes the woman will abort the fetus but not the placenta. What causes this irregularity and how does the doctor go about removing the placenta? Also at this state (17-24 weeks) of growth can the sex of the aborted fetus be determined? Signed, Lee.

Dear Lee: The placenta may be removed manually or the patient may be put to sleep and have a D and C. No one knows exactly what causes a woman to go into labor when the salt induction method is performed.

Yes, sex of the fetus can be determined between 17 and 24 weeks.

Question: There is something I have always been curious about and I'm sure that I'm not alone. Today women are lucky in that they have all sorts of sanitary napkins and tampons to choose from. But what I want to know is what did our ancestors use, the frontier women and such? Signed, Curious.

Dear Curious: In primitive tribes menstruating women were related to huts apart from the rest of the tribe. A grass mat was put at their feet to collect the menstrual flow. After each menstrual period the mat was burned.

In many African tribes, even today, women have used bandages made out of grass or some kind of vegetable fiber. The bandages are likewise burned after use.

By the time of the Roman Empire, cloth bandages were coming into use. The cloth bandages required washing, soaking and drying during the period and presented problems of absorbency and discomfort.

By the turn of the 20th century packaged linen cloths, much like diapers, appeared on the market. They were made for sanitary protection but still needed washing, soaking and drying. The cloths were more comfortable but still presented problems of absorbency and discomfort.

Disposable sanitary pads or napkins were introduced after the First World War. They were made of cotton or cellulose or a combination of both and wrapped in gauze for use with pins and belts.

Internal tampons are the newest commercial form of protection. Menstrual tamponage, however, is not new. Roman women used rolls of soft wool internally. Egyptians used rolls of soft papyrus; and African women used rolls of grass and roots.

Questions should be addressed to Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist, in care of The Daily Tar Heel, Student Union, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27514.

COPYRIGHT (C) 1972 by Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist. All rights reserved.

Student health insurance outlined

An outline of Student Health Insurance Coverage has been prepared by the UNCW Business Club.

The coverage, deemed by club officers to be greatly beneficial to students, is as follows:

OUTLINE OF STUDENT HEALTH INSURANCE

Who is Covered: All full-time students at UNC-W. Cost: $8.00 per semester per student, paid by the student as part of the activity fee.

Who is insurer: Wilmington Health Association, 1303 Cypress Grove Drive, Telephone No. 763-8251. Doctor Norman J. Robinson, Doctor Danl Gottovi, Doctor Richard J. Tamisela.

SCOPE OF SERVICE: Wilmington Health Associates (hereafter WHA) will provide general outpatient diagnostic and treatment services to the full time students at UNC-Wilmington similar to those provided in their general office. This would include diagnosis and treatment of general medical disorders, common infectious diseases, and minor trauma.

Outpatient professional services provided by WHA in the Health Service Center, dormitory, emergency room and general offices of WHA are covered by this agreement.* Laboratory work, medication and supplies normally provided for patients as a part of an office visit are also covered by this agreement. This does not include medication and appliances not usually stocked in the general offices or prolonged courses of medication.

Inpatient professional services provided by WHA and laboratory work, medications, and appliances obtained at site other than the Health Service Center and the general offices of WHA are not included in this agreement.

Students requiring services of other specialists will be referred directly to the outpatient offices of said specialist or to the New Hanover Memorial Hospital depending upon the particular medical, surgical, or psychiatric needs of the student at that time. Professional fees of other specialists and other charges incurred by the students on visits to other facilities than the Student Health Service of WHA will be the financial responsibility of the student. Students are strongly advised to be certain that they have health insurance to cover these contingencies. In the event of epidemic or a catastrophe, additional professional services required for health care will not be covered in this agreement.

HOURS OF OPERATION: The HSC will be open Monday thru Friday from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. during the regular semesters and during the summer session. It will be closed during regularly scheduled student holidays and breaks. Coverage for full time students through the WHA offices will be provided during the holiday and break periods on the usual basis.

THE COST OF THE HEALTH SERVICE IS PAID BY STUDENT FEES.

*If a student is going to the emergency room at New Hanover Memorial Hospital he or she should call the Association TO AVOID PAYING A $10 EMERGENCY ROOM FEE. PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL: A specially trained registered nurse or family nurse practitioner will serve at the Student Health Center Monday through Friday from 9:00 until 1:00 P.M. The Internal Medicine specialist at Wilmington Health Associates will be available at all times for consultation with the nurse and to see students as needed in the judgement of the nurse. During hours when the HSC is closed, students will be seen in the general offices of WHA. After 5:00 and weekends a physician will be available at all times for emergencies. He can be reached by calling the WHA office number 763-8251. Students should always identify themselves as a UNC-Wilmington student when calling the office since they will be given special priority. The student should always present his ID card on a visit to any health facility.

Savoy Brown

(Continued from Page 1)

more elaborate studio LP than the first. Again, both critically and commercially they were successfully received. Lester Bangs in Creem said "... the material cooks with the unobtrusive perfection that makes for great party records. ... 'HELLBOUND TRAIN' is the best Savoy Brown album."

Last March a grueling forty-city barnstorm across this country brought the band to a level of interaction that few collectives three or four times their age together enjoy. They came a long way quickly.

The new album, recorded in the summer of '72, tells the story: they've reached a profound awareness of themselves as a hard traveling, hard rocking band.

The performances and production on "LION'S SHARE" create the same rousing rave-up life that get their usually packed houses all hot. Producer Neil Slaven followed them around on the last tour and took home some decisive insights. Most of the instrumental tracks here were recorded live-in-the-studio and lead vocalist Dave Walker has come to a clear realization of studio communication.

It is in Walker's role, as lead singer, that we have the motif of "Shot In The Head". This idea is peculiar to the kind of power exerted by rock, illuminating the unusual tensions of one in the center spotlight. He shouts with uneasy realism, "I've had enough of gettin' shot in the head."

The song is pushed by a vicious riff from Kim on slide guitar and Paul Raymond on rhythm guitar.

Another fine cut, "So Tired", deepens the album's theme and specifically touches on life as a live rocker. Moving with the same disrupting tension that made "HELLBOUND TRAIN" a head twister, this is basically a rhythm piece with the vocal, rhythm guitar and electric piano meshing perfectly as one force.

Everybody in the band puts out for "LION'S SHARE". Dave Bidwell is a straight ahead, no nonsense drummer in the finest tradition of Al Jackson or Charlie Watts. Andy Pyle has replaced Andy Sylvester on bass. Pyle, formerly with Blodwyn Pig, plays with the same fluidity as his performance on Rod Stewart's LP, "EVERY PICTURE TELLS A STORY", showed. Paul Raymond fills in with all manner of electric piano and organ textures to keep things distinctive and interesting. But most impressive here is Kim Simmons on lead and slide guitars.

Simmons', as most people know by now, founded the band way back when and continues to give it a special presence. He's one of the finest British blues guitarists and certainly the most reliable. At 24 he is probably also the youngest.

Initial reaction to the material on "LION'S SHARE" after a recent short tour by Savoy Brown was enthusiastic. They will be back in America soon for an extensive series of live engagements and some sparks should fly.

The tour along with "LION'S SHARE" will prove Savoy Brown to be tenaciously fulfilling.

There are three Senior Class openings in the Senate

Apply With Jack Paul, Senior Class

President At The Pub

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Frank

"NORMALLY, TO MAJOR IN GREEK MYTHOLOGY AND VETERINARY MED WOULD BE ODD, BUT IN YOUR CASE..."

© FRANKLY SPEAKING Post Office Box 1523 East Lansing, Michigan 48823

YOU DON'T NORMALLY NEED MONEY
TO MAKE A DEAL WITH US.

DAVE GARRISDON
POWERS

People with a high degree of intelligence normally buy Fiat and Subarus, because they recognize the sophisticated engineering features of both.

TEST DRIVE AT
AMERICAN IMPORTS

1529 S. College Rd.

791-2137

BEYOND
THE VALLEY
OF
THE DOLLS

NOV. 14

KENAN
AUDITORIUM

CHAMPION TERMPAPERS

636 Beacon St. (No. 605)
Boston, Mass. 02215
617-536-9700

Research material for
Termpapers, Reports, Theses,
etc. LOWEST PRICES.
QUICK SERVICE. For
information, please write or
call.

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in
Wilmington.

Visit Our Mod
| Mod World

Phone:
799-0990

New chemistry course offered

A new, one semester chemistry course, "Chemistry and Society," will be offered this coming spring for all non-science majors.

The new course, Chemistry 105, will cover the basic principles of chemistry with particular attention to the practical aspects toward everyday life.

In an interview with Mr. Lewis Nance and Dr. Ned Martin, the two teachers of the new course, they seemed very excited about the course.

When asked who would be mainly interested in a course of this type, Mr. Nance replied, "We are trying to create a relevant course for the non-chemistry major and the non-science major. The art, history, English, and business majors could take this as their lab course, and then take another supplement course to get through all their requirements in the science area. The name of the book to be used in the course, Chemistry: Man and Society tells one a great deal about what the course will be like. I will be teaching the lecture part and will put much time working on what will go into this over the Christmas holidays."

Dr. Martin, who will teach the lab, said that the course will treat the theoretical aspects of chemistry in less depth than Chemistry 101-102 in order to deal more with the practical applications of chemistry, such as household chemistry, environmental chemistry, and biological chemistry: things that affect man's interactions with molecules.

Mr. Nance and Dr. Martin said that they are looking forward to teaching this course and hope to attract an interested group of non-science majors.

This course will have three lecture hours and three laboratory hours per week, and will carry four credit hours. Any person interested in further information concerning this new course should contact either Mr. Nance or Dr. Martin in the Chemistry - Physics building.

Circle entrance one-way

A traffic direction change is presently in the makings at UNCW, according to Dave Lumpkin, UNCW plant engineer.

"The traffic circle exit facing Hoggard Hall will be changed into a one-way street," he said.

The work, to be done by the North Carolina Highway Department, will consist of the erection of yield and stop signs with white arrows painted on "A" street to show the flow of traffic.

To begin on Wednesday, November 15, Lumpkin added that the change was a result of a thorough traffic survey which showed overly heavy congestion generated by the entrance of vehicles from HWY 132 onto the campus.

ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATION FOR BEST ACTRESS

CARRIE SNODGRESS

FOR HER STARRING
PERFORMANCE
IN "DIARY
OF A MAD HOUSEWIFE"

diary of a mad housewife

a frank perly film
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR

Friday 8 P. M.
Nov. 10 Kenan

FINAL EXAM

SCHEDULE — FALL '72'

9:00-11:00 1:00-3:00 7:00-9:00
Tues. 8:30 MWF 2:30 MWF Tuesday night
Dec. 12 classes classes classes

Wed. 9:30 MWF 3:30 MWF Wed. night
Dec. 13 classes classes classes

Thurs. 10:30 MWF 1:30 MWF Thurs. night
Dec. 14 classes classes classes

Fri. 11:30 MWF 2:00 T Th
Dec. 15 classes classes

Mon. 12:30 T TH 12:30 MWF Monday night
Dec. 18 classes classes classes

Tues. 10:00 T Th 11:30 Th
Dec. 19 classes classes

Wed. 8:30 T Th 3:30 T Th
Dec. 20 classes classes

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Ascertained

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

Movie
BEYOND
THE VALLEY OF THE DOLLS
NOV. 14
8 P.M.
KENAN

VOL. XV

NO. 8

"By students, for students." EIGHT PAGES

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1972

UNCW Who's Who Students Chosen

The 1972 edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES will carry the names of thirty (30) students from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington who have been selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Students named this year from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington are: Mrs. Goldie Laura Adams, Hubert; Miss Janice Louise Asbell, Holly Ridge; Barry Steve Asbury, Wilmington; Miss Laura Helen Babb,

Castle Hayne; Miss Phyllis Ruth Barnhill, Wrightsville Beach; William Jasper Brooks, Jr., Wilmington; Buddy Bryan Cumber, Wilmington; Mrs. Isabelle Anderson Denkins, Southport; Miss Jane Claire Divine, Wilmington; Richard Edwards Formaini, Jr., Wilmington; Michael Lin

Glancy, Wilmington; Mrs. Linda Gay Goldman, Brown Summit; Mrs. Edna Sexton Hair, Roseboro; Troy Kenneth Hales, Jr., Wilmington; Herbert Leon Hoffman, Elizabethtown; Mrs. Judy Pleasant Jordan, Raleigh; Charles Kenneth Keffer, Wilmington; Wesley

Walter Knappe, Jr., Wilmington; Larry Eugene Lapkovitch, Wilmington; Miss Patricia Anne McCombie, Wilmington; Gregory Otis Nelson, Wilmington; Mrs. Dorothy Buckridge Nesbitt, Wrightsville Beach; Mrs. Linda Thompson Nixon, Wilmington; Mrs. Sondra

Parker North, Burgaw; Erich Stephen Parker, Rocky Mount; Jack Potter Paul, Belhaven; GMrs. Gloria Eardine Ramos, Wilmington; Kenneth Wayne Rogers, Goldsboro; Harold Weston Sterling, Wilmington; William Raleigh Todd, III, Castle Hayne.

Student Senate Meets Oct. 31

A regular session of the UNC-W Student Senate was called to order by Patti McCombie October 31, 1972, 11:30 a.m. upstairs in the Pub.

The minutes of October 10 were read and approved by general consent.

Mr. Chadwick gave the Treasurer's Report for July, August, and September.

Mr. Jones made a report in the absence of Mr. Hoffman on the Health Committee.

Mr. Jones moved and was seconded that the Senate accept the recommendations of the Finance Committee to pay $1,634.94 to Taylor Publishing from savings, $444.53 to Wilmington Printing Company from the reserve fund, and $125.00 reimbursement to the Student Senate from the reserve fund. The motion carried.

Miss Buffington moved that Bob Moore be accepted as a member of the Student Superior Court. The motion was seconded and carried.

Miss McCombie announced that all Senate members would in the future sit in the first two rows and that all others present would sit behind them.

Mr. Hales moved and was seconded that the Rules be suspended. The motion carried.

Miss Buffington moved that the meeting be adjourned. The motion was seconded and carried. The meeting adjourned at 12:06.

Basketball Season Opens

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington's basketball team, this year, should be one of the best it has produced in quite some time.

Although the new head coach for the Seahawks, Mel Gibson, pointed out that he looks upon the new season with guarded optimism because of all the new boys he has on the team; things have really started shaping up for the Hawks.

After watching the Seahawks demolish Francis

Continued On Page 1

BASKETBALL SEASON BEGINS

The UNCW basketball season begins with the Seahawks facing

Hampton Institute on Nov. 25 at Hanover Hall. Seahawks sitting (l-r), David Prince,

Larry Wilkerson, Greg Kemp, Ernie Lynn, Steve Langston, Perry Dobson, and Kemmy

Goodson. Seahawks standing (l-r), Rick Alesi, Ernie Holcomb, Ricky Brock, Bobby O'Donnell, Mike Cherry, Brent Belch, and Keith O'Berry.

SEASQUAWKS

Pot Users Under Dormitory Rules

DeKalb, Illinois (CPS) -- The legality of a new policy concerning private use of marijuana in residence halls at Northern Illinois University has recently come under scrutiny by local law enforcement officers.

The policy change, which is approved but not yet in writing, would make marijuana offenders subject to the jurisdiction of residence hall staff members and hall judicial boards. Under the current policy, dormitory residents discovered smoking marijuana are turned over to the NIU security police.

According to Dr. Kenneth Beasley, the new policy is modeled after similar policies at the University of Illinois and other institutions.

However, Paul Doebel, U of I security director, claims there is no such policy on the U of I campus. "Law violators are treated alike and are handled through the university police."

"It says right in the policy," Doebel said, "Dorms may not be haven or sanctuary for violators of the law."

When informed of the U of I policy, Beasley said, "I guess we'll have to look at other universities."

According to Patrick Conboy, student legal advisor, if the new policy goes into effect at NIU, it would be up to the individual hall judiciaries whether or not offenders would be reported to the police.

The new policy doesn't mean the state won't press charges against marijuana offenders, Conboy said, but it will make it more difficult for the state to get the information to press charges.

An assistant to the District Attorney described the policy as a "prevention of prosecution of the process of due law." However, he did add that this was an opinion and "we cannot just give an opinion to the general public."

DeKalb County Sheriff Wilbur said that he didn't think the new policy was feasible, and questioned whether the dorms would want their judicial board to handle other types of law violations as well.

A NIU spokesman maintained that the university was not designing the policy to protect anybody, but that sometimes cases can be handled by dorm staffs alone.

Students Have Rights

Charlotte, N. C. (CPS) -- Students in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg high school system are guaranteed the right to be represented by counsel if they are faced with expulsion.

A U.S. District Court Judge ruled last spring that the school's expulsion policies did not provide due process of law for the student.

Prior to the court decision, superintendents in the school system could expel any student recommended by the principal. Superintendents must now appoint a staff member to be a "hearing officer," who would then conduct an investigation into charges brought against the student. During the investigation, the student may be represented by a lawyer. A report of the hearing is then sent to the superintendent, who still has the final say on whether a student will be expelled.

According to state law, the principal, subject to his superintendent's approval, still has the power to expel a student who has been suspended twice.

The Legal Aid Society has a suit pending in U.S. District Court, which challenges the school's authority to expel students regardless of whether or not due process is observed.

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Fran

'HOPE YOU WON'T THINK OF ME AS A PRUDE HOWARD-I'M NOT ALLOWED TO SMOKE GRASS-JUST GET DRUNK!'

© FRANKLY SPEAKING Post Office Box 1523 East Lansing, Michigan 48823

Indians Launch Protest

Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn. (CPS) -- A group of 500 American Indians has gathered in this city to launch a major offensive in Washington, D. C. against the U. S. government.

The occasion for the gathering is the national convention of the American Indian Movement (AIM) and the Festival of Wild Rice being held in Minneapolis this week. Most of the regular functions of these annual gatherings have been dispensed with, however, to prepare for what may well be the largest caravan of Indians to be assembled since Custer rode up the Little Big Horn.

Caravans from Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles have already arrived in Minneapolis. More are expected by the end of the week when they plan to leave Minneapolis and travel to Washington, D. C., meeting other caravans along the way.

The purpose of the offensive, termed by the Indians as the "Trail of Broken Treaties," is to protest government actions concerning Indians. AIM officials predict that there will be 20 thousand Indians at an encampment in Arlington Park in Washington, D.C. during the election week, November 1 through 7. The Indians are expected to come from the entire North American continent, from Alaska to

Abortion Legalized In Some Places

Holland, Michigan (CPS) -- Michigan's abortion laws have been declared void by Wayne County Circuit Judge Charles Kaufman, but whether his decision will stand is still in question.

The legal status of the state's abortion laws will be decided only when Michigan's supreme court rules on Kaufman's decision, or when voters pass the abortion referendum on the November 7 ballot.

In a 33-page opinion, Kaufman affirmed a woman's right to privacy and to control her own body, striking down the state's 126-year old anti-abortion statutes on the ground that they violated the ninth amendment and the due process clause of the 14th amendment.

Kaufman said that in reaching his opinion, he considered abortion "strictly as a legal question." Abortion is not the same as murder, he concluded, because present law does not treat the fetus as a "legal person."

However, the legal problems of abortion are not over in Michigan. Until the supreme court acts, or the referendum is passed, another circuit judge could rule differently in another court.

Kaufman's ruling places no time restrictions on abortion, leaving the decision entirely to the woman and her doctor. The decision does stipulate, however, that abortions be performed by a licensed physician under state-approved surgical conditions.

Central America.

According to Vern Bellecourt, national director of AIM, the Indians will be protesting 371 broken treaties and "the longest undeclared war in history."

That war, according to Bellecourt, is the 482-year war that white men have waged against the Indian people.

"Figure it out from the time Columbus stepped off the boat," he said.

The Indians will also be protesting against specific government agencies and policies. Protests are expected to be launched against the Department of Interior, and Under Secretary Harrison Loesh, whom Bellecourt charges with "gross negligence."

The Department of Interior, Bellecourt pointed out, is in charge of national resources, and the Indians are tired of being thought of as "national resources."

Spokesmen from AIM cite a planned $50 million cut in educational services to Indians, and an additional $50 million cut is expected in other services.

"This will mean," Bellecourt said, "that thousands of Indian college students will have to drop out of school."

The Indians' plan, according to Bellecourt, is to ask for an increase of $200 million in Indian services, instead of the planned $100 million cut.

The Vietnam War is another sore point with the Indians. The U.S. government, they say, is fighting in Southeast Asia because of treaty obligations.

It is inconsistent, Bellecourt noted, for the U.S. government to fight a war against a "sovereign people" because of treaties when they won't honor the treaties made "with sovereign people in their own country."

The U.S., he continued, should "come home and take care of priorities. They forced our forefathers to sign those treaties at rifle point, now they could at least live up to them."

Indians from Canada and Mexico will also participate in the Washington gathering. AIM officials said, in a "past American guest for justice."

Bellecourt said that another function of the mass meeting would be to educate the American people and government as to the intrinsic status of the American Indian.

"We still consider ourselves to be the sovereign landowners of this country," he said. "People think of Indians as being on welfare, but it's not the Indians on welfare, it's the system."

The Seahawk

The Seahawk is published at every possible chance by the Student Government Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Business office is located in the Student Services Building (Pub) and is opened intermittently during school hours and at night.

Mail should be addressed to "The Seahawk", P. O. Box 3728, Wilmington, N. C. 28401. Telephone 791-8055.

Editor Ronald G. Dunn
Managing Editor Rocky Moore
Sports Editor Robert Braxton
Staff Reporters Cathy Tyner
Beverly Causey
Sharon Wolfe

Photographers Tom Smiley
Wayne Huggins

Wrestling Team Shows Great Promise

by Robert Braxton

The UNCW wrestling team has always been strong, but this year, they have an excellent opportunity of having a much better than average season.

In an interview with Coach Charles Sproles,

UNCW wrestling coach he said that he has a much better balanced squad than has been here in many years. "The Seahawks have more talent spread over more weight divisions which should make them stronger in all weight categories," he said.

"The Hawks will have quite a few new boys on the team this year, but many of these have had some wrestling experience in high school, and this should help the Hawks much during the season. They also will have some lettermen returning, and in these lettermen, there is at least one district champion returning, and two runner-ups in the district finals."

The Seahawks lost one or two good boys, but Coach Sproles feels that they will be able to replace these spots and be stronger than they have been in several years.

Coach Sproles said there are many weight divisions not yet filled, because he has so many good wrestlers in these divisions, and doesn't have one main boy who has stood out yet.

In the 118 pound category, the Seahawks will have Terry Platt, a sophomore from Clifton Fords, Virginia. Platt was runner-up in his division in the district finals, and Coach Sproles expects a great deal from him.

Next, at the 126 pound division, Chris Wilson is moving up to the next weight division and leaving this position opened for either John Walsh or Bruce Hickman.

Chris Wilson is moving up from the 126 pound position to the 134 lb. division. He came in second at the district finals last year and should be able to do that good, if not better this year.

The 142 pound weight division is mostly up for grabs right now, but the Seahawks do have some very good prospects for this position.

At the 150 pound spot, there is David Hughes, a senior from Jamestown, N.C. He is the defending district champion in this weight division, and he has a very good chance of repeating.

Then, at 158 pounds, there is Ed Wettington. He was a former district champion of two years ago, but lost his title last year.

Coming on up through the weights to the unlimited or heavyweight division, Pat Kennedy is the returner from last year. Kennedy is tremendously improved over last year. He is trying to get down to the 190 pound division, right now, but he might not make it.

Another heavyweight that is back from last year's squad is Pogo. Pogo was second to Kennedy in this division last year. Coach Sproles describes Pogo as almost a Super-heavyweight. Pogo has lost a lot of weight over the past year, and this should make him much improved.

The manager of the wrestling squad is also a wrestler. His name is Melvin Webb, and he is a sophomore. He wrestles in the 190 pound class, but is currently trying to get down to the 177 weight.

The new boys that should move in and fill some of the open classes, and plus give some of the lettermen some problems for starting positions are Tedd Webb, Steve Griffin, Glenn Tew, Mike Strous, Gary Horne, Joe Jones, Jim Strickland, Linwood Carter, Randy Sullivan, and David Strickland.

UNCW has only ten meets this year, along with two tournament meets. Coach Sproles said that this was a very short schedule, but he also hopes to add some more meets as the season progresses. The Seahawks, although having such a short schedule, will be wrestling some of the top competition in North Carolina and in the south.

W.M.F.D. - F.M. 100.9
F.M. GIANT 20
for week ending November 10

TITLE	GROUP	LABEL
1. Witty Woman	Eagles	Asylum
2. I Am Woman	Helen Reddy	Capitol
3. Good Time Charlie's Got the Blues	Danny O'Keefe	Signpost
4. Cities on Flame with Rock & Roll	Blue Oyster Cult	Columbia
5. I'd Love You To Want Me	Lobo	Big Tree
6. Listen to the Music	Dobbie Brothers	Warner Brothers
7. Thunder and Lightning	Chi Coltrane	Columbia
8. Tell Mama	Savoy Brown	Parrot
9. Burning Love	Elvis Presley	RCA
10. I'll Be Around	The Spinners	Atlantic
11. Don't Do It	The Band	Capitol
12. Summer Breeze	Seals and Crofts	Warner Brothers
13. Rock 'N Roll Soul	Grand Funk Railroad	Capitol
14. First I Look At The Purse	J. Geils Band	Atlantic
15. Tightrope	Leon Russell	Shelter
16. I Can See Clearly Now	Johnny Nash	Epic
17. Rockin' Pneumonia-Boogie Woogie Flu	J. Rivers	United Artists
18. Stairway to Heaven	Led Zeppelin	Atlantic
19. Elected	Alice Cooper	Warner Brothers
20. Freddie's DEAD	Curtis Mayfield	Curtom

Selections on this chart assigned positions on number of requests.

Campus Grill

Students Welcome

So. College Road

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches

ABORTION INFORMATION

PREGNANCY TEST AVAILABLE
An Abortion can be arranged
within 24 hours
You can return home
the same day you leave.

CALL COLLECT:

215 - 735-8100

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK A Non-Profit Organization 24 HOURS

CHAMPION TERMPAPERS

636 Beacon St. (No.605)
Boston, Mass. 02215
617-536-9700

Research material for
Termpapers. Reports, Theses,
etc. LOWEST PRICES.
QUICK SERVICE. For
information, please write or
call.

Spotlight Wrestler

by Robert Braxton

This past Tuesday evening when this sports writer was about to sit down and eat, he was joined by Seahawk wrestler David Hughes.

After finishing our dinners, David, the current defending champion of the 150 pound division of wrestling in the NAIA District 29, talked about the upcoming wrestling season, and what he thought were the chances of the Seahawk wrestlers in District 29.

He said that the biggest help to the wrestling squad this year is the obtaining of some very good new wrestlers. "The difference between the making or the breaking of our team will be all the new guys that have come out and really applied themselves," he explained.

A few of the new guys that he mentioned that have just joined the team for the first year were Jim Strickland, David Strickland, Linwood Carter, and Steve Griffin. He also mentioned Bruce Hickman and Randy Sullivan; two other wrestlers that aren't exactly new guys, but who took a year off after wrestling with the Seahawks for one season during the 70-71 season. David said that these boys might be seeing a lot of action this year if they continued to do as well as they have so far.

David Hughes

David said that he felt that the Seahawks should have a winning season this year and will have a very good chance of winning the district championships.

The Pembroke Braves will be the toughest team that the Seahawks will face in the districts, but David said that he felt that the Seahawks should be able to beat the Braves.

As far as for sending wrestlers to the nationals, David said that this UNCW squad might be able to send about five or six wrestlers to the nationals.

With this outlook for the UNCW wrestling squad, it should mean a great year for the Seahawk grapplers.

MUSIC

LIVES

100.9

W M F D - F M

Basketball Begins Nov. 25

Continued From Page 1

Marion College of Florence, South Carolina, in a scrimmage game, Coach Gibson talked about his personnel, and what type of season he expects to have.

Gibson emphasized the fact that the Seahawks will be vastly improved in all areas this year over last. The one big reason for this improvement is the seven newcomers who are playing for UNCW this season. These newcomers include four freshmen, two junior college transfers, and Larry Wilkerson, a former Seahawk who played two years ago before a knee injury sidelined him for all of last year.

"Larry was the leading rebounder for us two seasons ago, and now, that his knee injury has healed, he should be seeing a lot of action," Gibson said.

Coach Gibson noted that UNCW made great strides in their recruiting program last year, and that with these new boys and the returnees the Seahawks will have a 12 man squad and will be able to play any number of combinations without hurting ourselves significantly. This will mean a great deal to the Seahawks, who last year were hurt badly in the latter portions of the game from lack of depth.

As for the personnel, tops among the returnees are big Steve Langston, a sophomore who led the Hawks in both scoring and rebounding last year, and leaping David Prince, who came into his own and averaged nearly 13 points a game after a slow start as a freshman.

Langston, a 6-5 Jacksonville, Fla., resident, hit a phenomenal 57.4 per cent of his field goals, and this year with the extra weight he has put on he will be much stronger in the middle. Prince, who won high school All-America honors at Cope, S. C. has improved tremendously. Although only 6-3, he plays like a much bigger man because of his great jumping ability, and is a real crowd pleaser with his uncanny moves and soaring leaps above the basket.

Also back are Brent Belch, a sophomore from Cotterman who was a backcourt starter last year, and Ernie Holcomb, the only senior on the squad. Holcomb, a 6-1 guard from Reidsville, should provide the young team with good leadership. The other returner from last year's squad is Ricky Brock, the only Wilmington native on the team.

Coach Gibson is apprehensive about the freshmen, despite the obvious talent that exists.

"We have to bring them along slowly," Gibson

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON VARSITY BASKETBALL

Schedule 1972-73

Date	Opponent	Site
Saturday, November 25	Hampton Institute, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Tuesday, December 5	Baptist College at Charleston, Charleston, S.C.	25, Belmont
Thursday, December 7	Pfeiffer College, Misenheimer	25, Belmont
Saturday, December 9	Campbell College, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Saturday, December 16	Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.	25, Belmont
Friday, December 29, and Saturday, December 30	Belmont Abbey Tournament, Belmont	25, Belmont
Thursday, January 4 and Friday, January 5	UNC-W Tournament, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Thursday, January 11	Belmont Abbey, Belmont	25, Belmont
Saturday, January 13	Washington & Lee University, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Monday, January 15	Pembroke State University, Pembroke	25, Belmont
Saturday, January 20	N. C. Wesleyan College, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Monday, January 22	St. Andrews College, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Thursday, January 27	Pfeiffer College, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Monday, January 29	Belmont Abbey, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Wednesday, January 31	High Point College, High Point	25, Belmont
Monday, February 13	Campbell College, Buie's Creek	25, Belmont
Thursday, February 8	Baptist College at Charleston, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Saturday, February 10	Atlantic Christian College, Wilson	25, Belmont
Wednesday, February 14	Pembroke State University, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Saturday, February 17	Methodist College, Wilmington	25, Belmont
Wednesday, February 21	Atlantic Christian College, Wilmington	25, Belmont

COACH: Mel Gibson - Telephone Number 791-4330. Ext. 253. Home No. 799-2334. Athletic Director: Bill Brooks - Telephone No. 791-4330, Ext. 268. Sports Information Director: Jim Carr - Office Phone 791-4330, Ext. 222; Home Phone 791-8134. TEAM NAME: Seahawks. COLORS: Green and Gold

By EDWARD JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Philanderer
5. Musical Piece
10. Miss Didrikson
14. Assort
15. Follow
16. Body of Troops
17. Al Capp Creation
20. Flexible
21. Conceit
22. Support
23. Sick
24. Moves Slowly
27. West Coast Trolley
32. French Name
33. Revolve Rapidly
34. Equivalent
35. Outer: Comb. Form
36. Famous Puppet
37. Call for Help
38. Language Group
40. Playwright Simon
41. Prefix: Father
43. Musical Play
45. Tip Sideways
46. Anglo-Saxon Letter
47. Operatic Solo
48. Sea Cow
52. Raincoats
56. Minnie's Boys
58. Glacial Snow
59. Novelist Sinclair
60. Tidy
61. Asterisk
62. Parts of Speech
63. Building Wings

DOWN

1. Insect
2. Egg-shaped
3. Mother of Helen
4. Flying Saucer
5. Moral Philosophy
6. Field of Sports
7. Labor Union
8. Water-controller
9. Qualified
10. Murries About
11. Caucasian Language
12. Partiality
13. Word Source (abbr.)
14. Day's March
19. Cromwell's Nickname
24. Belief
25. Summarize
26. Between: Fr.
27. Hairlike Projections
28. Seed Covering
29. Hindu Group
30. Love in Italy
31. Tree Substance
33. Fruit Decay
36. In Retreat (3 wds.)
39. Visionary
41. Apply Cosmetics
42. Mythological Spider
44. Girl's Name
45. Singe Like Crosby
47. Front Part of Stage
48. High Landmasses (abbr.)
49. Egyptian Month
50. Leningrad's River
51. Ron Hunt, e.g.
53. Follow Closely
54. Of the Mouth
55. High-speed Planes
57. Heat Measure

NEEDED: Bartender for private party to be held Nov. 18, from 4:30 till 9 p.m. Must know the art of mixing drinks. Dial 791-0396.

FOR SALE: Full set Slingerland Drums, mounted Tom, Floor Tom Snare and Bass. A Zeigler Cymbals, 22" ride, 18" sizzler, 18" crash, 14" matched Hi-hat. Covers, throne sticks, brushes & mallets included. Must sell. Call Charles 791-4330, between 5 & 10 p.m.

Stay Ahead 4th Corner

4503 Oleander Dr.
Posters, Patches,
Pants, Shirts,
Strobe Lights,
Black Lights,
Papers, Incense,
Pipes & Such

confides. "I'm really apprehensive about the use of them in this league."

Greg Kemp is a 6-3 transfer from Sue Bennett Junior College in London, Kentucky, where he won junior college All-America honors after averaging more than 30 points per game last year. A native of Charlestown, Ind., Kemp is an excellent outside shooter and a tremendous passer.

Mike Cherry from Ahsoskie, N. C., transferred from Mount Olive College, where he averaged almost 25 points a game and 11 rebounds a game last season. Cherry probably has the most potential of any ball player to come to UNCW for quite some time. He is an explosive leaper, who comes off the drive with a variety of moves, and a rebounding giant.

Being apprehensive about the freshmen doesn't take anything away from their great talents. The four freshmen on the team are Ernie Lynn, Bobby O'Donnell, Mike Alesi, and Kemmy Goodson.

Lynn, from Fairfax, Va., is the tallest man on the team at 6-7. He is progressing rapidly into an outstanding pivot man and will see a lot of action.

Bobby O'Donnell is a big guard at 6-3, who played on a state championship team at Bishop Ready High School in Columbus, Ohio, in the nation's high school hotbed. Bobby is a talented shooter and ball-handler, and a real cool performer.

At 5-9, Rick Alesi is the shortest man on the team, but at the same time, the fastest. Alesi is really sound fundamentally, and has the speed and quickness to run the fast break at its best.

Kemmy Goodson, a 6-4 freshman from Washington Courthouse, Ohio, is a real good-shooting forward. He has looked very good in the practices so far. Kemmy can play either inside or on the wing.

YOU DON'T NORMALLY NEED MONEY TO MAKE A DEAL WITH US.

DAVE GARRIS

DON POWERS

People with a high degree of intelligence normally buy Fiat and Subaru, because they recognize the sophisticated engineering features of both.

TEST DRIVE AT
AMERICAN IMPORTS

1529 S. College Rd.

791-2137

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

The following students have letters waiting for them in Alderman Room 109. Please get your letters real soon!

Elwanda Alderman
Jesse Arnold
Libbie Coff
Marie Davis
Patricia Galloway
Cinda Haggren
Paul Harris
Lloyd Hudson
Marion Jeray
Robert Jones

Jimmy Kornegay (2 letters)
David Lindsay
Robert Little
Shirley Mackay
Bryan Millis
Felix Poppiti (2)
David Purser
Marrow Smith
Cynthia Stewart
Myrna Todd
J. Trowbridge

MAIL BOXES

There is a good deal of mail for students in the incoming student mail basket in A-109. Some letters that have been in the basket for some time include a Mr. Poppiti and a Mr. Weeks.

NEEDED

- Ideas for future dances
- and homecoming week
- dance. Leave msg. in
- Dance Committee box in
- Pub.

History Club Meets

The UNC-W History Club held its monthly meeting Wednesday night, November 1, at 7:30 p.m.

The guest speaker was Dr. R. E. Treadwell, a local veterinarian, who gave an interesting and informative program concerning local artifacts which he has collected. On display were numerous buttons, old coins, a piece of Indian pottery, pre-Civil War bottles, and other items which he has turned up in explorations around Wilmington and surrounding areas.

The next meeting will be on December 6 at 7:30 p.m. in A204. All history majors, as well as any other interested students and faculty members, are cordially invited to attend.

CLUBS

PE Majors Club every 1st and 3rd Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the back gym.

Sierra Club Wilderness Outing, Nov. 18-19. Intro to mountain backpacking. Contact Barry Grimm 799-3757 or Dr. Kapraun in H-114.

PLACEMENT OFFICE

College Placement Annuals 1973 are available to seniors on a first come - first serve basis. The annuals include job listings, resume information, etc. There are numerous part-time jobs listed on the bulletin board beside the switchboard in the Administration Office.

The Soul Sisters and Brothers of Wantu Wazuri are raffling off a cassette tape player at 12 noon on November 17, 1972 in the Pub. Tickets are $.50 and can be bought from any member. So get on the "Good Foot" and buy a ticket.

LIBRARY

The display being shown now in the lobby of the library is through the courtesy of Mrs. Dorothy Nesbitt. The display shows Contemporary Dance.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 6, 1972

District Soccer Standings:

	District			All Games
	W	L	T	W	L	T
Lynchburg	7	0	0	12	2	1
Campbell	6	1	0	10	4	0
St. Andrews	5	2	0	11	3	0
Pembroke State	4	3	0	4	5	0
Methodist	3	4	1	5	5	1
UNC-Wilmington	3	4	0	4	8	1
N. C. Wesleyan	2	6	0	2	6	1
Virginia Wesleyan	0	3	1	1	8	1
Atlantic Christian	0	7	0	1	9	0

RESULTS

Campbell 8	Atlantic Christian 0
Lynchburg 6	VMI 0
UNC-Wilmington 4	N. C. Wesleyan 1
St. Andrews 3	Pembroke State 1
St. Andrews 2	East Carolina 1
Randolph-Macon 2	Campbell 0
Lynchburg 5	UNC-Greensboro 0
Methodist 3	N. C. Wesleyan 2
George Mason 2	Virginia Wesleyan 0

Visit Our Mod
| Mod World

Our Prices Are
Guaranteed to
Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone:
799-0990

AQUA WORLD INC.

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR - SALES - RENTALS
CHARTER - REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV

NOTICE

The positions of

Junior Class Vice-president and Senator need to be filled!

Contact Barry Asbury, Junior Class President or put message in SGA box in Pub.

MAN ON WHEELS

"These bladder - wheeled devices of the demon of darkness are contrivances to trap the feet of the unwary and skin the nose of the innocent. They are full of guile and deceit. When you think you have broken one to ride and subdued its wild and satanic nature, behold it bucketh you off in the road and tearth a great hole in your pants."

This opinion of the bicycle, expressed in a Sunday sermon in Baltimore in 1896, did not reflect public consensus. This is shown, conclusively and oftentimes hilariously, in A Social History of the Bicycle by Prof. Robert A. Smith (American Heritage Press, $9.95).

What began as an attempt to discover the sources of the bicycle craze of the Gay Nineties evolved into a lighthearted but scholarly study of the impact of the cycle on American culture, and the extensive heritage the "craze" left behind. A professor of Social Sciences at California State College in San Bernardino, the author treats the origins of the two-wheeler, impact of the machine on the economy, morals, transportation, sport, highway improvement, dress reform, communications — the whole thing.

"The primary value of the book for the reader is twofold, I hope," says Prof. Smith. "First, it will bring pleasure, an occasional laugh, and maybe a better understanding of the lives of our grandfathers or great-grandfathers. Second, it may provide a better understanding of the reader's own times by showing how a machine influenced our contemporary lifestyle."

Some 100 illustrations enhance the witty, stimulating text.

THAT'S A FACT

BIRTH PANGS

DURING A DOCKING STRIKE, IT TOOK 17 HOURS OF SKILLED SEAMANSHIP TO TURN AROUND THE WORLD'S LARGEST LINER QUEEN ELIZABETH (1). (N.Y., MAR. 31 - APR. 1, 1959)

IT ADDS UP!

A LITTLE HERE, A LITTLE THERE...AND BEFORE YOU KNOW IT, YOU'VE GONE OVER YOUR BUDGET. THERE'S A GREAT WAY TO AVOID NEEDLESS TEMPTATIONS BY ENROLLING IN THE PAYROLL SAVINGS PLAN WHERE A LITTLE OF EACH PAYCHECK IS SET ASIDE AUTOMATICALLY!

BONUS

IN 1900 A CALIFORNIA LAND SPECULATOR AND A NEW ENGLAND PUBLISHER JOINED TO SELL A SET OF ENCYCLOPEDIAS FOR $300 WITH A PLOT OF LAND 20 BY 90 FEET AS A PREMIUM. ABOUT 25 WERE SOLD IN ORANGE COUNTY, CAL. TWENTY YEARS LATER OIL WAS DISCOVERED ON THE PROPERTY!

WILL HE MAKE IT?

Seahawk Jackie Blackmore throws the ball in bounds, as the Seahawks move out on attack in game with N. C. Wesleyan.

Soccer Closes: UNCW - 4 Wesley - 1

The UNCW Seahawks closed out their 1972 soccer campaign on a happy note with a most outstanding 4-1 victory over North Carolina Wesleyan College at Brooks Field on Tuesday.

The victory was the fifth of the season for the Seahawks under coach Calvin Lane against eight losses and one tie. The Seahawks won the last five out of seven games they played after getting off to a slow start.

UNCW just missed a berth in the NAIA District 29 soccer tournament slated for mid-November. The 1972 campaign was the closest the Seahawks have come to qualifying for the affair.

The Seahawks displayed an outstanding defense through the first 25 minutes of the game as the Wesleyan team controlled the ball much of this time, but were only able to manage one score. This came on a goal by Winston King with 21 minutes left in the first half.

However, this was to be the only goal that Wesleyan would get as UNCW came roaring back with their tremendous offense and controlled the rest of the game.

Jackie Blackmore knotted the score at 1-1 on a goal with 40 minutes gone in the contest with an assist from David Wychel. The next goal moved the Seahawks out in front for good in the contest with 12 seconds left in the half on a kick by Charlie Wells with his assist coming from Steve Boles.

The Seahawks completely dominated the entire second half of play, making many shots at the goal, but only scoring on two of them.

Kevin Retlinger scored the third goal for the Seahawks on an assist by Jackie Blackmore. Steve Boles kicked the final goal for the Seahawks late in the contest with the aid of an assist from Retlinger.

"We have a pretty good

"I USED TO COULD TOUCH 'EM"

Kevin Retlinger kicks the corner kick and later scores, as the Seahawks stomp Wesleyan in soccer finale, 4-1.

LOST and FOUND

Fraternity pin
suede jacket

white sweater
denim jacket

notebooks

to claim, see Mrs. Moore - Pub

We Want Your Business
UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND
TRUST CO. N.A.

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

Almost every person in our society has seen a victim of misinformation and superstition in all areas of human sexuality. There still exist many fallacies, fallacies that can only breed unhappiness unless the facts are disseminated. Here are but just a few.

Alcohol is a sexual stimulant. False. Alcohol acts as a depressant on the neurological system and can depress sexual functioning as much as it will blur speech and motor coordination.

Alcohol affects men and women alike but the alcohol-induced sexual failure in the man is more pronounced. Taken in large quantities, alcohol blocks the neutral pathways that govern erection, causing temporary impotence that cannot be overcome, even with a very strong sexual desire.

A woman under the influence is capable of intercourse but her chances of achieving an orgasm are greatly diminished because of the alcohol's deadening effect on all nerve centers.

Alcohol taken in moderate amounts, however, may reduce fears and guilt feelings that would otherwise interfere with sexual performance and sexual enjoyment. It can also dull sensitivity a bit, so as to allow intercourse to last longer.

A large penis is important to a woman's sexual gratification, and the man with a large penis is more sexually potent. False. The size of the penis has practically nothing at all to do with a man's ability to satisfy a woman sexually.

Exceptions to this are: When there is the psychological influence of a woman's thinking that penis size does make a difference; when sexual pleasure is reduced because the penis is too large and causes the woman pain; or when the penis is so pathologically small that penetration and pelvic contact cannot be maintained.

The vaginal walls have few nerves endings, so that the depth of penetration is of no significance. Therefore, the size of the penis is in no way related to the sexual gratification experienced by the woman.

A hallmark of complete sexual compatibility is synchronized orgasm. False. The vaginal spasm of the female will frequently speed the male to orgasm, thus giving the impression that synchronization has occurred. It is enough that both partners are achieving orgasm, and synchronization is most likely a function of mutual practice.

Marijuana is an aphrodisiac. False. If the definition of aphrodisiac is considered to be a substance which when taken will regularly excite sexual desire, then marijuana is not one.

However, marijuana is one of the many psychoactive drugs in which the set and setting are important. If a person is set for sexual excitement and if the setting is conducive to sexual fantasy, chances are likely that sexual feelings will be heightened by marijuana.

Marijuana causes distortion of sensations - sound, taste, vision. Sexual sensations can also be distorted and heightened. Commonly, marijuana reduces anxiety and inhibitions while producing a sense of well-being. Also many people report that under the influence of marijuana there is a concentration on one set of sensations - one of which can well be sexual.

For further detailed treatment of sexual myths and fallacies read "Sexual Myths and Fallacies" by Dr. James Leslie McCary, professor of psychology, University of Houston, Texas.

and Dr. Takey Crist, in care of The Daily Tar Heel, Student Union, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514

COPYRIGHT (C) 1972 by Lana Starnes and Dr. Takey Crist. All Rights reserved.

(Questions should be addressed to Lana Starnes

"No one denies that he had the right to hold dissident views; on the other hand, it was a drag having him around."

For free road
atlas contact

BUS. PHONE: 763-1604
RES. PHONE: 666-0144

G. W. SMITH
SPECIAL AGENT

Professional Student Counseling

JEFFERSON STANDARD
LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

203 N. 5TH AVENUE
WILMINGTON, N. C. 28401

THE BICYCLE SHOP

Full Line Of GITANES Coming!!

UNIC - SPORTS

LIBERTAS

FUNGI

Newest Finest
S-Ten Racer

We Welcome
Trade-Ins

KALKOFF

SERVICE & REPAIR

Reasonable Prices For Students

Expert Repair Done Quickly

But Correctly

Mun Docycle

ACCESSORIES

- Car Carriers
- Baby Seats
- Safety Lever
- Brake Sets

4403 Wrightsville Ave.
791-7723

CAMPAGNOLA & UNIVERSAL COMPONENTS

Water Bottles $2.50
TAPE $.60

Air Pumps $2.40
Karly Kables $5.00

Tourist And Tool Bags

Gay Lounge Will Not Be Closed

New York, N.Y. (CPS) -- Gay people of Columbia University are having some recognition problems.

Last spring they seized a lounge in the basement of Columbia's Fernald Hall and maintained it as their group's facilities. However, the administration has been slow to recognize it.

Last month Dean of the College Peter Pouncey reversed a previous decision by former Dean Carl F. Hovde to deny the lounge recognition. October 3, the Columbia Board of Trustees voted to deny the lounge recognition, backing a previous decision of Columbia President William McGill.

This left Pouncey in a peculiar position which he termed as "splendid isolation."

The administration will probably not attempt to close the lounge, Pouncey said because they had made no such attempt last year.

"The lounge went on with McGill and Hovde opposed to it," Pouncey noted, and he described the trustees' decision as being in the "realm of ideological decisions" which may have no practical effect.

Pouncey also announced recently that a contribution to the Dean's discretionary fund would be used to furnish the lounge. The money comes from an alumni, according to Pouncey, who made the donation with the Gay People's lounge in mind.

Last year, a group of students staged a sit-in to demand better furnishings for the lounge, but funds were held up due to the lack of official recognition of the area.

Pouncey had predicted donations for lounge furnishings when he granted it Dean's recognition.

Pouncey said that he received as much mail as he expected concerning his actions involving the Gay People group, but he did receive some "hate" mail.

John Rhoderick Is Player Of The Week

Wilmington -- John Rhoderick who enabled St. Andrews to clinch third place seeding in the NAIA District 29 soccer playoffs with a fine performance last week, has been named District "Soccer Player of the Week."

The Knights won 3-1 at Pembroke State in a crucial battle for the No. 3 seed, and Coach Robbin Kinne of St. Andrews said Rhoderick was the key performer.

"John is a fullback who normally concentrates only on defense, but last week he held us together and guided our offense to victory," said Kinne of his 5-foot-10, 175-pound senior from Townson, Md.

Rhoderick is a two-time All-South and All-District soccer player and has made All-Dixie Conference on three occasions. He is co-captain of the team.

Pairings for the four-team District 29 playoffs are already set. On Thursday, Nov. 16, No. 1 seeded Lynchburg (7-0) is host to fourth-seeded Pembroke State (4-3), and second-seeded Campbell (6-1) is host to third-seeded St. Andrews (5-2) in the first round play. The finals will be played Sat., Nov. 18 at the field of the higher-seeded team.

Soccer Closes

Continued From Page 6

team," said Lane after the soccer game. "We seemed to have peaked right at the end of the season. We have improved tremendously."

Lane believes the Seahawks are in the process of building a soccer power in District 29. A former soccer player at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and long-time coach in New Hanover County of several different sports, Lane says the Seahawks played one of the toughest schedules in the East this year, but was competitive in every contest.

NOTICE

Any group, club, or organization which desires to use university physical facilities for any purpose other than regularly scheduled class periods must submit a written request to the Office of Information Services, Room 119 in the Alderman Building. The request should be submitted at least three days in advance of event.

Gwen Croom
Assistant Director
Information Services

Student Originated Studies Offered

The National Science Foundation is seeking proposals for its Student Originated Studies Program. This program is for undergraduate students who will initiate, plan and direct projects dealing with local significant social problems.

The projects, usually taking place during the summer, offer a stipend of $80 per week, with a maximum individual student stipend of $960.

Although the projects will be student originated, planned, and directed, help from instructors will be available.

A copy of Student Originated Studies Guide for Preparation of Proposals (NSF-E-73-U-5) is available in the Multiple Abilities Office, A-114.

Closing date for proposals is November 30, 1972.

Savoy Brown

Plus Atomic Rooster

And Steely Dan

Brogden Hall

Nov. 14

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS COMPLETE

A	EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH SERVICES	A
	LIBRARY OF 20,000
E	TERMPAPER AND THESIS RESEARCH	E
R	Mon - Fri (202) Sat	R
	9:30-5:30 785-4511 10-4
C	2430 PENNSYLVANIA Ave. NW Wash. D C	C
	20037

Area Director Wanted
AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS

TERM PAPERS

Send for your descriptive, up-to-date, 128-page, mail order catalog of 2,300 quality term papers. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage and handling.

WE ALSO WRITE
CUSTOM MADE PAPERS.

Termpaper Arsenal, Inc.
519 GLENROCK AVE., SUITE 203
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90024
(213) 477-8474 • 477-5493

"We need a local salesman"

There are three Senior Class openings in the Senate

Apply With Jack Paul, Senior Class
President At The Pub

FOR LOST AND

FOUND ARTICLES

CHECK PUB

OFFICE.

FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE — FALL '72

	9:00-11:00	1:00-3:00	7:00-9:00
Tues.	8:30 MWF	2:30 MWF	Tuesday night
Dec. 12	classes	classes	classes

Wed.	9:30 MWF	3:30 MWF	Wed. night
Dec. 13	classes	classes	classes

Thurs.	10:30 MWF	1:30 MWF	Thurs. night
Dec. 14	classes	classes	classes

Fri.	11:30 MWF	2:00 T Th
Dec. 15	classes	classes

Mon.	12:30 T Th	12:30 MWF	Monday night
Dec. 18	classes	classes	classes

Tues.	10:00 T Th	11:30 Th
Dec. 19	classes	classes

Wed.	8:30 T Th	3:30 T Th
Dec. 20	classes	classes

The Seahawk

University of North Carolina-Wilmington

Movie
'PATTON'

DEC. 8, 1972

8 P.M.
KENAN

VOL. XV

NO. 9

by students, for students

EIGHT PAGES

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1972

Phoenix/Howie Zryb

Barry Rosen To Perform At Kenan Auditorium

Barry (the Smile Man) Rosen is slated to perform at Kenan Auditorium next Wednesday night, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m.

He will exhibit his music, played on a 12-string guitar named Filbert, which he says is a blend of Taylor, Sebastian, "and a whole lot of Barry Rosen".

Hailing from New York City, "the Smile Man" says that Wilmington has been close to his heart since 1970 even though having never previously performed here. "Wilmington has been my escape," he says, "where I can come to write my music and be alone." He says he stays at the Sassafras Farm, a local friend's place, and loves the area.

Graduating from Queens College in New York with a BA in Psychology, the 23-year old musician says his music is a full time thing. "My background in Psychology actually aids me in relating to people, audiences, and my music," he commented.

Barry's element is the folk ballad which he does better than any other type of song, he says. In "Samson and the Warden" he proceeds to tell the story concerning one busted fellow who unsuccessfully tried to keep his hair on his head. There also was a wonderful little song of the drunk who couldn't stop saying "I swear to God!" Barry had to put up with him during another gig.

"Readjustment Blues" carries little humor. It is a sad tale of a soldier coming home from war only to find it no better at home. The youths were waging another battle against everything that the soldier had fought for. In the end the soldier had the tables turned on him and he finds himself on the wrong side of a guard's gun.

Rosen's last performance was at Carnegie Hall, the stepping stone to fame for many performers.

Along with his musical performance in which he does choices of his own composing, he presents impressions which include the Bee Gees, Elton John, and Neil Young, which, according to past critics, are the highlight of his one-man show.

The concert is being sponsored by the UNCW Fine Arts Committee and is free to UNCW students with ID's, $1 for High School Students, and $2 for general admission tickets.

An Interview With Jim Holshouser

Jim Holshouser, govern-elect, was in Wilmington on election eve and during an interview with SEAHAWK reporters, he offered many insights into the way his Republican administration, the first in 70 years, will be run.

"I have, and will continue, to support the Governors' Board in all matters concerning appropriations and support of educational institutions. It is not the prerogative of the Governor's office to interfere in those matters," the future governor replied when asked what he planned to do to aid higher institutions of learning, especially UNCW. He added, "I feel that a highly centralized, federally controlled school system would be disastrous to effective education, our most important national resource. We must help every student reach new levels of achievement ... provide teachers an honorable and well-paid profession ... by a high priority school financing study."

Holshouser promises there will be no new taxes or tax increases proposed by his Administration. "This is not just another one of those empty political promises ... It's a conviction based on the first-hand knowledge."

Holshouser has served four sessions on the House Appropriations Committee. He has in the past voted against gasoline and tobacco taxes.

When asked his opinions on the condominiums that seem to be overtaking the beaches in our area, and what he feels should be done with Masonboro Sound Beach, Holshouser answered, "There is a limit to what you can tell a man to do with his land. I would like to see Masonboro

Continued on Page 4

Erich S. Parker Slates Recital

By BEVERLY CAUSEY

Ann Grey Darden, Assistant Professor of Music, will present Erich Stephen Parker, tenor, in recital on Sunday, December the third, at three o'clock, in Sarah Graham Kenan Hall.

It is not unusual to find a student of music presenting a senior recital as the culmination of his undergraduate scholastic and creative efforts; however, Parker is not a music major. Although a serious student of the art, he is not at all connected with this music department except through his voice instruction. Parker is an honors student in English, an Editor of Atlantis, the literary magazine of UNCW.

He has studied for a number of years with some well-established vocal coaches: among them, Clark Graves, a choir master and voice teacher in Virginia; Robert Knauf, a vocal coach and assistant to Robert Shaw; Paul Salamunovich, a conservatory instructor, and composer of musical scores for television and motion pictures, such as How The West Was Won; Gladys White, a member of the voice faculty at the School of Music at East Carolina university; and of course, Ann Darden. Parker has done much solo oratorio singing, principally in Virginia, performing in works by Gabriel Faure, Felix Mendelssohn, Johann Sebastian Bach, George Frederic Handel, Franz Schubert, and others. In addition, he has appeared in song recitals at Virginia Wesleyan College and Chrysler Hall.

As you may have guessed, Erich's family background

Continued on Page 4

Miss Deborah King (R) receives a trophy from Mrs. Mary Anne Yow upon her being named the Student Nurse of the Year. Miss King is a freshman Nursing student at UNCW and was chosen on the basis of her talk, "Expanding Role of a Nurse."

Bake Sale every day in the Psychology Department Staff Office.

SEASQUAWKS

Coffee, to us that do indulge, is a heavenly thing, another one of God's creatures.

It wakes us up in the morning, puts us to bed at night, and is never far from that cigarette.

It would be interesting to ascertain the number of cups that are sold in the Snack Bar daily, not to mention the various offices on campus that have those fine liquid machines close at hand for indulgers who can afford a nickel or dime.

When a populace of coffee drinkers, such as ours, is so apparent, we wonder why, when buying a cup, one is usually forced into buying second, and possibly a third before he satiates his desires. The answer is simple (which brings us to the punch line).

The fact is, the cups are too SMALL!

They are so small, in fact, that they actually act as saucers to the coffee inside, spilling over and splashing out.

One wonders whether there is some communistic (or capitalistic more like it) plot against coffee drinkers. These cups are actually so small that it is quite difficult to insert sugar and creme without making a mess.

Seriously, there must be some sort of plot being instigated against coffee drinkers. All the medical reports show that caffeine will eat your guts out, and everyone but the more naive knows that it will give you ugly wants to drink that muddy mercury. However, the cups take the cake. It's enough to make you want to stop drinking!

In the light of these sorry state of affairs at UNC-W, we now form the CDBP (coffee drinkers or bigger cups) and urge all drinkers to stage rallies, protests, demonstrations, sit-ins, dry-ins, tand-ins, drink-ins, and just generally raise hell until we can choose our own size of cups in the snack bar and elsewhere. If our aspirations are spurned, we can always call in the big boys, the 'DLL (Coffee Drinkers Liberation League) from Brazil.

But until we do here are some suggestions intended to aid you in harrassing Snack Bar and office managers and secretaries into ordering larger containers:

1. Spit on the floor when tasting that first sip from the miniature mug.

2. Leave the coffee running until it runs out of the cup onto the floor. (When authority reproaches you for this, tell him politely that you thought the cups were NORMAL size.)

3. When paying for your "playhouse teacup" of coffee accidentally spill most of it on the counter top, forcing them to give you another.

4. Bring a large cup from home and fill it up at the Snack Bar, then block the aisle and make a scene when they insist you pay more than the normal price.

Don't let them rest! Show them your outrage at their discriminatory practice against larger cups. Stand up for your rights, and the rights of all coffee cups everywhere. Remember our slogan, "The Bigger, . . . The Better!" —RGD.

By F. J. JULIUS

ACROSS

1. Goals
5. Rich or Prominent Man
10. Scarlett O'Hara's Home
14. Defeat
15. Market Place
16. English River
17. Roman Road
18. Military Stance (2 wds.)
20. Unmarried
22. French Painter
23. Take Out
24. Up
25. Free from Sin
28. Warlike Persons
32. Chemical Additive
33. Microscope Shelf
34. Vigor
35. Money
36. Condiment
37. Page
38. Modus in Rebus
39. Frite
40. Donkey
41. Firm Supporter
43. Atomic Theorist
44. Slender
45. African Country
46. Piece of Thread
49. Regurgitating
53. Change
55. Developed Animal
56. Car
57. Mother-of-pearl
58. Sicilian Resort
59. Golf Items
60. Avarice
61. Bring Up

DOWN

1. Viking Explorer
2. Memorandum
3. Formal Fight
4. Shriek
5. Bomb Substance
6. Marble
7. Uninteresting Person
8. Pro Nobis
9. Tease
10. Goal
11. Declare
12. English Emblem
13. Insect (pl.)
19. Between: Fr.
21. Vegetable
24. Swiftly
25. Spreads Unchecked
26. Pass Off
27. Greek Letter
28. Walking-pole
29. Asunder
30. Brazilian River
31. Golf Club
33. Flash
36. Army
37. Newspaper Owner
39. Web-footed Birds
40. Indonesian Island
42. Venezuelan Grasslands
43. Cursed
45. Irish Post
46. College Subject (abbr.)
47. Authentic
48. Price
49. Fault
50. "Pompeii" Character
51. Fete: Latin
52. Growl
54. Sailor

Bulletin Board

NURSING NOTES

At a September meeting Mr. Frank Allen was presented a certificate naming him an Honorary Student Nurse. Mr. Allen teaches freshman student nurses Anatomy & Physiology and Microbiology.

Miss Deborah King, a freshman nursing student has been named Student Nurse of the Year at UNC-Wilmington for 1973. She was elected by the District No. 22 A.N.A. and the Student Nurses Association at UNC-W on the basis of a brief talk entitled "Expanding Role of a Nurse." Miss King will also represent UNC-W in the District No. 9 competition. She was presented a trophy by Mrs. Mary Anne Yow last year's Student Nurse of the Year.

Miss King is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman King of 210 Dixie Ave. here in Wilmington.

W. M. F. D. - F.M.
GIANT 20
Period Ending November 18

1. Witchy Woman	Eagles	Asylum
2. I Am Woman	Helen Reddy	Capitol
3. Cities on Flame with Rock & Roll	Blue Oyster Cult	Columbia
4. I'd Love You to Want Me	Lobo	Big Tree
5. I Can See Clearly Now	Epic	Epic
6. Summer Breeze	Seals & Crofts	Warner Brothers
7. Good Time Charlie's Got the Blues	Danny O'Keefe	Signpost
8. Thunder and Lightning	Chi Coltrane	Columbia
9. Burning Love	Elvis Presley	RCA
10. Don't Do It	The Band	Don't Capital
11. It Never Rains in Southern California	Albert Hammond	Mums
12. Rockin' Pneumonia & The Boogie Woogie Flu	Johnny Rivers	United Artists
13. Ventura Highway	America	Warner Brothers
14. Dialogue	Chicago	Columbia
15. I'll Be Around	The Spinners	Atlantic
16. Singing the Blues	Black Oak Arkansas	Atco
17. American City Suite	Cashman & West	Dunhill
18. Freddie's Dead	Curtis Mayfield	Curtom
19. First I Look at the Purse	J. Geils Band	Atlantic
20. Tightrope	Leon Russell	Seliter

ALL POSITIONS ON THE CHART ASSIGNED ACCORDING TO NUMBER OF REQUESTS

TELEPHONE 762-4474

The Seahawk

The Seahawk is published at every possible chance by the Student Government Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Business office is located in the Student Services Building (Pub) and is opened intermittently during school hours and at night.

Mail should be addressed to "The Seahawk", P. O. Box 3725, Wilmington, N. C. 28401. Telephone 791-8055.

Editor Ronald G. Dunn
Managing Editor Rocky Moore
Sports Editor Robert Braxton
Staff Reporters Cathy Tyner
Beverly Causey
Sharon Wolfe

Photographers Tom Smiley
Wayne Huggins

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Frank

"BUSINESS CERTAINLY HAS GONE UP SINCE I PUT YOU IN CHARGE OF THE CAFETERIA, HARRISON!"

ELEPHANTS & Butterflies

by Lana Starnes
and
Dr. Takey Crist

Question: I have a friend who has recently been put on the pill (Norinyl). She says that the pill is effective after taking it for seven days, however, some of her friends say she must take it for one complete cycle. Who is correct? Also, someone said that if you have a blood test, they can tell if you are on the pill. Is this true? — Signed, Pill Wonderer.

Dear Pill Wonderer: Some physicians believe that if you start on the fifth day of your period and take your pill every day, you will be safe. Others believe that you must take the pill for at least two weeks before you are safe. We know of no blood test that can tell if a girl is on the pill.

Question: What are the possible causes for painful intercourse? That is what could be causing pain for me at the time of penetration and worse yet irritation and soreness of the vagina afterwards? I have been having intercourse for sometime and this has only recently begun to bother me and then it does not always occur. I have it, it disappears and later reappears.

Do men suffer any similar problems (painful intercourse)? — Signed, Curious.

Dear Curious: One of the possible causes of dyspareunia during intercourse is the failure to lubricate. Infection is the next most common cause of burning, itching, and aching in the vagina. Vaginal sensitivity to many substances can also cause continual painful intercourse. We have seen this in several women in the last two years because of the new spray deodorants and douching powders that have been introduced on the market.

Yes, men can also be incapacitated with dyspareunia. One of the most common cause is poor hygiene, particularly when a man is not circumcised. Pain during ejaculation in the male may be caused from spasm of the prostate gland, enlargement of the prostate gland that comes with aging and, though rarely, cancer of the prostate.

Question: What is the most common type of birth control used throughout the world? — Signed, Bill.

Dear Bill: The most widely used type of contraceptive is the condom, also called rubber. It appeared in the middle of the 17th century. The condom serves two purposes: avoids pregnancy and prevents venereal disease.

Question: Since junior high school I have heard the jokes about "mono." If someone were to get "mono" he became the object of all sorts of comments. I never realized how serious the disease can be. What is

"mono" and what causes it? — Signed, Serious.

Dear Serious: Infectious mononucleosis is an acute infectious disease of the lymph glands. Its symptoms include fever, fatigue, chills, sweating, headache, sore throat and loss of appetite.

The disease is caused by a filtrable virus but we do not know how it is transmitted. The popular belief is that it is transmitted by kissing an infected person.

TERM PAPERS

Send for your descriptive, up-to-date, 128-page, mail order catalog of 2,300 quality term papers. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage and handling.

WE ALSO WRITE CUSTOM MADE PAPERS.

Termpaper Arsenal, Inc.
519 GLENROCK AVE., SUITE 203
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90024
(213) 477-8474 • 477-5493
"We need a local salesman"

CHAMPION TERMPAPERS

636 Beacon St. (No. 605)
Boston, Mass. 02215
617-536-9700

Research material for Termpapers, Reports, Theses, etc. LOWEST PRICES. QUICK SERVICE. For information, please write or call.

For free road atlas contact

BUS. PHONE: 763-1604
RES. PHONE: 686-0144

G. W. SMITH
SPECIAL AGENT

Professional Student Counseling

JEFFERSON STANDARD
LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

202 N. 5TH AVENUE
WILMINGTON, N. C. 28401

FOR SALE: Full set Slingerland Drums, mounted Tom, Floor Tom Snare and Bass. A Zeigler Cymbals, 22" ride, 18" sizzler, 18" crash, 14" matched Hi-hat. Covers, throne sticks, brushes & mallets included. Must sell. Call Charles 791-4330, between 5 & 10 p.m.

AQUA WORLD inc.

Professional Diving Instruction

N.A.S.D.S. Approved

• BASIC CERTIFICATION
• SENIOR DIVING COURSE
• UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
• WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

Maxwell Brothers

Visit Our Mod Mod World

Our Prices Are Guaranteed to Be the Lowest in Wilmington.

Phone: 799-0990

Toys - Hobbies Crafts

School & Art Supplies

Golding's

N. 17 Shopping Center

We Want Your Business

UNIVERSITY OFFICE

WACHOVIA BANK AND TRUST CO. N.A.

CAN YOU AFFORD $39⁰⁰ per month, if so call us WE DON'T CARE HOW BAD YOUR CREDIT IS!

AMERICAN IMPORTS
Dealer for

FIAT and SUBURU
CARS FOR INTELLIGENT PEOPLE
100 USED CARS TO CHOOSE FROM 1529 South College Rd. 791-2137

DAVE GARRS
DON POWERS

Erich S.

Continued From Page 1
accounts for some of his musical interests. In her youth his mother was an accomplished oratorio singer, and his father, while not a performer, is "certainly a patron of the arts," he says. His brother, Michael, now studying at the School of Music at East Carolina University, is an accompanist, and student of the pianoforte and the harpsichord. Erich's sister, Pamela, plays the guitar, but prefers Chicago to Chopin.

On December the third, Parker will be accompanied by his brother Michael. Among the pieces on his program will be "Thus When the Sun" from Handel's oratorio Samson; "She Never Told Her Love," a song by Haydn with words from Shakespeare's Twelfth Night; two songs by Vaughan Williams; and the Epilogue scene from Britten's opera, Billy Budd. Parker's entire program is well chosen, for it displays a great variety of musical nuance.

Erich extends to everyone a warm welcome to his recital.

An Interview

Continued From Page 1

Beach left untouched, however condemning people's land and forcing them to sell it to the state is an infringement on a man's personal liberty."

It has been said that Holshouser's drug abuse bill is the "most comprehensive ever introduced by a single legislator in America." He states, "The drug pushers ... no matter the age or the circumstances ... must be cut out of our society. No policy is too tough. Lock them up and throw away the key."

Holshouser has served eight years in the N. C. House of Representatives, and has been the chairman of the Republican Party in Washington. He has served on many varied, important committees throughout his political career.

"The people of North Carolina are crying out for leadership they can trust. For leadership that will bring about responsible change. For leadership that puts the

NOTICE

Any group, club, or organization which desires to use university physical facilities for any purpose other than regularly scheduled class periods must submit a written request to the Office of Information Services, Room 119 in the Alderman Building. The request should be submitted at least three days in advance of event.

Gwen Croom
Assistant Director
Information Services

Bulletin Board

DELTA UPSILON

The brotherhood of DU have really been busy.

From the social view we have gone from a footgame against WGNI to a Godfather Party and a raid on the school cafeteria. Last week, a Founders Day party took place. It was a great blast and all who attended had a ball. On Sunday the DU's take on the Phi's in the Pi Kaps in the first IFC football game. A good game is planned.

A second rush was held on Nov. 2 and brought to 10 the number of pledges for the semester. Delta Upsilon is different in rushing as it is constantly rushing and looking for new people to help build in their ways of fraternity life. An open invitation is given to all to come by anytime and talk with us. Look us over. If you need a ride call 799-1268 and ask us. We're located at 4525 Market St. Thank you.

There will be an important meeting of all students interested in playing on the Seahawk golf team on Tuesday, Dec., 5, 1972 in H-205 at 7:30 p.m.

people first. I believe I can bring that kind of leadership to North Carolina."

(Ed. note: Now, since Holshouser beat out Democratic Skipper Bowles, he will have his chance.-RGD)

PHYSICS DEPARTMENT

Honor Student Jackson Canady presented his paper entitled "Rainfall Variations over Brunswick County" in Birmingham, Alabama last week.

Canady attended and spoke at the Seminar, sponsored by the Southeastern Association of Physics Society and the Society of Physics Students, which was held the 18th and 17th of November, 1972.

He was accompanied by Dr. Hildelisa Hernandez and Raleigh C. Nelson, both professors here, and two MAP students, Uma Shankar and John Ambrosiano.

VOLUNTEERS

Northside Neighborhood Center needs volunteers for one to one tutoring and social enrichment for children through grade 4. Contact Family Service - Travelers Aid at 763-5189.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

UNCW Pep Club? Sign up on sheet attached to the front lobby bulletin board in the Pub.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

SCNAE candy is here. Pick it up in the education office!

PLANNING TO WORK 2nd SEMESTER?

If you are, consider working a 4-day work week. Applications now being accepted for positions on Baldhead Island, opening in January, for waitresses, baggage porters, and desk clerks.

Please indicate your interest by sending a personal resume and photograph to: Earl Anderson, Manager, Bald Head Inn, P. O. Box 6, Southport, N. C. 28461.

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS COMPLETE

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH SERVICES

LIBRARY OF 20,000

TERMPAPER AND THESIS RESEARCH

Mon - Fri (202) Sat

9:30-5:30 785-4511 10-4

2430 PENNSYLVANIA Ave. NW Wash. D C

20037

Area Director Wanted
AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH CONSULTANTS

Campus Grill

Students Welcome

So. College Road

Delicious Pizza & Sandwiches

FINAL EXAM

SCHEDULE - FALL '72

9:00-11:00 1:00-3:00 7:00-9:00
Tues. 8:30 MWF 2:30 MWF Tuesday night
Dec. 12 classes classes classes

Wed. 9:30 MWF 3:30 MWF Wed. night
Dec. 13 classes classes classes

Thurs. 10:30 MWF 1:30 MWF Thurs. night
Dec. 14 classes classes classes

Fri. 11:30 MWF 2:00 T Th
Dec. 15 classes classes

Mon. 12:30 T TH 12:30 MWF Monday night
Dec. 18 classes classes classes

Tues. 10:00 T Th 11:30 Th
Dec. 19 classes classes

Wed. 8:30 T Th 3:30 T Th
Dec. 20 classes classes

ABORTION
INFORMATION

PREGNANCY TEST AVAILABLE
An Abortion can be arranged
within 24 hours
You can return home
the same day you leave.

CALL COLLECT:
215 - 735-8100

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK A Non-Profit Organization 24 HOURS

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON VARSITY BASKETBALL

Schedule 1972-73

SCHEDULE 1972 - 1973.

Date	Opponent	Site
Tuesday, December 5,	Baptist College at Charleston, Charleston, S.C.
Thursday, December 7,	Pfeiffer College, Misenheimer
Saturday, December 9,	Campbell College, Wilmington
Saturday, December 16,	Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.
Friday, December 29, and Saturday, December 30,	Belmont Abbey Tournament, Belmont
Thursday, January 4 and Friday, January 5,	UNC-W Tournament, Wilmington
Thursday, January 11,	Belmont Abbey, Belmont
Saturday, January 13,	Washington & Lee University, Washington
Monday, January 15,	Pembroke State University, Pembroke
Saturday, January 20,	N.C. Wesleyan College, Wilmington
Monday, January 22,	St. Andrews

College, Wilmington	Thursday, January 25,
Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville
Saturday, January 27,	Pfeiffer College, Wilmington
Monday, January 29,	Belmont Abbey, Wilmington
Wednesday, January 31,	High Point College, High Point
Monday, February 15,	Campbell College, Buie's Creek
Thursday, February 16,	College at Charleston, Wilmington
Saturday, February 18,	Atlantic Christian College, Wilson
Wednesday, February 14,	Pembroke State University, Wilmington
Saturday, February 17,	Methodist College, Wilmington
Wednesday, February 21,	Atlantic Christian College, Wilmington

COACH: Mel Gibson - Telephone Number 791-4330, Ext. 265, Home No. 799-2334.
Athletic Director: Bill Brooks - Telephone No. 791-4330, Ext. 266.
Sports Information Director: Jim Carr - Office Phone 791-4330, Ext. 222; Home Phone 791-8134.
TEAM NAME: Seahawks
COLORS: Green and Gold

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

this week:

Greek rush p. 6

concert Feb. 15 p. 1

Hawk roundballers 3-3 in division p. 5

Vol XV No 10

january 26, 1973

eight pages

Crisis Line needs listeners

Since its inception two years ago Jan. 29, the Drug Abuse Center's CRISIS LINE has come a long way.

Volunteer "listeners" take approximately 80 calls a month more than were taken the first year. Since January, 1971, 8,532 calls have been taken by Crisis Line staff.

Training classes will begin Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m. for a new set of volunteers. According to Mrs. Carolyn Gruelle, head of the Crisis Line service, there are more volunteers working with the facility than at any previous point, but more are always needed.

Crisis Line is a referral service, according to Mrs. Gruelle, but it is also a listening service. "We all need somebody who will listen," she said, "and sometimes it's comforting to know that there are people there who have blocked out everything else because they are interested and want to listen to you."

Since over 80 per cent of the calls received by Crisis Line come from people under 21, Mrs. Gruelle indicated a hope that college students would become interested in working with the Line, helping peers as well as younger people. It would serve to bring college and community closer together. If the upcoming training class provides enough volunteers, Crisis Line will begin work on "Women's Counseling Service," especially geared to the problems of women including abortion, adoption, the job situation, natural childbirth, and menopausal problems, "anything of particular interest to women."

Telephone services such as Crisis Line, according to Mrs. Gruelle, relate to a new environment and a new way of life. "They're not just a fad," she stated. "They're here to stay."

Race and age are not barriers for Crisis Line. Volunteers are always interested and willing to listen. "This generation is the one for righting wrongs and helping their fellow man," said Mrs. Gruelle in urging college support. "Crisis Line offers them a way to do it."

The six-week training class which begins Feb. 8 will meet at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday night at the Drug Abuse Center, 1516 Market Street. To enroll in the training class, one should contact the center and complete an application.

Concerts return to campus

by sharon wolfe

Due to the repeated protests of the UNC-W Concert Committee, a petition circulated among students, and a debt of approximately $4000; student sponsored concerts will return to the campus. "It (the Brogren Hall area) was considered a bad neighborhood, the acoustics were atrocious, and it just wasn't conducive to concerts," said Wes Knappe, head of the Concert Committee.

"I feel the return to the campus should be a definite improvement," Knappe continued, "Majorly, because the concerts are college oriented and this is really a nicer place to come to."

"The existing concert rules will stay in effect, such as no smoking or sitting in the fire aisles. Chancellor Wagoner has made it plain that if any of these rules are broken, or if any trouble is caused, the concerts will be stopped for the remainder of the year."

The upcoming concert, planned for Feb. 15, will feature Billy Preston, and as back-up group, Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show.

Billy Preston, who started in the business with Little Richard and Ray Charles became quite well-known for his part in the Beatles LET IT BE album, and his singles "Out-Space" and "That's the Way God Planned It." He is probably best remembered for his performance in the Concert for Bangla Desh.

Dr. Hook's music should prove an interesting contrast to Preston's rock and soul show according to Knappe. The Medicine Show has made a place for themselves on the charts in the last few weeks with their hit single, "Wanna See My Picture on the Cover of the Rolling Stone."

"This show really offers something for everybody," says Knappe. The Concert Committee requests everyone's cooperation in making this, and the semester's two other concerts planned a success.

Tickets will be on sale after Feb. 1 in the pub for $3.50 per student.

(Continued on P. 8)

Homecoming queen nominations open

Contestants for homecoming queen '73 may submit their names, addresses, phone numbers, and sponsors (if sponsored) to Liz Buffington, homecoming committee chairman; Ms. Betty Malik, secretary of the chemistry department; or Ms. Linda Moore, director of student activities; beginning today.

Nominations will close Feb. 2, and the winner will be selected in a campus election. The queen will be crowned during half-time at the Methodist basketball game Friday, Feb. 17.

Dr. Andrew Jackson

Psych dept.

Jackson joins staff

by beverly causey

Dr. Andrew Jackson joined the UNC-W faculty this semester as a member of the psychology department.

Native of Washington, D.C. and former resident of Arlington, Va. Dr. Jackson received his B.A. from Hampden - Sydney College, Virginia. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Florida.

Among Dr. Jackson's publications are two articles concerning the aspects of inter-personal attractions—why people like each other. He has also done extensive research on the psychological aspects of judicial decision making, and the effects of physical environment on man's behavior often referred to as environmental psychology.

"I really like it," Dr. Jackson said in reply to how he liked UNC-W. "In the short time I've been here I've found it to be very pleasant. The student body is very friendly and in general the weather is nice."

Dr. Jackson is presently teaching general psychology, social psychology, and a senior seminar in social psychology.

Brooks discusses term

by ron blanchard

(author's note: I have always had a distrust of student body presidents, since it seems to me they are always far more interested in what the office can do for them than in what they can do for the people who elected them. As a consequence of this feeling, I began the interview with SGA President Bill Brooks with a very negative feeling.)

What did you do Monday night after the Hawk-Knight basketball game? President Bill Brooks cleaned the gymnasium, which was filthy with trash tossed about by ignorant or unfeeling students.

Asked why he ran for the presidential office, Brooks replied, "Well, I have lived in Wilmington all of my life and have always felt myself to be a part of the college community." Brooks is the son of Coach Bill Brooks, UNC-W athletic director.

"Having been president of my freshman and sophomore classes, and then involved in student government my junior year, I thought I could help the students of UNC-W," Brooks said.

As the major accomplishments of his term as president, Brooks lists the student Bill of Rights adopted by the SGA presidents of the

(Continued on P. 3)

photos by alan sanders

Do you have any ideas for second semester campus improvements?

Leaders...progress

We must start thinking, start looking, start working towards finding qualified, intelligent, enthusiastic candidates for our student body officers next year. By choosing progressive, resourceful leaders, we can continue to move ahead in higher education.

Education costs

The yearly fees of $136.50 were broken down as follows:

- | | |
|--------------|---|
| $15.00..... | Registration fee (to state) |
| 13.50..... | Debt liquidation |
| 22.00..... | Intercollegiate athletics |
| 20.00..... | Student government |
| 20.00..... | Student union |
| 2.00..... | Intramural athletics |
| 18.00..... | Physical education program |
| 10.00..... | Lab operation (psych, chem, bio, any lab) |
| 16.00..... | Student health fee |

It's our ball game.

SAVE

WITH SEAHAWK CLASSIFIEDS

FREE TO STUDENTS, STAFF, & FACULTY

The Seahawk

editor.....	kathi beall
associate editor.....	ron blanchard
feature editors.....	beverly causey, sharon wolfe
sports editor.....	robert braxton
advertising director.....	barry asbury
business manager.....	rocky moore
photographers.....	alan sanders, tom smiley
adviser.....	thomas lupton

special thanks: annelle beall, mary beall, rachel conert

Kevin Piacenza-soph. Marine Bio major: I'd like to see some benches around and "more" parking spaces.

Michael Cherry-Jr. P.E. major: The social events need improvement by having more concerts and black entertainers.

Tonia Bozza-soph. Business major: There should be more parking places and the senior parking places should be better utilized.

Anthony Hill-junior Psy. major: I'd like to see more student support at sports events and more dances on campus!

Linda DeVesser-soph. Business major: The first improvement should be more CONCERTS ON CAMPUS and more basketball and tennis courts behind the dorm.

Helen Gibson-soph. Bio. major: The grounds could be improved with more flowers and trees. Also, there's a great need for more trash cans.

Jackie MacCrae-fresh. Psy. major:
We just need better planned social events with concerts on campus and black entertainers!

Pedro Montes-soph Art major: There is an absolute must for more parking places!

From the nest

EDITORIALS

Welcome to Spring, '73 edition of THE SEAHAWK. If you note a change or two, it could be because Santa Claus brought all the reporters new typewriter ribbons. We're trying to make the old 'hawk fun to publish and to read.

So if ever there are any suggestions, there's a box for notes and mail across the hall from the SEAHAWK office in the Pub, if there's no one in the office. We welcome help, suggestions, comments, and letters to the editor.

Since the Civil Aeronautics Board announced "that youth standby, youth reservation and family fares are unjustly discriminatory and that family and youth reservation fares are also unreasonable," student organizations from across the country have been organizing to express indignation at the CAB's study on domestic air passenger fares. Although the CAB has postponed cancellation of these fares pending further investigation, there is a possibility the youth air fare card holders will lose 25 to 33 percent air fare reductions.

Continental Marketing Corporation, a youth fare card sales concern, has formed the Coalition to Retain Air Discount Fares (CRADF) so that students who may be affected by cancellation of youth fares will be notified of the possibility, and so that they may have a vehicle to express their views.

A National Student Lobby Conference will be held Feb.

28 to discuss the problem. Over $300 million is spent by young people on youth fare tickets annually. Each year over one million youth fare cards are bought which provide for youth fare benefits until age 22. If the fare is abolished, privileges of the cards would be revoked.

Involved with the fight with the NSL and CRADF are the National Association of Retired Persons, National Council of Senior Citizens, and several airlines.

Students interested in speaking against the abolition of student air fare may contact CRADF at 413 East Capitol Street, SE, Washington, D.C., 20003.

What happens when the lines get crossed sometimes? The very thing that happened a week ago last night at the Education-Psychology building.

A number of people stood outside in the not-very dark waiting to hear a speaker, but alas! The building was securely locked, hatches batted, etc.

When the SEAHAWK phone rang at 8:15 or 8:30 p.m., we were a little surprised to find ourselves talking to a gentleman trying to find the security office, but, with only a little hesitation due to runner to the security office. The meeting was a bit late in starting, but start it did.

INFLATION IN REVERSE!! What a pleasant surprise it was when Director Donald Trivette of the Computer Center announced that Xerox copies at the center have gone from ten down to five cents.

M*A*S*H is coming. January 30, to be exact. Don't forget Hot Lips, Trapper John, delete above line forget Hot Lips, Trapper John, and Hawkeye, among others.

Students who did not purchase a yearly pass may pay $.50 at the door with their I.D. They are entitled to bring one guest at $.50 also. General admission to the film is $1.

Feedback!

Statement of policy for letters to the editor:

All letters to the editor will be printed in entirety, space permitting, if not considered by the editor and/or staff to be in poor taste.

In the case of a letter containing some objectionable material, but otherwise acceptable for publication, said material will be deleted upon permission of the author, and deletion will be indicated by an ellipsis (...).

Letters to the editor will be printed exactly as they are received.

When necessary, we will advise that corrections be made before publication, but the responsibility for such corrections will be that of the author.

To the editor:
Something About "Tricky Dick" Alias Mr. Nixon

WHY?

by ron blanchard

1. does everyone talk about nothing to do, yet, when a dance or concert is held, attendance is poor?
2. aren't more activities provided for on- and off-campus students?
3. do most of the people at UNC-W wish they were attending one of the big four--when a little effort could make UNC-W one of the Big Five? The students in the Big Four made those schools what they are--we can do the same.
4. do students attending the basketball games throw trash on the floor? Has the concept of ecology or the awareness of litter not reached the minds of some of us?
5. do people criticize the professors at UNC-W? The ones I have met (Drs. Collier, English; Searf, sociology; Bundy, Jackson, Slager, and Williams, psychology; and Mrs. Fitzgibbon and Welch, drama;) would be an asset to any academic community.
6. did Dr. Williams get his hair cut?
7. can't I get a date?
8. don't the students attend basketball games at UNC-W? The Seahawks have lost seven out of the last nine games by three points or less. All five games at home the Seahawks have WON. Let's get out and support the team!

Brooks discusses term

(Continued from P. 1)

16 branches of the consolidated university and the restructure of the student courts to make them more equitable and usable. (The Student Bill of Rights, which was presented recently to the consolidated university governing board, will be reviewed and discussed next week in THE SEAHAWK.)

In the remainder of his term, Brooks would like to see the student government reorganized so that representation will be according to interest rather than class rank. Thus, the residence halls, off campus students, and groups such as the English or chemistry majors will be represented.

The North Carolina Student Legislature, which will meet in March, will adopt bills to be presented and voted upon by the NC General Assembly. Brooks urged any student interested in attending the Student legislature to contact Butch Pegram.

After becoming student body president to help the students, Brooks indicated a satisfaction with his accomplishments, and projected an optimistic outlook for the future.

Who is this man? Is he for real, that is for the sake of reality? What does this seemingly, man of corruption think about? These are just a few, among many thoughts that enter my mind like eternal bombshells. Remember: This guy is the president of the United States, who I dare to scoff. A man who it seems undoubtedly has monarchical fantasies of some kind running throughout his mind.

In a recent "Rolling Stones Review," there was an article about a Mr. Whitehead, seemingly Nixon's "right-on-our-side" man, who was trying to persuade his audience to put a tighter restriction on the free voice of "TV-Networks" -- especially news media; its news reporters and commentators. When I read this bit of a "write-up," I honestly got upset, rather dismayed, to actually think that a president would as much as try to pull off such restrictions on what is supposedly a free country with "Free Rights."

I do not really know all the facts which underlie such a bold maneuver, and one can never be one-hundred percent sure about anything in the first place. One can bet his or hers "sweet bippy" that President Nixon is going to try and stop any oppositions on the way he carries out "his" Vietnam tactics. Is it not possible, that maybe, even a president could loose his cool?

Right now, Congress is threatening "Tricky Dick's" authority, by promising to rebuke any more funds for

RESEARCH MATERIALS

ALL TOPICS

Write or call for your up-to-date mail-order catalog of thousands of outstanding research papers. Enclose $1.00 for postage and handling.

WE ALSO DO
CUSTOM-MADE RESEARCH
CHAMPION RESEARCH, INC.
636 BEACON STREET,
SUITE 605
BOSTON, MASS. 02116
We need a local agent

REGAL NOTES

UNDERSTAND PLAYS, NOVELS AND POEMS
FASTER WITH OUR NOTES

We're new and we're the biggest! Thousands of topics reviewed for quicker understanding. Our subjects include not only English, but Anthropology, Art, Black Studies, Ecology, Economics, Education, History, Law, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Religion, Science, Sociology and Urban Problems. Send $2 for your catalog of topics available.

REGAL NOTES

3160 "O" Street, N.W.
Washington, D. C. 20007
Telephone: 202-333-0201

go seahawks

Spanish film set

"Aqui Espana," a Spanish film, will be presented by the Modern Language Department Monday - Wednesday, Jan. 29-31, in the Modern Language Laboratory, Kenan-109.

The film is scheduled for 8:30 through 10:30 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m., on Monday. Tuesday it will be shown at 10 a.m. only. Wednesday there are two showings, at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Interested faculty, staff and students are urged to attend.

799-2950 OLEANDER DRIVE
Cinema 1
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRE

Robert Redford
"Jeremiah Johnson"

some say he's dead... some say he never will be.

HIS MOUNTAINS.
HIS PEACE.
HIS GREAT HUNTS.
HIS YOUNG BRIDE. WITH ALL THAT, IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN DIFFERENT.

"Jeremiah Johnson"

75¢ TH 2:30

PG

OLEANDER
Cinema 2
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRE

CLOCKWORK ORANGE

HELD OVER! 3RD WEEK
SHOWS 2:00 - 4:30 - 7:00 - 9:30

1 TL 2:30

NEXT: "POSEIDON ADVENTURE" "FIDDLER ON THE ROOF"

SCORING--Seahawk forward Ricky Brock shoots toward the basket and scores as the Seahawks romped to their second victory in as many games over St. Andrews College 98-57.

Hawks blast N.C. Wesleyan

by bob braxton

The UNC-W Seahawks opened up a two-game home stand with a very impressive 87-64 District 29 basketball victory over N.C. Wesleyan in Hanover Hall Saturday night.

The win brought the Seahawks overall record to a 4 wins-8 losses standing and 2-3 in District play in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

"It felt very good to get this District victory," Seahawk head coach Mel Gibson said after the contest with the Bishops. "Our play was as sharp as it has been any time this year in spots, but we did have some ragged moments."

It was these ragged moments that kept the Hawks from building up a much bigger lead against the out-classed, but scrappy Wesleyan cagers from Rocky Mount.

UNC-W placed all of its ten players in the scoring column against the Bishops, and four members of the Hawks finished the night in double figures. Of these four, Ernie Lynn lead all scorers with 20 points, while David Prince tallied 19 and had a very good night on the boards. Other Hawks hitting for two numbers were Mike Cherry with 12 and Ricky Brock who had 10.

Bishop coach Michael Pratt said that the Seahawks looked much better than their record indicates, and that the Hawks simply whipped "us" with a much more talented squad. The score was knotted only twice during the very early moments of the game before the Hawks got rolling. It was tied at 2-2 and again at 4-4 with 16:25 remaining in the first half.

delete those last two words first half, it was at this point, the score tied at 4-4, that the Gibson men went on a rampage and outscored the Bishops 18 to zip, making the score 22-4 with 10:55 left, Ricky Brock led the way during this time with three baskets and two assists to Ernie Lynn.

Wesleyan put on a strong press the rest of the first half and managed to get back as close as 12 before halftime, with the locals ahead 37-25. In the early minutes of the second half with Prince and Cherry taking charge, the Hawks moved out again taking a 25 point lead at 53-28.

The Hawks kept at least a 16 or more point lead until there were eight minutes left in the second half when Wesleyan once again pulled back to within 12 points at 67-55, but with accurate shooting and a very strong defense, the Seahawks once again dominated play and roared to victory.

UNC-W loses first match

by bob braxton

UNC-W Seahawk grapplers fought a very hard contest with the Citadel but was little match for the Cadets' heavier weights as the Hawks lost their first wrestling match 33-15 in Hanover Hall Saturday afternoon.

This was the Hawks' first match of the season, but it did not count in the District 29 play. UNC-W has nine matches left on its schedule, much of these against highly talented competition, before they enter the big District tournament.

Seahawk wrestling coach Charles Sproles said that he was very pleased with the performance of the boys that wrestled in Saturday's match although the Hawks didn't win.

Coach Sproles pointed out that the Hawk grapplers had had a very long lay-off over the Christmas vacation, and this hurt us a great deal because many of our men were not in the best shape for this match, but Sproles feels confident that his boys will come around.

Of the wrestling matches on Saturday, the most exciting was when Ed Weddington of the Hawks pinned his man with 1:15 gone in the second period. Weddington completely dominated the entire match and was never in much trouble.

Other Hawks gaining victories were Chris Wilson at 134, Ted Webb at 142, and David Hughes at 150. All of these matches were won by decisions.

The following is a list of all matches and who won, 118-Mike Casey(Cit) won by forfeit, 126-Al Spalviero(Cit) Decisioned Bruce Hickman, 13-7, 134-Chris Wilson decisioned Eddie Cole(Cit), 13-1, 142-Ted Webb decisioned Robert Armstrong (Cit), 9-6, 150-David Hughes decisioned Gary Byrd (Cit), 10-5, 158-Ed Weddington pinned Matt Amundson (Cit), Time; 3:15, 167-Jack Moore pinned Randy Sullivan(Cit), Time; Randy Sullivan(Cit), 2:26, 177-Marshall Currence(Cit) pinned Steve Griffin, 3:26, 190-Sam Clark(Cit) pinned Pat Canady, 3:24, Uni-Rod Fry(Cit) pinned Melvin Webb, 3:50.

FUJI
GITANE

Quick inexpensive repairs on all bikes

NISHIKI
BOB JACKSON

large selection of accessories and parts

THE BICYCLE SHOP

4403 Wrightsville Ave.

(next to the Fourth Corner)

Seahawks crush Knights

by bob braxton

In the last four years, the University of North Carolina at Wilmington's basketball team hasn't outclassed and demolished many of their opponents.

But the Seahawks did just that in romping past St. Andrews College by 98-57 in NAIA District 29 action at Hanover Hall Monday night.

The Seahawks were just simply devastating as they dominated every aspect of the game mounting a lead by as much as 45 during parts of the game. It was that kind of night for the Seahawks who have won 4 out of their last six. UNC-W's overall record now stands at 5 wins and 9 losses while they are 3-3 in District play.

UNC-W coach Mel Gibson was very pleased with the play of his Hawks and feels that the experience gained by his bench through this game will be very beneficial to the Seahawks in future contests. "I thought we played very well, especially on defense," Gibson said after the game. "We did things tonight (Monday) defensively that we just haven't been doing. And our turnovers were not as bad."

The Seahawks never trailed in the contest as they scored the first six points in the game. The next 5 points were scored by the Knights, making it 6-5 with 14:55 remaining. But it was at this point that Gibson's team ran away from St. Andrews.

UNC-W led 49-28 at the intermission and the reserves played as much in the first half as the starters. All 10 Seahawks played in the initial period.

The second half was much like the first with the Hawks continuing to pull away from St. Andrews. The bench was once again cleared, and UNC-W only missed the century mark by the two.

The Seahawks managed to place seven men in the double figures—including all five starters. Mike Cherry paced the Hawks with 17 points while excelling at everything he did in the game.

Brent Belch enjoyed his finest shooting night of the year, hitting on 7 of 8 from the field and tallying 16 points. Ricky Brock, a newcomer to the starting lineup, also had 16. David Prince got 10 points and had his usual good night on the boards, and freshman canter Ernie Lyn chipped in with 10.

Other players besides starters hitting two figures were Bobby O'Donnel who scored 11 points and added four assist while super-mystery man Greg Kemp got 10 and brought down eight rebounds.

The next home game for the Seahawks is against Pfeiffer College Saturday night, and then on Monday night, UNC-W plays host to Belmont.

UNC-W (98)
Cherry	17	1-2	1	10
Belch	7	2-2	10	16
Lynn	5	0-0	12	10
Prince	6	0-0	12	16
Brock	6	0-0	10	16
Kemp	5	0-0	2	10
Alessi	1	0-0	4	2
O'Donnel	4	0-0	11	11
Hill	2	0-0	3-5	4
Goodson	0	0-0	0	0
TOTALS	43	12-16	98
ST. ANDREWS (57)
Taylor	8	1	1	10
Andrews	4	2-3	4	4
Daniel	2	0-0	4	4
Haddix	2	4-4	10	10
Bonds	2	6-9	20	20
Hicks	0	2-2	1	6
Johnson	3	0-2	0	0
Rogers	0	0-0	0	0
Harvey	0	0-0	0	0
Crowell	1	0-0	0	2
TOTALS	21	15-22	57

SHUT YOUR EYES AND JUMP--That seems to be what Seahawk Brent Belch is about to do as he stops quickly in a game with Washington Lee. The Seahawks won the game 58-56 in a close one.

NAIA District 29 basketball standings

NAIA District 29 standings (thorough Jan. 20):

	District		All Games
	W	L	W	L
Campbell	4	0	7	7
Lynchburg	3	0	8	3
Norfolk State	4	1	10	5
Christopher Newport	4	1	8	4
Fayetteville State	6	2	13	7
Pembroke State	3	1	8	5
Methodist	4	2	6	3
Elizabeth City State	4	4	7	9
Virginia State	3	3	8	5
Virginia Union	3	3	7	5
UNC-Wilmington	2	3	4	9
Hampton Institute	3	5	7	8
Atlantic Christian	1	2	1	10
St. Andrews	1	3	2	10
Virginia Wesleyan	1	5	1	11
Shaw	1	6	3	14
N. C. Wesleyan	1	6	2	9

Varsity wrestling schedule

DATE	SCHOOL	PLACE	TIME
to be rescheduled	Pembroke State U.	UNC-W
Jan. 27	Western Carolina U.	Cullowhee	2 p.m.
Feb. 3	Appalachian State U.	UNC-W	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 16	East Carolina U.	Greenville	tba
Feb. 22	Pfeiffer College	Misenheimer	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 23	Eaton College	Eaton	5 p.m.
Feb. 28	NAIA District Tournament	Pembroke	tba

AQUARIUS.
JAN. 20-FEB. 18.

If you're an Aquarian, you've probably already found Schlitz Malt Liquor.

Aquarius, you're anything but traditional. You're often a wild dreamer, and always an independent thinker. That's why you get along so well with Schlitz Malt Liquor. Taurus the Bull. Schlitz Malt Liquor is the unique drink that stands apart with a bold taste all its own. And that's what you respect.

You have unending curiosity and a spirited drive. In fact, your forthrightness would be a problem if it weren't combined with a profound respect for truth and harmony. You know you can be lost for days in your idealistic dreams of the future. And when you join the earth-bound, you continue to seek originality and surprise. That includes Schlitz Malt Liquor. Taurus the Bull.

Nobody makes malt liquor like Schlitz. Nobody.

Fraternities born with country

Rush in progress

by rocky moore

Five months after the Declaration of Independence was signed, five students at the college of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Virginia met on December 5, 1776 to found Phi Beta Kappa.

This early Greek letter society traces its origins back to the flat hat club which existed at William and Mary since 1750. From the first, Phi Beta Kappa had many of the hallmarks of most social fraternities as they are known today. Friendship, comradeship, and high ideals were the common bonds which united these college men.

Twenty-six fraternities had been established by 1861, when the civil war interrupted growth and expansion. It was not unusual for whole chapters of southern fraternities to enlist as a body to defend the cause of the confederacy.

After 1900, the fraternity movement continued to grow, both through chapter expansion and the founding of several new fraternities. Tau Kappa Epsilon, founded at Illinois Wesleyan in 1899 did not found a second chapter until 1909, but grew rapidly thereafter. Since World War II, Tau Kappa Epsilon has added well over 150 chapters making it the largest fraternity, in terms of chapters (245) in 1968.

Pi Kappa Phi was founded December 10, 1908 at the College of Charleston by Simon Fogarty, Alexander Kroag, and L. Harry Misson. Chapters were soon founded elsewhere in South Carolina, later spreading throughout the South to the West Coast. Pi Kappas take pride in their traditions as gentlemen. Former Congressman Nick Galifianakis was a member of Pi Kappa Phi.

In order of founding, Delta Upsilon is the sixth oldest Greek letter college fraternity. It was one of the first of the early fraternities to achieve significant size, spreading across the United States and Canada to become an international fraternity. Delta Upsilon was the only fraternity which grew out of a protest against the early weaknesses of the sub-rosa societies.

DU's unique position as the first fraternity to make an open declaration of principles and the first to declare selection only on merit, provided a natural source of strength. It is not surprising to find that Delta Upsilon played a leading role in the conception and formation of the National Interfraternity Conference (NIC), the coordinative and advisory body which promotes cooperation and unites all fraternities.

Charles Evans Hughes, who was later to become one of the greatest chief justices and Secretaries of State to have served the US, entered Colgate University in 1867. He was attracted to one of the Greek letter fraternities by the good fellowship of the brothers and academic standing of the Madison Chapter.

His father, a Baptist Minister, permitted Charles to join, but cited three fears of college societies: 1) They cultivate "a party spirit which leads to envy and jealousy," 2) they consume time which is needed for personal study and meditation, and 3) they might complicate the "maintaining of a strictly spiritual life."

However, within a few weeks young Hughes joined the fraternity, along with fifteen or twenty of his friends. Charles Evans Hughes was an excellent student and ultimately a highly successful statesman. Charles was a lifetime member of his fraternity and spoke well of it wherever he went.

It is men like Charles Evans Hughes who continue the Fraternity Movement to this day. During this week Tau Kappa Epsilon, Pi Kappa Phi, and Delta Upsilon are holding their rushes. Each fraternity has a unique program and have set high standards for their pledges at UNC-W.

Any student wishing to pledge these fraternities is invited to contact the Rush Chairman of the respective fraternities. The Rush Chairman for Tau Kappa Epsilon is Marvin Ingram. The Rush Chairman for Delta Upsilon is Chuck Livingston. The Rush Chairman for Pi Kappa Phi is Cyrus Foscue.

The following events are planned by the three fraternities:

Tau Kappa Epsilon, Friday, January 26 an "around the Bar" is planned, Saturday, January 27 TKE will have a band party.

For Delta Upsilon, Friday, January 26 is stag night (No women are allowed), Saturday January 27 an oyster roast is planned with refreshments. The party will last until 1:00 a.m. Brothers encourage rushees to bring a date.

Pi Kappa Phi, Saturday, a bar party is planned with refreshments. Dates welcome.

Southeastern Radio Puts The Answer in the Palm of Your Hand!

Texas Instruments' Amazing POCKET ELECTRONIC CALCULATOR

Adds, Subtracts, Multiplies, Divides... Instantly!

NEW LOW PRICE

$99⁹⁵

Solves Every Problem in Your Daily Arithmetic... Accurately, Easily!

Portable or plug-in with battery recharger and carry-out case that fits in pocket or purse. Bright 8-digit readout... Full floating decimal. Smaller than a note pad... and not much heavier.

WHO IS TEXAS INSTRUMENT? They designed and developed the first transistor radio... now the world's largest manufacturer of solid state devices. With over 30 years in electronics, again Southeastern has selected the best in leading name brands.

SOUTHEASTERN RADIO ELECTRONICS

1002 S. COLLEGE RD.
Save Time — Quick Storeside Parking

Phone 791-7365

• Office Workers

• Businessmen

• Students

• Shoppers

Why I pledged...

Ren Holt (TKE) - Joining helped me mature considerably. People need to meet people who want something in life. There are people in the world that don't give a damn. Fraternity brothers care about each other. All you have to do is ask for help.

Chuck Livingston (DU) - Mostly I joined this fraternity for identity. I transferred from a junior college at Louisiana. I came to DU because you have a chance to help build. DU has room expansion. Its ideals are good. The fraternity is set up to where pledges are more involved. Pledges have a voice in fraternity activities. I suggest everyone should try a fraternity. You have to get into it to appreciate it.

Janet Dobo (Little Sister for DU) - I joined DU because this fraternity seems to have more of a true fraternal brotherhood feeling. DU is truly a gentlemen's fraternity. However, I believe there is true brotherhood in all of the fraternities. I do encourage other people to join any of the three fraternities around school.

Raleigh Todd (Alpha Phi Omega) - I felt while I was at UNC-W that there would be more to the University.

APO offers a good mixture between too much play or too much work. Social fraternities offer a party life as opposed to strict study. I was looking for a medium between the two.

Frank Moore (Pi Kappa Phi) - I liked the idea of improving my social life. It helps to improve your college standing. However, it is not just studying. Brotherhood is a good thing. You learn about different ways of life from different people in the fraternity. I think everyone should at least consider joining a fraternity and attend a rush.

Bobbie Brammer (Little Sister for Pi Kappa Phi) - When you are a little sister, it gives you a chance to work with and to help the brothers. Like during Christmas time, we had parties for underprivileged children. Also the little sisters decorated for the Rose Ball and acted as hostesses for parents and alumni. We definitely learned how to deal with people. We have been chauffeurs, butlers, chefs, nurses, psychiatrists, friends, and janitors to the Pi Kappa Phi brotherhood. I believe fraternities are not for everybody, since there is much individualism on college campuses these days. Anyone who becomes a brother benefits.

LOST and FOUND

Dom:

Men's Glasses
Watches
Keys
Rings

Pub:

Light weight men's jacket
Assorted notebooks
Fraternity pin
Car keys
A sandal
Sweater
Leads pin
Gloves

Cashier:

Watches
High school rings
Sweater

album

J. Geils 'Live'

review

by barry asbury

If you dig on old Rock 'n Roll, the J. Geils Band is the band of the decade. Nobody lays it down the way J. Geils Band does.

I recently saw them in concert at East Carolina University. Their show was a knock out. You could tell that Peter Wolf, the lead singer; M. Dick, harmonica; as well as the rest were feeling every note they were putting out.

You could feel it too... right from when Peter Wolf said, "Are you ready for some Rock 'n Roll? Let's hear it for the J. Geils Band!" After that, it's one continual climax.

J. Geils Band's LIVE album is a recording of their present touring concert. The album was recorded live in Detroit, Mich., but it's exactly the same concert format as was played at ECU and SURPRISE! this album sounds as good as hearing them live.

You might say that Rock 'n Roll is easy and anybody can count one, two, three, four. Not so, kiddies. It takes a band with the formula that the J. Geils Band has. Dig J. Geils, groove on Rock 'n Roll, check out the Band's sound (or pick out your own reason), but J. Geils Band LIVE is one album you shouldn't miss.

"First I Look at the Purse," the first cut on the album, was written partly by Smokey Robinson of the old Miracles--now on his own. This cut is, along with "Home-work," and "Looking for a Love," one of the better ones on the album.

Magic Dick, on amplified harmonica, takes place of a horn section in the group. He plays an important part in the group as well as on the album and takes lead part or lead run in "Whammer Jammer" and "Serves You Right To Suffer."

J. Geils takes a gallant but unimpressive ride on electric guitar in "Serves You Right To Suffer," which takes exception to Rock 'n Roll with 9:32 of hard, basic blues.

Overall, though, J. Geils and his band lay out the Rock 'n Roll and you eat it up. They'll turn on and set your feet (if not your whole body) to moving. LIVE is the ultimate trip in Rock 'n Roll.

MUSIC

by barry asbury

(Editor's note: This column will be written regularly by Barry Asbury, who is popular music critic for THE SEAHAWK, and also its advertising director. In addition to his position with the newspaper, Asbury serves as junior class president and chairman of the dance committee.)

Contemporastalgia has hit Wilmington and the UNC-W campus. WHSL is its name and Entertaining is its game.

That's why it calls itself The Entertainer. You can find it twenty four hours a day at 1490 kilohertz on the AM radio dial. WHSL combines contemporary "easy listening" such as James Taylor, Carole King, Cat Stevens, Hurricane Smith, and Bread with nostalgic music of bygone days commonly known as "OLDIES". Some of these goodies include Little Anthony and the Imperials, Joey Dee and the Starlighters, The Platters, The Dovells, and the Coasters.

During a conversation with Program Director Bill Mack, THE SEAHAWK learned that complete research on musical preferences of people eighteen through thirty-one in the Wilmington area revealed that a good Easy Listening-Oldies format was the number-one preference and CONTEMPORASTALGIA is what evolved.

Some of the highlights of the week are Bill Mack's Saturday morning hall of fame where songs are played that other stations can't find anymore, and "Open Mike," heard on the Bill Johnson Show Monday through Friday. The main thing though is that WHSL is a twenty-four hour station. Someone finally woke up to the fact that there was a wasted market in Wilmington.

There will be more on WHSL along with the other stations in later issues. For right now, check out CONTEMPORASTALGIA on the Entertainer.

Bryan receives savings bond

Freshman Dale Bryan recently received a $50 savings bond as highest scoring participant in Eastern North Carolina on the American Chemical Society's high school exam last spring.

Bryan is currently researching the oxidation of enamines in conjunction with the Multiple Abilities Program. Dr. Ned Martin, associate professor of chemistry, is advising him in his independent project.

NEW AT THE BOOK STORE !!

COMPLETE LINE OF GREETING CARDS

BY

AMERICAN

COME SEE THE VALENTINES

Feb. 2 deadline for Glamour girls

Deadline for applications to the GLAMOUR MAGAZINE Top Ten College Girls Contest is Feb. 2.

The contest, sponsored on campus by the Panhellenic Council, will select the ten most outstanding women on college campuses across the country, based on campus activity and leadership.

Applications, which are available from a display on the bulletin board in the entrance of the student services building, should include the applicant's name, age, address, and phone number; along with a list of her major activities; a short essay describing the area of involvement, including the arts, social services, field work programs, politics, the sciences, and communications; and two recent photographs.

Two judges not affiliated with the Panhellenic group will choose two girls from the field of entries whose names will be sent to GLAMOUR.

Ten national winners will appear in the August college issue of the magazine. The ten top girls will receive their choice of an all expense-paid trip to Europe or an equivalent cash prize of $1,000.

Applications should be turned in to the Panhellenic mailbox in the Hinton James (student services) building.

TKEs rush

Tau Kappa Epsilon will conduct their Rush campaign through Feb. 5, according to chapter historian Jim Foster.

Any male student wanting to join the TKEs may come by the frat house, 4505-7 Wrightsville Avenue (at corner of Wrightsville Ave. and South College Road), meet the brotherhood and learn about the fraternity itself.

Tonight there will be an "Around the Bar" party, and Saturday, Jan. 27, there will be a band party with free beer for everyone.

FREE

CLASSIFIEDS

PUT A LITTLE YA-HOO IN YOUR LIFE.

MOUNTAIN DEW

Furniture CITY

North 17 Shopping Center

Deadline set for registration

Residents of New Hanover County/ who wish to vote in the upcoming consolidation election but who are not registered to vote should register with the New Hanover County Board of Elections by Jan. 29.

The Board of Elections office is located in the County Commission Building at the corner of Market and Third streets in Wilmington.

Aspects of the proposed city-county consolidation of governments will be reviewed by the Seahawk prior to the late-February vote.

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Frank

Concerts return

(Continued from P. 1)

Knappe provided THE SEAHAWK with a list of "concert rules" drawn up by Dr. William Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

"1. It should be understood that the second semester use of Hanover Hall for concerts is on a trial basis.

"2. No blanket concerts will be permitted.

"3. Students must sit on chairs on the main floor or on the bleachers downstairs and upstairs.

"4. Only students of high school age will be admitted for such concerts. Proof of age will be required by driver's license or school ID. (This limits concert attendance to those 15 years of age and older.)

"5. APO, members of the Concert Committee, or other service organizations will be used to supervise the doors.

"6. The Concert Committee of SGA will be responsible for making all necessary arrangements relative to security and maintenance of Hanover Hall.

"7. The use of tobacco (chewing and/or smoking), alcohol, or drugs will be prohibited and strictly enforced. The Concert Committee by itself or with the aid of the campus security force or a service organization shall be responsible for the rigid enforcement of this provision.

"8. The Concert Committee, through THE SEAHAWK or other methods of publicity, must make an effort to inform UNC-W students of the aforementioned provisions."

Juniors may qualify for intern program

Students with North Carolina residency who will have achieved at least three years of college by May 30 are eligible for the state government summer intern program this year.

The program, begun in 1962, allows 25 undergraduates to work for eleven weeks in state agencies with top agency personnel. The program offers "an unusual blend of working, learning, theory, and practice." In addition, there is a chance to learn while earning $100 per week, and an opportunity "to supplement their work in the classroom with experience in the 'real world.'"

Students interested in applying should complete an application for employment of the state personnel department. These are available in the placement office, the local office of the employment security commission, and the SEAHAWK office.

They should send the applications along with a copy of the college transcript, and a letter stating career plans, honors received, extracurricular activities, and reasons for wishing to participate in the summer intern program.

Interns are not only students definitely headed for public service careers. Students interested in business, engineering, forestry, teaching, and medicine will be appointed as well as those interested in government administration, politics, and law.

Applications and supporting materials must be received by the Institute of Government, Chapel Hill, by Feb. 1. Applicants will be notified of acceptance or rejection by March 30.

Ski trip slated

Students interested in taking a group ski trip to Mt. Sunapee, N.H. during spring vacation should contact Dr. Ned Martin (Chemistry 108).

A "successful" trip was made to Mt. Sunapee during the past semester break. It was sponsored by the combined outing clubs of Duke University, UNC-CH, and UNC-G.

Designed to maximize fun and minimize expense, the previous trip involved a cost of approximately $100 per person for a week's lodging, meals, ski rentals, lessons and lift tickets.

Sleeping dormitory style, getting group rates at the slopes, and cooking family style with each person helping out in the kitchen helped hold costs down. Despite the economy, meals were substantial and "quite good," according to one participant. "Especially the night that fresh Maine lobster, steamed and fried clams (specialties of New England) constituted the menu."

Rev. Milton Boone

Ministry names campus pastor

The Christian Campus Ministry of UNC-W recently named Rev. Milton Boone of Wrightsville Beach as campus minister.

The appointment is, for the time being, part-time, with Rev. Boone serving the campus 15 hours each week. The Ministry hopes, however, that interest will grow on campus and within the community at large.

Boone is a '52 graduate of Clogate - Rochester Divinity School, and he received additional training in the school of Pastoral Care, NC Baptist Hospital, Winston - Salem. Most recently, Boone served as pastor of Masonboro Baptist Church in Wilmington.

CLASSIFIED

HANDWOVEN - anything! guitar straps, cigarette cases, place mats, bookmarkers, etc. Anything you can think of for yourself, for Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

GUITAR lessons. Beginners, intermediates, advanced students. Nine years' experience. Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

Seahawk classified ads

FREE
to students,
faculty & staff

Job interviews set

Seniors interested in participating in the interview program should go by the Placement Office in Alderman Administration Building, Room 113, to register and set up interview appointments.

For seniors interested in the Teacher Placement Program, please get in touch with the Education Department in King Hall (Education-Psychology Building).

Seniors interested in employment after graduation should be aware of the interview schedule released by the Placement office. There are also placement annuals available to seniors to facilitate making resumes and writing job inquiry letters.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Joyce Jackson, secretary to the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs.

The U.S. Marine Corps interviewed interested seniors last week. If anyone did not have the opportunity to talk with the representatives, he may do so now by contacting the corps Officer Selection Office, 300 Fayetteville St., P.O. Box 1373, Raleigh, 27602. He may also reach a representative by calling (919) 755-4174 collect.

Placement Interview Schedule

Date	Name of Firm	Interested in Interviewing
Jan. 31	Branch Banking & Trust Co.	All Majors
Feb. 13	Waccamaw Bank	Business Majors
Feb. 15	U. S. Civil Service	All Majors (Set up in Pub)
Feb. 15	Burlington Industries	Management, Econ., Bus., Acctg.
Feb. 26	U. S. Navy	All Majors (Set up in Pub)
Feb. 28	Internal Revenue Service	Prefer Bus. and Acctg.
Mar. 1	N. C. National Bank	All Majors
Mar. 7	Burroughs Wellcome (Drug Co.)	All Majors
Mar. 15	N. C. State Personnel Dept.	All Majors
Mar. 21	R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.	All Majors (prefer Bus.)
Mar. 22	Wachovia Bank & Trust Co.	All Majors
Apr. 11	General Electric Co.	Chem., Math, Physics
Apr. 30	Ross Stores	All Majors

Yes
Wachovia

THE REC HALL
a good place
to meet your friends

LOU'S LOUNGE
SERVICE AND ATMOSPHERE...
AT ITS BEST

Music Beer

LISTEN TO THE SEAHAWKS
ON WMFD-FM

★

38 Lumina Ave.
Wrightsville Beach

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

Vol XV No 11

february 2, 1973

eight pages

Malloy seeks new dorm head

Due to an opening caused by the resignation of Joe Morgan, head resident at the dormitory, Dr. William Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, is searching the student ranks for a mature young married couple to serve in head resident capacity.

Malloy stated in a meeting with dorm students Tuesday that the resident's job is a difficult but rewarding one. The resident should relate well to the students, and would serve as a member of the University staff, as well as being a state employee. He encouraged dorm students to help locate qualified persons.

Concerning his resignation, Morgan stated, "At this point of time and at my age, the job just seemed too confining. I just didn't have the freedom I would like to have had."

As head resident, Morgan, a December UNC-W graduate, was responsible for maintenance of the dorm and concordance with any school or state regulations. The resident director also becomes involved in about 350 lives (this semester) --personal, school and family problems-- whatever comes up.

"The job was enjoyable, but it seemed that I was just not quite prepared enough to tackle such an important job which has so many responsibilities."

"I have spent nearly five years at UNC-W, and I've really enjoyed it. I regret that I couldn't have done a better job, but it just wasn't the right job for me."

Currently, the dorm is being covered by a combined effort of community adults from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; resident advisers (As) from 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; and security personnel from 10 p.m. until 7 a.m.

Persons who think they might qualify as a resident director are encouraged to speak to Dr. Malloy immediately.

Deadline March 1

for natural, econ resource interns

The State Department of Natural and Economic Resources is accepting applications for its summer intern program for college students.

Twenty-one internships at $360 per month for three months are being offered by the Department.

Students will be asked to prepare reports on subjects ranging from development of interstate short tours to the effluent charge alternative as a means of water quality control.

Other subjects are local planning; analysis of industrial market; public participation in state water plan preparation; water inventory of wet industries; recreation consultant; and field research on the experimental method of evaluating aquatic food plants in salt marsh impoundments.

Applicants need to have completed two years of college or technical training prior to beginning internship.

Application blanks can be obtained from the personnel office of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources in Raleigh. Application deadline is March 1.

Dinner theater to highlight week of homecoming

Dinner theater will highlight Friday night activities for Homecoming on Feb. 16 at 6 p.m. In the UNC-W cafeteria.

The Alpha-Omega Players from the Repertory Theatre of America, Dallas, Tex., will present Mark Twain's "The Diary of Adam and Eve."

Music by the composers of "Fiddler on the Roof," humor and nostalgia combine to provide a new perspective on the lives of the first man and woman. This story of the beginnings of the age-old struggle between man and woman is as relevant today as it was in the Garden of Eden.

Tickets will be sold beginning Monday (Feb. 5) to students and Wednesday to the public. Prices will be $1 for students on the meal plan, $1.50 for other students with ID (they are allowed one guest for the same price), and $2.50 general admission.

Since a limited number of tickets will be available, interested persons are urged to contact Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, in the Pub (Ext. 246) as soon as possible.

The cafeteria style meal will be served at 6 p.m., with the theater beginning at 7. Meal plan students who do not wish to see the play will be asked to dine between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Feb. 16.

Starring in "Adam and Eve" are talented young actors Ann Hooker, David Hooker, Karl Heist, and Jern Graves. The A. O. Players have travelled more than 725,000 miles in the last five years, performing in 45 states and Canada, making them the most active touring theater group in the country.

Wes Knappe, chairman of the concert committee, promises first class entertainment for Thursday, Feb. 15, of Homecoming week. Headliner for the show is Billy Preston, with Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show backing up, Billy Preston, shown above, does his thing.

Concerts produce constant money hassle

by ron blanchard

Author's note: In an interview, Student Body President, Bill Brooks stated that the concert committee made money, so there was no need to allocate more money from the SGA budget. Made money? What about the $68 we pay in activity fees? Wasn't that enough without making a profit on the tickets? Wes Knappe, head of the Concert Committee provided some answers.

Why does it cost so much for students to attend concerts which are paid for out of their student fees? Wes stated that he was not allocated enough money and therefore, to have big name bands, he had to make money on ticket sales.

In the past, he has charged from 50¢ to $1.00 more to non-students. He feels that raising prices for non-students and lowering student prices might hurt non-student attendance while not having an increase in student attendance.

"But look what you get for $3.50," Knappe stated. "Billy Preston has worked with the Beatles and the Rolling Stones. The present concert committee has come up with outstanding opening acts while, in the past, students paid less but only saw one act. With an auditorium that holds only 2500 and acts costing 3 and 4 thousand we have to charge more to have money for other concerts."

Wes said that Ed Boylan (past student body president) and Bill Brooks "have always maintained that the concerts should show a profit."

"If the students would be satisfied with less well-known groups the admission would be less, but the bigger names cost more money," Knappe states.

Knappe and his committee have worked hard to bring (cont. on p. 6)

Decide where

Student fees

yours go

Students interested in the allocation of student fees may now offer suggestions as to how this money is handled. Students pay $10 per semester in activity fees which are turned over to Student Government for handling.

Could the allotment of student funds be more efficiently or more representatively handled by a separate organization of student representatives?

Students with ideas or comments about the allocation of funds should present their thoughts Monday, Feb. 5 at 4 p.m. in Ms. Linda Moore's office in the pub. This is an opportunity to have a voice in the decisions concerning where our money goes.

Winning formula

Eats, comedy

What's dinner theater?

As part of Homecoming Activities, a dinner performance by the Alpha-Omega Players will delight approximately 225 people with the presentation of Mark Twain's "The Story of Adam and Eve."

The combination of eating and entertainment is new to the UNC-W campus, but it is not, in any sense, a new concept. Zeus and company would eat ambrosia and drink wine while watching the antics of all the foolish mortals bungling through life below Olympus.

The Romans watched contests of strength or whatever while consuming vast meals. And ten to one old Henry VIII had singing and dancing troupes filled with lovely ladies to entertain him when he dined.

Dinner theater is a far cry from a soda and some popcorn while viewing the latest flick.

Real food, baked ham or braised beef, with all the trimmings, will nourish those who later sit back to enjoy the involvement and excitement of a "live" theater performance.

Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, was instrumental in adding this sparkling dimension to Homecoming action. The Homecoming Committee of the Student Senate is sponsoring the theater. They, and Ms. Moore, should be congratulated on the efforts to make Homecoming '73 unique.

The prices are more than reasonable. There's nothing left but for us to call Ms. Moore (Ext. 246) to make reservations or pick up tickets immediately in her office in the pub.

Then, on Friday, Feb. 16, sit back, eat, and enjoy.

The Seahawk

published each Friday by the students of the university of north carolina at wilmington. deadline for articles and announcements is 5 p.m. on the Monday before Friday publication.

editor.....kathi beal
associate editor.....ron blanchard feature editors.....beverly causey, sharon woffe
.....robert braxton sports editor.....darryl asbury advertising director.....barry moore business manager.....robert moore photographers.....stan sanders,
tom smiley
adviser.....thomas lupton

To the Editor:

Last night I saw a superb performance by a fine basketball team and its equally fine coach. The UNC-W Seahawks put on an exciting show in their victory over Belmont Abbey. The victory was even sweeter in the Belmont Abbey had twice defeated the 'Hawks previously this season. Who is to say how such a comeback victory is measured except that it took a disciplined, talented, well-coached team to meet the challenge.

I regret that there were not more supporters there to catch the enthusiasm of the game. It is indeed hard to understand why the crowd was not larger to witness such a performance. This is OUR team. The team and its coach are entitled to the support of the entire University community. Aside from that, they are an exciting team and are truly deserving of that support.

Monday night was a great basketball night. The excitement was there. The excellent performance was there. The enthusiasm of the small crowd present was there. The win was there. The only thing missing was the visible support of the student body which the team and the coach so richly deserve.

Fletcher R. Norris

Associate Professor, Mathematics.

To the Editor:

As a concerned student, I wish to express my opinion and certainly the opinions of others on the issue of traffic violations. The set fine for any traffic violation is five dollars. This is the most absurd and ridiculous amount I ever heard of. The five dollars for a parking ticket (illegal parking) is five times more than the city charges (the university is in the city). After talking to several individuals who refused to pay the fine, I came to the conclusion that the majority of the people refuse to pay the first time, but are cornered the second time and pay the undodly amount of five dollars. All is not criticism for I offer a simple solution, reduce the fine to a dollar or a dollar and a half or any reasonable amount. This would cause the ticket to be paid, for most students would not mind a dollar. Secondly, the University would most likely collect more than they are now. It would make a lot of people less angry and things would just be damn simpler.

Cinco

(name withheld at student's request)

So if ever there are any suggestions, there's a box for notes and mail across the hall from the SEAHAWK office in the Pub. If there's no one in the office, we welcome help, suggestions, comments, and letters to the editor.

WHY?

by ron blanchard

1. Can't we have a concert we can afford to attend?
2. Don't the students obey the rules so we can have blanket concerts again?
3. Do the students spit chewing tobacco on the floor of the auditorium during movies?
4. Don't the people at UNC-W take advantage of the FREE want ads in the SEAHAWK?
5. Does the Concert Committee have to make a profit on the students?
6. Doesn't UNC-W care?
7. Did the Student Legislature give $339.00 to a select group to attend the N.C. Student Legislature convention?

From the nest

All club presidents! Be sure and notify Fledgling Editor Jack Paul of the place and time of your next meeting so he can arrange for a photographer to take year-book pictures.

N. C. Health Manpower Development Program is working to increase the number of Blacks, Indians, and disadvantaged whites who enter professional health training.

Directed by Mrs. Eva Clayton, the program also tries to find jobs in health in the state.

Information on health training opportunities at UNC and elsewhere in the state, and info on admission requirements, application procedures, training costs, scholarships, and job opportunities is available to both students and counselors from the program.

Interested persons may contact Director Clayton at the Health Manpower Development Program, Old Nurses Dorm, UNC-CH, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Raleigh Todd, the same man who brought you M*A*S*H, announces the presentation of THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN, Feb. 6, 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

Admission is by season ticket (you can still get a season ticket for the 10 movies left for $1. Can't beat 10 cents a show!). At the door, students with ID pay 50 cents and general admission is $1. The Fine Arts Committee is bringing more good flicks to the campus soon.

Congratulations are in order for the Allan Welch. They have a son, Allan Neil, born Dec. 28, 1972. Mrs. Welch teaches in the Drama and Speech Department.

Ever wanted to travel around Europe cheaply? "Euro-Bike wants to turn you on to Europe."

With Euro-Bike, you can select a bike from over 60 models of motorcycles and bicycles. It will be waiting, complete with registration, insurance and accessories, ready to go when you arrive at Schiphol Amsterdam International Airport.

Euro-Bike offers motorcycles in the super bike, mid-range, and economy categories. Choice also includes Mopeds and bicycles.

For more information, write Euro - Bike, 810 Eighteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20006.

United Transportation Union members or offspring might be eligible for a UTU scholarship.

UTU members aged 25 or under, or children or grandchildren of UTU members interested in the scholarships may get more information by coming by the SEAHAWK office.

If you've never had the good fortune to attend a dinner theater performance, you'll have no excuse to miss the presentation of "The Story of Adam and Eve," Friday, Feb. 16, with mealtime at 6 p.m., and the performance beginning at 7 p.m.

The Alpha Omega Players are a young, vital, talented group, and their presentation promises to be delightful. Make reservations soon with Ms. Linda Moore in the Pub (Ext. 246).

Bulletin Board

ART

On exhibition until Feb. 9 in Kenan Hall is a one-man show of works by Marvin Saltzman, a member of the art faculty at UNC-CH.

Saltzman has exhibited extensively throughout the country and has works in the National Collection and the Library of Congress, and in the permanent collection of the art museum at the U. of Cal. at Berkeley.

Humanities

Dr. Bryette D. Godbold, staff director of Goals for Dallas, will be principal speaker at a convocation for the joint humanities project "Community and University: How Do We Grow and Where Do We Go Together?" Feb. 5 at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Dr. William Wagoner and several community leaders will also appear on the program.

MARVIN SALTZMAN ONE MAN SHOW

Marvin Saltzman's one-man show will be displayed in Kenan Hall until Feb. 9.

BOOKSTORE

Students and staff wishing to say "thanks," "happy birthday," or "be my valentine," may do so easily after visiting the American Greeting cards on display in the bookstore. Special occasion cards (Valentines, Easter, Thanksgiving, etc.) are part of the line carried by the store along with the ever-present birthday, anniversary, thank you, and wedding cards.

Business Club

The Business Club will present a film concerning computer use in business on Feb. 8 at 11:30 a.m. in B-112.

Haskins and Sells, a national accounting firm, is loaning the film to the club. The film will last 20 minutes and should be very informative, according to Lee Hoffman of the business club. Everyone interested in the film is invited to attend the Feb. 8 showing.

The Business Club of UNC-W operated a book sale for the students the first week of classes. It sold a total of 127 books. Students received $693.38 for their used texts.

"We members of the Business Club feel that this was a valuable service for the entire student body. We plan to serve the university in the future and are happy for the opportunity to do so," stated Mike Young, chairman of the used book store committee.

CHEMISTRY

Two assistant professors of chemistry recently completed requirements for the Ph.D. degree in chemistry. Haskell V. Hart completed requirements at Harvard University, Lewis E. Nance at the University of the Pacific.

CLUBS & ORGANIZATIONS

SGA would like each organization to send the name of a delegate to represent it on the Inter Clubs Council. If it has not already been done, the name of each delegate should be put in the SGA mailbox in the Pub so that everyone may be notified of the time and place of the council meeting.

Please notify Jack Paul, FLEDGLING editor, of the time and place of the next meeting. He needs to arrange for a photographer to take pictures for the yearbook.

Marine Science

Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Charles L. Cahill recently announced that Dr. Daniel B. Plyler will serve as Director of the Program in Marine Sciences. The appointment became effective Jan. 1.

As director of the program Dr. Plyler will administer and coordinate all marine science activities related to the campus, such as the marine biology curriculum, the environmental studies curriculum and marine science research. He will also represent UNC-W on the greater University Marine Science Council.

Sociology

Ms. Betty McEntire of the Department of Sociology will serve on the Wrightsville Beach committee on recreation and civic improvement.

Organizations having mailboxes in the Pub are reminded to check them often. Most now contain notices or letters.

Psych club holds bash

Last Friday the Psychology Club held its first party of the semester at the home of Dr. John Williams, head of the Psychology Dept.

Dancing, conversation, and food were the Bill of Fare. Lasting from nine until (?), parties such as this make weekends in The Port City bearable, according to one attendant.

Thom Wright, Vice-President of the Psych Club was the "head mixer" and assured members that with trips to Cherry Hospital, the parapsychology clinic at Duke, and parties, the club will be interesting.

The Psych Club is interested in new members so drop by the Psych Dept. and join for fun or interesting activities.

Both Psych majors and non-majors are invited to join.

Yes

Wachovia

Addis, Crofut provide musical tour of world

by lewis musser

The atmosphere of Kenan Auditorium was warmly quiet. A few people were arriving, sprinkling themselves among the seats. On stage, a bearded man, seated on a piano bench, was tuning a shiny, honey-toned 12 string guitar. After a few minutes another man, fair and blonde, walked onto the stage, seated himself on a tall barstool and proceeded to tune a banjo. Then they ambled off stage together.

Thirty minutes later they return as the musical entity of Addiss and Crofut. For an hour and a half, these two artists will enrapture the audience with a repertoire of folk and classical music, old and new, from every part of the world.

Steve Addiss and Bill Crofut met at a Vermont high school, forming the musical cohesion which has brought them high critical acclaim in 32 countries.

Presenting a program of great cultural significance, Addiss and Crofut take their audiences on a musical tour of the world.

Last Thursday night, they opened with a lilting Scottish lullaby. Crofut explained that this lullaby had the same melody formula that constitutes a dozen well-known children's songs (i.e., "Ba Ba Blacksheep," "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star") as well as a Mozart piano variation. This variation was performed commendably by Steve Addiss.

Returning musically to the American frontier, the two then played the ballad "When I First Came," and followed this up with a wonderfully mellow French folk song, "The Joys of Love."

A medley of Indo-Chinese music ensued: melodies and rhythms from a part of the world where an immensely rich musical heritage is constantly threatened by war.

From Africa they introduced the tiny thumb piano, an instrument heard in every Tarzan movie and National Geographic TV special, but not easily identifiable.

Addiss accompanying himself on guitar, sang a medieval night visitation song. The song depicted the age-old dilemma of a man and woman so possessed by love that they rendezvous at all hours of the night.

The musical versatility of these two artists became astoundingly evident as they performed complex Vietnamese classical music.

Crofut closed the first half of the program with a series of songs dedicated to the two things we "love the most, but value the least - animals and nature."

The remainder of the concert was concentrated on the

(cont. on p. 5)

AT MILLS JEWELERS

Keepsake

Keepsake

VENTURA $300 ALSO 150 TO 1975 WED. RING 50

LA PARISIENNE $250 TO 300

Trade your old diamond for a sparkling new Keepsake Diamond Ring, with a guaranteed perfect diamond of superb cut and color.

SHOP TIL 9 P.M. NIGHTLY
HANOVER CENTER
4 WAYS TO BUY
CASH BANK CARD
CHARGE LAY-A-WAY

Mills
Keepsake

JEWELERS &

Accutron Center

28 NO. FRONT ST. *PHONE 763-4590

HANOVER CENTER *PHONE 762-0738

YOU KNOW DARN
WELL A PIZZA
WOULD TASTE BETTER THAN ANYTHING ELSE AFTER THE GAME.

SO COME
SEE US.

THE ONLY CORRECT
AFTER-THE-BASKETBALL-GAME MEAL

4016 Oleander Drive

3406 Market Street

album review

Billy Preston Music Is My Life A & M

by harry asbury

Billy Preston showed a lot of people a thing or two in The Concert for Bangla Desh. He's worked with some of the greatest artists, and the good influence shows.

"Music is my life and every day I live it and it's a good life too
Everything I want to say through the music it gets to you."

These are words from "Music Is My Life," the last cut on the album of the same title. Billy Preston, like many other writers and musicians, has a message which he puts straight to the point if one will listen to the words of his songs. Such subjects as racism, war, and faith are touched upon. On the album, the lighter side is definitely the first. On the second side, he suddenly seems to get down to business working up to the finale in "Music Is My Life."

"When I touch a piano or organ
I am giving God the Praise and I will have a song to sing throughout my earthly days.

Preston combines his talent with that of such writers as Joe Greene, George Johnson, and by far none less than John Lennon and Paul McCartney. As far as performing is concerned, Billy adds his own uniqueness in singing his music but you can very definitely hear that touch of Ray Charles that comes from pure talent and working with Charles. Also, in two songs, "One Time Or Another" and "God Loves You", you can hear influence of Sly and the Family Stone.

Billy Preston is one of those few entertainers that people dig no matter what way their head is situated. He's one that can convey a message without insulting your intelligence. Turn on to Billy Preston...then turn on to what he has to say.

Nursing dept. offers associate arts degree

UNC-W offers a two year nursing program in which the student may obtain an Associate of Arts Degree.

Admission to the program requires an interview with the nursing faculty. Miss Dorothy Dixon is the director of the department. Applications should be completed by May 1st for the following August.

There are six basic nursing courses which must be completed with a grade of

Many students have profited, not only from Crowder's good business sense, but also from his strong interest in students as individuals.

"There's no student going to this institution that can not stay here if he wants to. There are always funds available. We worked with approximately $300,000, this year and next year it will

"C" or better plus a satisfactory score on all clinical laboratory work. These courses are: 110 Fundamentals of Nursing, 125 Maternal and Infant Care, 135 Psychiatric Nursing, 241-242 Nursing of the Physically Ill, and 250 Trends in Nursing.

Other courses which must be completed include English, psychology, sociology, biology, and physical science. The prospective nurse is a mature, devoted, and responsible individual. The training is strenuous but the career is rewarding.

The nursing department is located upstairs in Hoggard Hall. Anyone interested in the program is encouraged to go by.

SUPPORT

OUR ADVERTISERS

NEW AT THE BOOK STORE !!

COMPLETE LINE OF GREETING CARDS

BY

AMERICAN

COME SEE THE VALENTINES

THE REC HALL

a good place
to meet your friends

LOU'S LOUNGE

SERVICE AND ATMOSPHERE...

AT ITS BEST

Music

Beer

LISTEN TO THE SEAHAWKS

ON WMFD-FM

★

38 Lumina Ave.
Wrightsville Beach

Crowder aids students

Larry Crowder is Director of Student Financial Aid.

Most students just call him Larry. A lot of them went to school with Crowder, since he is a recent graduate. He finished in three years and worked as a full-time security guard to put himself through school.

Upon graduation from high school, he took a job as a buyer for a department store where he received extensive business background. Soon he will begin his Master's Degree in business.

He began his job as financial aid director in the summer of 1971. His job is rather like that of a liaison officer between students and the different organizations which contribute money to the Financial Aid Office.

be over a half a million dollars," stated Crowder.

He continued, "Ninety per cent of all funds in the programs here are granted on a student's need. If you get in this school and can keep a 2.0 you can get the money. All that is needed is a parents' confidential statement or, in the case of married or independent students, a Student Financial Statement and a Personal Data Application. Between these two information sheets we can decide how much a student will need. We work with our own budgets, and try to accommodate a student's needs.

Crowder enjoys boating. He has a wife and a little girl. He has been a student, and he knows the problems students face. "He is one of the best friends UNC-W students have," stated one student about Crowder. "He's always there when you need him."

Larry Crowder

Concert show to premiere

"Midnight Special" will premiere tomorrow, Feb. 3, from 1 to 2:30 a.m. after "The Tonight Show."

Each show will be hosted by a major recording artist correction by a major recording artist or group and consist of approximately ten performances ranging in style from hard rock to country western. This type of program, which is in concert style, is designed for the young adults. The age group 18 to 25 years has very few programs of this particular type of entertainment.

The host of "Midnight Special" on February 3 will be Helen Reddy. It will feature such artists as Curtis Mayfield, Rare Earth, Ike and Tina Turner Revue, and many others. As can be seen from the list of entertainers the music on the program and ones to follow will be of varied interests.

The pilot shown Aug. 18, 1972 was well received by the television audience. This program was hosted by John Denver, Cass Elliot, Rod McKuen, The Isley Brothers, and The Everly Brothers were among the list of performers.

By the use of the songs and comments that were made on the first program the performers encouraged the 18 to 21 year old voter registration.

As Mr. Schlosser, Executive Vice President of NBC-TV, said, "we are opening up a 'new theatre' on the air for a totally new kind of program service..."

FOURTH CORNER

4405 wrightsville ave.

tops bottoms
water beds
and accessories albums tapes pipes

paper
paraphernalia

next to the Bicycle Shop!!!!

Jeremiah Johnson

"a mountain man"

by spence fauce

Jeremiah Johnson is a mountain man. In the first half of this movie doesn't prove it to you then the second half surely should.

But he is not a true mountain man. In the process of learning to hunt, fish, and generally to subsist on his own, in harmony with nature, Jeremiah Johnson has fallen into the Hollywood trap of violence and Indian fighting.

His own unwillingness to leave the people he meets along the way has ruined him. It would be good if this film could show the real virtues of what Johnson was seeking, but then it wouldn't sell tickets.

Jeremiah's dream was to seek a peaceful life away from people. Almost every human contact he makes, however, is detrimental to his dream. He wants to hunt the wild game of his mountains, but he in turn becomes the hunted.

Beautifully filmed in the Rocky Mountains of Utah, Jeremiah Johnson wastes little time in taking the viewer straight into the wilderness with wolves, grizzly bears, and savage Indians. The Indians are well versed in peace pipe smoking, sneaking around, and dying.

Robert Redford is a good mountain man as Jeremiah but only when he is not speaking. If he is to be the loner he wants to be, he should converse less or leave the talking to others. This film needs little dialogue, for the action supplies more than words can.

Jeremiah's character is faithful throughout the film. When he is betrayed by whites and the Indians kill his family he is true to form. As an avenger of the wrongdoings done to him by whites and reds, Jeremiah leaves something to be desired.

He reverts to his former "loner" self and goes about his everyday ways even though every redskin within one hundred miles is trying to kill him. His failure to find happiness in the woods is his downfall. If he thinks he is escaping, he is wrong.

(cont. from p. 3)

musical heritage of the United States, "Winnesboro Cotton-mill Blues," a Southern contribution, was a real foot tapper, with Crofut exhibiting his mastery of the banjo.

Crofut, incidentally, learned to play a guitar under no less a folk music personage than Pete Seeger, and the performance of an instrumental written by Seeger was indeed a high point of the evening.

Their fine rendition of the beautiful Woody Guthrie ballad, "Roll On, Columbia" seemed to underscore the urgent need for us to preserve our natural resources.

The touching highlight of the evening was a masterful interpretation of Guthrie's "This Land," which served to beckon us all to higher standards of tolerance and brotherhood.

What emerged from this program was a portrait of two sensitive, accomplished artists with a great sense of moral urgency in what they are doing.

Addis, Crofut provide musical tour

"Much folk music going down around here?" Steve Addiss asked me after the show.

"Unfortunately not," I replied.
"That's too bad," he said. Anyone who attended their concert will certainly agree.

CLASSIFIED

HANDWOVEN - anything! guitar straps, cigarette cases, place mats, bookmarkers, etc. Anything you can think of for yourself, for gifts. Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

GUITAR lessons. Beginners, intermediates, advanced students. Nine years' experience. Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

HELP WANTED: Lou's Lounge, Wrightsville Beach. One Female 18 years or older. Looks are a must. Phone 256-4234.

STUDY AT OXFORD. Earn up to six hours credit while in residence in literature, philosophy, history, or drama. Room, board and all fees for four weeks term, $400. This includes trips to Stonehenge, Stratford-upon-Avon and Churchill's birthplace. Air travel provided if required at lowest rates. Write, Dr. James Stewart, UNC-A, Asheville, N.C. 28804

Seahawk classified ads

FREE

REGAL NOTES

UNDERSTAND PLAYS, NOVELS AND POEMS
FASTER WITH OUR NOTES

We're new and we're the biggest! Thousands of topics reviewed for quicker understanding. Our subjects include not only English, but Anthropology, Art, Black Studies, Ecology, Economics, Education, History, Law, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Religion, Science, Sociology and Urban Problems. Send $2 for your catalog of topics available.

REGAL NOTES
3160 "O" Street, N.W.
Washington, D. C. 20007
Telephone: 202-333-0201

go seahawks

The picture
runs 130 minutes!...

The story covers 96 of the most critical hours in man's history!...

The suspense will last through your lifetime!

RATED G... BUT MAY BE TOO INTENSE FOR YOUNGER CHILDREN.

A ROBERT WISE PRODUCTION

From the Best Series by MICHAEL CRICHTON

THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN

STARRING
ARTHUR HILL · DAVID WAYNE · JAMES OLSON · KATE REID

Production Designed by BORIS LEVEN Screenplay by NELSON GIDDING From the Novel by MICHAEL CRICHTON Directed by ROBERT WISE

Soundtrack Album exclusively on RSD Records

MUSIC BY
GIL MELLE

NOTE: NO ONE WILL BE SCARED
BY HEARING THE LAST 10 MINUTES.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE · TECHNICOLOR · PANAVISION

February 6, 8 p.m.

KENAN AUDITORIUM

When your race is over... pull over and pull open an ice-cold Pepsi-Cola. In seconds, Pepsi cuts through a thirst it's taken miles to build. Get the one with a lot to give. Pepsi... the happiest taste in cola.

You've got a lot to live.
Pepsi's got a lot to give.

Andromeda Strain set Feb. 6, 8 p.m.

THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN will be presented by the Fine Arts Committee Feb. 6, 8 p.m. Kenan Auditorium.

The film, based on the best selling book by Michael Crichton, promises to be one of the best on the film series docket.

A cast "line-up" appears below.

Arthur Hill, (Dr. Jeremy Stone,) created the role of George in the original Broadway production "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf." He made his screen debut with Marlon Brando in "The Ugly American."

David Wayne, (Dr. Charles Dutton) first achieved Broadway success as America's favorite leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow." He later created the role of Ensign Pulver in "Mister Roberts," as well as the wily Sakini in "Teahouse of the August Moon."

James Olson (Dr. Mark Hall) was Joanne Woodward's faithless lover in the film "Rachel, Rachel." His stage appearances include roles in Ella Kazan's "J.B.," "Romulus," "The Chinese Prime Minister," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," and the Actors Studio revival of "The Three Sisters."

Kate Reid, (Dr. Ruth Leavitt) has received Tony Award nominations for her performances in the Broadway productions "Dylan," and Tennessee Williams' "Slapstick Tragedy." She also received an Emmy nomination for her portrayal of Queen Victoria in the award-winning television production "The Invincible Mr. Disraeli."

The nurse - technician in "The Andromeda Strain" is played by Paula Kelly who made her film bow co-starring with Shirley MacLaine in "Sweet Charity." A very talented dancer, she has appeared on several television specials.

Black student law conference set

Black students interested in the study of law are invited to a special conference Feb. 10 at Chapel Hill.

At the conference, sponsored by the Student Bar Association, students will discuss practical aspects of gaining admission to law school, consider the role of the Black lawyer in the community, and meet with Black UNC law students.

The conference is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday and will last through 5 p.m. There is a party slated Saturday night.

Free lodging Saturday night will be provided for attendants. Students from this area (any area other than Durham-Raleigh-Henderson) will also be provided with free lodging Friday night.

Meals will be supplied at lunch and supper Saturday, and breakfast Sunday. The only expenses will be transportation. Students not able to arrange a car pool and wishing to take the bus will be picked up at the bus station in Chapel Hill or Durham on Friday night or Saturday morning.

To sign up or receive more information, see Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, in the pub.

Greek Lines

APO

New blood characterizes the leadership of Alpha Phi Omega. Elections were held recently for the spring semester. Heading up the service brotherhood is Rick Deasy.

Steve Grady will serve as Vice-president. Robert Draughan was elected as Secretary. Ken Hales was chosen as Treasurer. The Pledgemaster is Jack Paul. Other officers elected were: Fellowship Chairman, John Floyd; Alumni Secretary, Raleigh Todd; and Historian, Wilbert Jacobs.

APO will begin their spring rush at 9:00, January 30 in the school pub. Anyone desiring to be of service to the college and community is urged to attend. APO performs such functions as collection of money for concerts, assists disabled persons, and helps finance community service funds.

DU

ADU has accepted an invitation to appear on television. They will be televised on the program COFFEE TALK, Channel 3, February 13, 10:30 a.m. They will discuss the basic structure of their fraternity. More importantly they will discuss their problems of becoming nationally affiliated with their parent fraternity Delta Upsilon. ADU encourages interested persons to view this program.

PM

Phi Mu will hold an initiation service at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, February 4. The PM ladies will welcome Sandy Boney, Patricia Fields, Deborah Warner, Kathy Warner, and Marian Saffo into the sisterhood.

Prior to initiation these girls will participate in an inspiration week. Activities included are a get-together for breakfast, a mock rush party (where the pledges rush the sisters), a slumber party, and a get-together with alumni and collegiates.

Concerts produce

(cont. from p. 1)

big acts to Wilmington. However, John Sebastian and Savoy Brown were both poorly attended and the committee lost money on each concert. That was the students' fault-not the concert committee's.

Before the present committee came into office UNC-W had a chance between the Allman Brothers, Ike and Tina Turner and the Kles of March. The Kles of March was chosen.

A choice of Three Dog Night, Steppenwolf, Brooklyn Bridge and Sly and the Family Stone netted us Brooklyn Bridge.

Now there is a new band named Trinity. An excellent but unknown band. But would the students attend a concert by an unknown band, even if the price was low? Only student response will decide. "Yes, what do you consider the problem in putting on a concert?"

"The students aren't aware that the audience is a part of the performance. The crowd was so rowdy at the Chicago concert that the performers became angry. The Dirt Band cut its act 20 minutes short because of the noise from the audience. A poor audience gets what it deserves-the minimum," Knappe said.

Burger King needs college girls to work part time. We'll work around your schedule, but hours during lunch a must. Apply at: BURGER KING

4404 Oleander Drive
before 10 a.m. or after 2p.m.

799-3950 OLEANDER DRIVE

OLEANDER Cinema 1
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRE

SHOWS 2-4-6-8-10

Robert Redford
as "Jeremiah Johnson"

SOME SAY HE'S DEAD,
SOME SAY HE'LL NEVER DIE!

PG 75c TIL 2:30

799-3950 OLEANDER DRIVE

OLEANDER Cinema 2
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRE

3 PERFORMANCES
AT 2:00 - 5:00 - 8:15

CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCES

Fiddler on the Roof

THE MORRIS PRODUCTION COMPANY
presents
A NORMAN JEWISON FILM
"FIDDLER ON THE ROOF"
starring
TOPOL
Produced and Directed by NORMAN JEWISON
Screenplay by
JOSEPH STEIN
Music for stage play and film by
JERRY BOCK
Lyrics for stage play and film by
SHELDON HARNICK
Produced on the New York stage by HAROLD PRINCE
Entire stage production directed and choreographed by
JEROME ROBBINS
Music adapted and conducted by JOHN WILLIAMS
Original choreography by
JEROME ROBBINS
Adapted for the screen by TOM ARBOTT
Sung by ISAAC STERN
Filmed in
PANAVISION® COLOR

ADM. $2.00 — UNDER 12 $1.00

FEBRUARY 7 "THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE"

AQUA WORLD inc.

Professional
Diving
Instruction

N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

Hawks crush Abbey

Super Seahawks characterized the play of the UNC-W basketball team this past Monday night as UNC-W destroyed the Belmont Abbey Crusaders, 79-61 in action at Hanover Hall.

UNC-W has had some really tough games this season, losing nine of them by an average of four points, but this was not one of those games. The Seahawks played absolutely fantastic ball and dominated every phase of the game in roaring to victory.

The win was especially nice because it came at a time when the Seahawks hadn't played very good basketball in their two previous outings, losing to Fayetteville State University, 62-57 and Pfeiffer College, 70-64.

The victory was the sixth of the season for the Seahawks against eleven losses in their over-all record. In District 29 action, UNC-W now stands at 3-4.

As far as for the stars of the game, the Seahawks had many. Mike Cherry had his regular great game but got a lot of help from Ernie Lynn, and David Prince. However, it was top reserve Greg Kemp who played the key role in the second half with his uncanny, ultra-fantastic passing.

"Our defense made the difference, we were aggressive and went after the ball when it was on the floor," UNC-W coach Mel Gibson said after the contest.

UNC-W forced the action throughout the contest and made the Crusaders play the Seahawk type game. It was, without a question, the finest performance of the year for the Seahawks.

Mike Cherry made the first basket of the game to give the Seahawks the initial lead, but the Crusaders came back quickly and the score was tied at 2-2 with nineteen minutes left in the half. It was from this point that the Seahawks reeled off 12 straight points to take a commanding 14-2 lead early in the game.

The Crusaders called time out, and when they came back onto the court, they slowly started pecking away at the Seahawk lead. With the score 18-10, Belmont Abbey outscored the Seahawks ten to two and tied it up at twenty apiece with 9:15 remaining. From here, the two teams swapped baskets, until with seven seconds left on the clock, Cherry made good on a one-and-one to give the Seahawks a 28-26 lead at intermission.

As the second half began, the Seahawks moved out ahead by 10 points quickly, and it stayed that way until midway through the last period when the Seahawks exploded and ran away with the game.

Greg Kemp came in at this time, and the Seahawks started their upsurge. Kemp scored four baskets, but it was his rebounding and his phenomenal passing that played the more important role in the UNC-W victory.

"It was his best game of the season," Gibson noted. "His passing played a big role in our success. He came in at a critical time and made some big plays that helped us a lot."

Kemp got six assists in helping the Seahawks move from a nine point lead when he was first inserted, to the game high of 23 points, 71-48 with three minutes left. At this point, the Seahawks began to get a little careless and let the Crusaders move up to within 18 at 79-61 as the final horn sounded.

Gibson commented that he felt that the Seahawks shot much better tonight, especially from the foul line. Brent Belch and Rick Alessi made 11 of the 19 charity tosses made by the Seahawks; Alessi was 4 out of 4, while Belch hit on seven of 11.

Mike Cherry was high man for the Seahawks with 23 to spark the victory. He was followed by David Prince, and Ernie Lynn each having 12 points, and Ricky Brock collected 11 points.

Ricky Brock also had a good performance for the Hawks with his 11 points, and this marked the sixth straight game in which Brock has scored in double figures as he has become one of the steady performers for UNC-W.

PERFECT FORM-Bobby O'Donnell (24) shows how to shoot the perfect jump shot against Belmont Abbey Monday night as the Seahawks crush the Crusaders, 79-61.

grapplers lose 2

"Wrestling is not only a team sport, but it matches one individual against another," said UNC-W wrestling coach Charles Sproles in speaking about how the wrestling team is doing this season.

The UNC-W grapplers have lost all three of their dual matches this year, but this is no indication of what the Seahawks are capable of doing. Seahawk wrestling has always been one of the top wrestling teams in the state but has just taken some rough jolts so far this season.

UNC-W wrestling squad lost two big matches last week, losing to Campbell College, 33-18 Wednesday, and to Western Carolina University, 39-12 Saturday.

The next dual match for the Seahawk grapplers will be Saturday night at 7:30 in Hanover Hall against a very strong Appalachian State University team.

In talking with Coach Sproles, he pointed out that while the Seahawks do have some weak points, they still have three boys that are currently undefeated in the dual matches, and he feels that three could probably win their District Championships.

These three that Sproles mentioned were Chris Wilson at 134, David Hughes at 150, and Ed Weddington at 158.

"Chris, David, and Ed have all been most impressive in their three matches," Sproles stated. "All three have completely dominated their opponents."

In conclusion, Sproles said that he felt sure that all his men would come around, and that they would be battling it out for the top spot by tournament time.

The following are the summaries of the Campbell, and Western Carolina matches.

Campbell 33, UNC-W 18. 118-Dan Hickman(C) won by forfeit. 126-Freese(C) decision B. Hickman, 8-0. 134-Wilson decisioned Popple(C), 14-5. 142-Cole(C) pinned Webb, 7:30. 150-Hughes decisioned Sawyer(C), 2-1. 158-Weddington pinned S. Wilson (C), 1:46. 167-Thomas(C) pinned Jones, 5:45. 177-Griffin pinned Codwin(C), 1:20. 190 Beachum(C) pinned Canady, 1:21. ULT-Zelinsky(C) pinned Pogo, 2:15.

(cont. on p. 8)

You only live once. So look for the gusto in life. Even in the beer you drink. Schlitz has it. Why settle for less?

When you're out of Schlitz, you're out of beer.

Hanover Distributing Company
Wilmington

The Avante Look!

A true styling system rather than hair cutting. Each style is customized to suit the individual's hair, length, and appearance. Call Mr. Stone for your appointment today.

TIMME PLAZA
MOTOR INN

Phone 763-9881 — 301 N. Water St.
Wilmington, N. C.

Patronize

OUR

advertisers

Pfeiffer edges Hawks

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, plagued by their worse shooting night of the year, lost another close one to Pfeiffer College by a score 70-64 in basketball action at Hanover Hall Saturday night.

This was the 11th loss of the season for the Seahawks who now have a 5 win-11 loss overall record. Ironically, three of those eleven losses have come at the hands of the Falcons of Pfeiffer College, and all three games have been close.

Next home action for the Seahawks will be against Baptist College of South Carolina Thursday, Feb. 8, while they visited High Point College Wednesday night for their last game.

The Seahawks took an early lead, going out in front by 6-2, but from this point, the Falcons came roaring back scoring the next 10 straight points to take a 12-6 lead. The Falcons never trailed from this point as the Seahawks pulled close several times but were never able to make the buckets when they most needed them.

Pfeiffer managed to gain a 34-25 lead as the teams headed for the locker rooms at intermission.

The Seahawks came back with a quick rally at the beginning of the second half reducing the Pfeiffer advantage to five points, 34-29, but failed to overcome the powerful Falcons.

Both teams connected on 29 field goals, but the Hawks had an extremely poor shooting night, hitting only 28 per cent during the first half.

However, it was at the foul line where UNC-W faltered, Pfeiffer connected on 12 of the 15 charity tosses it received, while the Seahawks could only make six of 13, many of them crucial one-and-one opportunities.

"I guess it was just one of those things, but I'll never get use to losing," said Mel Gibson after the struggle.

"I'm very disappointed. We lost the game defensively. 'I can't cite the exact time or circumstances, but there were a couple of crucial times where our defense faltered.'"

Ginson summed the game up by saying, "When we're playing poor defense, and shooting badly, we're in trouble. We didn't play a strong defense; we shot badly; and lost badly."

Grapplers lose

(cont. from p. 7)

W. Car. 39, UNC-W 12, 118-Crumley (WC), forfeit, 126 -Rutledge (WC), forfeit, 134- Wilson decision Talley (WC), 12-11, 142-Russell(WC), pinned Webb, 1:18, 150- Hughes decision Harris(WC), 9-3, 158-Weddington pinned Joyner (WC), 4:52, 167-Mann (WC) decision Sullivan, 7-5, 177-Toy(WC) pinned Griffin, 4:55, 190-Setzer(WC) pinned Canada, 4:11, ULT, Friedland (WC) pinned Carter, 1:10, SCORING-Seahawk David Prince (22) takes his now famous corner jump shot and scores a bucket in Saturday night action against Pfeiffer as Mike Cherry (34) looks on. The Seahawks lost to Pfeiffer, 70-64.

GET IN THERE BALL-That might be what Ricky Brock is saying to the ball as he gets the easy lay-up against Pfeiffer College. Brock scored 18 points but to no advantage as Pfeiffer edged UNC-W, 70-64.

P E Majors set meeting

P.E. Majors Club meeting on Monday Feb. 5 at 7:30 in H-201 will include a program centered around the new physiology of exercise lab. Coach Earl Allen is planning an explanation as well as demonstration of the new equipment. All majors and interested persons are urged to attend.

Yes

Wachovia

SPECIAL SPECIAL SPECIAL

Panasonic
Battery and Electric
CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER

with Built-In Condensor Mike!

Mike picks up sound from any direction... eliminates bothersome handling of an external mike. Auto-stop, easy-matic recording level, capstan drive pop-up cassette... optional car/boat cord. Cassette, batteries, and earphone included.

Was $56.95

$39.95

Panasonic Compact Battery
& Electric Cassette Recorder
with Built-in Condensor Mike!

Highly sophisticated recorder with X ICs. Battery/electric. Car adaptable. Auto-stop. Earphone monitor. AC adapter/recharger. Optional rechargeable batteries.

$69.95

SOUTHEASTERN
RADIO
ELECTRONICS

Master Charge • Bank Americard

1002

S. College Rd.

Phone 791-7365

the seahawk

university of north carolina-wilmington

vol. XV, no. 12

february 9, 1973

twelve pages

SPECIAL 12 PAGE HOMECOMING EDITION

Billy Preston

Coin-op typing?

Tired of typing term papers on your battered old portable that skips letters and lets the paper slip in and out like greased lightning?

The library committee is currently studying the possibility of installing coin-operated typewriters.

In order to determine whether the project is well-founded as far as student demand, the committee is seeking ideas and suggestions as to whether students would actually use the machines, and if so, how many would be needed to handle the typing load.

Students with ideas or comments are urged to see Miss Carol Ellis of the committee. They may also leave comments for her in her box in the English department, or drop comments by the SEAHAWK office or place them in the SEAHAWK mailbox next to the vending machines in the student services building.

Rev. Boone here as Christian rep

As an initial goal, Rev. Milton Boone is on campus fifteen hours weekly as a "Christian presence."

In coming to UNC-W, Boone had no programs set up to carry out. He is here to get a sense of the religious needs of the campus. He hopes to relate to UNC-W the religious activities of the community, and to relate to the community campus activities.

To promote understanding of the workings of the school, he has luncheon meetings here with off-campus persons. Initially, these have been members of the clergy.

Boone circulates from the snack bar to the pub and back, talking with students, faculty, and staff, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, generally between 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

After becoming acquainted with the campus, he will submit recommendations to the Board of Directors of the Christian Campus Ministry, which he represents.

Anyone wishing to talk with Rev. Boone who cannot get up with him is invited to leave messages in his box located in the Student Services Building next to the vending machines and across the hall from the Seahawk office.

WHY?

by ron blanchard

1. do teachers give quizzes on the same day? Is it a conspiracy?
2. do some teachers have a low opinion of a basketball team they have never seen on the court?
3. do people judge rather than listen?
4. decorate for Homecoming when the students don't seem to care?
5. do we only have parking spaces for only 400 students on campus for a 2400 student body?
6. don't more students take part in campus activities?
7. the Hell,

The Seahawk

published each friday by the students of the university of north carolina at wilmington. deadline for articles and announcements is 5 p.m. on the monday before friday publication.

editor.....kathi beall
associate editor.....ron blanchard feature editors.....beverly caussey,
sharon wolfe
sports editor.....robert braxton advertising director.....barry seabury business manager.....rocky moore photographers.....sheryl moore, alan sanders,
tom smiley
film critic.....spence fousse typist, reporter.....cathy gibson reporters.....kathi corn, leigh eaton marian koch, jean lanier robin starry, angel williford mary margaret williams linda ford, brenda knowles lewis musser
adviser.....thomas lupton

Campus Walk Goal-$15,000

"Walk a mile for the life of a child."

This theme "says it all" for the National Foundation of the March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon. Or maybe it doesn't say it all.

As part of the local three part March of Dimes campaign (the other two parts being the Mother's March and the Telethon), the Walk-a-Thon carried a goal of $50,000. The money will be used to aid in fighting birth defects. Chuck Kalaf, a representative of Harris Pontiac in Wilmington, is heading up the walk, which is scheduled for March 31.

Kalaf stated that if $15,000 is raised by UNC-W participation in the walk, that the individual on campus who raises the most money on the walk may be eligible for a '73 Pontiac automobile.

Kalaf, who headed a Florida walk last year, sees great potential for fund-raising on the campus.

Arrangements are currently being made through campus organizations and individuals for meetings to explain the march to interested persons.

John Diffe, field representative of the National Foundation in Raleigh, is hopeful that the Wilmington walk will be one of the biggest of the eight planned state marches.

Faces of opinion

Dennis Smith - soph - lang. major - "The violation fine is outrageous! We need more parking spaces and better utilization of the ones now available."

Alan Newberry - soph. - bio major - "I say the fine is too much!"

Elliott Pogolowitz - senior - elem. ed. major - "It's a known fact that the parking situation is atrocious."

Ronald Long - fresh - Chemistry major - "That fine is too high and the parking is terrible!"

William Hey - senior - bus. major. - "To begin with, five dollars is tough on a college student, and we need more spaces."

Pat Whitley - senior - elem. ed. major - "The fines are too much - it's ridiculous for a college student, and I'd like to see more spaces."

Barbara Barham - senior - elem. ed. major - "The violation fine is too expensive and the traffic laws are too strict."

Llewellyn Moras - senior - elem. ed. major - "The fine is terribly expensive for college students, considering there aren't enough spaces anyway."

Barbara Boob - freshman - elem. ed. major - "The fine is outrageous because the average student can't afford five dollars."

Mike Davis - jr. bio major - "The parking situation is incredible - it's a vicious circle."

Eugene Langford - freshman - "The fine is absolutely too high and more parking spaces are needed!"

Question: What's your view on the parking situation and the traffic violation fine of five dollars?

by alan sanders

I SOLISTI DI ZAGREB

UMS Slates I Solisti

The world-famous chamber orchestra from Yugoslavia, I Solisti di Zagreb, will play at Kenan Auditorium on Feb. 15, 1973.

I Solisti returns to the United States for the tenth time under the management of S. Hurok. Since their last visit a year ago, the ensemble has toured throughout Europe and South America, appeared in regular broadcast concerts over Radio Zagreb and made a film with violinist Henryk Szeryng for distribution throughout Europe.

Prime favorites in England, France, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium and Italy, the Solisti was founded by Radio Zagreb in 1954, its members being hand-picked to represent the finest in Yugoslavian string playing. After two years of intensive training the ensemble reached international fame at the Salzburg and Dubrovnik Festivals of 1956.

Acclaimed by the LONDON DAILY TELEGRAPH as "One glorious - sounding instrument," their beautiful ensemble playing and their unstinting dedication to music-making has gained I Solisti di Zagreb the reputation as peer of any chamber orchestra within memory.

Admission is free with student ID.

Watch for Sally
Seahawk
Salutes
next week

It'll never happen

by sharon wolfe

Wes Knappe is the head of the UNC-W Concert Committee. He does a good job. That's the first thing you notice about Wes--he does a good job.

The second thing you notice about Wes is that he is a little "different". He looks a little different. He talks differently. He thinks differently. He acts instead of just talking, and this is different. Wonder what makes him so different?

Wes learned a surprising thing a few years ago. He learned that it's not so very important what people say about you, but what you can say about yourself. And though Knappe doesn't say much about himself, there is a lot to be said.

Wes is a product of this area. He attended New Hanover High School and has lived here for quite a few years. It was at NHHS that he got into drama. He had a line in SEE HOW THEY RUN in which he portrayed a Russian spy. He never found out what "Torvarich" meant.

From that beginning he proceeded to secure a degree in drama, which he will receive next spring. In addition, he will have a degree in history, and a teacher's certificate, to show for his trouble. But he says he NEVER wants teach!

Knappe is best known for his work with the CC. By general consensus, it is the best committee the college has ever had. Also, as related to size and money, the committee has the "best series in the state," Wes said. "Our concerts outrank many much larger colleges' series."

The committee was a very popular group until a misunderstanding arose about the committee's choice among certain groups. It is true that certain "bad" choices have been made in the past, but they were by a former committee.

Most everyone has good things to say about Wes Knappe, though it has not always been so. He has been the beginner of new trends. For example, he helped open the first "head shop" in Wilmington. The Third Worm, way back in 1969. This was before most of it was known that a "head" was, much less that there was a shop for them.

It has been said more than once that he will bug anyone to the point of distraction to get a job done right. This is probably true, as is the case with all whom set high standards for themselves.

Sometimes, maybe soon, maybe never, Wes is going to live in England, and he's going to wear flashy clothes, 'cause he's tired of denim, and he says he's going to learn "to care less about everything." But don't believe that last one. It'll never happen.

Blacks to Present Awareness Week

February 12-17, the Wantu Wazuri Club will present "Black Awareness Week 1973."

This week will feature a variety of events giving recognition to Blacks who have made contributions to this country's greatness and notes on Black art, the Black community and the club.

The members chief endeavor is to help others obtain a better understanding of Black Culture.

Program for this week is as follows:

Monday 8 p.m. - Introduction of club with guest speaker, Dr. William Reed.

Tuesday: 7 p.m. - Voice of Togetherness: Shaw University Jazz Group.

Friday: 2:30 p.m. Social Hour in pub; 8:00 p.m. Fashion Show.

Students are invited to join in making the program a success and to get to know sisters and brothers of Wantu Wazuri.

Project to encourage shaping of urbanization

by beverly causay

A humanities project, sponsored by City of Wilmington, New Hanover County and UNC-W, is ready for public participation. The project is entitled "Community and University: How Do We Grow and Where Should We Go Together?" and is funded by a $5,000 grant from the North Carolina Committee for Continuing Education in the Humanities in goods and services provided by the city county, and University.

The purpose of the project will be to explore "Traditions in Transition: The Impact of Urbanization on North Carolina Communities" and to encourage residents and university personnel alike to participate in shaping urbanization.

The 5 main objectives are:

1) To analyze the economic, social, and political relationship of the community and university.

2) To discuss humanistic issues of common concern by uniting individuals and groups in the community.

3) To pinpoint expected expansion of community and university both mutually and individually for at least 10 years.

4) To understand environmental, social, spiritual and economic conditions and the influence they have on the community.

5) To enhance personal values and achieve goals through the use of appropriate training in understanding humanities. Beginning in late January, the interested persons should be convoked.

These seminars, which should continue until the end of March, will meet to decide on common goals which need to be achieved.

The proposal for funding was a joint effort. The drafting committee consisted of B.D. Schwartz, Mrs. Robert W. Williams, Walter H. Allen, Jr., and Dr. John H. Scall. These were aided by: Derrick G.S. Davis, Meares Harris, Jr., Mrs. Margaret F. Fonville, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pearsall, Dr. Gerald H. Shinn and William H. Bowder, Jr.

The Joint committee was in charge of appointing the following Executive Committee: Walter H. Allen, Jr., project director; Mrs. Henry Von Oesen, representing UNC-W; Laurence Bowden, representing New Hanover County; and Mrs. B. Constance Odell, representing the OVER-ALL community.

Seminars in interest groups will be held beginning Monday, Feb. 12, at 8 p.m.

A seminar in community government will meet in the Alderman Administration Building.

The Business and Economics Building will be the scene of seminars in Community Welfare, and Transportation and Communications.

Continuing and Higher Education, and Elementary and Secondary Education are the two topics for discussion in the education - psychology building (Arnold Kimsey King Hall).

Community Environment will be discussed in Hoggard Hall.

Kenan Hall is designated for seminars on Recreation and Entertainment, and Philosophy and Religion.

The Cultural Activities seminar will convene in Randall Library.

Subsequent seminars on the same topics will meet at 8 p.m. on Feb. 19, 26, and Mar. 5 and 12.

Enrollment in the seminars is without cost to participants. Persons wishing more information may contact Mr. Allen in the history department.

Attention Seniors

There will be a special questionnaire for all seniors to fill out pertaining to a graduation date change from May 16 to either Sunday, May 13, or Monday, May 14. There will be a possible time change and place change. The questionnaire will be available during homecoming elections Feb. 15 and 16. There will be a gift for all seniors to be distributed at this time with compliments of the Alumni Association.

A Libran: K-205?

by beverly causey
Astrology - that ancient art-science which has guided men and women throughout history - helps reveal the personality of Miss Patricia Carol Ellis, Libran, in K-205.

Duckie gives a great big smile. photos by alan sanders

Dear to Miss Ellis is her fish-tail fern.

As a seventh-year faculty member, she is an attractive assistant professor in the UNC-W English department. Born September 30, it is in the stars that Miss Ellis is usually pleasant to work with as members of her department and students well know. "I changed my term paper topic FOUR times, and Miss Ellis was as patient with my last choice as she was with the first choice. She tries to cooperate with others" (a very well-known Libran characteristic), said one freshman. "Libra," published by Grosset and Kunlap, states: "There is usually a definite relationship between the Libran woman and her home. It generally complements her charm and personality."

Being a Wilmingtonian, Miss Ellis owns an old and beautiful typical two-story Southern home. She has a flair for interior decorating which she has successfully displayed throughout her home. Among her furnishings is a most unique collection of ornate hand-blown milk-glass eggs. Being antique, these eggs vary in size, color, and design-all of them being a lovely form of art. Adjacent to the stairway are several paintings, one of which was painted by her mother.

A Libran, Miss Ellis is a nature lover. She cares greatly for her flowers and plants. When asked her favorite flower, she replied, "Oh, I don't really have a favorite - I love them all: tulips, iris, narcissus and even the daffodil." She has several "special" plants: the African violet, monkey-on-a-string, fish-tail-fern and the split leaf philodendron.

Affection and gentleness are among her Libran traits, and who is a better judge of this than Hibou Duchess? Hibou is Miss Ellis's five year old poodle. Her nickname is Duckie because, as Miss Ellis humorously replied, "She's so fat that she waddles like a duck."

"I have a wide variety of musical interests," stated Miss Ellis. A Libran music lover, she appreciates the instrumental Gray Slick, the modern opera "Jesus Christ Superstar," and beyond everything else-the classical Bach.

In view of the current interest in the black arts-demons and witch-craft, rituals and charms-she was asked if she were a member of the occult. Miss Ellis exclaimed, "The only cult I belong to is St. James Episcopal Church!" It is here that she also sings in the choir.

Generally, Librans enjoy the company of others. Miss Ellis is community involved. She serves on the Board of Directors of the Girl's Club and is also active in the United Christian Campus Ministry, being a non-clergy member.

The person born under the Libran sign is said to be quite intelligent. Miss Ellis teaches English 101 - 102, Interpretation of Poetry, Chaucer and various other courses. "I enjoy all of my classes," replied Miss Ellis. Miss Patricia Carol Ellis, K-205... Libran.

Miss Carol Ellis, Libran, smiles pleasantly after a long day.

Miss Ellis at home admires a painting by her mother (lower right).

GRAPE and HOPS
SHOP

3342 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
Beers and Wines

Mon.-Fri. noon - 1:00 A.M. • Sat. 9:00 A.M. -
1:00 A.M. • Sunday 1:00 P.M. - 1:00 A.M.

OUR BEVERAGE PRICES ARE BEAUTIFUL

3342 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
between the Sport Center and Howard Myrick's Carpet Center

799-3950
OLEANDER DRIVE

SHOWS TODAY
2:00 - 4:00 - 6:00
8:10 AND 10:15

Cinema 1&2
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRES

1. BARGAIN
TIL 2:30
CINEMA 1

ADM. $2.00
UNDER 12
$1.00

THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE

SEE THIS EXCITEMENT
FROM THE BEGINNING!

PG COLOR

"Fiddler on the Roof"

LAST WEEK!
NOW THRU TUESDAY!

SHOWS
2:00 - 5:00 - 8:15
IN COLOR
FOR ALL TO SEE!

NEXT: "ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND" G OF COURSE!

Preston headlines Thursday concert

Homecoming week is near for the UNC-W campus and some great music is lined up for the week.

First on Thursday, Feb. 15, Billy Preston and Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show. Next, on Friday, February 16, a dance in the Pub at 9 p.m. featuring Pegasus and Saturday night Feb. 17, after the basketball game, The Catalinas from Charlotte in the rear gymnasium.

Also, for you people who don't keep up with which artist came from where, and those of you who didn't see The Concert for Bangla Desh, here's a short biography of Billy Preston. . . .

Born September 9, 1946 in Houston, Texas; raised in Los Angeles, show business was a part of Preston's childhood. At three, he started to play the piano, encouraged by his mother (once "Sapphire" on "The Amos 'n' Andy Show" radio classic), who played in the church choir.

When he was 10, appearing with the Mahalia Jackson Show, Billy was spotted by a producer who promptly signed him to portray W.C. Handy as a child in "St. Louis Blues" with the late Nat "King" Cole.

In 1962 he toured with Little Richard, his first introduction to rock 'n' roll.

"We kicked off in England, doing shows with Sam Cooke. Up to then, I'd been playing only gospel music. Richard thought it was to be a gospel tour. But everyone wanted that 'good ol' rock 'n' roll,' and so we gave it to 'em."

From England, they went to Germany. In Hamburg, the scene in 1962 for aspiring pop groups, The Beatles were among the fourteen other supporting groups.

"They would dedicate 'A Taste of Honey' and 'Love Me Do' to me, as they were my favorite numbers. George once asked me to join them onstage, but I had to say 'no.'"

Preston continued to play rock for about three years, recording for Sam Cooke's record company, his first album 'Sixteen - Year - Old Soul.' Then, following Cooke's death, Billy cut his first chart album "The Most Exciting Organ Ever" for Vee Jay Records.

"Then I went back to gospel, joining James Cleveland, who is sort of the Ray Charles of gospel. Next I formed my own group, and we did mostly Ray Charles numbers."

He finally met Charles, who subsequently took him under his wing, during his year with "Shindig" TV show, probably the most highly rated teen entertainment program in television history.

Charles arrived at the studio for a guest appearance to find Billy sitting in for him at rehearsal, rendering an almost unbelievable impression of Charles.

"After the performance, I sang 'Georgia' for him, and a couple of days later he called me and we joined up," Charles signed Billy for his current Revue and also took over management of Billy's career.

Touring with the Ray Charles Show, Preston had his own solo spot. He traveled with the Ray Charles Show throughout both the United States and Europe, eventually taping a London television show with Ray Charles.

(Ray Charles: "I'd like to introduce you to Billy Preston. He's the young man that if I leave this business I want to take over what I started.")

George Harrison: "I saw this guy on the Ray Charles TV Show, but I missed him being introduced. I kept on thinking 'that's Billy Preston.' Then Ray Charles announced him and I sent word through the grapevine. 'Y'know, 'Find Billy Preston,' and the next thing you know, he walks through the door.")

(Billy Preston: "Hello, Apple? Billy Preston. Are the Beatles in town? I'd like to see them.")

This is roughly the sequence of events that led to Preston's association with Apple.

Arriving at Apple, The Beatles were recording "Get Back." Paul McCartney invited Billy Preston to join in on the electric piano. The Beatle bought his old contract from a leading U. S. record company and signed him to their own Apple label.

Preston became the first American artist to work with Brittan's Beatles. The first Black entertainer with whom

The Beatles had ever associated themselves professionally. The first artist to receive label credit with The Beatles -- The Beatles with Billy Preston. And finally the first artist to be personally produced by George Harrison on two Apple LP's.

Of Preston's new association with A&M, Jerry Moss states, "We feel that Billy Preston is bringing something very unique and exciting to the label. We have followed his fantastic career from his early association with Ray Charles, through The Beatles, and as one of the best American musicians on the scene today.

Dr. Hook & The Medicine Show are back-up to Billy Preston Thursday, Feb. 15, at a Homecoming concert in Hanover Hall.

Dinner Theater

STUDENTS
ON MEAL PLAN - $1

GENERAL ADMISSION
- $2.50

STUDENTS - $2

GOOD SEATS
STILL AVAILABLE

NO TICKETS
SOLD AT DOOR

Wednesday, Feb. 14 is last day of ticket sales.

Meal plan students:

All those without dinner theater tickets Friday, Feb. 16 are requested to eat between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m.

GO HAWKS

for the big thirst.
Electric Bottling Company
WILMINGTON

Who will reign? Vote

Miss Marian Sandifer of Wilmington represents Alpha Chi Sigma. She is a senior majoring in physical education. In addition to membership in Alpha Chi Sigma, she is a member of the PE majors' club and the trampoline club. Her interests include reading and sports.

Miss Pamela Gravino, a sophomore, is being sponsored by Delta Upsilon, for which she is the sweetheart, and Zeta Tau Alpha, for which she is a representative. With a double major in sociology and Spanish, Miss Gravino puts major career emphasis on working with juvenile delinquents. She currently works part time with the Juvenile Services Center of her home county of New Hanover. She is engaged to Bill Chapman, an alumnus of UNC-W and founding brother of DU fraternity.

Miss Ann Roberts of Thomasville is being cheered on by the Sociology Club, for which she is vice president. She is a junior majoring in sociology. Upon graduation from Thomasville High School, where she was in the honor society, she attended Davidson County Community College, where she was on the Dean's List for 4 of 5 quarters. In addition to her studies at UNC-W, she is a keypunch operator at Corning Glass Co. She enjoys horseback riding and other outdoor sports.

Miss Sarah Green represents Wantu Wazuri. A native Wilmingtonian, she is a junior majoring in French and German. She is a member of her sponsoring organization, and received the title "Miss Wantu Wazuri." She enjoys sewing, reading, and listening to music.

TKE sweetheart Kathy Zegarac is also competing for Homecoming Queen, sponsored by TKE. She has worked as a chemistry lab assistant and is a biology major with plans to attend grad school. In Fall '71, Miss Zegarac transferred from Westown Illinois University with a 3.4 average.

Senior Monica R. Felton is the Business Club's representative in Homecoming festivities. A Spanish major, Miss Felton plans to take some time off after graduation to tour Spanish-speaking countries. She is interested in all types of water sports and enjoys playing tennis. She is a Wilmington native.

Miss Paula Har
Mu is sponsoring the sorority in ch
horseback riding at

A senior from physical education club. She is a well as of the
Her special inter

for your candidate !!!

PI Kappa Phi is sponsoring pretty Peggy Kay, a Raleigh native. She is a sophomore and has a concentration in history. This sweetheart and little sister of PI Kap is engaged to Gary Weaver, '72 UNC-W graduate and PI Kap brother. She likes music and water sports.

Sponsored by "friends," Miss Jo Frances Hilton is also competing for the Homecoming Queen title. She is a native of Carolina Beach, and is a sophomore majoring in physical education. She plays tennis and intramural basketball, lists herself as a future member of the PE majors' club, and enjoys ping pong and listening to bluegrass music.

French major Pamela L. Simpson is the choice of the Student North Carolina Association of Educators! Miss Simpson is a senior, and a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, as well as serving SNCAE as secretary. Her special interests include reading, tennis, and sewing.

VOIR PAM SWINSON Homecoming Queen

The news is out! Miss Pam Swinson is the SEAHAWK's nominee for Homecoming Queen. She is a junior majoring in psychology who hails from Jacksonville. She is a member of the psychology club and is a volunteer at the Mental Health Center. Her hobbies include horseback riding and traveling. Miss Swinson enjoys flying and has completed one-half of the requirements for her private pilot's license.

The UNC-W matmen are the sponsors of freshman Miss Vickie Murray, an education major. Though she hails from this area, Miss Murray has an affinity for mountain climbing. Her other interests include eating, jogging, driving, playing Peter Pan, and of course, wrestling.

Alpha Phi Omega members urge support of Miss Bonnie Wiley, a senior from Ayden who is majoring in elementary education. She has worked in the registrar's office here, but this semester is student teaching sixth graders at Tileston school. She plans to graduate in December '73. She is a member of SNCAE and is on the FLEDGLING staff. Her special interests include sailing and camping activities. She will be working this summer at Camp Don-Lee.

nursing student, Phil is vice-president of elopment. She enjoys ty Hips is, fittingly, a ed by the PE majors' sporting organization, as the dorm interim board,

the circus, and travel.

Homecoming Schedule

Thursday, Feb. 15

Homecoming Queen Elections

8 p.m.

Concert: Billy Preston;

Dr. Hook & the Medicine Show

Hanover Hall

Friday, Feb. 16

Homecoming Queen Elections

6 p.m.

Dinner Theater:

Diary of Adam & Eve

Cafeteria

9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Dance: PEGASUS

Student Services Bldg.

Saturday, Feb. 17

7:30 p.m.

Homecoming Game

Halftime Activities

Hanover Hall

Following Game

Dance: The Catalinas

Back Gym

Dances slated

Friday night, Feb. 16, PEGASUS from Kinston will play at a SGA dance committee function starting at 9 p.m. in the Student Services building.

Student IDs are required. Come with a date or alone. This is a very, very casual dance.

Saturday night, Feb. 17, after the Homecoming ball game, the Catalinas from Charlotte will start playing at 10 p.m. in the rear gymnasium of Hanover Hall. The Catalinas are scheduled to play until 2 p.m.

Everyone will be asked to remove their shoes at the door facing the North as socks or rubber soled shoes can only be worn on the gym floor. Also, no alcohol can be allowed at the dance Saturday night. Formal dress is invited but not required.

Barry Asbury, told THE SEAHAWK that every student and alumnus is invited dating or not, dressed formal or otherwise.

Feb. 16 - PEGASUS 9 p.m. in the Pub

Feb. 17 - The CATALINAS 10 p.m. Rear Gymnasium after the ball game.
NO SHOES, NO ALCOHOL

Dinner theater to highlight week

Dinner theater will highlight Friday night activities for Homecoming on Feb. 16 at 6 p.m. in the UNC-W cafeteria.

The Alpha-Omega Players from the Repertory Theatre of America, Dallas, Tex., will present Mark Twain's "The Diary of Adam and Eve."

Musical by the composers of "Fiddler on the Roof," humor and nostalgia combine to provide a new perspective on the lives of the first man and woman. This story of the beginnings of the age-old struggle between man and woman is as relevant today as it was in the Garden of Eden.

Concerts return

Wes Knappe, head of the Concert Committee, reemphasized the importance of observing "rules" for concerts as outlined by Dr. William Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

The concerts have been provisionally returned to campus, and infraction of the rules could have disastrous effects.

"1. It should be understood that the second semester use of Hanover Hall for concerts is on a trial basis.

"2. No blanket concerts will be permitted.

"3. Students must sit on chairs on the main floor or on the bleachers downstairs and upstairs.

"4. Only students of high school age will be admitted for such concerts. Proof of age will be required by driver's license or school ID. (This limits concert attendance to those 15 years of age and older.)

"5. APO, members of the Concert Committee, or other service organizations will be used to supervise the doors.

"6. The Concert Committee of SGA will be responsible for making all necessary arrangements relative to security and maintenance of Hanover Hall.

"7. The use of tobacco (chewing and/or smoking), alcohol, or drugs will be prohibited and strictly enforced. The Concert Committee by itself or with the aid of the campus security force or a service organization shall be responsible for the rigid enforcement of this provision.

"8. The Concert Committee, through THE SEAHAWK or other methods of publicity, must make an effort to inform UNC-W students of the aforementioned provisions."

Prices will be $1 for students on the meal plan, $2 for other students with ID (they are allowed one guest for the same price), and $2.50 general admission.

Since a limited number of tickets will be available, interested persons are urged to contact Ms. Linda Moore,

Director of Student Activities, in the Pub (Ext. 264) as soon as possible.

The cafeteria style meal will be served at 6 p.m., with the theater beginning at 7. Meal plan students who do not wish to see the play will be asked to dine between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Feb. 16.

Care to have your taste buds tempted? Following is the menu for the Homecoming dinner theater:

Baked Ham
Braised Beef
Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Noodles
Tossed Salad
Cottage Cheese
Jello
Pumpkin Pie
Apple Betty
Lemon Pudding

Homecoming Dances

Feb. 16,

9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.

PEGASUS
in the pub

Feb. 17, 10:00 p.m. - 2:00 a.m.

The CATALINAS
in the rear GYM no alcohol no shoes

GO
SEAHAWK
STUDENT COUNCIL

REGAL NOTES

UNDERSTAND PLAYS, NOVELS AND POEMS
FASTER WITH OUR NOTES

We're new and we're the biggest! Thousands of topics reviewed for quicker understanding. Our subjects include not only English, but Anthropology, Art, Black Studies, Ecology, Economics, Education, History, Law, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Religion, Science, Sociology and Urban Problems. Send $2 for your catalog of topics available.

REGAL NOTES
3160 "C" Street, N.W.
Washington, D. C. 20007
Telephone: 202-333-0201

Yes

Wachovia

Hawks edged by Campbell

by Bob Braxton

As the old saying goes, "One can always tell a dishonest man by the stripes he is wearing," so was the case when Coach Mel Gibson's Seahawks were involved in another down-to-the-wire basketball game Monday night. After the UNC-W squad had suffered a super - shocking loss to High Point College, 53-50 last Wednesday night, the Seahawks went to Bules Creek, N.C. to play the Campbell College Camels and their six man starting line-up, (hint)

The Seahawks who undoubtedly had the superior team for Monday night outplayed the Camels in all phases of the game but came out on the short-in of the scoreboard, dropping a 58-51 District 29 decision to Campbell in a contest in which Gibson and the Seahawk patrons thought the Seahawks played well enough to win.

"I don't want to make any excuses but I do feel that we played well enough to win it," Gibson declared after the hard fought contest. "I just can't explain how the breaks fall in a ball game."

"Of course our club committed a few mental mistakes," Gibson admitted, "but you have to expect that from such a young team as we are." Gibson also pointed out that the Seahawks did very well on the boards against the much taller Camels.

"They had us out-manned by at least three inches at each position, but we were still able to match them even on the boards."

Campbell coach Danny Roberts said that he was not disappointed with the play of his ball club and thought that they were very lucky to come out on the winning end.

This marked the fifth loss in District play against three wins for the Seahawks who now stand 6-13 in their overall play. The Seahawks have only one road trip remaining before ending the season with three straight home games. UNC-W travels to Wilson this Saturday night to play Atlantic Christian, and then meet Pembroke State, February 14 at home. Homecoming is Feb. 17 when the Seahawks play Methodist College.

Campbell jumped out to an early lead of 6-0 before the Hawks got on the scoreboard with a basket by David Prince making the score 6-2 with 17:27 left in the first half.

The Camels held the lead throughout much of the initial period, until Mike Cherry hit for two with seven minutes left to tie the game up at 17-17. From this point, the two teams swapped baskets before the Camels gained the advantage, 28-25 as the two teams left the court for intermission.

The red hot action continued in the second half with the score remaining close until the clock reached the 8:47 mark. On a beautiful assist from Cherry, Ricky Brock hit for a bucket, and Ernie Lynn followed with two free throws to give the Hawks the lead, 45-41, their biggest lead of the night.

Playing it cozy and waiting for the good shot, the coastal club's Mike Cherry was good on a one-and-one opportunity and stretched their lead to six points at 47-41.

However, this lead was not to last very long as Campbell began their difficult uphill climb. The old player, Mr. Momentum jumped the fence just in the nick of time to put the Camels back in the ball game.

With five minutes left in the game, the Camels scored five quick points and trailed by one. The crucial break in the game came, the Camels sent in their 'man with the striped shirt', and it was all over for the Seahawks. Everything the Seahawks did was either a major crime or a minor violation, as Campbell moved out ahead to stay with the final score being at 58-51.

Mike Cherry topped the Seahawks attack with 18 points while Brock tallied 12, and Prince got 10.

UNC-W (51)	G F T
Brock	8 0-0 12
Belch	2 0-0 4
Cherry	7 4-4 18
Prince	5 0-0 10
Lynn	1 5-5 7
Alessi	0 0-0 0
O'Donnell	0 0-0 0
Kemp	0 0-0 0
TOTALS	21 9-10 51
CAMPBELL (58)	G F T
Broadie	3 1-2 7
Sanford	2 3-3 7
Calderman	1 0-0 2
Maul	6 1-2 13
Lovett	0 4-5 4
Gaither	7 1-2 15
Ellington	2 2-2 6
Swears	2 0-0 4
TOTALS	23 14-16 58

Insure yours.
With Integon health insurance, you can protect your income and savings when you can't work.

Talk to the Integon Listener.

Gene A. Johnson
Integon
Peoples Savings & Loan Bldg.
Phone 763-8285

INTEGON®

FREE FRIES
WITH THE PURCHASE OF A WHOPPER®

Our famous broiled beef burger and all the trimmings

BURGER KING BURGER KING

4404 Oleander Drive

Offer expires March 1, 1973
Limit One Per Customer

TROUSER HEAVEN!

Whether you need baggies or a dressy knit, you'll find the widest selection here.

Baggies from $12.00 to $22.00.

Knits from $18.00 to $37.50

Plenty of shirts, belts and shoes to coordinate your outfit.

Harvey Cannon, Ltd.

N. 17 Shopping Center

"The Fashion Store for Men in Wilmington"

Schlitz

You only live once. So look for the gusto in life. Even in the beer you drink. Schlitz has it. Why settle for less?

When you're out of Schlitz, you're out of beer.

Hanover Distributing Company
Wilmington

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL STANDINGS

GOLD LEAGUE

Jocks	10 - 1	.909
Bailers	9 - 2	.818
Bang Gang	8 - 3	.727
GDI's	6 - 4	.600
Studs	6 - 4	.600
Hemorrhoids	5 - 6	.455
Pi Kappa Phi A	4 - 7	.364
TKE A	3 - 8	.273
Stump Jumpers	2 - 9	.182
DU	1 - 10	.091

GREEN LEAGUE

Cup Jocks	10 - 1	.909
Triple A	9 - 2	.818
Moonmen	9 - 2	.818
Avengers	6 - 4	.600
Engineers	6 - 4	.600
Faculty	5 - 6	.455
Pi Kappa Phi B	3 - 8	.273
TKE B	2 - 9	.182
APO	2 - 9	.182
Rebs	2 - 9	.182

Snoopy's

PIZZA PARLOR
De Olde Public House

SPECIALS

Tuesdays COLLEGE NIGHT
BEER 25¢ a mug

$1.00 a pitcher

Mondays thru Saturdays

BUFFET 11:30 til 2:00

all the pizza and salad

you can eat-$1.30

Snoopy's

north 17

shopping center

(where the good times are)

Grapplers must bounce back

by bob braxton

It's extremely hard to come roaring back after suffering a string of four straight losses, but this is the task that the UNC-W wrestlers must undertake at this point.

Seahawk wrestling acquired their fourth straight defeat at the hands of the rugged Appalachian State University Mountaineers, 48-0 Saturday night in Hanover Hall.

Three of the Seahawk grapplers suffered their first defeats of the season as they had been undefeated in the three previous dual matches. Chris Wilson, David Hughes and Ed Weddington were all outpointed by the very strong Mountaineer wrestlers to record their first defeats of the season.

At the end of the meet, Mountaineer wrestling coach Steve Gabriel said that he knew that the UNC-W wrestling squad had always been tough, but he felt that his boys were really up for this match and wanted to win badly.

The Seahawks record now stands at zero wins and four losses, and Seahawk grapplers sought their first win Thursday night against Pembroke State University in Hanover Hall.

Results of the individual matches:

118-ASU wins by forfeit, 126-Paynter(ASU) decision Hickman, 7-4, 34 -France (ASU) decision Wilson, 8-1, 142-Torrance (ASU) pin Webb, 7:14, 150-Midkiff (ASU) decision Hughes, 2-1, 158-Jacobsen (ASU) decision Weddington, 7-2, 167-Lennons (ASU) pin Jones, 1:47, 177-ASU won, Forfelt, 190- Snipes (ASU) pin Candy, 2:54, Uk-Torritt (ASU) pin Pogolowitz, 2:53.

GET 'M CHRIS - Seahawk Grappler Chris Wilson looks as though he might have his man Jim France (ASU) in a good hold, but unfortunately France slips out and goes on to win the match in a dual meet with Appalachian State University Saturday night. The other Hawk wrestler couldn't get anything going either as ASU beat UNC-W, 48-0. (Staff photo by Sheral Moore.)

'73 Gran Torino Sport

'73 Pinto Runabout

SEE THE LITTLE PROFIT FOLKS
TODAY

YOU'LL SAVE MORE THAN ANYTHING YOU EVER
BARGAINED FOR because

Cape Fear Sells More...for less.

Cape Fear Ford

4222 Oleander Drive

799-4060

Yes

Wachovia

Budweiser.

KING OF BEERS

'When you say
Budweiser.,
you've said it all!

J.W. Jackson Beverage Co.
Wilmington

TV presents: "Peanuts" kids

by marian koch

The Broadway stage musical "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" will appear for the first time on television Friday, February 9, from 8:30 to 10:00 p.m.

The program, shown on WECT-TV, channel 6, is a Hallmark Hall of Fame production. It will be shown in the original play form.

The play depicts a typical day for the characters from Charles Schulz' comic strip "Peanuts". It combines sketches, gags, monologues, and songs to create situations which illustrate human relationships.

"You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" reveals the secret crush which Charlie Brown has on the "little red-haired girl." He wants to tell her how he feels but is afraid that she will not like him. The girl will never know that Charlie Brown likes her.

The play also shows Lucy's attempts to capture Schroeder's heart. Lucy spends many long hours leaning on Schroeder's piano trying to get his attention. Schroeder couldn't care less if she is there or not. He is wrapped up in his only love, the works of Beethoven.

The play depicts Linus, Lucy's brother, and his great dependence for his security blanket. Linus can't stand to be without it for even a minute without going crazy.

Snoopy, Charlie Brown's dog, imagines himself as a great World War I flying ace. He fights against Germany's famed Red Baron. Snoopy sees himself as a hero for the English people. Through all of his exploits he has women strung out over the entire country side.

However, the baseball games are even more interesting. All of the characters, even Snoopy, play on the same team. So far they have a perfect record. They haven't won a game yet.

All of the actors are adults portraying children's roles. The actors wear the children's clothes and create childish situations. This gives the play a more comical atmosphere and makes it easier for the audience to laugh at itself. It may even bring back memories of earlier years for some people.

The book, music, and lyrics were written by Clark Gesner in association with Charles Schulz.

From the off-broadway opening in 1967 of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" it took the play four years to reach Broadway. Since that date it has been shown in fifteen major cities in the United States and twelve foreign countries.

Profs show Bio slides

by mary margaret williams

"Wild Life of East Africa," a wild life slide program filmed by Franklin Allen and Dr. James Parnell, was presented Jan. 31.

This second in a series of color slide programs was filmed on a trip made to Africa last year. Allen and Dr. Parnell were members of a group which toured parts of the continent observing the varied animals of the reserves and parks. The slides followed the group as they left from New York, stopped in London, and then preceded to Nairobi, Kenya, and Tanzania.

Allen narrated the hour of slides which showed such animals as gazelles, cheetahs, giraffes, elephants, and lions. The group traveled in camouflaged VW vans which made it possible to get very close to the animals.

On February 19, slides of Alaska made by Dr. Parnell will be presented. Everyone is invited to attend.

Atlantis stimulates Imaginations

by robin starry

With spring semester in full swing, the fall edition of the ATLANTIS may have been forgotten. The biannual literary magazine, released in late November, is published by a handful of talented young students including Erich Parker, editor; Linda Goldman, associate editor; Kenneth Hales, prose editor; Judy Jordan, poetry editor; Howard Talley, publicity; and Pamela Johnson and Gregory Brand complete the staff. Advisors to the ATLANTIS are Dr. Joanne Corbett and Dr. James Collier.

In the past, poetry, short stories, and photography have been co-ordinated to stimulate, imaginations, and the fall ATLANTIS is no exception.

The magazine opens with an imaginative work by Judy Jordan. She presents a dramatic commentary on death by manipulating a dialogue between a troubled young girl and Fury. The poetic language is deep but as the conversation deepens so does one's understanding. Linda Goldman follows with a simple, yet dynamic, poem entitled "Request Time". Her simplicity is the key to understanding but the impact of the poem comes at the end. She reveals the nature of Mankind and perhaps has predicted his future.

Short stories play an important role in the ATLANTIS. Fred Our has captured the emotions of two criminals on the run in his account of "Thin Bars". Kenneth Hales successfully reveals the prejudice of man and the plight of the Jew, but when one man stands against an entire community to allow Jews to enter that community, he may be saying that hope and goodness does exist in a seemingly troubled world. Linda Goldman again comes through with a story of the future about a strange and mysterious dream girl.

Ben Clayton supplies the ATLANTIS with interesting and unusual photographs in which he has effectively employed modern art as his theme. Mediums range from ceramics and plaster to raku and stoneware. Terry King, serving as art editor, furnished the magazine with some excellent works done in silk-screen and an impressive woodcut.

Not all the authors or their works have been mentioned but one thing for sure—they are talented. If you don't have a copy of the ATLANTIS get one and if you have one, read it again. You might have missed something good.

NEW AT THE BOOK STORE !!

COMPLETE LINE OF GREETING CARDS

BY

AMERICAN

COME SEE THE VALENTINES

Kingoff's
INC.
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

IS NOW TAKING ORDERS FOR

GRADUATION
ANNOUNCEMENTS

DEADLINE

FOR ALL ORDERS IS

MARCH 1

ORDER TODAY!

Kingoff's
INC.
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

10 NORTH FRONT STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

Bulletin Board

Club and Organizations

If your club or organization desires to have space in the 1973 Fledgling Yearbook you must submit in writing a request to the editor and place it in the Fledgling mail box in the pub no later than March 1, 1973. This request should include the name and telephone number of someone that can be contacted to arrange to have our photographer at your next meeting.

ATLANTIS

Anyone interested in working on the Atlantis staff this semester should contact Mrs. Treanor, English Department Secretary, or Erich Parker, Executive Editor.

SPANISH

"Architectura Religiosa" is the film slated by the Spanish Department Feb. 12-14 in the Modern Language Lab (K-109). Monday, the four's correction Lab (K-109). Monday, the hours are 8:30-10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Tuesday it will be shown at 10 a.m., and on Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Business Club

The Business Club will hold its monthly breakfast meeting on Feb. 15 at 7:20 a.m. in the Cafeteria Faculty Room. The guest speaker will be Mr. Bob Jameson, personal recruiter for the U.S. Civil Service. Mr. Jameson will be on campus all day interviewing students who have an interest in Civil Service jobs.

Also on Feb. 15, the Business Club will be the guests of the National Accounting Association at a dinner at Timme Plaza. All members going must sign the list posted on the Business Club bulletin board.

PHILOSOPHY

Dr. Gerald H. Shinn of the Department of Philosophy and Religion has been listed in the 9th edition of Dictionary of International Biography, a unique cumulative record of contemporary achievement correction contemporary achievement throughout the world. Shinn was presented a certificate of merit "for distinguished service by development of student creative potential."

You're welcome 24 hours a day at 3200 Market Street

52 tasty varieties of donuts. Made fresh every four hours. If that doesn't give you enough reason to drop in, we also make the world's finest coffee. Brewed fresh every 18 minutes. 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, you're welcome at Dunkin' Donuts.

We pledge
to make Dunkin'
Donuts
fresh every
4 hours

3200 Market Street

album

Baldorf and Rodney

"Off the Shelf"
Atlantic

review

by barry asbury

MELLOW YELLOW is the only way I can describe the way that Baldorf and Rodney make you feel from the first phrase to the last chord of Off the Shelf. Borrowing the phrase from Donovan, Mellow Yellow was all I could think of that describes the technique of John Baldorf and Mark Rodney.

On the album, B and R are on acoustic guitar and providing the harmonious quality of two sets of vocal chords. There is the usual bass, drums, and piano providing the rhythmic pattern. Notable is the way that B and R can change mood from the light, comfortable acoustic sound to hard and heavy with no change of instrumentation. In major characteristic, Simon and Garfunkel seem to have made a major contribution to Baldorf and Rodney's style. One may hear this in the guitar break in the song "Can You See Him." I can't point to any better songs on the album, though, for all cuts are simply fantastic. The words and music to all cuts except "Farm" were written by John Baldorf, however, let us take no credit away from Mark Rodney for this Dynamic Duo. Musically requires the combined effort of both of these two excellent musicians to successfully achieve the music formula in the form of Baldorf and Rodney.

OFF THE SHELF was recorded in 1971 and was their first album to reach this area. However, it has had no notable recognition. Baldorf and Rodney presently have another album featuring "Home Again" out that is just as dynamic and expressive.

CLASSIFIED

Seahawk classified ads

FREE

to students,
faculty & staff

STUDY AT OXFORD. Earn up to six hours credit while in residence in literature, philosophy, history, or drama. Room, board and all fees for four weeks term, $400. This includes trips to Stonehenge, Stratford-upon-Avon and Churchill's birthplace. Air travel provided if required at lowest rates. Write, Dr. James Stewart, UNC-A, Asheville, N.C. 28804

HELP WANTED: Lou's Lounge, Wrightsville Beach. One Female 18 years or older. Looks are a must. Phone 256-4234.

FOR SALE -- 1964 Comet. One owner, 55,000 miles. Good Condition. $350. Phone 762-6287.

film review

"Fiddler on the Roof"

World of tradition

by spence foushee

Tradition. Traditions can be good and bad. Beautiful and ugly. But traditions can change.

FIDDLER ON THE ROOF is the story of tradition and a Russian peasant whose love for tradition affects the lives and hearts of his children and himself, but does little to change them. Adapted from the stage play, this film cannot help but give a message and entertain in the process.

In the world of a simple man, pleasures are few, but the existing ones are vast. On film and set to music the simple pleasures of a simple life are easily shared by everyone. Some of the traditions caught by FIDDLER ON THE ROOF are the most beautiful and enjoyable ever.

Set in a small village in Russia in 1905, FIDDLER magnifies the mood and times of the people of a revolutionary period. Traditions are torn down and rebuilt with agonizing reality. A matchmaker, bringing two people together in a time honored way can bring joy and pain to the same family. A wedding ceremony can be a spiritual and invigorating sight, yet it can turn into chaos. Simple acts of love can turn into acts of hate.

As Jewish traditions are numerous, then being Jewish is a tradition of wanderings and outcasts. Teyve, a Jewish peasant, played excellently by Topol, fights to save the traditions he himself can't explain and is in turn harmed by them.

A beautiful picture FIDDLER ON THE ROOF is one of those rare motion pictures that must have been fun to make. It was certainly fun to watch. The music and lyrics are beautiful, and depict the characters' feelings as they are supposed to. The dances, though they may not have been choreographed as well as the HANDWOVEN - anything! guitar straps, cigarette cases, place mats, bookmarkers, etc. Anything you can think of for yourself, for gifts. Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

GUITAR lessons. Beginners, intermediates, advanced students. Nine years' experience. Call 256-2334 after 6 p.m.

stage play, were delightful. Motion pictures, in a special way, seem to enhance choreographed scene, and this is the case here.

So tradition, whether good or bad, is with us, and changing too. Without traditions, life is as precarious as a fiddler on a roof, but with them, . . . you'll find the fiddler following you anyway.

Greek Lines

by rocky moore

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Kathy Zegarac, TKE Sweetheart for the 72-73 school year has been placed in nomination for Homecoming Queen by the Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. Since her arrival at the University, Kathy has shown much interest in this University and TKE. Kathy is a biology major working for a B.S. Degree with plans to attend graduate school. In the Fall of '71, Kathy transferred from the Westown Illinois University with a 3.4 overall average. While attending UNC-W Kathy has worked as a Chemistry lab assistant and also worked with Dr. Malloy on a committee discussing life on the UNC-W campus. Marvin Ingram, president of TKE, feels that Kathy, "with her charming personality and willingness to help others will make an ideal representative for the school if elected." He says, "TKE loves Kathy and we feel you will too!"

Pi Kappa Phi

Peggy Kay has been elected as Sweetheart to Pi Kappa Phi. She is a Sophomore, majoring in history. Originally from Raleigh, she has attended school here for two years. Currently, she resides in the dormitory. She has worked with the Girl's Club. She is engaged to Gary Weaver, an alumnus of Pi Kappa Phi. In her spare time she serves as score keeper for Basketball intramurals. Frank Moore says, "she has a lot of school spirit and a lot of fraternity spirit."

Phi Mu

Paula Hart was selected as the Homecoming representative from Phi Mu. She is a nursing major and a native Wilmingtonian. She is the Vice-President and Program Chairman of her chapter. She actively attends many of the school's sports activities and is interested in music.

Alpha Delta Upsilon

Pamm Gravino was unanimously elected as the ADU Sweetheart. She will represent both ADU and ZTA in the upcoming selection of the Homecoming Queen. Pamm is a sophomore. She is a sociology major and is interested in the field of probation. She is engaged to Bill Chapman, a founding Brother of Alpha Delta Upsilon. Pamm is a volunteer worker for the Youth Development Center. Johnny Bullard, Treasurer for Alpha Delta Upsilon says, "her conscientious and willingness to work hard has earned the admiration of all the Brothers of Alpha Delta Upsilon."

Zeta Tau Alpha

ZTA celebrated to opening of the spring semester with a dinner at the home of Carla Crane. Zeta's newly elected president. During this dinner they reaffirmed their support of the ADU Sweetheart as their choice for the Homecoming Queen.

ZTA have added a new pledge to their roles. ZTA welcomed Palmer to their chapter. She is a Junior majoring in Education.

AT MILLS JEWELERS

PARADIS
$975 also to 10,000

Keepsake
REGISTERED DIAMOND RINGS

4-WAYS TO BUY

- CASH
- CHARGE
- LAY-AWAY
- BANK CARD

SHOP NIGHTLY TILL 9 P.M.

Mills INC.
Keepsake
JEWELERS & Accutron Center
2110 N. FRONT ST. • PHONE 763-4590
HARRIS CENTER • PHONE 762-0736

THE REC HALL

a good place
to meet your friends

LOU'S LOUNGE

SERVICE AND ATMOSPHERE...

AT ITS BEST

Music

Beer

LISTEN TO THE SEAHAWKS

ON WMFD-FM

38 Lumina Ave.
Wrightsville Beach

FOURTH CORNER
4405
wrightsville ave.

next to the Bicycle Shop!!!!

DEAN THOMAS P. BROWN

photo by alan sanders

Brown returns to teaching math

Thomas P. Brown joined UNC-W in 1958 when it was still Wilmington College. He was a math prof recruited from the business manager position at James Walker Memorial Hospital, tion. Though he has enjoyed his job as dean, he feels that the field of student personnel work requires younger (late twenties to early thirties) full-time dedicated people.

Fourteen years have seen considerable changes--Wilco becoming UNC-W, the building of a dorm, and great growth in this institution. Brown watched the school grow--first as an instructor, then as Dean of the "evening school" and as Dean of Men, Assistant Dean of Students, and Dean of Students. But the whole time, Brown also watched the growth as a teacher.

"My interest has always been teaching," Brown states. And with this in mind, Brown will return to teaching mathematics full-time as of June 30.

His decision to return to teaching is a result of "two or three years" of considera-

Having spent full-time and dedication in the administration since 1960, Brown has been able to spend fewer hours in the educational niche he loves most--the classroom. Although he is kept busy in the Office of Student Affairs, he teaches at least one class every semester because he enjoys teaching and because he does not want to lose the close contact between teacher and students.

He considers his return to teaching "the right move."

"I'll miss a lot of the activities," Brown said, but he looks forward to his classes in second session summer school, and to his Modern Geometry and other mathematics courses for the fall.

"Education is students," he stated. He is very close to UNC-W, from his own association, as well as the fact that he has two sons who are alumni--both of whom majored in mathematics.

The faculty at UNC-W is exceptional, he feels, and "basically our students are good students."

Brown looks forward to "enjoying something I really like." Teaching mathematics.

'Orestes' slated Feb. 22-25

by Jean Janier
Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon, professor of drama, is directing the contemporary play "Orestes" for the University theater.

She states, "The play is modern in that it deals with chaos of modern souls and with inner conflicts." The play is a study in madness, and was written by Euripides, in 408 B.C.

"Orestes" starts flat in madness, and by the end Euripides creates a double ending where logically there should be chaos and murder. But when he gets to the point of the murder, he provides another ending by bringing in Apollo. Apollo says this is not the way the Greek gods want the story to end, and he makes his own ending.

The cast is listed as they appear in the play: Becky Owens, Electra; Valory

Cooper, Helen; Jody Chilton, Hermione; the chorus, Leigh Eaton, Nancy Thornton, and Cathleen Fitzgibbon; Mark Barefoot as Orestes; Ed Danilowicz, Menelous; Steve Dunn, Tyndareus; Neal Bell, Pyriades; Larry McFarlane, Messenger; David Brickly, Phrygian slave; and Randy Merce, as Phoebus.

The play will be produced February 22-25, 8:30 p.m., in the SRO Theater. Students are admitted free. There will be $1 fee for the public.

Absentees plague Senate

by angel williford
The Jan. 30 Student Senate meeting revealed that some of its members are working hard while others are doing no work at all.

One point of the discussion concerned absenteeism in the Senate. Some members have lost Senate eligibility due to absenteeism.

Pattie McCombie, student body vice-president and Speaker of the Senate, is in charge of getting in touch with these delinquent members. Her task is to find out why the representatives have missed Senate meetings. Do they have valid reasons for their absences or are they just unconcerned, taking their positions for granted?

Six senators led by Butch Pogran will attend the North Carolina Student Legislative Assembly.

Senators Tom Montgomery and Patsy Duvill, were approved for new membership in the Senate.

There are still unfilled class offices which create vacancies in the Senate--two for the junior class and two for the senior.

Coming in March are the student elections. At the present time there is no chairman for the Election Committee.

Fine Arts presents 'Klute'

Jane Fonda, a young lady with radical political opinions on subjects from Women's Lib to G. I. rights, gives the most gripping performance of her career as a terror-ridden New York girl Hunted by a psychopathic killer in "Klute."

Her unforgettable characterization--for which she won the 1971 Academy Award for Best Actress--dominates the screen, cynical yet sensitive, and triumphantly confirms the promise of her performance in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

Starring with her is Donald Sutherland as Klute, a small-town detective who leads the hunt for the maniacal killer. His low-key performance combines dignity and restraint, perfectly balancing Miss Fonda's desperate intensity.

Here is a vivid look at high-priced prostitution, the depraved fringes of the New York underworld and a tortured romance between the two stars, all heightening the mounting suspense as the mysterious killer closes in on his terrified victim.

Sponsored by the Fine Arts Committee, "Klute" will be shown in Kenan Auditorium Feb. 20 at 8 p.m.

editorial

From the nest

We've had a host of favorable comments about the second half of volume fifteen. Thanks for the interest. We hope everyone continues to enjoy and profit from the news and views we try to present.

The counseling and testing center on campus is probably one of the most misunderstood and overlooked offices here. Which is a shame.

Because they (Drs. Newton and Slager) have the desire and the ability to help. The first impression students have upon hearing of the office is that it is a place to find out about careers that best suit them. But the counseling center offers so much more.

It's a place to talk—in confidence—about things that bother you.

Like Dr. Newton says, you don't have to have a "major hang-up" to benefit from the center. And the fantastic thing is that you don't have stock answers to your questions handed to you. Realizing that each person comes into the office from a completely different set of circumstances, the counselors listen and question. And when answers come from the counseling, they are individual answers to individual questions.

Students are what the center is about. Got a question? Ask Newton or Slager. That's why they're here.

There is still haggling going on concerning airline youth fares. The Civil Aeronautics Board ruled in December that Youth STANDBY fares were unjustly discriminatory and that youth RESERVATION fares were unjust and unreasonable. The fares are still in effect.

The only immediate effect is that youth fare passengers are not to be seated in first class compartments. According to the National On Campus Report, however, the fares should remain in effect through 1973. So if you're planning on doing some air travel youth fare, do it soon.

By the way, THE SEAHAWK is always interested in ideas—new or used. We don't pay. But we're great listeners. The editor is generally around the Hawk office in the pub after 10:30 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. And from 2 p.m. to 5 or so on Tuesdays and Thursdays. But if there's no one around, there's a bulletin board on the door just asking to get any type of message you care to leave.

The Seahawk

published each friday by the students of the university of north carolina at wilmington. deadline for articles and announcements is 5 p.m. on the monday before friday publication.

editor.....	kathi beall
associate editor.....	ron manchard
feature editor.....	beverly causey, sharon white
sports editor.....	robert braxton
advertising director.....	barry asbury
business manager.....	rocky moore
photographers.....	shirley hance, alan sanders, tom smiley film critic.....	agency focusse
typist, reporter.....	sally gibson
reporters.....	kathie corn, leigh eaton, marian koch, jean lanier, robin starr, arlene willford, mary margaret williams, linda ford, branda knowles, lavis moush
adulser.....	thomas lupton

FRIENDS:

Sorry if this is not as newsy as it has been, but our big deadline days for news-gathering-- Monday and Tuesday-- found us "snowbound." Alas, there were not enough newsmakers-- student style-- on campus to get a lot of hard news. But we have plenty of interesting features.

Feedback!

To the editor:

Have we really stopped filling this earth with filth? In the last decade, the 60's,

I believe people on mother earth started really caring about their environment. Signs and articles induced much public arousement.

Everyone seemed as if they were really interested in cleaning up what others neglected to clean. The human being was once again finally realizing what life is all about as in the Renaissance or the Golden Age.

Sally Seahawk salutes

SALLY SEAHAWK SALUTES: is a regular (when we feel the need) "thank you" type of non-paying reward for person/persons/group that deserves/deserve recognition for service "above and beyond," etc.

This week, we'd like to recognize Jack Paul, who is doing his darndest to see that this year's FLEDGLING is a grade-A, number one publication. An art major and president of the senior class, Jack acts as chaplain for the Student Senate. And, recently, he's been working to make Homecoming '73 worthwhile for students and alumni.

Though the work on the Fledgling is not visible to the students, we know what kind of work he's doing. So on behalf of those who care, thanks, Jack.

I was rapping with guy, that was once working on a boat for oceanography, who said that in the deep seas the personnel on his ship gathers all their wastes and contains it all in plastic bags. Well, this was all find and dandy, but, to top it all off, they threw this trash into the ocean. It appeared quite ridiculous to hear this about men who loved the ocean, or seemed to be trying to work with it, and yet did exactly the opposite of preserving it. The wastes do not sink either, instead they float along a rather quick precarious course of polluting. The dude to who I was speaking said that they only dump their trash in "dumping zones." Their example is nothing on land, in the woods, air and intercoastal waterways are other beginning prospects for "dumping grounds." Do you think this is sickening? If you do, I could like to believe that you are not human. What I want to know is how in the world are we, the civilization, ever going to live in such a hell of destruction, as it could seemingly become? For myself, there is no way, no life, no happiness in such utter disinvolvement. I can not and will not hack it. It is not right!

What I am trying to say is that you just can not say one day I am going to fight pollution and the next completely forget it. It must be a twenty-four hour devotion of one's SELF. Sure it is a good idea, but can you accomplish it? That is "catcher." The beginning is simple, to think of a good idea, but keeping it, the environment sure and clean, now that is awareness. All we must do is our part and pray everyone will do theirs! OM,

Philip Stafford

"Frankly Speaking"

by Phil Frank

© FRANKLY SPEAKING Post Office Box 1523 East Lansing Michigan 48823

For talk, questions

Counseling offers opportunity

"It's all right to 'hit' us with something even if we're not in the office," states Dr. Darwin Newton of the Counseling and Testing Center (A-217). He and Dr. Jim Slager have, by the nature of their profession, volunteered to be verbal "punching bags" -- sounding boards for questions or problems.

The center is a "place for people to get things into perspective," according to Dr. Slager. Questions or problems concerning academic, emotional, and career aspects of student life are explored in counseling. "You don't have to have a major hang - up to benefit from counseling," Dr. Newton said.

The counselors believe in listening, and talks and "listens" are what counseling begins with. If, as a result of the talks, the counselor feels that a student might benefit from the insight gained in an interest (to help determine career possibilities) or personality test, such a test is administered.

The formidable "and Testing" portion of the office name is an indication that the office is a center for the National Teacher's Exam, the Graduate Record Exam, and State Merit exams.

The center is available for use by all students, Newton and Slager emphasize. "Students are our reason for being here," they hope to reach more students, and in an effort to do so, they plan to establish some encounter groups.

Dr. Newton, licensed psychologist and director of counseling and testing, received his M.A. and Ed. D. at the University of Northern Colorado. He has done counseling from the junior high to college level. He has served as Director of Guidance for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system, and as Chairman of the Psychology Department of Eastern Kentucky University. Dr. Slager received his Master's Degree in guidance and counseling at Appalachian State University and his Ph. D. with specialization in counseling psychology and group procedures from Purdue University. He was a graduate assistant in the counseling center at Appalachian, and held a similar appointment at Purdue.

The counselors encourage students to talk with them-- in the office or on campus.

Encounters slated

As part of services offered by the Counseling and Testing Center, exploration-encounter sessions will begin soon.

The sessions should help counselors reach more students who are asking questions such as "Who am I? Where do I fit in? How can I better understand myself and others?"

The first meeting is slated for Wednesday, Feb. 21, at 3 p.m. upstairs in the Pub. The sessions will meet for a couple of hours each time, twice a week for several weeks.

Interested students are asked to call and leave their name with the Counseling and Testing secretary so that the number of participants may be determined before the meeting.

Sessions will be led by Dr. Jim Slager of the center, whose Ph.D. specialization is in counseling psychology and group procedures.

DR. JIM SLAGER

DR. DARWIN NEWTON

FOURTEEN CORNER

4405 wrightsville ave.

tops
bottoms
water beds
and accessories

albums
tapes pipes
paper
paraphernalia

next to the Bicycle Shop!!!!

AT MILLS JEWELERS

When you know
it's for keeps

FAIR HAVEN $175 WED. RING $55	TRIPOLI $300 WED. RING $94.75	APOLLO $750 ALSO TO $15,000
------------------------------------	------------------------------------	----------------------------------

Keepsake®
REGISTERED DIAMOND RINGS

Love's perfect symbol is a Keepsake Diamond Ring... created in rich 14K gold and set with a perfect center engagement diamond. Choose yours today from our exciting new selection.

SHOP TILL 9 P.M. NIGHTLY
HANOVER CENTER

4-WAYS
TO BUY
CASH
CHARGE
LAY-A-WAY
BANK CARD

28 N. FRONT ST. *PHONE 461-4511
HANOVER CENTER *PHONE 767-0710

"They do not love
that do not show their love."

William Shakespeare

Choose Keepsake
with complete confidence, because the famous Keepsake Guarantee
assures a perfect engagement diamond of precise cut and superb color. There is no finer diamond ring.

Keepsake®
REGISTERED DIAMOND RINGS

Rings from $100-$10,000
T-M Reg. A. H. Pond Co.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Send new 20 pg. booklet, "Planning Your Engagement and Wedding" plus full color folder and 44 pg. Bride's Book gift offer all for only 25¢. $-73

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ Co. _____
State _____ Zip _____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N. Y. 13201

Chambers has recipe

by Brenda Knowles

At least one professor at UNC-W has the ability to transform habitual icing nibblers into cake eaters: Dr. Samuel T. Chambers, professor of history and political science, has the magic recipe to tempt students to taste of events in history.

On Thursday, February 22, Dr. Chambers will present a lecture entitled "The Emotional Quest." Beginning at 11:30 a.m. in the library auditorium, he will speak for 50 minutes on the life and adventures of Jacques Casanova, Chevalier de Seingalt. The lecture will include the psychology, religion, and philosophy of Casanova and, at the same time, constitute a tour of Europe in the second half of the eighteenth century. While Dr. Chambers is much more concerned with the historical aspect of the lecture, he does find some delight in the icing, or the intriguing life and emotions of Casanova, the well known lover and writer.

In a recent interview, Dr. Chambers gave his reason for presenting the lecture:

"Emotion is often very destructive, I am hoping that my lecture will cater to the emotions natural to young people, but at the same time that it will provide an insight into history." He desires to achieve a balance between the scholarly and popular levels.

Jacques Casanova is characterized by Chambers as an opportunist and imposter. Because he knew that people in the Age of Reason craved more than reason, Casanova was able to gain considerable profit. He actually lived off the money given to him for hunches which sometimes happened to work as he had predicted.

Interest in Jacques Casanova first developed with Dr. Chambers at Johns Hopkins University, where he received his bachelor's degree. Before becoming a full professor in both political science and history, he attended Georgetown University, receiving the M.A. and Ph. D. degrees. Dr. Chambers was on the faculty at Pembroke State University for two years prior to coming to UNC-W nine years ago.

Sociology students act; link classroom, world

by Leigh Eaton

"A lot of learning doesn't go on in classrooms." This statement by one of the new professors of sociology, Miss Betty McEntire, perhaps sums up the philosophy of the department. Their aim is to teach involving the student in the problems he hears about in class.

The faculty and students take pride in their closeness as a group interested in the community. UNC-W students are working at the Juvenile Delinquency Center, New Hanover Advancement Center, Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw, and two of the department's first interns are with the State Probation Commission. Two students are involved in the Multiple Abilities Program.

In the classroom the general format is informal. "Games" of social science simulations, Simsoc and Clug, inspire student participation. To involve the students after class, there are plans for a drug survey with about 80 participants from the Social Problems course.

The Sociology Club also attempts to link the classroom to the outside world. It has sponsored several speakers in its field this year.

This fall, a major in sociology was offered for the first time. Previously, the degree conferred was in Social Sciences with a concentration in an area of interest.

Four full-time sociology professors are new to UNC-W this year. They are Miss Betty McEntire, Tom Fields, Christopher Sieverdes, and Albert Sharp. There are hopes that an anthropologist will join them next fall, and that soon a major will be offered in that field.

Bulletin Board

Physical Education

Physical Education Majors' club meeting is slated for Monday, Feb. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in H-201. After the business portion of the meeting, a program of basic trampoline techniques will be presented by PE majors in the gymnasium. All interested persons are invited to attend the Monday meeting.

The Feb. 5 meeting was a big success, according to a club member. "The demonstration of the equipment in the physiology of exercise lab was very interesting. The majors wish to express their appreciation to Coach Earl Allen for his time and effort in presenting the demonstration."

English

Dr. Marie Powles of the Department of English has had a poem "Insensibility," accepted for publication in THE AMERICAN POET.

We pledge
to make Dunkin'
Donuts
fresh every
4 hours

24 hours a day

DUNKIN' DONUTS

3200 Market Street

Yes

Wachovia

SECOND BIG WEEK
THE YEAR'S BIGGEST!
SHOWS TODAY

2:00-4:00-6:00-8:10-10:15

YOU MUST SEE THIS EXCITING
SUSPENSE FROM THE BEGINNING
FOR FULL ENJOYMENT!

THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE

WINNER OF 7
ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS

799-3950

Cinema 1&2
ROCKING CHAIR THEATRES

OLEANDER DRIVE

NOW SHOWING

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND

STARRING
Peter Sellers
Featuring
Fiona Fullerton as "Alice"

DISCOUNTS TO SCHOOL
GROUPS. CALL MANAGER
799-3950

ADULTS $1.50
UNDER 12 $1.00

go get h
a w
a t c h

AQUA
WORLD INC.

Professional
Diving
Instruction
N.A.S.D.S.
Approved

- BASIC CERTIFICATION
- SENIOR DIVING COURSE
- UNDERWATER PHOTOGRAPHY
- WRECK & CAVE DIVING

AIR — SALES — RENTALS
CHARTER — REPAIRS

791-3976

5425 WRIGHTSVILLE AV.

BARGAIN HOUR TIL 2:30

1.00 BOTH CINEMAS

Seahawks win two

"Just get in there and play your own game, and sooner or later the breaks will have to state coming our way."

If a coach has ever made this sort of statement before, it may have applied to a basketball team like the UNC-W Seahawks.

Talking about the breaks of a game, the Seahawks had received more than their share of the bad breaks, and as it happened, it was about time for the tide to change, as the Seahawks won two miraculous basketball games this past week.

Led by what coach Mel Gibson termed, "complete team victories," the Seahawks frantically edged Baptist College, 63-59 in a super-exciting overtime game, here, Thursday night.

The second Seahawk victory came Monday night when UNC-W invaded the Bulldog country of Atlantic Christian and proceeded to demolish the Bulldogs, 87-58 as the Seahawks claimed their first victory on the road this season.

UNC-W has two remaining ball games left on their schedule, and both are at Hanover Hall. The Seahawks face Methodist College tomorrow night in the big homecoming game for UNC-W. After this battle, the Seahawks play the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs Wednesday night to finalize their season.

In view of the score of the two games, one would come to the conclusion that they were considerably different in many ways, but they were not. In both contests, the Seahawks controlled the tempo and played excellent defense. These were the two big things that helped the Seahawks in their wins.

As it turned out, the Seahawks enjoyed their best shooting and rebounding nights of the year against the Bulldogs of ACC. The Hawks shot 58 percent from the field while they pulled down 46 rebounds, out-rebounding the Bulldogs almost two to one.

As for individual players it is very hard to single out any one person, but David Prince, Mike Cherry, Ricky Brock, and Greg Kemp all had great back to back performances.

Prince enjoyed his finest game of the season against Baptist, scoring 20 points and grabbing 13 rebounds. For both

